I am always at a loss for words with the Ninth, there being virtually nothing to add to the literature on this enormous work, so it always comes down to the performance. Until the later stages of the melodramatic choral finale, it was a very fine performance indeed. Mr. Munch did the scherzo with particular effect, catching the lightning tempo without rushing and bringing out its heroically playful nuances with great sensitivity. The slow movement was a mood of sombre yet tender lyricism in the highest level of expression, though it was briefly marred by the entrance of a horn noticeably sharp in pitch.

The finale, which contains what is certainly the most ungrateful part for a solo quartet ever composed, lost its big lines in a fierce driving conclusion, but the chorus was with the conductor every second and sang with elan and a splendid balance, the sopranos this time getting on top and attacking vigorously and cleanly. Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, David Lloyd and Mac Morgan as the soloists contending with the impossible almost made it seem possible, Miss Addison in particular soaring above the tumult in striking fashion, though the others traversed the notes with equal brilliance.

And so, with bravos and a standing, applauding audience making a demonstration, the 75th season of the Boston Symphony orchestra came to a conclusion in an ocean of sound. It seems, at this moment, a long, long time to October. Sunday night, incidentally, the orchestra will give a concert to benefit its forthcoming European trip, the program consisting of Beethoven's Seventh Symphony and Tchaikovsky's Sixth.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Sunday Sun
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 27,559

Sunday Telegram
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 104,780
APR 29 1956

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000
APR 30 1956

Symphony Awaits Soviet Bid for Trip to Moscow

By JOHN WM. RILEY

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Orchestra Awaits Bid From Russia

Boston, April 30—(UP)—The Boston Symphony Orchestra today awaited a formal invitation from Moscow for a trip to the Soviet Union.

The Russian cultural attache in Washington has made preliminary overtures to the Boston Symphony which already has scheduled a West European tour this summer.

The Philadelphia Orchestra was on tap to go but members of that group voted unanimously against the trip late last week.

Last night, the Boston Symphony ended its 75th anniversary season with a special concert to raise additional funds for its first European tour since 1953.

The 71st annual season of Boston Pops Concerts will open tomorrow night under the direction of Arthur Fiedler. It will be his 27th year as conductor of the popular concert series.

Now Assured on Symphony

...day to be assured of hear- ...ony Orchestra in Moscow ...al was down

...s refused to ...or Charles ...te conductor ...the Boston ...led to leave ...r abroad in

...ule calls for ...the Iron Cur- ...echoslovakia, ...its schedule ...pt. 5 and 6 ...elsinki, Fin- ..., a short hop by plane into ...sia.

...he State department re- ...ed that Soviet government ...ld guarantee the orchestra ...enses and a profit for con- ...s within the country.

chestra Ma... ...dy's in So...

...The ...king to ...Orches- ...the ...which ...day in the Soviet Uni... Department ... that substitutio... Orchestra, if it ... would have the ...

...only ...state ...ld be ...s and ...rches- ...erred with ...s in ...

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071
APR 29 1956

EVERGREEN FAVORITES: ARTHUR FIEDLER AND THE POPS will join forces once again on Tuesday night when Boston ...ing concerts start their 71st season at Symphony Hall with Mr. Fiedler conducting.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071
APR 29 1956

(Herald Staff Photo by Maynard White)

FLOWER VENDORS at the opening night of the Pops in Symphony Hall, Tuesday evening, will include Charlotte Nickerson of Dedham and Tenley Albright of Newton. For the fourteenth year, the New England Grenfell Association is sponsoring the opening to help the work of the Grenfell Mission in Labrador.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
APR 29 1956

CO-CHAIRMAN of alumnae committee planning annual Emmanuel Night at the Pops, Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall, is Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury. Proceeds of the concert will benefit the college building program.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democra...
Circ. 230,930
APR 29 1956

Meeting ... Smith Ni... Smith Co... work are... Marian H...

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071
APR 29 1956

Jesuit to Get Eire Society Medal Here

The Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., former president of Fordham University, will receive the Eire Society Gold Medal at the society's 19th annual dinner Saturday at 6:30 p.m. at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

John J. Hearne, Irish ambassador, and Edward B. Hanify, a Boston attorney, will address the more than 750 members and friends expected to attend.

1,000 TO SYMPHONY

A gift of $1,000 will be presented to the Boston Symphony Orchestra by the society, in appreciation of concerts to be given by the orchestra this summer in Cork and Dublin.

Joseph Gannon, president of the Eire Society, will be toastmaster. Head table guests will include Joseph Shields, Irish Consul; Hugh A. Moriarty, president of the American Order of Hibernians; Charles T. Burke, president of the Charitable Irish Society; William B. Caroran, president of the Clover Club; and Humphrey J. Mahoney, president of the Central Council of Irish Country Clubs.

Father Gannon, who will be given the gold medal as a "true educator of men and a priest of God," completed his early studies at Loyola School and Georgetown University. He entered the Society of Jesus in 1913 as an instructor of English and philosophy at Fordham, and was ordained in 1926.

He received an M. A. degree at Christ College, Cambridge, in 1930, and holds a Litt.D. degree from Georgetown and honorary degrees from several colleges and universities. He is now president of Loyola School in New York.

Previous recipients of the society's gold medal include Archbishop Cushing, Prof. Fred N. Robinson of Harvard and John Ford, the film director.

At her Newton Center home Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard (right), chairman of opening night at Symphony Pops, Tuesday, for the benefit of the Grenfell Mission, talks over the duties of flower vendors with (left to right) Mrs. Wellington Wells 3d, Miss Charlotte Nickerson, Miss Betsy Wilte and Miss Tenley Albright.

YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
26,215 - S. 1,146,860

APR 28 1956

on Hears
ral Work
Woman

HN H. FENTON
o The New York Times.

. April 27—A Rad-
ge graduate rose from ce at Symphony Hall
bowed in response to
for her accomplish-
composer.

bel Daniels, tiny, el-smiling, was being
for her "Psalm of
t was played at the
riday afternoon per-
of the season by the
mphony Orchestra.
rvard Glee Club and
liffe Choral Society
vocal parts of the performance will be omorrow night.

years ago the sym-
yed Miss Daniels' "Ex-
," with a mixed chorus
two colleges.

Charles Munch, musi-
r of the Boston Symanned the closing two
f the orchestra's sev-
anniversary season, he
o pay tribute to an
woman composer
na mater observed its
th anniversary last

niels composed "Psalm
for the Radcliffe dia-
ilee, just as she had
Exultate Deo" for the fiftieth anniversary in

her brightest mem-
said, is of Christmas
35. Then she heard the
t. Bartholomew's Prot-
piscopal Church in New
ner "Christ Child."
carol set to words of
esterton.

adcliffe alumna has ee of her works played
Boston orchestra. Her
orest" was presented
Although "Exultate
s composed for the
fiftieth anniversary,
estra did not play it
years later.

Daniels' penchant for came to the fore in rgraduate days, when posed the music for erettas. In these she nducted the orchestra
he principal part.

udied in Munich

receiving a degree,
um laude, in 1900, Miss
tudied composition and
tion with George W.
in Boston and with Thuille in Munich. In wrote "An American Munich," a book based mpressions as a music

aniels scored today the belief that composing
by sitting at a piano.
the opposite," she said
ugh. "One of the most things to do is to boil
symphonic piece into a nblance of it."

, she explained, "I hear
for individual instru-
nning through my head;
mple, a flute, with a nd of strings."

Daniels said she thought men composers today
etter equipped" than in
But she added that
g still meant plenty of
rk.

n today, she commented,
tter opportunities for music through playing chestra. In an earlier did the next best thing
a chorus, she said.

t Season

y Orchestra and in re-sons has made many ces as a guest conductor
ps. Last season he con-
he first four weeks of
during the absence of
ler. He is also the con-
f the Brookline Youth
and he organized the chestra in Providence.

ps concerts will continue hrough the month of uring June, the concerts
played nightly except
The season will close on night, June 30. Tickets
n sale at Symphony Hall
e one week in advance
concert.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

APR 28 1956

MUSIC

Symphony Concert

The Boston Symphony orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, gave the 24th program of its 75th season in Symphony Hall yesterday afternoon. The soloists were Adele Addison, soprano, Eunice Alberts, contralto, David Lloyd, tenor, and Mac Morgan, bass. Assisting were the Radcliffe Choral Society and the Harvard Glee Club, G. Wallace Woodworth, conductor. The program:

A Psalm of Praise . . . Mabel Daniels
Symphony No. 9 in D minor, Op. 125 . . . Beethoven

BY RUDOLPH ELIE

There is no event in the calendar year I view with more mingled emotions than this, the last regular symphony concert of the season.

On the one hand there is the end of the music season, a long and arduous one for the reviewer who must trot about to musical events three and four or more times a week; on the other, the end of the refreshing stimulations of these weekly concerts, which add the special dimension of grateful personal contacts among the listeners as well as the musical communication with the orchestra. The weather may occasionally intrude and the fatigues of the winter season may pile up, but for a brief two hours on a Friday afternoon or a Saturday night, there is repose, respite, re-invigoration.

ANNUAL RITE

The final program was but an hour and a quarter long, for it was the annual rite of the Ninth Symphony. But an unusual aspect was the presence on the program of a work by Mabel Daniels, who shares with but six other women the distinction of having her music performed by the Boston Symphony in the whole 75 years of its existence.

It is a curious thing, it has always seemed to me, that music is the one field in all art, indeed in all human endeavor, that women have never achieved a masterpiece corresponding even to those of lesser masters in music. In years gone by the orchestra has played music by Ethel Leginska, Margaret Lang, Helen Hopekirk, Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, Henriette Bosman and Lili Boulanger: it has never repeated it and there is very little likelihood it ever will be revived.

Nor, in its present form, does it seem likely Miss Daniels' very fine "Psalm of Praise" for mixed chorus, three trumpets, percussion and strings, will take its place in the repertoire. By "present form" I mean as a concert hall work: it will undoubtedly have many a performance in its original form with piano, trumpets and percussion, for it is a sound and vigorous work echoing the jubilation of the text from the Old Testament. Its inner part is lovely supplicatory lyric beautifully suited to the mixed chorus, and it ends on a note of triumph. The idiom is personal, makes little use of dissonance, but its contrapuntal lines in the outer sections are somewhat angular in a more contemporary vein. The modulations are free and interesting and, all in all, it is the agreeable product of a lively and gifted mind. Miss Daniels was in the audience and most cordially received.

ENORMOUS WORK

I am always at a loss for words with the Ninth, there being virtually nothing to add to the literature on this enormous work, so it always comes down to the performance. Until the later stages of the melodramatic choral finale, it was a very fine performance indeed. Mr. Munch did the scherzo with particular effect, catching the lightning tempo without rushing and bringing out its heroically playful nuances with great sensitivity. The slow movement was a mood of sombre yet tender lyricism in the highest level of expression, though it was briefly marred by the entrance of a horn noticeably sharp in pitch.

The finale, which contains what is certainly the most ungrateful part for a solo quartet ever composed, lost its big lines in a fierce driving conclusion, but the chorus was with the conductor every second and sang with elan and a splendid balance, the sopranos this time getting on top and attacking vigorously and cleanly. Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, David Lloyd and Mac Morgan as the soloists ing with the impossib made it seem possible, dison in particular soar the tumult in striking though the others tray notes with equal brilli

And so, with bravo standing, applauding making a demonstrat 75th season of the Bost phony orchestra came clusion in an ocean o It seems, at this mo long, long time to Octo day night, incidentally, chestra will give a co benefit its forthcoming E trip, the program consi Beethoven's Seventh Sy and Tchaikovsky's Sixth

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

APR 29 195

Meeting to talk Smith Night at P Smith College Cl work are (left t Marian Francis a

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

APR 29 1956

At her Newton Center home Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard (right), chairman of opening night at Symphony Pops, Tuesday, for the benefit of the Grenfell Mission, talks over the duties of flower vendors with (left to right) Mrs. Wellington Wells 3d, Miss Charlotte Nickerson, Miss Betsy Wilte and Miss Tenley Albright.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Sunday Sun
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 27,559

Sunday Telegram
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 104,780

APR 29 1956

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

APR 30 1956

Now Assured
on Symphony

day to be assured of hear-pony Orchestra in Moscow
al was down

rs refused to

tor Charles ate conductor
the Boston
uled to leave r abroad in

ule calls for
the Iron Cur-
echoslovakia,
its schedule
pt. 5 and 6
elsinki, Fin-
, a short hop by plane into sia.

he State department re-ted that Soviet government
ld guarantee the orchestra
enses and a profit for con-
ts within the country.

chestra Ma
ndy's in Sov

The
king to Orches-
the which lay in only state ld be s and rcheserred with s in has d-Au-ur of es in group choslo-

r Sept.
is exuld be inland,

made a 952.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

Boston Symphony Orchestra Awaits Call From Moscow

BOSTON UP — The Boston Symphony Orchestra today awaited a formal invitation from Moscow for a trip to the Soviet Union.

The Russian cultural attache in Washington has made preliminary overtures to the Boston Symphony, which already had scheduled a West European tour this summer.

The Philadelphia orchestra was on tap to go but members of that group voted unanimously against the trip late last week.

Sunday night, the Boston Symphony ended its 75th anniversary season with a special concert to raise additional funds for its first European tour since 1953.

The 71st annual season of Boston pops concerts will open Tuesday night under the direction of Arthur Fiedler. It will be his 27th year as conductor of the popular concert series.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

Jesuit to Get Eire Society Medal Here

The Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., former president of Fordham University, will receive the Eire Society Gold Medal at the society's 19th annual dinner Saturday at 6:30 p.m. at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

John J. Hearne, Irish ambassador, and Edward B. Hanify, a Boston attorney, will address the more than 750 members and friends expected to attend.

1,000 TO SYMPHONY

A gift of $1,000 will be presented to the Boston Symphony Orchestra by the society, in appreciation of concerts to be given by the orchestra this summer in Cork and Dublin.

Joseph Gannon, president of the Eire Society, will be toastmaster. Head table guests will include Joseph Shields, Irish consul; Hugh A. Moriarty, president of the American Order of Hibernians; Charles T. Burke, president of the Charitable Irish Society; William B. Caroran, president of the Clover Club; and Humphrey J. Mahoney, president of the Central Council of Irish Country Clubs.

Father Gannon, who will be given the gold medal as a "true educator of men and a priest of God," completed his early studies at Loyola School and Georgetown University. He entered the Society of Jesus in 1913 as an instructor of English and philosophy at Fordham, and was ordained in 1926.

He received an M. A. degree at Christ College, Cambridge, in 1930, and holds a Litt.D. degree from Georgetown and honorary degrees from several colleges and universities. He is now president of Loyola School in New York.

Previous recipients of the society's gold medal include Archbishop Cushing, Prof. Fred N. Robinson of Harvard and John Ford, the film director.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

EVERGREEN FAVORITES: ARTHUR FIEDLER AND THE POPS will join forces once again on Tuesday night when Boston's favorite spring concerts start their 71st season at Symphony Hall with Mr. Fiedler conducting.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

(Herald Staff Photo by Maynard White)

FLOWER VENDORS at the opening night of the Pops in Symphony Hall, Tuesday evening, will include Charlotte Nickerson of Dedham and Tenley Albright of Newton. For the fourteenth year, the New England Grenfell Association is sponsoring the opening to help the work of the Grenfell Mission in Labrador.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

APR 29 1956

CO-CHAIRMAN of alumnae committee planning annual Emmanuel Night at the Pops, Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall, is Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury. Proceeds of the concert will benefit the college building program.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559
APR 28 1956

MUSIC

Symphony Concert

The Boston Symphony orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, gave the 24th program of the 75th season in Symphony Hall yesterday afternoon. The soloists were Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; David Lloyd, tenor, and Mac Morgan, bass. Assisting were the Radcliffe Choral Society and the Harvard Glee Club. G. Wallace Woodworth, conductor. The program:

A Psalm of Praise ..... Mabel Daniels
Symphony No. 9 in D minor, Op. 125 ..... Beethoven

By RUDOLPH ELIE

There is no event in the calendar year I view with more mingled emotions than this, the last regular symphony concert of the season.

On the one hand there is the end of the music season, a long and arduous one for the reviewer who must trot about to musical events three and four or more times a week; on the other the end of the refreshing stimulations of these weekly concerts, which add the special dimension of grateful personal contacts among the listeners as well as the musical communication with the orchestra. The weather may occasionally intrude and the fatigues of the winter season may pile up, but for a brief two hours on a Friday afternoon or a Saturday night, there is repose, respite, re-invigoration.

ANNUAL RITE

The final program was but an hour and a quarter long, for it was the annual rite of the Ninth Symphony. But an unusual aspect was the presence on the program of a work by Mabel Daniels, who shares with but six other women the distinction of having her music performed by the Boston Symphony in the whole 75 years of its existence.

It is a curious thing, it has always seemed to me, that music is the one field in all art, indeed in all human endeavor, that women have never achieved a masterpiece corresponding even to those of lesser masters in music. In years gone by the orchestra has played music by Ethel Leginska, Margaret Lang, Helen Hopekirk, Mrs. H. M. A. Beach, Henriette Bosman and Lili Boulanger: it has never repeated it and there is very little likelihood it ever will be revived.

Nor, in its present form, does it seem likely Miss Daniels' very fine "Psalm of Praise" for mixed chorus, three trumpets, percussion and strings, will take its place in the repertoire. By "present form" I mean as a concert hall work; it will undoubtedly have many a performance in its original form with piano, trumpets and percussion, for it is a sound and vigorous work echoing the jubilation of the text from the Old Testament. Its inner part is lovely supplicatory lyric beautifully suited to the mixed chorus, and it ends on a note of triumph. The idiom is personal, makes little use of dissonance, but its contrapuntal lines in the outer sections are somewhat angular in a more contemporary vein. The modulations are free and interesting and, all in all, it is the agreeable product of a lively and gifted mind. Miss Daniels was in the audience and most cordially received.

ENORMOUS WORK

I am always at a loss for words with the Ninth, there being virtually nothing to add to the literature on this enormous work, so it always comes down to the performance. Until the later stages of the melodramatic choral finale, it was a very fine performance indeed. Mr. Munch led the scherzo with particular verve, catching the lightning tempo without rushing and bringing out its heroically playful dances with great sensitivity. The slow movement was a mood of sombre yet tender lyricism at the highest level of expression, though it was briefly marred by the entrance of a horn noticeably sharp in pitch.

The finale, which contains what is certainly the most ungrateful part for a solo quartet ever composed, lost its ... in a fierce driving ... but the chorus was ... conductor every second ... with elan and a splendid ... the sopranos this time ge... top and attacking vigorou... cleanly. Adele Addison, ... Alberts, David Lloyd a... Morgan as the soloists c... ing with the impossible ... made it seem possible, ... dison in particular soari... the tumult in striking ... though the others trave... notes with equal brillian...

And so, with bravos ... standing, applauding a... making a demonstrati... 75th season of the Bosto... phony orchestra came to ... clusion in an ocean of ... It seems, at this mom... long, long time to Octobe... day night, incidentally, ... chestra will give a con... benefit its forthcoming E... trip, the program consis... Beethoven's Seventh Sym... and Tchaikovsky's Sixth.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Demo...
Circ. 230,930
APR 29 195...

Meeting to talk over their flower vendor chores for Smith Night at Pops, May 8, sponsored by the Boston Smith College Club and alumnae of its school for social work are (left to right) Miss Anne Whitfield, Miss Marian Francis and Miss Anne Bryant.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
APR 29 1956

At her Newton Center home Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard (right), chairman of opening night at Symphony Pops, Tuesday, for the benefit of the Grenfell Mission, talks over the duties of flower vendors with (left to right) Mrs. Wellington Wells 3d, Miss Charlotte Nickerson, Miss Betsy Wilte and Miss Tenley Albright.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Sunday Sun
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 27,559

Sunday Telegram
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 104,780
APR 29 1956

Symphony Awaits Moscow Invitation

Boston — (UP) — The Boston Symphony Orchestra today awaited a formal invitation from Moscow for a trip to the Soviet Union.

The Russian cultural attache in Washington has made preliminary overtures to the Boston Symphony which already had scheduled a West European tour this summer.

The Philadelphia Orchestra was on tap to go but members of that group voted unanimously against the trip late last week.

EVE
Hartford
CONN.

...Day committee meet-
...morrow, reminders of those pre-
...ously announced; honor roll and
...A list of activities for today and
...whom were injured.
...benefit its forthcoming E...
...trip, the program consis...
...Beethoven's Seventh Sym...
...and Tchaikovsky's Sixth.

...Road and Route 6-A about ...
...p.m. Charles L. Farrell, 25, of ...
...Drive B, Manchester, driver of ...
...the first car, was unhurt. Both ...
...men had passengers, neither ...
...were injured.

...Now Assured
...on Symphony
...W...day to be assured of hear-
...phony Orchestra in Moscow
...al was down
...s refused to
...or Charles
...te conductor
...the" Boston
...led to leave
...r abroad in
...ule calls for
...he Iron Cur-
...choslovakia,
...its schedule
...pt. 5 and 6
...elsinki, Fin-
...a short hop by plane into
...ia.
...he State department re-
...ed that Soviet government
...ld guarantee the orchestra
...enses and a profit for con-
...ts within the country.

...chestra Ma...
...ndy's in Sov...
...The
...king to ...Orches-
...the
...which
...ay in
...the Soviet Uni...
...Department ...
...that substitutio...
...Orchestra, if it ...
...would have the ...
...only
...state
...ld be
...s and
...rches-
...erred
...with
...s in
...has
...id-Au-
...ur of
...es in
...group
...choslo-
...r Sept.
...is ex-
...uld be
...inland,
...made a
...1952.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071
APR 29 1956

Jesuit to Get Eire Society Medal Here

The Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., former president of Fordham University, will receive the Eire Society Gold Medal at the society's 19th annual dinner Saturday at 6:30 p.m. at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

John J. Hearne, Irish ambassador, and Edward B. Hanify, a Boston attorney, will address the more than 750 members and friends expected to attend.

1,000 TO SYMPHONY

A gift of $1,000 will be presented to the Boston Symphony Orchestra by the society, in appreciation of concerts to be given by the orchestra this summer in Cork and Dublin.

Joseph Gannon, president of the Eire Society, will be toastmaster. Head table guests will include Joseph Shields, Irish consul; Hugh A. Moriarty, president of the American Order of Hibernians; Charles T. Burke, president of the Charitable Irish Society; William B. Caroran, president of the Clover Club; and Humphrey J. Mahoney, president of the Central Council of Irish Country Clubs.

Father Gannon, who will be given the gold medal as a "true educator of men and a priest of God," completed his early studies at Loyola School and Georgetown University. He entered the Society of Jesus in 1913 as an instructor of English and philosophy at Fordham, and was ordained in 1926.

He received an M. A. degree at Christ College, Cambridge, in 1930, and holds a Litt.D. degree from Georgetown and honorary degrees from several colleges and universities. He is now president of Loyola School in New York.

Previous recipients of the society's gold medal include Archbishop Cushing, Prof. Fred N. Robinson of Harvard and John Ford, the film director.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071
APR 29 1956

EVERGREEN FAVORITES: ARTHUR FIEDLER AND THE POPS will join forces once again on Tuesday night when Boston favorite spring concerts start their 71st season at Symphony Hall with Mr. Fiedler conducting.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071
APR 29 1956

(Herald Staff Photo by Maynard White)

FLOWER VENDORS at the opening night of the Pops in Symphony Hall, Tuesday evening, will include Charlotte Nickerson of Dedham and Tenley Albright of Newton. For the fourteenth year, the New England Grenfell Association is sponsoring the opening to help the work of the Grenfell Mission in Labrador.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
APR 29 1956

CO-CHAIRMAN of alumnae committee planning annual Emmanuel Night at the Pops, Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall, is Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury. Proceeds of the concert will benefit the college building program.

...ST, N. Y.
...TIMES
...26,215 - S. 1,146,860
APR 28 1956

...on Hears
...ral Work
... Woman

...HN H. FENTON
...o The New York Times.
... April 27.—A Rad-
...ge graduate rose from
...ce at Symphony Hall
... bowed in response to
... for her accomplish-
... composer.
...bel Daniels, tiny, el-
... smiling, was being
...or her "Psalm of
...t was played at the
...riday afternoon per-
...of the season by the
...mphony Orchestra.
...rvard Glee Club and
...liffe Choral Society
... vocal parts of the
... performance will be
...omorrow night.
... years ago the sym-
...yed Miss Daniels' "Ex-
..." with a mixed chorus
...wo colleges.
...Charles Munch, musi-
...r of the Boston Sym-
...nnet the closing two
...f the orchestra's sev-
... anniversary season, he
...o pay tribute to an
... woman composer
...na mater observed its
...fth anniversary last

...niels composed "Psalm
... for the Radcliffe dia-
...ilee, just as she had
...Exultate Deo" for the
...iftieth anniversary in
... her brightest mem-
... said, is of Christmas
...35. Then she heard the
...t. Bartholomew's Prot-
...iscopal Church in New
...g ner "Christ Child."
... carol set to words of
...esterton.
...adcliffe alumna has
...ree of her works played
...Boston orchestra. Her
...orest" was presented
... Although "Exultate
...s composed for the
... fiftieth anniversary,
...estra did not play it
...r years later.
...Daniels' penchant for
...g came to the fore in
...rgraduate days, when
...posed the music for
...erettas. In these she
...nducted the orchestra
...he principal part.
...udied in Munich
... receiving a degree,
...um laude, in 1900, Miss
...tudied composition and
...tion with George W.
...k in Boston and with
...Thuille in Munich. In
... wrote "An American
...Munich," a book based
...mpressions as a music
...aniels scored today the
... belief that composing
...e by sitting at a piano.
... the opposite," she said
...ugh. "One of the most
... things to do is to boil
... symphonic piece into a
...mblance of it."
...d, she explained, "I hear
... for individual instru-
...nning through my head;
...mple, a flute, with a
...nd of strings."
...Daniels said she thought
...omen composers today
...etter equipped" than in
... But she added that
...g still meant plenty of
...rk.
...n today, she commented,
...etter opportunities for
... music through playing
...rchestra. In an earlier
...y did the next best thing
...n a chorus, she said.

...st Season
...y Orchestra and its re-
...sons has made many
...ces as a guest conductor
...ops. Last season he con-
...he first four weeks of
... during the absence of
...ler. He is also the con-
...f the Brookline Youth
... and he organized the
...chestra in Providence.
...ops concerts will continue
... through the month of
...uring June, the concerts
... played nightly except
...y night, June 30. Tickets
...n sale at Symphony Hall
...ce one week in advance
... concert.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

APR 28 1956

MUSIC

sion, though it was briefly marred by the entrance of a horn noticeably sharp in pitch.

The finale, which contains is certainly the most unpart for a solo quartet sed, lost its big lines driving conclusion. was with the second and sang candid balance getting on bously and Eunice d Mac ntend- most-nd nd are r who m ical events nore times a w he end of the re tions of these erts, which add th dimension of grateful contacts among the listene well as the musical commun ion with the orchestra. The weather may occasionally intrude and the fatigues of the winter season may pile up, but or a brief two hours on a Friday afternoon or a Saturday night, there is repose, respite, re-invigoration.

ANNUAL RITE

The final program was but an hour and a quarter long, for it was the annual rite of the Ninth Symphony. But an unusual aspect was the presence on the program of a work by Mabel Daniels, who shares with but six other women the distinction of having her music performed by the Boston Symphony in the whole 75 years of its existence.

It is a curious thing, it has always seemed to me, that music is the one field in all art, indeed in all human endeavor, that women have never achieved a masterpiece corresponding even to those of lesser masters in music. In years gone by the orchestra has played music by Ethel Leginska, Margaret Lang, Helen Hopekirk, Mrs. H. M. A. Beach, Henriette Bosman and Lili Boulanger: it has never repeated it and there is very little likelihood it ever will be revived.

Nor, in its present form, does it seem likely Miss Daniels' very fine "Psalm of Praise" for mixed chorus, three trumpets, percussion and strings, will take its place in the repertoire. By "present form" I mean as a concert hall work: it will undoubtedly have many a performance in its original form with piano, trumpets and percussion, for it is a sound and vigorous work echoing the jubilation of the text from the Old Testament. Its inner part is lovely supplicatory lyric beautifully suited to the mixed chorus, and it ends on a note of triumph. The idiom is personal, makes little use of dissonance, but its contrapuntal lines in the outer sections are somewhat angular in a more contemporary vein. The modulations are free and interesting and, all in all, it is the agreeable product of a lively and gifted mind. Miss Daniels was in the audience and most cordially received.

ENORMOUS WORK

I am always at a loss for words with the Ninth, there being virtually nothing to add to the literature on this enormous work, so it always comes down to the performance. Until the later stages of the melodramatic choral finale, it was a very fine performance indeed. Mr. Munch did the scherzo with particular effect, catching the lightning tempo without rushing and bringing out its heroically playful dances with great sensitivity. The slow movement was a mood of sombre yet tender lyricism in the highest level of expres-

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

EVERGREEN FAVORITES: ARTHUR FIEDLER AND THE POPS will join forces once again on Tuesday night when Boston's favorite spring concerts start their 71st season at Symphony Hall with Mr. Fiedler conducting.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

(Herald Staff Photo by Maynard White)

FLOWER VENDORS at the opening night of the Pops in Symphony Hall, Tuesday evening, will include Charlotte Nickerson of Dedham and Tenley Albright of Newton. For the fourteenth year, the New England Grenfell Association is sponsoring the opening to help the work of the Grenfell Mission in Labrador.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

APR 29 1956

CO-CHAIRMAN of alumnae committee planning annual Emmanuel Night at the Pops, Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall, is Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury. Proceeds of the concert will benefit the college building program.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

Now Assured on Symphony

day to be assured of hear- ony Orchestra in Moscow al was down

s refused to or Charles te conductor the Boston led to leave r abroad in

ule calls for the Iron Cur- echoslovakia, its schedule pt. 5 and 6 elsinki, Fin- , a short hop by plane into sia.

he State department re- ted that Soviet government ld guarantee the orchestra enses and a profit for con- ts within the country.

chestra Ma dy's in Sov

The king to Orches- the which ay in the Soviet Uni Department that substitutio Orchestra, if it would have the only state ld be s and rches- erred with s in has d-Au- ur of es in group choslo- r Sept. is ex- uld be inland,

made a 952.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

Jesuit to Get Eire Society Medal Here

The Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., former president of Fordham University, will receive the Eire Society Gold Medal at the society's 19th annual dinner Saturday at 6:30 p.m. at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

John J. Hearne, Irish ambassador, and Edward B. Haniy, a Boston attorney, will address the more than 750 members and friends expected to attend.

1,000 TO SYMPHONY

A gift of $1,000 will be presented to the Boston Symphony Orchestra by the society, in appreciation of concerts to be given by the orchestra this summer in Cork and Dublin.

Joseph Gannon, president of the Eire Society, will be toastmaster. Head table guests will include Joseph Shields, Irish consul; Hugh A. Moriarty, president of the American Order of Hibernians; Charles T. Burke, president of the Charitable Irish Society; William B. Caroan, president of the Clover Club; and Humphrey J. Mahoney, president of the Central Council of Irish Country Clubs.

Father Gannon, who will be given the gold medal as a "true educator of men and a priest of God," completed his early studies at Loyola School and Georgetown University. He entered the Society of Jesus in 1913 as an instructor of English and philosophy at Fordham, and was ordained in 1926.

He received an M. A. degree at Christ College, Cambridge, in 1930, and holds a Litt.D. degree from Georgetown and honorary degrees from several colleges and universities. He is now president of Loyola School in New York.

Previous recipients of the society's gold medal include Archbishop Cushing, Prof. Fred N. Robinson of Harvard and John Ford, the film director.

Sunday Sun
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 27,559

Sunday Telegram
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 104,780

APR 29 1956

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

APR 30 1956

Symphony Awaits Soviet Bid for Trip to Moscow

BY JOHN WM. RILEY

Leader (m)
BOSTON, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 2,546

APR 29 1956

Meeting to talk over their flower vendor chores for Smith Night at Pops, May 8, sponsored by the Boston Smith College Club and alumnae of its school for social work are (left to right) Miss Anne Whitfield, Miss Marian Francis and Miss Anne Bryant.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

APR 29 1956

At her Newton Center home Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard (right), chairman of opening night at Symphony Pops, Tuesday, for the benefit of the Grenfell Mission, talks over the duties of flower vendors with (left to right) Mrs. Wellington Wells 3d, Miss Charlotte Nickerson, Miss Betsy Wilte and Miss Tenley Albright.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

APR 28 1956

Hears Work Woman

H. FENTON
New York Times.

pril 27.—A Radraduate rose from Symphony Hall ed in response to her accomplishnposer.

Daniels, tiny, el iling, was being her "Psalm of as played at the y afternoon perthe season by the hony Orchestra. rd Glee Club and e Choral Society ocal parts of the performance will be norrow night.

ears ago the symd Miss Daniels' "Exwith a mixed chorus o colleges.

harles Munch, musi of the Boston Symmet the closing two the orchestra's sevnniversary season, he pay tribute to an woman composer a mater observed its th anniversary last niels composed "Psalm for the Radcliffe diilee, just as she had Exultate Deo" for the fiftieth anniversary in her brightest memsaid, is of Christmas 35. Then she heard the t. Bartholomew's Protiscopal Church in New g ner "Christ Child." carol set to words of esterton.

adcliffe alumna has ee of her works played Boston orchestra. Her orest" was presented Although "Exultate s composed for the fiftieth anniversary, estra did not play it r years later.

Daniels' penchant for g came to the fore in ergraduate days, when posed the music for erettas. In these she onducted the orchestra he principal part.

udied in Munich

receiving a degree, um laude, in 1900, Miss tudied composition and ation with George W. k in Boston and with Thuille in Munich. In wrote "An American Munich," a book based impressions as a music

Daniels scored today the belief that composing by sitting at a piano. the opposite," she said ugh. "One of the most things to do is to boil symphonic piece into a mblance of it."

d, she explained, "I hear for individual instrunning through my head; mple, a flute, with a und of strings."

Daniels said she thought omen composers today etter equipped" than in But she added that g still meant plenty of rk.

n today, she commented, etter opportunities for music through playing rchestra. In an earlier y did the next best thing n a chorus, she said.

st Season

y Orchestra and in reasons has made many nces as a guest conductor ops. Last season he conhe first four weeks of during the absence of ler. He is also the conof the Brookline Youth and he organized the rchestra in Providence.

ops concerts will continue through the month of During June, the concerts played nightly except The season will close on y night, June 30. Tickets on sale at Symphony Hall ce one week in advance concert.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

APR 28 1956

MUSIC

Symphony Concert

sion, though it was briefly marred by the entrance of a horn noticeably sharp in pitch.

The finale, which contains what is certainly the most ungrateful part for a solo quartet ever composed, lost its big lines in a fierce driving conclusion. The chorus was with the for every second and sang and a splendid balance, this time getting on ing vigorously and Addison, Eunice loyd and Mac ists contend- ible almost Miss Ad- above hion, the

Schwab
EVE
NEW CONN
Injured
Motor vehicles for those pre-
Memorial Day committee meet-A list of activities, honor roll and whom were no.

he en tions
erts, whic dimension of ontacts among well as the musical ion with the orchest weather may occasional rude and the fatigues of winter season may pile up, bu or a brief two hours on a Friday afternoon or a Saturday night, there is repose, respite,
re-invigoration.

ANNUAL RITE

The final program was but an hour and a quarter long, for it was the annual rite of the Ninth Symphony. But an unusual aspect was the presence on the program of a work by Mabel Daniels, who shares with but six other women the distinction of having her music performed by the Boston Symphony in the whole 75 years of its existence.

It is a curious thing, it has always seemed to me, that music is the one field in all art, indeed in all human endeavor, that women have never achieved a masterpiece corresponding even to those of lesser masters in music. In years gone by the orchestra has played music by Ethel Leginska, Margaret Lang, Helen Hopekirk, Mrs. H. M. A. Beach, Henriette Bosman and Lili Boulanger; it has never repeated it and there is very little likelihood it ever will be revived.

Nor, in its present form, does it seem likely Miss Daniels' very fine "Psalm of Praise" for mixed chorus, three trumpets, percussion and strings, will take its place in the repertoire. By "present form" I mean as a concert hall work: it will undoubtedly have many a performance in its original form with piano, trumpets and percussion, for it is a sound and vigorous work echoing the jubilation of the text from the Old Testament. Its inner part is lovely supplicatory lyric beautifully suited to the mixed chorus, and it ends on a note of triumph. The idiom is personal, makes little use of dissonance, but its contrapuntal lines in the outer sections are somewhat angular in a more contemporary vein. The modulations are free and interesting and, all in all, it is the agreeable product of a lively and gifted mind. Miss Daniels was in the audience and most cordially received.

ENORMOUS WORK

I am always at a loss for words with the Ninth, there being virtually nothing to add to the literature on this enormous work, so it always comes down to the performance. Until the later stages of the melodramatic choral finale, it was a very fine performance indeed. Mr. Munch led the scherzo with particular effect, catching the lightning tempo without rushing and bringing out its heroically playful dances with great sensitivity. The slow movement was a mood of sombre yet tender lyricism at the highest level of expres-

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

EVERGREEN FAVORITES: ARTHUR FIEDLER AND THE POPS will join forces once again on Tuesday night when Boston favorite spring concerts start their 71st season at Symphony Hall with Mr. Fiedler conducting.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

(Herald Staff Photo by Maynard White)

FLOWER VENDORS at the opening night of the Pops in Symphony Hall, Tuesday evening, will include Charlotte Nickerson of Dedham and Tenley Albright of Newton. For the fourteenth year, the New England Grenfell Association is sponsoring this opening to help the work of the Grenfell Mission in Labrador.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

APR 29 1956

CO-CHAIRMAN of alumnae committee planning annual Emmanuel Night at the Pops, Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall, is Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury. Proceeds of the concert will benefit the college building program.

Sunday Sun
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 27,559

Sunday Telegram
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 104,780

APR 29 1956

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

APR 30 1956

Symphony Awaits Soviet Bid for Trip to Moscow

By JOHN WM. RILEY

England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
78. Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Leader (m)
ESTER, N. H. pendent
42,546

0 1956

Awaits

Indep
Cir

APR 29 19

Meeting to talk over their flower vendor chores for Smith Night at Pops, May 8, sponsored by the Boston Smith College Club and alumnae of its school for social work are (left to right) Miss Anne Whitfield, Miss Marian Francis and Miss Anne Bryant.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

APR 29 1956

At her Newton Center home Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard (right), chairman of opening night at Symphony Pops, Tuesday, for the benefit of the Grenfell Mission, talks over the duties of flower vendors with (left to right) Mrs. Wellington Wells 3d, Miss Charlotte Nickerson, Miss Betsy Wilte and Miss Tenley Albright.

Now Assured on Symphony

day to be assured of hearony Orchestra in Moscow
al was down

rs refused to

or Charles
te conductor
the Boston
led to leave
r abroad in

ule calls for
the Iron Cur-
echoslovakia,
its schedule
pt. 5 and 6
elsinki, Fin-
, a short hop by plane into
sia.

he State department re-
ted that Soviet government
ld guarantee the orchestra
enses and a profit for con-
ts within the country.

chestra Ma
ndy's in Sov

The
king to Orches-
the which lay in

the Soviet Uni
Department
that substitutio
Orchestra, if it
would have the only state

ld be s and

rches-
erred
with s in

has id-Au-
ur of es in group choslo-
r Sept.
is ex-
ld be inland,

nade a 952.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

Jesuit to Get Eire Society Medal Here

The Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., former president of Fordham University, will receive the Eire Society Gold Medal at the society's 19th annual dinner Saturday at 6:30 p.m. at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

John J. Hearne, Irish ambassador, and Edward B. Haniy, a Boston attorney, will address the more than 750 members and friends expected to attend.

1,000 TO SYMPHONY

A gift of $1,000 will be presented to the Boston Symphony Orchestra by the society, in appreciation of concerts to be given by the orchestra this summer in Cork and Dublin.

Joseph Gannon, president of the Eire Society, will be toastmaster. Head table guests will include Joseph Shields, Irish consul; Hugh A. Moriarty, president of the American Order of Hibernians; Charles T. Burke, president of the Charitable Irish Society; William B. Caroan, president of the Clover Club; and Humphrey J. Mahoney, president of the Central Council of Irish Country Clubs.

Father Gannon, who will be given the gold medal as a "true educator of men and a priest of God," completed his early studies at Loyola School and Georgetown University. He entered the Society of Jesus in 1913 as an instructor of English and philosophy at Fordham, and was ordained in 1926.

He received an M. A. degree at Christ College, Cambridge, in 1930, and holds a Litt.D. degree from Georgetown and honorary degrees from several colleges and universities. He is now president of Loyola School in New York.

Previous recipients of the society's gold medal include Archbishop Cushing, Prof. Fred N. Robinson of Harvard and John Ford, the film director.

st Season

y Orchestra and in reasons has made many nces as a guest conductor
ops. Last season he con-
the first four weeks of
during the absence of iler. He is also the con-of the Brookline Youth
and he organized the
rchestra in Providence.
ops concerts will continue through the month of
During June, the concerts
played nightly except
The season will close on
y night, June 30. Tickets on sale at Symphony Hall ice one week in advance
concert.

YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
26,215 - S. 1,146,860
APR 28 1956

on Hears
ral Work
Woman

HN H. FENTON
o The New York Times.

, April 27—A Rad-
ge graduate rose from ce at Symphony Hall
bowed in response to
for her accomplish-
composer.

bel Daniels, tiny, el-smiling, was being
for her "Psalm of
t was played at the
riday afternoon per-
of the season by the
ymphony Orchestra.
rvard Glee Club and
liffe Choral Society
vocal parts of the performance will be
omorrow night.

years ago the sym-
yed Miss Daniels' "Ex-
," with a mixed chorus
two colleges.
Charles Munch, musi-
or of the Boston Sym-
nnet the closing two
f the orchestra's sev-
anniversary season, he
o pay tribute to an
woman composer
na mater observed its
fth anniversary last

niels composed "Psalm
" for the Radcliffe dia-
ilee, just as she had
Exultate Deo" for the
fiftieth anniversary in

her brightest mem-
said, is of Christmas
35. Then she heard the
t. Bartholomew's Prot-
piscopal Church in New
ner "Christ Child."
carol set to words of
esterton.
adcliffe alumna has
ee of her works played
Boston orchestra. Her
'orest" was presented
Although "Exultate
s composed for the
fiftieth anniversary,
estra did not play it
r years later.
Daniels' penchant for
g came to the fore in rgraduate days, when posed the music for erettas. In these she nducted the orchestra
he principal part.

udied in Munich
receiving a degree,
um laude, in 1900, Miss
tudied composition and
tion with George W.
k in Boston and with Thuille in Munich. In wrote "An American Munich," a book based
mpressions as a music

aniels scored today the belief that composing
by sitting at a piano.
the opposite," she said
ugh. "One of the most things to do is to boil
symphonic piece into a mblance of it."
d, she explained, "I hear
for individual instru-
nning through my head;
mple, a flute, with a nd of strings."
Daniels said she thought men composers today
etter equipped" than in
But she added that
g still meant plenty of
rk.
n today, she commented,
etter opportunities for
music through playing chestra. In an earlier
did the next best thing
n a chorus, she said.

t Season

y Orchestra and in re-
sons has made many ces as a guest conductor
ops. Last season he con-
he first four weeks of
during the absence of
ler. He is also the con-
f the Brookline Youth
and he organized the chestra in Providence.
ops concerts will continue through the month of
uring June, the concerts
played nightly except
The season will close on night, June 30. Tickets
n sale at Symphony Hall
ce one week in advance
concert.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
ndependent Republican
Circ. 130,559
APR 28 1956

MUSI

Symphony Concert

The Boston Symphony orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, gave the 24th program of its 75th season in Symphony Hall yesterday afternoon. The soloists were Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; David Lloyd, tenor, and Mac Morgan, bass. Assisting were the Radcliffe Choral Society and the Harvard Glee Club, G. Wallace Woodworth, conductor. The program:
A Psalm of Praise, Mabel Daniels
Symphony No. 8 in D minor, Op. 125 ..... Beethoven

By RUDOLPH ELIE

There is no event in the calendar year I view with more mingled emotions than this, the last regular symphony concert of the season.

On the one hand there is the end of the music season, a long and arduous one for the reviewer who must trot about to musical events three and four or more times a week; on the other the end of the refreshing stimulations of these weekly concerts, which add the special dimension of grateful personal contacts among the listeners as well as the musical communication with the orchestra. The weather may occasionally intrude and the fatigues of the winter season may pile up, but for a brief two hours on a Friday afternoon or a Saturday night, there is repose, respite, re-invigoration.

ANNUAL RITE

The final program was but an hour and a quarter long, for it was the annual rite of the Ninth Symphony. But an unusual aspect was the presence on the program of a work by Mabel Daniels, who shares with but six other women the distinction of having her music performed by the Boston Symphony in the whole 75 years of its existence.

It is a curious thing, it has always seemed to me, that music is the one field in all art, indeed in all human endeavor, that women have never achieved a masterpiece corresponding even to those of lesser masters in music. In years gone by the orchestra has played music by Ethel Leginska, Margaret Lang, Helen Hopekirk, Mrs. H. M. A. Beach, Henriette Bosman and Lili Boulanger: it has never repeated it and there is very little likelihood it ever will be revived.

Nor, in its present form, does it seem likely Miss Daniels' very fine "Psalm of Praise" for mixed chorus, three trumpets, percussion and strings, will take its place in the repertoire. By "present form" I mean as a concert hall work; it will undoubtedly have many a performance in its original form with piano, trumpets and percussion, for it is a sound and vigorous work echoing the jubilation of the text from the Old Testament. Its inner part is lovely supplicatory lyric beautifully suited to the mixed chorus, and it ends on a note of triumph. The idiom is personal, makes little use of dissonance, but its contrapuntal lines in the outer sections are somewhat angular in a more contemporary vein. The modulations are free and interesting and, all in all, it is the agreeable product of a lively and gifted mind. Miss Daniels was in the audience and most cordially received.

ENORMOUS WORK

I am always at a loss for words with the Ninth, there being virtually nothing to add to the literature on this enormous work, so it always comes down to the performance. Until the later stages of the melodramatic choral finale, it was a very fine performance indeed. Mr. Munch did the scherzo with particular effect, catching the lightning tempo without rushing and bringing out its heroically playful nuances with great sensitivity. The slow movement was a mood of sombre yet tender lyricism in the highest level of expression, ti red by noticeabl

The fir what is c grateful pa ever compos in a fierce but the chor conductor even with elan and a the sopranos this top and attacking cleanly. Adele Ad
Alberts, David Ll
Morgan as the solo
ing with the impos made it seem possible dison in particular soa the tumult in striking though the others trave notes with equal brilliar
And so, with bravos standing, applauding au making a demonstration, 75th season of the Boston S phony orchestra came to a c clusion in an ocean of sou
It seems, at this moment, long, long time to October. Sun day night, incidentally, the or chestra will give a concert to benefit its forthcoming European trip, the program consisting of Beethoven's Seventh Symphony
and Tchaikovsky's Sixth.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
APR 29 1956

Meeting to talk over their flower vendor chores for Smith Night at Pops, May 8, sponsored by the Boston Smith College Club and alumnae of its school for social work are (left to right) Miss Anne Whitfield, Miss Marian Francis and Miss Anne Bryant.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
APR 29 1956

At her Newton Center home Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard (right), chairman of opening night at Symphony Pops, Tuesday, for the benefit of the Grenfell Mission, talks over the duties of flower vendors with (left to right) Mrs. Wellington Wells 3d, Miss Charlotte Nickerson, Miss Betsy Wilte and Miss Tenley Albright.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
ndependent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Sunday Sun
WELL, Mass.
ndependent
rc. 27,559

ay Telegram
ESTER, Mass.
publican
c. 104,780
29 1956

Globe
Mass.
dent
000
56

Now Assured
on Symphony

day to be assured of hearony Orchestra in Moscow
al was down

chestra Ma
ndy's in Sov

rs refused to or Charles te conductor
the Boston
led to leave
r abroad in

— The
king to Orches-
the which day in

the Soviet Uni
Department
that substitutio
Orchestra, if it
would have the

ule calls for
he Iron Cur-
echoslovakia,
its schedule
pt. 5 and 6
elsinki, Fin-
a short hop by plane into
sia.
he State department reed that Soviet government
ld guarantee the orchestra
enses and a profit for con-
ts within the country.

only state
ld be s and

rches-terred with s in

has id-Au-
ur of es in group choslo-
r Sept.
is ex-
uld be inland,

made a 1952.

"We are ready and willing—even hoping—to go," said Henry B. Cabot yesterday afternoon from his home in Dover. The president of the Symphony trustees said that the Boston Symphony awaits only a formal invitation from Moscow.

SYMPHONY
Page Eleven

Russian trip.

Trip Details

Early last week Thomas D. Perry Jr., manager of the Boston Symphony, was in Washington looking after details of the proposed trip, including the Moscow extension. He conferred with State Department officials. Cabot was reported to be with him.

According to reliable sources, Perry also visited the Russian Embassy last week.

Vladimir Resnikoff, one of several Russian-born members of the Boston Symphony, expresses no fear of going back into his homeland.

"I am an American now, a real American," he said. "I don't believe they will object. They will want to show off, to treat us well. They know we will bring stories back, anyway.

"I am not afraid. I never did anything to be afraid of. I left when I was 11 years old. I have some relatives there. But I don't know where they are. I do not know how to reach them."

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071
APR 29 1956

Jesuit to Get Eire Society Medal Here

The Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., former president of Fordham University, will receive the Eire Society Gold Medal at the society's 19th annual dinner Saturday at 6:30 p.m. at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

John J. Hearne, Irish ambassador, and Edward B. Haniy, a Boston attorney, will address the more than 750 members and friends expected to attend.

1,000 TO SYMPHONY

A gift of $1,000 will be presented to the Boston Symphony Orchestra by the society, in appreciation of concerts to be given by the orchestra this summer in Cork and Dublin.

Joseph Gannon, president of the Eire Society, will be toastmaster. Head table guests will include Joseph Shields, Irish consul; Hugh A. Moriarty, president of the American Order of Hibernians; Charles T. Burke, president of the Charitable Irish Society; William B. Caroan, president of the Clover Club; and Humphrey J. Mahoney, president of the Central Council of Irish Country Clubs.

Father Gannon, who will be given the gold medal as a "true educator of men and a priest of God," completed his early studies at Loyola School and Georgetown University. He entered the Society of Jesus in 1913 as an instructor of English and philosophy at Fordham, and was ordained in 1926.

He received an M. A. degree at Christ College, Cambridge, in 1930, and holds a Litt.D. degree from Georgetown and honorary degrees from several colleges and universities. He is now president of Loyola School in New York.

Previous recipients of the society's gold medal include Archbishop Cushing, Prof. Fred N. Robinson of Harvard and John Ford, the film director.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071
APR 29 1956

EVERGREEN FAVORITES: ARTHUR FIEDLER AND THE POPS will join forces once again on Tuesday night when Boston Pops concerts start their 71st season at Symphony Hall with Mr. Fiedler conducting.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071
APR 29 1956

(Herald Staff Photo by Maynard White)
FLOWER VENDORS at the opening night of the Pops in Symphony Hall, Tuesday evening, will include Charlotte Nickerson of Dedham and Tenley Albright of Newton. For the fourteenth year, the New England Grenfell Association is sponsoring the opening to help the work of the Grenfell Mission in Labrador.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
APR 29 1956

CO-CHAIRMAN of alumnae committee planning annual Emmanuel Night at the Pops, Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall, is Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury. Proceeds of the concert will benefit the college building program.

YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
26,215 • S. 1,146,860

APR 28 1956

on Hears
ral Work
Woman

HN H. FENTON
to The New York Times.
, April 27—A Rad-
ge graduate rose from
ce at Symphony Hall
bowed in response to
for her accomplish-
composer.

bel Daniels, tiny, el-smiling, was being
for her "Psalm of
It was played at the
riday afternoon per-
of the season by the
ymphony Orchestra.
rvard Glee Club and
liffe Choral Society
vocal parts of the e performance will be omorrow night.

years ago the sym-
yed Miss Daniels' "Ex-
," with a mixed chorus
two colleges.

Charles Munch, musi-
or of the Boston Symanne the closing two of the orchestra's sev-
anniversary season, he
to pay tribute to an
woman composer
ma mater observed its
fth anniversary last

aniels composed "Psalm
" for the Radcliffe dia-
bilee, just as she had
'Exultate Deo" for the fiftieth anniversary in

her brightest mem-
said, is of Christmas
35. Then she heard the
St. Bartholomew's Prot-
piscopal Church in New g her "Christ Child."
carol set to words of
esterton.

adcliffe alumna has
ree of her works played
Boston orchestra. Her
Forest" was presented
. Although "Exultate
as composed for the
fiftieth anniversary,
estra did not play it
r years later.

Daniels' penchant for
g came to the fore in ergraduate days, when nposed the music for perettas. In these she onducted the orchestra
the principal part.

tudied in Munich

receiving a degree,
um laude, in 1900, Miss studied composition and ation with George W.
k in Boston and with Thuille in Munich. In e wrote "An American Munich," a book based impressions as a music

Daniels scored today the belief that composing
e by sitting at a piano.
'the opposite," she said laugh. "One of the most things to do is to boil
symphonic piece into a mblance of it."
d, she explained, "I hear e for individual instru-unning through my head;
mple, a flute, with a ound of strings."

Daniels said she thought
omen composers today better equipped" than in
y. But she added that ing still meant plenty of ork.

en today, she commented, better opportunities for g music through playing orchestra. In an earlier ey did the next best thing in a chorus, she said.

st Season

ny Orchestra and in reasons has made many nces as a guest conductor
Pops. Last season he con-
the first four weeks of ps during the absence of dler. He is also the con-
of the Brookline Youth
ts and he organized the rchestra in Providence.

Pops concerts will continue through the month of
During June, the concerts
e played nightly except
. The season will close on ay night, June 30. Tickets on sale at Symphony Hall
fice one week in advance
concert.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Sunday Sun
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 27,559

Sunday Telegram
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 104,780

APR 29 1956

Globe
Mass.

Symphony Concert

The Boston Symphony orche. Charles Munch conducting, gave the 2. program of the 75th season in Symphon. Hall yesterday afternoon. The soloists were Adele Addison, soprano, Eunice Alberts, contralto, David Lloyd, tenor and Mac Morgan, bass. Assisting were the Radcliffe Choral Society and the Harvard Glee Club, G. Wallace Woodworth, conductor. The program: A Psalm of Praise, in D minor, Op. 123 ..... Mabel Daniels
Symphony No. 8 in D minor, Op. 93 ..... Beethoven

By RUDOLPH ELIE

There is no event in the calendar year I view with more mingled emotions than this, the last regular symphony concert of the season.

On the one hand there is the end of the music season, a long and arduous one for the reviewer who must trot about to musical events three and four or more times a week; on the other the end of the refreshing stimu-lations of these weekly concerts, which add the special dimension of grateful personal contacts among the listeners as well as the musical communication with the orchestra. The weather may occasionally in-rude and the fatigues of the winter season may pile up, but for a brief two hours on a Friday afternoon or a Saturday night, there is repose, respite,
re-invigoration.

ANNUAL RITE

The final program was but an hour and a quarter long, for it was the annual rite of the Ninth Symphony. But an unusual aspect was the presence on the program of a work by Mabel Daniels, who shares with but six other women the distinction of having her music performed by the Boston Symphony in the whole 75 years of its existence.

It is a curious thing, it has always seemed to me, that music is the one field in all art, indeed in all human endeavor, that women have never achieved a masterpiece corresponding even
to those of lesser masters in music. In years gone by the orchestra has played music by
Ethel Leginska, Margaret Lang,
Helen Hopekirk, Mrs. H. H. A.
Beach, Henriette Bosman and
Lili Boulanger: it has never repeated it and there is very little likelihood it ever will be revived.

Nor, in its present form, does it seem likely Miss Daniels' very fine "Psalm of Praise" for mixed chorus, three trumpets, percussion and strings, will take its place in the repertoire. By "present form" I mean as a concert hall work; it will undoubtedly have many a performance in its original form with piano, trumpets and percussion, for it is a sound and vigorous work echoing the jubilation of the text from the Old Testament. Its inner part is lovely supplicatory lyric beautifully suited to the mixed chorus, and it ends on a note of triumph. The idiom is personal,
makes little use of dissonance,
but its contrapuntal lines in the outer sections are somewhat angular in a more contemporary vein. The modulations are free and interesting and, all in all,
it is the agreeable product of a lively and gifted mind. Miss Daniels was in the audience and most cordially received.

ENORMOUS WORK

I am always at a loss for words with the Ninth, there being virtually nothing to add to the literature on this enormous work, so it always comes down to the performance. Until the latter stages of the melodramatic choral finale, it was a very fine
performance indeed. Mr. Munch took the scherzo with particular effect, catching the lightning tempo without rushing and bringing out its heroically playful dances with great sensitivity.
The slow movement was a mood
of sombre yet tender lyricism
at the highest level of expres-

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Now Assured
on Symphony

day to be assured of hear-
ony Orchestra in Moscow
al was down

chestra Ma
ndy's in Sov

The
king to Orches-
of the which play in the only state
ld be s and rches-ferred with s in has aid-Au-our of ces in group echoslo-or Sept.
t is exould be Finland, made a 1952.

s refused to
or Charles te conductor
the Boston
led to leave
r abroad in

ule calls for
the Iron Cur-
echoslovakia,
its schedule
pt. 5 and 6
elsinki, Fin-
a short hop by plane into
sia.

he State department reed that Soviet government
ld guarantee the orchestra
enses and a profit for con-
ts within the country.

the Soviet Uni
Department
that substitutio
Orchestra, if it
would have the

SYMPHONY

Continued from the First Page

It has been generally known that the cultural attache of the Russian Embassy in Washington had made preliminary overtures to the Boston Symphony.

The Philadelphia Orchestra entered the picture recently, as a possible Russian visitor, especially after Soviet violinist David Oistrakh, praised the ensemble. But late last week the membership of the Philadelphia group voted unanimously against the trip.

Earlier in the week, Boston Symphony members were approached by the management on the same question. The vote was unanimous in favor of the Russian trip.

Trip Details

Early last week Thomas D. Perry Jr., manager of the Boston Symphony, was in Washington looking after details of the proposed trip, including the Moscow extension. He conferred with State Department officials. Cabot was reported to be with him.

According to reliable sources, Perry also visited the Russian Embassy last week.

Vladimir Resnikoff, one of several Russian-born members of the Boston Symphony, expresses no fear of going back into his homeland.

'I am an American now, a real American," he said. "I don't believe they will object. They will want to show off, to treat us well. They know we will bring stories back, anyway.

'I am not afraid. I never did anything to be afraid of. I left when I was 11 years old. I have some relatives there. But I don't know where they are. I do not know how to reach them."

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

73

EVERGREEN FAVORITES: ARTHUR FIEDLER AND THE POPS will join forces once again on Tuesday night when Boston Pops concerts start their 71st season at Symphony Hall with Mr. Fiedler conducting.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

APR 29 1956

Meeting to talk over their flower vendor chores for Smith Night at Pops, May 8, sponsored by the Boston Smith College Club and alumnae of its school for social work are (left to right) Miss Anne Whitfield, Miss Marian Francis and Miss Anne Bryant.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

Jesuit to Get Eire Society Medal Here

The Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., former president of Fordham University, will receive the Eire Society Gold Medal at the society's 19th annual dinner Saturday at 6:30 p.m. at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

John J. Hearne, Irish ambassador, and Edward B. Haniy, a Boston attorney, will address the more than 750 members and friends expected to attend.

1,000 TO SYMPHONY

A gift of $1,000 will be presented to the Boston Symphony Orchestra by the society, in appreciation of concerts to be given by the orchestra this summer in Cork and Dublin.

Joseph Gannon, president of the Eire Society, will be toastmaster. Head table guests will include Joseph Shields, Irish Consul; Hugh A. Moriarty, president of the American Order of Hibernians; Charles T. Burke, president of the Charitable Irish Society; William B. Caroan, president of the Clover Club; and Humphrey J. Mahoney, president of the Central Council of Irish Country Clubs.

Father Gannon, who will be given the gold medal as a "true educator of men and a priest of God," completed his early studies at Loyola School and Georgetown University. He entered the Society of Jesus in 1913 as an instructor of English and philosophy at Fordham, and was ordained in 1926.

He received an M. A. degree at Christ College, Cambridge, in 1930, and holds a Litt.D. degree from Georgetown and honorary degrees from several colleges and universities. He is now president of Loyola School in New York.

Previous recipients of the society's gold medal include Archbishop Cushing, Prof. Fred N. Robinson of Harvard and John Ford, the film director.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

(Herald Staff Photo by Maynard White)

FLOWER VENDORS at the opening night of the Pops in Symphony Hall, Tuesday evening, will include Charlotte Nickerson, Dedham and Tenley Albright of Newton. For the fourteenth year, the New England Grenfell Association is sponsoring the opening to help the work of the Grenfell Mission in Labrador.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

APR 29 1956

At her Newton Center home Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard (right), chairman of opening night at Symphony Pops, Tuesday, for the benefit of the Grenfell Mission, talks over the duties of flower vendors with (left to right) Mrs. Wellington Wells 3d, Miss Charlotte Nickerson, Miss Betsy Wilte and Miss Tenley Albright.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

APR 29 1956

CO-CHAIRMAN of alumnae committee planning annual Emmanuel Night at the Pops, Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall, is Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury. Proceeds of the concert will benefit the college building program.

YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
26,215 - S. 1,146,860

APR 28 1956

on Hears
al Work
Woman

HN H. FENTON
o The New York Times.
, April 27—A Rad-
ge graduate rose from
ce at Symphony Hall
bowed in response to
for her accomplish-
composer.

bel Daniels, tiny, ei-smiling, was being
or her "Psalm of
t. was played at the
riday afternoon per-
of the season by the
mphony Orchestra.
rvard Glee Club and
liffe Choral Society
vocal parts of the e performance will be
omorrow night.

years ago the sym-
yed Miss Daniels' "Ex-
," with a mixed chorus
two colleges.
Charles Munch, musi-
or of the Boston Sym-
anned the closing two
of the orchestra's sev-
anniversary season, he
o pay tribute to an
woman composer
na mater observed its
fth anniversary last

niels composed "Psalm
" for the Radcliffe dia-
ilee, just as she had
Exultate Deo" for the
fiftieth anniversary in

her brightest mem-
said, is of Christmas
35. Then she heard the
t. Bartholomew's Prot-
piscopal Church in New
ner "Christ Child."
carol set to words of
esterton.
adcliffe alumna has
ee of her works played
Boston orchestra. Her
Forest" was presented

Although "Exultate
as composed for the
fiftieth anniversary,
estra did not play it
r years later.
Daniels' penchant for
g came to the fore in ergraduate days, when posed the music for herettas. In these she onducted the orchestra
the principal part.

udied in Munich

receiving a degree,
um laude, in 1900, Miss
studied composition and
tion with George W.
k in Boston and with Thuille in Munich. In wrote "An American Munich," a book based impressions as a music

Daniels scored today the belief that composing
e by sitting at a piano.
the opposite," she said augh. "One of the most things to do is to boil
symphonic piece into a mblance of it."
d, she explained, "I hear
for individual instru-
inning through my head;
mple, a flute, with a und of strings."
Daniels said she thought
omen composers today
etter equipped" than in
. But she added that ng still meant plenty of
rk.
en today, she commented,
etter opportunities for
music through playing rchestra. In an earlier
y did the next best thing
in a chorus, she said.

st Season

ny Orchestra and in reasons has made many nces as a guest conductor
ops. Last season he con-
the first four weeks of s during the absence of iller. He is also the con-
of the Brookline Youth
s and he organized the rchestra in Providence.
ops concerts will continue through the month of
During June, the concerts
played nightly except
The season will close on
y night, June 30. Tickets
on sale at Symphony Hall
ice one week in advance
concert.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

APR 28 1956

MUSIC

Symphony Concert

The Boston Symphony orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, gave the 24th program of the 75th season in Symphony Hall yesterday afternoon. The soloists were Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; David Lloyd, tenor and Mac Morgan, bass. Assisting were the Radcliffe Choral Society and the Harvard Glee Club, G. Wallace Woodworth, conductor. The program:
A Psalm of Praise ..... Mabel Daniels
Symphony No. 9 in D minor, Op. 125 ..... Beethoven

By RUDOLPH ELIE

There is no event in the calendar year I view with more mingled emotions than this, the last regular symphony concert of the season.

On the one hand there is the end of the music season, a long and arduous one for the reviewer who must trot about to musical events three and four or more times a week; on the other the end of the refreshing stimulations of these weekly concerts, which add the special dimension of grateful personal contacts among the listeners as well as the musical communication with the orchestra. The weather may occasionally intrude and the fatigues of the winter season may pile up, but for a brief two hours on a Friday afternoon or a Saturday night, there is repose, respite, re-invigoration.

ANNUAL RITE

The final program was but an hour and a quarter long, for it was the annual rite of the Ninth Symphony. But an unusual aspect was the presence on the program of a work by Mabel Daniels, who shares with but six other women the distinction of having her music performed by the Boston Symphony in the whole 75 years of its existence.

It is a curious thing, it has always seemed to me, that music is the one field in all art, indeed in all human endeavor, that women have never achieved a masterpiece corresponding even to those of lesser masters in music. In years gone by the orchestra has played music by Ethel Leginska, Margaret Lang, Helen Hopekirk, Mrs. H. M. A. Beach, Henriette Bosman and Lili Boulanger: it has never repeated it and there is very little likelihood it ever will be revived.

Nor, in its present form, does it seem likely Miss Daniels' very fine "Psalm of Praise" for mixed chorus, three trumpets, percussion and strings, will take its place in the repertoire. By "present form" I mean as a concert hall work; it will undoubtedly have many a performance in its original form with piano, trumpets and percussion, for it is a sound and vigorous work echoing the jubilation of the text from the Old Testament. Its inner part is lovely supplicatory lyric beautifully suited to the mixed chorus, and it ends on a note of triumph. The idiom is personal, makes little use of dissonance, but its contrapuntal lines in the outer sections are somewhat angular in a more contemporary vein. The modulations are free and interesting and, all in all, it is the agreeable product of a lively and gifted mind. Miss Daniels was in the audience and most cordially received.

ENORMOUS WORK

I am always at a loss for words with the Ninth, there being virtually nothing to add to the literature on this enormous work, so it always comes down to the performance. Until the later stages of the melodramatic choral finale, it was a very fine performance indeed. Mr. Munch did the scherzo with particular effect, catching the lightning tempo without rushing and bringing out its heroically playful nuances with great sensitivity. The slow movement was a mood of sombre yet tender lyricism at the highest level of expression, though it was brie[f]ly marred by the entrance of [the horns] noticeably sharp in pitch.

The finale, which con[tains] what is certainly the most grateful part for a solo qua[rtet] ever composed, lost its big li[ne] in a fierce driving conclusion but the chorus was with the conductor every second and sang with elan and a splendid balance, the sopranos this time getting on top and attacking vigorously and cleanly. Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, David Lloyd and Mac Morgan as the soloists contending with the impossible almost made it seem possible, Miss Addison in particular soaring above the tumult in striking fashion, though the others traversed the notes with equal brilliance.

And so, with bravos and a standing, applauding audience making a demonstration, the 75th season of the Boston Symphony orchestra came to a conclusion in an ocean of sound. It seems, at this moment, a long, long time to October. Sunday night, incidentally, the orchestra will give a concert to benefit its forthcoming European trip, the program consisting of Beethoven's Seventh Symphony and Tchaikovsky's Sixth.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

APR 29 1956

Meeting to talk over their flower vendor chores for Smith Night at Pops, May 8, sponsored by the Boston Smith College Club and alumnae of its school for social work are (left to right) Miss Anne Whitfield, Miss Marian Francis and Miss Anne Bryant.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

APR 29 1956

At her Newton Center home Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard (right), chairman of opening night at Symphony Pops, Tuesday, for the benefit of the Grenfell Mission, talks over the duties of flower vendors with (left to right) Mrs. Wellington Wells 3d, Miss Charlotte Nickerson, Miss Betsy Wilte and Miss Tenley Albright.

Herald
Mass.
epublican
071 ass.

Now Assured
on Symphony

day to be assured of hear-
ony Orchestra in Moscow
the soft pedal was down

chestra May Sub
For Ormandy's in Soviet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department is looking to the Boston Symphony Orchestra to take the place of the Philadelphia Orchestra, which has canceled plans to play in the Soviet Union this year.

Department officials said that substitution of the Boston Orchestra, if it can be arranged, would have the added virtue of [being], a short hop by plane into [Russ]ia.

The State department [stat]ed that Soviet government [wou]ld guarantee the orchestra [expe]nses and a profit for con[cert]s within the country.

[musi]cians remained the only point to be completed. The state department said there would be no trouble in arranging visas and travel accommodations.

Thomas D. Perry, Jr., orchestra business manager, conferred yesterday on arrangements with state department officials in Washington.

The symphony already has made plans to leave in mid-August for a month-long tour of Europe. After appearances in Scotland and Ireland, the group will visit Finland and Czechoslovakia. It has open dates for Sept. 5 and 6, at which time it is expected the orchestra would be able to go from Helsinki, Finland, to Moscow.

The Boston Symphony made a similar European tour in 1952.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

Jesuit to Get Eire Society
Medal Here

The Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., former president of Fordham University, will receive the Eire Society Gold Medal at the society's 19th annual dinner Saturday at 6:30 p.m. at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

John J. Hearne, Irish ambassador, and Edward B. Haniy, a Boston attorney, will address the more than 750 members and friends expected to attend.

1,000 TO SYMPHONY

A gift of $1,000 will be presented to the Boston Symphony Orchestra by the society, in appreciation of concerts to be given by the orchestra this summer in Cork and Dublin.

Joseph Gannon, president of the Eire Society, will be toastmaster. Head table guests will include Joseph Shields, Irish consul; Hugh A. Moriarty, president of the American Order of Hibernians; Charles T. Burke, president of the Charitable Irish Society; William B. Caroran, president of the Clover Club; and Humphrey J. Mahoney, president of the Central Council of Irish Country Clubs.

Father Gannon, who will be given the gold medal as a "true educator of men and a priest of God," completed his early studies at Loyola School and Georgetown University. He entered the Society of Jesus in 1913 as an instructor of English and philosophy at Fordham, and was ordained in 1926.

He received an M. A. degree at Christ College, Cambridge, in 1930, and holds a Litt.D. degree from Georgetown and honorary degrees from several colleges and universities. He is now president of Loyola School in New York.

Previous recipients of the society's gold medal include Archbishop Cushing, Prof. Fred N. Robinson of Harvard and John Ford, the film director.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

EVERGREEN FAVORITES: ARTHUR FIEDLER AND THE POPS will join forces once again on Tuesday night when Boston's favorite spring concerts start their 71st season at Symphony Hall with Mr. Fiedler conducting.

not costing the U. S. government one penny,

Donald L. Engle, manager of the 105-member Philadelphia Orchestra, telegraphed the department that the group had voted unanimously against going through with a proposed trip to the Soviet Union Aug. 15.

This closed the negotiations which had been dogged by more than the usual U. S.-Soviet discord in such cases. There also was union-management trouble. This labor dispute over a pension plan affected the efforts to send the world famous group to Russia.

David Oistrakh, Soviet violinist, hailed as the world's greatest, played with the Philadelphia Orchestra under Eugene Ormandy last year.

Afterward Oistrakh was lyrical in his praise:

"There is hardly another orchestra in the world which may be compared in beauty of tone, flexibility, harmonious ensemble and abundance of variety, nuances and color."

The Boston Symphony, which also has a world reputation, is going to be in West Europe and the Scandinavian countries during August and September. Officials said th[ey] hope a way can be found [to] extend this tour into Ru[ssia] for five days or so.

No cost to the U. S. government would be involved, they said. The Soviet government would act as impressario, as it did in the case of the Porgy and Bess Opera Co. This would guarantee expenses and a profit no matter what the gate receipts turned out to be.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

(Herald Staff Photo by Maynard White)

FLOWER VENDORS at the opening night of the Pops in Symphony Hall, Tuesday evening, will include Charlotte Nickerson of Dedham and Tenley Albright of Newton. For the fourteenth year, the New England Grenfell Association is sponsoring the opening to help the work of the Grenfell Mission in Labrador.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

APR 29 1956

CO-CHAIRMAN of alumnae committee planning annual Emmanuel Night at the Pops, Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall, is Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury. Proceeds of the concert will benefit the college building program.

W YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
. 526,215 - S. 1,146,860
APR 28 1956

ston Hears oral Work a Woman

JOHN H. FENTON
al to The New York Times.
ON, April 27—A Rad-llege graduate rose from ence at Symphony Hall
d bowed in response to on for her accomplish-a composer.

Mabel Daniels, tiny, el-d smiling, was being
for her "Psalm of
It was played at the Friday afternoon per-
of the season by the Symphony Orchestra.
Harvard Glee Club and dcliffe Choral Society
vocal parts of the
he performance will be tomorrow night.

years ago the sym-
ayed Miss Daniels' "Exo," with a mixed chorus
two colleges.

Charles Munch, musi-
tor of the Boston Symlanned the closing two of the orchestra's sev-
anniversary season, he
to pay tribute to an
woman composer
ma mater observed its ifth anniversary last

aniels composed "Psalm
" for the Radcliffe dia-
bilee, just as she had
"Exultate Deo" for the
fiftieth anniversary in

her brightest mem-
said, is of Christmas
35. Then she heard the
t. Bartholomew's Prot-
iscopal Church in New
ner "Christ Child."
carol set to words of
esterton.

adcliffe alumna has
ee of her works played
Boston orchestra. Her
orest" was presented
Although "Exultate
s composed for the
fiftieth anniversary,
estra did not play it
years later.

Daniels' penchant for
came to the fore in rgraduate days, when posed the music for rettas. In these she nducted the orchestra
e principal part.

died in Munich

receiving a degree,
m laude, in 1900, Miss udied composition and ion with George W. in Boston and with nuille in Munich. In wrote "An American
unich," a book based pressions as a music

niels scored today the elief that composing
by sitting at a piano.
e opposite," she said
gh. "One of the most hings to do is to boil mphonic piece into a olance of it."

she explained, "I hear
for individual instru-
ning through my head;
ble, a flute, with a d of strings."

niels said she thought en composers today er equipped" than in
But she added that still meant plenty of today, she commented, er opportunities for usic through playing estra. In an earlier id the next best thing chorus, she said.

Season

Orchestra and in res has made many as a guest conductor
Last season he con-
first four weeks of ring the absence of
He is also the con-
he Brookline Youth
d he organized the tra in Providence.
concerts will continue ugh the month of g June, the concerts yed nightly except season will close on ht, June 30. Tickets le at Symphony Hall
ne week in advance
cert.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
ependent Republican
Circ. 130,559
APR 28 1956

MUSIC

mphony Concert

e Boston Symphony orchestra, es Munch conducting, gave the 24th am of the 75th season in Symphony yesterday afternoon. The soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice rts, contralto; David Lloyd, tenor Mac Morgan, bass. Assisting were Radcliffe Choral Society and the rd Glee Club, G. Wallace Wood-, conductor. The program:

salm of Praise ..... Mabel Daniels mphony No. 9 in D minor, Op. ..... Beethoven

By RUDOLPH ELIE

There is no event in the cal-lar year I view with more ngled emotions than this, the regular symphony concert the season.

On the one hand there is the
of the music season, a long arduous one for the review-who must trot about to mu-al events three and four or re times a week; on the other end of the refreshing stimuions of these weekly conrts, which add the special mension of grateful personal ntacts among the listeners as ll as the musical communicaon with the orchestra. The eather may occasionally inude and the fatigues of the nter season may pile up, but r a brief two hours on a Fri-y afternoon or a Saturday ght, there is repose, respite,
-invigoration.

NNUAL RITE

The final program was but an our and a quarter long, for it as the annual rite of the Ninth ymphony. But an unusual as-ect was the presence on the rogram of a work by Mabel Daniels, who shares with but ix other women the distinction f having her music performed
by the Boston Symphony in the whole 75 years of its existence.

It is a curious thing, it has always seemed to me, that music
is the one field in all art, indeed
in all human endeavor, that women have never achieved a masterpiece corresponding even
to those of lesser masters in music. In years gone by the orchestra has played music by
Ethel Leginska, Margaret Lang,
Helen Hopekirk, Mrs. H. M. A.
Beach, Henriette Bosman and
Lili Boulanger: it has never repeated it and there is very little likelihood it ever will be revived.

Nor, in its present form, does
it seem likely Miss Daniels' very fine "Psalm of Praise" for mixed
chorus, three trumpets, percussion and strings, will take its place in the repertoire. By "present form" I mean as a concert hall work; it will undoubtedly have many a performance in its original form with piano, trumpets and percussion, for it is a sound and vigorous work echoing
the jubilation of the text from
the Old Testament. Its inner part is lovely supplicatory lyric beautifully suited to the mixed chorus, and it ends on a note of triumph. The idiom is personal,
makes little use of dissonance,
but its contrapuntal lines in the outer sections are somewhat angular in a more contemporary vein. The modulations are free
and interesting and, all in all,
it is the agreeable product of a lively and gifted mind. Miss Daniels was in the audience and
most cordially received.

ENORMOUS WORK

I am always at a loss for words with the Ninth, there being virtually nothing to add to the literature on this enormous
work, so it always comes down
to the performance. Until the later stages of the melodramatic choral finale, it was a very fine
performance indeed. Mr. Munch did the scherzo with particular effect, catching the lightning
tempo without rushing and bringing out its heroically playful nuances with great sensitivity.
The slow movement was a mood
of sombre yet tender lyricism
in the highest level of expression, though it was briefly m red by the entrance of a hor noticeably sharp in pitch.

The finale, which contains what is certainly the most ungrateful part for a solo quartet ever composed, lost its big lines in a fierce driving conclusion, but the chorus was with the conductor every second and sang with elan and a splendid balance, the sopranos this time getting on top and attacking vigorously and cleanly. Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, David Lloyd and Mac
Morgan as the soloists contending with the impossible almost made it seem possible, Miss Addison in particular soaring above the tumult in striking fashion, though the others traversed the notes with equal brilliance.

And so, with bravos and a standing, applauding audience making a demonstration, the 75th season of the Boston Symphony orchestra came to a conclusion in an ocean of sound.
It seems, at this moment, a long, long time to October. Sunday night, incidentally, the orchestra will give a concert to benefit its forthcoming European trip, the program consisting of Beethoven's Seventh Symphony
and Tchaikovsky's Sixth.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
APR 29 1956

Boston Symphony To Visit Russia

BOSTON, April 28 (UP)—The Boston Symphony is expected to visit Russia this summer.

The 104-piece orchestra was asked by the state department yesterday to substitute for the Philadelphia Symphony, which was forced to cancel its planned Soviet tour because of a labor dispute.

Actual consent by the orchestra members remained the only point to be completed. The state department said there would be no trouble in arranging visas and travel accommodations.

Thomas D. Perry, Jr., orchestra business manager, conferred yesterday on arrangements with state department officials in Washington.

The symphony already has made plans to leave in mid-August for a month-long tour of Europe. After appearances in Scotland and Ireland, the group will visit Finland and Czechoslovakia. It has open dates for Sept. 5 and 6, at which time it is expected the orchestra would be able to go from Helsinki, Finland, to Moscow.

The Boston Symphony made a similar European tour in 1952.

Now Assured on Symphony

day to be assured of hear-
ony Orchestra in Moscow
the soft pedal was down

of the players refused to Russia.

th conductor Charles ch and associate conductor e Monteux, the Boston hony is scheduled to leave its second tour abroad in August.

present schedule calls for concert behind the Iron Cur-in Prague, Czechoslovakia,
11. At present its schedule open dates Sept. 5 and 6 a concert in Helsinki, Fin-
a short hop by plane into sla.

he State department re-
ted that Soviet government
ld guarantee the orchestra
enses and a profit for cons within the country.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071
APR 29 1956

EVERGREEN FAVORITES: ARTHUR FIEDLER AND THE POPS will join forces once again on Tuesday night when Boston's favorite spring concerts start their 71st season at Symphony Hall with Mr. Fiedler conducting.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071
APR 29 1956

(Herald Staff Photo by Maynard White)

FLOWER VENDORS at the opening night of the Pops in Symphony Hall, Tuesday evening, will include Charlotte Nickerson, Dedham and Tenley Albright of Newton. For the fourteenth year, the New England Grenfell Association is sponsoring the opening to help the work of the Grenfell Mission in Labrador.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
APR 29 1956

Meeting to talk over their flower vendor chores for Smith Night at Pops, May 8, sponsored by the Boston Smith College Club and alumnae of its school for social work are (left to right) Miss Anne Whitfield, Miss Marian Francis and Miss Anne Bryant.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
APR 29 1956

At her Newton Center home Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard (right), chairman of opening night at Symphony Pops, Tuesday, for the benefit of the Grenfell Mission, talks over the duties of flower vendors with (left to right) Mrs. Wellington Wells 3d, Miss Charlotte Nickerson, Miss Betsy Wilte and Miss Tenley Albright.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071
APR 29 1956

Jesuit to Get Eire Society Medal Here

The Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., former president of Fordham University, will receive the Eire Society Gold Medal at the society's 19th annual dinner Saturday at 6:30 p.m. at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

John J. Hearne, Irish ambassador, and Edward B. Hanify, a Boston attorney, will address the more than 750 members and friends expected to attend.

1,000 TO SYMPHONY

A gift of $1,000 will be presented to the Boston Symphony Orchestra by the society, in appreciation of concerts to be given by the orchestra this summer in Cork and Dublin.

Joseph Gannon, president of the Eire Society, will be toastmaster. Head table guests will include Joseph Shields, Irish consul; Hugh A. Moriarty, president of the American Order of Hibernians; Charles T. Burke, president of the Charitable Irish Society; William B. Caroran, president of the Clover Club; and Humphrey J. Mahoney, president of the Central Council of Irish Country Clubs.

Father Gannon, who will be given the gold medal as a "true educator of men and a priest of God," completed his early studies at Loyola School and Georgetown University. He entered the Society of Jesus in 1913 as an instructor of English and philosophy at Fordham, and was ordained in 1926.

He received an M. A. degree at Christ College, Cambridge, in 1930, and holds a Litt.D. degree from Georgetown and honorary degrees from several colleges and universities. He is now president of Loyola School in New York.

Previous recipients of the society's gold medal include Archbishop Cushing, Prof. Fred N. Robinson of Harvard and John Ford, the film director.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
APR 29 1956

CO-CHAIRMAN of alumnae committee planning annual Emmanuel Night at the Pops, Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall, is Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury. Proceeds of the concert will benefit the college building program.

YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
5,215 - S. 1,146,860

PR 28 1956

on Hears al Work Woman

N H. FENTON
The New York Times.

April 27—A Rad- graduate rose from at Symphony Hall owed in response to for her accomplish- omposer.

el Daniels, tiny, el- mmiling, was being her "Psalm of was played at the lay afternoon per- the season by the phony Orchestra.

ard Glee Club and fe Choral Society ocal parts of the performance will be orrow night.

ears ago the sym- d Miss Daniels' "Ex- with a mixed chorus o colleges.

arles Munch, musi- of the Boston Sym- ne the closing two the orchestra's sev- niversary season, he pay tribute to an woman composer mater observed its anniversary last els composed "Psalm or the Radcliffe dia- e, just as she had ultate Deo" for the tieth anniversary in er brightest mem- aid, is of Christmas Then she heard the Bartholomew's Prot- opal Church in New ner "Christ Child." arol set to words of rton.

dcliffe alumna has of her works played ston orchestra. Her est" was presented Although "Exultate composed for the iftieth anniversary, ra did not play it ears later.

niels' penchant for came to the fore in raduate days, when ed the music for ttas. In these she ucted the orchestra principal part.

ed in Munich

eceiving a degree, laude, in 1900, Miss ied composition and n with George W. n Boston and with uille in Munich. In rote "An American nich," a book based ressions as a music iels scored today the ief that composing y sitting at a piano. opposite," she said h. "One of the most ngs to do is to boil phonic piece into a ance of it."

he explained, "I hear r individual instru- ng through my head; e, a flute, with a of strings."

iels said she thought n composers today r equipped" than in But she added that still meant plenty of oday, she commented, r opportunities for usic through playing estra. In an earlier d the next best thing chorus, she said.

Season

Orchestra and in re- s has made many as a guest conductor Last season he con- first four weeks of uring the absence of He is also the con- he Brookline Youth d he organized the tra in Providence.

oncerts will continue ugh the month of g June, the concerts yed nightly except e season will close on ght, June 30. Tickets ale at Symphony Hall one week in advance cert.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

APR 28 1956

MUSIC

Symphony Concert

The Boston Symphony orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, gave the 24th program of the 75th season in Symphony Hall yesterday afternoon. The soloists were Adele Addison, soprano, Eunice Alberts, contralto, David Lloyd, tenor and Mac Morgan, bass. Assisting were the Radcliffe Choral Society and the Harvard Glee Club, G. Wallace Woodworth conducting. The program:

A Psalm of Praise . . . Mabel Daniels
Symphony No. 9 in D minor, Op. 125 . . . . . Beethoven

BY RUDOLPH ELIE

There is no event in the calendar year I view with more mingled emotions than this, the last regular symphony concert of the season.

On the one hand there is the end of the music season, a long and arduous one for the reviewer who must trot about to musical events three and four or more times a week; on the other the end of the refreshing stimulations of these weekly concerts, which add the special dimension of grateful personal contacts among the listeners as well as the musical communication with the orchestra. The weather may occasionally intrude and the fatigues of the winter season may pile up, but for a brief two hours on a Friday afternoon or a Saturday night, there is repose, respite, re-invigoration.

ANNUAL RITE

The final program was but an hour and a quarter long, for it was the annual rite of the Ninth Symphony. But an unusual aspect was the presence on the program of a work by Mabel Daniels, who shares with but six other women the distinction of having her music performed by the Boston Symphony in the whole 75 years of its existence.

It is a curious thing, it has always seemed to me, that music is the one field in all art, indeed in all human endeavor, that women have never achieved a masterpiece corresponding even to those of lesser masters in music. In years gone by the orchestra has played music by Ethel Leginska, Margaret Lang, Helen Hopekirk, Mrs. H. M. A. Beach, Henriette Bosman and Lili Boulanger: it has never repeated it and there is very little likelihood it ever will be revived.

Nor, in its present form, does it seem likely Miss Daniels' very fine "Psalm of Praise" for mixed chorus, three trumpets, percussion and strings, will take its place in the repertoire. By "present form" I mean as a concert hall work: it will undoubtedly have many a performance in its original form with piano, trumpets and percussion, for it is a sound and vigorous work echoing the jubilation of the text from the Old Testament. Its inner part is lovely supplicatory lyric beautifully suited to the mixed chorus, and it ends on a note of triumph. The idiom is personal, makes little use of dissonance, but its contrapuntal lines in the outer sections are somewhat angular in a more contemporary vein. The modulations are free and interesting and, all in all, it is the agreeable product of a lively and gifted mind. Miss Daniels was in the audience and most cordially received.

ENORMOUS WORK

I am always at a loss for words with the Ninth, there being virtually nothing to add to the literature on this enormous work, so it always comes down to the performance. Until the later stages of the melodramatic choral finale, it was a very fine performance indeed. Mr. Munch did the scherzo with particular effect, catching the lightning tempo without rushing and bringing out its heroically playful nuances with great sensitivity. The slow movement was a mood of sombre yet tender lyricism in the highest level of expression, though it was briefly marred by the entrance of a horn noticeably sharp in pitch.

The finale, which contains what is certainly the most ungrateful part for a solo quartet ever composed, lost its big lines in a fierce driving conclusion, but the chorus was with the conductor every second and sang with elan and a splendid balance, the sopranos this time getting on top and attacking vigorously and cleanly. Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, David Lloyd and Mac Morgan as the soloists contending with the impossible almost made it seem possible, Miss Addison in particular soaring above the tumult in striking fashion, though the others traversed the notes with equal brilliance.

And so, with bravos and a standing, applauding audience making a demonstration, the 75th season of the Boston Symphony orchestra came to a conclusion in an ocean of sound. It seems, at this moment, a long, long time to October. Sunday night, incidentally, the orchestra will give a concert to benefit its forthcoming European trip, the program consisting of Beethoven's Seventh Symphony and Tchaikovsky's Sixth.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

APR 29 1956

Meeting to talk over their flower vendor chores for Smith Night at Pops, May 8, sponsored by the Boston Smith College Club and alumnae of its school for social work are (left to right) Miss Anne Whitfield, Miss Marian Francis and Miss Anne Bryant.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

APR 29 1956

At her Newton Center home Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard (right), chairman of opening night at Symphony Pops, Tuesday, for the benefit of the Grenfell Mission, talks over the duties of flower vendors with (left to right) Mrs. Wellington Wells 3d, Miss Charlotte Nickerson, Miss Betsy Wilte and Miss Tenley Albright.

Russian Trip Now Assured For the Boston Symphony

Russian audiences seemed yesterday to be assured of hearing concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Moscow and Leningrad, although officially the soft pedal was down hard on all reports.

A Boston spokesman for the orchestra said only that there was no official decision. In Washington, Thomas D. Perry, Jr., orchestra manager, and Henry B. Cabot, president of trustees, who had conferred on the proposed trip with State department officials, could not be reached for comment.

It was reported here, however, that the 104 members of the orchestra who will make the European tour this summer have already voted in favor of giving concerts in Russia.

There are a few Russian-born members of the orchestra and others who were born in countries since closed by the Iron Curtain, but it was reported that none of the players refused to go to Russia.

With conductor Charles Munch and associate conductor Pierre Monteux, the Boston Symphony is scheduled to leave for its second tour abroad in mid-August.

Its present schedule calls for one concert behind the Iron Curtain in Prague, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 11. At present its schedule has open dates Sept. 5 and 6 after a concert in Helsinki, Finland, a short hop by plane into Russia.

The State department reported that Soviet government would guarantee the orchestra expenses and a profit for concerts within the country.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

EVERGREEN FAVORITES: ARTHUR FIEDLER AND THE POPS will join forces once again on Tuesday night when Boston's favorite spring concerts start their 71st season at Symphony Hall with Mr. Fiedler conducting.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

Jesuit to Get Eire Society Medal Here

The Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., former president of Fordham University, will receive the Eire Society Gold Medal at the society's 19th annual dinner Saturday at 6:30 p.m. at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

John J. Hearne, Irish ambassador, and Edward B. Haniy, a Boston attorney, will address the more than 750 members and friends expected to attend.

1,000 TO SYMPHONY

A gift of $1,000 will be presented to the Boston Symphony Orchestra by the society, in appreciation of concerts to be given by the orchestra this summer in Cork and Dublin.

Joseph Gannon, president of the Eire Society, will be toastmaster. Head table guests will include Joseph Shields, Irish consul; Hugh A. Moriarty, president of the American Order of Hibernians; Charles T. Burke, president of the Charitable Irish Society; William B. Caroan, president of the Clover Club; and Humphrey J. Mahoney, president of the Central Council of Irish Country Clubs.

Father Gannon, who will be given the gold medal as a "true educator of men and a priest of God," completed his early studies at Loyola School and Georgetown University. He entered the Society of Jesus in 1913 as an instructor of English and philosophy at Fordham, and was ordained in 1926.

He received an M. A. degree at Christ College, Cambridge, in 1930, and holds a Litt.D. degree from Georgetown and honorary degrees from several colleges and universities. He is now president of Loyola School in New York.

Previous recipients of the society's gold medal include Archbishop Cushing, Prof. Fred N. Robinson of Harvard and John Ford, the film director.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

(Herald Staff Photo by Maynard White)

FLOWER VENDORS at the opening night of the Pops in Symphony Hall, Tuesday evening, will include Charlotte Nickerson of Dedham and Tenley Albright of Newton. For the fourteenth year, the New England Grenfell Association is sponsoring the opening to help the work of the Grenfell Mission in Labrador.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

APR 29 1956

CO-CHAIRMAN of alumnae committee planning annual Emmanuel Night at the Pops, Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall, is Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury. Proceeds of the concert will benefit the college building program.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 526,215 - S. 1,146,860

APR 29 1956

WORLD OF MUSIC: MAY FESTIVALS IN U. S.

By ROSS PARMENTER

IN the last few years summer music festivals have forged ahead so rapidly in the United States that many Americans are in danger of forgetting that this country can boast of a much older institution — the May Festival. Among those that have already been detailed in these pages one can cite the Cincinnati May Festival, which dates from 1873, the University of Michigan Festival at Ann Arbor, which dates from 1880, and the Bach Festival of Bethlehem, Pa., which began in 1900.

Other May festivals which have subsequently announced this year's plans also have lengthening histories. Two of them illustrate a development in spring festivals that is a phenomenon of our own generation, dedication to contemporary American composers. We refer to the twenty-sixth Festival of American Music at the Eastman School of Music in Rochester and the thirteenth American Music Festival at the National Gallery in Washington. This year's Eastman festival will be given on eight days between this Wednesday and May 15, and will include two performances of a triple operatic bill made up of Louis Mennini's "The Rope," Ron Nelson's "The Birthday of the Infanta" and Thomas Canning's "Beyond Belief." The National Gallery's festival will open on May 13 and continue on the next four Sunday evenings. The works to be played for the first time are Concerto for Harpsichord, Percussion and Orchestra by Hugh O'Meagher and "The Union," a cantata based on music of the North from 1861-65, by Richard Bales, festival director.

In Iowa

Cornell College's May Festival in Mount Vernon, Iowa, is an example of longevity. This year's festival, from May 3 to 5, will be the fifty-eighth. It will include a performance of Mozart's "Coronation" Mass by the Cornell Oratorio Society and the Chicago Symphony, under George Schick. Two other May festivals, both in their twenty-fourth season, are the annual Bach Festival of Baldwin-Wallace College on May 25 and 26 in Berea, Ohio, and the annual Tri-State Festival for school ensembles sponsored by Phillips University in Enid, Okla., from May 9 to 12.

Another Maytime event that has never assumed the name of festival, but which has maintained the festive spirit, is the Boston Pops series. The Pops opens this year on Tuesday and runs till June 30. This May institution also is a venerable one. The new season will be the seventy-first.

Contemporary Works, Bach Programs Will Be Given in Traditional Events

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

Symphony's Commissions: Six Out of Fifteen

By RUDOLPH ELIE

A review of the programs of the recently conoluded season of the Boston Symphony orchestra reveals what a good many of us have suspected all along: they have been less interesting than they have been in many years. There have been, of course, many notable moments and only one program as a whole may be viewed as largely unfortunate, but it has been a year of repeats, of thrice familiar classics, of routine programming and of unfulfilled commissions. The 75th season, brilliant though it was orchestrally—and I think the orchestrt was never in a better estate than it was this year—was not a memorable one musically.

The failure of so many of the commissioned works to appear is rather melancholy commentary on the creative abilities of the contemporary anniversary: only six compiled, and one of those who did, Aaron Copland, gave us an edited version of a work 25 years old. This strikes me as something less than proper, but it certainly underlined the paucity of musical invention to be unable to compose a work on direct commission. Another of the six was represented by a work commissioned and presented last year by Mr. Munch, but it was a legitimate enough gesture to do it again this season.

Of the six new works given, Walter Piston's Sixth Symphony, surely his finest work in the form, and Bohuslave Martinu's "Fantaisies Symphonique" were far and away the best. Villa-Lobos' Symphony No. 11, presented by the composer himself, was an interesting patchwork, and Hanson's Elegy had the distinction of being truly elegiac contemplation of high musical feeling. Copland's Symphonic Ode was a striking piece in his early period but of little lasting impact while Petrassi's Concerto for Orchestra, an incomprehensible esay in the 12-tone technique, was unimportant. Unheard from entirely were Samuel Barber, Leonard Bernstein (save as conductor), William Schuman, Roger Sessions, Benjamin Britten, Henri Dutilleaux, Gottfried von Einem and Jacques Ibert. Nor are works by any of them to be given at Tanglewood. So the high hopes for the premieres of 15 works diminished in the actual performance of only six.

As for the older music programmed, there was little real novelty though we did hear three Mozart choral works never before programmed. There was a good bit of Mozart, suitably enough in the 200th anniversary of his birth, and of it the Sinfonia Concertante for Oboe, Clarinet, Bassoon and horn was the most enchanting. Debussy's "Martyrdom of St. Sebastian" occupied almost one whole concert and was beautifully done. Brahms' Double Concerto for Violin and Cello was certainly one of the high water marks of the season, and so was Bach's "St. John Passion given at Easter time. The Faure Requiem was very much in order and so was Sibelius Seventh, which found Mr. Munch conducting Sibelius for the first time in the city—and brilliantly, too.

The rest consisted of a familiar procession of everything from Tchaikvosky's "Romeo and Juliet" to Franck's D minor; from Beethoven's Overture to "Coriolanus" to Debussy's "Afternoon of a Faun;" from Mendelssohn's Fourth to Schumann's Second. All tried and true works, of course, and all with their place in the programming of so arduous a season as this. Yet it is a narrow and restricted horizon considering the huge repertoire of the treasury of music. I could list a hundred things the Boston Symphony could and ought to do and, come to think of it, in a later Sunday article I will.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

APR 29 1956

Special Symphony Concert Today

The 75th anniversary Winter season of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will be concluded with a special concert tonight at 8:30 in Symphony Hall. Proceeds from the concert, which will be conducted by the Orchestra's Music Director Charles Munch, will be used to help supply funds still needed for the European tour next August and September.

For this special concert Mr. Munch has scheduled two symphonies — Beethoven's Seventh and Tchaikovsky's "Pathetique." The Beethoven Symphony was the first work Mr. Munch recorded after he became the Orchestra's Music Director; the recording has consistently been one of the orchestra's best sellers and Mr. Munch has a special reputation in the performance of the score. The Tchaikovsky Symphony was programmed by Mr. Munch early in his first season in Boston; the last time he conducted it here was to open the 1951-52 season, in a pair of concerts played in memory of Serge Koussevitzky.

Remaining tickets for this concert will be put on sale at 1:30 today at the Symphony Hall box-office.

Sunday Courant
HARTFORD, Conn.
Republican
Circ. 130,826

APR 29 1956

The Lively Arts—
Table d'hote Music

By T. H. Parker

Year in and year out, the question most frequently asked of this department, is "What are they playing at Tanglewood?" tonight, tomorrow, or a week from some Tuesday. The Berkshire Music Festival does not get under way until July 4, but already missives are arriving here requesting the schedule of concerts. Naturally we comply. Just Courant service, Madam.

As preamble to the listing of dates, composers and works, let me say that in the main, you are going to get very much the same sort of thing from Charles Munch and the boys and gal of the Boston Symphony, as you have been getting of late. That is, the more popular among the standard concert classics.

Out of some 36 compositions in the main series, four will be new to Tanglewood. They are the Petrassi Concerto for Orchestra, Hanson's Elegy in Memory of Serge Koussevitzky, Copland's Symphonic Ode, and Piston's Sixth Symphony. If memory serves, this is four out of some fifteen new works by contemporary composers commissioned for the recent seventy-fifth anniversary of the Boston Symphony. It seems a rather frugal sampling.

How "modern" these may be, I cannot say. But as for the rest of the programs, there certainly will be nothing to make you cower, unless a bit of Honegger or Prokofiev still disturbs your ganglia. All else will be plain sailing. Beethoven? Why, of course, a "Leonore" Overture. Schumann? The A Minor Piano Concerto, naturally. Wagner? The "Tristan Prelude and "Love-Death". Etc., etc., etc.

I certainly am not looking down the nose at these masterpieces, or at the people to whom they are still fresh and pristine. But admitting these works to be the good, roast beef of symphony fare, one occasionally finds even this diet palls on the musical gullet.

★

Here are the programs for the "Bach-Mozart Series," to be held in the Theater-Concert Hall:

Friday evening, July 6—All-Mozart, including the Symphony in G Minor (K550); Concerto for Clarinet (K622), Benny Goodman, soloist; and Symphony in D Major (Prague); conductor, Mr. Munch.

Saturday evening, July 7 — Mozart, "Haffner" Symphony and Sinfonia Concertante with oboe, clarinet, horn, bassoon; Martinu, Military Mass.; Cowell, Eleventh Hymn and Fuguing Tune, with Yale Glee Club; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Saturday evening, July 14—All-Bach including Brandenburg Concerto No. 2; Violin Concerto in E Major, soloist, William Kroll; Suite No. 2, for Flute and Strings, soloist, Doriot Anthony; Suite No. 3; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Sunday afternoon, July 15 — All-Bach; The Passion According to St. John; conductor, Mr. Munch.

And now, the main dish, the Music-Shed concerts:

Friday evening, July 20—Berlioz, "Roman Carnival" Overture; Debussy, "Prelude to the Afternoon of a Faun"; Ravel, "Rapsodie Espagnole" Brahms, Symphony No. 2; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Saturday evening, July 21 — All-Wagner, including "A Faust Overture"; "Forest Murmurs" (Siegfried; Prelude and "Love-Death" (Tristan); First Act of "Die Walkuere"; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Sunday afternoon, July 22—Rossini, Overture, "Italian in Algiers"; Bartok, Concerto for Orchestra; Schubert, Symphony No. 7; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Friday evening, July 27—Beethoven, Overture, "Leonore", No. 2; Petrassi, Concerto for Orchestra, No. 5; Tschaikowsky, Symphony No. 4; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Saturday evening, July 28—Hanson, Elegy in Memory of Serge Koussevitzky; Schumann, Piano Concerto in A Minor, soloist, Rudolf Serkin; Honegger, Symphony No. 5; Debussy, "La Mer"; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Sunday afternoon, July 29—Handel, Concerto Grosso in D Minor; Hindemith, Violin Concerto, soloist, Ruth Posselt; Mahler, Symphony No 1; conductor, Richard Burgin.

Friday evening, August 3—Hindemith, "Mathis der Mahler"; Ravel, Piano Concerto, soloist, Jocy de Oliveira; Stravinsky, "Petrouchka" ballet, complete; conductor, Eleazar de Carvalho.

Saturday evening, August 4—Moevs, Variations for Orchestra; Mozart, Kyrie and Gloria, Mass in C Minor; Prokofiev, Symphony No. 5; conductor, Leonard Bernstein.

Sunday afternoon, August 5—Copland, Symphonic Ode; Tschaikowsky, Violin Concerto, soloist, Zino Francescatti; Schumann, Symphony No. 2; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Friday evening, August 10—Haydn, Symphony No. 102; Piston, Symphony No. 3; Enesco, Suite ... Fugue from ... Bach, Piano Concerto in D Minor, soloist, Lukas Foss; conductor, Mr. Foss.

Friday evening, July 13—All-Mozart including Concerti in F Major for Three Pianos, in A Major for Single Piano, and E Flat Major for Two Pianos; soloists, Luboshutz and Nemenoff, Boris Goldovsky.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

APR 29 1956

DINNERS TO PRECEDE BRIGHAM POPS NIGHT

The medical profession will be well represented at Peter Bent Brigham Night at Pops Wednesday in Symphony Hall. Hostesses have planned dinner parties prior to the concert and have made reservations for their guests.

Mrs. James H. Jackson, chairman of the 15th anniversary evening from which the proceeds will be used to modernize the reception room in the hospital's outpatient department. Friends of Peter Bent Brigham and alumnae of the Brigham School of Nursing are the co-sponsors.

Dr. and Mrs. Norbert Wilhelm, Dr. and Mrs. George W. Thorn, Dr. and Mrs. Hartwell Harrison, Dr. and Mrs. Harlan F. Newton are among the early subscribers. Also Dr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Levine, Dr. and Mrs. F. William Marlow, Jr., Dr. and Mrs. George P. Denny, Dr. and Mrs. James P. O'Hare, Dr. and Mrs. Merrill C. Sosman and Dr. and Mrs. Francis D. Moore.

Sunday Advertiser
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 547,691

APR 29 1956

Ex-Fordham Head To Receive Medal

The Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., former president of Fordham University, will be awarded the Eire Society Gold Medal Saturday night at the Sheraton Plaza in recognition of his contribution as an "educator of men and a priest of God."

The presentation will be made at the Society's 19th annual dinner, during which $1000 will be presented to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation of the concerts it will give in Cork and Dublin next August.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

APR 29 1956

Symphony Concert Tonight

The Boston Symphony Orchestra will present a special concert tonight in Symphony Hall under the direction of Charles Munch. The proceeds will be used to help supply funds still needed for the European tour. The program includes Beethoven's Seventh Symphony and Tchaikovsky's Sixth Symphony.

Sunday News
BURLINGTON, Vt.
Independent
Circ. 12,391

APR 29 1956

Boston Orchestra May Fill Red Gap

BOSTON—(UP)— The Boston Symphony Orchestra may substitute for the Philadelphia Orchestra and go to Russia this year.

A proposed trip to the Soviet Union was rejected unanimously by the Philadelphia group. The world famous Boston Orchestra is scheduled to appear in Europe in August and September and the State Department would like them to fill the gap left by the Philadelphia musicians.

The trip would be at no expense to the government as the Soviet government would guarantee expenses and a profit.

Sunday afternoon, August 12—All-Wagner, including Overture and Bacchanale (Tannhaeuser), Siegfried Idyl; "Meistersinger" excerpts; conductor, Mr. Munch.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 526,215 - S. 1,146,860

APR 29 1956

WORLD OF MUSIC: MAY FESTIVALS IN U. S.

Contemporary Works, Bach Programs Will Be Given in Traditional Events

By ROSS PARMENTER

IN the last few years summer music festivals have forged ahead so rapidly in the United States that many Americans are in danger of forgetting that this country can boast of a much older institution — the May Festival. Among those that have already been detailed in these pages one can cite the Cincinnati May Festival, which dates from 1873, the University of Michigan Festival at Ann Arbor, which dates from 1880, and the Bach Festival of Bethlehem, Pa., which began in 1900.

Other May festivals which have subsequently announced this year's plans also have lengthening histories. Two of them illustrate a development in spring festivals that is a phenomenon of our own generation, dedication to contemporary American composers. We refer to the twenty-sixth Festival of American Music at the Eastman School of Music in Rochester and the thirteenth American Music Festival at the National Gallery in Washington. This year's Eastman festival will be given on eight days between this Wednesday and May 15, and will include two performances of a triple operatic bill made up of Louis Mennini's "The Rope," Ron Nelson's "The Birthday of the Infanta" and Thomas Canning's "Beyond Belief." The National Gallery's festival will open on May 13 and continue on the next four Sunday evenings. The works to be played for the first time are Concerto for Harpsichord, Percussion and Orchestra by Hugh O'Meagher and "The Union," a cantata based on music of the North from 1861-65, by Richard Bales, festival director.

In Iowa

Cornell College's May Festival in Mount Vernon, Iowa, is an example of longevity. This year's festival, from May 3 to 5, will be the fifty-eighth. It will include a performance of Mozart's "Coronation" Mass by the Cornell Oratorio Society and the Chicago Symphony, under George Schick. Two other May festivals, both in their twenty-fourth season, are the annual Bach Festival of Baldwin-Wallace College on May 25 and 26 in Berea, Ohio, and the annual Tri-State Festival for school ensembles sponsored by Phillips University in Enid, Okla., from May 9 to 12.

Another Maytime event that has never assumed the name of festival, but which has maintained the festive spirit, is the Boston Pops series. The Pops opens this year on Tuesday and runs till June 30. This May institution also is a venerable one. The new season will be the seventy-first.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

Symphony's Commissions: Six Out of Fifteen

By RUDOLPH ELIE

A review of the programs of the recently concluded season of the Boston Symphony orchestra reveals what a good many of us have suspected all along: they have been less interesting than they have been in many years. There have been, of course, many notable moments and only one program as a whole may be viewed as largely unfortunate, but it has been a year of repeats, of thrice familiar classics, of routine programming and of unfulfilled commissions. The 75th season, brilliant though it was orchestrally—and I think the orchestrt was never in a better estate than it was this year—was not a memorable one musically.

The failure of so many of the commissioned works to appear is rather melancholy commentary on the creative abilities of the contemporary anniversary: only six compiled, and one of those who did, Aaron Copland, gave us an edited version of a work 25 years old. This strikes me as something less than proper, but it certainly underlined the paucity of musical invention to be unable to compose a work on direct commission. Another of the six was represented by a work commissioned and presented last year by Mr. Munch, but it was a legitimate enough gesture to do it again this season.

Of the six new works given, Walter Piston's Sixth Symphony, surely his finest work in the form, and Bohuslave Martinu's "Fantaisies Symphonique" were far and away the best. Villa-Lobos' Symphony No. 11, presented by the composer himself, was an interesting patchwork, and Hanson's Elegy had the distinction of being truly elegiac contemplation of high musical feeling. Copland's Symphonic Ode was a striking piece in his early period but of little lasting impact while Petrassi's Concerto for Orchestra, an incomprehensible esay in the 12-tone technique, was unimportant. Unheard from entirely were Samuel Barber, Leonard Bernstein (save as conductor), William Schuman, Roger Sessions, Benjamin Britten, Henri Dutilleaux, Gottfried von Einem and Jacques Ibert. Nor are works by any of them to be given at Tanglewood. So the high hopes for the premieres of 15 works diminished in the actual performance of only six.

As for the older music programmed, there was little real novelty though we did hear three Mozart choral works never before programmed. There was a good bit of Mozart, suitably enough in the 200th anniversary of his birth, and of it the Sinfonia Concertante for Oboe, Clarinet, Bassoon and horn was the most enchanting. Debussy's "Martyrdom of St. Sebastian" occupied almost one whole concert and was beautifully done. Brahms' Double Concerto for Violin and Cello was certainly one of the high water marks of the season, and so was Bach's "St. John Passion given at Easter time. The Faure Requiem was very much in order and so was Sibelius Seventh, which found Mr. Munch conducting Sibelius for the first time in the city—and brilliantly, too.

The rest consisted of a familiar procession of everything from Tchaikvosky's "Romeo and Juliet" to Franck's D minor; from Beethoven's Overture to "Coriolanus" to Debussy's "Afternoon of a Faun;" from Mendelssohn's Fourth to Schumann's Second. All tried and true works, of course, and all with their place in the programming of so arduous a season as this. Yet it is a narrow and restricted horizon considering the huge repertoire of the treasury of music. I could list a hundred things the Boston Symphony could and ought to do and, come to think of it, in a later Sunday article I will.

Sunday Boston Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

APR 29 1956

Special Symphony Concert Today

The 75th anniversary Winter season of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will be concluded with a special concert tonight at 8:30 in Symphony Hall. Proceeds from the concert, which will be conducted by the Orchestra's Music Director Charles Munch, will be used to help supply funds still needed for the European tour next August and September.

For this special concert Mr. Munch has scheduled two symphonies — Beethoven's Seventh and Tchaikovsky's "Pathetique." The Beethoven Symphony was the first work Mr. Munch recorded after he became the Orchestra's Music Director; the recording has consistently been one of the orchestra's best sellers and Mr. Munch has a special reputation in the performance of the work. The Tchaikovsky Symphony was programmed by Mr. Munch early in his first season in Boston; the last time he conducted it here was to open the 1951-52 season, in a pair of concerts played in memory of Serge Koussevitzky.

Remaining tickets for this concert will be put on sale at 1:30 today at the Symphony Hall box-office.

Sunday Courant
HARTFORD, Conn.
Republican
Circ. 130,826

APR 29 1956

The Lively Arts— Table d'hote Music

By T. H. Parker

Year in and year out, the question most frequently asked of this department, is "What are they playing at Tanglewood?" tonight, tomorrow, or a week from some Tuesday. The Berkshire Music Festival does not get under way until July 4, but already missives are arriving here requesting the schedule of concerts. Naturally we comply. Just Courant service, Madam.

As preamble to the listing of dates, composers and works, let me say that in the main, you are going to get very much the same sort of thing from Charles Munch and the boys and gal of the Boston Symphony, as you have been getting of late. That is, the more popular among the standard concert classics.

Out of some 36 compositions in the main series, four will be new to Tanglewood. They are the Petrassi Concerto for Orchestra, Hanson's Elegy in Memory of Serge Koussevitzky, Copland's Symphonic Ode, and Piston's Sixth Symphony. If memory serves, this is four out of some fifteen new works by contemporary composers commissioned for the recent seventy-fifth anniversary of the Boston Symphony. It seems a rather frugal sampling.

How "modern" these may be, I cannot say. But as for the rest of the programs, there certainly will be nothing to make you cower, unless a bit of Honegger or Prokofiev still disturbs your ganglia. All else will be plain sailing. Beethoven? Why, of course, a "Leonore" Overture, Schumann? The A Minor Piano Concerto, naturally. Wagner? The "Tristan Prelude and "Love-Death". Etc., etc., etc.

I certainly am not looking down the nose at these masterpieces, or at the people to whom they are still fresh and pristine. But admitting these works to be the good, roast beef of symphony fare, one occasionally finds even this diet palls on the musical gullet.

★

Here are the programs for the "Bach-Mozart Series," to be held in the Theater-Concert Hall:

Friday evening, July 6—All-Mozart, including the Symphony in G Minor (K550); Concerto for Clarinet (K622), Benny Goodman, soloist; and Symphony in D Major (Prague); conductor, Mr. Munch.

Saturday evening, July 7 — Mozart, "Haffner" Symphony and Sinfonia Concertante with oboe, clarinet, horn, bassoon; Martinu, Military Mass.; Cowell, Eleventh Hymn and Fuguing Tune, with Yale Glee Club; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Saturday evening, July 14—All-Bach including Brandenburg Concerto No. 2; Violin Concerto in E Major, soloist, William Kroll; Suite No. 2, for Flute and Strings, soloist, Doriot Anthony; Suite No. 3; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Sunday afternoon, July 15 — All-Bach; The Passion According to St. John; conductor, Mr. Munch.

And now, the main dish, the Music-Shed concerts:

Friday evening, July 20—Berlioz, "Roman Carnival" Overture; Debussy, "Prelude to the Afternoon of a Faun"; Ravel, "Rapsodie Espagnole" Brahms, Symphony No. 2; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Saturday evening, July 21 — All-Wagner, including "A Faust Overture"; "Forest Murmurs" (Siegfried; Prelude and "Love-Death" (Tristan); First Act of "Die Walkuere"; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Sunday afternoon, July 22—Rossini, Overture, "Italian in Algiers"; Bartok, Concerto for Orchestra; Schubert, Symphony No. 7; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Friday evening, July 27—Beethoven, Overture, "Leonore", No. 2; Petrassi, Concerto for Orchestra, No. 5; Tschaikowsky, Symphony No. 4; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Saturday evening, July 28—Hanson, Elegy in Memory of Serge Koussevitzky; Schumann, Piano Concerto in A Minor, soloist, Rudolf Serkin; Honegger, Symphony No. 5; Debussy, "La Mer"; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Sunday afternoon, July 29—Handel, Concerto Grosso in D Minor; Hindemith, Violin Concerto, soloist, Ruth Posselt; Mahler, Symphony No 1; conductor, Richard Burgin.

Friday evening, August 3—Hindemith, "Mathis der Mahler"; Ravel, Piano Concerto, soloist, Joey de Oliveira; Stravinsky, "Petrouchka" ballet, complete; conductor, Eleazar de Carvalho.

Saturday evening, August 4—Moevs, Variations for Orchestra; Mozart, Kyrie and Gloria, Mass in C Minor; Prokofiev, Symphony No. 5; conductor, Leonard Bernstein.

Sunday afternoon, August 5—Copland, Symphonic Ode; Tschaikowsky, Violin Concerto, soloist, Zino Francescatti; Schumann, Symphony No. 2; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Friday evening, August 10—Haydn, [illegible] No. 102; Piston, Symphony No. 3; Enesco, Suite [illegible]; Strauss, Suite from "Der Rosenkavalier", conductor, Mr. Munch.

Sunday afternoon, August 12—All-Wagner, including Overture and Bacchanale (Tannhaeuser), Siegfried Idyl; "Meistersinger" excerpts; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

APR 29 1956

DINNERS TO PRECEDE BRIGHAM POPS NIGHT

The medical profession will be well represented at Peter Bent Brigham Night at Pops Wednesday in Symphony Hall. Hostesses have planned dinner parties prior to the concert and have made reservations for their guests.

Mrs. James H. Jackson is chairman of the 15th anniversary evening from which the proceeds will be used to modernize the reception room in the hospital's outpatient department. Friends of Peter Bent Brigham and alumnae of the Brigham School of Nursing are the co-sponsors.

Dr. and Mrs. Norbert Wilhelm, Dr. and Mrs. George W. Thorn, Dr. and Mrs. Hartwell Harrison, Dr. and Mrs. Harlan F. Newton are among the early subscribers. Also Dr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Levine, Dr. and Mrs. F. William Marlow, Jr., Dr. and Mrs. George P. Denny, Dr. and Mrs. James P. O'Hare, Dr. and Mrs. Merrill C. Sosman and Dr. and Mrs. Francis D. Moore.

Sunday Advertiser
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 547,691

APR 29 1956

Ex-Fordham Head To Receive Medal

The Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., former president of Fordham University, will be awarded the Eire Society Gold Medal Saturday night at the Sheraton Plaza in recognition of his contribution as an "educator of men and a priest of God."

The presentation will be made at the Society's 19th annual dinner, during which $1000 will be presented to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation of the concerts it will give in Cork and Dublin next August.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

APR 29 1956

Symphony Concert Tonight

The Boston Symphony Orchestra will present a special concert tonight in Symphony Hall under the direction of Charles Munch. The proceeds will be used to help supply funds still needed for the European tour. The program includes Beethoven's Seventh Symphony and Tchaikovsky's Sixth Symphony.

Sunday News
BURLINGTON, Vt.
Independent
Circ. 12,391

APR 29 1956

Boston Orchestra May Fill Red Gap

BOSTON—(UP)— The Boston Symphony Orchestra may substitute for the Philadelphia Orchestra and go to Russia this year.

A proposed trip to the Soviet Union was rejected unanimously by the Philadelphia group. The world famous Boston Orchestra is scheduled to appear in Europe in August and September and the State Department would like them to fill the gap left by the Philadelphia musicians.

The trip would be at no expense to the government as the Soviet government would guarantee expenses and a profit.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 526,215 - S. 1,146,860

APR 29 1956

WORLD OF MUSIC: MAY FESTIVALS IN U. S.

By ROSS PARMENTER

IN the last few years summer music festivals have forged ahead so rapidly in the United States that many Americans are in danger of forgetting that this country can boast of a much older institution — the May Festival. Among those that have already been detailed in these pages one can cite the Cincinnati May Festival, which dates from 1873, the University of Michigan Festival at Ann Arbor, which dates from 1880, and the Bach Festival of Bethlehem, Pa., which began in 1900.

Other May festivals which have subsequently announced this year's plans also have lengthening histories. Two of them illustrate a development in spring festivals that is a phenomenon of our own generation, dedication to contemporary American composers. We refer to the twenty-sixth Festival of American Music at the Eastman School of Music in Rochester and the thirteenth American Music Festival at the National Gallery in Washington. This year's Eastman festival will be given on eight days between this Wednesday and May 15, and will include two performances of a triple operatic bill made up of Louis Mennini's "The Rope," Ron Nelson's "The Birthday of the Infanta" and Thomas Canning's "Beyond Belief." The National Gallery's festival will open on May 13 and continue on the next four Sunday evenings. The works to be played for the first time are Concerto for Harpsichord, Percussion and Orchestra by Hugh O'Meagher and "The Union," a cantata based on music of the North from 1861-65, by Richard Bales, festival director.

In Iowa

Cornell College's May Festival in Mount Vernon, Iowa, is an example of longevity. This year's festival, from May 3 to 5, will be the fifty-eighth. It will include a performance of Mozart's "Coronation" Mass by the Cornell Oratorio Society and the Chicago Symphony, under George Schick. Two other May festivals, both in their twenty-fourth season, are the annual Bach Festival of Baldwin-Wallace College on May 25 and 26 in Berea, Ohio, and the annual Tri-State Festival for school ensembles sponsored by Phillips University in Enid, Okla., from May 9 to 12.

Another Maytime event that has never assumed the name of festival, but which has maintained the festive spirit, is the Boston Pops series. The Pops opens this year on Tuesday and runs till June 30. This May institution also is a venerable one. The new season will be the seventy-first.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

APR 29 1956

Contemporary Works, Bach Programs Will Be Given in Traditional Events

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 869,241

APR 29 1956

Special Symphony Concert Today

The 75th anniversary Winter season of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will be concluded with a special concert tonight at 8:30 in Symphony Hall. Proceeds from the concert, which will be conducted by the Orchestra's Music Director Charles Munch, will be used to help supply funds still needed for the European tour next August and September.

For this special concert Mr. Munch has scheduled two symphonies — Beethoven's Seventh and Tchaikovsky's "Pathetique." The Beethoven Symphony was the first work Mr. Munch recorded after he became the Orchestra's Music Director; the recording has consistently been one of the orchestra's best sellers and Mr. Munch has a special reputation in the performance of the score. The Tchaikovsky Symphony was programmed by Mr. Munch early in his first season in Boston; the last time he conducted it here was to open the 1951-52 season, in a pair of concerts played in memory of Serge Koussevitzky.

Remaining tickets for this concert will be put on sale at 1:30 today at the Symphony Hall box-office.

Symphony's Commissions: Six Out of Fifteen

By RUDOLPH ELIE

A review of the programs of the recently concluded season of the Boston Symphony orchestra reveals what a good many of us have suspected all along: they have been less interesting than they have been in many years. There have been, of course, many notable moments and only one program as a whole may be viewed as largely unfortunate, but it has been a year of repeats, of thrice familiar classics, of routine programming and of unfulfilled commissions. The 75th season, brilliant though it was orchestrally—and I think the orchestrt was never in a better estate than it was this year—was not a memorable one musically.

The failure of so many of the commissioned works to appear is rather melancholy commentary on the creative abilities of the contemporary anniversary: only six compiled, and one of those who did, Aaron Copland, gave us an edited version of a work 25 years old. This strikes me as something less than proper, but it certainly underlined the paucity of musical invention to be unable to compose a work on direct commission. Another of the six was represented by a work commissioned and presented last year by Mr. Munch, but it was a legitimate enough gesture to do it again this season.

Of the six new works given, Walter Piston's Sixth Symphony, surely his finest work in the form, and Bohuslave Martinu's "Fantaisies Symphonique" were far and away the best. Villa-Lobos' Symphony No. 11, presented by the composer himself, was an interesting patchwork, and Hanson's Elegy had the distinction of being truly elegiac contemplation of high musical feeling. Copland's Symphonic Ode was a striking piece in his early period but of little lasting impact while Petrassi's Concerto for Orchestra, an incomprehensible esay in the 12-tone technique, was unimportant. Unheard from entirely were Samuel Barber, Leonard Bernstein (save as conductor), William Schuman, Roger Sessions, Benjamin Britten, Henri Dutilleaux, Gottfried von Einem and Jacques Ibert. Nor are works by any of them to be given at Tanglewood. So the high hopes for the premieres of 15 works diminished in the actual performance of only six.

As for the older music programmed, there was little real novelty though we did hear three Mozart choral works never before programmed. There was a good bit of Mozart, suitably enough in the 200th anniversary of his birth, and of it the Sinfonia Concertante for Oboe, Clarinet, Bassoon and horn was the most enchanting. Debussy's "Martyrdom of St. Sebastian" occupied almost one whole concert and was beautifully done. Brahms' Double Concerto for Violin and Cello was certainly one of the high water marks of the season, and so was Bach's "St. John Passion given at Easter time. The Faure Requiem was very much in order and so was Sibelius Seventh, which found Mr. Munch conducting Sibelius for the first time in the city—and brilliantly, too.

The rest consisted of a familiar procession of everything from Tchaikvosky's "Romeo and Juliet" to Franck's D minor; from Beethoven's Overture to "Coriolanus" to Debussy's "Afternoon of a Faun;" from Mendelssohn's Fourth to Schumann's Second. All tried and true works, of course, and all with their place in the programming of so arduous a season as this. Yet it is a narrow and restricted horizon considering the huge repertoire of the treasury of music. I could list a hundred things the Boston Symphony could and ought to do and, come to think of it, in a later Sunday article I will.

Sunday Courant
HARTFORD, Conn.
Republican
Circ. 130,826

APR 29 1956

Lively Arts— Table d'hote Music

By T. H. Parker

[illegible] and year out, the question [illegible]ently asked of this depart- [illegible] What are they playing at [illegible]?" tonight; tomorrow, or [illegible]n some Tuesday. The [illegible]usic Festival does not [illegible]y until July 4, but al- [illegible]s are arriving here re- [illegible]ctors to [illegible]chedule of concerts. Na- [illegible]ng a ca[illegible]omply. Just Courant [illegible] of the wo[illegible]n.

[illegible]ding self to the listing of dates, [illegible] the opp[illegible] works, let me say that [illegible] to help [illegible]ou are going to get [illegible]overning [illegible] same sort of thing [illegible] career. [illegible]unch and the boys [illegible]nd that [illegible]oston Symphony, as [illegible] standard [illegible]etting of late. That [illegible]be a majo[illegible]ar among the stand- [illegible]san Moor[illegible]lics.

[illegible]n School, re[illegible] compositions in the [illegible]ducaion: S[illegible] will be new to Tan- [illegible]ed for the [illegible] the Petrassi Con- [illegible] students. A[illegible], Hanson's Elegy [illegible]nclude mor[illegible]rge Koussevitzky, [illegible]uld be off[illegible]ic Ode, and Pis- [illegible]ll as scienti[illegible]ony. If memory [illegible] stressed. [illegible] out of some fif- [illegible]llege Studen[illegible]teen contemporary com- [illegible] After the [illegible]ary for the recent [illegible]arie Gaglia[illegible]ary of the Bos- [illegible]ollege and N[illegible]ns a rather fru- [illegible] Trinity, rep[illegible] education [illegible]olleges who [illegible]e may be, I [illegible]ffair, congra[illegible]r the rest of [illegible]ers of the [illegible]rtainly will be [illegible] James F. L[illegible]wer, unless a [illegible]editor of The [illegible]fiev still dis- [illegible] William J. Fo[illegible] else will be [illegible]tor of The C[illegible]? Why, of [illegible] the delegates [illegible]rture. Schu- [illegible] the reports. [illegible]o Concerto, [illegible] orchestra furn[illegible] "Tristan [illegible] dancing after [illegible] Etc., etc.,

[illegible]ting down [illegible]ces, or at [illegible] are still [illegible] admitting [illegible]d, roast [illegible]occasion- [illegible]s on the

Daughte[illegible] Long Lo[illegible]

MEMPHIS, [illegible]

Mrs. Ora Mor[illegible] father since 1[illegible]or the [illegible] living next do[illegible]eld in [illegible] The 54-year- [illegible] father, Irvin [illegible]ozart, [illegible] were reunited[illegible]Minor [illegible] fate and a fad[illegible]K622), [illegible] Mrs. Morga[illegible]mph- [illegible] young bride [illegible]actor, [illegible] Zent, Ark. Sh[illegible] father, a rovin[illegible]zart, [illegible] She returned[illegible]onia [illegible] and started [illegible]rn, [illegible] parent. [illegible]s.;

"I kept as[illegible]ing [illegible] about my fat[illegible]c- [illegible] said, 'Yes, I [illegible] he's dead.' " [illegible]n, [illegible] Sadly, she [illegible]; [illegible] Recently, a[illegible] [illegible] into a roomin[illegible] [illegible] her neighbor. [illegible] [illegible]ingly familiar [illegible] Mrs. Morga[illegible] [illegible] ture taken in [illegible] and late moth[illegible] [illegible] "I didn't a[illegible] [illegible] handed him t[illegible] [illegible] "He looked [illegible] said, 'Lord, [illegible] wife!' "

Saturday evening, July 14—All-Bach including Brandenburg Concerto No. 2; Violin Concerto in E Major, soloist, William Kroll; Suite No. 2, for Flute and Strings, soloist, Doriot Anthony; Suite No. 3; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Sunday afternoon, July 15 — All-Bach; The Passion According to St. John; conductor, Mr. Munch.

And now, the main dish, the Music-Shed concerts:

Friday evening, July 20—Berlioz, "Roman Carnival" Overture; Debussy, "Prelude to the Afternoon of a Faun"; Ravel, "Rapsodie Espagnole" Brahms, Symphony No. 2; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Saturday evening, July 21 — All-Wagner, including "A Faust Overture"; "Forest Murmurs" (Siegfried; Prelude and "Love-Death" (Tristan); First Act of "Die Walkuere"; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Sunday afternoon, July 22—Rossini, Overture, "Italian in Algiers"; Bartok, Concerto for Orchestra; Schubert, Symphony No. 7; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Friday evening, July 27—Beethoven, Overture, "Leonore", No. 2; Petrassi, Concerto for Orchestra, No. 5; Tschaikowsky, Symphony No. 4; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Saturday evening, July 28—Hanson, Elegy in Memory of Serge Koussevitzky; Schumann, Piano Concerto in A Minor, soloist, Rudolf Serkin; Honegger, Symphony No. 5; Debussy, "La Mer"; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Sunday afternoon, July 29—Handel, Concerto Grosso in D Minor; Hindemith, Violin Concerto, soloist, Ruth Posselt; Mahler, Symphony No 1; conductor, Richard Burgin.

Friday evening, August 3—Hindemith, "Mathis der Mahler"; Ravel, Piano Concerto, soloist, Jocy de Oliveira; Stravinsky, "Petrouchka" ballet, complete; conductor, Eleazar de Carvalho.

Saturday evening, August 4—Moevs, Variations for Orchestra; Mozart, Kyrie and Gloria, Mass in C Minor; Prokofiev, Symphony No. 5; conductor, Leonard Bernstein.

Sunday afternoon, August 5—Copland, Symphonic Ode; Tschaikowsky, Violin Concerto, soloist, Zino Francescatti; Schumann, Symphony No. 2; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Friday evening, August 10—Haydn, Symphony No. 102; Piston, Symphony No. 6; Strauss, "Don Juan"; Dukas, "Sorcerer's Apprentice"; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Saturday evening, August 11—Freed Festival Overture; Brahms, Symphony No. 3; Enesco, Suite for Orchestra; Strauss, Suite from "Der Rosenkavalier", conductor, Mr. Munch.

Sunday afternoon, August 12—All-Wagner, including Overture and Bacchanale (Tannhaeuser), Siegfried Idyl; "Meistersinger" excerpts; conductor, Mr. Munch.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

APR 29 1956

DINNERS TO PRECEDE BRIGHAM POPS NIGHT

The medical profession will be well represented at Peter Bent Brigham Night at Pops Wednesday in Symphony Hall. Hostesses have planned dinner parties prior to the concert and have made reservations for their guests.

Mrs. James H. Jackson is chairman of the 15th anniversary evening from which the proceeds will be used to modernize the reception room in the hospital's outpatient department. Friends of Peter Bent Brigham and alumnae of the Brigham School of Nursing are the co-sponsors.

Dr. and Mrs. Norbert A. Wilhelm, Dr. and Mrs. George W. Thorn, Dr. and Mrs. J. Hartwell Harrison, Dr. and Mrs. Harlan F. Newton are among the early subscribers. Also Dr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Levine, Dr. and Mrs. F. William Marlow, Jr., Dr. and Mrs. George P. Denny, Dr. and Mrs. James P. O'Hare, Dr. and Mrs. Merrill C. Sosman and Dr. and Mrs. Francis D. Moore.

Sunday Advertiser
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 547,691

APR 29 1956

Ex-Fordham Head To Receive Medal

The Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., former president of Fordham University, will be awarded the Eire Society Gold Medal Saturday night at the Sheraton Plaza in recognition of his contribution as an "educator of men and a priest of God."

The presentation will be made at the Society's 19th annual dinner, during which $1000 will be presented to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation of the concerts it will give in Cork and Dublin next August.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

APR 29 1956

Symphony Concert Tonight

The Boston Symphony Orchestra will present a special concert tonight in Symphony Hall under the direction of Charles Munch. The proceeds will be used to help supply funds still needed for the European tour. The program includes Beethoven's Seventh Symphony and Tchaikovsky's Sixth Symphony.

Sunday News
BURLINGTON, Vt.
Independent
Circ. 12,391

APR 29 1956

Boston Orchestra [illegible]

[illegible] Philadelphia Orchestra and go to Russia this year.

A proposed trip to the Soviet Union was rejected unanimously by the Philadelphia group. The world famous Boston Orchestra is scheduled to appear in Europe in August and September and the State Department would like

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 95,115

APR 29 1956

MUSIC

American Symphony League Schedules Annual Workshop

By GORDON E. ARMSTRONG

The American Symphony Orchestra League, of which the New Haven Symphony is a member, will hold its fourth annual Musicians' Workshop in Providence, R. I., this year. Since the previous Workshop programs sponsored by the League were held in the Mid-West, the coming event in June will permit for the first time a large attendance of New England musicians.

As formerly, the Workshop activities will be held in conjunction with the annual League National Convention. Members of the Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and New York Orchestras will conduct the musicians' sessions in Providence on June 15 and 16. During these Workshop sessions, the artist-instructors will answer questions, work on the symphonic repertoire, give advice and counsel on techniques, and generally assist the attending orchestra musicians in their problems.

Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be in charge of the coming sessions for violinists and also act as the conductor of the Workshop Orchestra. Five other principals of the Boston Orchestra will also be on this year's staff as well as several first-desk players from the other orchestras mentioned.

The first ASOL Musician's Workshop was held during the 1953 National Convention in Elkhart, Ind. Some 105 musicians representing 33 orchestras and 18 states were in attendance at that first Workshop which has since become one of the League's most constructive and educational activities. Later programs at conventions in Springfield, Ohio, and Evansville, Ind., brought similar numbers of orchestral musicians to the sessions. Any musician may attend Workshop programs for which the registration fee is but $10.

The American Symphony Orchestra League, a non-profit organization, has become a potent force in furthering the interests of community orchestras throughout the country since the League was founded several years ago. In addition to the Workshop program such as the coming one in June, other programs for conductors, orchestra managers, and music critics are now sponsored each year by the ASOL. A recent grant from the Rockefeller Foundation will enable the League to extend its activities and further its worthy aim to give every American community an orchestra of its own.

Student Recitals And Outdoor Concert

Several student recitals and an outdoor concert by the Yale University Band on Friday evening at 7 represent the principal musical interest here this week. The latter event is to be the first of three concerts by the Yale musicians on Cross Campus (between Elm and Wall Streets). This marks the 10th successive year that the Band has provided these free programs to which the public is cordially invited. The other two concerts in this series will be given on Tuesday and Friday evenings of next week. Keith Wilson, Yale Band leader, will conduct Friday's concert which, as in the past, will represent a variety of both popular and classical works.

Two Yale Music School students will be heard in degree recitals at Sprague Hall tomorrow. Barbara Stein, of New York, will be heard in a cello program at 4 in the afternoon and Wyndham William Ulrich, of Hamden, will present an oboe recital at 8:30 in the evening.

Miss Stein, a candidate for the Bachelor's degree, is the daughter of Mrs. Joseph Fuchs whose violinist husband is currently on the Yale Music School faculty. The young cellist, a pupil of Luigi Silva here, studied last summer at the Fontainebleau School of Fine Arts and Music. Her mother is an accomplished violist who was heard in last Thursday's faculty concert in Sprague Hall. Miss Stein will be assisted by Donald Shelhorn in tomorrow's program of works by Vitali-Silva, Beethoven, Debussy and Elgar.

Ulrich entered the Yale Music School after graduating from Hamden High School in 1951. He received his B.Mus. degree last year and is now a candidate for the Master's degree. His studies have been with Keith Wilson. A group of fellow students will assist Ulrich in tomorrow evening's recital program of works by Vivaldi, Handel, Britten, Mozart, Hindemith, and Gerald Kemner, a student at the Music School. Ulrich has arranged Handel's Organ Concerto in B flat for a wind ensemble and will conduct its performance in this recital.

The week's next student recitalist is Donald Reutenauer, of Hamden, who will be heard in a flute program on Tuesday afternoon at 4 in Sprague Hall. He is also a graduate of Hamden High School and entered the Music School in 1952 for studies with Keith Wilson. Several fellow students will assist the B.Mus. candidate in his recital program of works by Handel, Griffes, Haydn, and Hindemith. Reutenauer has arranged Haydn's E major Sonata for performance by a woodwind quartet on Tuesday.

Joseph Lawrence Gilman, a native of New York City, will give a French horn recital at 4 on Thursday afternoon in Sprague Hall. He attended Florida Southern College for a year and later studied at Boston University and the Longy School of Music, the last after receiving a Bachelor of Music degree from B. U. in 1952. His Yale studies for the B.Mus. degree have been with Robert Cecil. In Thursday's recital of works by Beethoven, Gretry, Cooke and Nielsen, he will have the assistance of several fellow students. The recitalist has arranged Four Dances, by Gretry, for a wind ensemble to be heard in the program.

The only student pianist who will perform this week is Diana Okkalides, a native of Philadelphia, who will give her degree recital on Friday evening at 8:30 in Sprague Hall. She attended the Philadelphia Musical Academy before coming to Yale which awarded her a B.Mus. degree last June. She has been a pupil of Bruce Simonds, former Dean of the Yale Music School. Her recital program for the Master's degree lists works by Bach, Beethoven, Franck, and Brahms.

All of these student recitals are open and free to the public.

Recital By Students Of Neighborhood School

The Neighborhood Music School, 612 Chapel Street, will present some of its elementary and intermediate students in a recital at the school this afternoon at 4. The program, which is open to the public, will be made up of solo offerings and performances by small ensembles. This would be a good time to visit the school and become familiar with the activities of this most worthy community project.

Jennie Tourel Sings In Fine Arts Festival

Considerable interest has been provoked in the third annual Fine Arts Festival at the University of Connecticut tomorrow evening, principally because of the scheduled appearance of the celebrated soprano, Jennie Tourel. She will have the leading role in Purcell's "Dido and Aeneus," which the Concert Choir of the University will present in the college's auditorium tomorrow evening at 8. Other leading roles will be filled by student singers. The public is cordially invited to the event for which there will be no charge.

Choral Festival Of Secondary Schools

Another out-of-town concert of interest is the Spring Choral Festival of Secondary Schools at Hartford's Bushnell Memorial Auditorium this afternoon at 4. The Hopkins Grammar School Glee Club will be among some 600 young singers from Connecticut and Massachusetts schools, who will participate in today's presentation of Mendelssohn's dramatic oratorio, "Elijah." Dr. Moshe Paranov will direct the youngsters and the Hartt Symphony Orchestra in the performance.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

APR 29 1956

HIS 27TH SEASON—Arthur Fiedler will raise his baton on Tuesday evening to begin the 71st season of the Boston Pops in Symphony Hall. Concerts will be given each night through the month of May.

Fiedler Opens Boston Pops Tuesday; Dickson Named Assistant Conductor

Arthur Fiedler will inaugurate the 71st season of the Boston Pops Orchestra and his 27th year as its conductor Tuesday evening in Symphony Hall. As always, the floor seats in the auditorium will have been removed and replaced by tables, allowing patrons who have floor seats to enjoy liquid and other refreshments at the same time that they listen to the inimitable musical performances of the Pops.

For the first time in the history of the Pops concerts an Assistant Conductor has been named. He is Harry Ellis Dickson, a member of the violin section in the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who in recent seasons has made many appearances as a guest conductor of the Boston Pops. Last season Mr. Dickson conducted the first four weeks of the Pops during the absence of Mr. Fiedler. He is also the conductor of the Brookline Youth Concerts and he organized the Civic Orchestra in Providence.

The Pops concerts will continue nightly through the month of May. During June the concerts will be played nightly except Sunday. The season will close on Saturday evening, June 30. Tickets will be on sale at the Symphony Hall box-office one week in advance of each concert.

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

APR 30 1956

Symphony in Special Concert

The Boston Symphony Orchestra gave an extra concert at Symphony Hall, last night, to close the 75th Anniversary season, and to help raise money for the European tour next August and September. Charles Munch conducted the Symphony No. 7, in A major, by Beethoven, and the Sixth Symphony, "Pathetique," by Tchaikovsky.

The 75th anniversary season of the Boston Symphony Orchestra came to its actual conclusion at Symphony Hall last night, as Charles Munch conducted an extra—and a special—concert.

This evening of Beethoven and Tchaikovsky had a double purpose—both to round off the season and to help raise some money which still is needed for the trip in Europe next August and September.

As previously reported, the trip will cost about $300,000, of which $270,000 already has been secured. These funds will apply to that portion of the tour already arranged; if, as seems likely, the Boston Symphony plays in Soviet Russia, that will be by formal invitation of the Soviet Government and at its expense.

For this concert a popular but substantial program was chosen: two of the great masterworks from the 19th century repertory.

Both were done to the nines, with that special brilliance, intensity and spectacular virtuosity characteristic of conductor and players at their best.

Both these works contain some pages of fireworks—Tchaikovsky especially—where the speed is very fast and the mood fiery. These places last night lighted up like sky rockets, and if some details of ensemble were not perfectly smooth, such could be overlooked in the heat of the moment. After the march-movement of the "Pathetique," which went with jet propulsion but was very clear, the audience burst in with applause.

Apart from the purely spectacular elements, Mr. Munch gave Tchaikovsky's emotionally feverish music a beautiful performance, one which in rich, glowing tone and in feeling brought out all in the music, and without exaggeration. This was truly a great performance. Mr. Munch's control of the orchestra and the suppleness of their playing were never more in evidence. No wonder that a long and noisy demonstration burst out, even after the quiet close of the "Pathetique." Mr. Munch was recalled to the stage for many smiling bows.—C. W. D.

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 285,839

APR 30 1956

Symphony Concert

After last night's special concert by the Boston Symphony to raise funds for its European tour this summer, my admiration for the virtuosity of our orchestra is boundless. One would have to hear Beethoven's Seventh Symphony and Tchaikovsky's Sixth Symphony taken at the speed conductor Charles Munch took to believe it possible. The performance of each broke every existing record for shortest playing time.

Listeners edged forward until they were sitting on the last inch of the seats hypnotized waiting breathlessly for centrifugal force alone to shatter the performance. The musicians, bless them, dug in and ploughed right through until the end without once breaking down. What fabulous dexterity; what stamina; what skill!

At the end the audience broke into a thunderous ovation for the players who had accomplished this incredible feat and Mr. Munch beckoned them at once to acknowledge the applause. Beethoven and Tchaikovsky? They weren't even in the running.

T. K.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

APR 30 1956

SYMPHONY HALL

Boston Symphony

At Symphony Hall last evening Charles Munch conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra in an extra post-season concert, the proceeds from which will be used to supply funds needed for the orchestra's European tour next August and September. The program was as follows:

Beethoven..Symphony No. 7 in A major, Op. 92

Tchaikovsky..Symphony No. 6 in B minor "Pathetique," Op. 74

By ELINOR HUGHES

At the end of a full and arduous season, Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony Orchestra could have been forgiven had their extra concert — for the benefit of the orchestra's European trip next summer — had been a little on the subdued side. But from last night's performances of the Beethoven Symphony No. 7 and the Tchaikovsky No. 6, you'd think they were starting the season rather than bringing it to a close. The sizable audience, which mingled Symphony regulars with those taking advantage of the chance to hear the orchestra, was moved to a standing ovation and half a dozen recalls for Mr. Munch at the end of the evening.

Furthermore, the listeners were so carried away by the headlong, exciting performance of the Allegro molto vivace from the Tchaikovsky work that they burst into uncontrollable applause without waiting for the fourth and final movement. If Mr. Munch was displeased, he gave no sign, and the beaming smile that he turned upon the cheering spectators at the end fairly lit up the hall.

Some conductors have been known to retard the pace and draw out the melancholy sweetness of the "Pathetique," but not Mr. Munch. He conducted con amore but definitely con spirito (if that is the right term), and sometimes the composer's melodies were pushed into the background. But the beauty of the finale was, for this listener, enhanced by not being unduly dragged out, and the symphony as a whole proved a delight to the romantically inclined.

The Beethoven No. 7, beginning coldly, grew momentarily in vivacity and color, and the spirit of the dance, which it is supposed to embody, had a colorful and robust interpretation. This extra dividend concert brought to an end the 75th season of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and drew to Symphony Hall an audience that if not capacity was assuredly large and most appreciative.

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 95,115

APR 29 1956

MUSIC

American Symphony League Schedules Annual Workshop

By GORDON E. ARMSTRONG

The American Symphony Orchestra League, of which the New Haven Symphony is a member, will hold its fourth annual Musicians' Workshop in Providence, R. I., this year. Since the previous Workshop programs sponsored by the League were held in the Mid-West, the coming event in June will permit for the first time a large attendance of New England musicians.

As formerly, the Workshop activities will be held in conjunction with the annual League National Convention. Members of the Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and New York Orchestras will conduct the musicians' sessions in Providence on June 15 and 16. During these Workshop sessions, the artist-instructors will answer questions, work on the symphonic repertoire, give advice and counsel on techniques, and generally assist the attending orchestra musicians in their problems.

Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be in charge of the coming sessions for violinists and also act as the conductor of the Workshop Orchestra. Five other principals of the Boston Orchestra will also be on this year's staff as well as several first-desk players from the other orchestras mentioned.

The first ASOL Musician's Workshop was held during the 1953 National Convention in Elkhart, Ind. Some 105 musicians representing 33 orchestras and 18 states were in attendance at that first Workshop which has since become one of the League's most constructive and educational activities. Later programs at conventions in Springfield, Ohio, and Evansville, Ind., brought similar numbers of orchestral musicians to the sessions. Any musician may attend Workshop programs for which the registration fee is but $10.

The American Symphony Orchestra League, a non-profit organization, has become a potent force in furthering the interests of community orchestras throughout the country since the League was founded several years ago. In addition to the Workshop program such as the coming one in June, other programs for conductors, orchestra managers, and music critics are now sponsored each year by the ASOL. A recent grant from the Rockefeller Foundation will enable the League to extend its activities and further its worthy aim to give every American community an orchestra of its own.

Student Recitals And Outdoor Concert

Several student recitals and an outdoor concert by the Yale University Band on Friday evening at 7 represent the principal musical interest here this week. The latter event is to be the first of three concerts by the Yale musicians on Cross Campus (between Elm and Wall Streets). This marks the 10th successive year that the Band has provided these free programs to which the public is cordially invited. The other two concerts in this series will be given on Tuesday and Friday evenings of next week. Keith Wilson, Yale Band leader, will conduct Friday's concert which, as in the past, will represent a variety of both popular and classical works.

Two Yale Music School students will be heard in degree recitals at Sprague Hall tomorrow. Barbara Stein, of New York, will be heard in a cello program at 4 in the afternoon and Wyndham William Ulrich, of Hamden, will present an oboe recital at 8:30 in the evening.

Miss Stein, a candidate for the Bachelor's degree, is the daughter of Mrs. Joseph Fuchs whose violinist husband is currently on the Yale Music School faculty. The young cellist, a pupil of Luigi Silva here, studied last summer at the Fontainebleau School of Fine Arts and Music. Her mother is an accomplished violist who was heard in last Thursday's faculty concert in Sprague Hall. Miss Stein will be assisted by Donald Shelhorn in tomorrow's program of works by Vitali-Silva, Beethoven, Debussy and Elgar.

Ulrich entered the Yale Music School after graduating from Hamden High School in 1951. He received his B.Mus. degree last year and is now a candidate for the Master's degree. His studies have been with Keith Wilson. A group of fellow students will assist Ulrich in tomorrow evening's recital program of works by Vivaldi, Handel, Britten, Mozart, Hindemith, and Gerald Kemner, a student at the Music School. Ulrich has arranged Handel's Organ Concerto in B flat for a wind ensemble and will conduct its performance in this recital.

The week's next student recitalist is Donald Reutenauer, of Hamden, who will be heard in a flute program on Tuesday afternoon at 4 in Sprague Hall. He is also a graduate of Hamden High School and entered the Music School in 1952 for studies with Keith Wilson. Several fellow students will assist the B.Mus. candidate in his recital program of works by Handel, Griffes, Haydn, and Hindemith. Reutenauer has arranged Haydn's E major Sonata for performance by a woodwind quartet on Tuesday.

Joseph Lawrence Gilman, a native of New York City, will give a French horn recital at 4 on Thursday afternoon in Sprague Hall. He attended Florida Southern College for a year and later studied at Boston University and the Longy School of Music, the last after receiving a Bachelor of Music degree from B. U. in 1952. His Yale studies for the B.Mus. degree have been with Robert Cecil. In Thursday's recital of works by Beethoven, Gretry, Cooke and Nielsen, he will have the assistance of several fellow students. The recitalist has arranged Four Dances, by Gretry, for a wind ensemble to be heard in the program.

The only student pianist who will perform this week is Diana Okkalides, a native of Philadelphia, who will give her degree recital on Friday evening at 8:30 in Sprague Hall. She attended the Philadelphia Musical Academy before coming to Yale which awarded her a B.Mus. degree last June. She has been a pupil of Bruce Simonds, former Dean of the Yale Music School. Her recital program for the Master's degree lists works by Bach, Beethoven, Franck, and Brahms.

All of these student recitals are open and free to the public.

Recital By Students Of Neighborhood School

The Neighborhood Music School, 612 Chapel Street, will present some of its elementary and intermediate students in a recital at the school this afternoon at 4. The program, which is open to the public, will be made up of solo offerings and performances by small ensembles. This would be a good time to visit the school and become familiar with the activities of this most worthy community project.

Jennie Tourel Sings In Fine Arts Festival

Considerable interest has been provoked in the third annual Fine Arts Festival at the University of Connecticut tomorrow evening, principally because of the scheduled appearance of the celebrated soprano, Jennie Tourel. She will have the leading role in Purcell's "Dido and Aeneus," which the Concert Choir of the University will present in the college's auditorium tomorrow evening at 8. Other leading roles will be filled by student singers. The public is cordially invited to the event for which there will be no charge.

Choral Festival Of Secondary Schools

Another out-of-town concert of interest is the Spring Choral Festival of Secondary Schools at Hartford's Bushnell Memorial Auditorium this afternoon at 4. The Hopkins Grammar School Glee Club will be among some 600 young singers from Connecticut and Massachusetts schools, who will participate in today's presentation of Mendelssohn's dramatic oratorio, "Elijah." Dr. Moshe Paranov will direct the youngsters and the Hartt Symphony Orchestra in the performance.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

APR 29 1956

HIS 27TH SEASON—Arthur Fiedler will raise his baton on Tuesday evening to begin the 71st season of the Boston Pops in Symphony Hall. Concerts will be given each night through the month of May.

Fiedler Opens Boston Pops Tuesday; Dickson Named Assistant Conductor

Arthur Fiedler will inaugurate the 71st season of the Boston Pops Orchestra and his 27th year as its conductor Tuesday evening in Symphony Hall. As always, the floor seats in the auditorium will have been removed and replaced by tables, allowing patrons who have floor seats to enjoy liquid and other refreshments at the same time that they listen to the inimitable musical performances of the Pops.

For the first time in the history of the Pops concerts an Assistant Conductor has been named. He is Harry Ellis Dickson, a member of the violin section in the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who in recent seasons has made many appearances as a guest conductor of the Boston Pops. Last season Mr. Dickson conducted the first four weeks of the Pops during the absence of Mr. Fiedler. He is also the conductor of the Brookline Youth Concerts and he organized the Civic Orchestra in Providence.

The Pops concerts will continue nightly through the month of May. During June the concerts will be played nightly except Sunday. The season will close on Saturday evening, June 30. Tickets will be on sale at the Symphony Hall box-office one week in advance of each concert.

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

APR 30 1956

Symphony in Special Concert

The Boston Symphony Orchestra gave an extra concert at Symphony Hall, last night, to close the 75th Anniversary season, and to help raise money for the European tour next August and September. Charles Munch conducted the Symphony No. 7, in A major, by Beethoven, and the Sixth Symphony, "Pathetique," by Tchaikovsky.

The 75th anniversary season of the Boston Symphony Orchestra came to its actual conclusion at Symphony Hall last night, as Charles Munch conducted an extra—and a special—concert.

This evening of Beethoven and Tchaikovsky had a double purpose—both to round off the season and to help raise some money which still is needed for the trip in Europe next August and September.

As previously reported, the trip will cost about $300,000, of which $270,000 already has been secured. These funds will apply to that portion of the tour already arranged; if, as seems likely, the Boston Symphony plays in Soviet Russia, that will be by formal invitation of the Soviet Government and at its expense.

For this concert a popular but substantial program was chosen: two of the great masterworks from the 19th century repertory.

Both were done to the nines, with that special brilliance, intensity and spectacular virtuosity characteristic of conductor and players at their best.

Both these works contain some pages of fireworks—Tchaikovsky especially—where the speed is very fast and the mood fiery. These places last night lighted up like sky rockets, and if some details of ensemble were not perfectly smooth, such could be overlooked in the heat of the moment. After the march-movement of the "Pathetique," which went with jet propulsion but was very clear, the audience burst in with applause.

Apart from the purely spectacular elements, Mr. Munch gave Tchaikovsky's emotionally feverish music a beautiful performance, one which in rich, glowing tone and in feeling brought out all in the music, and without exaggeration. This was truly a great performance. Mr. Munch's control of the orchestra and the suppleness of their playing were never more in evidence. No wonder that a long and noisy demonstration burst out, even after the quiet close of the "Pathetique." Mr. Munch was recalled to the stage for many smiling bows.—C. W. D.

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 285,839

APR 30 1956

Symphony Concert

After last night's special concert by the Boston Symphony to raise funds for its European tour this summer, my admiration for the virtuosity of our orchestra is boundless. One would have to hear Beethoven's Seventh Symphony and Tchaikovsky's Sixth Symphony taken at the speed conductor Charles Munch took to believe it possible. The performance of each broke every existing record for shortest playing time.

Listeners edged forward until they were sitting on the last inch of the seats hypnotized waiting breathlessly for centrifugal force alone to shatter the performance. The musicians, bless them, dug in and ploughed right through until the end without once breaking down. What fabulous dexterity; what stamina; what skill!

At the end the audience broke into a thunderous ovation for the players who had accomplished this incredible feat and Mr. Munch beckoned them at once to acknowledge the applause. Beethoven and Tchaikovsky? They weren't even in the running.

T. K.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

APR 30 1956

SYMPHONY HALL

Boston Symphony

At Symphony Hall last evening Charles Munch conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra in an extra post-season concert, the proceeds from which will be used to supply funds needed for the orchestra's European tour next August and September. The program was as follows:

Beethoven..Symphony No. 7 in A major, Op. 92
Tchaikovsky..Symphony No. 6 in B minor "Pathetique," Op. 74

By ELINOR HUGHES

At the end of a full and arduous season, Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony Orchestra could have been forgiven had their extra concert — for the benefit of the orchestra's European trip next summer — had been a little on the subdued side. But from last night's performances of the Beethoven Symphony No. 7 and the Tchaikovsky No. 6, you'd think they were starting the season rather than bringing it to a close. The sizable audience, which mingled Symphony regulars with those taking advantage of the chance to hear the orchestra, was moved to a standing ovation and half a dozen recalls for Mr. Munch at the end of the evening.

Furthermore, the listeners were so carried away by the headlong, exciting performance of the Allegro molto vivace from the Tchaikovsky work that they burst into uncontrollable applause without waiting for the fourth and final movement. If Mr. Munch was displeased, he gave no sign, and the beaming smile that he turned upon the cheering spectators at the end fairly lit up the hall.

Some conductors have been known to retard the pace and draw out the melancholy sweetness of the "Pathetique," but not Mr. Munch. He conducted con amore but definitely con spirito (if that is the right term), and sometimes the composer's melodies were pushed into the background. But the beauty of the finale was, for this listener, enhanced by not being unduly dragged out, and the symphony as a whole proved a delight to the romantically inclined.

The Beethoven No. 7, beginning coldly, grew momentarily in vivacity and color, and the spirit of the dance, which it is supposed to embody, had a colorful and robust interpretation. This extra dividend concert brought to an end the 75th season of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and drew to Symphony Hall an audience that if not capacity was assuredly large and most appreciative.

Times (e)
WOBURN, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 6,000
APR 30 1956

...Dwight, was elected A. N. P.A. president.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra has its stringed instruments tuned and its miles of musical plumbing posed for a musical invasion of Russia this summer. The one thing necessary now is permission from Russia. The Russian born members of the Symphony are hopeful that they will not be 'persuaded' to stay and play their music in Stalingrad permamently.

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
APR ...

Symphony Going to U.S.S.R.?

Edward P. Harding

Charles Munch Leads Boston Symphony—to Soviet Union?

By a Staff Writer of The Christian Science Monitor
Boston

The world-famous Boston Symphony Orchestra, which already has scheduled one concert behind the Iron Curtain this summer, may accept an invitation to extend its tour into the Soviet Union from the British Isles and Scandinavia.

In Washington, the State Department has requested the Boston Symphony to take the place of the Philadelphia Orchestra, which has just canceled a scheduled trip to the Soviet Union.

David Oistrahk, Soviet violinist, and hailed as the world's greatest, played with the Philadelphia Orchestra under Eugene Ormandy last year—resulting in an invitation being extended by the Soviet Government to the Philadelphia Orchestra to come to Russia.

However, Donald L. Engle, manager of the Philadelphia Orchestra, wired the State Department April 26 that the group had voted unanimously against going through with the proposed trip in August.

In view of the fact that the Boston Symphony will be in Western Europe and the Scandinavian countries in August and September, officials now hope a way can be found to extend this tour into the U.S.S.R. for several days.

A spokesman for the Boston Symphony, who said the group would be "very happy" to accept an invitation to play in the Soviet Union, also expressed the feeling that the invitation should come direct from the Soviets, and not from the State Department, if it is to be considered.

Officials of that department said substitution of the Boston Symphony, if it can be arranged, would have the added virtue of not costing the government anything.

The Soviet Government would act as impresario, as it did in the case of the Porgy and Bess Company. This would guarantee expenses and a profit, no matter what the gate receipts turned out to be.

The whole question of exchanges of technical and cultural groups with the U.S.S.R. has outgrown the State Department's facilities for handling them, an official said.

The State Department has asked Congress for $55,625 to add nine persons to its payroll to handle such affairs. In the meantime, temporary arrangements have been made, by use of available workers. Officials expressed the hope that by next week two foreign services, with the aid of two secretaries, can take over the problem.

Symphony Tables Set Of Pops

...sudden drought, were incensed. They wrote angry letters to the Licensing Board about giving licenses to dives but shutting off the noble Pops. Needless to say, the Symphony management has never made this mistake since.

There were some wild times at the old Pops—especially the Harvard Nights. One time the young gentleman piled the tables up until they reached the second balcony.

Another ... 1910, when ... Adeline" ... old song ...

In the ... ularity—pro... heavy and s...

Arthur ... Symphony O... less than a d... now when you... Fiedler.

Needless to ... financially, to ... budget.

Although th... end of each year ... any major symp... long way toward ...

New England Newclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200
Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,598
APR 30 1956

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

APR 30 1956

OPENING TOMORROW—Boston's traditional Pops open again tomorrow night at Symphony Hall. Top photo shows how it will look in Symphony Hall—the orchestra on the stage, the audience sitting around tables. Bottom left, musician Charles Smith rehearses on a real typewriter for his "solo" in Leroy Anderson's popular piece "The Typewriter." Bottom right, Conductor Arthur Fiedler, who does a little clowning occasionally, appears as Davy Crockett. Remember when that was the top tune in the nation?

Symphony Tables Set For Opening Of Pops

Special Door, Typewriter, Other Props Readied For First Concert Tomorrow

By DICK MILLER

There is one place in Boston where the long-hairs and crew-cuts can get together in harmony. And it's not a barber shop.

It's Symphony Hall where classical musicians loosen their bow ties, bark like dogs or play pieces on typewriters if necessary.

And it has been necessary at the Boston Pops when Conductor Arthur Fiedler puts together a program that will have a wide appeal.

The Pops begin their 71st season tomorrow night and it's a good bet Pops audiences will get a symphonic Rock 'n Roll before the month ends.

But they will also get a generous dose of straight classics—and they'll love both.

At least they always have.

Fiedler, one of the most versatile conductors in the nation, uses mass and musical psychology to arrange the concerts.

He says he's not trying to convert anyone, but he puts on a show that exposes modern music fans to the classics and classical lovers to the jive.

Much of the time Fiedler will start with a march or some rousing tune. It catches the attention of the audience and puts them in a good mood.

Lighter music, musical comedy songs, classics and gag numbers are mixed skillfully for the rest of the program.

The variety is always there, blended so you don't notice it.

But a varied program is only the start. The Pops orchestra, made up of Boston Symphony players, has a touch all its own.

They took "Jalousie," recorded it, and it became the first record of its type to sell over a million copies.

Maestro Fiedler is the master of the smooth, high-powered style. After the Pops have done a piece, anybody else's version sounds a little thin.

Now come the novelties, that everybody waits for during the program. Fiedler has done some beauties.

Back a couple of years, "Ebb Tide," with the squawking of sea gulls in the background, was the top piece of mood music in the land.

Fiedler took it over, and played it straight, until the very end, when the seagull hit the dust.

Then there was "Open the Door Richard."

It was inevitable that Fiedler should get to that, too, and improve on it.

The "improvement" came in the form of having a real door that was opened and shut during the piece. It was made to order, because real doors do not sound like real doors, musically speaking.

For Leroy Anderson's famous "Typewriter," the Pops orchestra had a real typewriter, noisy and ancient.

The "Mosquito Dance" is another favorite—especially the final slap.

Each year, the Pops is sure to have some medleys based on the current radio and television commercials.

The Pops began in 1885, and did well until 1890, when the Symphony management forgot to apply early enough for the beer and wine license.

Bostonians, not knowing the real reason for the sudden drought, were incensed. They wrote angry letters to the Licensing Board about giving licenses to dives but shutting off the noble Pops. Needless to say, the Symphony management has never made this mistake since.

There were some wild times at the old Pops—especially the Harvard Nights. One time the young gentleman piled the tables up until they reached the second balcony.

Another big time was the Clover Club Night in 1910, when Mayor John F. Fitzgerald sang "Sweet Adeline" to the finest symphonic accompaniment the old song has ever had.

In the late 20s the Pops suffered a decline in popularity—probably the programs were a little too heavy and serious.

Arthur Fiedler, whose father had joined the Symphony Orchestra in 1885, took over in 1930. In less than a decade he had become a legend. And now when you think of the word Pops, you think of Fiedler.

Needless to say, the Pops have been a great help, financially, to the Boston Symphony Orchestra's budget.

Although the orchestra shows a deficit at the end of each year, it has the best financial record of any major symphony orchestra. The Pops go a long way toward making the record as good as it is.

Times (e)
WOBURN, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 6,000
APR 30 1956

... Dwight, was elected A. N. P.A. president.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra has its stringed instruments tuned and its miles of musical plumbing posed for a musical invasion of Russia this summer. The one thing necessary now is permission from Russia. The Russian born members of the Symphony are hopeful that they will not be 'persuaded' to stay and play their music in Stalingrad permanently.

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

APR ...

Symphony Going to U.S.S.R.?

Women Ponder Air Roles

By Mary Hanly
Staff Writer of The Christian Science Monitor

More types of work are opening up for women in the field of radio and television broadcasting, but management and newscasting positions are still generally denied them.

This is one of the facts reported by executives addressing some 600 women broadcasters at the fifth annual convention of the American Women in Radio and Television, Inc.

"There is no question that there are fewer women in fewer positions in radio and TV than there should be," according to Norman Knight, general manager of WNAC and WNAC-TV in Boston.

"There is no doubt that many managers don't consider women for many types of positions," he said, admitting WNAC probably has an unusually high proportion of women employees.

But, he and Robert D. Swezey, general manager of WDSU in New Orleans, pointed out that "there is no definitive prejudice against women in radio and TV. How far the woman gets depends on the woman herself."

'Women Must Light Fuse'

booming perhaps faster than any other industry in the nation, these men brought out. The average TV home is said to have the TV set on six hours a day, the TV advertising revenue is over a billion dollars a year.

Magnetic Tape Cited

Describing TV as an ideal medium for selling, Oliver Treyz, president of the Television Bureau of Advertising, Inc., in New York, said that women can help TV move into local department store advertising, a field mainly dominated by newspapers today.

He described the new two-inchvideo electronic magnetic tape that can instantaneously record both the audio and video portions of a show. The future use of such tape in TV advertising is one of the many rea-

...er Reform

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

APR 30 1956

Social Chatter

By Alison Arnold

COMING TO BOSTON in the fall is the Royal Danish Ballet. The gala opening at the Boston Opera House Wednesday evening, Oct. 3, will benefit the scholarship fund for drama and music students of Boston University's School of Fine and Applied Arts. The Royal Danish Ballet, which appears under the patronage of His Majesty, King Frederick IX, has seldom ventured outside its own palatial theater in Copenhagen. Its first visit to London was only three years ago when it accompanied its King to the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth. The American visit is so eagerly anticipated that the New York opening in mid-September is practically sold out already. Highlight of the opening program in Boston will be "La Sylphide" not to be confused with "Les Sylphides." Chroeographer of this two-act ballet in 1836 was August Bournonville from whom the Royal Danish Ballet inherits the system of superlative acting and incredibly brilliant footwork.

* * *

THE DANISH AMBASSADOR, Henrik de Kauffman, the George Gershwin Committee and the Friends of Music of Boston University, which have taken the entire house for the opening, are mailing invitations to become a sponsor or patron. Anyone interested is invited to obtain sponsor or patron tickets from Mrs. J. Greene Carter, 36 West Cedar Street, Beacon Hill, the benefit chairman. Her co-chairman is Mrs. E. Anthony Kutten. Before the performance, sponsors may attend a Dutch Treat dinner in honor of the Danish Ambassador. Mrs. Alexander Steinert and Mrs. Albert C. Titcomb are co-chairmen of the dinner. Harold C. Case, president of Boston University, and Mrs. Case, are honorary heads of the George Gershwin Committee of Greater Boston and of the Friends of Music. Dr. Robert Oxnam and Dr. Robert A. Choate are honorary officers of the George Gershwin Committee, Mrs. Sidney L. Sholley is chairman; Mrs. John C. Vosoff, vice-chairman; Nathaniel Saltonstall, treasurer; and Miss Catherine Huntington, secretary. Mrs. Constantin A. Pertzoff is chairman of the Friends of Music. Vice-chairmen are C. Comstock Clayon, Mrs. Albert C. Titcomb and Mrs. Herman B. Cohen. Joseph E. Perry is treasurer.

MRS. CASE

* * *

THE MAY-BEE will be held at the Beaver Country Day School in Chestnut Hill Friday evening, May 4, at 7:15 o'clock. If you'd like us to explain—it's an evening of dinner-dancing and entertainment and is the annual spring benefit for the First Church in Chestnut Hill. After the dinner dance, a series of stage acts will provide musical and humorous entertainment and the evening will be topped off with dancing for all to Russ Kelsey's orchestra. Now rehearsing for their dance numbers is a talented group of girls from the Brimmer and May School. The Frank Hatches will provide their inimitable piano duets and Mrs. Keith Steele has a number of song hits. A group of well-known lawyers and business men will put on a surprise specialty act and among other entertaining scenes is a skit on the Star Market. The Flower Bouquet of Newton Center will decorate the entire auditorium. The committee includes the Laurence Channings, Mr. and Mrs. C. Terry Collens, Mr. and Mrs. Harwood Ellis, the Francis Fiskes, the Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth Gesner, Mr. and Mrs. G. Seth Nichols, the Lewis F. Perrys, Mrs. David E. Parker, the Henry E. Russels, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel P. Sears, Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Stevens, the Hamilton Thornquists, Mr. and Mrs. William V. Tripp, Jr., the Kenelm W. Winslows and the Edward A. Winsors.

* * *

THE MAY PICNIC of the Cambridge Nursery School will be held Saturday, May 12, at "Shady Hill," the Sachs estate on Francis Avenue, Cambridge. In case of rain, it will be held the following Saturday, May 19. At this annual affair for youngsters from 2 to 8 years old, clowns will be featured and original clown puppets may be purchased. There'll be a merry-go-around, pony rides, puppet shows, Maypole dances, and plenty of balloons, grabs, food and punch. Ceramic jewelry for children will be on sale at the toy table, along with bean bags. All articles are designed and made by the parents. Many old favorites will be available, including hand-decorated sand pails, felt hand puppets and hobby horses. Mrs. J. Alfred Southworth and Mrs. James Parks are co-chairmen, and the committee includes Mrs. McGeorge Bundy, Mrs. Joyce Higley, Mrs. Robert Gardner, Mrs. Fitzroy Kennedy, Mrs. King Upton, Mrs. Peter Elias, Mrs. Theodore Eliot, Jr., Mrs. Robert Ritchie, Mrs. Charles D. Cook and Mrs. Wallace Scott.

* * *

DINNER PARTIES before the Pops Concert are popular with Beaver Country Day School alumnae and friends. Entertaining before the May 11 concert in Symphony Hall to benefit the Teachers' Retirement Fund, will be the Walter Amorys, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Boas, Mr. and Mrs. Powell Robinson, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harrington, Jr., the Charles G. Rices, the G. Glenn Potters, the Lionel O'Keefes and Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Eaton, Jr. Patronesses for this annual event include Mrs. John Amory, Mrs. F. William Andres, Mrs. H. Thomas Ballantone, Jr., Mrs. Benjamin S. Bates, Mrs. J. Gardner Bradley, Mrs. William L. Bruce, Mrs. J. Randolph Campbell, Mrs. Walter H. Caskey, Mrs. Eliot G. Chertok, Mrs. Paul F. Clark, Mrs. A. Scott Earle, Mrs. Benjamin M. Ellis, Mrs. Howard J. Fine, Mrs. Richmond Holder, Mrs. John S. Howland, Mrs. Thomas E. Jansen, Jr., Mrs. Ellisworth B. Lawrence, Mrs. F. William Marlow, Mrs. Alvar W. Polk, Jr., Mrs. Henry K. Porter, Mrs. Norman S. Rabb, Mrs. John A. Sargent, Mrs. Oliver Scharnberg, Mrs. Francis G. Shaw, Jr., Mrs. Robert B. Watson and Mrs. Roger Weed, Jr.

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,915

APR 30 1956

77

International Flavor

Spring Concert Prelude To National Music Week

Langendoen Hears North Shore Philharmonic Play His Creations

With Marguerite Willauer, soprano, and George Fandel, baritone, as soloists, the North Shore Philharmonic Orchestra, Rolland Tapley, conductor, presented its annual Spring Concert Sunday afternoon at Lynn City Hall Memorial Auditorium. The program:

I.
Symphony No. 5, in E Minor, Op. 95
(From the New World)
Fourth Movement: Allegro con fuoco ..... Dvorak

II.
Serenade ..... Jacobus Landendoen
La Goyita ..... Jacobus Langendoen

III.
Siciliana (for 'cello and chamber orchestra) ..... Langendoen
Soloist: Dr. Henry Schurgin

IV.
The King of Thule, Jewel Song from "Faust" ..... Gounod
Miss Willauer

V.
Bostonia Suite ..... Keith Brown
1. On Boston Common
2. Sunday Morning on Beacon Hill — Arr. Langendoen
3. On the Esplanade

VI.
Thine Alone from "Eileen" ..... Herbert
Yours Is My Heart Alone ..... Lehar
Mr. Fandel

VII.
Hungarian Dance No. 1 in G. Minor ..... Brahms

VIII.
My Hero from "The Chocolate Soldier" ..... Strauss
I'm Falling in Love With Someone from "Naughty Marietta" .... Herbert
Miss Willauer and Mr. Fandel

IX.
Salute to Pierre Monteux ..... Langendoen

By RUTH L. CURTIS

What proved to be a star-studded program with its diversity of vocal and instrumental highlights was the Spring Concert by the North Shore Philharmonic Orchestra with Rolland Tapley conducting Sunday afternoon at Lynn City Hall Memorial Auditorium. The concert served adequately as a forerunner of the 33rd annual observance of National Music Week (May 6 to May 13) with its musical keynote, "Music Keeps Your Life in Tune!"

* * *

There was international interest in the program listing with Bohemian, Dutch, French, American, Irish, Hungarian and German-born composers contributing to the concert. On hand to hear several of his compositions was Jacobus Langendoen, first 'cellist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who has been honored recently by Queen Juliana of the Netherlands for his "outstanding ability as musician, teacher anr composer."

Marguerite Willauer, lyric soprano of Boston, and George Fandel, baritone from Quincy, were especially pleasing to the audience in their duets, My Hero from "The Chocolate Soldier" (Oscar Strauss) and I'm Falling in Love with Someone from "Nauty Marietta" (Victor Herbert). Mr. Fandal's fine resonant voice was also heard in the solos Thine Alone from "Eileen" (Herbert) and "Yours Is My Heart Alone" by the composer Franz Lehar who was born in Komarrom, Hungary eighty-six years ago on April 30.

* * *

Engaged to sing at the Berkshire Festival with the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch in Die Meistersinger von Nuremberg this coming Summer, Marguerite Willhauer had postponed her appearance in Lynn because of sickness from the February concert when she was scheduled to sing on the Philharmonic program with her husband, James Stagliano, first horn player in the BSO. She displayed a voice of considerable range and flexibility Sunday in the "Jewel Song", popular aria from the third act of Gounod's opera Faust. Accompanied by the orchestra, she projected a beautiful lyric tone as she sang "Ah—what joy past compare, Such bright jewels to wear." — and later — "No . . . no . . . this is not I! Some king's daughter I do spy!" Her encore was Victor Herbert's "Romany Life".

* * *

Endowed with a pleasing personality and engaging stage presence, Miss Willhauer was most attractive in an aqua net, off-the-shoulder gown, fashioned over silk taffeta.

Mr. Langendoen's "Serenade" and "La Goyita" (Spanish Dance) were colorful and appealing from a rhythmic point of view but it was the "Siciliana" (for 'cello and chamber orchestra) based on traditional folk lore, which had the added interest of unusual harmonies and tonal effects. Dr. Henry Schurgin, member of the North Shore Philharmonic, was the capable soloist.

* * *

A perennial favorite with Boston Pops audiences has been the Bostonia Suite produced through the cooperative efforts of Jacobus Langendoen and the late Keith Brown who used music to picture things which had caught their fancy in certain sections of Boston. Under the baton of conductor Tapley, the local orchestra described the pictures in sound and rhythm of historic Boston Common, Sunday morning on stately Beacon Hill and the gaiety of the Esplanade, contributing a clever bit of Program Music to the Sunday concert.

Still another Langendoen composition was the "Salute to Pierre Monteux" which holds a good deal of sentimental value for BSO members who have played under the directorship of Mr. Monteux at one time or another during the past 30 years.

* * *

To complete the program, there was the Brahms Hungarian Dance No. 1 in G Minor and the Fourth Movement of Dvorak's Symphony in E Minor, No. 5, from the "New World." In the "New World Symphony" Dvorak composed his masterpiece and one of the greatest pieces of music ever inspired by our country.

Before Mr. Tapley returns for another concert with the Philharmonic Orchestra in the Fall, he will have traveled with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in many European countries, playing at some of the largest and most historic music center of the world.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

APR 30 1956

Social Chatter

By Alison Arnold

COMING TO BOSTON in the fall is the Royal Danish Ballet. The gala opening at the Boston Opera House Wednesday evening, Oct. 3, will benefit the scholarship fund for drama and music students of Boston University's School of Fine and Applied Arts. The Royal Danish Ballet, which appears under the patronage of His Majesty, King Frederick IX, has seldom ventured outside its own palatial theater in Copenhagen. Its first visit to London was only three years ago when it accompanied its King to the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth. The American visit is so eagerly anticipated that the New York opening in mid-September is practically sold out already. Highlight of the opening program in Boston will be "La Sylphide" not to be confused with "Les Sylphides." Chroeographer of this two-act ballet in 1836 was August Bournonville from whom the Royal Danish Ballet inherits the system of superlative acting and incredibly brilliant footwork.

* * *

THE DANISH AMBASSADOR, Henrik de Kauffman, the George Gershwin Committee and the Friends of Music of Boston University, which have taken the entire house for the opening, are mailing invitations to become a sponsor or patron. Anyone interested is invited to obtain sponsor or patron tickets from Mrs. J. Greene Carter, 36 West Cedar Street, Beacon Hill, the benefit chairman. Her co-chairman is Mrs. E. Anthony Kutten. Before the performance, sponsors may attend a Dutch Treat dinner in honor of the Danish Ambassador. Mrs. Alexander Steinert and Mrs. Albert C. Titcomb are co-chairmen of the dinner. Harold C. Case, president of Boston University, and Mrs. Case, are honorary heads of the George Gershwin Committee of Greater Boston and of the Friends of Music. Dr. Robert Oxnam and Dr. Robert A. Choate are honorary officers of the George Gershwin Committee, Mrs. Sidney L. Sholley is chairman; Mrs. John C. Vosoff, vice-chairman; Nathaniel Saltonstall, treasurer; and Miss Catherine Huntington, secretary. Mrs. Constantin A. Pertzoff is chairman of the Friends of Music. Vice-chairmen are C. Comstock Clayon, Mrs. Albert C. Titcomb and Mrs. Herman B. Cohen. Joseph E. Perry is treasurer.

MRS. CASE

* * *

THE MAY-BEE will be held at the Beaver Country Day School in Chestnut Hill Friday evening, May 4, at 7:15 o'clock. If you'd like us to explain—it's an evening of dinner-dancing and entertainment and is the annual spring benefit for the First Church in Chestnut Hill. After the dinner dance, a series of stage acts will provide musical and humorous entertainment and the evening will be topped off with dancing for all to Russ Kelsey's orchestra. Now rehearsing for their dance numbers is a talented group of girls from the Brimmer and May School. The Frank Hatches will provide their inimitable piano duets and Mrs. Keith Steele has a number of song hits. A group of well-known lawyers and business men will put on a surprise specialty act and among other entertaining scenes is a skit on the Star Market. The Flower Bouquet of Newton Center will decorate the entire auditorium. The committee includes the Laurence Channings, Mr. and Mrs. C. Terry Collens, Mr. and Mrs. Harwood Ellis, the Francis Fiskes, the Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth Gesner, Mr. and Mrs. G. Seth Nichols, the Lewis F. Perrys, Mrs. David E. Parker, the Henry E. Russels, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel P. Sears, Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Stevens, the Hamilton Thornquists, Mr. and Mrs. William V. Tripp, Jr., the Kenelm W. Winslows and the Edward A. Winsors.

* * *

THE MAY PICNIC of the Cambridge Nursery School will be held Saturday, May 12, at "Shady Hill," the Sachs estate on Francis Avenue, Cambridge. In case of rain, it will be held the following Saturday, May 19. At this annual affair for youngsters from 2 to 8 years old, clowns will be featured and original clown puppets may be purchased. There'll be a merry-go-around, pony rides, puppet shows, Maypole dances, and plenty of balloons, grabs, food and punch. Ceramic jewelry for children will be on sale at the toy table, along with bean bags. All articles are designed and made by the parents. Many old favorites will be available, including hand-decorated sand pails, felt hand puppets and hobby horses. Mrs. J. Alfred Southworth and Mrs. James Parks are co-chairmen, and the committee includes Mrs. McGeorge Bundy, Mrs. Joyce Higley, Mrs. Robert Gardner, Mrs. Fitzroy Kennedy, Mrs. King Upton, Mrs. Peter Elias, Mrs. Theodore Eliot, Jr., Mrs. Robert Ritchie, Mrs. Charles D. Cook and Mrs. Wallace Scott.

* * *

DINNER PARTIES before the Pops Concert are popular with Beaver Country Day School alumnae and friends. Entertaining before the May 11 concert in Symphony Hall to benefit the Teachers' Retirement Fund, will be the Walter Amorys, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Boas, Mr. and Mrs. Powell Robinson, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harrington, Jr., the Charles G. Rices, the G. Glenn Potters, the Lionel O'Keefes and Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Eaton, Jr. Patronesses for this annual event include Mrs. John Amory, Mrs. F. William Andres, Mrs. H. Thomas Ballantone, Jr., Mrs. Benjamin S. Bates, Mrs. J. Gardner Bradley, Mrs. William L. Bruce, Mrs. J. Randolph Campbell, Mrs. Walter H. Caskey, Mrs. Eliot G. Chertok, Mrs. Paul F. Clark, Mrs. A. Scott Earle, Mrs. Benjamin M. Ellis, Mrs. Howard J. Fine, Mrs. Richmond Holder, Mrs. John S. Howland, Mrs. Thomas E. Jansen, Jr., Mrs. Ellisworth B. Lawrence, Mrs. F. William Marlow, Mrs. Alvar W. Polk, Jr., Mrs. Henry K. Porter, Mrs. Norman S. Rabb, Mrs. John A. Sargent, Mrs. Oliver Scharnberg, Mrs. Francis G. Shaw, Jr., Mrs. Robert B. Watson and Mrs. Roger Weed, Jr.

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,915

APR 30 1956

77

International Flavor

Spring Concert Prelude To National Music Week

Langendoen Hears North Shore Philharmonic Play His Creations

With Marguerite Willauer, soprano, and George Fandel, baritone, as soloists, the North Shore Philharmonic Orchestra, Rolland Tapley, conductor, presented its annual Spring Concert Sunday afternoon at Lynn City Hall Memorial Auditorium. The program:

I.
Symphony No. 5, in E Minor, Op. 95 (From the New World)
Fourth Movement: Allegro con fuoco ..... Dvorak

II.
Serenade ..... Jacobus Landendoen
La Goyita ..... Jacobus Langendoen

III.
Siciliana (for 'cello and chamber orchestra) ..... Langendoen
Soloist: Dr. Henry Schurgin

IV.
The King of Thule, Jewel Song from "Faust" ..... Gounod
Miss Willauer

V.
Bostonia Suite .....
1. On Boston Common ..... Keith Brown
2. Sunday Morning on Beacon Hill ..... Arr. Langendoen
3. On the Esplanade

VI.
Thine Alone from "Eileen" ..... Herbert
Yours Is My Heart Alone ..... Lehar
Mr. Fandel

VII.
Hungarian Dance No. 1 in G. Minor ..... Brahms

VIII.
My Hero from "The Chocolate Soldier" ..... Strauss
I'm Falling in Love With Someone from "Naughty Marietta" .... Herbert
Miss Willauer and Mr. Fandel

IX.
Salute to Pierre Monteux ..... Langendoen

By RUTH L. CURTIS

What proved to be a star-studded program with its diversity of vocal and instrumental highlights was the Spring Concert by the North Shore Philharmonic Orchestra with Rolland Tapley conducting Sunday afternoon at Lynn City Hall Memorial Auditorium. The concert served adequately as a forerunner of the 33rd annual observance of National Music Week (May 6 to May 13) with its musical keynote, "Music Keeps Your Life in Tune!"

* * *

There was international interest in the program listing with Bohemian, Dutch, French, American, Irish, Hungarian and German-born composers contributing to the concert. On hand to hear several of his compositions was Jacobus Langendoen, first 'cellist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who has been honored recently by Queen Juliana of the Netherlands for his "outstanding ability as musician, teacher anr composer."

Marguerite Willauer, lyric soprano of Boston, and George Fandel, baritone from Quincy, were especially pleasing to the audience in their duets, My Hero from "The Chocolate Soldier" (Oscar Strauss) and I'm Falling in Love with Someone from "Nauty Marietta" (Victor Herbert). Mr. Fandal's fine resonant voice was also heard in the solos Thine Alone from "Eileen" (Herbert) and "Yours Is My Heart Alone" by the composer Franz Lehar who was born in Komarrom, Hungary eighty-six years ago on April 30.

* * *

Engaged to sing at the Berkshire Festival with the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch in Die Meistersinger von Nuremberg this coming Summer, Marguerite Willhauer had postponed her appearance in Lynn because of sickness from the February concert when she was scheduled to sing on the Philharmonic program with her husband, James Stagliano, first horn player in the BSO. She displayed a voice of considerable range and flexibility Sunday in the "Jewel Song", popular aria from the third act of Gounod's opera Faust. Accompanied by the orchestra, she projected a beautiful lyric tone as she sang "Ah—what joy past compare, Such bright jewels to wear." — and later — "No . . . no . . . this is not I! Some king's daughter I do spy!" Her encore was Victor Herbert's "Romany Life".

* * *

Endowed with a pleasing personality and engaging stage presence, Miss Willhauer was most attractive in an aqua net, off-the-shoulder gown, fashioned over silk taffeta.

Mr. Langendoen's "Serenade" and "La Goyita" (Spanish Dance) were colorful and appealing from a rhythmic point of view but it was the "Siciliana" (for 'cello and chamber orchestra) based on traditional folk lore, which had the added interest of unusual harmonies and tonal effects. Dr. Henry Schurgin, member of the North Shore Philharmonic, was the capable soloist.

* * *

A perennial favorite with Boston Pops audiences has been the Bostonia Suite produced through the cooperative efforts of Jacobus Langendoen and the late Keith Brown who used music to picture things which had caught their fancy in certain sections of Boston. Under the baton of conductor Tapley, the local orchestra described the pictures in sound and rhythm of historic Boston Common, Sunday morning on stately Beacon Hill and the gaiety of the Esplanade, contributing a clever bit of Program Music to the Sunday concert.

Still another Langendoen composition was the "Salute to Pierre Monteux" which holds a good deal of sentimental value for BSO members who have played under the directorship of Mr. Monteux at one time or another during the past 30 years.

* * *

To complete the program, there was the Brahms Hungarian Dance No. 1 in G Minor and the Fourth Movement of Dvorak's Symphony in E Minor, No. 5, from the "New World." In the "New World Symphony" Dvorak composed his masterpiece and one of the greatest pieces of music ever inspired by our country.

Before Mr. Tapley returns for another concert with the Philharmonic Orchestra in the Fall, he will have traveled with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in many European countries, playing at some of the largest and most historic music center of the world.

ALONG 57th STREET

■ Last month "Oscars" and "Emmies" were doled out to the deserving (?) few, Pulitzers will soon be announced . . . and a Carnegie Hall audience witnessed, on March 24th, the presentation of the New York Critics Circle 1955 Award. This year it went to composer Bohuslav Martinu (his second, by the way—his opera, "Comedy on the Bridge," won a few seasons ago) for his orchestral piece "Fantaisies Symphoniques." As Martinu was presented with his scroll by Miles Kastendieck (and in the presence of Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony, who premiered the work) it crossed my mind that I would have given my eye, teeth to attend the Critics Circle meeting at which the important decision was reached. As a faithful follower of the daily music review columns, I find it unthinkable that it would have been possible for these diametrically opposed minds to come forth with a unison "Yeah" on any subject.

Then there is the amusing story of the where-to-present-the-award hassle. Messrs. Munch and Martinu apparently thought a simple little green-room presentation would be nice, but Mrs. Martinu favored a stage presentation. If this report is true, one need "never underestimate the power of a woman." Needless to say, the ceremony took place from the stage.

Next season I think we should all pool our efforts and stage a whopping big award-giving reception for our concert personalities. My selections for '55 would have been: most beautiful, Jarmila Novotna; most promising male, Glenn Gould; greatest comeback performance, Marguerita Silva ("This Is Your Life"); most striking stage attire, Jennie Tourel; most handsomely tailored, Guido Cantelli; best supporting role, Leon Barzin (conductor for the N. Y. C. Ballet).

■ Eugene List and wife Carroll Glenn have promised us a new baby for April 1st announcement.

■ Angel Records' monthly promotion leaflet, "Artist's Life," hits a new high for intelligent and interesting reading. Many will welcome the accompanying pronunciation guide of foreign artists' names. The beautiful Angel Records packaging continues. Congratulations, Mr. & Mrs. Dario Soria.

■ At the Central Opera Service meeting (Hotel Roosevelt in mid-March) Leigh Gerdine of Washington University commented on the danger of presenting music via TV in the guise of an educational program—adding that "a panel a day keeps the viewers away." He should know, for Washington U. is considering televising the entire first two years of college.

■ Arthur Benjamin writes from England that the BBC intends to re-stage his pioneering TV opera, "Mañana," in the fall.

■ As Vaughn Monroe welcomed me to the Woolworth Hour rehearsal the other day, he said, "Welcome to the last outpost of live, musical radio." Not quite true, but unfortunately it seems likely that the day will soon dawn when radio will transmit only recordings. Dolores Wilson of the "Met" was also on hand and asked Vaughn about his serious voice training (he had it, you know). This sent Vaughn reminiscing back to the days of his entry into the "pop" field, which he considered merely a means to an end—namely, the financial wherewithal for further study for a concert career. Things rolled along too smoothly and too fast and "suddenly it was too late—but I wouldn't change any of it." He added that those hours and hours spent in acquiring a basic technique were of the greatest value in providing endurance and ease, two essentials for the barnstorming, nightmarish one-night stands required of the pop singer.

■ Does it pay to advertise? Partout noted with some amusement the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra's program in which the following appeared side by side: "Vronsky and Babin play Steinway Pianos—Baldw[illegible] official piano of the Cincinnati Symphony." Which one did we run out and buy? Frankly, we immediately realized how contented we still are with our old, beat-up, but very serviceable Knabe!

■ Mr. Harry Scherman (Book-of-the-Month Club's guiding light) told me of his great elation at being able to work out arrangements with the "Met" for the new Opera-of-the-Month Club. So as not to exhaust the Met's repertoire, Mr. Scherman hopes that it will be possible, occasionally, to interject other worthy works not heard at the Met. If true, opera lovers will be in for many unusual treats and perhaps even some contemporary music—which, let's face it, is rare in the Met's repertoire. In fact, there isn't one modern work featured in the current season! What stimulation for our present-day composers!! (By the way, how many U. S. composers have received Khrennikov cables requesting attendance at the Second Convention of Soviet Composers to be held in Moscow, May 7-17?

■ What is a successful ballet? Jerry Robbins' new spoof of the concert-goer, entitled "The Concert," received highest praise as a comic delight. We chuckled and guffawed along with the first-nighters, but when it was over, that was that; in other words, this isn't a ballet we want to see often (or even again). Too little ballet, too much one-time comedy.

■ The people who work along 57th Street certainly qualify as the most ambitious and energetic in the world. I recently spoke to a switchboard receptionist who spends each additional waking hour learning how to sing; a CBS record librarian who, in addition, studies with Paul Creston and writes music for TV dramatic shows; a chap who works in serious music all day and writes for the Broadway stage at night. These Jekyll-Hyde existences seem to be the rule, not the exception. Even Musical Courier's Editor is a fine composer . . . and look at me, trying to meet a deadline with an [illegible]

PARTOUT

MUSICAL AMERICA
NEW YORK, N. Y.
APR 1956

Commissioned Martinu Score Repeated by Boston Ensemble

Boston.—The first general size-up of the worth of the music commissioned for the Boston Symphony's 75th anniversary, must await performance of all those scores. So far we have heard a half-dozen, and among the best of them was the first to be completed and performed: Boshuslav Martinu's "Fantaisies symphoniques". Actually the work had its premiere a season ahead of time, in January, 1955.

Martinu's work made a highly favorable impression then, and sustained that regard when Charles Munch repeated it at the concerts of last March 16 and 17. Here is music of stature, real invention, lively imagination, and a truly individual style.

Martinu's work was heard upon a program that began with Beethoven's "Coriolanus" Overture, included the Dvorak B minor Cello Concerto, with Leonard Rose as soloist, and ended with Three Dances from the Manuel de Falla ballet, "The Three-Cornered Hat". Mostly it was an off-day for the Boston Symphony, but Falla's dances seemed to brighten things up a good bit.

The week previously, at the Boston Symphony concerts, had been devoted to choral music—the Fauré "Requiem", of which Mr. Munch gave a superlatively delicate and sensitive performance, and three short works of Mozart, the "Ave, verum corpus", "Regina coeli" (K. 108), and the "Vesperae de dominica" (K. 321), to the last of which was added the soprano-choral "Laudate Dominum", from the "Vesperae solennes de confessore" (K. 339).

These last were conducted, and most excellently in orchestral as well as choral terms, by G. Wallace Woodworth, who had prepared the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society in all this music. The choruses were beautifully trained, and they sang with an alert response and intelligence. The only thing missing was the tonal weight that comes only with physical maturity. The soloists were Adele Addison, soprano, who was superlative; Eleanor Davis, mezzo-soprano; Richard Gilley, tenor; and Donald Gramm, baritone, who one of these days will be found in the first rank of concert and operatic artists.

The touring Mozarteum Orchestra, from Salzburg, arrived at Jordan Hall on March 15 for a Mozart program, featuring the "Linz" Symphony, the Overture to "Idomeneo", and the Divertimento in D major (K. 205). Emmy Loose, soprano (a fine artist with a luscious voice), and Metropolitan baritone Ralph Herbert were soloists in Mozart arias and duets. Under Maerzendorfer's brisk and demanding direction, the little orchestra played well enough, but without either the slick ensemble or the rich, big tone that American audiences have come to expect. The concert was under auspices of The Protestant Guild for the Blind, Inc., and drew a very large audience.

At 72, pianist Wilhelm Backhaus is a mellowed master, retaining muscularity and technic to an amazing degree, playing with fire and authority, as well as a tender and loving legato, but most of all an olympian interpreter of Beethoven. His Symphony Hall concert on March 21 (postponed a day because of our second blizzard) in the Boston University Celebrity Series was his first Boston appearance in 31 years. He played five Beethoven Sonatas: the "Pathetique", "Tempest", "Farewell"; G major, Op. 79; and that towering, visionary masterpiece, Op. 111. The whole evening was a delight, but the Op. 111 was in a class all by itself. Never have I heard it done with such thorough technical mastery (every note and phrase was crystal-clear) and such communication of feeling.

Seefried Sings Lieder

Irmgard Seefried, offering lieder of Schumann and Schubert, plus Zerlina's "Batti, batti" from "Don Giovanni", ended the season of Boston Morning Musicales, in aid of the Boston School of Occupational Therapy, in Hotel Statler ballroom, March 21. This was a memorable morning of music; singing of such intelligence and grace, and accompaniments of such mastery from Paul Ulanowsky can only be described as magnificent.

Dame Myra Hess made her annual visit to Symphony Hall on March 11, offering works by Bach, Beethoven, and Brahms. As always, the playing was deep in feeling, superior in intellectual aspects, and with no suggestion of detached virtuosity. With Dame Myra it is always music-making.

Joseph Fuchs and Artur Balsam concluded their series of Beethoven violin and piano sonatas, at Jordan Hall on March 21. They gave, in all, three programs, free to the public, under the auspices of the Mason Music Foundation. The playing varied in quality, but on the whole it was superior. Their final program brought the Sonatas Nos. 6 and 8, and the "Kreutzer".

Handel and Haydn Society

The Handel and Haydn Society honored the 200th anniversary of Mozart's birth with the C minor Mass (K. 427), at Symphony Hall on the Sunday evening of March 18. Thompson Stone conducted; the soloists were Adele Addison, soprano; Eleanor Davis, mezzo-soprano; Carl Nelson, tenor, and John Hornor, bass; an orchestra of Boston Symphony players assisted, and the organist was Willem Friso Frank.

In general, matters went well, although the chorus did not quite muster that fine, full, rich and compact tone that has distinguished their performances of "Messiah" in recent years. The soloists were all competent, and Miss Addison was the best of them. Yet even she seemed a little tired, vocally, despite a lovely delivery of "Et incarnatus est". But whatever the minor blemishes, this was a rewarding evening and a chance to hear a peculiar work of blended exaltation and sheer theatricality.

Anna Russell has been here again, rending the night air with her parodies of bad music and bad singing, and causing a large audience to laugh until tears run from their eyes. Miss Russell, who knows something about the power of being positive stinkers because she can burlesque them so well, appeared in Symphony Hall on March 12 and 13. —Cyrus Durgin

ALONG 57th STREET

■ Last month "Oscars" and "Emmies" were doled out to the deserving (?) few, Pulitzers will soon be announced . . . and a Carnegie Hall audience witnessed, on March 24th, the presentation of the New York Critics Circle 1955 Award. This year it went to composer Bohuslav Martinu (his second, by the way—his opera, "Comedy on the Bridge," won a few seasons ago) for his orchestral piece "Fantaisies Symphoniques." As Martinu was presented with his scroll by Miles Kastendieck (and in the presence of Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony, who premiered the work) it crossed my mind that I would have given my eye, teeth to attend the Critics Circle meeting at which the important decision was reached. As a faithful follower of the daily music review columns, I find it unthinkable that it would have been possible for these diametrically opposed minds to come forth with a unison "Yeah" on any subject.

Then there is the amusing story of the where-to-present-the-award hassle. Messrs. Munch and Martinu apparently thought a simple little green-room presentation would be nice, but Mrs. Martinu favored a stage presentation. If this report is true, one need "never underestimate the power of a woman." Needless to say, the ceremony took place from the stage.

Next season I think we should all pool our efforts and stage a whopping big award-giving reception for our concert personalities. My selections for '55 would have been: most beautiful, Jarmila Novotna; most promising male, Glenn Gould; greatest comeback performance, Marguerita Silva ("This Is Your Life"); most striking stage attire, Jennie Tourel; most handsomely tailored, Guido Cantelli; best supporting role, Leon Barzin (conductor for the N. Y. C. Ballet).

■ Eugene List and wife Carroll Glenn have promised us a new baby for April 1st announcement.

■ Angel Records' monthly promotion leaflet, "Artist's Life," hits a new high for intelligent and interesting reading. Many will welcome the accompanying pronunciation guide of foreign artists' names. The beautiful Angel Records packaging continues. Congratulations, Mr. & Mrs. Dario Soria.

■ At the Central Opera Service meeting (Hotel Roosevelt in mid-March) Leigh Gerdine of Washington University commented on the danger of presenting music via TV in the guise of an educational program—adding that "a panel a day keeps the viewers away." He should know, for Washington U. is considering televising the entire first two years of college.

■ Arthur Benjamin writes from England that the BBC intends to re-stage his pioneering TV opera, "Mañana," in the fall.

■ As Vaughn Monroe welcomed me to the Woolworth Hour rehearsal the other day, he said, "Welcome to the last outpost of live, musical radio." Not quite true, but unfortunately it seems likely that the day will soon dawn when radio will transmit only recordings. Dolores Wilson of the "Met" was also on hand and asked Vaughn about his serious voice training (he had it, you know). This sent Vaughn reminiscing back to the days of his entry into the "pop" field, which he considered merely a means to an end—namely, the financial wherewithal for further study for a concert career. Things rolled along too smoothly and too fast and "suddenly it was too late—but I wouldn't change any of it." He added that those hours and hours spent in acquiring a basic technique were of the greatest value in providing endurance and ease, two essentials for the barnstorming, nightmarish one-night stands required of the pop singer.

■ Does it pay to advertise? Partout noted with some amusement the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra's program in which the following appeared side by side: "Vronsky and Babin play Steinway Pianos—Baldwin is the official piano of the Cincinnati Symphony." Which one did we run out and buy? Frankly, we immediately realized how contented we still are with our old, beat-up, but very serviceable Knabe!

■ Mr. Harry Scherman (Book-of-the-Month Club's guiding light) told me of his great elation at being able to work out arrangements with the "Met" for the new Opera-of-the-Month Club. So as not to exhaust the Met's repertoire, Mr. Scherman hopes that it will be possible, occasionally, to interject other worthy works not heard at the Met. If true, opera lovers will be in for many unusual treats and perhaps even some contemporary music—which, let's face it, is rare in the Met's repertoire. In fact, there isn't one modern work featured in the current season! What stimulation for our present-day composers!! (By the way, how many U. S. composers have received Khrennikov cables requesting attendance at the Second Convention of Soviet Composers to be held in Moscow, May 7-17?

■ What is a successful ballet? Jerry Robbins' new spoof of the concert-goer, entitled "The Concert," received highest praise as a comic delight. We chuckled and guffawed along with the first-nighters, but when it was over, that was that; in other words, this isn't a ballet we want to see often (or even again). Too little ballet, too much one-time comedy.

■ The people who work along 57th Street certainly qualify as the most ambitious and energetic in the world. I recently spoke to a switchboard receptionist who spends each additional waking hour learning how to sing; a CBS record librarian who, in addition, studies with Paul Creston and writes music for TV dramatic shows; a chap who works in serious music all day and writes for the Broadway stage at night. These Jekyll-Hyde existences seem to be the rule, not the exception. Even Musical Courier's Editor is a fine composer . . . and look at me, trying to meet a deadline with an article signed. . . .

PARTOUT

MUSICAL AMERICA
NEW YORK, N. Y.
APR 1956

Commissioned Martinu Score Repeated by Boston Ensemble

Boston.—The first general size-up of the worth of the music commissioned for the Boston Symphony's 75th anniversary, must await performance of all those scores. So far we have heard a half-dozen, and among the best of them was the first to be completed and performed: Boshuslav Martinu's "Fantaisies symphoniques". Actually the work had its premiere a season ahead of time, in January, 1955.

Martinu's work made a highly favorable impression then, and sustained that regard when Charles Munch repeated it at the concerts of last March 16 and 17. Here is music of stature, real invention, lively imagination, and a truly individual style.

Martinu's work was heard upon a program that began with Beethoven's "Coriolanus" Overture, included the Dvorak B minor Cello Concerto, with Leonard Rose as soloist, and ended with Three Dances from the Manuel de Falla ballet, "The Three-Cornered Hat". Mostly it was an off-day for the Boston Symphony, but Falla's dances seemed to brighten things up a good bit.

The week previously, at the Boston Symphony concerts, had been devoted to choral music—the Fauré "Requiem", of which Mr. Munch gave a superlatively delicate and sensitive performance, and three short works of Mozart, the "Ave, verum corpus", "Regina coeli" (K. 108), and the "Vesperae de dominica" (K. 321), to the last of which was added the soprano-choral "Laudate Dominum", from the "Vesperae solennes de confessore" (K. 339).

These last were conducted, and most excellently in orchestral as well as choral terms, by G. Wallace Woodworth, who had prepared the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society in all this music. The choruses were beautifully trained, and they sang with an alert response and intelligence. The only thing missing was the tonal weight that comes only with physical maturity. The soloists were Adele Addison, soprano, who was superlative; Eleanor Davis, mezzo-soprano; Richard Gilley, tenor; and Donald Gramm, baritone, who one of these days will be found in the first rank of concert and operatic artists.

The touring Mozarteum Orchestra, from Salzburg, arrived at Jordan Hall on March 15 for a Mozart program, featuring the "Linz" Symphony, the Overture to "Idomeneo", and the Divertimento in D major (K. 205).

Dispute Threate

and blizzard) in the Boston University Celebrity Series was his first Boston appearance in 31 years. He played five Beethoven Sonatas: the "Pathetique", "Tempest", "Farewell"; G major, Op. 79; and that towering, visionary masterpiece, Op. 111. The whole evening was a delight, but the Op. 111 was in a class all by itself. Never have I heard it done with such thorough technical mastery (every note and phrase was crystal-clear) and such communication of feeling.

Seefried Sings Lieder

Irmgard Seefried, offering lieder of Schumann and Schubert, plus Zerlina's "Batti, batti" from "Don Giovanni", ended the season of Boston Morning Musicales, in aid of the Boston School of Occupational Therapy, in Hotel Statler ballroom, March 21. This was a memorable morning of music; singing of such intelligence and grace, and accompaniments of such mastery from Paul Ulanowsky can only be described as magnificent.

Dame Myra Hess made her annual visit to Symphony Hall on March 11, offering works by Bach, Beethoven, and Brahms. As always, the playing was deep in feeling, su-

Thompson Stone conducted; the soloists were Adele Addison, soprano; Eleanor Davis, mezzo-soprano; Carl Nelson, tenor, and John Hornor, bass; an orchestra of Boston Symphony players assisted, and the organist was Willem Friso Frank.

In general, matters went well, although the chorus did not quite muster that fine, full, rich and compact tone that has distinguished their performances of "Messiah" in recent years. The soloists were all competent, and Miss Addison was the best of them. Yet even she seemed a little tired, vocally, despite a lovely delivery of "Et incarnatus est". But whatever the minor blemishes, this was a rewarding evening and a chance to hear a peculiar work of blended exaltation and sheer theatricality.

Anna Russell has been here again, rending the night air with her parodies of bad music and bad singing, and causing a large audience to laugh until tears run from their eyes. Miss Russell, who knows something about the power of being positive stinkers because she can burlesque them so well, appeared in Symphony Hall on March 12 and 13. —Cyrus Durgin

Joan's life are revealed only through conversation. The plot is a personal one and deals with Joan's struggles with herself—whether she can deny her heavenly voices and whether she can face dying such a terrible death. The opera has two highly dramatic moments. The first is when Friar Julien has given her a woman's garb and Joan debates whether she should wear it, perhaps in defiance of her voices. The other is when she mo-

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

APR 30 1956

At the Symphony

Munch Offers Program To Benefit Tour

By Jules Wolffers

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's 75th anniversary season was brought to a close last night at Symphony Hall with an extra concert, the proceeds of which will help defray expenses of the orchestra's European tour this summer.

Many regular Symphony subscribers took this opportunity to hear Charles Munch conduct Beethoven's Symphony No. 7 and Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 6, the "Pathétique." Quite a few non-subscribers helped swell the total to produce an audience just a few hundred short of capacity.

* * *

Mr. Munch and the players were in rare form. There was a lack of tension and a relaxed atmosphere, together with the friendly feeling that a farewell party always engenders. The audience was obviously delighted with the music, the conductor, and the orchestra. Present also was the feeling that each listener had made a contribution for a trip which will enable many European audiences to share in one of Boston's most prized possessions.

It was a tribute to Mr. Munch and the players that the music sounded out with a freshness almost amazing after a long and taxing season. No trace of fatigue could be noted. The concert goes down as one of the finest in the series of splendid programs that added so much luster to the orchestra's 75th year.

The Beethoven had all the freshness, spirit, and drive needed to assert the work's optimistic qualities. Mr. Munch's fast tempos are fast indeed, but few would gainsay that his enthusiasm adds qualities of urgency and excitement.

At times he strains his players to the point where fingers and arms can scarcely keep pace with the direction from the podium. But the missed notes are few and far between, and the players seem almost to exult in the hard test of their abilities.

* * *

Composers and conductors have always placed goals ahead of what previously seemed ultimate limits of performance. Mr. Munch's demands will certainly keep the players at the top of their form.

The conductor's interpretation of the Tchaikovsky somewhat minimizes the work's subtitle, but in its own way the reading takes its place among the great expressions of the work. Notable in the performance was the remarkable quality of the orchestra's tone, which sounded true in the softest sections and which gained rather than lost in timbre for the loudest parts.

Audience and players rose in spontaneous tribute to Mr. Munch at the close. By gesture and bearing he expressed far better than he could in words his extreme pleasure and gratitude for the prolonged evidence of the audience's appreciation.

Luise Vosgerchian will be piano soloist at the Pops on opening night Tuesday and again on Sunday night.

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 285,839

MAY 1 1956

Fiedler Leads Catholic Schools' Girl Orchestra

Boston Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler last night led a 150-piece all-girl symphony orchestra from five Catholic high schools in Philadelphia at Boston Opera House as part of the program of the ninth annual convention of the National Catholic Music Educators Association.

He took over the baton for Mendelssohn's "Violin Concerto in E Minor," thus shattering a tradition of long-standing in that he never before has done any conducting on the eve of the opening of a Pops concert series.

Fiedler explained that he had heard the orchestra in rehearsal yesterday afternoon, and was so impressed he just "couldn't resist" accepting an invitation to lead the orchestra through one of its numbers in last night's program.

Sharing the program was the Welch Chorale, made up of 45 singers from St. Philip Neri Church, New York, assisted by the Immaculate Singers of Immaculate High School, New York.

In Boston for the three-day convention which ends Thursday noon are some 3500 teaching nuns, students and choirmasters.

The Welch Chorale featured the little-known "Lamentation over Boston," written during the Revolutionary war by William Billings.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 1 1956

Eire Group Plans Gift To Boston Symphony

A gift of $1,000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra will highlight the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston, to be held at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel May 5 at 6:30 p.m.

The gift is in appreciation of the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin next Aug 23 and 25. It will be given to Michael T. Kelleher, Orchestra trustee.

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the dinner at which John J. Hearne, Ambassador of the Republic of Ireland to the United States, and Edward R. Hanify, Boston attorney, are to speak.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2073, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 1 1956

Society: Middleton's Colonial Homes to Be Shown Public First Time

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

Nine historic houses, many of them dating back to the days of Indian raids in Essex County, will be open to the public for the first time on May 19 when Middleton observes Open House Day from 10 to 4:30 o'clock. The original town charter will be on exhibit, and various collections of early New England handcraft will also be on view for the town's visitors.

Charles Hadley Watkins of Boston and Middleton, who was honored with a special citation and medal by President Eisenhower for his part in the restoration of the Old North Church steeple, will be among the hosts holding open house that day. He and his talented wife (Lura Woodside) who is the author of several books ("Cambridge Glass," "Early New England Potters") have restored the fascinating old Capt Andrew Fuller house on King st. Mrs. Watkins is the president of the Middleton Historical Society which is sponsoring the open house.

Built more than 200 years ago by a young captain in the French and Indian wars, the Fuller house has exceptionally fine original pine panelling and an unusual double fireplace in the kitchen. The Deacon Edward Putnam house on Gregory st., now owned by Mr. and Mrs. R. Lionel Barrows, was built probably around 1704 and occupied by the Putnams for several generations. It has in the original kitchen a 9½-foot fireplace which is considered the largest in Essex County.

The Col Benjamin Peabody house on East st., overlooking the Ipswich River, was built in 1714 for Elisha Putnam by his father, Deacon Putnam, at the time of the young Putnam's marriage, and bought by Cornet Francis Peabody in 1724. The Peabody family continued to occupy it for more than 100 years and it was the home of Col Benjamin Peabody, famed for his Revolutionary War service, and his brother, the noted merchant and shipowner Joseph Peabody.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Howard are opening their attractive house on Boston st., built for Deacon John Flint early in the 18th century and occupied by Flint descendants for more than a century and a half. Among the buildings is part of the old mill that was used as an early schoolhouse.

The Bradstreet House on Maple st. will be opened by its present owners, Mr. and Mrs. Chester K. Masse. In this interesting 200-year-old house there will be a special exhibit of early painted tin and tole ware. The early saltbox homestead of Middleton's first selectman, the Wilkins house, will be opened by George Smith, and the Symonds homestead which has a most unusual fireplace with an oven on the second floor, will be opened by the Henry Sawyers.

Also open will be the Storrow house on Essex st., and the Murray house on Mill st., where there will be an exhibit of old bottle glass.

Helping Mrs. Watkins with the program will be Mrs. R. Lionel Barrows, Mrs. Howard T. Kenney Jr., Charles H. Watkins, Henry Sawyer, Roger F. Clapp and Albert C. Murray.

ALUMNAE WITHOUT A COLLEGE, the National Park College Association is busy with plans for a Boston house party and visits to the New England Peabody Home for Crippled Children, which it helps to support, this month. Starting as a junior college in 1898, National Park school in Forest Glen, Md., was taken over by the government during the war and became a ward for amputees at the Walter Reed Hospital. Massachusetts graduates, who have continued to meet each year, are gathering at the Peabody Home at 474 Brookline av. in Newton today at 2 o'clock.

Plans are being discussed at today's meeting for the national association's annual "house party" on May 17, 18 and 19 at the Sheraton Plaza, the first time the entire alumnae group has met in Boston. Also under discussion are the needs of the home, for which members of the Massachusetts chapter have supplied everything from teachers to pianos.

Mrs. William C. Cusack of Winchester heads the committee, working with Mrs. Charles C. Petersen of Marblehead as honorary chairman.

IN DANISH IT'S "AFTENSMAD": in English its a party, and members of the New England Hospital are planning the Danish 5 o'clock reception after the private opening of the art exhibition which will benefit the hospital tomorrow at 3 Joy st.

Co-chairmen of the Art Show, which will be open to the public from May 3-9, noon to 9 p. m., are Miss Ellen H. Barbour of Gloucester and Miss Florence S. Kimball of Cambridge. Other members of the committee are Mrs. Beatrice M. Bonnevie, Miss Laura Cox, George Demetrios, Miss Claire B. Fisk, Ken Gore, Dr. Miriam Katzeff, Miss Esther Kilton, Miss Marie D. MacIntrye, Miss Eleanor Raymond and Cleveland Thomas.

GRADUATES WILL SERVE as flower girls at Smith Night at the Pops, Tuesday, May 8, in Symphony Hall. Mary McMurtrie of Beacon st. is their chairman and the group includes Ronnie Pugh, who with Miss McMurtrie is on the faculty of Park School in Brookline.

Other members of Smith 1955 who will sell flowers at Smith Pops to help swell the scholarship fund are Sue Spaulding, a teacher at Happy Hollow School in Wayland; Joan Carey and Anne Bryant, Katherine Becker and Joyce Fulton, students at Harvard Graduate School of Education; Sally Gooch, Ann Whitfield, Mary Flook, Marian Francis, Jill Gillette, Deedee Wright, Katherine Karnosh, Mary LeFauver and Jan Gallo.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 1 1956

Revolutionary Sung to Music

Some of Boston's early history was revived last night when members of the National Catholic Music Educators Association heard the Welch Choral of New York sing a little known lament written during the Revolutionary War.

The piece is called "Lamentation Over Boston" and is the work of William Billings, an amateur composer, who took refuge in Boston with Paul Revere when British troops beseiged the city.

'SAT DOWN AND WEPT'

It was sung to members of the association during their ninth-annual convention at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

The lamentation begins with the words: "By the rivers of Watertown we sat down and wept . . . when we remembered thee O Boston . . . as for our friends, Lord, God of Heaven, preserve them, defend them, deliver and restore them unto us . . ."

A surprise was injected into the musical program when Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, suddenly appeared at the Opera House and led the 115-piece Philadelphia Archdiocesan High School Girl's Orchestra in a playing of Mendelssohn's Concerto in E Minor.

Fiedler accepted an invitation to lead the girls after hearing them rehearse in the afternoon. He declared it was "an extraordinary achievement to get high school girls to play so well."

A morning session of the meeting which ends on Thursday heard 100 teaching sisters of the Boston Archdiocese play violins after only six months of training under a new system devised by Dr. George Bernoff director of the string development program at Boston University.

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 185,401

MAY 1 1956

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 397,884

MAY 1 1956

Pops Begin 71st Season

Arthur Fiedler will inaugurate the 71st season of the Pops Orchestra and his 27th year as its conductor tonight in Symphony Hall. As always, the floor seats are replaced by tables, permitting liquid and other refreshments.

THE PROGRAM:

El Capitan, March	Sousa
Music of the Spheres, Waltzes	Josef Strauss
Fantasia on Greensleeves	Vaughan Williams
Overture to "La Belle Helene"	Offenbach
Piano Concerto No. 1, in E-Flat	Liszt
Soloist: LUISE VOSGERCHIAN
Suite from "The Nutcracker"	Tchaikovsky
Selection from "My Fair Lady"	Loewe-Hayman
Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing	Fain
Hungarian Dance No. 5	Brahms

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

APR 30 1956

At the Symphony

Munch Offers Program To Benefit Tour

By Jules Wolffers

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's 75th anniversary season was brought to a close last night at Symphony Hall with an extra concert, the proceeds of which will help defray expenses of the orchestra's European tour this summer.

Many regular Symphony subscribers took this opportunity to hear Charles Munch conduct Beethoven's Symphony No. 7 and Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 6, the "Pathétique." Quite a few non-subscribers helped swell the total to produce an audience just a few hundred short of capacity.

* * *

Mr. Munch and the players were in rare form. There was a lack of tension and a relaxed atmosphere, together with the friendly feeling that a farewell party always engenders. The audience was obviously delighted with the music, the conductor, and the orchestra. Present also was the feeling that each listener had made a contribution for a trip which will enable many European audiences to share in one of Boston's most prized possessions.

It was a tribute to Mr. Munch and the players that the music sounded out with a freshness almost amazing after a long and taxing season. No trace of fatigue could be noted. The concert goes down as one of the finest in the series of splendid programs that added so much luster to the orchestra's 75th year.

The Beethoven had all the freshness, spirit, and drive needed to assert the work' optimistic qualities. Mr. Munch' fast tempos are fast indeed, but few would gainsay that his enthusiasm adds qualities of urgency and excitement.

At times he strains his players to the point where fingers and arms can scarcely keep pace with the direction from the podium. But the missed notes are few and far between, and the players seem almost to exult in the hard test of their abilities.

* * *

Composers and conductors have always placed goals ahead of what previously seemed ultimate limits of performance. Mr. Munch's demands will certainly keep the players at the top of their form.

The conductor's interpretation of the Tchaikovsky somewhat minimizes the work's subtitle, but in its own way the reading takes its place among the great expressions of the work. Notable in the performance was the remarkable quality of the orchestra's tone, which sounded true in the softest sections and which gained rather than lost in timbre for the loudest parts.

Audience and players rose in spontaneous tribute to Mr. Munch at the close. By gesture and bearing he expressed far better than he could in words his extreme pleasure and gratitude for the prolonged evidence of the audience's appreciation.

Luise Vosgerchian will be piano soloist at the Pops on opening night Tuesday and again on Sunday night.

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 285,839

MAY 1 1956

Fiedler Leads Catholic Schools' Girl Orchestra

Boston Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler last night led a 150-piece all-girl symphony orchestra from five Catholic high schools in Philadelphia at Boston Opera House as part of the program of the ninth annual convention of the National Catholic Music Educators Association.

He took over the baton for Mendelssohn's "Violin Concerto in E Minor," thus shattering a tradition of long-standing in that he never before has done any conducting on the eve of the opening of a Pops concert series.

Fiedler explained that he had heard the orchestra in rehearsal yesterday afternoon, and was so impressed he just "couldn't resist" accepting an invitation to lead the orchestra through one of its numbers in last night's program.

Sharing the program was the Welch Chorale, made up of 45 singers from St. Philip Neri Church, New York, assisted by the Immaculate Singers of Immaculate High School, New York.

In Boston for the three-day convention which ends Thursday noon are some 3500 teaching nuns, students and choirmasters.

The Welch Chorale featured the little-known "Lamentation over Boston," written during the Revolutionary war by William Billings.

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 1 1956

Eire Group Plans Gift To Boston Symphony

A gift of $1,000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra will highlight the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston, to be held at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel May 5 at 6:30 p.m.

The gift is in appreciation of the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin next Aug 23 and 25. It will be given to Michael T. Kelleher, Orchestra trustee.

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the dinner at which John J. Hearne, Ambassador of the Republic of Ireland to the United States, and Edward R. Hanify, Boston attorney, are to speak.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 1 1956

Society: Middleton's Colonial Homes to Be Shown Public First Time

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

Nine historic houses, many of them dating back to the days of Indian raids in Essex County, will be open to the public for the first time on May 19 when Middleton observes Open House Day from 10 to 4:30 o'clock. The original town charter will be on exhibit, and various collections of early New England handcraft will also be on view for the town's visitors.

Charles Hadley Watkins of Boston and Middleton, who was honored with a special citation and medal by President Eisenhower for his part in the restoration of the Old North Church steeple, will be among the hosts holding open house that day. He and his talented wife (Lura Woodside) who is the author of several books ("Cambridge Glass," "Early New England Potters") have restored the fascinating old Capt Andrew Fuller house on King st. Mrs. Watkins is the president of the Middleton Historical Society which is sponsoring the open house.

Built more than 200 years ago by a young captain in the French and Indian wars, the Fuller house has exceptionally fine original pine panelling and an unusual double fireplace in the kitchen. The Deacon Edward Putnam house on Gregory st., now owned by Mr. and Mrs. R. Lionel Barrows, was built probably around 1704 and occupied by the Putnams for several generations. It has in the original kitchen a 9½-foot fireplace which is considered the largest in Essex County.

The Col Benjamin Peabody house on East st., overlooking the Ipswich River, was built in 1714 for Elisha Putnam by his father, Deacon Putnam, at the time of the young Putnam's marriage, and bought by Cornet Francis Peabody in 1724. The Peabody family continued to occupy it for more than 100 years and it was the home of Col Benjamin Peabody, famed for his Revolutionary War service, and his brother, the noted merchant and shipowner Joseph Peabody.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Howard are opening their attractive house on Boston st., built for Deacon John Flint early in the 18th century and occupied by Flint descendants for more than a century and a half. Among the buildings is part of the old mill that was used as an early schoolhouse.

The Bradstreet House on Maple st. will be opened by its present owners, Mr. and Mrs. Chester K. Masse. In this interesting 200-year-old house there will be a special exhibit of early painted tin and tole ware. The early saltbox homestead of Middleton's first selectman, the Wilkins house, will be opened by George Smith, and the Symonds homestead which has a most unusual fireplace with an oven on the second floor, will be opened by the Henry Sawyers.

Also open will be the Storrow house on Essex st., and the Murray house on Mill st., where there will be an exhibit of old bottle glass.

Helping Mrs. Watkins with the program will be Mrs. R. Lionel Barrows, Mrs. Howard T. Kenney Jr., Charles H. Watkins, Henry Sawyer, Roger F. Clapp and Albert C. Murray.

ALUMNAE WITHOUT A COLLEGE, the National Park College Association is busy with plans for a Boston house party and visits to the New England Peabody Home for Crippled Children, which it helps to support, this month. Starting as a junior college in 1898, National Park school in Forest Glen, Md., was taken over by the government during the war and became a ward for amputees at the Walter Reed Hospital. Massachusetts graduates, who have continued to meet each year, are gathering at the Peabody Home at 474 Brookline av. in Newton today at 2 o'clock.

Plans are being discussed at today's meeting for the national association's annual "house party" on May 17, 18 and 19 at the Sheraton Plaza, the first time the entire alumnae group has met in Boston. Also under discussion are the needs of the home, for which members of the Massachusetts chapter have supplied everything from teachers to pianos.

Mrs. William C. Cusack of Winchester heads the committee, working with Mrs. Charles C. Petersen of Marblehead as honorary chairman.

IN DANISH IT'S "AFTENSMAD": in English its a party, and members of the New England Hospital are planning the Danish 5 o'clock reception after the private opening of the art exhibition which will benefit the hospital tomorrow at 3 Joy st.

Co-chairmen of the Art Show, which will be open to the public from May 3-9, noon to 9 p. m., are Miss Ellen H. Barbour of Gloucester and Miss Florence S. Kimball of Cambridge. Other members of the committee are Mrs. Beatrice M. Bonnevie, Miss Laura Cox, George Demetrios, Miss Claire B. Fisk, Ken Gore, Dr. Miriam Katzeff, Miss Esther Kilton, Miss Marie D. MacIntrye, Miss Eleanor Raymond and Cleveland Thomas.

GRADUATES WILL SERVE as flower girls at Smith Night at the Pops, Tuesday, May 8, in Symphony Hall. Mary McMurtrie of Beacon st. is their chairman and the group includes Ronnie Pugh, who with Miss McMurtrie is on the faculty of Park School in Brookline.

Other members of Smith 1955 who will sell flowers at Smith Pops to help swell the scholarship fund are Sue Spaulding, a teacher at Happy Hollow School in Wayland; Joan Carey and Anne Bryant, Katherine Becker and Joyce Fulton, students at Harvard Graduate School of Education; Sally Gooch, Ann Whitfield, Mary Flook, Marian Francis, Jill Gillette, Deedee Wright, Katherine Karnosh, Mary LeFauver and Jan Gallo.

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent

Joy or Coming

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, W

Look down and cheer
foot forward is stepping right direction! The sp
the upswing and it mean

Pops Program

The 71st reason of the Boston Pops opens in Symphony Hall tonight with Arthur Fiedler on the podium. Following is the program:

El Capitan, March, Sousa; Music of the Spheres, Waltzes, Josef Strauss; Fantasia Overture to "La Belle Helene," Offenbach; Piano Concerto No. 1, in E-Flat (Soloist, Luise Vosgerchian); Suite from "The Nutcracker," Tchaikovsky; Selections from "My Fair Lady," Loewe-Hayman; "Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing," Bach-Mason; Hungarian Dance No. 5, Brahms.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 1 1956

Revolutionary War Lament Sung to Music Educator

Some of Boston's early history was revived last night when members of the National Catholic Music Educators Association heard the Welch Choral of New York sing a little known lament written during the Revolutionary War.

The piece is called "Lamentation Over Boston" and is the work of William Billings, an amateur composer, who took refuge in Boston with Paul Revere when British troops beseiged the city.

'SAT DOWN AND WEPT'

It was sung to members of the association during their ninth-annual convention at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

The lamentation begins with the words: "By the rivers of Watertown we sat down and wept . . . when we remembered thee O Boston . . . as for our friends, Lord, God of Heaven, preserve them, defend them, deliver and restore them unto us . . ."

A surprise was injected into the musical program when Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, suddenly appeared at the Opera House and led the 115-piece Philadelphia Archdiocesan High School Girl's Orchestra in a playing of Mendelssohn's Concerto in E Minor.

Fiedler accepted an invitation to lead the girls after hearing them rehearse in the afternoon. He declared it was "an extraordinary achievement to get high school girls to play so well."

A morning session of the meeting which ends on Thursday heard 100 teaching sisters of the Boston Archdiocese play violins after only six months of training under a new system devised by Dr. George Bernoff director of the string development program at Boston University.

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

APR 30 1956

At the Symphony

Munch Offers Program To Benefit Tour

By Jules Wolffers

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's 75th anniversary season was brought to a close last night at Symphony Hall with an extra concert, the proceeds of which will help defray expenses of the orchestra's European tour this summer.

Many regular Symphony subscribers took this opportunity to hear Charles Munch conduct Beethoven's Symphony No. 7 and Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 6, the "Pathétique." Quite a few non-subscribers helped swell the total to produce an audience just a few hundred short of capacity.

* * *

Mr. Munch and the players were in rare form. There was a lack of tension and a relaxed atmosphere, together with the friendly feeling that a farewell party always engenders. The audience was obviously delighted with the music, the conductor, and the orchestra. Present also was the feeling that each listener had made a contribution for a trip which will enable many European audiences to share in one of Boston's most prized possessions.

It was a tribute to Mr. Munch and the players that the music sounded out with a freshness almost amazing after a long and taxing season. No trace of fatigue could be noted. The concert goes down as one of the finest in the series of splendid programs that added so much luster to the orchestra's 75th year.

The Beethoven had all the freshness, spirit, and drive needed to assert the work' optimistic qualities. Mr. Munch' fast tempos are fast indeed, but few would gainsay that his enthusiasm adds qualities of urgency and excitement.

At times he strains his players to the point where fingers and arms can scarcely keep pace with the direction from the podium. But the missed notes are few and far between, and the players seem almost to exult in the hard test of their abilities.

* * *

Composers and conductors have always placed goals ahead of what previously seemed ultimate limits of performance. Mr. Munch's demands will certainly keep the players at the top of their form.

The conductor's interpretation of the Tchaikovsky somewhat minimizes the work's subtitle, but in its own way the reading takes its place among the great expressions of the work. Notable in the performance was the remarkable quality of the orchestra's tone, which sounded true in the softest sections and which gained rather than lost in timbre for the loudest parts.

Audience and players rose in spontaneous tribute to Mr. Munch at the close. By gesture and bearing he expressed far better than he could in words his extreme pleasure and gratitude for the prolonged evidence of the audience's appreciation.

Luise Vosgerchian will be piano soloist at the Pops on opening night Tuesday and again on Sunday night.

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 285,839

MAY 1 1956

Fiedler Leads Catholic Schools' Girl Orchestra

Boston Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler last night led a 150-piece all-girl symphony orchestra from five Catholic high schools in Philadelphia at Boston Opera House as part of the program of the ninth annual convention of the National Catholic Music Educators Association.

He took over the baton for Mendelssohn's "Violin Concerto in E Minor," thus shattering a tradition of long-standing in that he never before has done any conducting on the eve of the opening of a Pops concert series.

Fiedler explained that he had heard the orchestra in rehearsal yesterday afternoon, and was so impressed he just "couldn't resist" accepting an invitation to lead the orchestra through one of its numbers in last night's program.

Sharing the program was the Welch Chorale, made up of 45 singers from St. Philip Neri Church, New York, assisted by the Immaculate Singers of Immaculate High School, New York.

In Boston for the three-day convention which ends Thursday noon are some 3500 teaching nuns, students and choirmasters.

The Welch Chorale featured the little-known "Lamentation over Boston," written during the Revolutionary war by William Billings.

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 1 1956

Eire Group Plans Gift To Boston Symphony

A gift of $1,000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra will highlight the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston, to be held at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel May 5 at 6:30 p.m.

The gift is in appreciation of the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin next Aug 23 and 25. It will be given to Michael T. Kelleher, Orchestra trustee.

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the dinner at which John J. Hearne, Ambassador of the Republic of Ireland to the United States, and Edward R. Hanify, Boston attorney, are to speak.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 1 1956

Society: Middleton's Colonial Homes to Be Shown Public First Time

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

Nine historic houses, many of them dating back to the days of Indian raids in Essex County, will be open to the public for the first time on May 19 when Middleton observes Open House Day from 10 to 4:30 o'clock. The original town charter will be on exhibit, and various collections of early New England handcraft will also be on view for the town's visitors.

Charles Hadley Watkins of Boston and Middleton, who was honored with a special citation and medal by President Eisenhower for his part in the restoration of the Old North Church steeple, will be among the hosts holding open house that day. He and his talented wife (Lura Woodside) who is the author of several books ("Cambridge Glass," "Early New England Potters") have restored the fascinating old Capt Andrew Fuller house on King st. Mrs. Watkins is the president of the Middleton Historical Society which is sponsoring the open house.

Built more than 200 years ago by a young captain in the French and Indian wars, the Fuller house has exceptionally fine original pine panelling and an unusual double fireplace in the kitchen. The Deacon Edward Putnam house on Gregory st., now owned by Mr. and Mrs. R. Lionel Barrows, was built probably around 1704 and occupied by the Putnams for several generations. It has in the original kitchen a 9½-foot fireplace which is considered the largest in Essex County.

The Col Benjamin Peabody house on East st., overlooking the Ipswich River, was built in 1714 for Elisha Putnam by his father, Deacon Putnam, at the time of the young Putnam's marriage, and bought by Cornet Francis Peabody in 1724. The Peabody family continued to occupy it for more than 100 years and it was the home of Col Benjamin Peabody, famed for his Revolutionary War service, and his brother, the noted merchant and shipowner Joseph Peabody.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Howard are opening their attractive house on Boston st., built for Deacon John Flint early in the 18th century and occupied by Flint descendants for more than a century and a half. Among the buildings is part of the old mill that was used as an early schoolhouse.

The Bradstreet House on Maple st. will be opened by its present owners, Mr. and Mrs. Chester K. Masse. In this interesting 200-year-old house there will be a special exhibit of early painted tin and tole ware. The early saltbox homestead of Middleton's first selectman, the Wilkins house, will be opened by George Smith, and the Symonds homestead which has a most unusual fireplace with an oven on the second floor, will be opened by the Henry Sawyers.

Also open will be the Storrow house on Essex st., and the Murray house on Mill st., where there will be an exhibit of old bottle glass.

Helping Mrs. Watkins with the program will be Mrs. R. Lionel Barrows, Mrs. Howard T. Kenney Jr., Charles H. Watkins, Henry Sawyer, Roger F. Clapp and Albert C. Murray.

ALUMNAE WITHOUT A COLLEGE, the National Park College Association is busy with plans for a Boston house party and visits to the New England Peabody Home for Crippled Children, which it helps to support, this month. Starting as a junior college in 1898, National Park school in Forest Glen, Md. was taken over by the government during the war and became a ward for amputees at the Walter Reed Hospital. Massachusetts graduates, who have continued to meet each year, are gathering at the Peabody Home at 474 Brookline av. in Newton today at 2 o'clock.

Plans are being discussed at today's meeting for the national association's annual "house party" on May 17, 18 and 19 at the Sheraton Plaza, the first time the entire alumnae group has met in Boston. Also under discussion are the needs of the home, for which members of the Massachusetts chapter have supplied everything from teachers to pianos.

Mrs. William C. Cusack of Winchester heads the committee, working with Mrs. Charles C. Petersen of Marblehead as honorary chairman.

IN DANISH IT'S "AFTENSMAD": in English its a party, and members of the New England Hospital are planning the Danish 5 o'clock reception after the private opening of the art exhibition which will benefit the hospital tomorrow at 3 Joy st.

Co-chairmen of the Art Show, which will be open to the public from May 3-9, noon to 9 p. m., are Miss Ellen H. Barbour of Gloucester and Miss Florence S. Kimball of Cambridge. Other members of the committee are Mrs. Beatrice M. Bonnevie, Miss Laura Cox, George Demetrios, Miss Claire B. Fisk, Ken Gore, Dr. Miriam Katzeff, Miss Esther Kilton, Miss Marie D. MacIntrye, Miss Eleanor Raymond and Cleveland Thomas.

GRADUATES WILL SERVE as flower girls at Smith Night at the Pops, Tuesday, May 8, in Symphony Hall. Mary McMurtrie of Beacon st. is their chairman and the group includes Ronnie Pugh, who with Miss McMurtrie is on the faculty of Park School in Brookline.

Other members of Smith 1955 who will sell flowers at Smith Pops to help swell the scholarship fund are Sue Spaulding, a teacher at Happy Hollow School in [illegible] and Ha[illegible] Ed[illegible] Wh[illegible] Fra[illegible] Wr[illegible] Ma[illegible]

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 1 1956

Revolutionary War Lament Sung to Music Educator

Some of Boston's early history was revived last night when members of the National Catholic Music Educators Association heard the Welch Choral of New York sing a little known lament written during the Revolutionary War.

The piece is called "Lamentation Over Boston" and is the work of William Billings, an amateur composer, who took refuge in Boston with Paul Revere when British troops beseiged the city.

'SAT DOWN AND WEPT'

It was sung to members of the association during their ninth-annual convention at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

The lamentation begins with the words: "By the rivers of Watertown we sat down and wept . . . when we remembered thee O Boston . . . as for our friends, Lord, God of Heaven, preserve them, defend them, deliver and restore them unto us . . ."

A surprise was injected into the musical program when Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, suddenly appeared at the Opera House and led the 115-piece Philadelphia Archdiocesan High School Girl's Orchestra in a playing of Mendelssohn's Concerto in E Minor.

Fiedler accepted an invitation to lead the girls after hearing them rehearse in the afternoon. He declared it was "an extraordinary achievement to get high school girls to play so well."

A morning session of the meeting which ends on Thursday heard 100 teaching sisters of the Boston Archdiocese play violins after only six months of training under a new system devised by Dr. George Bernoff director of the string development program at Boston University.

Pops Program

The 71st season of the Boston Pops opens in Symphony Hall tonight with Arthur Fiedler on the podium. Following is the program: El Capitan, March, Sousa; Music of the Spheres, Waltzes, Josef Strauss; Fantasia Overture to "La Belle Helene," Offenbach; Piano Concerto No. 1, in E-Flat (Soloist, Luise Vosgerchian); Suite from "The Nutcracker," Tchaikovsky; Selections from "My Fair Lady," Loewe-Hayman; "Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing," Bach-Mason; Hungarian Dance No. 5, Brahms.

For Coming

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, W

Look down and cheer foot forward is steppin right direction! The sp
the upswing and it mean

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

APR 30 1956

At the Symphony

Munch Offers Program To Benefit Tour

By Jules Wolffers

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's 75th anniversary season was brought to a close last night at Symphony Hall with an extra concert, the proceeds of which will help defray expenses of the orchestra's European tour this summer.

Many regular Symphony subscribers took this opportunity to hear Charles Munch conduct Beethoven's Symphony No. 7 and Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 6, the "Pathétique." Quite a few non-subscribers helped swell the total to produce an audience just a few hundred short of capacity.

* * *

Mr. Munch and the players were in rare form. There was a lack of tension and a relaxed atmosphere, together with the friendly feeling that a farewell party always engenders. The audience was obviously delighted with the music, the conductor, and the orchestra. Present also was the feeling that each listener had made a contribution for a trip which will enable many European audiences to share in one of Boston's most prized possessions.

It was a tribute to Mr. Munch and the players that the music sounded out with a freshness almost amazing after a long and taxing season. No trace of fatigue could be noted. The concert goes down as one of the finest in the series of splendid programs that added so much luster to the orchestra's 75th year.

The Beethoven had all the freshness, spirit, and drive needed to assert the work's optimistic qualities. Mr. Munch's fast tempos are fast indeed, but few would gainsay that his enthusiasm adds qualities of urgency and excitement.

At times he strains his players to the point where fingers and arms can scarcely keep pace with the direction from the podium. But the missed notes are few and far between, and the players seem almost to exult in the hard test of their abilities.

* * *

Composers and conductors have always placed goals ahead of what previously seemed ultimate limits of performance. Mr. Munch's demands will certainly keep the players at the top of their form.

The conductor's interpretation of the Tchaikovsky somewhat minimizes the work's subtitle, but in its own way the reading takes its place among the great expressions of the work. Notable in the performance was the remarkable quality of the orchestra's tone, which sounded true in the softest sections and which gained rather than lost in timbre for the loudest parts.

Audience and players rose in spontaneous tribute to Mr. Munch at the close. By gesture and bearing he expressed far better than he could in words his extreme pleasure and gratitude for the prolonged evidence of the audience's appreciation.

Luise Vosgerchian will be piano soloist at the Pops on opening night Tuesday and again on Sunday night.

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 285,839

MAY 1 1956

Fiedler Leads Catholic Schools' Girl Orchestra

Boston Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler last night led a 150-piece all-girl symphony orchestra from five Catholic high schools in Philadelphia at Boston Opera House as part of the program of the ninth annual convention of the National Catholic Music Educators Association.

He took over the baton for Mendelssohn's "Violin Concerto in E Minor," thus shattering a tradition of long-standing in that he never before has done any conducting on the eve of the opening of a Pops concert series.

Fiedler explained that he had heard the orchestra in rehearsal yesterday afternoon, and was so impressed he just "couldn't resist" accepting an invitation to lead the orchestra through one of its numbers in last night's program.

Sharing the program was the Welch Chorale, made up of 45 singers from St. Philip Neri Church, New York, assisted by the Immaculate Singers of Immaculate High School, New York.

In Boston for the three-day convention which ends Thursday noon are some 3500 teaching nuns, students and choirmasters.

The Welch Chorale featured the little-known "Lamentation over Boston," written during the Revolutionary war by William Billings.

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 1 1956

Eire Group Plans Gift To Boston Symphony

A gift of $1,000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra will highlight the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston, to be held at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel May 5 at 6:30 p.m.

The gift is in appreciation of the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin next Aug 23 and 25. It will be given to Michael T. Kelleher, Orchestra trustee.

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the dinner at which John J. Hearne, Ambassador of the Republic of Ireland to the United States, and Edward R. Hanify, Boston attorney, are to speak.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 1 1956

Society: Middleton's Colonial Homes to Be Shown Public First Time

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

Nine historic houses, many of them dating back to the days of Indian raids in Essex County, will be open to the public for the first time on May 19 when Middleton observes Open House Day from 10 to 4:30 o'clock. The original town charter will be on exhibit, and various collections of early New England handcraft will also be on view for the town's visitors.

Charles Hadley Watkins of Boston and Middleton, who was honored with a special citation and medal by President Eisenhower for his part in the restoration of the Old North Church steeple, will be among the hosts holding open house that day. He and his talented wife (Lura Woodside) who is the author of several books ("Cambridge Glass," "Early New England Potters") have restored the fascinating old Capt Andrew Fuller house on King st. Mrs. Watkins is the president of the Middleton Historical Society which is sponsoring the open house.

Built more than 200 years ago by a young captain in the French and Indian wars, the Fuller house has exceptionally fine original pine panelling and an unusual double fireplace in the kitchen. The Deacon Edward Putnam house on Gregory st., now owned by Mr. and Mrs. R. Lionel Barrows, was built probably around 1704 and occupied by the Putnams for several generations. It has in the original kitchen a 9½-foot fireplace which is considered the largest in Essex County.

The Col Benjamin Peabody house on East st., overlooking the Ipswich River, was built in 1714 for Elisha Putnam by his father, Deacon Putnam, at the time of the young Putnam's marriage, and bought by Cornet Francis Peabody in 1724. The Peabody family continued to occupy it for more than 100 years and it was the home of Col Benjamin Peabody, famed for his Revolutionary War service, and his brother, the noted merchant and shipowner Joseph Peabody.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Howard are opening their attractive house on Boston st., built for Deacon John Flint early in the 18th century and occupied by Flint descendants for more than a century and a half. Among the buildings is part of the old mill that was used as an early schoolhouse.

The Bradstreet House on Maple st. will be opened by its present owners, Mr. and Mrs. Chester K. Masse. In this interesting 200-year-old house there will be a special exhibit of early painted tin and tole ware. The early saltbox homestead of Middleton's first selectman, the Wilkins house, will be opened by George Smith, and the Symonds homestead which has a most unusual fireplace with an oven on the second floor, will be opened by the Henry Sawyers.

Also open will be the Storrow house on Essex st., and the Murray house on Mill st., where there will be an exhibit of old bottle glass.

Helping Mrs. Watkins with the program will be Mrs. R. Lionel Barrows, Mrs. Howard T. Kenney Jr., Charles H. Watkins, Henry Sawyer, Roger F. Clapp and Albert C. Murray.

ALUMNAE WITHOUT A COLLEGE, the National Park College Association is busy with plans for a Boston house party and visits to the New England Peabody Home for Crippled Children, which it helps to support, this month. Starting as a junior college in 1898, National Park school in Forest Glen, Md. was taken over by the government during the war and became a ward for amputees at the Walter Reed Hospital. Massachusetts graduates, who have continued to meet each year, are gathering at the Peabody Home at 474 Brookline av. in Newton today at 2 o'clock.

Plans are being discussed at today's meeting for the national association's annual "house party" on May 17, 18 and 19 at the Sheraton Plaza, the first time the entire alumnae group has met in Boston. Also under discussion are the needs of the home, for which members of the Massachusetts chapter have supplied everything from teachers to pianos.

Mrs. William C. Cusack of Winchester heads the committee, working with Mrs. Charles C. Petersen of Marblehead as honorary chairman.

IN DANISH IT'S "AFTENSMAD": in English its a party, and members of the New England Hospital are planning the Danish 5 o'clock reception after the private opening of the art exhibition which will benefit the hospital tomorrow at 3 Joy st.

Co-chairmen of the Art Show, which will be open to the public from May 3-9, noon to 9 p. m., are Miss Ellen H. Barbour of Gloucester and Miss Florence S. Kimball of Cambridge. Other members of the committee are Mrs. Beatrice M. Bonnevie, Miss Laura Cox, George Demetrios, Miss Claire B. Fisk, Ken Gore, Dr. Miriam Katzeff, Miss Esther Kilton, Miss Marie D. MacIntrye, Miss Eleanor Raymond and Cleveland Thomas.

GRADUATES WILL SERVE as flower girls at Smith Night at the Pops, Tuesday, May 8, in Symphony Hall. Mrs. Mary McMurtrie of Beacon st. is their chairman and the group includes Ronnie Pugh, who with Miss McMurtrie is on the faculty of Park School.

Others who will be in the Pops ship f teache in W Anne and J Harva Educat Whitfi Franci Wrigh Mary

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 1 1956

Revolutionary War Lament Sung to Music Educator

Some of Boston's early history was revived last night when members of the National Catholic Music Educators Association heard the Welch Choral of New York sing a little known lament written during the Revolutionary War.

The piece is called "Lamentation Over Boston" and is the work of William Billings, an amateur composer, who took refuge in Boston with Paul Revere when British troops beseiged the city.

'SAT DOWN AND WEPT'

It was sung to members of the association during their ninth-annual convention at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

The lamentation begins with the words: "By the rivers of Watertown we sat down and wept . . . when we remembered thee O Boston . . . as for our friends, Lord, God of Heaven, preserve them, defend them, deliver and restore them unto us . . ."

A surprise was injected into the musical program when Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, suddenly appeared at the Opera House and led the 115-piece Philadelphia Archdiocesan High School Girl's Orchestra in a playing of Mendelssohn's Concerto in E Minor.

Fiedler accepted an invitation to lead the girls after hearing them rehearse in the afternoon. He declared it was "an extraordinary achievement to get high school girls to play so well."

A morning session of the meeting which ends on Thursday heard 100 teaching sisters of the Boston Archdiocese play violins after only six months of training under a new system devised by Dr. George Bernoff director of the string development program at Boston University.

Your Coming

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, W

Look down and cheer
foot forward is stepping
right direction! The sp
the uswing and it mean heart, the selfless feeling for feet up with so often among industry is surprising per-

Boston Pops Orchestra opens another season this evening at 8:30 in Symphony Hall. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the following program:

El Capitan, March ..... Sousa
Music of the Spheres, Waltzes ..... Josef Strauss
Fantasia on Greensleeves ..... Vaughan Williams
Overture to "La Belle Helene" ..... Offenbach
Piano Concerto No. 1, in E-Flat ..... Liszt
Soloist: Luise Vosgerchian
Suite from "The Nutcracker" ..... Tchaikovsky
Selection from "My Fair Lady" ..... Loewe-Hayman
Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing ..... Fain-Mason
Hungarian Dance No. 5 ..... Brahms

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

APR 30 1956

At the Symphony

Munch Offers Program To Benefit Tour

By Jules Wolffers

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's 75th anniversary season was brought to a close last night at Symphony Hall with an extra concert, the proceeds of which will help defray expenses of the orchestra's European tour this summer.

Many regular Symphony subscribers took this opportunity to hear Charles Munch conduct Beethoven's Symphony No. 7 and Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 6, the "Pathétique." Quite a few non-subscribers helped swell the total to produce an audience just a few hundred short of capacity.

* * *

Mr. Munch and the players were in rare form. There was a lack of tension and a relaxed atmosphere, together with the friendly feeling that a farewell party always engenders. The audience was obviously delighted with the music, the conductor, and the orchestra. Present also was the feeling that each listener had made a contribution for a trip which will enable many European audiences to share in one of Boston's most prized possessions.

It was a tribute to Mr. Munch and the players that the music sounded out with a freshness almost amazing after a long and taxing season. No trace of fatigue could be noted. The concert goes down as one of the finest in the series of splendid programs that added so much luster to the orchestra's 75th year.

The Beethoven had all the freshness, spirit, and drive needed to assert the work's optimistic qualities. Mr. Munch's fast tempos are fast indeed, but few would gainsay that his enthusiasm adds qualities of urgency and excitement.

At times he strains his players to the point where fingers and arms can scarcely keep pace with the direction from the podium. But the missed notes are few and far between, and the players seem almost to exult in the hard test of their abilities.

* * *

Composers and conductors have always placed goals ahead of what previously seemed ultimate limits of performance. Mr. Munch's demands will certainly keep the players at the top of their form.

The conductor's interpretation of the Tchaikovsky somewhat minimizes the work's subtitle, but in its own way the reading takes its place among the great expressions of the work. Notable in the performance was the remarkable quality of the orchestra's tone, which sounded true in the softest sections and which gained rather than lost in timbre for the loudest parts.

Audience and players rose in spontaneous tribute to Mr. Munch at the close. By gesture and bearing he expressed far better than he could in words his extreme pleasure and gratitude for the prolonged evidence of the audience's appreciation.

Luise Vosgerchian will be piano soloist at the Pops on opening night Tuesday and again on Sunday night.

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 285,839

MAY 1 1956

Fiedler Leads Catholic Schools' Girl Orchestra

Boston Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler last night led a 150-piece all-girl symphony orchestra from five Catholic high schools in Philadelphia at Boston Opera House as part of the program of the ninth annual convention of the National Catholic Music Educators Association.

He took over the baton for Mendelssohn's "Violin Concerto in E Minor," thus shattering a tradition of long-standing in that he never before has done any conducting on the eve of the opening of a Pops concert series.

Fiedler explained that he had heard the orchestra in rehearsal yesterday afternoon, and was so impressed he just "couldn't resist" accepting an invitation to lead the orchestra through one of its numbers in last night's program.

Sharing the program was the Welch Chorale, made up of 45 singers from St. Philip Neri Church, New York, assisted by the Immaculate Singers of Immaculate High School, New York.

In Boston for the three-day convention which ends Thursday noon are some 3500 teaching nuns, students and choirmasters.

The Welch Chorale featured the little-known "Lamentation over Boston," written during the Revolutionary war by William Billings.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 1 1956

re Group Plans Gift To Boston Symphony

A gift of $1,000 to the Boston mphony Orchestra will highat the 19th annual dinner of Eire Society of Boston, to held at the Sheraton Plaza tel May 5 at 6:30 p.m.

The gift is in appreciation of concerts to be given by the hestra in Cork and Dublin t Aug 23 and 25. It will be en to Michael T. Kelleher, chestra trustee.

More than 750 members and ir friends will attend the ner at which John J. Hearne, bassador of the Republic of land to the United States, and ward R. Hanify, Boston attor-, are to speak.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 1 1956

Society: Middleton's Colo[illegible] to Be Shown Pu[illegible]

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

Nine historic houses, many of them dating back to the days of Indian raids in Essex County, will be open to the public for the first time on May 19 when Middleton observes Open House Day from 10 to 4:30 o'clock. The original town charter will be on exhibit, and various collections of early New England handcraft will also be on view for the town's visitors.

Charles Hadley Watkins of Boston and Middleton, who was honored with a special citation and medal by President Eisenhower for his part in the restoration of the Old North Church steeple, will be among the hosts holding open house that day. He and his talented wife (Lura Woodside) who is the author of several books ("Cambridge Glass," "Early New England Potters") have restored the fascinating old Capt Andrew Fuller house on King st. Mrs. Watkins is the president of the Middleton Historical Society which is sponsoring the open house.

Built more than 200 years ago by a young captain in the French and Indian wars, the Fuller house has exceptionally fine original pine panelling and an unusual double fireplace in the kitchen. The Deacon Edward Putnam house on Gregory st., now owned by Mr. and Mrs. R. Lionel Barrows, was built probably around 1704 and occupied by the Putnams for several generations. It has in the original kitchen a 9½-foot fireplace which is considered the largest in Essex County.

The Col Benjamin Peabody house on East st., overlooking the Ipswich River, was built in 1714 for Elisha Putnam by his father, Deacon Putnam, at the time of the young Putnam's marriage, and bought by Cornet Francis Peabody in 1724. The Peabody family continued to occupy it for more than 100 years and it was the home of Col Benjamin Peabody, famed for his Revolutionary War service, and his brother, the noted merchant and shipowner Joseph Peabody.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Howard are opening their attractive house on Boston st., built for Deacon John Flint early in the 18th century and occupied by Flint descendants for more than a century and a half. Among the buildings is part of the old mill that was used as an early schoolhouse.

The Bradstreet House on Maple st. will be opened by its present owners, Mr. and Mrs. Chester K. Masse. In this interesting 200-year-old house there will be a special exhibit of early painted tin and tole ware. The early saltbox homestead of Middleton's first selectman, the Wilkins house, will be opened by George Smith, and the Symonds homestead which has a most unusual fireplace with an oven on the second floor, will be opened by the Henry Sawyers.

Also open will be the Storrow house on Essex st., and the Murray house on Mill st., where there will be an exhibit of old bottle glass.

Helping Mrs. Watkins with the program will be Mrs. R. Lionel Barrows, Mrs. Howard T. Kenney Jr., Charles H. Watkins, Henry Sawyer, Roger F. Clapp and Albert C. Murray.

ALUMNAE WITHOUT A COLLEGE, the National Park College Association is busy with plans for a Boston house party and visits to the New England Peabody Home for Crippled Children, which it helps to support, this month. Starting as a junior college in 1898, National Park school in Forest Glen, Md., was taken over by the government during the war and became a ward for amputees at the Walter Reed Hospital. Massachusetts graduates, who have continued to meet each year, are gathering at the Peabody Home at 474 Brookline av. in Newton today at 2 o'clock.

Plans are being discussed at today's meeting for the national association's annual "house party" on May 17, 18 and 19 at the Sheraton Plaza, the first time the entire alumnae group has met in Boston. Also under discussion are the needs of the home, for which members of the Massachusetts chapter have supplied everything from teachers to pianos.

Mrs. William C. Cusack of Winchester heads the committee, working with Mrs. Charles C. Petersen of Marblehead as honorary chairman.

IN DANISH IT'S "AFTENSMAD": in English its a party, and members of the New England Hospital are planning the Danish 5 o'clock reception after the private opening of the art exhibition which will benefit the hospital tomorrow at 3 Joy st.

Co-chairmen of the Art Show, which will be open to the public from May 3-9, noon to 9 p. m., are Miss Ellen H. Barbour of Gloucester and Miss Florence S. Kimball of Cambridge. Other members of the committee are Mrs. Beatrice M. Bonnevie, Miss Laura Cox, George Demetrios, Miss Claire B. Fisk, Ken Gore, Dr. Miriam Katzeff, Miss Esther Kilton, Miss Marie D. MacIntrye, Miss Eleanor Raymond and Cleveland Thomas.

GRADUATES WILL SERVE as flower girls at Smith Night at the Pops, Tuesday, May 8, in Symphony Hall. Mary McMurtrie of Beacon st. is their chairman and the group includes Ron-

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 1 1956

Revolutionary War Lament Sung to Music Educator

Some of Boston's early history was revived last night when members of the National Catholic Music Educators Association heard the Welch Choral of New York sing a little known lament written during the Revolutionary War.

The piece is called "Lamentation Over Boston" and is the work of William Billings, an amateur composer, who took refuge in Boston with Paul Revere when British troops beseiged the city.

'SAT DOWN AND WEPT'

It was sung to members of the association during their ninth-annual convention at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

The lamentation begins with the words: "By the rivers of Watertown we sat down and wept . . . when we remembered thee O Boston . . . as for our friends, Lord, God of Heaven, preserve them, defend them, deliver and restore them unto us . . ."

A surprise was injected into the musical program when Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, suddenly appeared at the Opera House and led the 115-piece Philadelphia Archdiocesan High School Girl's Orchestra in a playing of Mendelssohn's Concerto in E Minor.

Fiedler accepted an invitation to lead the girls after hearing them rehearse in the afternoon. He declared it was "an extraordinary achievement to get high school girls to play so well."

A morning session of the meeting which ends on Thursday heard 100 teaching sisters of the Boston Archdiocese play violins after only six months of training under a new system devised by Dr. George Bernoff director of the string development program at Boston University.

Tonight

Tonight in Symphony Hall Arthur Fiedler will inaugurate the 71st season of the Boston Pops Orchestra and simultaneously begin his 27th year as its conductor.

The Pops will continue nightly through this month.

Tonight's program follows:

Sousa
Sousa
Josef Strauss
Vaughan Williams
Offenbach
Liszt
Tchaikovsky
Loewe-Hayman
Fain-Mason
Brahms

TUESDAY, MAY 1, 1956

MISSES'
Cotton
Coeur, the selfless feeling for Seet up with so often among industry is surprising. Per-

For Coming

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, W
Look down and cheer
foot forward is stepping
right direction! The sp
the upswing and it mean

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 1 1956

Social Chatter

By Alison Arnold

AN OPEN MEETING of the Blue Star Memorial Highway Committee of the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts has appropriately been planned for May 8, VE Day, at 11 a. m. at the Waltham Field Station. The purpose of the meeting is to tell the story of the Blue Star Memorial Highway, its past history, present planting and plans for future beautification. This Highway, which is Route 1 in Massachusetts, has been dedicated to the memory of servicemen and women who have defended the United States in all wars and is being heavily planted with miles of flowering trees with the help of the State Highway Department and leading nurserymen. All are invited to attend the meeting and to bring a box lunch., Coffee will be served by the committee and a tour of Route 1 will follow luncheon. At 3 o'clock a ceremonial planting of a token tree will take place. Members of the committee in charge are Mrs. G. Kennard Wakefield, chairman; Miss Helen Moseley, Mrs. Walter Gaskill, Mrs. Edward W. Eames, Mrs. Carleton W. Bullard, Mrs. John C. Vosoff, C. Russell Mason, Homer K. Dodge, John V. McManmon, Mrs. Hollis Gray, Karl Amelia, Mrs. E. Carlisle Baker, Lyle L. Blundell, Laurence B. Fletcher, John R. Havis, Seth L. Kelsey, Philip Rusden, Spencer Miller, Jr., Mrs. Sargent Wellman, Mrs. Sherman L. Whipple, Jr., and Donald Wyman.

* * *

EN ROUTE TO LONON aboard the Queen Mary are Mr. and Mrs. J. Randolph Coolidge. Mrs. Coolidge, the former Peggy Stuart of Boston, has been named to compose the background music of David Niven's latest film, "The Silken Affair," which is being produced in England by Fred Feldkamp Productions. She'll be remembered in Boston for her orchestral premieres at the pops concerts in Symphony Hall and many contributions to the Vincent Club shows. She's also known as the founder and conductor of the only Junior League orchestra in the country, which she directed for seven years. It was less than two years ago that Boston heard her latest symphonic work, "Twilight City," played by Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops with Mrs. Coolidge at the piano. In a concert program last spring, Eleanor Steber of the Metropolitan Opera Company chose two of her songs, the first popular songs Miss Steber ever sang in public. Mr. Coolidge wrote the words for one of them. Before settling down to work in London, the Coolidges will visit Rome and Mallorca. They'll also stop in Paris to see Mrs. Coolidge's French publisher, who is about to bring out another of her songs, "Achete Une Etoile," with words by the noted French lyricist, Henri Contet. Mr. Coolidge, also a former Bostonian, has been retained by Fred Feldkamp Productions as an editorial executive. "The Silken Affair" is due for release by RKO in the fall.

* * *

FLOWER VENDORS at Smith Night at the Pops, Tuesday, May 8, in Symphony Hall, will be an attractive group of last year's Smith College graduating class. Mary McMurtie of Beacon street is the chairman and the group includes her classmate, Ronnie Pugh, who, with Miss McMurtie, is on the faculty of the Park School in Brookline. Other members of Smith, 1955, who will sell flowers at the Pops to help swell the scholarship fund, are Sue Spalding, a teacher in Wayland's Happy Hollow School; Joan Carey and Anne Bryant, who have chosen careers in the business world; Katharine Becker and Joyce Fulton, students at Harvard Graduate School of Education; Sally Gooch, Ann Whitfield, Mary Flook, Marian Francis, Jill Gillette, Deedee Wright, Katherine Karnosh, Mary LeFauver and Jan Gallo.

MRS. CAREY

* * *

17TH CENTURY HOUSES fortified in 1676 against the Indian raids can still be seen in Middleton. Nine of the town's oldest houses will be opened for the first time Saturday, May 19, under the auspices of the Middleton Historical Society. General chairman for the Open House Day is Mrs. Charles Hadley Watkins, president of the society and author of "Cambridge Glass" and "Early New England Potters and Their Wares." The fascinating old Capt. Andrew Fuller house on King Street, now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Watkins, will be among the houses opened. The Deacon Edward Putnam house on Gregory Street, now owned by Mr. and Mrs. R. Lionel Barrows, was built at the turn of the 18th century and has been occupied by the Putnams for several generations. It has in the original kitchen a 9½-foot fireplace. The Col. Benjamin Peabody house on East Street was built in 1714 for Elisha Putnam by his father, Deacon Edward Putnam, at the time of young Putnam's marriage, and bought by Cornet Francis Peabody in 1724. The Peabody family continued to occupy it for more than a hundred years and it was the home of Col. Benjamin Peabody, famous for his Revolutionary War service, and his brother, the renowned merchant and ship owner, Joseph Peabody. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Woodward will open their attractive old house on Boston Street. Among the buildings still standing is part of the old mill that was used first as a schoolhouse.

* * *

ITS PRESENT OWNERS, Mr. and Mrs. Chester K. Masse, will open the Bradstreet house on Maple Street. In this interesting 200-year-old house there'll be a special exhibit of early painted tin and tole ware. The early salt-box homestead of Middleton's first selectman, the Wilkins house, will be opened by George Smith, and the Symonds homestead, which has a most unusual fireplace with an oven on the second floor, will be opened by the Henry Sawyers. In the old Symonds family cemetery at the left of the entrance driveway, was buried John Willard, hung in 1692 for witchcraft. Also open will be the Storrow house on Essex Street, and the Murray house on Mill Street, where there'll be an exhibit of very old bottle glass. Helping Mrs. Watkins with the program will be Mrs. R. Lionel Barrows, Mrs. Howard T. Kenney, Jr., Charles H. Watkins, Henry Sawyer, Roger F. Clapp, Albert C. Murray and Gordon Sherman. Maps of the houses open will be available at the houses on May 19, and the hours will be from 10 to 4:30 o'clock.

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 1 1956

Notes of Irish Interest

Ireland's Envoy Guest at Eire Society Dinner

By BERNARDINE TRUDEN

Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, John J. Hearne, will be the guest of honor at the Eire Society's annual dinner Saturday evening at the Sheraton Plaza. An added feature on the dinner program will be the presentation by Edward B. Hanify of "Our Irish Heritage," which created such a sensation at the recent Clover Club dinner.

TRUDEN

The Eire Society's gold medal will be awarded to Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., and on behalf of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Michael T. Kelleher will receive a check for $1000 as a contribuion toward the expenses of the orchestra's visit to Ireland in August.

Mrs. Thomas O'Day of Mattapan is chairman of reservations for the dinner.

* * *

Fans of the Irish Festival Singers will be pleased to know that they have issued a second record album, which includes a group of patriotic ballads, songs by Hamilton Harty, C. V. Stanford and Thomas Moore, and harp solos by Sighle Larchet.

Another treat for lovers of Irish music is an album called "My Ireland," traditional folk music of the Emerald Isle recorded by David Curry and his orchestra.

David Curry is a native of Belfast who, by his own admission, resembles a leprechaun, except that he makes music instead of shoes. He eats, sleeps and lives music, but only Irish music. Just once in his life he has set foot outside of Ireland and that, he recalls, was under protest. At the age of 9, he was taking fiddle lessons from his father, at 13 he was playing viola with the Belfast Philharmonic Society Orchestra and at 15 he was leading his own band. Along with the strings, he mastered the brass and woodwinds.

He went through the era of silent movies providing accompaniment from the pit below, and on into the early days of radio. Curry and his Irish music created so much attention from both Irish and English crystal-set owners that the B. B. C. began beaming his entertainment on the networks to all of Europe. To this day the Curry musicians average four B. B. C. broadcasts a week, all emanating from Belfast.

Selections in the album include St. Patrick's Day, King of the Fairies, Snow on the Mountains, The Fourth Gate and other tunes.

The Galway Ladies' Benevolent Association will hold its annual May party and dance Saturday evening in Hibernian Hall, Roxbury. Chairman Mary Manning is being assisted in arrangements by Maria Pierce as secretary, Ann Tracy treasurer, and Nora Ferrick tary, Ann Tracy, don, Rose Pierce, and Ann Manning.

MANNING

* * *

The Massachusetts Friends of the Irish Republican Prisoners will meet at Rose Croix Hall, Roxbury, tomorrow evening at 8:30. New officers are: Walter O'Regan, president; Gerald Kilcommins, vice president; Mrs. Frank Sullivan, secretary; Francis McCabe, treasurer, and Mary Ann Kearney, recording secretary.

* * *

James A. Farley, former Postmaster General of the United States, will be awarded the gold medal of the American Irish Historical Society at the society's annual dinner at the Hotel Biltmore, New York, Saturday. John F. Brosnan, regent of the University of the State of New York, will be the principal speaker.

The society, which is devoted to historical research on the Irish chapter in American history, was founded in Boston in 1897 by a group of public-spirited citizens of Irish lineage which included Theodore Roosevelt, sculptor Augustus St. Gaudens, author Thomas Hamilton Murray, Dr. Thomas Addis Emmet and James Jeffrey Roche, editor of the Boston Pilot.

* * *

There will be a meeting of the Boston Chapter, American League for an Undivided Ireland, Monday evening at Rose Croix Hall, Roxbury.

* * *

The Irish-American Associates of Middlesex County will hold its regular monthly meeting at Odd Fellows Hall, Central sq., Cambridge, on Friday evening at 8. Very Rev. Samuel J. Chameal, C.P.S., director of the Sacred Heart Retreat House in Waltham, will be the guest speaker.

"Notes of Irish Interest" appears in the evening editions of the Globe every Tuesday. Notices of meetings and social events should reach the Globe office by the preceding Saturday.

DANIEL J. O'BRIEN

Daniel J. O'Brien, Sunday editor of the Globe, heads the list of officers of the Eire Society for next year as president. Assisting him will be Henry Weldon of Milton as first vice president and Elizabeth MacMahon of Everett as second vice president. Other officers will be Eileen A. Whelan, financial secretary; Mary E. Sullivan, recording secretary; M. Francis Fox, corresponding secretary, and Thomas O'Day, treasurer.

The new board of directors will include Florence J. Donoghue, Marion L. Gaffney, Mrs. Henry Comparts, John F. Hourihane, Bernardine Truden, Albert West, Mrs. Fred Williams and past presidents Joseph Gannon, Paul Tierney, Lenahan O'Connell and Florence Garrity.

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,915

MAY 2 1956

Lynn Student Directs Pops Plans

Arthur T. Prentiss, III, of 62 Archer Street, a member of the Junior Class at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and President of the Baton Society, is directing arrangements for "M. I. T. Night," Monday, May 7, at the Boston Pops.

The Baton Society has charge of bringing all musical programs to the M. I. T. campus.

Recently the Boston Symphony Orchestra held a regular scheduled performance in the Kresge Auditorium, sponsored by this society. An "All Tech" sing, which included vocal groups from all local colleges, was also presented by them recently.

Patriot-Ledger (Sample new J)
QUINCY, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 39,259

MAY 2 1956

Realtors To Attend Pops Night May 20

Realtors will enjoy a night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, May 20, it was announced by Samuel P. Bachman, Lynn, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association.

The organization has reserved one-half the floor of Symphony Hall. This is the second year that Realtors' Pops Night has been featured.

The Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors will participate according to John W. Lowrance, president. Dorothy L. Osborn will serve as chairman of a special committee in charge of ticket reservations for local Realtors.

Also serving on the committee are William H. Blinn, Quincy; Paul T. Condon, Hingham; Charles R. Furlong, South Braintree; F. Lester Morrill, Wollaston and Herbert W. Raymond, South Weymouth. Realtor Monte Nelson of Lynn will be guest piano soloist at Pops that night.

L'Etoile
LOWELL, Mass.
Bi-Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4,783

MAY 1 1956

- Dans le monde d'hier -

WASHINGTON, 28 —— La Chambre a approuvé vendredi un programme-record de construction de voirie au montant de $51,860,000,000 avec hausse d'impôts sur les usagers des routes pour aider à en défrayer le coût. Le vote a été de 388 à 19 et les chances du projet de loi seraient bonnes au Sénat. Le gouvernement fédéral devra verser $37,610,000,000 pour les routes en treize ans. Les Etats bâtiraient les chemins et en paieraient $14,514,000,000.

BOSTON, 28 —— L'Orchestre Symphonique de Boston, qui a déjà inscrit un concert derrière le rideau de fer, entrerait en Russie cet été pour une courte tournée. La secrétairerie d'Etat a invité l'orchestre vendredi à remplacer celui de Philadelphie qui a annulé sa tournée proposé en Russie.

BROCKTON, 28 —— Rocky Marciano a annoncé vendredi à New York qu'il se retirait de l'arène du pugilat comme champion poids lourd non défait pour se donner à sa famille. Il rentrera dans sa famille jeudi après avoir fait de la boxe depuis 1947. Son frère, Peter Marchegiano, 15 ans, dit qu'il restera champion de sa famille et de ses amis de Brockton. Son épouse l'a prié de se retirer de l'arène.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 1 1956

Social Chatter

By Alison Arnold

AN OPEN MEETING of the Blue Star Memorial Highway Committee of the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts has appropriately been planned for May 8, VE Day, at 11 a. m. at the Waltham Field Station. The purpose of the meeting is to tell the story of the Blue Star Memorial Highway, its past history, present planting and plans for future beautification. This Highway, which is Route 1 in Massachusetts, has been dedicated to the memory of servicemen and women who have defended the United States in all wars and is being heavily planted with miles of flowering trees with the help of the State Highway Department and leading nurserymen. All are invited to attend the meeting and to bring a box lunch.. Coffee will be served by the committee and a tour of Route 1 will follow luncheon. At 3 o'clock a ceremonial planting of a token tree will take place. Members of the committee in charge are Mrs. G. Kennard Wakefield, chairman; Miss Helen Moseley, Mrs. Walter Gaskill, Mrs. Edward W. Eames, Mrs. Carleton W. Bullard, Mrs. John C. Vosoff, C. Russell Mason, Homer K. Dodge, John V. McManmon, Mrs. Hollis Gray, Karl Amelia, Mrs. E. Carlisle Baker, Lyle L. Blundell, Laurence B. Fletcher, John R. Havis, Seth L. Kelsey, Philip Rusden, Spencer Miller, Jr., Mrs. Sargent Wellman, Mrs. Sherman L. Whipple, Jr., and Donald Wyman.

* * *

EN ROUTE TO LONON aboard the Queen Mary are Mr. and Mrs. J. Randolph Coolidge. Mrs. Coolidge, the former Peggy Stuart of Boston, has been named to compose the background music of David Niven's latest film, "The Silken Affair," which is being produced in England by Fred Feldkamp Productions. She'll be remembered in Boston for her orchestral premieres at the pops concerts in Symphony Hall and many contributions to the Vincent Club shows. She's also known as the founder and conductor of the only Junior League orchestra in the country, which she directed for seven years. It was less than two years ago that Boston heard her latest symphonic work, "Twilight City," played by Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops with Mrs. Coolidge at the piano. In a concert program last spring, Eleanor Steber of the Metropolitan Opera Company chose two of her songs, the first popular songs Miss Steber ever sang in public. Mr. Coolidge wrote the words for one of them. Before settling down to work in London, the Coolidges will visit Rome and Mallorca. They'll also stop in Paris to see Mrs. Coolidge's French publisher, who is about to bring out another of her songs, "Achete Une Etoile," with words by the noted French lyricist, Henri Contet. Mr. Coolidge, also a former Bostonian, has been retained by Fred Feldkamp Productions as an editorial executive. "The Silken Affair" is due for release by RKO in the fall.

* * *

FLOWER VENDORS at Smith Night at the Pops, Tuesday, May 8, in Symphony Hall, will be an attractive group of last year's Smith College graduating class. Mary McMurtie of Beacon street is the chairman and the group includes her classmate, Ronnie Pugh, who, with Miss McMurtie, is on the faculty of the Park School in Brookline. Other members of Smith, 1955, who will sell flowers at the Pops to help swell the scholarship fund, are Sue Spalding, a teacher in Wayland's Happy Hollow School; Joan Carey and Anne Bryant, who have chosen careers in the business world; Katharine Becker and Joyce Fulton, students at Harvard Graduate School of Education; Sally Gooch, Ann Whitfield, Mary Flook, Marian Francis, Jill Gillette, Deedee Wright, Katherine Karnosh, Mary LeFauver and Jan Gallo.

MRS. CAREY

* * *

17TH CENTURY HOUSES fortified in 1676 against the Indian raids can still be seen in Middleton. Nine of the town's oldest houses will be opened for the first time Saturday, May 19, under the auspices of the Middleton Historical Society. General chairman for the Open House Day is Mrs. Charles Hadley Watkins, president of the society and author of "Cambridge Glass" and "Early New England Potters and Their Wares." The fascinating old Capt. Andrew Fuller house on King Street, now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Watkins, will be among the houses opened. The Deacon Edward Putnam house on Gregory Street, now owned by Mr. and Mrs. R. Lionel Barrows, was built at the turn of the 18th century and has been occupied by the Putnams for several generations. It has in the original kitchen a 9½-foot fireplace. The Col. Benjamin Peabody house on East Street was built in 1714 for Elisha Putnam by his father, Deacon Edward Putnam, at the time of young Putnam's marriage, and bought by Cornet Francis Peabody in 1724. The Peabody family continued to occupy it for more than a hundred years and it was the home of Col. Benjamin Peabody, famous for his Revolutionary War service, and his brother, the renowned merchant and ship owner, Joseph Peabody. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Woodward will open their attractive old house on Boston Street. Among the buildings still standing is part of the old mill that was used first as a schoolhouse.

* * *

ITS PRESENT OWNERS, Mr. and Mrs. Chester K. Masse, will open the Bradstreet house on Maple Street. In this interesting 200-year-old house there'll be a special exhibit of early painted tin and tole ware. The early salt-box homestead of Middleton's first selectman, the Wilkins house, will be opened by George Smith, and the Symonds homestead, which has a most unusual fireplace with an oven on the second floor, will be opened by the Henry Sawyers. In the old Symonds family cemetery at the left of the entrance driveway, was buried John Willard, hung in 1692 for witchcraft. Also open will be the Storrow house on Essex Street, and the Murray house on Mill Street, where there'll be an exhibit of very old bottle glass. Helping Mrs. Watkins with the program will be Mrs. R. Lionel Barrows, Mrs. Howard T. Kenney, Jr., Charles H. Watkins, Henry Sawyer, Roger F. Clapp, Albert C. Murray and Gordon Sherman. Maps of the houses open will be available at the houses on May 19, and the hours will be from 10 to 4:30 o'clock.

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 1 1956

Notes of Irish Interest

Ireland's Envoy Guest at Eire Society Dinner

By BERNARDINE TRUDEN

Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, John J. Hearne, will be the guest of honor at the Eire Society's annual dinner Saturday evening at the Sheraton Plaza. An added feature on the dinner program will be the presentation by Edward B. Hanify of "Our Irish Heritage," which created such a sensation at the recent Clover Club dinner.

TRUDEN

The Eire Society's gold medal will be awarded to Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., and on behalf of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Michael T. Kelleher will receive a check for $1000 as a contributon toward the expenses of the orchestra's visit to Ireland in August.

Mrs. Thomas O'Day of Mattapan is chairman of reservations for the dinner.

* * *

Fans of the Irish Festival Singers will be pleased to know that they have issued a second record album, which includes a group of patriotic ballads, songs by Hamilton Harty, C. V. Stanford and Thomas Moore, and harp solos by Sighle Larchet.

Another treat for lovers of Irish music is an album called "My Ireland," traditional folk music of the Emerald Isle recorded by David Curry and his orchestra.

David Curry is a native of Belfast who, by his own admission, resembles a leprechaun, except that he makes music instead of shoes. He eats, sleeps and lives music, but only Irish music. Just once in his life he has set foot outside of Ireland and that, he recalls, was under protest. At the age of 9, he was taking fiddle lessons from his father, at 13 he was playing viola with the Belfast Philharmonic Society Orchestra and at 15 he was leading his own band. Along with the strings, he mastered the brass and woodwinds.

He went through the era of silent movies providing accompaniment from the pit below, and on into the early days of radio. Curry and his Irish music created so much attention from both Irish and English crystal-set owners that the B. B. C. began beaming his entertainment on the networks to all of Europe. To this day the Curry musicians average four B. B. C. broadcasts a week, all emanating from Belfast.

Selections in the album include St. Patrick's Day, King of the Fairies, Snow on the Mountains, The Fourth Gate and other tunes.

The Galway Ladies' Benevolent Association will hold its annual May party and dance Saturday evening in Hibernian Hall, Roxbury. Chairman Mary Manning is being assisted in arrangements by Maria Pierce as secretary, Ann Tracy treasurer, and tary, Ann Tracy, don, Rose Pierce, Nora Ferrick and Ann Manning.

MANNING

* * *

The Massachusetts Friends of the Irish Republican Prisoners will meet at Rose Croix Hall, Roxbury, tomorrow evening at 8:30. New officers are: Walter O'Regan, president; Gerald Kilcommins, vice president; Mrs. Frank Sullivan, secretary; Francis McCabe, treasurer, and Mary Ann Kearney, recording secretary.

* * *

James A. Farley, former Postmaster General of the United States, will be awarded the gold medal of the American Irish Historical Society at the society's annual dinner at the Hotel Biltmore, New York, Saturday. John F Brosnan, regent of the University of the State of New York, will be the principal speaker.

The society, which is devoted to historical research on the Irish chapter in American history, was founded in Boston in 1897 by a group of public-spirited citizens of Irish lineage which included Theodore Roosevelt, sculptor Augustus St. Gaudens, author Thomas Hamilton Murray, Dr. Thomas Addis Emmet and James Jeffrey Roche, editor of the Boston Pilot.

* * *

There will be a meeting of the Boston Chapter, American League for an Undivided Ireland, Monday evening at Rose Croix Hall, Roxbury.

* * *

The Irish-American Associates of Middlesex County will hold its regular monthly meeting at Odd Fellows Hall, Central sq., Cambridge, on Friday evening at 8. Very Rev. Samuel Chameal, C.S.S., director of the Sacred Heart Retreat House in Waltham, will be the guest speaker.

"Notes of Irish Interest" appears in the evening editions of the Globe every Tuesday. Notices of meetings and social events should reach the Globe office by the preceding Saturday.

DANIEL J. O'BRIEN

Daniel J. O'Brien, Sunday editor of the Globe, heads the list of officers of the Eire Society for next year as president. Assisting him will be Henry Weldon of Milton as first vice president and Elizabeth MacMahon of Everett as second vice president. Other officers will be Eileen A. Whelan, financial secretary; Mary E. Sullivan, recording secretary; M. Francis Fox, corresponding secretary, and Thomas O'Day, treasurer.

The new board of directors will include Florence J. Donoghue, Marion L. Gaffney, Mrs. Henry Gomperts, John F. Hourihane, Bernardine Truden, Albert West, Mrs. Fred Williams and past presidents Joseph Gannon, Paul Tierney, Lenahan O'Connell and Florence Garrity.

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,915

MAY 2 1956

Patriot-Ledger (e)
QUINCY, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 39,259

MAY 2 1956

Realtors To Attend Pops Night May 20

Realtors will enjoy a night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, May 20, it was announced by Samuel P. Bachman, Lynn, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association.

The organization has reserved one-half the floor of Symphony Hall. This is the second year that Realtors' Pops Night has been featured.

The Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors will participate according to John W. Lowrance, president. Dorothy L. Osborn will serve as chairman of a special committee in charge of ticket reservations for local Realtors.

Also serving on the committee are William H. Blinn, Quincy; Paul T. Condon, Hingham; Charles R. Furlong, South Braintree; F. Lester Morrill, Wollaston and Herbert W. Raymond, South Weymouth. Realtor Monte Nelson of Lynn will be guest piano soloist at Pops that night.

L'Etoile
LOWELL, Mass.
Bi-Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4,783

MAY 1 1956

Lynn Student Directs Pops Plans

Arthur T. Prentiss, III, of 62 Archer Street, a member of the Junior Class at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and President of the Baton Society, is directing arrangements for "M. I. T. Night," Monday, May 7, at the Boston Pops.

The Baton Society has charge of bringing all musical programs to the M. I. T. campus.

Recently the Boston Symphony Orchestra held a regular scheduled performance in the Kresge Auditorium, sponsored by this society. An "All Tech sing, which included vocal groups from all local colleges, was also presented by them recently.

- Dans le monde d'hier -

WASHINGTON, 28 —— La Chambre a approuvé vendredi un programme-record de construction de voirie au montant de $51,860,000,000 avec hausse d'impôts sur les usagers des routes pour aider à en défrayer le coût. Le vote a été de 388 à 19 et les chances du projet de loi seraient bonnes au Sénat. Le gouvernement fédéral devra verser $37,610,000,000 pour les routes en treize ans. Les Etats bâtiraient les chemins et en paieraient $14,514,000,000.

BOSTON, 28 —— L'Orchestre Symphonique de Boston, qui a déjà inscrit un concert derrière le rideau de fer, entrerait en Russie cet été pour une courte tournée. La secrétairerie d'Etat a invité l'orchestre vendredi à remplacer celui de Philadelphie qui a annulé sa tournée proposé en Russie.

BROCKTON, 28 —— Rocky Marciano a annoncé vendredi à New York qu'il se retirait de l'arène du pugilat comme champion poids lourd non défait pour se donner à sa famille. Il rentrera dans sa famille jeudi après avoir fait de la boxe depuis 1947. Son frère, Peter Marchegiano, 15 ans, dit qu'il restera champion de sa famille et de ses amis de Brockton. Son épouse l'a prié de se retirer de l'arène.

TIGHT BINDING

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 1 1956

Greater Boston Irish News

Traveler Readers Aid Kerry Inval

Mary Broderick Seeks Shrine Trip; Ambassador to Speak at Eire Society

by MARY TIERNEY

There is no greater reward than the knowledge that you have helped someone less fortunate.

These simple, almost trite words have probably been said before by someone far more eloquent, or written with another set of words.

But the meaning is the same.

Several weeks ago, a plea was made in this column to send birthday cards to a 33-year-old Irish girl who has been confined to a wheel chair since the age of 15.

MAIL POURS IN FROM ALL U.S.

Since then, Mary Broderick of County Kerry has been deluged with mail from all parts of the [illegible] from as far south as Florida and as far no[illegible] Maine.

[illegible] readers have responded generously and opened their hearts to the little Irish girl, whose world is limited to her wheel chair and her Irish cottage in Kerry.

Mary Broderick has received her cards and letters with renewed enthusiasm and zest. She is particularly impressed with the fact that most people who write to her take time from a busy day to do so.

Her appreciation, humbleness, goodness and sense of humor are unparalleled.

DREAMS OF TRIP TO SHRINE OF LOURDES

Now, her only dream and wish for the future is a trip to the shrine of Our Lady of Lourdes in France, where so many maimed and crippled have been cured.

However, in her present state and financial condition, Mary feels this is almost impossible.

Unknown to her, Mary's fondest Boston pen pal and beloved "leprechaun", Bobby Jones of Mayor Hynes office is slowly, but surely working hard to make her dream come true.

Inspired by her latest letter, Jones has set out to extract a dollar from his closest friends and compatriates around the city.

Since last month, Mary's circle of pen pals has grown wider and wider in the Boston area. It is to them that we appeal this time for their aid in sending Mary Broderick to Lourdes.

DIRECT FLIGHTS AID INVALIDS

Because of the tremendous amount of invalids and incurables who journey to Lourdes every year from Ireland, special flights have been inaugurated by Aer Lingus, the national Irish Air Lines.

In this way, a direct flight from Dublin to Lourdes facilitates time and energy in transporting the sick.

If you would like to see Mary Broderick on one of these flights this summer, join her American friends by simply slipping a dollar into an envelope and sending it along to Bobby Jones.

You may send it to him at Mayor Hynes office, City Hall, School St., Boston, or if you prefer, directly to Miss Mary Broderick, Gortconacloona, Ballyconeford, County Kerry, Ireland.

It certainly would be a dollar well spent.

MISS URSULA SWEENEY, physiotherapist of the Central Remedial Clinic in Ireland will speak to the Clinic's Boston Friends, Thursday evening at 8 p.m. at the Hotel Vendome.

Miss Sweeney is in Boston to visit the city's polio clinics and rehabilitation centers.

Miss Joseph F. O'Connell will preside, assisted by president Mrs. George Puddister.

IRELAND'S AMBASSADOR to the U. S., John J. Hearne, will speak at the 18th annual Eire Society of Boston dinner, to be held Saturday evening at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, former president of Fordham University will receive the Society's Gold Medal in "recognition of his outstanding contribution as a true educator of men and priest of God."

$1,000 GIFT TO SYMPHONY

A well known eductaor, he holds honorary degrees from Manhattan College, Holy Cross, Boston College, Columbia University, Bowdoin College, New York Univeristy, Rutgers University, Lafayette and Hobart Colleges.

Added feature of this year's dinner will be the presentation of a gift of $1000 from the Society to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation for the concerts the Orchestra will give in Cork and Dublin, Aug. 23 and 25.

Michael T. Kelleher, orchestra trustee, will make the presentation.

Society president Joseph E. Gannon will serve as toastmaster.

Last year's medal winner, Hollywood director John Ford, is presently at work in his beloved Ireland shooting "Three Leaves of a Shamrock."

The film consists of three short stories with their locale in Galway, Clare and Limerick. The cast is composed mainly of Irish actors and actresses, [illegible] from the Abbey Theater.

TON NEWSMAN Daniel O'Brien will be nominated as president of the Eire Society of Boston for the coming year, at the annual meeting tonight at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

Other officers to be nominated will include: Henry Weldon, 1st vice-president; Elizabeth M. MacMahon, 2nd vice - president; Thomas F. O'Day, treasurer.

Also, Eileen A. Whelan, financial secretary; Mary Elizabeth Sullivan, recording secretary; and M. Frances Fox, corresponding secretary.

Directors to be nominated include: Florence J. Donoghue, Marion L. Gaffney, Mrs. Henry Gomperts, John F. Hourihan, Bernardine Truden, Albert E. West and Mrs. Fred Williams.

Past presidents Joseph Gannon, Paul E. Tierney, Lenahan O'Connell and Miss Florence M. Garrity will also retain their positions as members of the board of directors.

PRESIDENT JOHN DEVLIN of West Roxbury will preside at the monthly meeting of the Boston Chapter of the American League of an Undivided Ireland, to be held Monday evening at Rose Croix Hall, Roxbury.

THE YOUNG IRELAND Hurling Club will hold its installation of officers Sunday evening at Circle Hall in Somerville.

Billy Howe will be installed as president for the tenth successive year.

Other officers to be installed include Finbarr Callahan, vice-president; Barry McCarthy, secretary; Walter Norris, treasurer; Michael Dillon, captain and Coleman Hickey, vice-captain.

THE AMERICAN FRIENDS of the Irish Republican Prisoners will hold a meeting tomorrow evening at Rose Croix Hall in Roxbury.

President Michael Cummings will outline plans for the coming year.

VERY REV. SAMUEL CHAMEAL of the Sacred Heart Retreat House in Waltham will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Irish American Associates Friday evening at Odd Fellows Hall in Cambridge.

Father Chameal will show color slides of the new shrine of the Holy Espousals. The new shrine will be officially dedicated by Archbishop Cushing J[illegible] at the Sacred Heart R[illegible] House. Is is believed to [illegible] only one of its kind in th[illegible]

President Michael Upto[illegible] all members to be presen[illegible]

THE GALWAY L[illegible] Benevolent Association w[illegible] its annual May Party Sa[illegible] evening at Hibernian Hall [illegible] bury.

Mrs. Mary Manning wil[illegible] as chairman, assisted by [illegible] presidents, Mrs. Celia Fin[illegible] and Mrs. Mary Concannon[illegible]

(Mary Tierney's Irish co[illegible] is published every Tuesda[illegible] The Boston Traveler.)

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 1 1956

TV SHOWCASE

Aging Sam Dodsworth Seems Spry as Ever

By ELIZABETH WATTS

Twenty-seven years can't dim or dent a classic. Sinclair Lewis wrote "Dodsworth" in 1929, but last night's presentation of it on Producers' Showcase was as fresh and undated as if the Nobel prize-winner from Sauk Center had the age of automation in mind.

★ ★ ★

To be sure, Sidney Howard's dramatization and David Shaw's adaptation for TV deserve a large measure of credit, too, but the real meat of last night's banquet was served up by Lewis' novel about the retired American businessman from a small Midwestern town.

Fredric March as Sam Dodsworth was flawless for our money. He never broad-beamed Sam Dodsworth into a caricature. Instead he let him be the simple, good-thinking husband of a wife who wanted to be young too late with all the genuine pathos and none of the schmaltz.

Claire Trevor scored almost as highly as Fran Dodsworth, but she seemed to miss some of the nuances that would have made it a little easier to understand why the devoted Midwestern wife of 20 years became so completely the Continental gadabout. One of her best scenes, where she's just been abandoned by her titled intended and is calling faithful Sam, was so well done, though, that most women watchers must have felt they'd been on a crying jag themselves.

Geraldine Fitzgerald, as the understanding expatriate who helps Sam Dodsworth begin to look forward to tomorrow again, was as convincing as she was pretty, and that's saying a good deal. Here again, low-keyed playing brought reality right into the living room regardless of "Dodsworth's" vintage years.

These live 90 minutes from Hollywood flashed by like quicksilver. And there was a strong flavor of real Broadway to the whole production.

★ ★ ★

Channel 2 serenaded its first birthday last night with a highly successful concert on TV and F.M. Richard Burgin of the Boston Symphony directed the New England Conservatory orchestra in a program that included Tschaikovsky, Prokofieff and Chausson.

The cameras panned over the new Kresge auditorium at M. I. T. to show glimpses of the audience during intermission and there were good close-ups of the young and very earnest orchestra members.

Ralph Lowell paid tribute to Channel 2's birthday during the intermission, and the M. I. T. grounds must have echoed with long loud applause when the evening was over.

When the Boston Symphony Orchestra played their concert at the auditorium last October the cameras had to be concealed. This time they were free to dolly in on any and all parts of the proceedings.

Last night's serenade was a well deserved "Happy Birthday" all around.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 2 1956

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 2 1956

[illegible] ns

[illegible] group [illegible] layers

[illegible] ng Best Ever;

MUSIC

SYMPHONY HALL

Pops Opening

The Boston Pops Orchestra, Arthur Fiedler conducting, opened its 21st season last night in Symphony Hall. Louise Vosgerchian was the piano soloist.

To the musical Bostonian the first sound of spring is neither the chirrup of the robin, the plash of the raindrop or the bursting of the bud. It is, rather, the hollow cough of a cork being torn from a bottleneck during a hushed andante passage of flute--l-ike melody. Last night spring—and the Boston Pops—and that cork, returned to symphony Hall.

The presiding genius of spring, as always, was Arthur Fiedler, and the maestro looked fitter than ever, beaming and rubicund behind the traditional bank of ferns and peach-colored gladioli. The hall, as always, looked fresher and greener than even memory would have it. The orchestra, as always, superbly resonant, practically bloomed by itself. And the arrangements, as always, flowing and ingenious, become more and more staid. Missing is the lattice-work on the stage of former years, the greenery (except for a few flowers) and the chandelier which once swung over the orchestra.

Orchestra Never Beetter

But it's the music that counts. Mr. Fiedler and the orchestra never played better than last night. The precision, spirit and style remind one that no orchestra in the world quite equals the Boston Symphony, and none, playing music in a lighter vein, comes even close to the Boston Pops under Mr. Fiedler.

Forsythia and daffodils on stage, a new shade of bright green on the lower walls of Symphony Hall, lent a small token of spring flavor to last night's occasion. The clink of glasses, the fine spirals of smoke wafting toward the high ceiling of Symphony Hall, the whispered conversations and the rapturous applause all contributed to a gala for the 71st opening.

The evening started off in martial tempo with Sousa's "El Capitan." A Strauss Waltz, "Music of the Spheres," and Vaughn Williams' arrangement of "Greensleeves" carried things on the appropriate vein. A wonderfully smooth performance of the Overture to Offenbach's "La Belle [illegible]nd clopping of the horses[illegible] effects in Surrey with [illegible] Fringe.

[illegible] A capacity house resp[illegible] for the Grenfell Association, [illegible]erican Society of Orthodo[illegible] and Music Lovers club spo[illegible]

POPS ASSISTANTS—Harry Ellis Dickson, Boston Symphony Violinist, is the new assistant conductor of the Boston Pops. Luise Vosgerchian was piano soloist for the opening night's program.

Helene" brought the program too quickly to the first intermission.

Piano Solo Superb

Luise Vosgerchian was the evening's soloist, playing Liszt's First Piano Concerto with aplomb which masked the concentration and skill involved. It was just short of a soaring performance.

Tchaikovsky, who used to be strictly a lightweight at Pops, proved himself a serious contender by the attention his "Nutcracker" Suite drew from the capacity audience. You could have heard a pin drop, in quiet moments. Selections from the new Alan Jay Lerner-Frederick Loewe Broadway musical, "My Fair Lady" proved a hit, as did a new orchestral arrangement of the Sammy Fain movie tune, "Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing." And Brahms' Fifth Hungarian Dance, always a good curtain piece, ended the listed program. Encores, dividend pieces, from Bach to Richard Rodgers, made the program a complete feast.

expressed the frolicsome spirit of the occasion completely.

REPERTOIRE ENRICHED

There weren't too many of the latter, the Pops trademark, last night, although "The Surrey With the Fringe on Top," played without bow by the strings, held up this aspect nicely as an extra. (A perusal of the program, however, leads one to suspect Mr. Fiedler is holding Mason's arrangement of "Pops-Pourri"—a medley of "Hot Diggity," "Autumn Leaves," "16 Tons," "Rock and Roll Waltz" and "The Poor People of Paris"—in reserve till later in the week.) Yet, since last season the repertoire has been enriched by a delightful Loewe-Hayman combination of the songs from "My Fair Lady," and the Fain-Mason "Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing," so lush that "The Lost Weekend" is, by comparison, an arid trek across the Gobi.

At any rate, while last night stressed the straightforward musicality of the Pops under Mr. Fiedler's urbane direction, its high level of ability was shown anew. In particular Luise Vosgerchian's highly-creditable treatment of the Lizst E-Flat concerto, an interpretation that was wiry and strong without bombast, found all the forces responding. Miss Vosgerchian is a most accomplished artist, and that is a merry thing to report on the morning that spring arrives. Officially, that is.

—R.S.T.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 1 1956

Conn. College Night at Pops

Connecticut College night at the Pops will be held Monday, May 7. Besides being a social evening for alumnae and friends of the Boston area, the proceeds will benefit the college's scholarship and building funds.

The Pops committee is headed by Mrs. C. Boardman Thompson, 2d, and Mrs. Philip Welti. They are assisted by Mrs. Earle W. Wilkins, Jr., and Mrs. Frank C. Wheelock, Jr. as patroness co-chairmen: Mrs. Philip Brickley as ticket chairman; Mrs. William R. MacGregor, as publicity chairman; and Miss Frances Toro, as flower chairman.

Honorary patronesses include Rosemark Park, president of the college, Dean Alverna Burdick, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Quimby.

Among the patronesses who have reserved tables are Miss Jean Howard, Miss Ethel Kane, Mrs. Albert Thiel, Miss Lillian Ottenheimer, Mrs. Harold H. Blanchard, Miss Alice Gaertner, Mrs. James Ballantyne, Mrs. John F. A. Davis, Mrs. Ira Gerler, Mrs. Allen Perry, Mrs. Addison Sanford, Mrs. Minot Chandler, Miss Betty L. Babcock and Miss Anne Glazier.

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,915

MAY 2 1956

Monte Nelson Guest Pianist

Monte Nelson of 6 Maple Street, Marblehead, secretary of the Lynn Real Estate Board, will be guest pianist at the Massachusetts Real Estate Association's second annual Pops Night, to be held at Symphony Hall, Boston, Sunday, May 20, at 8:30 PM.

Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Symphony Pops Orchestra. Mr. Nelson has appeared a number of times with the orchestra.

TIGHT BINDING

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 1 1956

Greater Boston Irish News

Traveler Readers Aid Kerry Inval

Mary Broderick Seeks Shrine Trip; Ambassador to Speak at Eire Society

by MARY TIERNEY

There is no greater reward than the knowledge that you have helped someone less fortunate.

These simple, almost trite words have probably been said before by someone far more eloquent, or written with another set of words.

But the meaning is the same.

Several weeks ago, a plea was made in this column to send birthday cards to a 33-year-old Irish girl who has been confined to a wheel chair since the age of 15.

MAIL POURS IN FROM ALL U.S.

Since then, Mary Broderick of County Kerry has been deluged with mail from all parts of the [illegible] from as far south as Florida and as far no[illegible] Maine.

[illegible] readers have responded generously and opened their hearts to the little Irish girl, whose world is limited to her wheel chair and her Irish cottage in Kerry.

Miss Broderick has received her cards and letters with repeated enthusiasm and zest. She is particularly impressed with the fact that most people who write to her take time from a busy day to do so.

Her appreciation, humbleness, goodness and sense of humor are unparalleled.

DREAMS OF TRIP TO SHRINE OF LOURDES

Now, her only dream and wish for the future is a trip to the shrine of Our Lady of Lourdes in France, where so many maimed and crippled have been cured.

However, in her present state and financial condition, Mary feels this is almost impossible.

Unknown to her, Mary's fond[illegible] Boston pen pal and beloved "[illegible]", Bobby Jones of Mayor Hynes' office is slowly, but surely working hard to make her dream come true.

Inspired by her latest letter, Jones has set out to extract a dollar from his closest friends and compatriates around the city.

Since last month, Mary's circle of pen pals has grown wider and wider in the Boston area. It is to them that we appeal this time for their aid in sending Mary Broderick to Lourdes.

DIRECT FLIGHTS AID INVALIDS

Because of the tremendous [illegible] invalids and incurables who journey to Lourdes every year from Ireland, special flights have been inaugurated by Aer Lingus, the national Irish Air Lines.

In this way, a direct flight from Dublin to Lourdes facilitates ease and energy in transportation [illegible].

[illegible] would like to see Mary [illegible] on one of these flights [illegible] simply slipping a [illegible] envelope and sending it to Bobby Jones.

[illegible] send it to him at Mayor Hynes' office, City Hall, Boston, or if you prefer, directly to Miss Mary [illegible], Gortconnacloona, Ballyferriter, County Kerry, Ireland.

[illegible] would be a dollar well spent.

MISS URSULA SWEENEY

[illegible] of the Central Council of Eire in Ireland will speak at the Clinic's Boston [illegible] Tuesday evening at 8 p.m. at the Hotel Vendome.

Miss Sweeney is in Boston to visit the city's polio clinics and rehabilitation centers.

Miss Joseph F. O'Connell will preside, assisted by president Miss George Puddister.

IRELAND'S AMBASSADOR to the U.S., John J. Hearne, will speak at the 18th annual Eire Society of Boston dinner, to be held Saturday evening at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, former president of Fordham University will receive the Society's Gold Medal in "recognition of his outstanding contribution as a true educator of men and priest of God."

$1,000 GIFT TO SYMPHONY

A well known eductaor, he holds honorary degrees from Manhattan College, Holy Cross, Boston College, Columbia University, Bowdoin College, New York Univeristy, Rutgers University, Lafayette and Hobart Colleges.

Added feature of this year's dinner will be the presentation of a gift of $1000 from the Society to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation for the concerts the Orchestra will give in Cork and Dublin, Aug. 23 and 25.

Michael T. Kelleher, orchestra trustee, will make the presentation.

Society president Joseph E. Gannon will serve as toastmaster.

Last year's medal winner, Hollywood director John Ford, is presently at work in his beloved Ireland shooting "Three Leaves of a Shamrock."

The film consists of three short stories with their locale in Galway, Clare and Limerick. The cast is composed mainly of Irish actors and actresses, [illegible] from the Abbey Theater.

TON NEWSMAN Daniel O'Brien will be nominated as president of the Eire Society of Boston for the coming year, at the annual meeting tonight at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

Other officers to be nominated will include: Henry Weldon, 1st vice-president; Elizabeth M. MacMahon, 2nd vice-president; Thomas F. O'Day, treasurer.

Also, Eileen A. Whelan, financial secretary; Mary Elizabeth Sullivan, recording secretary; and M. Frances Fox, corresponding secretary.

Directors to be nominated include: Florence J. Donoghue, Barton L. Gaffney, Mrs. Henry Gomperts, John F. Hourihan, Bernardine Truden, Albert E. West and Mrs. Fred Williams.

Past presidents Joseph Gannon, Paul E. Tierney, Lenahan O'Connell and Miss Florence M. Garrity will also retain their positiions as members of the board of directors.

PRESIDENT JOHN DEVLIN of West Roxbury will preside at the monthly meeting of the Boston Chapter of the American League of an Undivided Ireland, to be held Monday evening at Rose Croix Hall, Roxbury.

THE YOUNG IRELAND Hurling Club will hold its installation of officers Sunday evening at Circle Hall in Somerville.

Billy Howe will be installed as president for the tenth successive year.

Other officers to be installed include Finbarr Callahan, vice-president; Barry McCarthy, secretary; Walter Norris, treasurer; Michael Dillon, captain and Coleman Hickey, vice-captain.

THE AMERICAN FRIENDS of the Irish Republican Prisoners will hold a meeting tomorrow evening at Rose Croix Hall in Roxbury.

President Michael Cummings will outline plans for the coming year.

VERY REV. SAMUEL CHAMEAL of the Sacred Heart Retreat House in Waltham will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Irish American Associates Friday evening at Odd Fellows Hall in Cambridge.

Father Chameal will show color slides of the new shrine of the Holy Espousals. The new shrine will be officially dedicated by Archbishop Cushing J[illegible] at the Sacred Heart R[illegible] House. Is is believed to [illegible] only one of its kind in th[illegible]

President Michael Upto[illegible] all members to be presen[illegible]

THE GALWAY L[illegible] Benevolent Association w[illegible] its annual May Party Sa[illegible] evening at Hibernian Hall [illegible]bury.

Mrs. Mary Manning wil[illegible] as chairman, assisted by [illegible] presidents, Mrs. Celia Fin[illegible] and Mrs. Mary Concannon[illegible]

(Mary Tierney's Irish col[illegible] is published every Tuesda[illegible] The Boston Traveler.)

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 1 1956

TV SHOWCASE

Aging Sam Dodsworth Seems Spry as Ever

By ELIZABETH WATTS

Twenty-seven years can't dim or dent a classic. Sinclair Lewis wrote "Dodsworth" in 1929, but last night's presentation of it on Producers' Showcase was as fresh and undated as if the Nobel prize-winner from Sauk Center had the age of automation in mind

★ ★ ★

To be sure, Sidney Howard's dramatization and David Shaw's adaptation for TV deserve a large measure of credit, too, but the real meat of last night's banquet was served up by Lewis' novel about the retired American businessman from a small Midwestern town.

Fredric March as Sam Dodsworth was flawless for our money. He never bread-beamed Sam Dodsworth into a caricature. Instead he let him be the simple, good-thinking husband of a wife who wanted to be young too late with all the genuine pathos and none of the schmaltz.

Claire Trevor scored almost as highly as Fran Dodsworth, but she seemed to miss some of the nuances that would have made it a little easier to understand why the devoted Midwestern wife of 20 years became so completely the Continental gadabout. One of her best scenes, where she's just been abandoned by her titled intended and is calling faithful Sam, was so well done, though, that most women watchers must have felt they'd been on a crying jag themselves.

Geraldine Fitzgerald, as the understanding expatriate who helps Sam Dodsworth begin to look forward to tomorrow again, was as convincing as she was pretty, and that's saying a good deal. Here again, low-keyed playing brought reality right into the living room regardless of "Dodsworth's" vintage years.

These live 90 minutes from Hollywood flashed by like quicksilver. And there was a strong flavor of real Broadway to the whole production.

★ ★ ★

Channel 2 serenaded its first birthday last night with a highly successful concert on TV and F.M. Richard Burgin of the Boston Symphony directed the New England Conservatory orchestra in a program that included Tschaikovsky, Prokofieff and Chausson.

The cameras panned over the new Kresge auditorium at M. I. T. to show glimpses of the audience during intermission and there were good close-ups of the young and very earnest orchestra members.

Ralph Lowell paid tribute to Channel 2's birthday during the intermission, and the M. I. T. grounds must have echoed with long loud applause when the evening was over.

When the Boston Symphony Orchestra played their concert at the auditorium last October the cameras had to be concealed. This time they were free to dolly in on any and all parts of the proceedings.

Last night's serenade was a well deserved "Happy Birthday" all around.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 2 1956

81

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 2 1956

ns

group layers

ng Best Ever;

MUSIC

SYMPHONY HALL

Pops Opening

The Boston Pops Orchestra, Arthur Fiedler conducting, opened its 71st season last night in Symphony Hall. Louise Vosgerchian was the piano soloist.

To the musical Bostonian the first sound of spring is neither the chirrup of the robin, the plash of the raindrop or the bursting of the bud. It is, rather, the hollow cough of a cork being torn from a bottleneck during a hushed andante passage of flute--l-ike melody. Last night spring—and the Boston Pops—and that cork, returned to symphony Hall.

The presiding genius of spring, as always, was Arthur Fiedler, and the maestro looked fitter than ever, beaming and rubicund behind the traditional bank of ferns and peach-colored gladioli. The hall, as always, looked fresher and greener than even memory would have it. The orchestra, as always, superbly resonant, practically bloomed by itself. And the arrangements, as always, flowing and ingenious, expressed the frolicsome spirit of the occasion completely.

REPERTOIRE ENRICHED

There weren't too many of the latter, the Pops trademark, last night, although "The Surrey With the Fringe on Top," played without bow by the strings, held up this aspect nicely as an extra. (A perusal of the program, however, leads one to suspect Mr. Fiedler is holding Mason's arrangement of "Pops-Pourri"—a medley of "Hot Diggity," "Autumn Leaves," "16 Tons," "Rock and Roll Waltz" and "The Poor People of Paris"—in reserve till later in the week.) Yet, since last season the repertoire has been enriched by a delightful Loewe-Hayman combination of the songs from "My Fair Lady," and the Fain-Mason "Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing," so lush that "The Lost Weekend" is, by comparison, an arid trek across the Gobi.

At any rate, while last night stressed the straightforward musicality of the Pops under Mr. Fiedler's urbane direction, its high level of ability was shown anew. In particular Luise Vosgerchian's highly-creditable treatment of the Lizst E-Flat concerto, an interpretation that was wiry and strong without bombast, found all the forces responding. Miss Vosgerchian is a most accomplished artist, and that is a merry thing to report on the morning that spring arrives. Officially, that is.

—R.S.T.

become more and more stale. Missing is the lattice-work on the stage of former years, the greenery (except for a few flowers) and the chandelier which once swung over the orchestra.

Orchestra Never Beetter

But it's the music that counts. Mr. Fiedler and the orchestra never played better than last night. The precision, spirit and style remind one that no orchestra in the world quite equals the Boston Symphony, and none, playing music in a lighter vein, comes even close to the Boston Pops under Mr. Fiedler.

Forsythia and daffodils on stage, a new shade of bright green on the lower walls of Symphony Hall, lent a small token of spring flavor to last night's occasion. The clink of glasses, the fine spirals of smoke wafting toward the high ceiling of Symphony Hall, the whispered conversations and the rapturous applause all contributed to a gala for the 71st opening.

The evening started off in martial tempo with Sousa's "El Capitan." A Strauss Waltz, "Music of the Spheres," and Vaughn Williams' arrangement of "Greensleeves" carried things on the appropriate vein. A wonderfully smooth performance of the Overture to Offenbach's "La Belle Helene" brought the program too quickly to the first intermission.

POPS ASSISTANTS—Harry Ellis Dickson, Boston Symphony Violinist, is the new assistant conductor of the Boston Pops. Luise Vosgerchian was piano soloist for the opening night's program.

Piano Solo Superb

Luise Vosgerchian was the evening's soloist, playing Liszt's First Piano Concerto with aplomb which masked the concentration and skill involved. It was just short of a soaring performance.

Tchaikovsky, who used to be strictly a lightweight at Pops, proved himself a serious contender by the attention his "Nutcracker" Suite drew from the capacity audience. You could have heard a pin drop, in quiet moments. Selections from the new Alan Jay Lerner-Frederick Loewe Broadway musical, "My Fair Lady" proved a hit, as did a new orchestral arrangement of the Sammy Fain movie tune, "Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing." And Brahms' Fifth Hungarian Dance, always a good curtain piece, ended the listed program. Encores, dividend pieces, from Bach to Richard Rodgers, made the program a complete feast.

and clopping of the horses' [illegible] effects in Surrey with [illegible] Fringe.

A capacity house respo[illegible] for the Grenfell Association, [illegible]erican Society of Orthodo[illegible] and Music Lovers club spo[illegible]

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 1 1956

Conn. College Night at Pops

Connecticut College night at the Pops will be held Monday, May 7. Besides being a social evening for alumnae and friends of the Boston area, the proceeds will benefit the college's scholarship and building funds.

The Pops committee is headed by Mrs. C. Boardman Thompson, 2d, and Mrs. Philip Welti. They are assisted by Mrs. Earle W. Wilkins, Jr., and Mrs. Frank C. Wheelock, Jr. as patroness co-chairmen: Mrs. Philip Brickley as ticket chairman; Mrs. William R. MacGregor, as publicity chairman; and Miss Frances Toro, as flower chairman.

Honorary patronesses include Rosemark Park, president of the college, Dean Alverna Burdick, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Quimby.

Among the patronesses who have reserved tables are Miss Jean Howard, Miss Ethel Kane, Mrs. Albert Thiel, Miss Lillian Ottenheimer, Mrs. Harold H. Blanchard, Miss Alice Gaertner, Mrs. James Ballantyne, Mrs. John F. A. Davis, Mrs. Ira Gerler, Mrs. Allen Perry, Mrs. Addison Sanford, Mrs. Minot Chandler, Miss Betty L. Babcock and Miss Anne Glazier.

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,915

MAY 2 1956

Monte Nelson Guest Pianist

Monte Nelson of 6 Maple Street, Marblehead, secretary of the Lynn Real Estate Board, will be guest pianist at the Massachusetts Real Estate Association's second annual Pops Night, to be held at Symphony Hall, Boston, Sunday, May 20, at 8:30 PM.

Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Symphony Pops Orchestra. Mr. Nelson has appeared a number of times with the orchestra.

TIGHT BINDING

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 1 1956

Greater Boston Irish News

Traveler Readers Aid Kerry Invali

Mary Broderick Seeks Shrine Trip; Ambassador to Speak at Eire Society

by MARY TIERNEY

There is no greater reward than the knowledge that you have helped someone less fortunate.

These simple, almost trite words have probably been said before by someone far more eloquent, or written with another set of words.

But the meaning is the same.

Several weeks ago, a plea was made in this column to send birthday cards to a 33-year-old Irish girl who has been confined to a wheel chair since the age of 15.

MAIL POURS IN FROM ALL U.S.

Since then, Mary Broderick of County Kerry has been deluged with mail from all parts of the [illegible] from the south [illegible] Florida and as far no[illegible] Maine.

Traveler readers have responded generously and opened their hearts to the little Irish girl, whose world is limited to her wheel chair and her Irish cottage in Kerry.

Mary Broderick has received her cards and letters with renewed enthusiasm and zest. She is particularly impressed with the fact that most people who write to her take time from a busy day to do so.

Her appriciation, humbleness, goodness and sense of humor are unparalleled.

DREAMS OF TRIP TO SHRINE OF LOURDES

Now, her only dream and wish for the future is a trip to the shrine of Our Lady of Lourdes in France, where so many maimed and crippled have been cured.

However, in her present state and financial condition, Mary feels this is almost impossible.

Unknown to her, Mary's fondest Boston pen pal and beloved "leprechaun", Bobby Jones of Mayor Hynes office is slowly, but surely working hard to make her dream come true.

Inspired by her latest letter, Jones has set out to extract a dollar from his closest friends and compatriates around the city.

Since last month, Mary's circle of pen pals has grown wider and wider in the Boston area. It is to them that we appeal this time for their aid in sending Mary Broderick to Lourdes.

DIRECT FLIGHTS AID INVALIDS

Because of the tremendous amount of invalids and incurables who journey to Lourdes every year from Ireland, special flights have been inaugurated by Aer Lingus, the national Irish Air Lines.

In this way, a direct flight from Dublin to Lourdes facilitates time and energy in transporting the sick.

I would like to see Mary Broderick on one of these flights this summer. Join her American friends by simply slipping a dollar into an envelope and sending it along to Bobby Jones.

You may send it to him at Mayor Hynes's office, City Hall, School St., Boston, or if you prefer, directly to Miss Mary Broderick, Gortnacloona, Ballyferriter, County Kerry, Ireland.

It certainly would be a dollar well spent.

MISS URSULA SWEENEY, physio-therapist of the Central Remedial Clinic in Ireland will speak to the Clinic's Boston Friends, Thursday evening at 8 P.M. at the Hotel Vendome. Miss Sweeney is in Boston to visit the city's polio clinics and rehabilitation centers.

Miss Joseph F. O'Connell will preside, assisted by president Mrs. George Puddister.

IRELAND'S AMBASSADOR to the U. S., John J. Hearne, will speak at the 18th annual Eire Society of Boston dinner, to be held Saturday evening at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, former president of Fordham University will receive the Society's Gold Medal in "recognition of his outstanding contribution as a true educator of men and priest of God."

$1,000 GIFT TO SYMPHONY

A well known eductaor, he holds honorary degrees from Manhattan College, Holy Cross, Boston College, Columbia University, Bowdoin College, New York Univeristy, Rutgers University, Lafayette and Hobart Colleges.

Added feature of this year's dinner will be the presentation of a gift of $1000 from the Society to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation for the concerts the Orchestra will give in Cork and Dublin, Aug. 23 and 25.

Michael T. Kelleher, orchestra trustee, will make the presentation.

Society president Joseph E. Gannon will serve as toastmaster.

Last year's medal winner, Hollywood director John Ford, is presently at work in his beloved Ireland shooting "Three Leaves of a Shamrock."

The film consists of three short stories with their locale in Galway, Clare and Limerick. The cast is composed mainly of Irish actors and actresses, [illegible] from the Abbey Theater.

TON NEWSMAN Daniel O'Brien will be nominated as president of the Eire Society of Boston for the coming year, at the annual meeting tonight at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

Other officers to be nominated will include: Henry Weldon, 1st vice-president; Elizabeth M. MacMahon, 2nd vice - president; Thomas F. O'Day, treasurer.

Also, Eileen A. Whelan, financial secretary; Mary Elizabeth Sullivan, recording secretary; and M. Frances Fox, corresponding secretary.

Directors to be nominated include: Florence J. Donoghue, Larion L. Gaffney, Mrs. Henry Gomperts, John F. Hourihan, Bernardine Truden, Albert E. West and Mrs. Fred Williams.

Past presidents Joseph Gannon, Paul E. Tierney, Lenahan O'Connell and Miss Florence M. Garrity will also retain their positions as members of the board of directors.

PRESIDENT JOHN DEVLIN of West Roxbury will preside at the monthly meeting of the Boston Chapter of the American League of an Undivided Ireland, to be held Monday evening at Rose Croix Hall, Roxbury.

THE YOUNG IRELAND Hurling Club will hold its installation of officers Sunday evening at Circle Hall in Somerville.

Billy Howe will be installed as president for the tenth successive year.

Other officers to be installed include Finbarr Callahan, vice-president; Barry McCarthy, secretary; Walter Norris, treasurer; Michael Dillon, captain and Coleman Hickey, vice-captain.

THE AMERICAN FRIENDS of the Irish Republican Prisoners will hold a meeting tomorrow evening at Rose Croix Hall in Roxbury.

President Michael Cummings will outline plans for the coming year.

VERY REV. SAMUEL CHAMEAL of the Sacred Heart Retreat House in Waltham will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Irish American Associates Friday evening at Odd Fellows Hall in Cambridge.

Father Chameal will show color slides of the new shrine of the Holy Espousals. The new shrine will be officially dedicated by Archbishop Cushing J[illegible] at the Sacred Heart R[illegible] House. Is is believed to [illegible] only one of its kind in the [illegible]

President Michael Upton [illegible] all members to be present.

THE GALWAY L[illegible] Benevolent Association wi[illegible] its annual May Party Sa[illegible] evening at Hibernian Hall [illegible] bury.

Mrs. Mary Manning will [illegible] as chairman, assisted by [illegible] presidents, Mrs. Celia Finn [illegible] and Mrs. Mary Concannon.

(Mary Tierney's Irish colu[illegible] is published every Tuesday [illegible] The Boston Traveler.)

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 1 1956

TV SHOWCASE

Aging Sam Dodsworth Seems Spry as Ever

By ELIZABETH WATTS

Twenty-seven years can't dim or dent a classic. Sinclair Lewis wrote "Dodsworth" in 1929, but last night's presentation of it on Producers' Showcase was as fresh and undated as if the Nobel prize-winner from Sauk Center had the age of automation in mind

★ ★ ★

To be sure, Sidney Howard's dramatization and David Shaw's adaptation for TV deserve a large measure of credit, too, but the real meat of last night's banquet was served up by Lewis' novel about the retired American businessman from a small Midwestern town.

Fredric March as Sam Dodsworth was flawless for our money. He never broad-beamed Sam Dodsworth into a caricature. Instead he let him be the simple, good-thinking husband of a wife who wanted to be young too late with all the genuine pathos and none of the schmaltz.

Claire Trevor scored almost as highly as Fran Dodsworth, but she seemed to miss some of the nuances that would have made it a little easier to understand why the devoted Midwestern wife of 20 years became so completely the Continental gadabout. One of her best scenes, where she's just been abandoned by her titled intended and is calling faithful Sam, was so well done, though, that most women watchers must have felt they'd been on a crying jag themselves.

Geraldine Fitzgerald, as the understanding expatriate who helps Sam Dodsworth begin to look forward to tomorrow again, was as convincing as she was pretty, and that's saying a good deal. Here again, low-keyed playing brought reality right into the living room regardless of "Dodsworth's" vintage years.

These live 90 minutes from Hollywood flashed by like quicksilver. And there was a strong flavor of real Broadway to the whole production.

★ ★ ★

Channel 2 serenaded its first birthday last night with a highly successful concert on TV and F.M. Richard Burgin of the Boston Symphony directed the New England Conservatory orchestra in a program that included Tschaikovsky, Prokofieff and Chausson.

The cameras panned over the new Kresge auditorium at M. I. T. to show glimpses of the audience during intermission and there were good close-ups of the young and very earnest orchestra members.

Ralph Lowell paid tribute to Channel 2's birthday during the intermission, and the M. I. T. grounds must have echoed with long loud applause when the evening was over.

When the Boston Symphony Orchestra played their concert at the auditorium last October the cameras had to be concealed. This time they were free to dolly in on any and all parts of the proceedings.

Last night's serenade was a well deserved "Happy Birthday" all around.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 1 1956

Pops Opening Best Ever; Liszt Soloist Superb

By JOHN WM. RILEY

The Boston Pops are a music festival unequaled anywhere in the world. Music makes them so. Arthur Fiedler and members of the Boston Symphony make the music.

The opening of the 71st Pops season in Symphony Hall last night was a reminder that the world is full of music festivals. But none enjoys the longevity, the international flavor and acclaim, the esprit of Boston home-grown promenade concerts.

The Pops are a festive occasion, welcoming a festive season, more so musically than otherwise in recent years when the Spring decorations of Symphony Hall have become more and more staid. Missing is the lattice-work on the stage of former years, the greenery (except for a few flowers) and the chandelier which once swung over the orchestra.

Orchestra Never Beetter

But it's the music that counts. Mr. Fiedler and the orchestra never played better than last night. The precision, spirit and style remind one that no orchestra in the world quite equals the Boston Symphony, and none, playing music in a lighter vein, comes even close to the Boston Pops under Mr. Fiedler.

Forsythia and daffodils on stage, a new shade of bright green on the lower walls of Symphony Hall, lent a small token of spring flavor to last night's occasion. The clink of glasses, the fine spirals of smoke wafting toward the high ceiling of Symphony Hall, the whispered conversations and the rapturous applause all contributed to a gala for the 71st opening.

The evening started off in martial tempo with Sousa's "El Capitan." A Strauss Waltz, "Music of the Spheres," and Vaughn Williams' arrangement of "Greensleeves" carried things on the appropriate vein. A wonderfully smooth performance of the Overture to Offenbach's "La Belle Helene" brought the program too quickly to the first intermission.

POPS ASSISTANTS—Harry Ellis Dickson, Boston Symphony Violinist, is the new assistant conductor of the Boston Pops. Luise Vosgerchian was piano soloist for the opening night's program.

Piano Solo Superb

Luise Vosgerchian was the evening's soloist, playing Liszt's First Piano Concerto with aplomb which masked the concentration and skill involved. It was just short of a soaring performance.

Tchaikovsky, who used to be strictly a lightweight at Pops, proved himself a serious contender by the attention his "Nutcracker" Suite drew from the capacity audience. You could have heard a pin drop, in quiet moments. Selections from the new Alan Jay Lerner-Frederick Loewe Broadway musical, "My Fair Lady" proved a hit, as did a new orchestral arrangement of the Sammy Fain movie tune, "Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing." And Brahms' Fifth Hungarian Dance, always a good curtain piece, ended the listed program. Encores, dividend pieces, from Bach to Richard Rodgers, made the program a complete feast.

[illegible] and clopping of the horses' [illegible] effects in Surrey with [illegible] Fringe.

A capacity house respo[illegible] for the Grenfell Association, [illegible]erican Society of Orthodo[illegible] and Music Lovers club spo[illegible]

Conn. College Night at Pops

Connecticut College night at the Pops will be held Monday, May 7. Besides being a social evening for alumnae and friends of the Boston area, the proceeds will benefit the college's scholarship and building funds.

The Pops committee is headed by Mrs. C. Boardman Thompson, 2d, and Mrs. Philip Welti. They are assisted by Mrs. Earle W. Wilkins, Jr., and Mrs. Frank C. Wheelock, Jr. as patroness co-chairmen: Mrs. Philip Brickley as ticket chairman; Mrs. William R. MacGregor, as publicity chairman; and Miss Frances Toro, as flower chairman.

Honorary patronesses include Rosemark Park, president of the college, Dean Alverna Burdick, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Quimby.

Among the patronesses who have reserved tables are Miss Jean Howard, Miss Ethel Kane, Mrs. Albert Thiel, Miss Lillian Ottenheimer, Mrs. Harold H. Blanchard, Miss Alice Gaertner, Mrs. James Ballantyne, Mrs. John F. A. Davis, Mrs. Ira Gerler, Mrs. Allen Perry, Mrs. Addison Sanford, Mrs. Minot Chandler, Miss Betty L. Babcock and Miss Anne Glazier.

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,915

MAY 2 1956

Monte Nelson Guest Pianist

Monte Nelson of 6 Maple Street, Marblehead, secretary of the Lynn Real Estate Board, will be guest pianist at the Massachusetts Real Estate Association's second annual Pops Night, to be held at Symphony Hall, Boston, Sunday, May 20, at 8:30 PM.

Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Symphony Pops Orchestra. Mr. Nelson has appeared a number of times with the orchestra.

TIGHT BINDING

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 1 1956

Greater Boston Irish News

Traveler Readers Aid Kerry Inval

Mary Broderick Seeks Shrine Trip; Ambassador to Speak at Eire Society

by MARY TIERNEY

There is no greater reward than the knowledge that you have helped someone less fortunate.

These simple, almost trite words have probably been said before by someone far more eloquent, or written with another set of words.

But the meaning is the same.

Several weeks ago, a plea was made in this column to send birthday cards to a 33-year-old Irish girl who has been confined to a wheel chair since the age of 15.

MAIL POURS IN FROM ALL U.S.

Since then, Mary Broderick of County Kerry has been deluged with mail from all parts of the [illegible] from [illegible] Florida and as far no[illegible] Maine.

Traveler readers have responded generously and opened their hearts to the little Irish girl, whose world is limited to her wheel chair and her Irish cottage in Kerry.

Mary Broderick has received her cards and letters with renewed enthusiasm and zest. She is particularly impressed with the fact that most people who write to her take time from a busy day to do so.

Her appriciation, humbleness, goodness and sense of humor are unparalleled.

DREAMS OF TRIP TO SHRINE OF LOURDES

Now, her only dream and wish for the future is a trip to the shrine of Our Lady of Lourdes in France, where so many maimed and crippled have been cured.

However, in her present state and financial condition, Mary feels this is almost impossible.

Unknown to her, Mary's fondest Boston pen pal and beloved "leprechaun", Bobby Jones of Mayor Hynes office is slowly, but surely working hard to make her dream come true.

Inspired by her latest letter, Jones has set out to extract a dollar from his closest friends and compatriates around the city.

Since last month, Mary's circle of pen pals has grown wider and wider in the Boston area. It is to them that we appeal this time for their aid in sending Mary Broderick to Lourdes.

DIRECT FLIGHTS AID INVALIDS

Because of the tremendous amount of invalids and incurables who journey to Lourdes every year from Ireland, special flights have been inaugurated by Aer Lingus, the national Irish Air Lines.

In this way, a direct flight from Dublin to Lourdes facilitates time and energy in transporting the sick.

If you would like to see Mary Broderick on one of these flights this summer, join her American friends by simply slipping a dollar into an envelope and sending it along to Bobby Jones.

You may send it to him at Mayor Hynes's office, City Hall, School St., Boston, or if you prefer, directly to Miss Mary Broderick, Gurteenacloona, Ballylongford, County Kerry, Ireland.

It certainly would be a dollar well spent.

MISS URSULA SWEENEY, physio-therapist of the Central Remedial Clinic in Ireland will speak to the Clinic's Boston Friends, Thursday evening at 8 p. m. at the Hotel Vendome.

Miss Sweeney is in Boston to visit the city's polio clinics and rehabilitation centers.

Miss Joseph F. O'Connell will preside, assisted by president Mrs. George Puddister.

IRELAND'S AMBASSADOR to the U. S., John J. Hearne, will speak at the 18th annual Eire Society of Boston dinner, to be held Saturday evening at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, former president of Fordham University will receive the Society's Gold Medal in "recognition of his outstanding contribution as a true educator of men and priest of God."

$1,000 GIFT TO SYMPHONY

A well known eductaor, he holds honorary degrees from Manhattan College, Holy Cross, Boston College, Columbia University, Bowdoin College, New York Univeristy, Rutgers University, Lafayette and Hobart Colleges.

Added feature of this year's dinner will be the presentation of a gift of $1000 from the Society to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation for the concerts the Orchestra will give in Cork and Dublin, Aug. 23 and 25.

Michael T. Kelleher, orchestra trustee, will make the presentation.

Society president Joseph E. Gannon will serve as toastmaster.

Last year's medal winner, Hollywood director John Ford, is presently at work in his beloved Ireland shooting "Three Leaves of a Shamrock."

The film consists of three short stories with their locale in Galway, Clare and Limerick. The cast is composed mainly of Irish actors and actresses, [illegible] from the Abbey Theater.

TON NEWSMAN Daniel O'Brien will be nominated as president of the Eire Society of Boston for the coming year, at the annual meeting tonight at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

Other officers to be nominated will include: Henry Weldon, 1st vice-president; Elizabeth M. MacMahon, 2nd vice - president; Thomas F. O'Day, treasurer.

Also, Eileen A. Whelan, financial secretary; Mary Elizabeth Sullivan, recording secretary; and M. Frances Fox, corresponding secretary.

Directors to be nominated include: Florence J. Donoghue, Marion L. Gaffney, Mrs. Henry Gomperts, John F. Hourihan, Bernardine Truden, Albert E. West and Mrs. Fred Williams.

Past presidents Joseph Gannon, Paul E. Tierney, Lenahan O'Connell and Miss Florence M. Garrity will also retain their positions as members of the board of directors.

PRESIDENT JOHN DEVLIN of West Roxbury will preside at the monthly meeting of the Boston Chapter of the American League of an Undivided Ireland, to be held Monday evening at Rose Croix Hall, Roxbury.

THE YOUNG IRELAND Hurling Club will hold its installation of officers Sunday evening at Circle Hall in Somerville.

Billy Howe will be installed as president for the tenth successive year.

Other officers to be installed include Finbarr Callahan, vice-president; Barry McCarthy, secretary; Walter Norris, treasurer; Michael Dillon, captain and Coleman Hickey, vice-captain.

THE AMERICAN FRIENDS of the Irish Republican Prisoners will hold a meeting tomorrow evening at Rose Croix Hall in Roxbury.

President Michael Cummings will outline plans for the coming year.

VERY REV. SAMUEL CHAMEAL of the Sacred Heart Retreat House in Waltham will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Irish American Associates Friday evening at Odd Fellows Hall in Cambridge.

Father Chameal will show color slides of the new shrine of the Holy Espousals. The new shrine will be officially dedicated by Archbishop Cushing June 24 at the Sacred Heart Retreat House. Is is believed to be the only one of its kind in the U. S.

President Michael Upton urges all members to be present.

THE GALWAY LADIES Benevolent Association will hold its annual May Party Saturday evening at Hibernian Hall, Roxbury.

Mrs. Mary Manning will serve as chairman, assisted by past presidents, Mrs. Celia Finnegan and Mrs. Mary Concannon.

(Mary Tierney's Irish column is published every Tuesday in The Boston Traveler.)

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 1 1956

TV SHOWCASE

Aging Sam Dodsworth Seems Spry as Ever

By ELIZABETH WATTS

Twenty-seven years can't dim or dent a classic. Sinclair Lewis wrote "Dodsworth" in 1929, but last night's presentation of it on Producers' Showcase was as fresh and undated as if the Nobel prize-winner from Sauk Center had the age of automation in mind

★ ★ ★

To be sure, Sidney Howard's dramatization and David Shaw's adaptation for TV deserve a large measure of credit, too, but the real meat of last night's banquet was served up by Lewis' novel about the retired American businessman from a small Midwestern town.

Fredric March as Sam Dodsworth was flawless for our money. He never bread-beamed Sam Dodsworth into a caricature. Instead he let him be the simple, good-thinking husband of a wife who wanted to be young too late with all the genuine pathos and none of the schmaltz.

Claire Trevor scored almost as highly as Fran Dodsworth, but she seemed to miss some of the nuances that would have made it a little easier to understand why the devoted Midwestern wife of 20 years became so completely the Continental gadabout. One of her best scenes, where she's just been abandoned by her titled intended and is calling faithful Sam, was so well done, though, that most women watchers must have felt they'd been on a crying jag themselves.

Geraldine Fitzgerald, as the understanding expatriate who helps Sam Dodsworth begin to look forward to tomorrow again, was as convincing as she was pretty, and that's saying a good deal. Here again, low-keyed playing brought reality right into the living room regardless of "Dodsworth's" vintage years.

These live 90 minutes from Hollywood flashed by like quicksilver. And there was a strong flavor of real Broadway to the whole production.

★ ★ ★

Channel 2 serenaded its first birthday last night with a highly successful concert on TV and F.M. Richard Burgin of the Boston Symphony directed the New England Conservatory orchestra in a program that included Tschaikovsky, Prokofieff and Chausson.

The cameras panned over the new Kresge auditorium at M. I. T. to show glimpses of the audience during intermission and there were good close-ups of the young and very earnest orchestra members.

Ralph Lowell paid tribute to Channel 2's birthday during the intermission, and the M. I. T. grounds must have echoed with long loud applause when the evening was over.

When the Boston Symphony Orchestra played their concert at the auditorium last October the cameras had to be concealed. This time they were free to dolly in on any and all parts of the proceedings.

Last night's serenade was a well deserved "Happy Birthday" all around.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 1 1956

Conn. College Night at Pops

Connecticut College night at the Pops will be held Monday, May 7. Besides being a social evening for alumnae and friends of the Boston area, the proceeds will benefit the college's scholarship and building funds.

The Pops committee is headed by Mrs. C. Boardman Thompson, 2d, and Mrs. Philip Welti. They are assisted by Mrs. Earle W. Wilkins, Jr., and Mrs. Frank C. Wheelock, Jr. as patroness co-chairmen: Mrs. Philip Brickley as ticket chairman; Mrs. William R. MacGregor, as publicity chairman; and Miss Frances Toro, as flower chairman.

Honorary patronesses include Rosemark Park, president of the college, Dean Alverna Burdick, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Quimby.

Among the patronesses who have reserved tables are Miss Jean Howard, Miss Ethel Kane, Mrs. Albert Thiel, Miss Lillian Ottenheimer, Mrs. Harold H. Blanchard, Miss Alice Gaertner, Mrs. James Ballantyne, Mrs. John F. A. Davis, Mrs. Ira Gerler, Mrs. Allen Perry, Mrs. Addison Sanford, Mrs. Minot Chandler, Miss Betty L. Babcock and Miss Anne Glazier.

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,915

MAY 2 1956

Monte Nelson Guest Pianist

Monte Nelson of 6 Maple Street, Marblehead, secretary of the Lynn Real Estate Board, will be guest pianist at the Massachusetts Real Estate Association's second annual Pops Night, to be held at Symphony Hall, Boston, Sunday, May 20, at 8:30 PM.

Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Symphony Pops Orchestra. Mr. Nelson has appeared a number of times with the orchestra.

Length[illegible]

Michigan State won all eight tennis matches during its 1956 Spring tour of the South.

Dartmouth's Bill Beagle, 4th ranked football passer in 1955, also plays baseball for the Big Green.

Bill [illegible] trial [illegible] Brool[illegible] Celtic[illegible] Basket Ball Association last season with 1434 points in 72 games.

A MESSAGE OF IMPORTANCE TO PROSPECTIVE
1956 OLDSMOBILE
BUYERS
YOU WILL RECEIVE

[illegible]ts Season

By A. E. WATTS

Arthur Fiedler and his group of relaxed Symphony players opened the 71st annual season of "Pops" last night at Symphony hall to a relaxed and appreciative audience. As was the case last year, the opening program was a little on the austere side by comparison with opening night programs over the years, but it was music, every precisioned phrase of it. An orchestra of the Pops size has everything for this generally lighter type of music.

It can play "Love is a Many-Splendored Thing in lovely key-changing harmony, it can crescendo spiritedly through Sousa's "El Capitan" which always opens first night programs, and it can turn to Liszt's Piano Concerto in E-flat for flawless accompaniment. Luise Vosgerchian was the soloist and her playing eloquently reflected Liszt's many moods.

There was Strauss for the program, too, but this time Josef Strauss' melodically smooth waltzes. Perhaps the scholarly Josef would have matched Johann in popular appeal had his health permitted. Vaughan Williams' "Fantasia on Greensleeves" met with warm appreciation and Offenbach's more symphonic overture to "La Belle Helene" climaxed the first group.

Followed the piano concerto and then, lest the transition to light music be too abrupt, Tchaikowsky's "Suite from the Nutcracker," a musicianly series of contrasting movements.

Next came a noteworthy premiere for Boston listeners, selections from "My Fair Lady," the Loewe-Hayman setting to music of "Pygmalion." Following "Love is a Many-Splendored Thing" came a Brahms finale, "Hungarian Dance No. 5."

There were only four encores, but this was due to the nature of the program. A Strauss bit, "Perpetual Motion," the Bach-Caillet "Little Fugues," "Surrey With the Fringe on The Top" and a litle more of Offenbach a spirited Galop were the extras.

Amusement for those who like a smile with their Pops music came with the whip-snapping and clopping of the horses' feet effects in Surrey with the Fringe.

A capacity house responded for the Grenfell Association, American Society of Orthodontists and Music Lovers club sponsors.

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 397,884
MAY 2 1956

Around Boston

Rates Hub's Teddi King As Finest Girl Singer

—By GEORGE CLARKE—

SAY IT'S LIKE BLUE VELVET if you like. Or like moire, irridescent, with a rich rustle. Maybe it has the sheen of fine silk.

It has body and substance and it fills the bigness of Blinstrub's to the farthest corner, fills it completely, satisfyingly, yet loses none of its subtlety in the process. It is a whole, a lovely thing.

And if the above seems like an over statement, go yourself and listen to the voice of Boston's own Teddi King as she proves, at every performance, that she has probably the best voice of all girl singers in the popular field.

She's a tiny girl, Teddi is, and it is surprising to hear such volume from so small a person. But size doesn't count when it comes to quality. And of that she has plenty.

So, refuting a show business adage, she is one gal who is making good in her own home town.

Comes From Malden

Teddi, as most know, comes from Malden, and for a good many years she was rapidly getting nowhere. Then George Shearing heard her, hired her, and now she is the darling of RCA-Victor Records. There is no one with a brighter future.

Her best number, of course, is "Mr. Wonderful," the first song she recorded for her new employers, and she gets the most out of it. It is superbly played by Mike Gaylord and his orchestra.

One day, incidentally, Teddi is going to slip into an operatic aria, probably "One Fine Day," from Madam Butterfly. And on that day Your Reporter will be there to hear it.

It's a fine show behind her, too, with the Two Luvas doing their upside-down routines on a high rigging. They were on the Ed ("Toast of the Town") Sullivan show Sunday night. Back are the Rudenko Brothers, jugglers, and Bob De Voie at the head of an adagio trio. The Elkins Sisters open the show.

After Teddi there'll be four days of Mark Stuart, a bright new singer, then ten days of Frankie Laine.

Dick and Bee Hayman were at Teddi's opening, as were many other notables including George Wein and Cecil Steen, her managers. Bee and Dick are in town for the opening of the Boston "Pops," at which was played his special arrangement of the score from "My Fair Lady," a piece of music he, himself, will conduct at a later performance.

George Wein, incidentally, confirmed the report that this will be the last year of the Jazz Festival at Newport. It will be there this year, but will have a new home the year after. The name has been changed to the American Jazz Festival. George is hopeful of bringing it to some town in Massachusetts.

Finish New York Recording

Jack Richards, who wrote the music for "He," sends a note to the effect that the group from Roxbury which used to be known as "The Spirits of Love," are now the Sophomores, and that they have just completed a recording session in New York.

Jack, who wrote the music for "Cool, Cool Baby," one of the numbers they recorded, took the boys to New York after hearing them here at a benefit.

"The New York people flipped over them," says Jack. "They'll be big."

In the meantime the Vibratones, who recorded here with Sabby Lewis' band, are cutting a wide swath in Maine. They were at the Kenmore, in Lewiston, for a jam session Saturday, and prior to that, broke it up at the Chez Paree, in Waterville.

Nine pledges of the Kappa Zeta Phi fraternity at Northeastern University, were taken out to the cemeteries in Mattapan the other night, were turned loose, and were told to walk to a big building looming out of the darkness. It was the Mattapan State Hospital, and they spent the night there washing chairs.

A new wrinkle in the initiation business.

Toshiko, the Japanese jazz pianist, will be a guest this morning on the Swan Boat show.

Enterprise (e)
MARLBORO, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 5,165

Sun (e)
HUDSON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 2,085
MAY 2 1956

JOSEPH LYNCH ON COMMITTEE FOR BANQUET

Marlboro—Joseph P. Lynch of Tremont street is on the dinner committee of the Erie Society of Boston which will hold its 19th annual dinner Saturday night at 6:30 in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, Boston.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1,000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation of the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on August 23-25 this year. The gift will be received by Michael T, Kelleher, Orchestra trustee.

Joseph Gannon, president of the Society, will be toastmaster. Soloist for the evening will be the celebrated Irish tenor Hubert Valentine. Music will be by Bill Boyle's Orchestra.

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
MAY 2 1956

Fiedler Opens N

Luise Vosgerchian Soloist In Liszt Concerto for Piano

By Harold Rogers

It's Pops time again!

Last night Arthur Feidler, looking tanned and more distinguished than ever, opened the 71st season. The lower walls of Symphony Hall in chameleon fashion had changed from winter maroon to summer green. The house was packed—at the tables on the main floor as well as in the balconies. Among those present were the New England Grenfell Association, the American Society of Orthodonists, and the Music Lovers Club.

It must have been the Music Lovers Club that lent the prevailing high tone to the proceedings. Mr. Fiedler's program was a little more dignified than usual—at least he didn't pull out any of those whimsical satires that play upon the risibilities.

Few people, of course, are averse to dignity, either in music or in etiquette; but there is one important thing to keep in mind. The light spirit of the Pops should be preserved. This is not meant to be the world's greatest music.

Mr. Fiedler opened with a rousing version of Sousa's "El Capitan" March, continued with a lilting reading of Josef Strauss's "Music of the Spheres" Waltzes, and then threw in an extra—Johann Strauss's witty "Perpetual Motion." Although the musicians lapsed into their Pops style (an incredible difference from their Boston Symphony style), they were nonetheless on their toes, striking off notes with dash and finesse.

We hummed dreamily to Vaughan Williams' expansive Fantasia on "Greensleeves," and all went well with Bach's Little Fugue in G minor until Mr. Fiedler took a ritenuto, not followed too well, and brought the whole thing to a supercharged unmusical climax. But this bit of sour was quickly washed away with the sweet of Offenbach's Overture to "La Belle Hélène."

The star of the second portion of the program was Luise Vosgerchian, soloist in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, the so-called "triangle" concerto. (Liszt did overdo that jangle on the triangle in the last movement, didn't he?)

Miss Vosgerchian is one of the most musical artists to appear at the Pops. If there was ever a concerto for personal ostentation, this is it; but Miss Vosgerchian showed us how it can be made to sound when played with delicacy, sensitivity, and a refined stylistic elegance. This was not weak playing; she has power aplenty when she needs it, and she more than deserved the applause that came her way.

Mr. Fiedler opened the third portion of the program with a medley from "Mr. Fair Lady," the new musical on Broadway based on Shaw's "Pygmalion." Many of Frederick Loewe's tunes are mildly reminiscent—and pleasantly so—of the popular music heard in the early days of our century. "The Rain in Spain" will probably be the hit of the lot.

We then went for a jogging little trot in "The Surrey With the Fringe on Top," after which we were plunged into the sentimental raptures of "Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing," another new item on Mr. Fiedler's list.

For the final piece, however, we settled down sedately for something by Brahms. It was his Hungarian Dance No. 5, filled with color and leg-flinging rhythms, but when one sees the name of Brahms, one with reverence.

Tonight at the Pops

Slavonic Dance in C major .. Dvořák
Overture to "Die Fledermaus" Strauss
Intermezzo from "Tales of Hoffman" Offenbach
Scherzo from Symphony No. 6, Tchaikovsky
Piano Concerto No. 1 in C minor (First Movement) .. Rachmaninov
Soloist: Mineko Sasahara
Three Dances from "The Three-Cornered Hat" .... Falla
Boston Junior College Glee Club
Florence Barbiers, Director
Selections from "My Fair Lady" Loewe-Hayman
Blue-Tail Fly (Contrasts) Rhodes
Finale: Dance, from "The Red Poppy" .... Glière
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593
MAY 2 1956

Pops Fashion News

Dark Silks, Gay Chiffons, Small Hats

Another gay Pops Concert season opened last night. It's one of Boston's proudest institutions and an important item on the social calendar.

Fashion-wise the Pops is important, too. For there can be viewed a lovely cross section of some of Boston's best dressed in every age group.

On charity sponsored nights society mat...

Judging from this spring's trend, flowered silks will be favored too. Light, airy fabrics in garden colors will match the artistry in Arthur Fiedler's magical bat...

...ler like the hat.

...nights at ...among the gayest with huge turnouts of the young set and enthusiastic alumni.

College girls are going all out for the princess lines this spring and usmmer. For evening they love the graceful and slimmer, full skirts.

Bright wool dresses, unadorned because the simple lines are so eye-catching, will prevail at Pops this spring.

On warm June nights the fabulous new cottons will take over. Whit has happened to the "little cotton dress" this year makes it the most imaginative in years.

Some have lace appliques on the skirts, touches of velvet or beads tracing a flowered print.

Often pre-Pops dinner parties set the pace for dressier outfits. Later at Symphony Hall one might see two or three tables of ladies in simple, almost tailored silk chiffons or decollete silks.

Foster's Democrat (e)
DOVER, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 6,920

Union Leader (m)
MANCHESTER, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 43,546

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000
MAY 3 1956

U. of New Hampshire "Pops" Night May 17

The fourth annual University of New Hampshire Night at Pops will be held Thursday evening, May 17 at Symphony at 8:30 p.m. Featured for the evening will be the sixty selected voices of the University's concert choir under the direction of Prof. Karl Bratton.

Preceding the evening at Pops, a reception at the Harvard Club at 6:45 p.m. will introduce the newly appointed President of the University, Dr. and Mrs. Eldon Lee Johnson to alumni and friends in the Greater Boston area. Governor and Mrs. Lane Dwinell of New Hampshire will be among the honored guests for the evening at Pops.

New Hampshire Night at Pops is sponsored by the Boston Chapter of the University of New Hampshire Alumni Association. Sponsors and patrons for the evening aid in the Alumni Club's Gold Star Scholarship fund. Subscriptions and tickets may be obtained from the committee in charge of arrangements: Bernard Delman, '51, of 41 Park Drive, Boston; Ann Silver, '50, of 82 St. Paul street, Brookline and Paul I. Mann, '36, of 29 Englewood Avenue, Brookline.

club of the University of New Hampshire Alumni Association will sponsor the 5th annual New Hampshire Night at Pops, Symphony hall in Boston, May 17.

...ormance will be made under the direction of Professor Karl Bratton, chairman of the Department of Music.

The choir will sing "Exultate Deo" by Scarlatti, "With a Voice of Sining" by UNH Professor Robert W. Manton, "Dry Bones", "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" with Paul Aliapoulis of Manchester as baritone soloist and will conclude with a medley of UNH songs.

Student accompanists for the Choir are Caryl Slanetz of Durham, piano, and Evangeline Ftergidtis of Manchester, organ.

Program chairman is Bernie Delman, of 41 Park Drive, Boston.

Voice of Singing" by UNH Prof. Robert W. Manton, "Dry Bones," "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" with Paul Aliapoulios of Manchester as baritone soloist, and will conclude with a medley of UNH songs.

Student accompanists for the choir are Caryl Slanetz of Durham, piano, and Evangeline Ftergiotis of Manchester, organ.

Program chairman is Bernie Delman of 41 Park drive, Boston.

MAY 3 1956

Pops Night To Aid Guild

Miss Gladys C. Blake of West Roxbury is Chairman of the sixth annual "Pops Night" sponsored by the Symphony Hall Friday, May 4.

Members of the committee are Mesdames William F. Handschumacher, James Murphy, Charles Gariboldi, Laura MacDonald, Joseph F. Reed, also the Misses Eleanor Falvey, M. Helen Huban Alice Mahoney, Kathleen McCarthy, and Emily Tracey.

Proceeds of the concert will aid the Brothers who care for the sick at Hammond Hall, Gloucester, and at Fayette street, Boston.

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 397,884

MAY 2 1956

Around Boston

Rates Hub's Teddi King As Finest Girl Singer

—By GEORGE CLARKE—

SAY IT'S LIKE BLUE VELVET if you like. Or like moire, irridescent, with a rich rustle. Maybe it has the sheen of fine silk.

It has body and substance and it fills the bigness of Blinstrub's to the farthest corner, fills it completely, satisfyingly, yet loses none of its subtlety in the process. It is a whole, a lovely thing.

And if the above seems like an over statement, go yourself and listen to the voice of Boston's own Teddi King as she proves, at every performance, that she has probably the best voice of all girl singers in the popular field.

She's a tiny girl, Teddi is, and it is surprising to hear such volume from so small a person. But size doesn't count when it comes to quality. And of that she has plenty.

So, refuting a show business adage, she is one gal who is making good in her own home town.

Comes From Malden

Teddi, as most know, comes from Malden, and for a good many years she was rapidly getting nowhere. Then George Shearing heard her, hired her, and now she is the darling of RCA-Victor Records. There is no one with a brighter future.

Her best number, of course, is "Mr. Wonderful," the first song she recorded for her new employers, and she gets the most out of it. It is superbly played by Mike Gaylord and his orchestra.

One day, incidentally, Teddi is going to slip into an operatic aria, probably "One Fine Day," from Madam Butterfly. And on that day Your Reporter will be be there to hear it.

It's a fine show behind her, too, with the Two Luvas doing their upside-down routines on a high rigging. They were on the Ed ("Toast of the Town") Sullivan show Sunday night. Back are the Rudenko Brothers, jugglers, and Bob De Voie at the head of an adagio trio. The Elkins Sisters open the show.

After Teddi there'll be four days of Mark Stuart, a bright new singer, then ten days of Frankie Laine.

Dick and Bee Hayman were at Teddi's opening, as were many other notables including George Wein and Cecil Steen, her managers. Bee and Dick are in town for the opening of the Boston "Pops," at which was played his special arrangement of the score from "My Fair Lady," a piece of music he, himself, will conduct at a later performance.

George Wein, incidentally, confirmed the report that this will be the last year of the Jazz Festival at Newport. It will be there this year, but will have a new home the year after. The name has been changed to the American Jazz Festival. George is hopeful of bringing it to some town in Massachusetts.

Finish New York Recording

Jack Richards, who wrote the music for "He," sends a note to the effect that the group from Roxbury which used to be known as "The Spirits of Love," are now the Sophomores, and that they have just completed a recording session in New York.

Jack, who wrote the music for "Cool, Cool Baby," one of the numbers they recorded, took the boys to New York after hearing them here at a benefit.

"The New York people flipped over them," says Jack. "They'll be big."

In the meantime the Vibratones, who recorded here with Sabby Lewis' band, are cutting a wide swath in Maine. They were at the Kenmore, in Lewiston, for a jam session Saturday, and prior to that, broke it up at the Chez Paree, in Waterville.

Nine pledges of the Kappa Zeta Phi fraternity at Northeastern University, were taken out to the cemeteries in Mattapan the other night, were turned loose, and were told to walk to a big building looming out of the darkness. It was the Mattapan State Hospital, and they spent the night there washing chairs.

A new wrinkle in the initiation business.

Toshiko, the Japanese jazz pianist, will be a guest this morning on the Swan Boat show.

Enterprise (e)
MARLBORO, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 5,165

Sun (e)
HUDSON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 2,085

MAY 2 1956

JOSEPH LYNCH ON COMMITTEE FOR BANQUET

Marlboro—Joseph P. Lynch of Tremont street is on the dinner committee of the Erie Society of Boston which will hold its 19th annual dinner Saturday night at 6:30 in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, Boston.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1,000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation of the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on August 23-25 this year. The gift will be received by Michael T, Kelleher, Orchestra trustee.

Joseph Gannon, president of the Society, will be toastmaster. Soloist for the evening will be the celebrated Irish tenor Hubert Valentine. Music will be by Bill Boyle's Orchestra.

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 2 1956

Fiedler Opens N

Luise Vosgerchian Soloist In Liszt Concerto for Piano

By Harold Rogers

It's Pops time again!

Last night Arthur Feidler, looking tanned and more distinguished than ever, opened the 71st season. The lower walls of Symphony Hall in chameleon fashion had changed from winter maroon to summer green. The house was packed—at the tables on the main floor as well as in the balconies. Among those present were the New England Grenfell Association, the American Society of Orthodonists, and the Music Lovers Club.

It must have been the Music Lovers Club that lent the prevailing high tone to the proceedings. Mr. Fiedler's program was a little more dignified than usual—at least he didn't pull out any of those whimsical satires that play upon the risibilities.

Few people, of course, are averse to dignity, either in music or in etiquette; but there is one important thing to keep in mind. The light spirit of the Pops should be preserved. This is not meant to be the world's greatest music.

♪ ♪ ♪

Mr. Fiedler opened with a rousing version of Sousa's "El Capitan" March, continued with a lilting reading of Josef Strauss's "Music of the Spheres" Waltzes, and then threw in an extra — Johann Strauss's witty "Perpetual Motion." Although the musicians lapsed into their Pops style (an incredible difference from their Boston Symphony style), they were nonetheless on their toes, striking off notes with dash and finesse.

We hummed dreamily to Vaughan Williams' expansive Fantasia on "Greensleeves," and all went well with Bach's Little Fugue in G minor until Mr. Fiedler took a ritenuto, not followed too well, and brought the whole thing to a supercharged unmusical climax. But this bit of sour was quickly washed away with the sweet of Offenbach's Overture to "La Belle Hélène."

The star of the second portion of the program was Luise Vosgerchian, soloist in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, the so-called "triangle" concerto. (Liszt did overdo that jangle on the triangle in the last movement, didn't he?)

Miss Vosgerchian is one of the most musical artists to appear at the Pops. If there was ever a concerto for personal ostentation, this is it; but Miss Vosgerchian showed us how it can be made to sound when played with delicacy, sensitivity, and a refined stylistic elegance. This was not weak playing; she has power aplenty when she needs it, and she more than deserved the applause that came her way.

♪ ♪ ♪

Mr. Fiedler opened the third portion of the program with a medley from "Mr. Fair Lady," the new musical on Broadway based on Shaw's "Pygmalion." Many of Frederick Loewe's tunes are mildly reminiscent—and pleasantly so—of the popular music heard in the early days of our century. "The Rain in Spain" will probably be the hit of the lot.

We then went for a jogging little trot in "The Surrey With the Fringe on Top," after which we were plunged into the sentimental raptures of "Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing," another new item on Mr. Fiedler's list.

For the final piece, however, we settled down sedately for something by Brahms. It was his Hungarian Dance No. 5, filled with color and leg-flinging rhythms, but when one hears the name of Brahms, one with reverence.

Tonight at the Pops

Slavonic Dance in C major ... Dvořák
Overture to "Die Fiedermaus" ... Strauss
Intermezzo from "Tales of Hoffman" ... Offenbach
Scherzo from Symphony No. 6 ... Tchaikovsky
Piano Concerto No. 2 in C minor (First Movement) ... Rachmaninov
Soloist: Mineko Sasahara
Three Dances from "The Three-Cornered Hat" ... Falla
Boston Junior College Glee Club
Florence Barbiers, Director
Selection from "My Fair Lady" ... Loewe-Hayman
The Blue-Tail Fly (Contrasts) ... Rhodes
Sailors' Dance, from "The Red Poppy" ... Glière
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 2 1956

Pops Fashion News

Dark Silks, Gay Chiffons, Small Hats

Another gay Pops Concert season opened last night. It's one of Boston's proudest institutions and an important item on the social calendar.

Fashion-wise the Pops is important, too. For there can be viewed a lovely cross section of some of Boston's best dressed in every age group.

On charity sponsored nights society matrons ... Judging from this spring's trend, flowered silks will be favored too. Light, airy fabrics in garden colors will match the artistry in Arthur Fiedler's magical baton.

... music dealer like the ... hat.

... nights at ... among the gayest with huge turnouts of the young set and enthusiastic alumni.

College girls are going all out for the princess lines this spring and usmmer. For evening they love the graceful and slimmer, full skirts.

Bright wool dresses, unadorned because the simple lines are so eye-catching, will prevail at Pops this spring.

On warm June nights the fabulous new cottons will take over. Whit has happened to the "little cotton dress" this year makes it the most imaginative in years.

Some have lace appliques on the skirts, touches of velvet or beads tracing a flowered print.

Often pre-Pops dinner parties set the pace for dressier outfits. Later at Symphony Hall one might see two or three tables of ladies in simple, almost tailored silk chiffons or decollete silks.

Foster's Democrat (e)
DOVER, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 6,920

Union Leader (m)
MANCHESTER, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 42,546

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 3 1956

U. of New Hampshire "Pops" Night May 17

The fourth annual University of New Hampshire Night at Pops will be held Thursday evening, May 17 at Symphony at 8:30 p.m. Featured for the evening will be the sixty selected voices of the University's concert choir under the direction of Prof. Karl Bratton.

Preceding the evening at Pops, a reception at the Harvard Club at 6:45 p.m. will introduce the newly appointed President of the University, Dr. and Mrs. Eldon Lee Johnson to alumni and friends in the Greater Boston area. Governor and Mrs. Lane Dwinell of New Hampshire will be among the honored guests for the evening at Pops.

New Hampshire Night at Pops is sponsored by the Boston Chapter of the University of New Hampshire Alumni Association. Sponsors and patrons for the evening aid in the Alumni Club's Gold Star Scholarship fund. Subscriptions and tickets may be obtained from the committee in charge of arrangements: Bernard Delman, '51, of 41 Park Drive, Boston; Ann Silver, '50, of 82 St. Paul street, Brookline and Paul I. Mann, '38, of 29 Englewood Avenue, Brookline.

club of the University of New Hampshire Alumni Association will sponsor the 5th annual New Hampshire Night at Pops, Symphony hall in Boston, May 17.

...ppearance will be made under the direction of Professor Karl Bratton, chairman of the Department of Music.

The choir will sing "Exultate Deo" by Scarlatti, "With a Voice of Sining" by UNH Professor Robert W. Manton, "Dry Bones", "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" with Paul Aliapoulis of Manchester as baritone soloist and will conclude with a medley of UNH songs.

Student accompanists for the Choir are Caryl Slanetz of Durham, piano, and Evangeline Ftergidtis of Manchester, organ.

Program chairman is Bernie Delman, of 41 Park Drive, Boston.

MAY 3 1956

Pops Night To Aid Guild

Miss Gladys C. Blake of West Roxbury is Chairman of the sixth annual "Pops Night" sponsored by the Symphony Hall Friday, May 4.

Members of the committee are Mesdames William F. Handschumacher, James Murphy, Charles Gariboldi, Laura MacDonald, Joseph F. Reed, also the Misses Eleanor Falvey, M. Helen Huban Alice Mahoney, Kathleen McCarthy, and Emily Tracey.

Proceeds of the concert will aid the Brothers who care for the sick at Hammond Hall, Gloucester, and at Fayette street, Boston.

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 397,884

MAY 2 1956

Around Boston

Rates Hub's Teddi King As Finest Girl Singer

—By GEORGE CLARKE—

SAY IT'S LIKE BLUE VELVET if you like. Or like moire, irridescent, with a rich rustle. Maybe it has the sheen of fine silk.

It has body and substance and it fills the bigness of Blinstrub's to the farthest corner, fills it completely, satisfyingly, yet loses none of its subtlety in the process. It is a whole, a lovely thing.

And if the above seems like an over statement, go yourself and listen to the voice of Boston's own Teddi King as she proves, at every performance, that she has probably the best voice of all girl singers in the popular field.

She's a tiny girl, Teddi is, and it is surprising to hear such volume from so small a person. But size doesn't count when it comes to quality. And of that she has plenty.

So, refuting a show business adage, she is one gal who is making good in her own home town.

Comes From Malden

Teddi, as most know, comes from Malden, and for a good many years she was rapidly getting nowhere. Then George Shearing heard her, hired her, and now she is the darling of RCA-Victor Records. There is no one with a brighter future.

Her best number, of course, is "Mr. Wonderful," the first song she recorded for her new employers, and she gets the most out of it. It is superbly played by Mike Gaylord and his orchestra.

One day, incidentally, Teddi is going to slip into an operatic aria, probably "One Fine Day," from Madam Butterfly. And on that day Your Reporter will be there to hear it.

It's a fine show behind her, too, with the Two Luvas doing their upside-down routines on a high rigging. They were on the Ed ("Toast of the Town") Sullivan show Sunday night. Back are the Rudenko Brothers, jugglers, and Bob De Voie at the head of an adagio trio. The Elkins Sisters open the show.

After Teddi there'll be four days of Mark Stuart, a bright new singer, then ten days of Frankie Laine.

Dick and Bee Hayman were at Teddi's opening, as were many other notables including George Wein and Cecil Steen, her managers. Bee and Dick are in town for the opening of the Boston "Pops," at which was played his special arrangement of the score from "My Fair Lady," a piece of music he, himself, will conduct at a later performance.

George Wein, incidentally, confirmed the report that this will be the last year of the Jazz Festival at Newport. It will be there this year, but will have a new home the year after. The name has been changed to the American Jazz Festival. George is hopeful of bringing it to some town in Massachusetts.

Finish New York Recording

Jack Richards, who wrote the music for "He," sends ...he effect that the group from Roxbury which ...nown as "The Spirits of Love," are now ...res, and that they have just completed a ...sion in New York.

...wrote the music for "Cool, Cool Baby," ...mbers they recorded, took the boys to ...r hearing them here at a benefit.

...York people flipped over them," says ...be big."

...ime the Vibratones, who recorded here ...is' band, are cutting a wide swath in ...re at the Kenmore, in Lewiston, for a ...rday, and prior to that, broke it up at ...n Waterville.

...of the Kappa Zeta Phi fraternity at ...versity, were taken out to the cemetery ... the other night, were turned loose, ...talk to a big building looming out of ...as the Mattapan State Hospital, and ...t there washing chairs.

...n the initiation business.

...anese jazz pianist, will be a guest ...Swan Boat show.

JOSEPH LYNCH ON COMMITTEE FOR BANQUET

Marlboro—Joseph P. Lynch of Tremont street is on the dinner committee of the Erie Society of Boston which will hold its 19th annual dinner Saturday night at 6:30 in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, Boston.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1,000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation of the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on August 23-25 this year. The gift will be received by Michael T, Kelleher, Orchestra trustee.

Joseph Gannon, president of the Society, will be toastmaster. Soloist for the evening will be the celebrated Irish tenor Hubert Valentine. Music will be by Bill Boyle's Orchestra.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 2 1956

Fiedler Opens N...

Luise Vosgerchian Soloist In Liszt Concerto for Piano

By Harold Rogers

It's Pops time again!

Last night Arthur Feidler, looking tanned and more distinguished than ever, opened the 71st season. The lower walls of Symphony Hall in chameleon fashion had changed from winter maroon to summer green. The house was packed—at the tables on the main floor as well as in the balconies. Among those present were the New England Grenfell Association, the American Society of Orthodonists, and the Music Lovers Club.

It must have been the Music Lovers Club that lent the prevailing high tone to the proceedings. Mr. Fiedler's program was a little more dignified than usual—at least he didn't pull out any of those whimsical satires that play upon the risibilities.

Few people, of course, are averse to dignity, either in music or in etiquette; but there is one important thing to keep in mind. The light spirit of the Pops should be preserved. This is not meant to be the world's greatest music.

* * *

Mr. Fiedler opened with a rousing version of Sousa's "El Capitan" March, continued with a lilting reading of Josef Strauss's "Music of the Spheres" Waltzes, and then threw in an extra — Johann Strauss's witty "Perpetual Motion." Although the musicians lapsed into their Pops style (an incredible difference from their Boston Symphony style), they were nonetheless on their toes, striking off notes with dash and finesse.

We hummed dreamily to Vaughan Williams' expansive Fantasia on "Greensleeves," and all went well with Bach's Little Fugue in G minor until Mr. Fiedler took a ritenuto, not followed too well, and brought the whole thing to a supercharged unmusical climax. But this bit of sour was quickly washed away with the sweet of Offenbach's Overture to "La Belle Hélène."

The star of the second portion of the program was Luise Vosgerchian, soloist in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, the so-called "triangle" concerto. (Liszt did overdo that jangle on the triangle in the last movement, didn't he?)

Miss Vosgerchian is one of the most musical artists to appear at the Pops. If there was ever a concerto for personal ostentation, this is it; but Miss Vosgerchian showed us how it can be made to sound when played with delicacy, sensitivity, and a refined stylistic elegance. This was not weak playing; she has power aplenty when she needs it, and she more than deserved the applause that came her way.

* * *

Mr. Fiedler opened the third portion of the program with a medley from "Mr. Fair Lady," the new musical on Broadway based on Shaw's "Pygmalion." Many of Frederick Loewe's tunes are mildly reminiscent—and pleasantly so—of the popular music heard in the early days of our century. "The Rain in Spain" will probably be the hit of the lot.

We then went for a jogging little trot in "The Surrey With the Fringe on Top," after which we were plunged into the sentimental raptures of "Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing," another new item on Mr. Fiedler's list.

For the final piece, however, we settled down sedately for something by Brahms. It was his Hungarian Dance No. 5, filled with color and leg-flinging rhythms, but when one sees the name of Brahms, one ... with reverence.

Tonight at the Pops

Slavonic Dance in C major ... Dvořák
Overture to "Die Fledermaus" ... Strauss
Intermezzo from "Tales of Hoffman" ... Offenbach
Scherzo from Symphony No. 6 ... Tchaikovsky
Piano Concerto No. 2 in C minor (First Movement) ... Rachmaninov
Soloist: Mineko Sasahara
Three Dances from "The Three-Cornered Hat" ... Falla
Boston Junior College Glee Club
Florence Barbiers, Director
Selection from "My Fair Lady" ... Loewe-Hayman
The Blue-Tail Fly (Contrasts) ... Rhodes
Sailors' Dance, from "The Red Poppy" ... Glière
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 2 1956

Pops Fashion News

Dark Silks, Gay Chiffons, Small Hats

Another gay Pops Concert season opened last night. It's one of Boston's proudest institutions and an important item on the social calendar.

Fashion-wise the Pops is important, too. For there can be viewed a lovely cross section of some of Boston's best dressed in every age group.

On charity ...

Judging from this spring's trend, flowered silks will be favored too. Light, airy fabrics in garden colors ... match the ...

...College-sponsored nights at Pops are among the gayest with huge turnouts of the young set and enthusiastic alumni.

College girls are going all out for the princess lines this spring and usmmer. For evening they love the graceful and slimmer, full skirts.

Bright wool dresses, unadorned because the simple lines are so eye-catching, will prevail at Pops this spring.

On warm June nights the fabulous new cottons will take over. Whit has happened to the "little cotton dress" this year makes it the most imaginative in years.

Some have lace appliques on the skirts, touches of velvet or beads tracing a flowered print.

Often pre-Pops dinner parties set the pace for dressier outfits. Later at Symphony Hall one might see two or three tables of ladies in simple, almost tailored silk chiffons or decollete silks.

...s. And, con- ...the table be- ...ller like the ...il hat.

MAY 3 1956

Pops Night To Aid Guild

Miss Gladys C. Blake of West Roxbury is Chairman of the sixth annual "Pops Night" sponsored by the Symphony Hall Friday, May 4.

Members of the committee are Mesdames William F. Handschumacher, James Murphy, Charles Gariboldi, Laura MacDonald, Joseph F. Reed, also the Misses Eleanor Falvey, M. Helen Huban Alice Mahoney, Kathleen McCarthy, and Emily Tracey.

Proceeds of the concert will aid the Brothers who care for the sick at Hammond Hall, Gloucester, and at Fayette street, Boston.

...club of the University of New ...Hampshire Alumni Association will ...sponsor the 5th annual New Hampshire Night at Pops, Symphony hall in Boston, May 17.

...A guest appearance will be made ...

...under the direction of Professor Karl Bratton, chairman of the Department of Music.

The choir will sing "Exultate Deo" by Scarlatti, "With a Voice of Sining" by UNH Professor Robert W. Manton, "Dry Bones", "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" with Paul Aliapoulis of Manchester as baritone soloist and will conclude with a medley of UNH songs.

Student accompanists for the Choir are Caryl Slanetz of Durham, piano, and Evangeline Ftergidtis of Manchester, organ.

Program chairman is Bernie Delman, of 41 Park Drive, Boston.

...Club Will Hear Concert Choir

DURHAM — The Boston Alumni club of the University of New Hampshire Alumni association will sponsor the fifth annual New Hampshire night at Pops Symphony hall, Boston, on May 17.

A guest appearance will be made by the University Concert choir under the direction of Prof. Karl Bratton, chairman of the department of music.

The choir will sing "Exultate Deo" by Scarlatti, "With a Voice of Singing" by UNH Prof. Robert W. Manton, "Dry Bones," "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" with Paul Aliapoulios of Manchester as baritone soloist, and will conclude with a medley of UNH songs.

Student accompanists for the choir are Caryl Slanetz of Durham, piano, and Evangeline Ftergiotis of Manchester, organ.

Program chairman is Bernie Delman of 41 Park drive, Boston.

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 397,884

MAY 2 1956

Around Boston

Rates Hub's Teddi King As Finest Girl Singer

—By GEORGE CLARKE—

SAY IT'S LIKE BLUE VELVET if you like. Or like moire, irridescent, with a rich rustle. Maybe it has the sheen of fine silk.

It has body and substance and it fills the bigness of Blinstrub's to the farthest corner, fills it completely, satisfyingly, yet loses none of its subtlety in the process. It is a whole, a lovely thing.

And if the above seems like an over statement, go yourself and listen to the voice of Boston's own Teddi King as she proves, at every performance, that she has probably the best voice of all girl singers in the popular field.

She's a tiny girl, Teddi is, and it is surprising to hear such volume from so small a person. But size doesn't count when it comes to quality. And of that she has plenty.

So, refuting a show business adage, she is one gal who is making good in her own home town.

Comes From Malden

Teddi, as most know, comes from Malden, and for a good many years she was rapidly getting nowhere. Then George Shearing heard her, hired her, and now she is the darling of RCA-Victor Records. There is no one with a brighter future.

Her best number, of course, is "Mr. Wonderful," the first song she recorded for her new employers, and she gets the most out of it. It is superbly played by Mike Gaylord and his orchestra.

One day, incidentally, Teddi is going to slip into an operatic aria, probably "One Fine Day," from Madam Butterfly. And on that day Your Reporter will be there to hear it.

It's a fine show behind her, too, with the Two Luvas doing their upside-down routines on a high rigging. They were on the Ed ("Toast of the Town") Sullivan show Sunday night. Back are the Rudenko Brothers, jugglers, and Bob De Voie at the head of an adagio trio. The Elkins Sisters open the show.

After Teddi there'll be four days of Mark Stuart, a bright new singer, then ten days of Frankie Laine.

Dick and Bee Hayman were at Teddi's opening, as were many other notables including George Wein and Cecil Steen, her managers. Bee and Dick are in town for the opening of the Boston "Pops," at which was played his special arrangement of the score from "My Fair Lady," a piece of music he, himself, will conduct at a later performance.

George Wein, incidentally, confirmed the report that this will be the last year of the Jazz Festival at Newport. It will be there this year, but will have a new home the year after. The name has been changed to the American Jazz Festival. George is hopeful of bringing it to some town in Massachusetts.

Finish New York Recording

Jack Richards, who wrote the music for "He," sends a note to the effect that the group from Roxbury which used to be known as "The Spirits of Love," are now the Sophomores, and that they have just completed a recording session in New York.

Jack, who wrote the music for "Cool, Cool Baby," one of the numbers they recorded, took the boys to New York after hearing them here at a benefit.

"The New York people flipped over them," says Jack. "They'll be big."

In the meantime the Vibrato[illegible] Abby Lewis' band, a[illegible] They were at [illegible] Satur[illegible]

Empire Electric
Member of Elect[illegible]
1641 Be[illegible]

Oak Hill Grange Books
Benefit Musical Comedy
FRANCESTOWN—Oak Hill Grange [illegible] the cast and handle pub-Francestown

JOSEPH LYNCH ON COMMITTEE FOR BANQUET

Marlboro—Joseph P. Lynch of Tremont street is on the dinner committee of the Erie Society of Boston which will hold its 19th annual dinner Saturday night at 6:30 in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, Boston.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1,000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation of the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on August 23-25 this year. The gift will be received by Michael T, Kelleher, Orchestra trustee.

Joseph Gannon, president of the Society, will be toastmaster. Soloist for the evening will be the celebrated Irish tenor Hubert Valentine. Music will be by Bill Boyle's Orchestra.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 2 1956

UNH Night At Boston Pops On Thursday, May 17

DURHAM — The Boston Alumni club of the University of New Hampshire Alumni Association will sponsor the 5th annual New Hampshire Night at Pops, Symphony hall in Boston, May 17.

A guest appearance will be made by the University Concert Choir, under the direction of Professor Karl Bratton, chairman of the Department of Music.

The choir will sing "Exultate Deo" by Scarlatti, "With a Voice of Sining" by UNH Professor Robert W. Manton, "Dry Bones", "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" with Paul Aliapoulis of Manchester as baritone soloist and will conclude with a medley of UNH songs.

Student accompanists for the Choir are Caryl Slanetz of Durham, piano, and Evangeline Ftergidtis of Manchester, organ.

Program chairman is Bernie Deman, of 41 Park Drive, Boston.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 2 1956

Fiedler Opens N[illegible]

Luise Vosgerchian Soloist In Liszt Concerto for Piano

By Harold Rogers

It's Pops time again!

Last night Arthur Feidler, looking tanned and more distinguished than ever, opened the 71st season. The lower walls of Symphony Hall in chameleon fashion had changed from winter maroon to summer green. The house was packed—at the tables on the main floor as well as in the balconies. Among those present were the New England Grenfell Association, the American Society of Orthodonists, and the Music Lovers Club.

It must have been the Music Lovers Club that lent the prevailing high tone to the proceedings. Mr. Fiedler's program was a little more dignified than usual —at least he didn't pull out any of those whimsical satires that play upon the risibilities.

Few people, of course, are averse to dignity, either in music or in etiquette; but there is one important thing to keep in mind. The light spirit of the Pops should be preserved. This is not meant to be the world's greatest music.

* * *

Mr. Fiedler opened with a rousing version of Sousa's "El Capitan" March, continued with a lilting reading of Josef Strauss's "Music of the Spheres" Waltzes, and then threw in an extra — Johann Strauss's witty "Perpetual Motion." Although the musicians lapsed into their Pops style (an incredible difference from their Boston Symphony style), they were nonetheless on their toes, striking off notes with dash and finesse.

We hummed dreamily to Vaughan Williams' expansive Fantasia on "Greensleeves," and all went well with Bach's Little Fugue in G minor until Mr. Fiedler took a ritenuto, not followed too well, and brought the whole thing to a supercharged unmusical climax. But this bit of sour was quickly washed away with the sweet of Offenbach's Overture to "La Belle Hélène."

The star of the second portion of the program was Luise Vosgerchian, soloist in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, the so-called "triangle" concerto. (Liszt did overdo that jangle on the triangle in the last movement, didn't he?)

Miss Vosgerchian is one of the most musical artists to appear at the Pops. If there was ever a concerto for personal ostentation, this is it; but Miss Vosgerchian showed us how it can be made to sound when played with delicacy, sensitivity, and a refined stylistic elegance. This was not weak playing; she has power aplenty when she needs it, and she more than deserved the applause that came her way.

* * *

Mr. Fiedler opened the third portion of the program with a medley from "Mr. Fair Lady," the new musical on Broadway based on Shaw's "Pygmalion." Many of Frederick Loewe's tunes are mildly reminiscent—and pleasantly so—of the popular music heard in the early days of our century. "The Rain in Spain" will probably be the hit of the lot.

We then went for a jogging little trot in "The Surrey With the Fringe on Top," after which we were plunged into the sentimental raptures of "Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing," another new item on Mr. Fiedler's list.

For the final piece, however, we settled down sedately for something by Brahms. It was his Hungarian Dance No. 5, filled with color and leg-flinging rhythms, but when one [illegible] name of Brahms, one with reverence.

Tonight at the Pops

Slavonic Dance in C major ... Dvořák
Overture to "Die Fledermaus" ... Strauss
Intermezzo from "Tales of Hoffman" ... Offenbach
Scherzo from Symphony No. 6 ... Tchaikovsky
Piano Concerto No. 2 in C minor (Other Movement) ... Rachmaninov
Soloist: Mineko Sasahara
Dances from "The Three-Cornered Hat" ... Falla
Junior College Glee Club
Florence Barbiers, Director
Selection from "My Fair Lady" ... Loewe-Hayman
The Bee-Tail Fly (Contrasts) ... Rhodes
Sailors' Dance, from "The Red Poppy" ... Glière
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

MAY 3 1956

Pops Night To Aid Guild

Miss Gladys C. Blake of West Roxbury is Chairman of the sixth annual "Pops Night" sponsored by the Symphony Hall Friday, May 4.

Members of the committee are Mesdames William F. Handschumacher, James Murphy, Charles Gariboldi, Laura MacDonald, Joseph F. Reed, also the Misses Eleanor Falvey, M. Helen Huban Alice Mahoney, Kathleen McCarthy, and Emily Tracey.

Proceeds of the concert will aid the Brothers who care for the sick at Hammond Hall, Gloucester, and at Fayette street, Boston.

Pops Fashion News

Dark Silks, Gay Chiffons, Small Hats

Another gay Pops Concert season opened last night. It's one of Boston's proudest institutions and an important item on the social calendar.

Fashion-wise the Pops is important, too. For there can be viewed a lovely cross section of some of Boston's best dressed in every age group.

On charity spo[illegible]

Judging from this spring's trend, flowered silks will be favored too. Light, airy fabrics in garden colors will match the artis[illegible]

[illegible] sponsored nights at Pops are among the gayest with huge turnouts of the young set and enthusiastic alumni.

College girls are going all out for the princess lines this spring and usmmer. For evening they love the graceful and slimmer, full skirts.

Bright wool dresses, unadorned because the simple lines are so eye-catching, will prevail at Pops this spring.

On warm June nights the fabulous new cottons will take over. Whit has happened to the "little cotton dress" this year makes it the most imaginative in years.

Some have lace appliques on the skirts, touches of velvet or beads tracing a flowered print.

Often pre-Pops dinner parties set the pace for dressier outfits. Later at Symphony Hall one might see two or three tables of ladies in simple, almost tailored silk chiffons or decollete silks.

[illegible] And, con- [illegible] the table be- [illegible] ler like the [illegible] hat.

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 397,884

MAY 2 1956

Around Boston

Rates Hub's Teddi King As Finest Girl Singer

—By GEORGE CLARKE—

SAY IT'S LIKE BLUE VELVET if you like. Or like moire, irridescent, with a rich rustle. Maybe it has the sheen of fine silk.

It has body and substance and it fills the bigness of Blinstrub's to the farthest corner, fills it completely, satisfyingly, yet loses none of its subtlety in the process. It is a whole, a lovely thing.

And if the above seems like an over statement, go yourself and listen to the voice of Boston's own Teddi King as she proves, at every performance, that she has probably the best voice of all girl singers in the popular field.

She's a tiny girl, Teddi is, and it is surprising to hear such volume from so small a person. But size doesn't count when it comes to quality. And of that she has plenty.

So, refuting a show business adage, she is one gal who is making good in her own home town.

Comes From Malden

Teddi, as most know, comes from Malden, and for a good many years she was rapidly getting nowhere. Then George Shearing heard her, hired her, and now she is the darling of RCA-Victor Records. There is no one with a brighter future.

Her best number, of course, is "Mr. Wonderful," the first song she recorded for her new employers, and she gets the most out of it. It is superbly played by Mike Gaylord and his orchestra.

One day, incidentally, Teddi is going to slip into an operatic aria, probably "One Fine Day," from Madam Butterfly. And on that day Your Reporter will be be there to hear it.

It's a fine show behind her, too, with the Two Luvas doing their upside-down routines on a high rigging. They were on the Ed ("Toast of the Town") Sullivan show Sunday night. Back are the Rudenko Brothers, jugglers, and Bob De Voie at the head of an adagio trio. The Elkins Sisters open the show.

After Teddi there'll be four days of Mark Stuart, a bright new singer, then ten days of Frankie Laine.

Dick and Bee Hayman were at Teddi's opening, as were many other notables including George Wein and Cecil Steen, her managers. Bee and Dick are in town for the opening of the Boston "Pops," at which was played his special arrangement of the score from "My Fair Lady," a piece of music he, himself, will conduct at a later performance.

George Wein, incidentally, confirmed the report that this will be the last year of the Jazz Festival at Newport. It will be there this year, but will have a new home the year after. The name has been changed to the American Jazz Festival. George is hopeful of bringing it to some town in Massachusetts.

Finish New York Recording

Jack Richards, who wrote the music for "He," sends a note to the effect that the group from Roxbury which used to be known as "The Spirits of Love," are now the Sophomores, and that they have just completed a recording session in New York.

Jack, who wrote the music for "Cool, Cool Baby," one of the numbers they recorded, took the boys to New York after hearing them here at a benefit.

"The New York people flipped over them," says Jack. "They'll be big."

In the meantime the Vibrato[illegible] recorded here [illegible] Abby Lewis' band, a[illegible] wide swath in [illegible] They were at [illegible] Boston, for a [illegible] ion Satur[illegible] it up at [illegible]

JOSEPH LYNCH ON COMMITTEE FOR BANQUET

Marlboro—Joseph P. Lynch of Tremont street is on the dinner committee of the Erie Society of Boston which will hold its 19th annual dinner Saturday night at 6:30 in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, Boston.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1,000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation of the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on August 23-25 this year. The gift will be received by Michael T, Kelleher, Orchestra trustee.

Joseph Gannon, president of the Society, will be toastmaster. Soloist for the evening will be the celebrated Irish tenor Hubert Valentine. Music will be by Bill Boyle's Orchestra.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 2 1956

Fiedler Opens N

Luise Vosgerchian Soloist In Liszt Concerto for Piano

By Harold Rogers

It's Pops time again!

Last night Arthur Feidler, looking tanned and more distinguished than ever, opened the 71st season. The lower walls of Symphony Hall in chameleon fashion had changed from winter maroon to summer green. The house was packed—at the tables on the main floor as well as in the balconies. Among those present were the New England Grenfell Association, the American Society of Orthodonists, and the Music Lovers Club.

It must have been the Music Lovers Club that lent the prevailing high tone to the proceedings. Mr. Fiedler's program was a little more dignified than usual—at least he didn't pull out any of those whimsical satires that play upon the risibilities.

"New" people, of course, are averse to dignity, either in music or in etiquette; but there is one important thing to keep in mind. The light spirit of the Pops should be preserved. This is not meant to be the world's greatest music.

* * *

Mr. Fiedler opened with a rousing version of Sousa's "El Capitan" March, continued with a lilting reading of Josef Strauss's "Music of the Spheres" Waltzes, and then threw in an extra — Johann Strauss's witty "Perpetual Motion." Although the musicians lapsed into their Pops style (an incredible difference from their Boston Symphony style), they were nonetheless on their toes, striking off notes with dash and finesse.

We hummed dreamily to Vaughan Williams' expansive Fantasia on "Greensleeves," and all went well with Bach's Little Fugue in G minor until Mr. Fiedler took a ritenuto, not followed too well, and brought the whole thing to a supercharged unmusical climax. But this bit of sour was quickly washed away with the sweet of Offenbach's Overture to "La Belle Hélène."

The star of the second portion of the program was Luise Vosgerchian, soloist in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, the so-called "triangle" concerto. (Liszt did overdo that jangle on the triangle in the last movement, didn't he?)

Miss Vosgerchian is one of the most musical artists to appear at the Pops. If there was ever a concerto for personal ostentation, this is it; but Miss Vosgerchian showed us how it can be made to sound when played with delicacy, sensitivity, and a refined stylistic elegance. This was not weak playing; she has power aplenty when she needs it, and she more than deserved the applause that came her way.

* * *

Mr. Fiedler opened the third portion of the program with a medley from "Mr. Fair Lady," the new musical on Broadway based on Shaw's "Pygmalion." Many of Frederick Loewe's tunes are mildly reminiscent—and pleasantly so—of the popular music heard in the early days of our century. "The Rain in Spain" will probably be the hit of the lot.

We then went for a jogging little trot in "The Surrey With the Fringe on Top," after which we were plunged into the sentimental raptures of "Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing," another new item on Mr. Fiedler's list.

For the final piece, however, we settled down sedately for something by Brahms. It was his Hungarian Dance No. 5, filled with color and leg-flinging rhythms, but when one sees the name of Brahms, one [illegible] with reverence.

Tonight at the Pops

Slavonic Dance in C major .. Dvořák
Overture to "Die Fledermaus" Strauss
Intermezzo from "Tales of Hoffman" Offenbach
Scherzo from Symphony No. 6, Tchaikovsky
Piano Concerto No. 2 in C minor (First Movement) .. Rachmaninov
Soloist: Mineko Sasahara
Three Dances from "The Three-Cornered Hat" ..... Falla
Boston Junior College Glee Club
Florence Barbiers, Director
Selection from "My Fair Lady" Loewe-Hayman
The Bee-Tail Fly (Contrasts) Rhodes
Bacchanal Dance, from "The Red Poppy" ..... Glière
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 2 1956

Pops Fashion News

Dark Silks, Gay Chiffons, Small Hats

Another gay Pops Concert season opened last night. It's one of Boston's proudest institutions and an important item on the social calendar.

Fashion-wise the Pops is important, too. For there can be viewed a lovely cross section of some of Boston's best dressed in every age group.

On charity sponsored nights society matrons can be seen in smart drak crepes and silks.

Judging from this spring's trend, flowered silks will be favored too. Light, airy fabrics in garden colors will match the artistry in Arthur Fiedler's magical baton.

Matrons are finding youthful flattery with the new sheath lines and floating panels. With them well dressed Boston women favor gay flowered hats. And, considering those at the table behind, they are smaller like the theater or cocktail hat.

College-sponsored nights at Pops are among the gayest with huge turnouts of the young set and enthusiastic alumni.

College girls are going all out for the princess lines this spring and usmmer. For evening they love the graceful and slimmer, full skirts.

Bright wool dresses, unadorned because the simple lines are so eye-catching, will prevail at Pops this spring.

On warm June nights the fabulous new cottons will take over. Whit has happened to the "little cotton dress" this year makes it the most imaginative in years.

Some have lace appliques on the skirts, touches of velvet or beads tracing a flowered print.

Often pre-Pops dinner parties set the pace for dressier outfits. Later at Symphony Hall one might see two or three tables of ladies in simple, almost tailored silk chiffons or decollete silks.

Jamaica Plain Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 11,800

MAY 3 1956

Pops Night To Aid Guild

Miss Gladys C. Blake of West Roxbury is Chairman of the sixth annual "Pops Night" sponsored by the Symphony Hall Friday, May 4.

Members of the committee are Mesdames William F. Handschumacher, James Murphy, Charles Garibodi, Laura MacDonald, Joseph F. Reed, also the Misses Eleanor Falvey, M. Helen Huban Alice Mahoney, Kathleen McCarthy, and Emily Tracey.

Proceeds of the concert will aid the Brothers who care for the sick at Hammond Hall, Gloucester, and at Fayette street, Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 2 1956

83

Society: Grenfell Night Opens Pops; Deb Cotillion Bids in Mail

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

With all its traditions intact, from pretty flower girls to the peach-color gladioli banked on the stage where Arthur Fiedler took his brisk stand for the 26th year, Pops opened at Symphony Hall last night. It was the 71st season of these wonderful concerts, which are almost as famous as Boston's Symphony afternoons and evenings, which date back 75 years.

★ ★ ★

Still another tradition, as this pleasant season opens again, is the fact that this marks the 14th year that opening night has been "Grenfell Night," with proceeds helping to send badly-needed medical supplies and equipment to the bleak Labrador outposts, where men, women and children are so often victims of tuberculosis.

The fine work of the N. E. Grenfell Association, in cooperation with the Grenfell Mission in Labrador has helped to establish four hospitals, seven nursing stations, two boarding schools, a children's home and hospital plane service. This year, funds are being raised for a cottage hospital at Nain, to care for the Eskimos of that far north region.

Able chairman once again of this successful evening, Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard was among those with tables for the opening; and she and Mr. Kennard gave a dinner at the Harvard Club for Dr. Charles S. Curtis, director of the International Grenfell Association and successor to the late Sir Wilfred Grenfell, who founded the association. Also dining with the Kennards were Mr. and Mrs. James O. Post, Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Wells Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hayes Jr. Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, Mrs. George Lyon, Mrs. Lea Luquer and Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Bowditch also brought dinner guests. Still others with Pops guests last night were Mrs. Theodore A. Greene, Mrs. Eldon Macleod, Mrs. Thorvald Ross, Mrs. George S. Fuller, Mrs. W. Lloyd Allen, Mrs. Theodore Badger, Mrs. Wyman B. Shaw, Mrs. Robert G. Stone and scores more.

Mrs. Greene is also chairman of patronesses for Smith Night at Pops, which will be on May 8, to aid the scholarship fund. Colby Junior College will have its annual night at Pops tonight, with Mrs. Charles Bishop Jr. and Rosamond Hubbard co-chairmen, and also on the list for "Nights at Pops" during the month of May are May 3, Peter Bent Brigham Night; May 11, Beaver Country Day School; May 12, Wellesley College Night; May 16, Vassar; May 17, Wells-Goucher-Middlebury night and May 26, Junior League Night.

IN THE MAIL today are the engraved invitations for the Debutante Cotillion of the 1956-57 season, to be held on Monday, June 11, at 10:30 o'clock in the ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza, with Ruby Newman and Harry Marshard and their orchestras. The committee for the cotillion, which will present more than a hundred girls to Boston society, includes Mr. and Mrs. James T. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. James O. Bangs, Mr. and Mrs. Chilton R. Cabot, Dr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Cave, Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Colt, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas W. Danforth, Mrs. Paul M. Hamlen, Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Higgins and Mr. and Mrs. James O. Post.

THEIR SECOND CHILD and first son, Daniel, was born to Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Kahn (Virginia Lewisohn) on April 25 at Richardson House. The baby is the grandson of Mrs. Albert F. Kahn of Easton, Penn., and the late Mr. Kahn and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lewisohn of New York.

(Todd)

MRS. CHARLES WALLACE is the former Allison Smith and a bride of April 21 in Kearney, N. J. Mr. Wallace, who is now serving with the Army at Fort Monmouth, N. J., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Wallace of Arlington.

(Lane)

MRS. DUGALD BROWN is the former Helen Landis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Landis of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. A member of the Junior League of Boston and a Vassar graduate, she and her husband will live in Cambridge, where he is a candidate for a law degree.

MAKING PLANS AT LUNCH for open house and garden day in Dover, members of the Dover Church, which benefits from the tour on May 12, gathered yesterday at the Dover Town Hall. Analyzing the features of the houses and gardens to be opened, members of the committee reported to General Chairman Mrs. Lucien Taylor on the gardens of Massachusetts Horticultural Society Gold Medalist Mrs. Arthur Adams, who has a terraced garden, pool and farm court yard at Wilsondale road.

Also described were the Theodore Chases' Farm-st. house, in contemporary style on a wooded rocky site, its entrance lined with book shelves and its wood supply concealed behind a fireplace of catalyn marble with swinging panels.

Among the many at work on the benefit who contributed ideas at yesterday's luncheon were Mrs. Thomas Gill, information booth chairman; Mrs. Hilton W. Long, Mrs. Orville Emmons; Mrs. Charles Jackson Jr.; Mrs. Edwin Hurlburt and Mrs. Ernest Burditch.

A CONNOISSEUR'S PROGRAM will be offered at the Spring Festival of Music of the Longy School, on May 14 and 22. Featured at the pair of concerts at Canders Theatre, which benefit the school's scholarship and sustaining funds, will be the Schubert "Trout" Quintet, Bach's Fourth Brandenburg Quartet, the Mozart Piano Concerto in B Flat with Lily Dumont as the soloist, a woodwind trio by Boston composer Mabel Daniels, and pieces for organ and instruments by Handel and Soler, with the school's director, Melville Smith at the organ. Kalman Novak will conduct.

EYE RESEARCH will benefit from the Horse Show held Saturday by members of the Mekong Lions Club, featuring an exhibition of precision horsemanship by the Silver Spur Drill Team. Miss Deborah Murphy of Quaker Farm, Groveland, puts "Townshend Vigalect" through a practice drill.

Leader-Herald
EVERETT, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 12,900

MAY 3 1956

Eire Society Holds Dinner Saturday

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel on Saturday, May 5, at 6:30 p.m. Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J, former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation of the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on August 23-25 this year. The gift will be received by Michael T. Kelleher, Orchestra trustee.

Miss Elizabeth M. MacMahon and Miss Eileen A. Whelan, teachers at Everett High School, will be head table guests. Miss MacMahon is second vice president and Miss Whelan is financial secretary of the Society. Many Everett members and friends of the Society plan to attend.

Item (e)
WAKEFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,603

Press
STONEHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,600

STONEHAM, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 2350

MAY 3 1956

Free Press
MELROSE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,278

Billerica News
NORTH BILLERICA, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,348

MAY 10 1956

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

MAY 13 1956

Sunday Advertiser
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 547,691

Chronicle
READING, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,385

MAY 10 1956

News
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisa
Circ. 9,700

MAY 3 1956

Women's R Honors Pas

Members of the Arlingto men's Republican Club atte luncheon served by the Pa Club, Wednesday, April 25, Calvary Methodist Church.

Six past-presidents were ored by special recognition occasion: Miss Esther Baile Marcus Gray, Mrs. J. Bower, Mrs. Hollis M. Gott Marcus L. Sorensen, and Charles R. Thomas, Jr.

Mrs. Horace Homer, pres of the Club presided and i dueed guests: Rev. Charles P sen, who pronounced the in tion; Mrs. Raymond W. Whe National Committeewoman; hur W. Sampson, chairman of Republican Town Committee.

Guest speaker of the prog was Ralph Bonnell, National C mitteeman. Also present Mrs. Bonnell, Mrs. Joseph Rob newly elected State Comm member; Mrs. Mildred Leavit the Medford Women's Republ Club; Miss Judith Stromdahl brarian of the Robbins Libr and Mrs. Wilbert Underwood, sident of the Winchester men's Republican Club.

A letter was read from Re sentative Hollis M. Gott, who unable to attend because of an

Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 42,005

MAY 3 1956

Editorial Quips

The sun was AWOL this morning.

If the grass seems greener in the other fellow's yard, maybe yours needs some fertilizer.

We like those perky women's hats. They give women a zippy look that's all to their advantage.

Don't be in too much of a hurry to have things come your way. Patience is not only an art but it also can be rewarding.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra may tour Russia. It might help keep our relations with the Soviet on a tuneful note.

Our Red Sox got back some of their band-wagon riders yesterday.

Poor Carol Ann Bonomi. Only 14, she has been through many emotional crises.

An expert says it's good for your face to whistle. It is also good for your disposition.

The hand-lettered scroll Rocky was given today will be one of his most prized reminders of his ring career. It is a beautiful thing; a work of art.

Householders — can you remember back when your rubbish was collected on time? What's wrong — more equipment needed?

Realtors To Have Night At Pops

Realtors of Massachusetts will enjoy a night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston Sunday, May 20th, it was announced today by Samuel P. Backman, Lynn, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The Realtor organization has reserved one-half the floor of Symphony Hall for Realtors, their families and invited guests. This is the second year that Realtors' Pops Night has been featured.

The Eastern Middlesex Board of Realtors will participate in this event, it was stated by James Pavao, Jr., president. Charles J. Moore will serve as chairman of a special committee in charge of ticket reservations for local Realtors.

Realtor Monte Nelson of Lynn will be guest piano soloist at Pops that night.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 2 1956

83

Society: Grenfell Night Opens Pops; Deb Cotillion Bids in Mail

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

With all its traditions intact, from pretty flower girls to the peach-color gladioli banked on the stage where Arthur Fiedler took his brisk stand for the 26th year, Pops opened at Symphony Hall last night. It was the 71st season of these wonderful concerts, which are almost as famous as Boston's Symphony afternoons and evenings, which date back 75 years.

★ ★ ★

Still another tradition, as this pleasant season opens again, is the fact that this marks the 14th year that opening night has been "Grenfell Night," with proceeds helping to send badly-needed medical supplies and equipment to the bleak Labrador outposts, where men, women and children are so often victims of tuberculosis.

The fine work of the N. E. Grenfell Association, in cooperation with the Grenfell Mission in Labrador has helped to establish four hospitals, seven nursing stations, two boarding schools, a children's home and hospital plane service. This year, funds are being raised for a cottage hospital at Nain, to care for the Eskimos of that far north region.

Able chairman once again of this successful evening, Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard was among those with tables for the opening; and she and Mr. Kennard gave a dinner at the Harvard Club for Dr. Charles S. Curtis, director of the International Grenfell Association and successor to the late Sir Wilfred Grenfell, who founded the association. Also dining with the Kennards were Mr. and Mrs. James O. Post, Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Wells Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hayes Jr. Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, Mrs. George Lyon, Mrs. Lea Luquer and Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Bowditch also brought dinner guests. Still others with Pops guests last night were Mrs. Theodore A. Greene, Mrs. Eldon Macleod, Mrs. Thorvald Ross, Mrs. George S. Fuller, Mrs. W. Lloyd Allen, Mrs. Theodore Badger, Mrs. Wyman B. Shaw, Mrs. Robert G. Stone and scores more.

Mrs. Greene is also chairman of patronesses for Smith Night at Pops, which will be on May 8, to aid the scholarship fund. Colby Junior College will have its annual night at Pops tonight, with Mrs. Charles Bishop Jr. and Rosamond Hubbard co-chairmen, and also on the list for "Nights at Pops" during the month of May are May 3, Peter Bent Brigham Night; May 11, Beaver Country Day School; May 12, Wellesley College Night; May 16, Vassar; May 17, Wells-Goucher-Middlebury night and May 26, Junior League Night.

(Todd)
MRS. CHARLES WALLACE is the former Allison Smith and a bride of April 21 in Kearney, N. J. Mr. Wallace, who is now serving with the Army at Fort Monmouth, N. J., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Wallace of Arlington.

IN THE MAIL today are the engraved invitations for the Debutante Cotillion of the 1956-57 season, to be held on Monday, June 11, at 10:30 o'clock in the ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza, with Ruby Newman and Harry Marshard and their orchestras. The committee for the cotillion, which will present more than a hundred girls to Boston society, includes Mr. and Mrs. James T. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. James O. Bangs, Mr. and Mrs. Chilton R. Cabot, Dr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Cave, Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Colt, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas W. Danforth, Mrs. Paul M. Hamlen, Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Higgins and Mr. and Mrs. James O. Post.

THEIR SECOND CHILD and first son, Daniel, was born to Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Kahn (Virginia Lewisohn) on April 25 at Richardson House. The baby is the grandson of Mrs. Albert F. Kahn of Easton, Penn., and the late Mr. Kahn and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lewisohn of New York.

(Lane)
MRS. DUGALD BROWN is the former Helen Landis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Landis of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. A member of the Junior League of Boston and a Vassar graduate, she and her husband will live in Cambridge, where he is a candidate for a law degree.

MAKING PLANS AT LUNCH for open house and garden day in Dover, members of the Dover Church, which benefits from the tour on May 12, gathered yesterday at the Dover Town Hall. Analyzing the features of the houses and gardens to be opened, members of the committee reported to General Chairman Mrs. Lucien Taylor on the gardens of Massachusetts Horticultural Society Gold Medalist Mrs. Arthur Adams, who has a terraced garden, pool and farm court yard at Wilsondale road.

Also described were the Theodore Chases' Farm-st. house, in contemporary style on a wooded rocky site, its entrance lined with book shelves and its wood supply concealed behind a fireplace of catalyn marble with swinging panels.

Among the many at work on the benefit who contributed ideas at yesterday's luncheon were Mrs. Thomas Gill, information booth chairman; Mrs. Hilton W. Long, Mrs. Orville Emmons; Mrs. Charles Jackson Jr.; Mrs. Edwin Hurlburt and Mrs. Ernest Burditch.

A CONNOISSEUR'S PROGRAM will be offered at the Spring Festival of Music of the Longy School, on May 14 and 22. Featured at the pair of concerts at Canders Theatre, which benefit the school's scholarship and sustaining funds, will be the Schubert "Trout" Quintet, Bach's Fourth Brandenburg Quartet, the Mozart Piano Concerto in B Flat with Lily Dumont as the soloist, a woodwind trio by Boston composer Mabel Daniels, and pieces for organ and instruments by Handel and Soler, with the school's director, Melville Smith at the organ. Kalman Novak will conduct.

EYE RESEARCH will benefit from the Horse Show held Saturday by members of the Melrose Lions Club, featuring an exhibition of precision horsemanship by the Silver Spur Drill Team. Miss Deborah Murphy of Quaker Farm, Groveland, puts "Townshend Vigalect" through a practice drill.

Item (e)
WAKEFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,603

Press
STONEHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,600

STONEHAM, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 2350

MAY 3 1956

Free Press
MELROSE, M

Leader-Herald
EVERETT, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 12,900

MAY 3 1956

Eire Society Holds Dinner Saturday

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel on Saturday, May 5, at 6:30 p.m. Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, SJ, former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation of the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on August 23-25 this year. The gift will be received by Michael T. Kelleher, Orchestra trustee.

Miss Elizabeth M. MacMahon and Miss Eileen A. Whelan, teachers at Everett High School, will be head table guests. Miss MacMahon is second vice president and Miss Whelan is financial secretary of the Society. Many Everett members and friends of the Society plan to attend.

Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 42,005

MAY 3 1956

Editorial Quips

The sun was AWOL this morning.

If the grass seems greener in the other fellow's yard, maybe yours needs some fertilizer.

We like those perky women's hats. They give women a zippy look that's all to their advantage.

Don't be in too much of a hurry to have things come your way. Patience is not only an art but it also can be rewarding.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra may tour Russia. It might help keep our relations with the Soviet on a tuneful note.

Our Red Sox got back some of their band-wagon riders yesterday.

Poor Carol Ann Bonomi. Only 14, she has been through many emotional crises.

An expert says it's good for your face to whistle. It is also good for your disposition.

The hand-lettered scroll Rocky was given today will be one of his most prized reminders of his ring career. It is a beautiful thing; a work of art.

Householders — can you remember back when your rubbish was collected on time? What's wrong — more equipment needed?

News
ARLINGTON, Mass
Weekly Non-Partis
Circ. 9,700

MAY 3 1956

Women's R Honors Pas

Members of the Arlingto men's Republican Club atte luncheon served by the Pa Club, Wednesday, April 25, Calvary Methodist Church.

Six past-presidents were ored by special recognition occasion: Miss Esther Baile Marcus Gray, Mrs. J. Bower, Mrs. Hollis M. Gott Marcus L. Sorensen, and Charles R. Thomas, Jr.

Mrs. Horace Homer, presid of the Club presided and int dueed guests: Rev. Charles Ped sen, who pronounced the invoc tion; Mrs. Raymond W. Wheel National Committeewoman; A hur W. Sampson, chairman of t Republican Town Committee.

Guest speaker of the progra was Ralph Bonnell, National Co mitteeman. Also present we Mrs. Bonnell, Mrs. Joseph Rober newly elected State Committ member; Mrs. Mildred Leavitt the Medford Women's Republic Club; Miss Judith Stromdahl, brarian of the Robbins Librar and Mrs. Wilbert Underwood, pr sident of the Winchester W men's Republican Club.

A letter was read from Repr entative Hollis M. Gott, who w unable to attend because of an i

REALTORS LIST NIGHT AT POPS

Delegates and their friends from most of the 24 Real Estate Boards throughout the State will gather next Sunday evening at Symphony Hall, Boston, to attend the second annual Realtor Pops Night.

Monte Nelson, a realtor and a member of the Lynn Real Estate Board, will again appear as concert pianist. Nelson has made several appearances with Arthur Fiedler at his famous Pop concerts.

Robert Henderson, chairman of the Boston Real Estate Board "Pops Party" has made many reservations for Realtor family attendance for next Sunday night.

LADIES! See a preview of the new 1956 swim suits! Read color and fabric news in The American Weekly, with next Sunday's ADVERTISER.

New England Newspaper Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 2 1956

83

Society: Grenfell Night Opens Pops; Deb Cotillion Bids in Mail

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

With all its traditions intact, from pretty flower girls to the peach-color gladioli banked on the stage where Arthur Fiedler took his brisk stand for the 26th year, Pops opened at Symphony Hall last night. It was the 71st season of these wonderful concerts, which are almost as famous as Boston's Symphony afternoons and evenings, which date back 75 years.

★ ★ ★

Still another tradition, as this pleasant season opens again, is the fact that this marks the 14th year that opening night has been "Grenfell Night," with proceeds helping to send badly-needed medical supplies and equipment to the bleak Labrador outposts, where men, women and children are so often victims of tuberculosis.

The fine work of the N. E. Grenfell Association, in cooperation with the Grenfell Mission in Labrador has helped to establish four hospitals, seven nursing stations, two boarding schools, a children's home and hospital plane service. This year, funds are being raised for a cottage hospital at Nain, to care for the Eskimos of that far north region.

Able chairman once again of this successful evening, Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard was among those with tables for the opening; and she and Mr. Kennard gave a dinner at the Harvard Club for Dr. Charles S. Curtis, director of the International Grenfell Association and successor to the late Sir Wilfred Grenfell, who founded the association. Also dining with the Kennards were Mr. and Mrs. James O. Post, Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Wells Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hayes Jr. Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, Mrs. George Lyon, Mrs. Lea Luquer and Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Bowditch also brought dinner guests. Still others with Pops guests last night were Mrs. Theodore A. Greene, Mrs. Eldon Macleod, Mrs. Thorvald Ross, Mrs. George S. Fuller, Mrs. W. Lloyd Allen, Mrs. Theodore Badger, Mrs. Wyman B. Shaw, Mrs. Robert G. Stone and scores more.

Mrs. Greene is also chairman of patronesses for Smith Night at Pops, which will be on May 8, to aid the scholarship fund. Colby Junior College will have its annual night at Pops tonight, with Mrs. Charles Bishop Jr. and Rosamond Hubbard co-chairmen, and also on the list for "Nights at Pops" during the month of May are May 3, Peter Bent Brigham Night; May 11, Beaver Country Day School; May 12, Wellesley College Night; May 16, Vassar; May 17, Wells-Goucher-Middlebury night and May 26, Junior League Night.

(Todd)
MRS. CHARLES WALLACE is the former Allison Smith and a bride of April 21 in Kearney, N. J. Mr. Wallace, who is now serving with the Army at Fort Monmouth, N. J., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Wallace of Arlington.

IN THE MAIL today are the engraved invitations for the Debutante Cotillion of the 1956-57 season, to be held on Monday, June 11, at 10:30 o'clock in the ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza, with Ruby Newman and Harry Marshard and their orchestras. The committee for the cotillion, which will present more than a hundred girls to Boston society, includes Mr. and Mrs. James T. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. James O. Bangs, Mr. and Mrs. Chilton R. Cabot, Dr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Cave, Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Colt, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas W. Danforth, Mrs. Paul M. Hamlen, Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Higgins and Mr. and Mrs. James O. Post.

THEIR SECOND CHILD and first son, Daniel, was born to Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Kahn (Virginia Lewisohn) on April 25 at Richardson House. The baby is the grandson of Mrs. Albert F. Kahn of Easton, Penn., and the late Mr. Kahn and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lewisohn of New York.

(Lane)
MRS. DUGALD BROWN is the former Helen Landis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Landis of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. A member of the Junior League of Boston and a Vassar graduate, she and her husband will live in Cambridge, where he is a candidate for a law degree.

MAKING PLANS AT LUNCH for open house and garden day in Dover, members of the Dover Church, which benefits from the tour on May 12, gathered yesterday at the Dover Town Hall. Analyzing the features of the houses and gardens to be opened, members of the committee reported to General Chairman Mrs. Lucien Taylor on the gardens of Massachusetts Horticultural Society Gold Medalist Mrs. Arthur Adams, who has a terraced garden, pool and farm court yard at Wilsondale road.

Also described were the Theodore Chases' Farm-st. house, in contemporary style on a wooded rocky site, its entrance lined with book shelves and its wood supply concealed behind a fireplace of catalyn marble with swinging panels.

Among the many at work on the benefit who contributed ideas at yesterday's luncheon were Mrs. Thomas Gill, information booth chairman; Mrs. Hilton W. Long, Mrs. Orville Emmons; Mrs. Charles Jackson Jr.; Mrs. Edwin Hurlburt and Mrs. Ernest Burditch.

A CONNOISSEUR'S PROGRAM will be offered at the Spring Festival of Music of the Longy School, on May 14 and 22. Featured at the pair of concerts at Canders Theatre, which benefit the school's scholarship and sustaining funds, will be the Schubert "Trout" Quintet, Bach's Fourth Brandenburg Quartet, the Mozart Piano Concerto in B Flat with Lily Dumont as the soloist, a woodwind trio by Boston composer Mabel Daniels, and pieces for organ and instruments by Handel and Soler, with the school's director, Melville Smith at the organ. Kalman Novak will conduct.

Item (e)
WAKEFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,603

Press
STONEHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,600

EYE RESEARCH will benefit from the Horse Show held Saturday by members of the Melrose Lions Club, featuring an exhibition of precision horsemanship by the Silver Spur Drill Team. Miss Deborah Murphy of Quaker Farm, Groveland, puts "Townshend Vigalect" through a practice drill.

Leader-Herald
EVERETT, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 12,900

MAY 3 1956

Eire Society Holds Dinner Saturday

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel on Saturday, May 5, at 6:30 p.m. Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J, former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation of the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on August 23-25 this year. The gift will be received by Michael T. Kelleher, Orchestra trustee.

Miss Elizabeth M. MacMahon and Miss Eileen A. Whelan, teachers at Everett High School, will be head table guests. Miss MacMahon is second vice president and Miss Whelan is financial secretary of the Society. Many Everett members and friends of the Society plan to attend.

Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 42,005

MAY 3 1956

Editorial Quips

The sun was AWOL this morning.

If the grass seems greener in the other fellow's yard, maybe yours needs some fertilizer.

We like those perky women's hats. They give women a zippy look that's all to their advantage.

Don't be in too much of a hurry to have things come your way. Patience is not only an art but it also can be rewarding.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra may tour Russia. It might help keep our relations with the Soviet on a tuneful note.

Our Red Sox got back some of their band-wagon riders yesterday.

Poor Carol Ann Bonomi. Only 14, she has been through many emotional crises.

An expert says it's good for your face to whistle. It is also good for your disposition.

The hand-lettered scroll Rocky was given today will be one of his most prized reminders of his ring career. It is a beautiful thing; a work of art.

Householders — can you remember back when your rubbish was collected on time? What's wrong — more equipment needed?

News
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisa
Circ. 9,700

MAY 3 1956

Women's R Honors Pas

Members of the Arlingto men's Republican Club atte luncheon served by the Pa Club, Wednesday, April 25, Calvary Methodist Church.

Six past-presidents were ored by special recognition occasion: Miss Esther Baile Marcus Gray, Mrs. J. Bower, Mrs. Hollis M. Gott Marcus L. Sorensen, and Charles R. Thomas, Jr.

Mrs. Horace Homer, presiden of the Club presided and intro duced guests: Rev. Charles Pedersen, who pronounced the invocation; Mrs. Raymond W. Wheeler, National Committeewoman; Arthur W. Sampson, chairman of the Republican Town Committee.

Guest speaker of the program was Ralph Bonnell, National Committeeman. Also present were Mrs. Bonnell, Mrs. Joseph Roberts, newly elected State Committee member; Mrs. Mildred Leavitt of the Medford Women's Republican Club; Miss Judith Stromdahl, librarian of the Robbins Library; and Mrs. Wilbert Underwood, president of the Winchester Women's Republican Club.

A letter was read from Representative Hollis M. Gott, who was unable to attend because of an im-

Item (e)
WAKEFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,603

Press
STONEHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,600

from most of the ... tate boards throughout the state will gather next Sunday evening at Symphony Hall to attend the second annual Realtor Pops Night.

Monte Nelson, member of the Lynn Real Estate Board, will again appear as concert pianist. Nelson has made several appearances with Arthur Fielder. Robert Henderson is chairman.

... the campaign of 1956 which President Eisenhower has stated will be a campaign of people and principles.

The Club's membership drive, directed by Mrs. Mary T. Hayes, continues until May 4.

The Boston Pops Concert, sponsored by the Arlington Women's Republican Club was announced, with reservations being taken by Mrs. Allen Chamberlain and Mrs. Joseph Barbano.

Mrs. J. Philip Bower, as chairman of a memorial committee, presented two silver coffee pots to the club, which were purchased in memory of Mrs. Herbert W. Reed first president and Mrs. Arthur J. Mansfield, recent president, both of whom died this past winter.

The luncheon was attended by 125 members and guests.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 2 1956

83

Society: Grenfell Night Opens Pops; Deb Cotillion Bids in Mail

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

With all its traditions intact, from pretty flower girls to the peach-color gladioli banked on the stage where Arthur Fiedler took his brisk stand for the 26th year, Pops opened at Symphony Hall last night. It was the 71st season of these wonderful concerts, which are almost as famous as Boston's Symphony afternoons and evenings, which date back 75 years.

★ ★ ★

Still another tradition, as this pleasant season opens again, is the fact that this marks the 14th year that opening night has been "Grenfell Night," with proceeds helping to send badly-needed medical supplies and equipment to the bleak Labrador outposts, where men, women and children are so often victims of tuberculosis.

The fine work of the N. E. Grenfell Association, in cooperation with the Grenfell Mission in Labrador has helped to establish four hospitals, seven nursing stations, two boarding schools, a children's home and hospital plane service. This year, funds are being raised for a cottage hospital at Nain, to care for the Eskimos of that far north region.

Able chairman once again of this successful evening, Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard was among those with tables for the opening; and she and Mr. Kennard gave a dinner at the Harvard Club for Dr. Charles S. Curtis, director of the International Grenfell Association and successor to the late Sir Wilfred Grenfell, who founded the association. Also dining with the Kennards were Mr. and Mrs. James O. Post, Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Wells Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hayes Jr. Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, Mrs. George Lyon, Mrs. Lea Luquer and Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Bowditch also brought dinner guests. Still others with Pops guests last night were Mrs. Theodore A. Greene, Mrs. Eldon Macleod, Mrs. Thorvald Ross, Mrs. George S. Fuller, Mrs. W. Lloyd Allen, Mrs. Theodore Badger, Mrs. Wyman B. Shaw, Mrs. Robert G. Stone and scores more.

Mrs. Greene is also chairman of patronesses for Smith Night at Pops, which will be on May 8, to aid the scholarship fund. Colby Junior College will have its annual night at Pops tonight, with Mrs. Charles Bishop Jr. and Rosamond Hubbard co-chairmen, and also on the list for "Nights at Pops" during the month of May are May 3, Peter Bent Brigham Night; May 11, Beaver Country Day School; May 12, Wellesley College Night; May 16, Vassar; May 17, Wells-Goucher-Middlebury night and May 26, Junior League Night.

(Todd)

MRS. CHARLES WALLACE is the former Allison Smith and a bride of April 21 in Kearney, N. J. Mr. Wallace, who is now serving with the Army at Fort Monmouth, N. J., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Wallace of Arlington.

IN THE MAIL today are the engraved invitations for the Debutante Cotillion of the 1956-57 season, to be held on Monday, June 11, at 10:30 o'clock in the ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza, with Ruby Newman and Harry Marshard and their orchestras. The committee for the cotillion, which will present more than a hundred girls to Boston society, includes Mr. and Mrs. James T. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. James O. Bangs, Mr. and Mrs. Chilton R. Cabot, Dr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Cave, Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Colt, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas W. Danforth, Mrs. Paul M. Hamlen, Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Higgins and Mr. and Mrs. James O. Post.

THEIR SECOND CHILD and first son, Daniel, was born to Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Kahn (Virginia Lewisohn) on April 25 at Richardson House. The baby is the grandson of Mrs. Albert F. Kahn of Easton, Penn., and the late Mr. Kahn and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lewisohn of New York.

(Lane)

MRS. DUGALD BROWN is the former Helen Landis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Landis of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. A member of the Junior League of Boston and a Vassar graduate, she and her husband will live in Cambridge, where he is a candidate for a law degree.

MAKING PLANS AT LUNCH for open house and garden day in Dover, members of the Dover Church, which benefits from the tour on May 12, gathered yesterday at the Dover Town Hall. Analyzing the features of the houses and gardens to be opened, members of the committee reported to General Chairman Mrs. Lucien Taylor on the gardens of Massachusetts Horticultural Society Gold Medalist Mrs. Arthur Adams, who has a terraced garden, pool and farm court yard at Wilsondale road.

Also described were the Theodore Chases' Farm-st. house, in contemporary style on a wooded rocky site, its entrance lined with book shelves and its wood supply concealed behind a fireplace of catalyn marble with swinging panels.

Among the many at work on the benefit who contributed ideas at yesterday's luncheon were Mrs. Thomas Gill, information book chairman; Mrs. Hilton W. Long, Mrs. Orville Emmons; Mrs. Charles Jackson Jr.; Mrs. Edwin Hurlburt and Mrs. Ernest Burditch.

A CONNOISSEUR'S PROGRAM will be offered at the Spring Festival of Music of the Longy School, on May 14 and 22. Featured at the pair of concerts at Canders Theatre, which benefits the school's scholarship and sus-

EYE RESEARCH will benefit from the Horse Show held Saturday by members of the Melrose Lions Club, featuring an exhibition of precision horsemanship by the Silver Spur Drill Team. Miss Deborah Murphy of Quaker Farm, Groveland, puts "Townshend Vigalect" through a practice drill.

Leader-Herald
EVERETT, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 12,900

MAY 3 1956

Eire Society Holds Dinner Saturday

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel on Saturday, May 5, at 6:30 p.m. Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J, former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation of the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on August 23-25 this year. The gift will be received by Michael T. Kelleher, Orchestra trustee.

Miss Elizabeth M. MacMahon and Miss Eileen A. Whelan, teachers at Everett High School, will be head table guests. Miss MacMahon is second vice president and Miss Whelan is financial secretary of the Society. Many Everett members and friends of the Society plan to attend.

Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 42,005

MAY 3 1956

Editorial Quips

The sun was AWOL this morning.

If the grass seems greener in the other fellow's yard, maybe yours needs some fertilizer.

We like those perky women's hats. They give women a zippy look that's all to their advantage.

Don't be in too much of a hurry to have things come your way. Patience is not only an art but it also can be rewarding.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra may tour Russia. It might help keep our relations with the Soviet on a tuneful note.

Our Red Sox got back some of their band-wagon riders yesterday.

Poor Carol Ann Bonomi. Only 14, she has been through many emotional crises.

An expert says it's good for your face to whistle. It is also good for your disposition.

The hand-lettered scroll Rocky was given today will be one of his most prized reminders of his ring career. It is a beautiful thing; a work of art.

Householders — can you remember back when your rubbish was collected on time? What's wrong — more equipment needed?

News
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisa
Circ. 9,700

MAY 3 1956

Women's R Honors Pas

Members of the Arlingto men's Republican Club atte luncheon served by the Pa Club, Wednesday, April 25, Calvary Methodist Church.

Six past-presidents were ored by special recognition occasion: Miss Esther Baile Marcus Gray, Mrs. J. Bower, Mrs. Hollis M. Got Marcus L. Sorensen, and Charles R. Thomas, Jr.

Mrs. Horace Homer, president of the Club presided and introduced guests: Rev. Charles Pedersen, who pronounced the invocation; Mrs. Raymond W. Wheeler, National Committeewoman; Arthur W. Sampson, chairman of the Republican Town Committee.

Guest speaker of the program was Ralph Bonnell, National Committeeman. Also present were Mrs. Bonnell, Mrs. Joseph Roberts, newly elected State Committee member; Mrs. Mildred Leavitt of the Medford Women's Republican Club; Miss Judith Stromdahl, librarian of the Robbins Library; and Mrs. Wilbert Underwood, president of the Winchester Women's Republican Club.

A letter was read from Representative Hollis M. Gott, who was unable to attend because of an im-will enjoy a night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston Sunday, May 20th, it was announced today by Samuel P. Backman, Lynn, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The Realtor organization has reserved one-half the floor of Symphony Hall for Realtors, their families and invited guests. This is the second year that Realtors' Pops Night has been featured.

The Eastern Middlesex Board of Realtors will participate in this event, it was stated by James Pavao Jr., president. Charles J. Moore solo will serve as chairman of a special committee in charge of ticket reservations for local Realtors.

board te in d by dent.
ve as mittee tions n of Mrs.

meet-as in affair, ed the table cClin-lter.
vening,
e recent con-in Washington, where the Republican slogan, "Ring the Bells and Tell the People" was emphasized. He outlined definite plans for the Campaign of 1956 which President Eisenhower has stated will be a campaign of people and principles.

The Club's membership drive, directed by Mrs. Mary T. Hayes, continues until May 4.

The Boston Pops Concert, sponsored by the Arlington Women's Republican Club was announced, with reservations being taken by Mrs. Allen Chamberlain and Mrs. Joseph Barbano.

Mrs. J. Philip Bower, as chairman of a memorial committee, presented two silver coffee pots to the club, which were purchased in memory of Mrs. Herbert W. Reed first president and Mrs. Arthur J. Mansfield, recent president, both of whom died this past winter.

The luncheon was attended by 125 members and guests.

495 COMPLETE
EASY TERMS
UR 4½-ROOM
MMER HOME

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 2 1956

83

Society: Grenfell Night Opens Pops; Deb Cotillion Bids in Mail

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

With all its traditions intact, from pretty flower girls to the peach-color gladioli banked on the stage where Arthur Fiedler took his brisk stand for the 26th year, Pops opened at Symphony Hall last night. It was the 71st season of these wonderful concerts, which are almost as famous as Boston's Symphony afternoons and evenings, which date back 75 years.

★ ★ ★

Still another tradition, as this pleasant season opens again, is the fact that this marks the 14th year that opening night has been "Grenfell Night," with proceeds helping to send badly-needed medical supplies and equipment to the bleak Labrador outposts, where men, women and children are so often victims of tuberculosis.

The fine work of the N. E. Grenfell Association, in cooperation with the Grenfell Mission in Labrador has helped to establish four hospitals, seven nursing stations, two boarding schools, a children's home and hospital plane service. This year, funds are being raised for a cottage hospital at Nain, to care for the Eskimos of that far north region.

Able chairman once again of this successful evening, Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard was among those with tables for the opening; and she and Mr. Kennard gave a dinner at the Harvard Club for Dr. Charles S. Curtis, director of the International Grenfell Association and successor to the late Sir Wilfred Grenfell, who founded the association. Also dining with the Kennards were Mr. and Mrs. James O. Post, Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Wells Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hayes Jr. Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, Mrs. George Lyon, Mrs. Lea Luquer and Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Bowditch also brought dinner guests. Still others with Pops guests last night were Mrs. Theodore A. Greene, Mrs. Eldon Macleod, Mrs. Thorvald Ross, Mrs. George S. Fuller, Mrs. W. Lloyd Allen, Mrs. Theodore Badger, Mrs. Wyman B. Shaw, Mrs. Robert G. Stone and scores more.

Mrs. Greene is also chairman of patronesses for Smith Night at Pops, which will be on May 8, to aid the scholarship fund. Colby Junior College will have its annual night at Pops tonight, with Mrs. Charles Bishop Jr. and Rosamond Hubbard co-chairmen, and also on the list for "Nights at Pops" during the month of May are May 3, Peter Bent Brigham Night; May 11, Beaver Country Day School; May 12, Wellesley College Night; May 16, Vassar; May 17, Wells-Goucher-Middlebury night and May 26, Junior League Night.

IN THE MAIL today are the engraved invitations for the Debutante Cotillion of the 1956-57 season, to be held on Monday, June 11, at 10:30 o'clock in the ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza, with Ruby Newman and Harry Marshard and their orchestras. The committee for the cotillion, which will present more than a hundred girls to Boston society, includes Mr. and Mrs. James T. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. James O. Bangs, Mr. and Mrs. Chilton R. Cabot, Dr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Cave, Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Colt, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas W. Danforth, Mrs. Paul M. Hamlen, Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Higgins and Mr. and Mrs. James O. Post.

THEIR SECOND CHILD and first son, Daniel, was born to Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Kahn (Virginia Lewisohn) on April 25 at Richardson House. The baby is the grandson of Mrs. Albert F. Kahn of Easton, Penn., and the late Mr. Kahn and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lewisohn of New York.

(Todd)

MRS. CHARLES WALLACE is the former Allison Smith and a bride of April 21 in Kearney, N. J. Mr. Wallace, who is now serving with the Army at Fort Monmouth, N. J., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Wallace of Arlington.

(Lane)

MRS. DUGALD BROWN is the former Helen Landis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Landis of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. A member of the Junior League of Boston and a Vassar graduate, she and her husband will live in Cambridge, where he is a candidate for a law degree.

MAKING PLANS AT LUNCH for open house and garden day in Dover, members of the Dover Church, which benefits from the tour on May 12, gathered yesterday at the Dover Town Hall. Analyzing the features of the houses and gardens to be opened, members of the committee reported to General Chairman Mrs. Lucien Taylor on the gardens of Massachusetts Horticultural Society Gold Medalist Mrs. Arthur Adams, who has a terraced garden, pool and farm court yard at Wilsondale road.

Also described were the Theodore Chases' Farm-st. house, in contemporary style on a wooded rocky site, its entrance lined with book shelves and its wood supply concealed behind a fireplace of catalyn marble with swinging panels.

Among the many at work on the EYE RESEARCH will benefit from the Horse Show held Saturday by members of the Melrose Lions Club, featuring an exhibition of precision horsemanship by the Silver Spur Drill Team. Miss Deborah Murphy of Quaker Farm, Groveland, puts "Townshend Vigalect" through a practice drill.

Leader-Herald
EVERETT, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 12,900

MAY 3 1956

Eire Society Holds Dinner Saturday

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel on Saturday, May 5, at 6:30 p.m. Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J, former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation of the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on August 23-25 this year. The gift will be received by Michael T. Kelleher, Orchestra trustee.

Miss Elizabeth M. MacMahon and Miss Eileen A. Whelan, teachers at Everett High School, will be head table guests. Miss MacMahon is second vice president and Miss Whelan is financial secretary of the Society. Many Everett members and friends of the Society plan to attend.

Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 42,005

MAY 3 1956

Editorial Quips

The sun was AWOL this morning.

If the grass seems greener in the other fellow's yard, maybe yours needs some fertilizer.

We like those perky women's hats. They give women a zippy look that's all to their advantage.

Don't be in too much of a hurry to have things come your way. Patience is not only an art but it also can be rewarding.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra may tour Russia. It might help keep our relations with the Soviet on a tuneful note.

Our Red Sox got back some of their band-wagon riders yesterday.

Poor Carol Ann Bonomi. Only 14, she has been through many emotional crises.

An expert says it's good for your face to whistle. It is also good for your disposition.

The hand-lettered scroll Rocky was given today will be one of his most prized reminders of his ring career. It is a beautiful thing; a work of art.

Householders — can you remember back when your rubbish was collected on time? What's wrong — more equipment needed?

News
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 9,700

MAY 3 1956

Women's R[illegible] Honors Past[illegible]

Members of the Arlington [illegible] men's Republican Club attende[illegible] luncheon served by the Paqui[illegible] Club, Wednesday, April 25, at [illegible] Calvary Methodist Church.

Six past-presidents were h[illegible] ored by special recognition at [illegible] occasion: Miss Esther Bailey, M[illegible] Marcus Gray, Mrs. J. Ph[illegible] Bower, Mrs. Hollis M. Gott, Mrs. Marcus L. Sorensen, and Mrs. Charles R. Thomas, Jr.

Mrs. Horace Homer, president of the Club presided and introduced guests: Rev. Charles Pedersen, who pronounced the invocation; Mrs. Raymond W. Wheeler, National Committeewoman; Arthur W. Sampson, chairman of the Republican Town Committee.

Guest speaker of the program was Ralph Bonnell, National Committeeman. Also present were Mrs. Bonnell, Mrs. Joseph Roberts, newly elected State Committee member; Mrs. Mildred Leavitt of the Medford Women's Republican Club; Miss Judith Stromdahl, librarian of the Robbins Library; and Mrs. W[illegible]bert Underwood, president of the Winchester Women's Republican Club.

A letter was read from Representative Hollis M. Gott, who was unable to attend because of an im-

[illegible]ditors Plan Night At Pops On May 20

Realtors of Massachusett[illegible] will enjoy a night at Pops a[illegible] Symphony Hall in Boston Sunday, May 20, it was announced this week by Samuel P. Backman, Lynn, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The realtor organization has reserved one-half the floor of Symphony Hall for realtors, their families and invited guests. This is the second year that Realtors' Pops Night has been featured.

The Eastern Middlesex Board of Realtors will participate in this event, it was stated by James Pavao Jr., president. Charles J. Moore will serve as chairman of a special committee in charge of ticket reservations for local realtors.

Realtor Monte Nelson of Lynn will be guest piano soloist at Pops that night.

[illegible] Bonnell told of the recent convention he attended in Washington, where the Republican slogan, "Ring the Bells and Tell the People" was emphasized. He outlined definite plans for the Campaign of 1956 which President Eisenhower has stated will be a campaign of people and principles.

The Club's membership drive, directed by Mrs. Mary T. Hayes, continues until May 4.

The Boston Pops Concert, sponsored by the Arlington Women's Republican Club was announced, with reservations being taken by Mrs. Allen Chamberlain and Mrs. Joseph Barbano.

Mrs. J. Philip Bower, as chairman of a memorial committee, presented two silver coffee pots to the club, which were purchased in memory of Mrs. Herbert W. Reed first president and Mrs. Arthur J. Mansfield, recent president, both of whom died this past winter.

The luncheon was attended by 125 members and guests.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 2 1956

83

Society: Grenfell Night Opens Pops; Deb Cotillion Bids in Mail

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

With all its traditions intact, from pretty flower girls to the peach-color gladioli banked on the stage where Arthur Fiedler took his brisk stand for the 26th year, Pops opened at Symphony Hall last night. It was the 71st season of these wonderful concerts, which are almost as famous as Boston's Symphony afternoons and evenings, which date back 75 years.

★ ★ ★

Still another tradition, as this pleasant season opens again, is the fact that this marks the 14th year that opening night has been "Grenfell Night," with proceeds helping to send badly-needed medical supplies and equipment to the bleak Labrador outposts, where men, women and children are so often victims of tuberculosis.

The fine work of the N. E. Grenfell Association, in cooperation with the Grenfell Mission in Labrador has helped to establish four hospitals, seven nursing stations, two boarding schools, a children's home and hospital plane service. This year, funds are being raised for a cottage hospital at Nain, to care for the Eskimos of that far north region.

Able chairman once again of this successful evening, Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard was among those with tables for the opening; and she and Mr. Kennard gave a dinner at the Harvard Club for Dr. Charles S. Curtis, director of the International Grenfell Association and successor to the late Sir Wilfred Grenfell, who founded the association. Also dining with the Kennards were Mr. and Mrs. James O. Post, Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Wells Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hayes Jr. Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, Mrs. George Lyon, Mrs. Lea Luquer and Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Bowditch also brought dinner guests. Still others with Pops guests last night were Mrs. Theodore A. Greene, Mrs. Eldon Macleod, Mrs. Thorvald Ross, Mrs. George S. Fuller, Mrs. W. Lloyd Allen, Mrs. Theodore Badger, Mrs. Wyman B. Shaw, Mrs. Robert G. Stone and scores more.

Mrs. Greene is also chairman of patronesses for Smith Night at Pops, which will be on May 8, to aid the scholarship fund. Colby Junior College will have its annual night at Pops tonight, with Mrs. Charles Bishop Jr. and Rosamond Hubbard co-chairmen, and also on the list for "Nights at Pops" during the month of May are May 3, Peter Bent Brigham Night; May 11, Beaver Country Day School; May 12, Wellesley College Night; May 16, Vassar; May 17, Wells-Goucher-Middlebury night and May 26, Junior League Night.

(Todd)

MRS. CHARLES WALLACE is the former Allison Smith and a bride of April 21 in Kearney, N. J. Mr. Wallace, who is now serving with the Army at Fort Monmouth, N. J., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Wallace of Arlington.

IN THE MAIL today are the engraved invitations for the Debutante Cotillion of the 1956-57 season, to be held on Monday, June 11, at 10:30 o'clock in the ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza, with Ruby Newman and Harry Marshard and their orchestras. The committee for the cotillion, which will present more than a hundred girls to Boston society, includes Mr. and Mrs. James T. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. James O. Bangs, Mr. and Mrs. Chilton R. Cabot, Dr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Cave, Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Colt, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas W. Danforth, Mrs. Paul M. Hamlen, Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Higgins and Mr. and Mrs. James O. Post.

THEIR SECOND CHILD and first son, Daniel, was born to Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Kahn (Virginia Lewisohn) on April 25 at Richardson House. The baby is the grandson of Mrs. Albert F. Kahn of Easton, Penn., and the late Mr. Kahn and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lewisohn of New York.

(Lane)

MRS. DUGALD BROWN is the former Helen Landis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Landis of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. A member of the Junior League of Boston and a Vassar graduate, she and her husband will live in Cambridge, where he is a candidate for a law degree.

MAKING PLANS AT LUNCH for open house and garden day in Dover, members of the Dover Church, which benefits from the tour on May 12, gathered yesterday at the Dover Town Hall. Analyzing the features of the houses and gardens to be opened, members of the committee reported to General Chairman Mrs. Lucien Taylor on the gardens of Massachusetts Horticultural Society Gold Medalist Mrs. Arthur Adams, who has a terraced garden, pool and farm court yard at Wilsondale road.

Also described were the Theodore Chases' Farm-st. house, in contemporary style on a wooded rocky site, its entrance lined with book shelves and its wood supply concealed behind a fireplace of

EYE RESEARCH will benefit from the Horse Show held Saturday by members of the Melrose Lions Club, featuring an exhibition of precision horsemanship by the Silver Spur Drill Team. Miss Deborah Murphy of Quaker Farm, Groveland, puts "Townshend Vigalect" through a practice drill.

Leader-Herald
EVERETT, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 12,900

MAY 3 1956

Eire Society Holds Dinner Saturday

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel on Saturday, May 5, at 6:30 p.m. Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, SJ, former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation of the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on August 23-25 this year. The gift will be received by Michael T. Kelleher, Orchestra trustee.

Miss Elizabeth M. MacMahon and Miss Eileen A. Whelan, teachers at Everett High School, will be head table guests. Miss MacMahon is second vice president and Miss Whelan is financial secretary of the Society. Many Everett members and friends of the Society plan to attend.

Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 42,005

MAY 3 1956

Editorial Quips

The sun was AWOL this morning.

If the grass seems greener in the other fellow's yard, maybe yours needs some fertilizer.

We like those perky women's hats. They give women a zippy look that's all to their advantage.

Don't be in too much of a hurry to have things come your way. Patience is not only an art but it also can be rewarding.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra may tour Russia. It might help keep our relations with the Soviet on a tuneful note.

Our Red Sox got back some of their band-wagon riders yesterday.

Poor Carol Ann Bonomi. Only 14, she has been through many emotional crises.

An expert says it's good for your face to whistle. It is also good for your disposition.

The hand-lettered scroll Rocky was given today will be one of his most prized reminders of his ring career. It is a beautiful thing; a work of art.

Householders — can you remember back when your rubbish was collected on time? What's wrong — more equipment needed?

phony Hall in Boston, Su[illegible] May 20, it was announced t[illegible] by Samuel P. Backman, L[illegible] president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The Realtor organization has reserved one-half the floor of Symphony Hall for Realtors, their families and invited guests. This is the second year that Realtors' Pops Night has been featured.

The Eastern Middlesex Board of Realtors will participate in this event, it was stated by James Pavao, Jr., president. Charles J. Moore will serve as chairman of a special committee in charge of ticket reservations for local realtors.

Realtor Monte Nelson of Lynn will be guest piano soloist at Pops that night.

News
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 9,700

MAY 3 1956

Women's R[illegible] Honors Past

Members of the Arlington Women's Republican Club attended a luncheon served by the Paquinox Club, Wednesday, April 25, at the Calvary Methodist Church.

Six past-presidents were honored by special recognition at the occasion: Miss Esther Bailey, Mrs. Marcus Gray, Mrs. J. Philip Bower, Mrs. Hollis M. Gott, Mrs. Marcus L. Sorensen, and Mrs. Charles R. Thomas, Jr.

Mrs. Horace Homer, president of the Club presided and introduced guests: Rev. Charles Pedersen, who pronounced the invocation; Mrs. Raymond W. Wheeler, National Committeewoman; Arthur W. Sampson, chairman of the Republican Town Committee.

Guest speaker of the program was Ralph Bonnell, National Committeeman. Also present were Mrs. Bonnell, Mrs. Joseph Roberts, newly elected State Committee member; Mrs. Mildred Leavitt of the Medford Women's Republican Club; Miss Judith Stromdahl, librarian of the Robbins Library; and Mrs. W[illegible]bert Underwood, president of the Winchester Women's Republican Club.

A letter was read from Representative Hollis M. Gott, who was unable to attend because of an important executive committee meeting at the State House.

Mrs. Olaf Peterson was in charge of tickets for the affair, and Mrs. John Loud, directed the special arrangements, with table decorations by Mrs. John McClintock and Mrs. Joseph Letzelter.

Guest speaker of the evening, Mr. Bonnell told of the recent convention he attended in Washington, where the Republican slogan, "Ring the Bells and Tell the People" was emphasized. He outlined definite plans for the Campaign of 1956 which President Eisenhower has stated will be a campaign of people and principles.

The Club's membership drive, directed by Mrs. Mary T. Hayes, continues until May 4.

The Boston Pops Concert, sponsored by the Arlington Women's Republican Club was announced, with reservations being taken by Mrs. Allen Chamberlain and Mrs. Joseph Barbano.

Mrs. J. Philip Bower, as chairman of a memorial committee, presented two silver coffee pots to the club, which were purchased in memory of Mrs. Herbert W. Reed first president and Mrs. Arthur J. Mansfield, recent president, both of whom died this past winter.

The luncheon was attended by 125 members and guests.

New England Newspap Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 2 1956

Society: Grenfell Night Opens Pops; Deb Cotillion Bids in Mail

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

With all its traditions intact, from pretty flower girls to the peach-color gladioli banked on the stage where Arthur Fiedler took his brisk stand for the 26th year, Pops opened at Symphony Hall last night. It was the 71st season of these wonderful concerts, which are almost as famous as Boston's Symphony afternoons and evenings, which date back 75 years.

★ ★ ★

Still another tradition, as this pleasant season opens again, is the fact that this marks the 14th year that opening night has been "Grenfell Night," with proceeds helping to send badly-needed medical supplies and equipment to the bleak Labrador outposts, where men, women and children are so often victims of tuberculosis.

The fine work of the N. E. Grenfell Association, in cooperation with the Grenfell Mission in Labrador has helped to establish four hospitals, seven nursing stations, two boarding schools, a children's home and hospital plane service. This year, funds are being raised for a cottage hospital at Nain, to care for the Eskimos of that far north region.

Able chairman once again of this successful evening, Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard was among those with tables for the opening; and she and Mr. Kennard gave a dinner at the Harvard Club for Dr. Charles S. Curtis, director of the International Grenfell Association and successor to the late Sir Wilfred Grenfell, who founded the association. Also dining with the Kennards were Mr. and Mrs. James O. Post, Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Wells Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hayes Jr. Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, Mrs. George Lyon, Mrs. Lea Luquer and Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Bowditch also brought dinner guests. Still others with Pops guests last night were Mrs. Theodore A. Greene, Mrs. Eldon Macleod, Mrs. Thorvald Ross, Mrs. George S. Fuller, Mrs. W. Lloyd Allen, Mrs. Theodore Badger, Mrs. Wyman B. Shaw, Mrs. Robert G. Stone and scores more.

Mrs. Greene is also chairman of patronesses for Smith Night at Pops, which will be on May 8, to aid the scholarship fund. Colby Junior College will have its annual night at Pops tonight, with Mrs. Charles Bishop Jr. and Rosamond Hubbard co-chairmen, and also on the list for "Nights at Pops" during the month of May are May 3, Peter Bent Brigham Night; May 11, Beaver Country Day School; May 12, Wellesley College Night; May 16, Vassar; May 17, Wells-Goucher-Middlebury night and May 26, Junior League Night.

(Todd)
MRS. CHARLES WALLACE is the former Allison Smith and a bride of April 21 in Kearney, N. J. Mr. Wallace, who is now serving with the Army at Fort Monmouth, N. J., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Wallace of Arlington.

IN THE MAIL today are the engraved invitations for the Debutante Cotillion of the 1956-57 season, to be held on Monday, June 11, at 10:30 o'clock in the ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza, with Ruby Newman and Harry Marshard and their orchestras. The committee for the cotillion, which will present more than a hundred girls to Boston society, includes Mr. and Mrs. James T. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. James O. Bangs, Mr. and Mrs. Chilton R. Cabot, Dr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Cave, Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Colt, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas W. Danforth, Mrs. Paul M. Hamlen, Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Higgins and Mr. and Mrs. James O. Post.

THEIR SECOND CHILD and first son, Daniel, was born to Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Kahn (Virginia Lewisohn) on April 25 at Richardson House. The baby is the grandson of Mrs. Albert F. Kahn of Easton, Penn., and the late Mr. Kahn and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lewisohn of New York.

(Lane)
MRS. DUGALD BROWN is the former Helen Landis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Landis of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. A member of the Junior League of Boston and a Vassar graduate, she and her husband will live in Cambridge, where he is a candidate for a law degree.

MAKING PLANS AT LUNCH for open house and garden day in Dover, members of the Dover Church, which benefits from the tour on May 12, gathered yesterday at the Dover Town Hall. Analyzing the features of the houses and gardens to be opened, members of the committee reported to General Chairman Mrs. Lucien Taylor on the gardens of Massachusetts Horticultural Society Gold Medalist Mrs. Arthur Adams, who has a terraced garden, pool and farm court yard at Wilsondale road.

Also described were the Theodore Chases' Farm-st. house, in contemporary style on a wooded rocky site, its entrance lined with book shelves and its wood supply concealed behind a fireplace of

Leader-Herald
EVERETT, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 12,900

MAY 3 1956

Eire Society Holds Dinner Saturday

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel on Saturday, May 5, at 6:30 p.m. Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J, former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation of the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on August 23-25 this year. The gift will be received by Michael T. Kelleher, Orchestra trustee.

Miss Elizabeth M. MacMahon and Miss Eileen A. Whelan, teachers at Everett High School, will be head table guests. Miss MacMahon is second vice president and Miss Whelan is financial secretary of the Society. Many Everett members and friends of the Society plan to attend.

EYE RESEARCH will benefit from the Horse Show held Saturday by members of the Melrose Lions Club, featuring an exhibition of precision horsemanship by the Silver Spur Drill Team. Miss Deborah Murphy of Quaker Farm, Groveland, puts "Townshend Vigalect" through a practice drill.

Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 42,005

MAY 3 1956

Editorial Quips

The sun was AWOL this morning.

If the grass seems greener in the other fellow's yard, maybe yours needs some fertilizer.

We like those perky women's hats. They give women a zippy look that's all to their advantage.

Don't be in too much of a hurry to have things come your way. Patience is not only an art but it also can be rewarding.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra may tour Russia. It might help keep our relations with the Soviet on a tuneful note.

Our Red Sox got back some of their band-wagon riders yesterday.

Poor Carol Ann Bonomi. Only 14, she has been through many emotional crises.

An expert says it's good for your face to whistle. It is also good for your disposition.

The hand-lettered scroll Rocky was given today will be one of his most prized reminders of his ring career. It is a beautiful thing; a work of art.

Householders — can you remember back when your rubbish was collected on time? What's wrong — more equipment needed?

News
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 9,700

MAY 3 1956

"Pops" Night

Realtors of Massachusetts will enjoy a night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston Sunday, May 20, it was announced today by Samuel P. Backman of Lynn, president of the Mass. Real Estate Assn. The Realtor organization has reserved one-half the floor of Symphony Hall for Realtors, their families and invited guests. This is the second year that Realtor's Pops Night has been featured.

The Eastern Middlesex Board of Realtors will participate, it was stated by James Pavao Jr., president. Charles J. Moore will serve as chairman of a special committee in charge of ticket reservations for local Realtors.

Realtor Monte Nelson of Lynn will be guest piano soloist at Pops that night.

Women's R[illegible] Honors Past Presidents

Members of the Arlington Women's Republican Club attended a luncheon served by the Paquinox Club, Wednesday, April 25, at the Calvary Methodist Church.

Six past-presidents were honored by special recognition at the occasion: Miss Esther Bailey, Mrs. Marcus Gray, Mrs. J. Philip Bower, Mrs. Hollis M. Gott, Mrs. Marcus L. Sorensen, and Mrs. Charles R. Thomas, Jr.

Mrs. Horace Homer, president of the Club presided and introduced guests: Rev. Charles Pedersen, who pronounced the invocation; Mrs. Raymond W. Wheeler, National Committeewoman; Arthur W. Sampson, chairman of the Republican Town Committee.

Guest speaker of the program was Ralph Bonnell, National Committeeman. Also present were Mrs. Bonnell, Mrs. Joseph Roberts, newly elected State Committee member; Mrs. Mildred Leavitt of the Medford Women's Republican Club; Miss Judith Stromdahl, librarian of the Robbins Library; and Mrs. W[illegible]bert Underwood, president of the Winchester Women's Republican Club.

A letter was read from Representative Hollis M. Gott, who was unable to attend because of an important executive committee meeting at the State House.

Mrs. Olaf Peterson was in charge of tickets for the affair, and Mrs. John Loud, directed the special arrangements, with table decorations by Mrs. John McClintock and Mrs. Joseph Letzelter.

Guest speaker of the evening, Mr. Bonnell told of the recent convention he attended in Washington, where the Republican slogan, "Ring the Bells and Tell the People" was emphasized. He outlined definite plans for the Campaign of 1956 which President Eisenhower has stated will be a campaign of people and principles.

The Club's membership drive, directed by Mrs. Mary T. Hayes, continues until May 4.

The Boston Pops Concert, sponsored by the Arlington Women's Republican Club was announced, with reservations being taken by Mrs. Allen Chamberlain and Mrs. Joseph Barbano.

Mrs. J. Philip Bower, as chairman of a memorial committee, presented two silver coffee pots to the club, which were purchased in memory of Mrs. Herbert W. Reed first president and Mrs. Arthur J. Mansfield, recent president, both of whom died this past winter.

The luncheon was attended by 125 members and guests.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 2 1956

Society: Grenfell Night Opens Pops; Deb Cotillion Bids in Mail

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

With all its traditions intact, from pretty flower girls to the peach-color gladioli banked on the stage where Arthur Fiedler took his brisk stand for the 26th year, Pops opened at Symphony Hall last night. It was the 71st season of these wonderful concerts, which are almost as famous as Boston's Symphony afternoons and evenings, which date back 75 years.

★ ★ ★

Still another tradition, as this pleasant season opens again, is the fact that this marks the 14th year that opening night has been "Grenfell Night," with proceeds helping to send badly-needed medical supplies and equipment to the bleak Labrador outposts, where men, women and children are so often victims of tuberculosis.

The fine work of the N. E. Grenfell Association, in cooperation with the Grenfell Mission in Labrador has helped to establish four hospitals, seven nursing stations, two boarding schools, a children's home and hospital plane service. This year, funds are being raised for a cottage hospital at Nain, to care for the Eskimos of that far north region.

Able chairman once again of this successful evening, Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard was among those with tables for the opening; and she and Mr. Kennard gave a dinner at the Harvard Club for Dr. Charles S. Curtis, director of the International Grenfell Association and successor to the late Sir Wilfred Grenfell, who founded the association. Also dining with the Kennards were Mr. and Mrs. James O. Post, Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Wells Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hayes Jr. Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, Mrs. George Lyon, Mrs. Lea Luquer and Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Bowditch also brought dinner guests. Still others with Pops guests last night were Mrs. Theodore A. Greene, Mrs. Eldon Macleod, Mrs. Thorvald Ross, Mrs. George S. Fuller, Mrs. W. Lloyd Allen, Mrs. Theodore Badger, Mrs. Wyman B. Shaw, Mrs. Robert G. Stone and scores more.

Mrs. Greene is also chairman of patronesses for Smith Night at Pops, which will be on May 8, to aid the scholarship fund. Colby Junior College will have its annual night at Pops tonight, with Mrs. Charles Bishop Jr. and Rosamond Hubbard co-chairmen, and also on the list for "Nights at Pops" during the month of May are May 3, Peter Bent Brigham Night; May 11, Beaver Country Day School; May 12, Wellesley College Night; May 16, Vassar; May 17, Wells-Goucher-Middlebury night and May 26, Junior League Night.

IN THE MAIL today are the engraved invitations for the Debutante Cotillion of the 1956-57 season, to be held on Monday, June 11, at 10:30 o'clock in the ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza, with Ruby Newman and Harry Marshard and their orchestras. The committee for the cotillion, which will present more than a hundred girls to Boston society, includes Mr. and Mrs. James T. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. James O. Bangs, Mr. and Mrs. Chilton R. Cabot, Dr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Cave, Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Colt, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas W. Danforth, Mrs. Paul M. Hamlen, Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Higgins and Mr. and Mrs. James O. Post.

THEIR SECOND CHILD and first son, Daniel, was born to Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Kahn (Virginia Lewisohn) on April 25 at Richardson House. The baby is the grandson of Mrs. Albert F. Kahn of Easton, Penn., and the late Mr. Kahn and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lewisohn of New York.

(Todd)
MRS. CHARLES WALLACE is the former Allison Smith and a bride of April 21 in Kearney, N. J. Mr. Wallace, who is now serving with the Army at Fort Monmouth, N. J., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Wallace of Arlington.

(Lane)
MRS. DUGALD BROWN is the former Helen Landis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Landis of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. A member of the Junior League of Boston and a Vassar graduate, she and her husband will live in Cambridge, where he is a candidate for a law degree.

MAKING PLANS AT LUNCH for open house and garden day in Dover, members of the Dover Church, which benefits from the tour on May 12, gathered yesterday at the Dover Town Hall. Analyzing the features of the houses and gardens to be opened, members of the committee reported to General Chairman Mrs. Lucien Taylor on the gardens of Massachusetts Horticultural Society Gold Medalist Mrs. Arthur Adams, who has a terraced garden, pool and farm court yard at Wilsondale road.

Also described were the Theodore Chases' Farm-st. house, in contemporary style on a wooded rocky site, its entrance lined with book shelves and its wood supply concealed behind a fireplace of

EYE RESEARCH will benefit from the Horse Show held Saturday by members of the Melrose Lions Club, featuring an exhibition of precision horsemanship by the Silver Spur Drill Team. Miss Deborah Murphy of Quaker Farm, Groveland, puts "Townshend Vigalect" through a practice drill.

Leader-Herald
EVERETT, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 12,900

MAY 3 1956

Eire Society Holds Dinner Saturday

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel on Saturday, May 5, at 6:30 p.m. Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J, former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation of the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on August 23-25 this year. The gift will be received by Michael T. Kelleher, Orchestra trustee.

Miss Elizabeth M. MacMahon and Miss Eileen A. Whelan, teachers at Everett High School, will be head table guests. Miss MacMahon is second vice president and Miss Whelan is financial secretary of the Society. Many Everett members and friends of the Society plan to attend.

Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 42,005

MAY 3 1956

Editorial Quips

The sun was AWOL this morning.

If the grass seems greener in the other fellow's yard, maybe yours needs some fertilizer.

We like those perky women's hats. They give women a zippy look that's all to their advantage.

Don't be in too much of a hurry to have things come your way. Patience is not only an art but it also can be rewarding.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra may tour Russia. It might help keep our relations with the Soviet on a tuneful note.

Our Red Sox got back some of their band-wagon riders yesterday.

Poor Carol Ann Bonomi. Only 14, she has been through many emotional crises.

An expert says it's good for your face to whistle. It is also good for your disposition.

The hand-lettered scroll Rocky was given today will be one of his most prized reminders of his ring career. It is a beautiful thing; a work of art.

Householders — can you remember back when your rubbish was collected on time? What's wrong — more equipment needed?

News
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 9,700

MAY 3 1956

Night at Pops

Realtors of Massachusetts will enjoy a night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Sunday, May 20, it is announced by Samuel P. Backman, Lynn, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The realtor organization has reserved one-half the floor of Symphony Hall for realtors, their families and invited guests. This is the second year that Realtors' Pops Night has been featured.

The Eastern Middlesex Board of Realtors will participate in this event, it was stated by James Pavao, Jr., president. Charles J. Moore will serve as chairman of a special committee in charge of ticket reservations for local Realtors.

Realtor Monte Nelson of Lynn will be guest piano soloist at Pops that night.

Women's Republican Club Honors Past Presidents

Members of the Arlington Women's Republican Club attended a luncheon served by the Paquinox Club, Wednesday, April 25, at the Calvary Methodist Church.

Six past-presidents were honored by special recognition at the occasion: Miss Esther Bailey, Mrs. Marcus Gray, Mrs. J. Philip Bower, Mrs. Hollis M. Gott, Mrs. Marcus L. Sorensen, and Mrs. Charles R. Thomas, Jr.

Mrs. Horace Homer, president of the Club presided and introduced guests: Rev. Charles Pedersen, who pronounced the invocation; Mrs. Raymond W. Wheeler, National Committeewoman; Arthur W. Sampson, chairman of the Republican Town Committee.

Guest speaker of the program was Ralph Bonnell, National Committeeman. Also present were Mrs. Bonnell, Mrs. Joseph Roberts, newly elected State Committee member; Mrs. Mildred Leavitt of the Medford Women's Republican Club; Miss Judith Stromdahl, librarian of the Robbins Library; and Mrs. Wilbert Underwood, president of the Winchester Women's Republican Club.

A letter was read from Representative Hollis M. Gott, who was unable to attend because of an important executive committee meeting at the State House.

Mrs. Olaf Peterson was in charge of tickets for the affair, and Mrs. John Loud, directed the special arrangements, with table decorations by Mrs. John McClintock and Mrs. Joseph Letzelter.

Guest speaker of the evening, Mr. Bonnell told of the recent convention he attended in Washington, where the Republican slogan, "Ring the Bells and Tell the People" was emphasized. He outlined definite plans for the Campaign of 1956 which President Eisenhower has stated will be a campaign of people and principles.

The Club's membership drive, directed by Mrs. Mary T. Hayes, continues until May 4.

The Boston Pops Concert, sponsored by the Arlington Women's Republican Club was announced, with reservations being taken by Mrs. Allen Chamberlain and Mrs. Joseph Barbano.

Mrs. J. Philip Bower, as chairman of a memorial committee presented two silver coffee pots to the club, which were purchased in memory of Mrs. Herbert W. Reed first president and Mrs. Arthur J. Mansfield, recent president, both of whom died this past winter.

The luncheon was attended by 125 members and guests.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 2 1956

Socialites Turn Out En Masse For Pops

Hear Galloping Horses And Crack Of Whip

By MAGGIE WELLS, Society Editor

When the voice of the turtle is heard in the land, the sound of typewriter keys or fire engine sirens may be heard in Symphony Hall.

Springtime is Pops-time in Boston—and winter-weary socialites turned out en masse for the opening night of these eagerly-awaited, season concerts last night.

Unusual sound effects are always part of the fun when Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra take over the hall. Last night's concert (known to its friends as Grenfall Night) featured the crack of a whip and galloping horses' footsteps, along with more serious musical treats.

GRENFELL DIRECTOR HONORED AT DINNER

Dr. Charles S. Curtis, director of the Grenfell Mission in Labrador, was honored at a dinner at the Harvard Club, before the concert. Those present included Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard.

Mrs. Kennard was chairman of the evening, sponsored anually by the New England Grenfell Association. Others at the dinner, who went on to the concert together, were Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Wells Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John T. Hayes Jr. and the James O. Posts.

Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller shared a table at the concert with her son and daughter-in-law, the Peter Fullers. Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Winkler Jr. were with their post-debutante daughter, Gretchen.

The Charles F. Hoveys dined at the Ritz before the opening. Mrs. Hovey's navy frock had matching polka dots on its wide, white collar.

GARDENIA SALE AIDS GOOD CAUSE

Selling gardenias for the cause, Grace Luquer wore a navy sheath dress. Also wearing a fashionable sheath, of white silk print, Mrs. Dudley B. Fay enjoyed the concert with her husband.

One of the many young socialites present, Jane Goddard wore a colorful flowered print dress of orange and white. She shared a table with Barbara Strait, Janet Healey, Robert Toppan, and Kenneth Lutz.

ROSS-CHENEY WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Cheney of "Old Ironsides," Pembroke, announce the marriage of their daughter, Barbara Ellen, to Lt. Robert Malcolm Ross USAF.

The bride, a graduate of the Northampton School for Girls, attended Smith College. She'll continue her studies at the Ohio State University.

Lt. Ross, son of Commander and Mrs. George E. Ross of Roslyn Heights, N. Y., attended Hofstra College. He received his commission in 1954 and is stationed at Columbus, Ohio, where the couple will make their home after June 8.

THESE THREE smiling ladies are on the committee for a dinner dance to be given Sunday at Cecilian Guild Hall, Belvidere St., Boston. Members of St. Cecilia's Social Club, they are (from left to right) Evelyn Bradford, Ruth Boxley and Marguerite Shea.

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 285,839

MAY 2 1956

New England Newscap Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 3 1956

"Flower girls" at the Boston Pops' opening night benefit performance for the Grenfell Mission were, left to right: Elizabeth Wells, Cynthia Burbank and Anne Carter, all of Boston, and Mrs. Wellington Wells of Cambridge.

Society

Grenfell Night Opens Pops' 71st Season

By ROSE WALSH

Everything about the opening of the 71st season of the Boston Pops at Symphony Hall last evening met with complete audience approval. The hall had a fresh spring look about it. Pretty flower girls offered gardenias, camellias, roses and carnations for sale, in the interest of the Grenfell Mission at Labrador. The impeccably attired Arthur Fiedler, radiating charm, conducted the orchestra in a delightful program that opened with Sousa's "El Capitan" and closed with "Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing" and attractive Louise Vosgerchian, soloist, thrilled the music lovers with Liszt's Piano Concerto in E flat.

Friends of the New England Assn., which has sponsored opening night for the past 14 years, occupied the floor tables and most of the first balcony seats. Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard, the latter chairman of the benefit, came on from dinner at the Harvard Club where they entertained in honor of Dr. Charles S. Curtis, superintendent of the International Grenfell Association.

Joining Mrs. Arthur Fiedler and her mother, Mrs. John T. Bottomley, were Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller, Jr., Dr. and Mrs. George Bottomley (Lydia Fuller) and Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Talbott.

Among others enjoying the evening of music were Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, Captain and Mrs. Harold R. Keller, Mrs. Theodore L. Badger, Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Wells, Jr., Dr. and Mrs. Robert H. Godwin, Mrs. George A. Lyon, Mr. and Mrs. Lea S. Luquer, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Bolster, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Winkler and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hovey.

* * *

Debutante Cotillion

The debutante season officially opens on Monday night, June 11, with the traditional, picturesque Debutante Cotillion in the ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza beginning at 10:30. Yesterday's mail brought the formal invitations embossed with an old English DC. Two top orchestras, Ruby Newman's and Harry Marshard's, will be in attendance.

(Globe Staff Photo by Joseph Runci)

GLAMOUR AT THE POPS—Arthur Fiedler's family visits him backstage in the conductor's room at Symphony Hall during intermission at the Boston Pops. Mrs. Fiedler is shown with their daughters, Deborah, 8, and Johanna, 10.

Minute Man
LEXINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4669

MAY 3 1956

Vassar Alumnae Plan Night At Boston Pops

Vassar Alumnae of the Lexington area are busy planning for the Vassar-Dartmouth Night at the Pops to be held on Wednesday evening May 16, at Symphony Hall, for the benefit of the scholarship funds of the two colleges.

Lexington patronesses include Mesdames Robert Fernald, John Bidwell, Thomas C. Chalmers, Jr., Goodhue Livingston 3rd., Phillip Friedlander, William B. Kelley, Jr., George E. Valley, Jr., and Richard Soule. Others are Mrs. Charles D. Brookes, Mrs. Thomas A. Graves, Jr., and Mrs. Norman Stolz.

TIGHT BINDING

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
MAY 4 1956

News of Concerts and Screen

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241
MAY 4 1956

NEW RECORDINGS

Stagliano's Fine Horn Playing

By CYRUS DURGIN

The fine playing of James Stagliano, first horn of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is that of a real virtuoso. In two records issued by his own company, Boston Records, Mr. Stagliano's beautiful work is reinforced by the excellence of other musicians. One of these discs contains the E flat Trio, Op. 40, by Brahms, and the F major Quartet for horn and strings by that Czech-born horn virtuoso of the latter 18th century Jan Vaclav Stich, who became known as Giovanni, or Gen'l Punto.

In Brahms, Mr. Stagliano was joined by Arthur Grumiaux, violin, and pianist Gregory Tucker; in Stich-Punto by Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Samuel Mayes, cello. Both performances are as pleasing as the music is substantial, and both are enhanced by engineering which produced remarkable "presence" of sound.

The second record, one in the new Boston University Anthology, brings the four Horn Concertos by Mozart, with the superb Zimbler Sinfonietta of Boston Symphony men as orchestra. If there is any better horn playing than this by Stagliano—and some of it is really dazzling for grace and agility—I have yet to hear it. The Mozart recording is the first made in Kresge Auditorium at M. I. T. That unique auditorium, acoustically doubtful for "live concerts," makes for an extremely bright, powerful resonance when empty and the aural results here are very good.

Tchaikovsky by Munch

Last Fall Charles Munch conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of the Tchaikovsky F minor Symphony that was so slow the music fell apart. Over the next performance, I was told, he speeded up. Then it was taped, and the result is a record which might better never have been released. The pace is still too slow, and this dramatic symphony has little of the irresistible surge and passion it ought to have. No credit reflects upon Mr. Munch here. But RCA-Victor gives the recording tremendous hi-fi.

Haydn's "The Seven Last Words of Christ" may be heard in a playing of the very first rank by Messrs. Burgin, Krips, de Pasquale and Mayes, in this grouping styled the Boston Symphony String Quartet. This is devoted playing, of depth and technical finesse. RCA-Victor.

The admirable Pro Musica String Orchestra of Stuttgart has turned out some more satisfying Bach, under the leadership of Rolf Reinhardt. The C minor and C major Concertos for Two Harpsichords were done with the conductor and Helma Elsner at the keyboards, and the Concerto for Violin and Oboe, in D minor, with Will Beh and Friedrich Milde as string and wind soloists, respectively. The vigor of the ensemble is nicely tempered by elegance. Vox.

I find the Viola Concerto by the Swiss Frank Martin a fascinating modern work, bold and contemporary in manner and feeling, but music of high logic and order. Perhaps some day we shall hear it performed "live" in Boston. Meanwhile we can get acquainted with it in the pleasing traversal by Wolfgang Schneiderhan and the Swiss Romande Orchestra conducted by our old friend Ernest Ansermet. London.

The Pilot
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613
MAY 5 1956

Former Fordham President To Receive Eire Society Medal

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, May 5, at 6:30 P. M.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation for the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on Aug. 23 and 25 this year.

The gift will be presented by Joseph Gannon, president of the Society and will be accepted by Michael T. Kelleher, orchestra trustee.

The Society's Gold Medal is being presented to Father Gannon in recognition of his outstanding contributions as a "true educator of men and priest of God."

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593
MAY 4 1956

Sunday Soloist

LUISE VOSGERCHIAN, Watertown pianist who scored hit opening night of Pops, will again be soloist Sunday night in the Liszt First Concerto.

Stravinsky 'Soldat' In Jordan Hall

By Harold Rogers

During World War I a librettist and a composer, C. F. Ramuz and Igor Stravinsky, sought refuge in Switzerland. Bereft of an outlet for their creative energies, they found no way by which they could stage a full-scale spectacle comparable to those that had made Stravinsky's name famous.

"Why then not do something simple?" they reasoned, according to Ramuz' report in his "Souvenirs sur Igor Stravinsky."

"Why not write a piece that would dispense with a large hall or a vast public; a piece scored for a few instruments and employing but two or three actors? Since there are no more theaters, we would have a theater all our own, that is, our own scenery which could be mounted without difficulty no matter where, even in the open; we would have resumed the tradition of the itinerant theaters."

Thus "L'Histoire du Soldat" came into being. Stravinsky turned out his clever score for seven musicians—two strings (violin and contrabass), two woodwinds (clarinet and bassoon), two brass (trumpet and trombone), and percussion. There are three main characters—the Soldier, the Princess, and the Devil.

* * *

Last night a winning performance of "L'Histoire du Soldat" was presented in Jordan Hall by members of the New England Conservatory under the direction of Roger Voisin, first trumpeter of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It was produced and directed by George Guilbault, also heard as the Soldier's voice.

This production was particularly interesting for a novel departure in the staging. The orchestra sat on stage, right, in shirtsleeves (as was the case at the 1918 première in Lausanne, when Ernest Ansermet conducted). On stage, left, sat a narrator, Earl Cole, with a microphone before him. Between them was a large screen for a shadow play.

In this way the whole thing took on a delightful story-book quality, an illusion somewhat spoiled when the actors stepped before the screen. It was not altogether necessary that they leave their shadow world, yet the Princess's dance would hardly have been so effective if seen only in shadow.

As the Princess, Sonia Klosek gave a nimble and expert performance combining certain elements of ballet with modern dance. The Devil and the Soldier both lost stature when they appeared in the flesh, the former looking too much like a character at a fancy dress ball, the latter too young.

* * *

But taken as a whole, the production had much to commend it. Mr. Voisin's direction kept the music on its toes, where it must be if it is to sound as Stravinsky intended. It must be dry, witty, and peppery, and it was all that.

In the competent cast were Robert Chapman as the Soldier's image (with Mr. Guilbault as his voice) and Curt Allen as the Devil's image (with Leo Snyder as his voice). Mr. Cole's narration was very well read in an informal and direct manner.

Chronicle
NEEDHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4824

Old Colony Memorial
PLYMOUTH, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,252

Messenger
MARBLEHEAD, Mass.
Weekly Ind. Rep.
Circ. 2,500
MAY 3 1956

Townsman
WELLESLEY, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 5614
MAY 3 1956

Vassar-Dartmouth Night At Pops

Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 42,005

Herald
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4468
MAY 2 1956

Vassar Alumnae Plan Night At Pops

Cricket
MANCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,183

Patriot-Ledger (e)
QUINCY, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 39,259

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript
DEDHAM, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan

Star
WINCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,200

Star
WINCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,200

Belmont Citizen
Belmont, Mass.
May 4, 1956

Herald
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4468

Belmont Citizen
Belmont, Mass.

Belmont Citizen
Belmont, Mass.

Patriot-Ledger (e)
QUINCY, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 39,259

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
BEVERLY, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 6,754
MAY 5 1956

Beverly Vassar Alumnae Join In Plans For Vassar-Dartmouth Night At Pops

Vassar alumnae of the Beverly area are busy planning for the Vassar-Dartmouth Night at the Pops on Wednesday evening, May 16, at Symphony Hall in Boston, for the benefit of the scholarship funds of the two colleges.

The Vassar Club Pops committee chairman is Mrs. Thomas Morse of

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559
MAY 5 1956

85

TOP O' THE MORNING

EDITED BY PEGGY BROWN

Ah, tis May and as Laura Hulse suggests, a time when we're temped to wander. . . . I let my thoughts wander ahead of me this week—ahead to summer and vacations . . . and I thought of the sea and could almost smell the sea—sea like the sea in Patricia King's poem . . . Vera Ramos Keelan attended the final 75th Anniversary Boston Symphony concert and was inspired to write her beautiful Beethoven tribute . . . Another voice, Katherine Saunders this time, in favor of an anthology and a reminder that, going back to George Ryan, there are a good many years and a good many poems. A monumental task indeed it will be. At least 370 poems are printed a year. Those of you who know the number of years you've been reading the column can figure the rest. Any takers?

Pilgrimage

May is a month of birdsong
and of fragrance,
A time in which we're tempted
to be vagrants;
A vagabond would sure deserve
a judge's pardon
[illegible] saunter
[illegible]rden.

LAURA HULSE

[illegible] the glass.
[illegible] not pass.
[illegible] and leaves
[illegible] the eaves.

[illegible]SON KING

Symphony

[illegible] and fills the air
[illegible] most gifted

I weep for him who [illegible] with, ne'er heard
The silken wings of his own doves so fair:

Great music magic binds all brothers fast,
Souls blending like the fragrance of fresh flowers,
The chorus singing, how it overpowers,
And bids us pray this golden hour will last,
While seeking Him, a friend to have and be,
With Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony.

VERA RAMOS KEELAN

John Williamson of Wellesley [illegible] general chairman of the committee, assisted by Daniel B. Ruggles, Jr., Swampscott; Gordon K. Wentworth, Wellesley; Richard D. Hill, Marblehead; Wesley Beattie, Melrose; Roger B. Salinger, Newton; Fred F. Stockwell, Winchester; Allan L. Priddy, Brookline; John [illegible] Handrahan, North Weymouth; Richard D. Muzzy, Wellesley; E. [illegible]rton Jennings, Needham; John [illegible] Boermeester, Needham; Everett [illegible] Chamberlaine, Hingham; Paul [illegible] Vaitses, Melrose; and William C. [illegible]sack, Winchester.

Tubby, Mrs. Lawrence Churchill, [illegible]ley, Mrs. J. Gordon Scannell, Mrs. Howard Deering, Mrs. Mrs. S. Roy Burroughs, and Mrs. Charles A. Coolidge Jr., Mrs. Lucy Gillespie. George L. Clarke, Mrs. J. P. Kel-

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
MAY 6 1956

EMMANUEL POPS

Emmanuel Night at Pops, sponsored by the Emmanuel College Alumnae Association, will be held Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall.

Committee members are working to make the event a family night, with students and alumnae meeting in family groups. Mrs. George H. Sweeney of Arlington and Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury are cochairmen.

OK BY R. J. SCOTT

TIGHT BINDING

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
MAY 4 1956

News of Concerts and Screen

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241
1956

NEW RECORDINGS

Stagliano's Fine Horn Playing

By CYRUS DURGIN

The fine playing of James Stagliano, first horn of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is that of a real virtuoso. In two records issued by his own company, Boston Records, Mr. Stagliano's beautiful work is reinforced by the excellence of other musicians. One of these discs contains the E flat Trio, Op. 40, by Brahms, and the F major Quartet for horn and strings by that Czech-born horn virtuoso of the latter 18th century Jan Vaclav Stich, who became known as Giovanni, or Gen'l Punto.

In Brahms, Mr. Stagliano was joined by Arthur Grumiaux, violin, and pianist Gregory Tucker; in Stich-Punto by Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Samuel Mayes, cello. Both performances are as pleasing as the music is substantial, and both are enhanced by engineering which produced remarkable "presence" of sound.

The second record, one in the new Boston University Anthology, brings the four Horn Concertos by Mozart, with the superb Zimbler Sinfonietta of Boston Symphony men as orchestra. If there is any better horn playing than this by Stagliano—and some of it is really dazzling for grace and agility—I have yet to hear it. The Mozart recording is the first made in Kresge Auditorium at M. I. T. That unique auditorium, acoustically doubtful for "live concerts," makes for an extremely bright, powerful resonance when empty, and the aural results here are very good.

Tchaikovsky by Munch

Last Fall Charles Munch conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of the Tchaikovsky F minor Symphony that was so slow the music fell apart. Over the next performance, I was told, he speeded up. Then it was taped, and the result is a record which might better never have been released. The pace is still too slow, and this dramatic symphony has little of the irresistible surge and passion it ought to have. No credit reflects upon Mr. Munch here. But RCA-Victor gives the recording tremendous hi-fi.

Haydn's "The Seven Last Words of Christ" may be heard in a playing of the very first rank by Messrs. Burgin, Krips, de Pasquale and Mayes, in this grouping styled the Boston Symphony String Quartet. This is devoted playing, of depth and technical finesse. RCA-Victor.

The admirable Pro Musica String Orchestra of Stuttgart has turned out some more satisfying Bach, under the leadership of Rolf Reinhardt. The C minor and C major Concertos for Two Harpsichords were done with the conductor and Helma Elsner at the keyboards, and the Concerto for Violin and Oboe, in D minor, with Will Beh and Friedrich Milde as string and wind soloists, respectively. The vigor of the ensemble is nicely tempered by elegance. Vox.

I find the Viola Concerto by the Swiss Frank Martin a fascinating modern work, bold and contemporary in manner and feeling, but music of high logic and order. Perhaps some day we shall hear it performed "live" in Boston. Meanwhile we can get acquainted with it in the pleasing traversal by Wolfgang Schneiderhan and the Swiss Romande Orchestra conducted by our old friend Ernest Ansermet. London.

The Pilot
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613
MAY 5 1956

Former Fordham President To Receive Eire Society Medal

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, May 5, at 6:30 P. M.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation for the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on Aug. 23 and 25 this year.

The gift will be presented by Joseph Gannon, president of the Society and will be accepted by Michael T. Kelleher, orchestra trustee.

The Society's Gold Medal is being presented to Father Gannon in recognition of his outstanding contributions as a "true educator of men and priest of God."

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593
MAY 4 1956

Sunday Soloist

LUISE VOSGERCHIAN, Watertown pianist who scored hit opening night of Pops, will again be soloist Sunday night in the Liszt First Concerto.

Stravinsky 'Soldat' In Jordan Hall

By Harold Rogers

During World War I a librettist and a composer, C. F. Ramuz and Igor Stravinsky, sought refuge in Switzerland. Bereft of an outlet for their creative energies, they found no way by which they could stage a full-scale spectacle comparable to those that had made Stravinsky's name famous.

"Why then not do something simple?" they reasoned, according to Ramuz' report in his "Souvenirs sur Igor Stravinsky."

"Why not write a piece that would dispense with a large hall or a vast public; a piece scored for a few instruments and employing but two or three actors? Since there are no more theaters, we would have a theater all our own, that is, our own scenery which could be mounted without difficulty no matter where, even in the open; we would have resumed the tradition of the itinerant theaters."

Thus "L'Histoire du Soldat" came into being. Stravinsky turned out his clever score for seven musicians—two strings (violin and contrabass), two woodwinds (clarinet and bassoon), two brass (trumpet and trombone), and percussion. There are three main characters—the Soldier, the Princess, and the Devil.

* * *

Last night a winning performance of "L'Histoire du Soldat" was presented in Jordan Hall by members of the New England Conservatory under the direction of Roger Voisin, first trumpeter of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It was produced and directed by George Guilbault, also heard as the Soldier's voice.

This production was particularly interesting for a novel departure in the staging. The orchestra sat on stage, right, in shirtsleeves (as was the case at the 1918 première in Lausanne, when Ernest Ansermet conducted). On stage, left, sat a narrator, Earl Cole, with a microphone before him. Between them was a large screen for a shadow play.

In this way the whole thing took on a delightful story-book quality, an illusion somewhat spoiled when the actors stepped before the screen. It was not altogether necessary that they leave their shadow world, yet the Princess's dance would hardly have been so effective if seen only in shadow.

As the Princess, Sonia Klosek gave a nimble and expert performance combining certain elements of ballet with modern dance. The Devil and the Soldier both lost stature when they appeared in the flesh, the former looking too much like a character at a fancy dress ball, the latter too young.

* * *

But taken as a whole, the production had much to commend it. Mr. Voisin's direction kept the music on its toes, where it must be if it is to sound as Stravinsky intended. It must be dry, witty, and peppery, and it was all that.

In the competent cast were Robert Chapman as the Soldier's image (with Mr. Guilbault as his voice) and Curt Allen as the Devil's image (with Leo Snyder as his voice). Mr. Cole's narration was very well read in an informal and direct manner.

Chronicle
NEEDHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4824

Old Colony Memorial
PLYMOUTH, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,252

Messenger
MARBLEHEAD, Mass.
Weekly Ind. Rep.
Circ. 2,500
MAY 3 1956

Townsman
WELLESLEY, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 5614
MAY 3 1956

Vassar-Dartmouth Night At Pops

Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 42,005

Herald
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4468
MAY 2 1956

Vassar Alumnae Plan Night At Pops

Cricket
MANCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,183

Patriot-Ledger (e)
QUINCY, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 39,259

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript
DEDHAM, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan

Star
WINCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,200

Star
WINCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,200

Belmont Citizen
Belmont, Mass.
May 4, 1956

Herald
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4468

Belmont Citizen
Belmont, Mass.

Belmont Citizen
Belmont, Mass.

Patriot-Ledger (e)
QUINCY, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 39,259

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
BEVERLY, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 6,754
MAY 5 1956

Beverly Vassar Alumnae Join In Plans For Vassar-Dartmouth Night At Pops

Vassar alumnae of the Beverly area are busy planning for the Vassar-Dartmouth Night at the Pops on Wednesday evening, May 16, at Symphony Hall in Boston, for the benefit of the scholarship funds of the two colleges.

The Vassar Club Pops committee chairman is Mrs. Thomas Morse of

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559
MAY 5 1956

85

TOP O' THE MORNING

EDITED BY PEGGY BROWN

Ah, tis May and as Laura Hulse suggests, a time when we're temped to wander. . . . I let my thoughts wander ahead of me this week—ahead to summer and vacations . . . and I thought of the sea and could almost smell the sea—sea like the sea in Patricia King's poem . . . Vera Ramos Keelan attended the final 75th Anniversary Boston Symphony concert and was inspired to write her beautiful Beethoven tribute . . . Another voice, Katherine Saunders this time, in favor of an anthology and a reminder that, going back to George Ryan, there are a good many years and a good many poems. A monumental task indeed it will be. At least 370 poems are printed a year. Those of you who know the number of years you've been reading the column can figure the rest. Any takers?

Pilgrimage

May is a month of birdsong
and of fragrance,
A time in which we're tempted
to be vagrants;
A vagabond would sure deserve
a judge's pardon
d saunter
rden.
URA HULSE

h the glass.
not pass.
nd leaves
the eaves.
SON KING

Symphony

nd fills the air
most gifted

I weep for him who [illegible] writ, ne'er
heard
The silken wings of his own doves so fair:

Great music magic binds all brothers
fast,
Souls blending like the fragrance of
fresh flowers,
The chorus singing, how it overpowers,
And bids us pray this golden hour will
last,
While seeking Him, a friend to have and
be,
With Charles Munch and the Boston
Symphony.

VERA RAMOS KEELAN

John Williamson of Wellesley general chairman of the committee, assisted by Daniel B. Ruggles, Jr., Swampscott; Gordon K. Wentworth, Wellesley; Richard D. Hill, Marblehead; Wesley Beattie, Melrose; Roger B. Salinger, Newton; Fred F. Stockwell, Winchester; Allan L. Priddy, Brookline; John Handrahan, North Weymouth; Richard D. Muzzy, Wellesley; E. Norton Jennings, Needham; John Boermeester, Needham; Everett Chamberlaine, Hingham; Paul Vaitses, Melrose; and William C. Isack, Winchester.

Tubby, Mrs. Lawrence Churchill, Mrs. Howard Deering, Mrs. Charles A. Coolidge Jr., Mrs. George L. Clarke, Mrs. J. P. Kelley, Mrs. J. Gordon Scannell, Mrs. S. Roy Burroughs, and Mrs. Lucy Gillespie.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
MAY 6 1956

EMMANUEL POPS

Emmanuel Night at Pops, sponsored by the Emmanuel College Alumnae Association, will be held Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall.

Committee members are working to make the event a family night, with students and alumnae meeting in family groups. Mrs. George H. Sweeney of Arlington and Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury are cochairmen.

OK BY R. J. SCOTT

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
MAY 4 1956

News of Concerts and Screen

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241
MAY 4 1956

NEW RECORDINGS

Stagliano's Fine Horn Playing

By CYRUS DURGIN

The fine playing of James Stagliano, first horn of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is that of a real virtuoso. In two records issued by his own company, Boston Records, Mr. Stagliano's beautiful work is reinforced by the excellence of other musicians. One of these discs contains the E flat Trio, Op. 40, by Brahms, and the F major Quartet for horn and strings by that Czech-born horn virtuoso of the latter 18th century Jan Vaclav Stich, who became known as Giovanni, or Gen'l Punto.

In Brahms, Mr. Stagliano was joined by Arthur Grumiaux, violin, and pianist Gregory Tucker; in Stich-Punto by Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Samuel Mayes, cello. Both performances are as pleasing as the music is substantial, and both are enhanced by engineering which produced remarkable "presence" of sound.

The second record, one in the new Boston University Anthology, brings the four Horn Concertos by Mozart, with the superb Zimbler Sinfonietta of Boston Symphony men as orchestra. If there is any better horn playing than this by Stagliano—and some of it is really dazzling for grace and agility—I have yet to hear it. The Mozart recording is the first made in Kresge Auditorium at M. I. T. That unique auditorium, acoustically doubtful for "live concerts," makes for an extremely bright, powerful resonance when empty, and the aural results here are very good.

Tchaikovsky by Munch

Last Fall Charles Munch conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of the Tchaikovsky F minor Symphony that was so slow the music fell apart. Over the next performance, I was told, he speeded up. Then it was taped, and the result is a record which might better never have been released. The pace is still too slow, and this dramatic symphony has little of the irresistible surge and passion it ought to have. No credit reflects upon Mr. Munch here. But RCA-Victor gives the recording tremendous hi-fi.

Haydn's "The Seven Last Words of Christ" may be heard in a playing of the very first rank by Messrs. Burgin, Krips, de Pasquale and Mayes, in this grouping styled the Boston Symphony String Quartet. This is devoted playing, of depth and technical finesse. RCA-Victor.

The admirable Pro Musica String Orchestra of Stuttgart has turned out some more satisfying Bach, under the leadership of Rolf Reinhardt. The C minor and C major Concertos for Two Harpsichords were done with the conductor and Helma Elsner at the keyboards, and the Concerto for Violin and Oboe, in D minor, with Will Beh and Friedrich Milde as string and wind soloists, respectively. The vigor of the ensemble is nicely tempered by elegance. Vox.

I find the Viola Concerto by the Swiss Frank Martin a fascinating modern work, bold and contemporary in manner and feeling, but music of high logic and order. Perhaps some day we shall hear it performed "live" in Boston. Meanwhile we can get acquainted with it in the pleasing traversal by Wolfgang Schneiderhan and the Swiss Romande Orchestra conducted by our old friend Ernest Ansermet. London.

The Pilot
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613
MAY 5 1956

Former Fordham President To Receive Eire Society Medal

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, May 5, at 6:30 P. M.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation for the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on Aug. 23 and 25 this year.

The gift will be presented by Joseph Gannon, president of the Society and will be accepted by Michael T. Kelleher, orchestra trustee.

The Society's Gold Medal is being presented to Father Gannon in recognition of his outstanding contributions as a "true educator of men and priest of God."

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593
MAY 4 1956

Sunday Soloist

LUISE VOSGERCHIAN, Watertown pianist who scored last opening night of Pops, will again be soloist Sunday night in the Liszt First Concerto.

Stravinsky 'Soldat' In Jordan Hall

By Harold Rogers

During World War I a librettist and a composer, C. F. Ramuz and Igor Stravinsky, sought refuge in Switzerland. Bereft of an outlet for their creative energies, they found no way by which they could stage a full-scale spectacle comparable to those that had made Stravinsky's name famous.

"Why then not do something simple?" they reasoned, according to Ramuz' report in his "Souvenirs sur Igor Stravinsky."

"Why not write a piece that would dispense with a large hall or a vast public; a piece scored for a few instruments and employing but two or three actors? Since there are no more theaters, we would have a theater all our own, that is, our own scenery which could be mounted without difficulty no matter where, even in the open; we would have resumed the tradition of the itinerant theaters."

Thus "L'Histoire du Soldat" came into being. Stravinsky turned out his clever score for seven musicians—two strings (violin and contrabass), two woodwinds (clarinet and bassoon), two brass (trumpet and trombone), and percussion. There are three main characters—the Soldier, the Princess, and the Devil.

* * *

Last night a winning performance of "L'Histoire du Soldat" was presented in Jordan Hall by members of the New England Conservatory under the direction of Roger Voisin, first trumpeter of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It was produced and directed by George Guilbault, also heard as the Soldier's voice.

This production was particularly interesting for a novel departure in the staging. The orchestra sat on stage, right, in shirtsleeves (as was the case at the 1918 première in Lausanne, when Ernest Ansermet conducted). On stage, left, sat a narrator, Earl Cole, with a microphone before him. Between them was a large screen for a shadow play.

In this way the whole thing took on a delightful story-book quality, an illusion somewhat spoiled when the actors stepped before the screen. It was not altogether necessary that they leave their shadow world, yet the Princess's dance would hardly have been so effective if seen only in shadow.

As the Princess, Sonia Klosek gave a nimble and expert performance combining certain elements of ballet with modern dance. The Devil and the Soldier both lost stature when they appeared in the flesh, the former looking too much like a character at a fancy dress ball, the latter too young.

* * *

But taken as a whole, the production had much to commend it. Mr. Voisin's direction kept the music on its toes, where it must be if it is to sound as Stravinsky intended. It must be dry, witty, and peppery, and it was all that.

In the competent cast were Robert Chapman as the Soldier's image (with Mr. Guilbault as his voice) and Curt Allen as the Devil's image (with Leo Snyder as his voice). Mr. Cole's narration was very well read in an informal and direct manner.

Chronicle
NEEDHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4824

Old Colony Memorial
PLYMOUTH, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,252

Messenger
MARBLEHEAD, Mass.
Weekly Ind. Rep.
Circ. 2,500
MAY 3 1956

Townsman
WELLESLEY, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 5614
MAY 3 1956

Vassar-Dartmouth Night At Pops

Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 42,005

Herald
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4468
MAY 2 1956

Vassar Alumnae Plan Night At Pops

Cricket
MANCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,183

Patriot-Ledger (e)
QUINCY, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 39,259

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript
DEDHAM, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan

Star
WINCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,200

Star
WINCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,200

Belmont Citizen
OK BY R. J. SCOTT

Vassar Night At 'Pops' May 16

The Vassar Club of Boston will sponsor its annual "Vassar Night at the Pops" On May 16. The proceeds will benefit the club's scholarship fund.

Mrs. Thomas Perry of Hingham is president of the club and Mrs. Henry Beecher of Milton is area chairman of club activities. Reservations for seats and tables are available through Miss Virginia Bridge of Brookline, chairman of the ticket committee.

Mrs. Louville Niles and Mrs. Joseph Allen, both of Hingham are among those who have reserved tables at the concert.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559
MAY 5 1956

85

TOP O' THE MORNING

EDITED BY PEGGY BROWN

Ah, tis May and as Laura Hulse suggests, a time when we're temped to wander. . . . I let my thoughts wander ahead of me this week—ahead to summer and vacations . . . and I thought of the sea and could almost smell the sea—sea like the sea in Patricia King's poem . . . Vera Ramos Keelan attended the final 75th Anniversary Boston Symphony concert and was inspired to write her beautiful Beethoven tribute . . . Another voice, Katherine Saunders this time, in favor of an anthology and a reminder that, going back to George Ryan, there are a good many years and a good many poems. A monumental task indeed it will be. At least 370 poems are printed a year. Those of you who know the number of years you've been reading the column can figure the rest. Any takers?

Pilgrimage

May is a month of birdsong
and of fragrance,
A time in which we're tempted
to be vagrants;
A vagabond would sure deserve
a judge's pardon
. . . t saunter
rden.

LAURA HULSE

the glass.
not pass.
nd leaves
the eaves.

SON KING

Symphony

nd fills the air
most gifted

I weep for him who having writ, ne'er
heard
The silken wings of his own doves so

John Williamson of Wellesley general chairman of the committee, assisted by Daniel B. Ruggles, Swampscott; Gordon K. Wentworth, Wellesley; Richard D. Hill, Marblehead; Wesley Beattie, Melrose; Roger B. Salinger, Newton; Fred F. Stockwell, Winchester; Dan L. Priddy, Brookline; John Handrahan, North Weymouth; Richard D. Muzzy, Wellesley; E. Irton Jennings, Needham; John Boermeester, Needham; Everett Chamberlaine, Hingham; Paul Vaitses, Melrose; and William C. Isack, Winchester.

Tubby, Mrs. Lawrence Churchill, Mrs. Howard Deering, Mrs. Charles A. Coolidge Jr., Mrs. George L. Clarke, Mrs. J. P. Kelley, Mrs. J. Gordon Scannell, Mrs. S. Roy Burroughs, and Mrs. Lucy Gillespie.

Great music magic binds all brothers
fast,
Souls blending like the fragrance of
fresh flowers,
The chorus singing, how it overpowers,
And bids us pray this golden hour will
last,
While seeking Him, a friend to have and
be,
With Charles Munch and the Boston
Symphony.

VERA RAMOS KEELAN

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
MAY 6 1956

EMMANUEL POPS

Emmanuel Night at Pops, sponsored by the Emmanuel College Alumnae Association, will be held Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall.

Committee members are working to make the event a family night, with students and alumnae meeting in family groups. Mrs. George H. Sweeney of Arlington and Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury are cochairmen.

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
MAY 4 1956

News of Concerts and Screen

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241
MAY 4 1956

NEW RECORDINGS

Stagliano's Fine Horn Playing

By CYRUS DURGIN

The fine playing of James Stagliano, first horn of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is that of a real virtuoso. In two records issued by his own company, Boston Records, Mr. Stagliano's beautiful work is reinforced by the excellence of other musicians. One of these discs contains the E flat Trio, Op. 40, by Brahms, and the F major Quartet for horn and strings by that Czech-born horn virtuoso of the latter 18th century Jan Vaclav Stich, who became known as Giovanni, or Gen'l Punto.

In Brahms, Mr. Stagliano was joined by Arthur Grumiaux, violin, and pianist Gregory Tucker; in Stich-Punto by Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Samuel Mayes, cello. Both performances are as pleasing as the music is substantial, and both are enhanced by engineering which produced remarkable "presence" of sound.

The second record, one in the new Boston University Anthology, brings the four Horn Concertos by Mozart, with the superb Zimbler Sinfonietta of Boston Symphony men as orchestra. If there is any better horn playing than this by Stagliano—and some of it is really dazzling for grace and agility—I have yet to hear it. The Mozart recording is the first made in Kresge Auditorium at M. I. T. That unique auditorium, acoustically doubtful for "live concerts," makes for an extremely bright, powerful resonance when empty, and the aural results here are very good.

Tchaikovsky by Munch

Last Fall Charles Munch conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of the Tchaikovsky F minor Symphony that was so slow the music fell apart. Over the next performance, I was told, he speeded up. Then it was taped, and the result is a record which might better never have been released. The pace is still too slow, and this dramatic symphony has little of the irresistible surge and passion it ought to have. No credit reflects upon Mr. Munch here. But RCA-Victor gives the recording tremendous hi-fi.

Haydn's "The Seven Last Words of Christ" may be heard in a playing of the very first rank by Messrs. Burgin, Krips, de Pasquale and Mayes, in this grouping styled the Boston Symphony String Quartet. This is devoted playing, of depth and technical finesse, RCA-Victor.

The admirable Pro Musica String Orchestra of Stuttgart has turned out some more satisfying Bach, under the leadership of Rolf Reinhardt. The C minor and C major Concertos for Two Harpsichords were done with the conductor and Helma Elsner at the keyboards, and the Concerto for Violin and Oboe, in D minor, with Will Beh and Friedrich Milde as string and wind soloists, respectively. The vigor of the ensemble is nicely tempered by elegance. Vox

I find the Viola Concerto by the Swiss Frank Martin a fascinating modern work, bold and contemporary in manner and feeling, but music of high logic and order. Perhaps some day we shall hear it performed "live" in Boston. Meanwhile we can get acquainted with it in the pleasing traversal by Wolfgang Schneiderhan and the Swiss Romande Orchestra conducted by our old friend Ernest Ansermet. London.

The Pilot
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613
MAY 5 - 1956

Former Fordham President To Receive Eire Society Medal

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, May 5, at 6:30 P. M.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation for the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on Aug. 23 and 25 this year.

The gift will be presented by Joseph Gannon, president of the Society and will be accepted by Michael T. Kelleher, orchestra trustee.

The Society's Gold Medal is being presented to Father Gannon in recognition of his outstanding contributions as a "true educator of men and priest of God."

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593
MAY 4 1956

Sunday Soloist

LOUISE VOSGERCHIAN, Watertown pianist who scored at opening night of Pops, will again be soloist Sunday night in the Liszt First Concerto.

Stravinsky 'Soldat' In Jordan Hall

By Harold Rogers

During World War I a librettist and a composer, C. F. Ramuz and Igor Stravinsky, sought refuge in Switzerland. Bereft of an outlet for their creative energies, they found no way by which they could stage a full-scale spectacle comparable to those that had made Stravinsky's name famous.

"Why then not do something simple?" they reasoned, according to Ramuz' report in his "Souvenirs sur Igor Stravinsky."

"Why not write a piece that would dispense with a large hall or a vast public; a piece scored for a few instruments and employing but two or three actors? Since there are no more theaters, we would have a theater all our own, that is, our own scenery which could be mounted without difficulty no matter where, even in the open; we would have resumed the tradition of the itinerant theaters."

Thus "L'Histoire du Soldat" came into being. Stravinsky turned out his clever score for seven musicians—two strings (violin and contrabass), two woodwinds (clarinet and bassoon), two brass (trumpet and trombone), and percussion. There are three main characters—the Soldier, the Princess, and the Devil.

* * *

Last night a winning performance of "L'Histoire du Soldat" was presented in Jordan Hall by members of the New England Conservatory under the direction of Roger Voisin, first trumpeter of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It was produced and directed by George Guilbault, also heard as the Soldier's voice.

This production was particularly interesting for a novel departure in the staging. The orchestra sat on stage, right, in shirtsleeves (as was the case at the 1918 première in Lausanne, when Ernest Ansermet conducted). On stage, left, sat a narrator, Earl Cole, with a microphone before him. Between them was a large screen for a shadow play.

In this way the whole thing took on a delightful story-book quality, an illusion somewhat spoiled when the actors stepped before the screen. It was not altogether necessary that they leave their shadow world, yet the Princess's dance would hardly have been so effective if seen only in shadow.

As the Princess, Sonia Klosek gave a nimble and expert performance combining certain elements of ballet with modern dance. The Devil and the Soldier both lost stature when they appeared in the flesh, the former looking too much like a character at a fancy dress ball, the latter too young.

* * *

But taken as a whole, the production had much to commend it. Mr. Voisin's direction kept the music on its toes, where it must be if it is to sound as Stravinsky intended. It must be dry, witty, and peppery, and it was all that.

In the competent cast were Robert Chapman as the Soldier's image (with Mr. Guilbault as his voice) and Curt Allen as the Devil's image (with Leo Snyder as his voice). Mr. Cole's narration was very well read in an informal and direct manner.

Chronicle
NEEDHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4824

Old Colony Memorial
PLYMOUTH, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,252

Messenger
MARBLEHEAD, Mass.
Weekly Ind. Rep.
Circ. 2,500
MAY 3 1956

Townsman
WELLESLEY, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 5614
MAY 3 1956

Vassar-Dartmouth Night At Pops

Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 42,005

Herald
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4468
MAY 3

Vassar Alumnae Plan Night At Pops

Cricket
MANCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,183

Patriot-Ledger (e)
QUINCY, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 39,259

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript
DEDHAM, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan

Star
WINCHESTER, Mass.

BY R. J. SCOTT

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Buckley, 520 Jerusalem Road, Cohasset, are visiting in Washington. They were entertained at a dinner party given at Norman Farm, Rockville, Md., by Con- and Mrs. Donald V. Nichols.

* * *

Mahon is also a graduate Quincy High School and is employed by J. J. Duane Company, Quincy. Mr. Mahon and Sons, Quincy, Mr. Gro- employed as a clerk by L. Gro- Quincy High School and is e- THE BRIDE is a graduate

Vassar Alumnae Planning For Night at Pops

Vassar Alumnae of the Belmont area are busy planning for the Vassar-Dartmouth Night at the Pops to be held on Wednesday evening, May 16, at Symphony Hall, for the benefit of the scholarship funds of the two colleges.

Patronesses in the Belmont area include: Mrs. Hershel Baker, Mrs. David Cogan, Mrs. Vernon Stoneman, Mrs. Paul Tubby, Mrs. Lawrence Churchill, Mrs. Howard Deering, Mrs. Charles A. Coolidge, Jr., Mrs. George L. Clarke, Mrs. J. P. Kelley, Mrs. J. Gordon Scannell, Mrs. S. Roy Burroughs and Mrs. Lucy Gillespie.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559
MAY 5 1956

85

TOP O' THE MORNING

EDITED BY PEGGY BROWN

Ah, tis May and as Laura Hulse suggests, a time when we're temped to wander. . . . I let my thoughts wander ahead of me this week—ahead to summer and vacations . . . and I thought of the sea and could almost smell the sea—sea like the sea in Patricia King's poem . . . Vera Ramos Keelan attended the final 75th Anniversary Boston Symphony concert and was inspired to write her beautiful Beethoven tribute . . . Another voice, Katherine Saunders this time, in favor of an anthology and a reminder that, going back to George Ryan, there are a good many years and a good many poems. A monumental task indeed it will be. At least 370 poems are printed a year. Those of you who know the number of years you've been reading the column can figure the rest. Any takers?

Pilgrimage

May is a month of birdsong
and of fragrance,
A time in which we're tempted
to be vagrants;
A vagabond would sure deserve
a judge's pardon
d saunter
arden.
URA HULSE

John Williamson of Wellesley general chairman of the commi- tee, assisted by Daniel B. Ruggles, Swampscott; Gordon K. Went- rth, Wellesley; Richard D. Hill, rblehead; Wesley Beattie, Mel- e; Roger B. Salinger, Newton; d F. Stockwell, Winchester; an L. Priddy, Brookline; John Handrahan, North Weymouth; hard D. Muzzy, Wellesley; E. rton Jennings, Needham; John Boermeester, Needham; Everett Chamberlaine, Hingham; Paul Vaitses, Melrose; and William C. ack, Winchester.

h the glass.
not pass.
and leaves
the eaves.
NSON KING

Symphony
nd fills the air
most gifted

I weep for him who having writ, ne'er
heard
The silken wings of his own doves so

Tubby, Mrs. Lawrence Churchill, Mrs. Howard Deering, Mrs. Charles A. Coolidge Jr., Mrs. George L. Clarke, Mrs. J. P. Kelley, Mrs. J. Gordon Scannell, Mrs. S. Roy Burroughs, and Mrs. Lucy Gillespie.

sup.

Great music magic binds all brothers
fast,
Souls blending like the fragrance of
fresh flowers,
The chorus singing, how it overpowers,
And bids us pray this golden hour will
last,
While seeking Him, a friend to have and
be,
With Charles Munch and the Boston
Symphony.

VERA RAMOS KEELAN

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
MAY 6 1956

EMMANUEL POPS

Emmanuel Night at Pops, sponsored by the Emmanuel College Alumnae Association, will be held Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall.

Committee members are working to make the event a family night, with students and alumnae meeting in family groups. Mrs. George H. Sweeney of Arlington and Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury are cochairmen.

INFORMATION OBSCURED

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
MAY 4 1956

News of Concerts and Screen

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241
MAY 4 1956

NEW RECORDINGS

Stagliano's Fine Horn Playing

By CYRUS DURGIN

The fine playing of James Stagliano, first horn of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is that of a great virtuoso. In two records issued by his own company, Boston Records, Mr. Stagliano's beautiful work is reinforced by the excellence of other musicians. One of these discs contains the E flat Trio, Op. 40, by Brahms, and the F major Quartet for horn and strings by that Czech-born horn virtuoso of the latter 18th century Jan Vaclav Stich, who became known as Giovanni, or Gen'l Punto.

In Brahms, Mr. Stagliano was joined by Arthur Grumiaux, violin, and pianist Gregory Tucker; in Stich-Punto by Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Samuel Mayes, cello. Both performances are as pleasing as the music is substantial, and both are enhanced by engineering which produced remarkable "presence" of sound.

The second record, one in the new Boston University Anthology, brings the four Horn Concertos by Mozart, with the superb Zimbler Sinfonietta of Boston Symphony men as orchestra. If there is any better horn playing than this by Stagliano—and some of it is really dazzling for grace and agility—I have yet to hear it. The Mozart recording is the first made in Kresge Auditorium at M. I. T. That unique auditorium, acoustically doubtful for "live concerts," makes for an extremely bright, powerful resonance when empty, and the aural results here are very good.

Tchaikovsky by Munch

Last Fall Charles Munch conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of the Tchaikovsky F minor Symphony that was so slow the music fell apart. Over the next performance, I was told, he speeded up. Then it was taped, and the result is a record which might better never have been released. The pace is still too slow, and this dramatic symphony has little of the irresistible surge and passion it ought to have. No credit reflects upon Mr. Munch here. But RCA-Victor gives the recording tremendous hi-fi.

Haydn's "The Seven Last Words of Christ" may be heard in a playing of the very first rank by Messrs. Burgin, Krips, de Pasquale and Mayes, in this grouping styled the Boston Symphony String Quartet. This is devoted playing, of depth and technical finesse, RCA-Victor.

The admirable Pro Musica String Orchestra of Stuttgart has turned out some more satisfying Bach, under the leadership of Rolf Reinhardt. The C minor and C major Concertos for Two Harpsichords were done with the conductor and Helma Elsner at the keyboards, and the Concerto for Violin and Oboe, in D minor, with Will Beh and Friedrich Milde as string and wind soloists, respectively. The vigor of the ensemble is nicely tempered by elegance. Vox.

I find the Viola Concerto by the Swiss Frank Martin a fascinating modern work, bold and contemporary in manner and feeling, but music of high logic and order. Perhaps some day we shall hear it performed "live" in Boston. Meanwhile we can get acquainted with it in the pleasing traversal by Wolfgang Schneiderhan and the Swiss Romande Orchestra conducted by our old friend Ernest Ansermet. London.

The Pilot
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613
MAY 5 1956

Former Fordham President To Receive Eire Society Medal

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, May 5, at 6:30 P. M.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation for the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on Aug. 23 and 25 this year.

The gift will be presented by Joseph Gannon, president of the Society and will be accepted by Michael T. Kelleher, orchestra trustee.

The Society's Gold Medal is being presented to Father Gannon in recognition of his outstanding contributions as a "true educator of men and priest of God."

Stravinsky 'Soldat' In Jordan Hall

By Harold Rogers

During World War I a librettist and a composer, C. F. Ramuz and Igor Stravinsky, sought refuge in Switzerland. Bereft of an outlet for their creative energies, they found no way by which they could stage a full-scale spectacle comparable to those that had made Stravinsky's name famous.

"Why then not do something simple?" they reasoned, according to Ramuz' report in his "Souvenirs sur Igor Stravinsky."

"Why not write a piece that would dispense with a large hall or a vast public; a piece scored for a few instruments and employing but two or three actors? Since there are no more theaters, we would have a theater all our own, that is, our own scenery which could be mounted without difficulty no matter where, even in the open; we would have resumed the tradition of the itinerant theaters."

Thus "L'Histoire du Soldat" came into being. Stravinsky turned out his clever score for seven musicians—two strings (violin and contrabass), two woodwinds (clarinet and bassoon), two brass (trumpet and trombone), and percussion. There are three main characters—the Soldier, the Princess, and the Devil.

* * *

Last night a winning performance of "L'Histoire du Soldat" was presented in Jordan Hall by members of the New England Conservatory under the direction of Roger Voisin, first trumpeter of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It was produced and directed by George Guilbault, also heard as the Soldier's voice.

This production was particularly interesting for a novel departure in the staging. The orchestra sat on stage, right, in shirtsleeves (as was the case at the 1918 première in Lausanne, when Ernest Ansermet conducted). On stage, left, sat a narrator, Earl Cole, with a microphone before him. Between them was a large screen for a shadow play.

In this way the whole thing took on a delightful story-book quality, an illusion somewhat spoiled when the actors stepped before the screen. It was not altogether necessary that they leave their shadow world, yet the Princess's dance would hardly have been so effective if seen only in shadow.

As the Princess, Sonia Klosek gave a nimble and expert performance combining certain elements of ballet with modern dance. The Devil and the Soldier both lost stature when they appeared in the flesh, the former looking too much like a character at a fancy dress ball, the latter too young.

* * *

But taken as a whole, the production had much to commend it. Mr. Voisin's direction kept the music on its toes, where it must be if it is to sound as Stravinsky intended. It must be dry, witty, and peppery, and it was all that.

In the competent cast were Robert Chapman as the Soldier's image (with Mr. Guilbault as his voice) and Curt Allen as the Devil's image (with Leo Snyder as his voice). Mr. Cole's narration was very well read in an informal and direct manner.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593
MAY 4 1956

Sunday Soloist

LISE VOSGERCHIAN, Boston pianist who scored last opening night of Pops, will be soloist Sunday night in the Liszt First Concerto.

Chronicle
NEEDHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4824

Old Colony Memorial
PLYMOUTH, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,252

Messenger
MARBLEHEAD, Mass.
Weekly Ind. Rep.
Circ. 2,500
MAY 3 1956

Townsman
WELLESLEY, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 5614
MAY 3 1956

Vassar-Dartmouth Night At Pops

Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 42,005

Herald
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4468

Vassar Alumnae Plan Night At Pops

Cricket
MANCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,183

Patriot-Ledger (e)
QUINCY, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 30,250

They were entertained at a dinner party given at Norman Farm, Rockville, Md., by Con- and Mrs. Donald W. Nicholson

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559
MAY 5 1956

85

TOP O' THE MORNING

EDITED BY PEGGY BROWN

Ah, tis May and as Laura Hulse suggests, a time when we're temped to wander. . . . I let my thoughts wander ahead of me this week—ahead to summer and vacations . . . and I thought of the sea and could almost smell the sea—sea like the sea in Patricia King's poem . . . Vera Ramos Keelan attended the final 75th Anniversary Boston Symphony concert and was inspired to write her beautiful Beethoven tribute . . . Another voice, Katherine Saunders this time, in favor of an anthology and a reminder that, going back to George Ryan, there are a good many years and a good many poems. A monumental task indeed it will be. At least 370 poems are printed a year. Those of you who know the number of years you've been reading the column can figure the rest. Any takers?

Pilgrimage

May is a month of birdsong
and of fragrance,
A time in which we're tempted
to be vagrants;
A vagabond would sure deserve

John Williamson of Wellesley [illegible] general chairman of the commit[illegible]e, assisted by Daniel B. Ruggles, [illegible]., Swampscott; Gordon K. Went[illegible]orth, Wellesley; Richard D. Hill, [illegible]arblehead; Wesley Beattie, Mel[illegible]ose; Roger B. Salinger, Newton; [illegible]red F. Stockwell, Winchester; [illegible]Allan L. Priddy, Brookline; John [illegible]B. Handrahan, North Weymouth; [illegible]Richard D. Muzzy, Wellesley; E. [illegible]Morton Jennings, Needham; John [illegible]M. Boermeester, Needham; Everett [illegible]M. Chamberlaine, Hingham; Paul [illegible]S. Vaitses, Melrose; and William C. [illegible]Cusack, Winchester.

Tubby, Mrs. Lawrence Churchill, [illegible]ley, Mrs. J. Gordon Scannell, Mrs. Howard Deering, Mrs. Mrs. S. Roy Burroughs, and Mrs. Charles A. Coolidge Jr., Mrs. Lucy Gillespie. George L. Clarke, Mrs. J. P. Kel-

ment,
And bids us drink, on love and life to sup.

Great music magic binds all brothers fast,
Souls blending like the fragrance of fresh flowers,
The chorus singing, how it overpowers,
And bids us pray this golden hour will last,
While seeking Him, a friend to have and be,
With Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony.

VERA RAMOS KEELAN

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
MAY 6 1956

EMMANUEL POPS

Emmanuel Night at Pops, sponsored by the Emmanuel College Alumnae Association, will be held Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall.

Committee members are working to make the event a family night, with students and alumnae meeting in family groups. Mrs. George H. Sweeney of Arlington and Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury are cochairmen.

[illegible] of 19[illegible] committee [illegible] of the Eire Society of Boston, to be held Saturday evening at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel. Speakers will be the Hon. John J. Hearne, Ireland's ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify of Belmont, prominent Boston attorney. The society will present its Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert J. Gannon, S.J., former president of Fordham University, and give $1,000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which is to give August concerts in Cork and Dublin.

[illegible] Mrs. John Manning, Miss Julie Kelly, Mrs. Francis Phelan, Mrs. James Reagan, Miss Lilla Mae Conlon and Mrs. George Kelleher.

[illegible]ning, Mrs. Julie Kelly, Mrs. James Reagan, Mrs. Francis Phelan, Miss Lilla Mae Conlon and Mrs. George Kelleher.

INFORMATION OBSCURED

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 4 1956

News of Concerts and Screen

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 4 1956

NEW RECORDINGS

Stagliano's Fine Horn Playing

By CYRUS DURGIN

The fine playing of James Stagliano, first horn of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is that of a real virtuoso. In two records issued by his own company, Boston Records, Mr. Stagliano's beautiful work is reinforced by the excellence of other musicians. One of these discs contains the E flat Trio, Op. 40, by Brahms, and the F major Quartet for horn and strings by that Czech-born horn virtuoso of the latter 18th century Jan Vaclav Stich, who became known as Giovanni, or Gen'l Punto.

In Brahms, Mr. Stagliano was joined by Arthur Grumiaux, violin, and pianist Gregory Tucker; in Stich-Punto by Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Samuel Mayes, cello. Both performances are as pleasing as the music is substantial, and both are enhanced by engineering which produced remarkable "presence" of sound.

The second record, one in the new Boston University Anthology, brings the four Horn Concertos by Mozart, with the superb Zimbler Sinfonietta of Boston Symphony men as orchestra. If there is any better horn playing than this by Stagliano—and some of it is really dazzling for grace and agility—I have yet to hear it. The Mozart recording is the first made in Kresge Auditorium at M. I. T. That unique auditorium, acoustically doubtful for "live concerts," makes for an extremely bright, powerful resonance when empty, and the aural results here are very good.

Tchaikovsky by Munch

Last Fall Charles Munch conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of the Tchaikovsky F minor Symphony that was so slow the music fell apart. Over the next performance, I was told, he speeded up. Then it was taped, and the result is a record which might better never have been released. The pace is still too slow, and this dramatic symphony has little of the irresistible surge and passion it ought to have. No credit reflects upon Mr. Munch here. But RCA-Victor gives the recording tremendous hi-fi.

Haydn's "The Seven Last Words of Christ" may be heard in a playing of the very first rank by Messrs. Burgin, Krips, de Pasquale and Mayes, in this grouping styled the Boston Symphony String Quartet. This is devoted playing, of depth and technical finesse. RCA-Victor.

The admirable Pro Musica String Orchestra of Stuttgart has turned out some more satisfying Bach, under the leadership of Rolf Reinhardt. The C minor and C major Concertos for Two Harpsichords were done with the conductor and Helma Elsner at the keyboards, and the Concerto for Violin and Oboe, in D minor, with Will Beh and Friedrich Milde as string and wind soloists, respectively. The vigor of the ensemble is nicely tempered by elegance. Vox.

I find the Viola Concerto by the Swiss Frank Martin a fascinating modern work, bold and contemporary in manner and feeling, but music of high logic and order. Perhaps some day we shall hear it performed "live" in Boston. Meanwhile we can get acquainted with it in the pleasing traversal by Wolfgang Schneiderhan and the Swiss Romande Orchestra conducted by our old friend Ernest Ansermet. London.

The Pilot
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613

MAY 5 1956

Former Fordham President To Receive Eire Society Medal

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, May 5, at 6:30 P. M.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation for the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on Aug. 23 and 25 this year.

The gift will be presented by Joseph Gannon, president of the Society and will be accepted by Michael T. Kelleher, orchestra trustee.

The Society's Gold Medal is being presented to Father Gannon in recognition of his outstanding contributions as a "true educator of men and priest of God."

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 4 1956

Sunday Soloist

LUISE VOSGERCHIAN, Boston pianist who scored opening night of Pops, will be soloist Sunday night in the Liszt First Concerto.

Stravinsky 'Soldat' In Jordan Hall

By Harold Rogers

During World War I a librettist and a composer, C. F. Ramuz and Igor Stravinsky, sought refuge in Switzerland. Bereft of an outlet for their creative energies, they found no way by which they could stage a full-scale spectacle comparable to those that had made Stravinsky's name famous.

"Why then not do something simple?" they reasoned, according to Ramuz' report in his "Souvenirs sur Igor Stravinsky."

"Why not write a piece that would dispense with a large hall or a vast public; a piece scored for a few instruments and employing but two or three actors? Since there are no more theaters, we would have a theater all our own, that is, our own scenery which could be mounted without difficulty no matter where, even in the open; we would have resumed the tradition of the itinerant theaters."

Thus "L'Histoire du Soldat" came into being. Stravinsky turned out his clever score for seven musicians—two strings (violin and contrabass), two woodwinds (clarinet and bassoon), two brass (trumpet and trombone), and percussion. There are three main characters—the Soldier, the Princess, and the Devil.

* * *

Last night a winning performance of "L'Histoire du Soldat" was presented in Jordan Hall by members of the New England Conservatory under the direction of Roger Voisin, first trumpeter of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It was produced and directed by George Guilbault, also heard as the Soldier's voice.

This production was particularly interesting for a novel departure in the staging. The orchestra sat on stage, right, in shirtsleeves (as was the case at the 1918 première in Lausanne, when Ernest Ansermet conducted). On stage, left, sat a narrator, Earl Cole, with a microphone before him. Between them was a large screen for a shadow play.

In this way the whole thing took on a delightful story-book quality, an illusion somewhat spoiled when the actors stepped before the screen. It was not altogether necessary that they leave their shadow world, yet the Princess's dance would hardly have been so effective if seen only in shadow.

As the Princess, Sonia Klosek gave a nimble and expert performance combining certain elements of ballet with modern dance. The Devil and the Soldier both lost stature when they appeared in the flesh, the former looking too much like a character at a fancy dress ball, the latter too young.

* * *

But taken as a whole, the production had much to commend it. Mr. Voisin's direction kept the music on its toes, where it must be if it is to sound as Stravinsky intended. It must be dry, witty, and peppery, and it was all that.

In the competent cast were Robert Chapman as the Soldier's image (with Mr. Guilbault as his voice) and Curt Allen as the Devil's image (with Leo Snyder as his voice). Mr. Cole's narration was very well read in an informal and direct manner.

Chronicle
NEEDHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4824

Old Colony Memorial
PLYMOUTH, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,252

Messenger
MARBLEHEAD, Mass.
Weekly Ind. Rep.
Circ. 2,500

MAY 3 1956

Townsman
WELLESLEY, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 5614

MAY 3 1956

Vassar-Dartmouth Night At Pops

Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 42,005

Herald
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4468

Emmanuel Alumnae Plan Night At Pops

Emmanuel College Alumnae and students from Belmont are busy planning for the annual Emmanuel Night at the Pops to be held May 14.

A special feature of the Pops' program will be the presentation of songs by the Emmanuel College Glee Club.

Proceeds of the concert, sponsored by the Alumnae Association will benefit the college building program. Tickets however, must be obtained by May 6 if benefits from the sale are to be realized.

Serving on the committee from Belmont are Mrs. John Manning, Miss Julie Kelly, Mrs. Francis Phelan, Mrs. James Reagan, Miss Lilla Mae Conlon and Mrs. George Kelleher.

ning, Mrs. Julie Kelly, Mrs. James Reagan, Mrs. Francis Phelan, Miss Lilla Mae Conlon and Mrs. George Kelleher.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 5 1956

85

TOP O' THE MORNING

EDITED BY PEGGY BROWN

Ah, tis May and as Laura Hulse suggests, a time when we're temped to wander. . . . I let my thoughts wander ahead of me this week—ahead to summer and vacations . . . and I thought of the sea and could almost smell the sea—sea like the sea in Patricia King's poem . . . Vera Ramos Keelan attended the final 75th Anniversary Boston Symphony concert and was inspired to write her beautiful Beethoven tribute . . . Another voice, Katherine Saunders this time, in favor of an anthology and a reminder that, going back to George Ryan, there are a good many years and a good many poems. A monumental task indeed it will be. At least 370 poems are printed a year. Those of you who know the number of years you've been reading the column can figure the rest. Any takers?

Pilgrimage

May is a month of birdsong
and of fragrance,
A time in which we're tempted
to be vagrants;
A vagabond would sure deserve
a judge's pardon

John Williamson of Wellesley [illegible] general chairman of the committee, assisted by Daniel B. Ruggles, Jr., Swampscott; Gordon K. Wentworth, Wellesley; Richard D. Hill, Marblehead; Wesley Beattie, Melrose; Roger B. Salinger, Newton; [illegible] F. Stockwell, Winchester; [illegible] L. Priddy, Brookline; John [illegible] Handrahan, North Weymouth; [illegible] D. Muzzy, Wellesley; E. [illegible] Jennings, Needham; John [illegible] Boermeester, Needham; Everett [illegible] Chamberlaine, Hingham; Paul [illegible] Vaitses, Melrose; and William C. [illegible]usack, Winchester.

[illegible] bird,
I weep for him who having writ, ne'er
heard
The silken wings of his own doves so fair.

Tubby, Mrs. Lawrence Churchill, [illegible]ley, Mrs. J. Gordon Scannell, Mrs. Howard Deering, Mrs. Mrs. S. Roy Burroughs, and Mrs. Charles A. Coolidge Jr., Mrs. Lucy Gillespie. George L. Clarke, Mrs. J. P. Kel-

Great music magic binds all brothers
fast,
Souls blending like the fragrance of
fresh flowers,
The chorus singing, how it overpowers,
And bids us pray this golden hour will
last,
While seeking Him, a friend to have and
be,
With Charles Munch and the Boston
Symphony.

VERA RAMOS KEELAN

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

MAY 6 1956

EMMANUEL POPS

Emmanuel Night at Pops, sponsored by the Emmanuel College Alumnae Association, will be held Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall.

Committee members are working to make the event a family night, with students and alumnae meeting in family groups. Mrs. George H. Sweeney of Arlington and Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury are cochairmen.

INFORMATION OBSCURED

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
MAY 4 1956

News of Concerts and Screen

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241
MAY 4 1956

NEW RECORDINGS

Stagliano's Fine Horn Playing

By CYRUS DURGIN

The fine playing of James Stagliano, first horn of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is that of a great virtuoso. In two records issued by his own company, Boston Records, Mr. Stagliano's beautiful work is reinforced by the excellence of other musicians. One of these discs contains the E flat Trio, Op. 40, by Brahms, and the F major Quartet for horn and strings by that Czech-born horn virtuoso of the latter 18th century, Jan Vaclav Stich, who became known as Giovanni, or Gen'l Punto.

In Brahms, Mr. Stagliano was joined by Arthur Grumiaux, violin, and pianist Gregory Tucker; in Stich-Punto by Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Samuel Mayes, cello. Both performances are as pleasing as the music is substantial, and both are enhanced by engineering which produced remarkable "presence" of sound.

The second record, one in the New Boston University Anthology, brings the four Horn Concertos by Mozart, with the superb Zimbler Sinfonietta of Boston Symphony men as orchestra. If there is any better horn playing than this by Stagliano—and some of it is really dazzling for grace and agility—I have yet to hear it. The Mozart recording is the first made in Kresge Auditorium at M. I. T. That unique auditorium, acoustically doubtful for "live concerts," makes for an extremely bright, powerful resonance when empty, and the aural results here are very good.

Tchaikovsky by Munch

Last Fall Charles Munch conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of the Tchaikovsky F minor Symphony that was so slow the music fell apart. Over the next performance, I was told, he speeded up. Then it was taped, and the result is a record which might better never have been released. The pace is still too slow, and this dramatic symphony has little of the irresistible surge and passion it ought to have. No credit reflects upon Mr. Munch here. But RCA-Victor gives the recording tremendous hi-fi.

Haydn's "The Seven Last Words of Christ" may be heard in a playing of the very first rank by Messrs. Burgin, Krips, de Pasquale and Mayes, in this grouping styled the Boston Symphony String Quartet. This is devoted playing, of depth and technical finesse. RCA-Victor.

The admirable Pro Musica String Orchestra of Stuttgart has turned out some more satisfying Bach, under the leadership of Rolf Reinhardt. The C minor and C major Concertos for Two Harpsichords were done with the conductor and Helma Elsner at the keyboards, and the Concerto for Violin and Oboe, in D minor, with Will Beh and Friedrich Milde as string and wind soloists, respectively. The vigor of the ensemble is nicely tempered by elegance. Vox.

I find the Viola Concerto by the Swiss Frank Martin a fascinating modern work, bold and contemporary in manner and feeling, but music of high logic and order. Perhaps some day we shall hear it performed "live" in Boston. Meanwhile we can get acquainted with it in the pleasing traversal by Wolfgang Schneiderhan and the Swiss Romande Orchestra conducted by our old friend Ernest Ansermet. London.

The Pilot
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613
MAY 5 1956

Former Fordham President To Receive Eire Society Medal

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, May 5, at 6:30 P. M.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation for the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on Aug. 23 and 25 this year.

The gift will be presented by Joseph Gannon, president of the Society and will be accepted by Michael T. Kelleher, orchestra trustee.

The Society's Gold Medal is being presented to Father Gannon in recognition of his outstanding contributions as a "true educator of men and priest of God."

Stravinsky 'Soldat' In Jordan Hall

By Harold Rogers

During World War I a librettist and a composer, C. F. Ramuz and Igor Stravinsky, sought refuge in Switzerland. Bereft of an outlet for their creative energies, they found no way by which they could stage a full-scale spectacle comparable to those that had made Stravinsky's name famous.

"Why then not do something simple?" they reasoned, according to Ramuz' report in his "Souvenirs sur Igor Stravinsky."

"Why not write a piece that would dispense with a large hall or a vast public; a piece scored for a few instruments and employing but two or three actors? Since there are no more theaters, we would have a theater all our own, that is, our own scenery which could be mounted without difficulty no matter where, even in the open; we would have resumed the tradition of the itinerant theaters."

Thus "L'Histoire du Soldat" came into being. Stravinsky turned out his clever score for seven musicians—two strings (violin and contrabass), two woodwinds (clarinet and bassoon), two brass (trumpet and trombone), and percussion. There are three main characters—the Soldier, the Princess, and the Devil.

* * *

Last night a winning performance of "L'Histoire du Soldat" was presented in Jordan Hall by members of the New England Conservatory under the direction of Roger Voisin, first trumpeter of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It was produced and directed by George Guilbault, also heard as the Soldier's voice.

This production was particularly interesting for a novel departure in the staging. The orchestra sat on stage, right, in shirtsleeves (as was the case at the 1918 première in Lausanne, when Ernest Ansermet conducted). On stage, left, sat a narrator, Earl Cole, with a microphone before him. Between them was a large screen for a shadow play.

In this way the whole thing took on a delightful story-book quality, an illusion somewhat spoiled when the actors stepped before the screen. It was not altogether necessary that they leave their shadow world, yet the Princess's dance would hardly have been so effective if seen only in shadow.

As the Princess, Sonia Klosek gave a nimble and expert performance combining certain elements of ballet with modern dance. The Devil and the Soldier both lost stature when they appeared in the flesh, the former looking too much like a character at a fancy dress ball, the latter too young.

* * *

But taken as a whole, the production had much to commend it. Mr. Voisin's direction kept the music on its toes, where it must be if it is to sound as Stravinsky intended. It must be dry, witty, and peppery, and it was all that.

In the competent cast were Robert Chapman as the Soldier's image (with Mr. Guilbault as his voice) and Curt Allen as the Devil's image (with Leo Snyder as his voice). Mr. Cole's narration was very well read in an informal and direct manner.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593
MAY 4 1956

Sunday Soloist

ISE VOSGERCHIAN, ...own pianist who scored ...ing night of Pops, will ...e soloist Sunday night ...the Last First Concerto.

Chronicle
NEEDHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4824

Old Colony Memorial
PLYMOUTH, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,252

Messenger
MARBLEHEAD, Mass.
Weekly Ind. Rep.
Circ. 2,500
MAY 3 1956

Townsman
WELLESLEY, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 5614
MAY 3 1956

Vassar-Dartmouth Night At Pops

Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 42,005

OK BY R. J. SCOTT

They were entertained at a dinner party given at Normandy Farm, Rockville, Md., by Con... and Mrs. Donald W. Nicholson, are visiting in Washington.

...nmanuel College Alumnae and students from Belmont are busy planning for the annual Emmanuel Night at the Pops to be held May 14.

Committee members are working hard to make the Symphony Hall event a family night as well, with students and alumnae attending in family groups with their parents, brothers, sisters, husbands and children.

"Give Mother a ticket to the Pops for Mother's Day," is a motto of the committee headed by Mrs. George H. Sweeney of Arlington, with Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury as co-chairman.

A special feature of the Pops' program will be the presentation of songs by the Emmanuel College Glee Club.

Proceeds of the concert, sponsored by the Alumnae Association, will benefit the college building program. Tickets however, must be obtained by May 6 if benefits from the sale are to be realized.

Serving on the committee from Belmont are: Mrs. John Manning, Mrs. Julie Kelly, Mrs. James Reagan, Mrs. Francis Phelan, Miss Lilla Mae Conlon and Mrs. George Kelleher.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559
MAY 5 1956

85

TOP O' THE MORNING

EDITED BY PEGGY BROWN

Ah, tis May and as Laura Hulse suggests, a time when we're temped to wander. . . . I let my thoughts wander ahead of me this week—ahead to summer and vacations . . . and I thought of the sea and could almost smell the sea—sea like the sea in Patricia King's poem . . . Vera Ramos Keelan attended the final 75th Anniversary Boston Symphony concert and was inspired to write her beautiful Beethoven tribute . . . Another voice, Katherine Saunders this time, in favor of an anthology and a reminder that, going back to George Ryan, there are a good many years and a good many poems. A monumental task indeed it will be. At least 370 poems are printed a year. Those of you who know the number of years you've been reading the column can figure the rest. Any takers?

Pilgrimage

May is a month of birdsong
and of fragrance,
A time in which we're tempted
to be vagrants;
A vagabond would sure deserve
a judge's pardon

John Williamson of Wellesley ...ssaunter general chairman of the commit- ...len.
tee, assisted by Daniel B. Ruggles, ...RA HULSE
... Swampscott; Gordon K. Went-
...rth, Wellesley; Richard D. Hill,
...rblehead; Wesley Beattie, Mel-
...e; Roger B. Salinger, Newton; ...the glass.
...d F. Stockwell, Winchester; ...t pass.
...an L. Priddy, Brookline; John ...leaves
Handrahan, North Weymouth; ...eaves.
...hard D. Muzzy, Wellesley; E. ...ON KING
...rton Jennings, Needham; John
Boermeester, Needham; Everett
Chamberlaine, Hingham; Paul ...mphony
...aitses, Melrose; and William C. ...fills the air
...ack, Winchester. ...st gifted

...bird,
I weep for him who having writ, ne'er
heard

Tubby, Mrs. Lawrence Churchill, ...ley, Mrs. J. Gordon Scannell, Mrs. Howard Deering, Mrs. Mrs. S. Roy Burroughs, and Mrs. Charles A. Coolidge Jr., Mrs. Lucy Gillespie. George L. Clarke, Mrs. J. P. Kel-

And bids us drink, on love and life to sup.

Great music magic binds all brothers fast,
Souls blending like the fragrance of fresh flowers,
The chorus singing, how it overpowers,
And bids us pray this golden hour will last,
While seeking Him, a friend to have and be,
With Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony.

VERA RAMOS KEELAN

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
MAY 6 1956

EMMANUEL POPS

Emmanuel Night at Pops, sponsored by the Emmanuel College Alumnae Association, ...will be held Monday, May 14, ...t Symphony Hall.

Committee members are ...orking to make the event a ...mily night, with students and ...umnae meeting in family ...ups. Mrs. George H. Swee- ... of Arlington and Mrs. Ed- ...rd C. Keane of West Roxbury ...ochairmen.

INFORMATION OBSCURED

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
MAY 4 1956

News of Concerts and Screen

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241
MAY 4 1956

NEW RECORDINGS

Stagliano's Fine Horn Playing

By CYRUS DURGIN

The fine playing of James Stagliano, first horn of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is that of a real virtuoso. In two records issued by his own company, Boston Records, Mr. Stagliano's beautiful work is reinforced by the excellence of other musicians. One of these discs contains the E flat Trio, Op. 40, by Brahms, and the F major Quartet for horn and strings by that Czech-born horn virtuoso of the latter 18th century Jan Vaclav Stich, who became known as Giovanni, or Gen'l Punto.

In Brahms, Mr. Stagliano was joined by Arthur Grumiaux, violin, and pianist Gregory Tucker; in Stich-Punto by Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Samuel Mayes, cello. Both performances are as pleasing as the music is substantial, and both are enhanced by engineering which produced remarkable "presence" of sound.

The second record, one in the new Boston University Anthology, brings the four Horn Concertos by Mozart, with the superb Zimbler Sinfonietta of Boston Symphony men as orchestra. If there is any better horn playing than this by Stagliano—and some of it is really dazzling for grace and agility—I have yet to hear it. The Mozart recording is the first made in Kresge Auditorium at M. I. T. That unique auditorium, acoustically doubtful for "live concerts," makes for an extremely bright, powerful resonance when empty, and the aural results here are very good.

Tchaikovsky by Munch

Last Fall Charles Munch conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of the Tchaikovsky F minor Symphony that was so slow the music fell apart. Over the next performance, I was told, he speeded up. Then it was taped, and the result is a record which might better never have been released. The pace is still too slow, and this dramatic symphony has little of the irresistible surge and passion it ought to have. No credit reflects upon Mr. Munch here. But RCA-Victor gives the recording tremendous hi-fi.

Haydn's "The Seven Last Words of Christ" may be heard in a playing of the very first rank by Messrs. Burgin, Krips, de Pasquale and Mayes, in this grouping styled the Boston Symphony String Quartet. This is devoted playing, of depth and technical finesse. RCA-Victor.

The admirable Pro Musica String Orchestra of Stuttgart has turned out some more satisfying Bach, under the leadership of Rolf Reinhardt. The C minor and C major Concertos for Two Harpsichords were done with the conductor and Helma Elsner at the keyboards, and the Concerto for Violin and Oboe, in D minor, with Will Beh and Friedrich Milde as string and wind soloists, respectively. The vigor of the ensemble is nicely tempered by elegance. Vox.

I find the Viola Concerto by the Swiss Frank Martin a fascinating modern work, bold and contemporary in manner and feeling, but music of high logic and order. Perhaps some day we shall hear it performed "live" in Boston. Meanwhile we can get acquainted with it in the pleasing traversal by Wolfgang Schneiderhan and the Swiss Romande Orchestra conducted by our old friend Ernest Ansermet. London.

The Pilot
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613
MAY 5 1956

Former Fordham President To Receive Eire Society Medal

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, May 5, at 6:30 P. M.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation for the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on Aug. 23 and 25 this year.

The gift will be presented by Joseph Gannon, president of the Society and will be accepted by Michael T. Kelleher, orchestra trustee.

The Society's Gold Medal is being presented to Father Gannon in recognition of his outstanding contributions as a "true educator of men and priest of God."

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593
MAY 4 1956

Sunday Soloist

LUISE VOSGERCHIAN, Watertown pianist who scored opening night of Pops, will be soloist Sunday night in the Liszt First Concerto.

Stravinsky 'Soldat' In Jordan Hall

By Harold Rogers

During World War I a librettist and a composer, C. F. Ramuz and Igor Stravinsky, sought refuge in Switzerland. Bereft of an outlet for their creative energies, they found no way by which they could stage a full-scale spectacle comparable to those that had made Stravinsky's name famous.

"Why then not do something simple?" they reasoned, according to Ramuz' report in his "Souvenirs sur Igor Stravinsky."

"Why not write a piece that would dispense with a large hall or a vast public; a piece scored for a few instruments and employing but two or three actors? Since there are no more theaters, we would have a theater all our own, that is, our own scenery which could be mounted without difficulty no matter where, even in the open; we would have resumed the tradition of the itinerant theaters."

Thus "L'Histoire du Soldat" came into being. Stravinsky turned out his clever score for seven musicians—two strings (violin and contrabass), two woodwinds (clarinet and bassoon), two brass (trumpet and trombone), and percussion. There are three main characters—the Soldier, the Princess, and the Devil.

* * *

Last night a winning performance of "L'Histoire du Soldat" was presented in Jordan Hall by members of the New England Conservatory under the direction of Roger Voisin, first trumpeter of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It was produced and directed by George Guilbault, also heard as the Soldier's voice.

This production was particularly interesting for a novel departure in the staging. The orchestra sat on stage, right, in shirtsleeves (as was the case at the 1918 première in Lausanne, when Ernest Ansermet conducted). On stage, left, sat a narrator, Earl Cole, with a microphone before him. Between them was a large screen for a shadow play.

In this way the whole thing took on a delightful story-book quality, an illusion somewhat spoiled when the actors stepped before the screen. It was not altogether necessary that they [illegible]ve their shadow world, yet [illegible] Princess's dance would [illegible]lly have been so effective if [illegible] only in shadow.

[illegible] the Princess, Sonia Klosek [illegible] a nimble and expert per[illegible]ance combining certain ele[illegible] of ballet with modern [illegible]. The Devil and the Soldier [illegible]lost stature when they ap[illegible]d in the flesh, the former [illegible]g too much like a charac[illegible]t a fancy dress ball, the [illegible] too young.

* * *

[illegible] taken as a whole, the pro[illegible]on had much to commend [illegible]r. Voisin's direction kept [illegible]usic on its toes, where it [illegible]be if it is to sound as Stra[illegible]y intended. It must be dry, [illegible] and peppery, and it was [illegible]t.

[illegible] the competent cast were [illegible]t Chapman as the Soldier's [illegible] (with Mr. Guilbault as his [illegible] and Curt Allen as the [illegible] image (with Leo Snyder [illegible] voice). Mr. Cole's narra[illegible]as very well read in an [illegible]al and direct manner.

Chronicle
NEEDHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4824

Old Colony Memorial
PLYMOUTH, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,252

Messenger
MARBLEHEAD, Mass.
Weekly Ind. Rep.
Circ. 2,500
MAY 3 1956

Townsman
WELLESLEY, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 5614

OK BY R. J. SCOTT

They were entertained at a dinner party given at Norman[illegible] Farm, Rockville, Md., by Con[illegible] and Mrs. Donald W. Nicholson [illegible] are visiting in Washington [illegible] Road, Conasse[illegible]

[illegible] Williamson of Wellesley [illegible] chairman of the commi[illegible] assisted by Daniel B. Ruggles, [illegible]wampscott; Gordon K. Went[illegible] Wellesley; Richard D. Hill, [illegible]head; Wesley Beattie, Mel[illegible] Roger B. Salinger, Newton; [illegible] F. Stockwell, Winchester; [illegible] L. Priddy, Brookline; John [illegible]ndrahan, North Weymouth; [illegible]d D. Muzzy, Wellesley; E. [illegible] Jennings, Needham; John [illegible]ermeester, Needham; Everett [illegible]amberlaine, Hingham; Paul [illegible]ses, Melrose; and William C. [illegible] Winchester.

Stephen Nagy, Gail Nelson, Kevin O'Brian, John O'Connell, Sharon O'Connell, Starr Ockenga, Nancy Olson, John Orsini, Jean Palmer, Wayne Paskerian, Herbert Payonzack, Carol Peterson, Patricia Piccarello, Richard Pierce, Richard Rigano, Linda Rigdon, Bromley Roberts, Carol Roberts, Beatrice Rohrbough, Judy Rogers, Susan Rogers, Joyce Rollins, Kevin Rose, Myrne Rosen, Manning, Herbert Matson, Jack Marshall, Christine Mazzocchi, Patricia McCormack, Edmund McDevitt, Neil McElroy, Keith McLean, Willard McLucas, Meagor McSorley, Ralph Mercer, Anthony Mick, Marilyn Monahan, Bruce Morse, Sandra Mulhern, Marilyn Murray, Betsy Murdock, Virginia Murphy.

[illegible] Mrs. E. [illegible]ath, [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] tubby, Mrs. Lawrence Churchill, [illegible] Mrs. Howard Deering, Mrs. [illegible] Charles A. Coolidge Jr., Mrs. [illegible] George L. Clarke, Mrs. J. P. Kel[illegible]ley, Mrs. J. Gordon Scannell, Mrs. S. Roy Burroughs, and Mrs. Lucy Gillespie.

The promotion followed successful completion of a Navy-wide petty officer examination conducted in February.

[illegible] USS Intrepid with the Atlantic Fleet.

[illegible] are attack aircraft [illegible] carrier [illegible]

[illegible] Mrs. W. W. Davies, III; Mrs. Eugene G. Rochow, Mrs. Richard M. Alt, Mrs. Wallace McDonald, Mrs. Richard G. King, Mrs. Edward S. Rendall, Mrs. Francis L. D. Judge and Mrs. George S. Stotthoff are Winchester alumnae patronnesses for Vassar-Dartmouth Night at the Pops on Wednesday evening, May 16. Proceeds benefit the scholarship funds of the two colleges.

Robert Haydock of Newton Center, Mrs. J. Charles Drooker of Brookline, and Mrs. H. Burton Powers of Wellesley.

Patronesses in the Dedham area include: Mrs. Morris Gray, who is chairman of the Vassar Club in the Dedham area, Mrs. Goodwin Harding, Mrs. Alex MacLeod, Mrs. Thomas E. Jansen, Mrs. John Williams, Mrs. Andrew W. Rankin, and Mrs. Marshall K. Bartlett.

Tickets may be obtained from the Vassar Club by calling Miss Virginia Bridge at ASpinwall 1-0506.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559
MAY 5 1956

85

TOP O' THE MORNING

EDITED BY PEGGY BROWN

Ah, tis May and as Laura Hulse suggests, a time when we're tempted to wander. . . . I let my thoughts wander ahead of me this week—ahead to summer and vacations . . . and I thought of the sea and could almost smell the sea—sea like the sea in Patricia King's poem . . . Vera Ramos Keelan attended the final 75th Anniversary Boston Symphony concert and was inspired to write her beautiful Beethoven tribute . . . Another voice, Katherine Saunders this time, in favor of an anthology and a reminder that, going back to George Ryan, there are a good many years and a good many poems. A monumental task indeed it will be. At least 370 poems are printed a year. Those of you who know the number of years you've been reading the column can figure the rest. Any takers?

Pilgrimage

May is a month of birdsong
and of fragrance,
A time in which we're tempted
to be vagrants;
A vagabond would sure deserve
[illegible]
[illegible] saunter
[illegible]en.

RA HULSE

[illegible] the glass.
[illegible]ot pass.
[illegible]d leaves
[illegible]e eaves.

ON KING

[illegible]ymphony
[illegible] fills the air
[illegible]st gifted

bird,
I weep for him who having with [illegible]
[illegible]

And bids us drink, on love and life to sup.

Great music magic binds all brothers fast,
Souls blending like the fragrance of fresh flowers,
The chorus singing, how it overpowers,
And bids us pray this golden hour will last,
While seeking Him, a friend to have and be,
With Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony.

VERA RAMOS KEELAN

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
MAY 6 1956

EMMANUEL POPS

Emmanuel Night at Pops, [illegible]ponsored by the Emmanuel [illegible]ollege Alumnae Association, [illegible]ill be held Monday, May 14, [illegible] Symphony Hall.

Committee members are [illegible]rking to make the event a [illegible]ily night, with students and [illegible]nnae meeting in family [illegible]ps. Mrs. George H. Swee[illegible] of Arlington and Mrs. Ed[illegible]d C. Keane of West Roxbury [illegible] are eochairmen.

INFORMATION OBSCURED

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
MAY 4 1956

News of Concerts and Screen

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241
MAY 4 1956

NEW RECORDINGS

Stagliano's Fine Horn Playing

By CYRUS DURGIN

The fine playing of James Stagliano, first horn of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is that of a real virtuoso. In two records issued by his own company, Boston Records, Mr. Stagliano's beautiful work is reinforced by the excellence of other musicians. One of these discs contains the E flat Trio, Op. 40, by Brahms, and the F major Quartet for horn and strings by that Czech-born horn virtuoso of the latter 18th century Jan Vaclav Stich, who became known as Giovanni, or Gen'l Punto.

In Brahms, Mr. Stagliano was joined by Arthur Grumiaux, violin, and pianist Gregory Tucker; in Stich-Punto by Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Samuel Mayes, cello. Both performances are as pleasing as the music is substantial, and both are enhanced by engineering which produced remarkable "presence" of sound.

The second record, one in the New Boston University Anthology, brings the four Horn Concertos by Mozart, with the superb Zimbler Sinfonietta of Boston Symphony men as orchestra. If there is any better horn playing than this by Stagliano—and some of it is really dazzling for grace and agility—I have yet to hear it. The Mozart recording is the first made in Kresge Auditorium at M. I. T. That unique auditorium, acoustically doubtful for "live concerts," makes for an extremely bright, powerful resonance when empty, and the aural results here are very good.

Tchaikovsky by Munch

Last Fall Charles Munch conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of the Tchaikovsky F minor Symphony that was so slow the music fell apart. Over the next performance, I was told, he speeded up. Then it was taped, and the result is a record which might better never have been released. The pace is still too slow, and this dramatic symphony has little of the irresistible surge and passion it ought to have. No credit reflects upon Mr. Munch here. But RCA-Victor gives the recording tremendous hi-fi.

Haydn's "The Seven Last Words of Christ" may be heard in a playing of the very first rank by Messrs. Burgin, Krips, de Pasquale and Mayes, in this grouping styled the Boston Symphony String Quartet. This is devoted playing, of depth and technical finesse. RCA-Victor.

The admirable Pro Musica String Orchestra of Stuttgart has turned out some more satisfying Bach, under the leadership of Rolf Reinhardt. The C minor and C major Concertos for Two Harpsichords were done with the conductor and Helma Elsner at the keyboards, and the Concerto for Violin and Oboe, in D minor, with Will Beh and Friedrich Milde as string and wind soloists, respectively. The vigor of the ensemble is nicely tempered by elegance. Vox.

I find the Viola Concerto by the Swiss Frank Martin a fascinating modern work, bold and contemporary in manner and feeling, but music of high logic and order. Perhaps some day we shall hear it performed "live" in Boston. Meanwhile we can get acquainted with it in the pleasing traversal by Wolfgang Schneiderhan and the Swiss Romande Orchestra conducted by our old friend Ernest Ansermet. London.

The Pilot
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613
MAY 5 1956

Former Fordham President To Receive Eire Society Medal

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, May 5, at 6:30 P. M.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation for the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on Aug. 23 and 25 this year.

The gift will be presented by Joseph Gannon, president of the Society and will be accepted by Michael T. Kelleher, orchestra trustee.

The Society's Gold Medal is being presented to Father Gannon in recognition of his outstanding contributions as a "true educator of men and priest of God."

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593
MAY 4 1956

Sunday Soloist

LOUISE VOSGERCHIAN, Watertown pianist who scored at opening night of Pops, will be soloist Sunday night in the Last First Concerto.

Stravinsky 'Soldat' In Jordan Hall

By Harold Rogers

During World War I a librettist and a composer, C. F. Ramuz and Igor Stravinsky, sought refuge in Switzerland. Bereft of an outlet for their creative energies, they found no way by which they could stage a full-scale spectacle comparable to those that had made Stravinsky's name famous.

"Why then not do something simple?" they reasoned, according to Ramuz' report in his "Souvenirs sur Igor Stravinsky."

"Why not write a piece that would dispense with a large hall or a vast public; a piece scored for a few instruments and employing but two or three actors? Since there are no more theaters, we would have a theater all our own, that is, our own scenery which could be mounted without difficulty no matter where, even in the open; we would have resumed the tradition of the itinerant theaters."

Thus "L'Histoire du Soldat" came into being. Stravinsky turned out his clever score for seven musicians—two strings (violin and contrabass), two woodwinds (clarinet and bassoon), two brass (trumpet and trombone), and percussion. There are three main characters—the Soldier, the Princess, and the Devil.

* * *

Last night a winning performance of "L'Histoire du Soldat" was presented in Jordan Hall by members of the New England Conservatory under the direction of Roger Voisin, first trumpeter of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It was produced and directed by George Guilbault, also heard as the Soldier's voice.

This production was particularly interesting for a novel departure in the staging. The orchestra sat on stage, right, in shirtsleeves (as was the case at the 1918 première in Lausanne, when Ernest Ansermet conducted). On stage, left, sat a narrator, Earl Cole, with a microphone before him. Between them was a large screen for a shadow play.

In this way the whole thing took on a delightful story-book quality, an illusion somewhat spoiled when the actors stepped before the screen. It was not altogether necessary that they leave their shadow world, yet the Princess's dance would surely have been so effective if only in shadow.

As the Princess, Sonia Klosek was a nimble and expert performance combining certain elements of ballet with modern dance. The Devil and the Soldier lost stature when they appeared in the flesh, the former being too much like a character at a fancy dress ball, the latter too young.

* * *

But taken as a whole, the production had much to commend it. Mr. Voisin's direction kept the music on its toes, where it must be if it is to sound as Stravinsky intended. It must be dry, witty, and peppery, and it was all that.

In the competent cast were Robert Chapman as the Soldier's image (with Mr. Guilbault as his voice) and Curt Allen as the Devil's image (with Leo Snyder as his voice). Mr. Cole's narration was very well read in an informal and direct manner.

Chronicle
NEEDHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4824

Old Colony Memorial
PLYMOUTH, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,252

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559
MAY 5 1956

85

TOP O' THE MORNING

EDITED BY PEGGY BROWN

Ah, tis May and as Laura Hulse suggests, a time when we're temped to wander. . . . I let my thoughts wander ahead of me this week—ahead to summer and vacations . . . and I thought of the sea and could almost smell the sea—sea like the sea in Patricia King's poem . . . Vera Ramos Keelan attended the final 75th Anniversary Boston Symphony concert and was inspired to write her beautiful Beethoven tribute . . . Another voice, Katherine Saunders this time, in favor of an anthology and a reminder that, going back to George Ryan, there are a good many years and a good many poems. A monumental task indeed it will be. At least 370 poems are printed a year. Those of you who know the number of years you've been reading the column can figure the rest. Any takers?

Pilgrimage

May is a month of birdsong
and of fragrance,
A time in which we're tempted
to be vagrants;
A vagabond would sure deserve
a judge's pardon
To saunter
ten.
RA HULSE

Williamson of Wellesley chairman of the commited by Daniel B. Ruggles, upscott; Gordon K. Went-Wellesley; Richard D. Hill, ad; Wesley Beattie, Mel-ger B. Salinger, Newton;
Stockwell, Winchester;
Priddy, Brookline; John
rahan, North Weymouth;
D. Muzzy, Wellesley; E.
Jennings, Needham; John heester, Needham; Everett berlaine, Hingham; Paul
, Melrose; and William C.
Winchester.

the glass.
t pass.
g leaves
e eaves.
ON KING

mphony fills the air st gifted

bird, weep for him wh
he

bby, Mrs. Lawrence Churchill, ley, Mrs. J. Gordon Scannell, rs. Howard Deering, Mrs. Mrs. S. Roy Burroughs, and Mrs. harles A. Coolidge Jr., Mrs.
eorge L. Clarke, Mrs. J. P. Kel- Lucy Gillespie.

own nourish-

d bids us drink, on love and life to sup.

eat music magic binds all brothers
fast,
Souls blending like the fragrance of
fresh flowers,
he chorus singing, how it overpowers, nd bids us pray this golden hour will
last,
hile seeking Him, a friend to have and
be,
th Charles Munch and the Boston
Symphony.

VERA RAMOS KEELAN

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
MAY 6 1956

DARTMOUTH NIGHT

The Annual Dartmouth Night at the Boston Symphony Pops, has been announced for Wednesday, May 16th. All net proceeds from the sale of tickets will be contributed to the Greater Boston Scholarship Fund which is sponsored by the Dartmouth Alumni Association.

Fred F. Stockwell and William C. Cusack are Winchester members of the arrangements committee.

Thomas ... assisted by Mrs. Andrew Rankin of Dedham, Mrs. Don Ross of Newton Highlands, Mrs. Robert Haydock of Newton Center, Mrs. J. Charles Drooker of Brookline, and Mrs. H. Burton Powers of Wellesley.

Patronesses in the Dedham area include: Mrs. Morris Gray, who is chairman of the Vassar Club in the Dedham area, Mrs. Goodwin Harding, Mrs. Alex MacLeod, Mrs. Thomas E. Jansen, Mrs. John Williams, Mrs. Andrew W. Rankin, and Mrs. Marshall K. Bartlett.

Tickets may be obtained from the Vassar Club by calling Miss Virginia Bridge at ASpinwall 1-0506.

EMMANUEL POPS

Emmanuel Night at Pops, ...red by the Emmanuel Alumnae Association, ... held Monday, May 14, ...phony Hall.

...ittee members are ... to make the event a ...ght, with students and ... meeting in family ...Mrs. George H. Swee- ...lington and Mrs. Ed- ... Keane of West Roxbury ... are co-chairmen.

INFORMATION OBSCURED

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
MAY 4 1956

News of Concerts and Sc

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241
MAY 4 1956

NEW RECORDINGS

Stagliano's Fine Horn Playing

By CYRUS DURGIN

The fine playing of James Stagliano, first horn of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is that of a real virtuoso. In two records issued by his own company, Boston Records, Mr. Stagliano's beautiful work is reinforced by the excellence of other musicians. One of these discs contains the E flat Trio, Op. 40, by Brahms, and the F major Quartet for horn and strings by that Czech-born horn virtuoso of the latter 18th century Jan Vaclav Stich, who became known as Giovanni, or Gen'l Punto.

In Brahms, Mr. Stagliano was joined by Arthur Grumiaux, violin, and pianist Gregory Tucker; in Stich-Punto by Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Samuel Mayes, cello. Both performances are as pleasing as the music is substantial, and both are enhanced by engineering which produced remarkable "presence" of sound.

The second record, one in the new Boston University Anthology, brings the four Horn Concertos by Mozart, with the superb Zimmer Sinfonietta of Boston Symphony men as orchestra. If there is any better horn playing than this by Stagliano—and some of it is really dazzling for grace and agility—I have yet to hear it. The Mozart recording is the first made in Kresge Auditorium at M. I. T. That unique auditorium, acoustically doubtful for "live concerts," makes for an extremely bright, powerful resonance when empty, and the aural results here are very good.

Tchaikovsky by Munch

Last Fall Charles Munch conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of the Tchaikovsky F minor Symphony that was so slow the music fell apart. Over the next performance, I was told, he speeded up. Then it was taped, and the result is a record which might better never have been released. The pace is still too slow, and this dramatic symphony has little of the irresistible surge and passion it ought to have. No credit reflects upon Mr. Munch here. But RCA-Victor gives the recording tremendous hi-fi.

Haydn's "The Seven Last Words of Christ" may be heard in a playing of the very first rank by Messrs. Burgin, Krips, de Pasquale and Mayes, in this grouping styled the Boston Symphony String Quartet. This is devoted playing, of depth and technical finesse. RCA-Victor.

The admirable Pro Musica String Orchestra of Stuttgart has turned out some more satisfying Bach, under the leadership of Rolf Reinhardt. The C minor and C major Concertos for Two Harpsichords were done with the conductor and Helma Elsner at the keyboards, and the Concerto for Violin and Oboe, in D minor, with Will Beh and Friedrich Milde as string and wind soloists, respectively. The vigor of the ensemble is nicely tempered by elegance. Vox.

I find the Viola Concerto by the Swiss Frank Martin a fascinating modern work, bold and contemporary in manner and feeling, but music of high logic and order. Perhaps some day we shall hear it performed "live" in Boston. Meanwhile we can get acquainted with it in the pleasing traversal by Wolfgang Schneiderhan and the Swiss Romande Orchestra conducted by our old friend Ernest Ansermet. London.

The Pilot
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613
MAY 5 1956

Former Fordham President To Receive Eire Society Medal

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, May 5, at 6:30 P. M.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation for the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on Aug. 23 and 25 this year.

The gift will be presented by Joseph Gannon, president of the Society and will be accepted by Michael T. Kelleher, orchestra trustee.

The Society's Gold Medal is being presented to Father Gannon in recognition of his outstanding contributions as a "true educator of men and priest of God."

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593
MAY 4 1956

Sunday Soloist

ISE VOSGERCHIAN, Watertown pianist who scored opening night of Pops, will be soloist Sunday night in the Last First Concerto.

Stravinsky 'Soldat' In Jordan H

By Harold Rogers

During World War I a lib tist and a composer, C. F. Ra and Igor Stravinsky, sought uge in Switzerland. Bereft of outlet for their creative en gies, they found no way which they could stage a fu scale spectacle comparable those that had made Stravi sky's name famous.

"Why then not do somethin simple?" they reasoned, accord ing to Ramuz' report in his "Souvenirs sur Igor Stravinsky."

"Why not write a piece that would dispense with a large hall or a vast public; a piece scored for a few instruments and employing but two or three actors? Since there are no more theaters, we would have a theater all our own, that is, our own scenery which could be mounted without difficulty no matter where, even in the open; we would have resumed the tradition of the itinerant theaters."

Thus "L'Histoire du Soldat" came into being. Stravinsky turned out his clever score for seven musicians—two strings (violin and contrabass), two woodwinds (clarinet and bassoon), two brass (trumpet and trombone), and percussion. There are three main characters —the Soldier, the Princess, and the Devil.

* * *

Last night a winning performance of "L'Histoire du Soldat" was presented in Jordan Hall by members of the New England Conservatory under the direction of Roger Voisin, first trumpeter of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It was produced and directed by George Guilbault, also heard as the Soldier's voice.

This production was particularly interesting for a novel departure in the staging. The orchestra sat on stage, right, in shirtsleeves (as was the case at the 1918 première in Lausanne, when Ernest Ansermet conducted). On stage, left, sat a narrator, Earl Cole, with a microphone before him. Between them was a large screen for a shadow play.

In this way the whole thing took on a delightful story-book quality, an illusion somewhat spoiled when the actors stepped before the screen. It was not altogether necessary that they leave their shadow world, yet the Princess's dance would hardly have been so effective if seen only in shadow.

As the Princess, Sonia Klosek gave a nimble and expert performance combining certain elements of ballet with modern dance. The Devil and the Soldier both lost stature when they appeared in the flesh, the former looking too much like a character at a fancy dress ball, the latter too young.

* * *

But taken as a whole, the production had much to commend it. Mr. Voisin's direction kept the music on its toes, where it must be if it is to sound as Stravinsky intended. It must be dry, witty, and peppery, and it was all that.

In the competent cast were Robert Chapman as the Soldier's image (with Mr. Guilbault as his voice) and Curt Allen as the Devil's image (with Leo Snyder as his voice). Mr. Cole's narration was very well read in an informal and direct manner.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559
MAY 5 1956

85

TOP O' THE MORNING

EDITED BY PEGGY BROWN

Ah, tis May and as Laura Hulse suggests, a time when we're temped to wander. . . . I let my thoughts wander ahead of me this week—ahead to summer and vacations . . . and I thought of the sea and could almost smell the sea—sea like the sea in Patricia King's poem . . . Vera Ramos Keelan attended the final 75th Anniversary Boston Symphony concert and was inspired to write her beautiful Beethoven tribute . . . Another voice, Katherine Saunders this time, in favor of an anthology and a reminder that, going back to George Ryan, there are a good many years and a good many poems. A monumental task indeed it will be. At least 370 poems are printed a year. Those of you who know the number of years you've been reading the column can figure the rest. Any takers?

Pilgrimage

May is a month of birdsong
and of fragrance,
A time in which we're tempted
to be vagrants;
A vagabond would sure deserve
a judge's pardon

John Williamson of Wellesley ...assaunter neral chairman of the commi... ...len.
p, assisted by Daniel B. Ruggles, ...RA HULSE Swampscott; Gordon K. Went-
rth, Wellesley; Richard D. Hill,
rblehead; Wesley Beattie, Mel-
e; Roger B. Salinger, Newton; ...the glass.
d F. Stockwell, Winchester; ...t pass.
n L. Priddy, Brookline; John ...l leaves Handrahan, North Weymouth; ...e eaves.
hard D. Muzzy, Wellesley; E. ton Jennings, Needham; John ...ON KING
Boermeester, Needham; Everett
Chamberlaine, Hingham; Paul
aitses, Melrose; and William C.
ick, Winchester.

...mphony
...fills the air
...st gifted

I weep for him who having writ, ne'er
heard
The sill...

Tubby, Mrs. Lawrence Churchill, Mrs. Howard Deering, Mrs. Charles A. Coolidge Jr., Mrs. George L. Clarke, Mrs. J. P. Kelley, Mrs. J. Gordon Scannell, Mrs. S. Roy Burroughs, and Mrs. Lucy Gillespie.

...drink, on love and life to sup.

Great music magic binds all brothers
fast,
Souls blending like the fragrance of
fresh flowers,
The chorus singing, how it overpowers,
And bids us pray this golden hour will
last,
While seeking Him, a friend to have and
be,
With Charles Munch and the Boston
Symphony.

VERA RAMOS KEELAN

Local Alumnae Planning Vassar Night At Pops

Vassar alumnae of the Dedham area are busy planning the Vassar-Dartmouth Night at the Pops to be held on Wednesday evening, May 16, at Symphony Hall, for the benefit of the scholarship funds of the two colleges.

The Vassar Club pops committee chairman is Mrs. Thomas Morse of Brookline, assisted by Mrs. Andrew Rankin of Dedham, Mrs. Don Ross of Newton Highlands, Mrs. Robert Haydock of Newton Center, Mrs. J. Charles Drooker of Brookline, and Mrs. H. Burton Powers of Wellesley.

Patronesses in the Dedham area include: Mrs. Morris Gray, who is chairman of the Vassar Club in the Dedham area, Mrs. Goodwin Harding, Mrs. Alex MacLeod, Mrs. Thomas E. Jansen, Mrs. John Williams, Mrs. Andrew W. Rankin, and Mrs. Marshall K. Bartlett.

Tickets may be obtained from the Vassar Club by calling Miss Virginia Bridge at ASpinwall 1-0506.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
MAY 6 1956

EMMANUEL POPS

Emmanuel Night at Pops, ...ponsored by the Emmanuel College Alumnae Association, ...ill be held Monday, May 14, ...t Symphony Hall.

Committee members are ...rking to make the event a ...mily night, with students and ...mnae meeting in family ...ps. Mrs. George H. Swee- ...of Arlington and Mrs. Ed- ...d C. Keane of West Roxbury ...e cochairmen.

INFORMATION OBSCURED

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
MAY 4 1956

News of Concerts and Sc

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241
MAY 4 1956

NEW RECORDINGS

Stagliano's Fine Horn Playing

By CYRUS DURGIN

The fine playing of James Stagliano, first horn of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is that of a great virtuoso. In two records issued by his own company, Boston Records, Mr. Stagliano's beautiful work is reinforced by the excellence of other musicians. One of these discs contains the E flat Trio, Op. 40, by Brahms, and the F major Quartet for horn and strings by that Czech-born horn virtuoso of the latter 18th century, Jan Vaclav Stich, who became known as Giovanni, or Gen'l Punto.

In Brahms, Mr. Stagliano was joined by Arthur Grumiaux, violin, and pianist Gregory Tucker; in Stich-Punto by Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Samuel Mayes, cello. Both performances are as pleasing as the music is substantial, and both are enhanced by engineering which produced remarkable "presence" of sound.

The second record, one in the new Boston University Anthology, brings the four Horn Concertos of Mozart, with the superb Zimmer Sinfonietta of Boston Symphony men as orchestra. If there is any better horn playing than this by Stagliano—and some of it is really dazzling for grace and agility—I have yet to hear it. The Mozart recording is the first made in Kresge Auditorium at M. I. T. That unique auditorium, acoustically doubtful for "live concerts," makes for an extremely bright, powerful resonance when empty, and the aural results here are very good.

Tchaikovsky by Munch

Last Fall Charles Munch conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of the Tchaikovsky F minor Symphony that was so slow the music fell apart. Over the next performance, I was told, he speeded up. Then it was taped, and the result is a record which might better never have been released. The pace is still too slow, and this dramatic symphony has little of the irresistible surge and passion it ought to have. No credit reflects upon Mr. Munch here. But RCA-Victor gives the recording tremendous hi-fi.

Haydn's "The Seven Last Words of Christ" may be heard in a playing of the very first rank by Messrs. Burgin, Krips, de Pasquale and Mayes, in this grouping styled the Boston Symphony String Quartet. This is devoted playing, of depth and technical finesse. RCA-Victor.

The admirable Pro Musica String Orchestra of Stuttgart has turned out some more satisfying Bach, under the leadership of Rolf Reinhardt. The C minor and C major Concertos for Two Harpsichords were done with the conductor and Helma Elsner at the keyboards, and the Concerto for Violin and Oboe, in D minor, with Will Beh and Friedrich Milde as string and wind soloists, respectively. The vigor of the ensemble is nicely tempered by elegance. Vox.

I find the Viola Concerto by the Swiss Frank Martin a fascinating modern work, bold and contemporary in manner and feeling, but music of high logic and order. Perhaps some day we shall hear it performed "live" in Boston. Meanwhile we can get acquainted with it in the pleasing traversal by Wolfgang Schneiderhan and the Swiss Romande Orchestra conducted by our old friend Ernest Ansermet. London.

The Pilot
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613
MAY 5 1956

Former Fordham President To Receive Eire Society Medal

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, May 5, at 6:30 P. M.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation for the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on Aug. 23 and 25 this year.

The gift will be presented by Joseph Gannon, president of the Society and will be accepted by Michael T. Kelleher, orchestra trustee.

The Society's Gold Medal is being presented to Father Gannon in recognition of his outstanding contributions as a "true educator of men and priest of God."

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593
MAY 4 1956

Sunday Soloist

LOUISE VOSGERCHIAN, Watertown pianist who scored in opening night of Pops, will again be soloist Sunday night in the Liszt First Concerto.

Stravinsky 'Soldat' In Jordan Ha

By Harold Rogers

During World War I a librettist and a composer, C. F. Ramuz and Igor Stravinsky, sought refuge in Switzerland. Bereft of an outlet for their creative energies, they found no way by which they could stage a full-scale spectacle comparable to those that had made Stravinsky's name famous.

"Why then not do something simple?" they reasoned, according to Ramuz' report in his "Souvenirs sur Igor Stravinsky."

"Why not write a piece that would dispense with a large hall or a vast public; a piece scored for a few instruments and employing but two or three actors? Since there are no more theaters, we would have a theater all our own, that is, our own scenery which could be mounted without difficulty no matter where, even in the open; we would have resumed the tradition of the itinerant theaters."

Thus "L'Histoire du Soldat" came into being. Stravinsky turned out his clever score for seven musicians—two strings (violin and contrabass), two woodwinds (clarinet and bassoon), two brass (trumpet and trombone), and percussion. There are three main characters—the Soldier, the Princess, and the Devil.

* * *

Last night a winning performance of "L'Histoire du Soldat" was presented in Jordan Hall by members of the New England Conservatory under the direction of Roger Voisin, first trumpeter of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It was produced and directed by George Guilbault, also heard as the Soldier's voice.

This production was particularly interesting for a novel departure in the staging. The orchestra sat on stage, right, in shirtsleeves (as was the case at the 1918 première in Lausanne, when Ernest Ansermet conducted). On stage, left, sat a narrator, Earl Cole, with a microphone before him. Between them was a large screen for a shadow play.

In this way the whole thing took on a delightful story-book quality, an illusion somewhat spoiled when the actors stepped before the screen. It was not altogether necessary that they ve their shadow world, yet Princess's dance would lly have been so effective if only in shadow.

the Princess, Sonia Klosek a nimble and expert perance combining certain eles of ballet with modern . The Devil and the Soldier lost stature when they apd in the flesh, the former ng too much like a charact a fancy dress ball, the too young.

* * *

taken as a whole, the proon had much to commend r. Voisin's direction kept usic on its toes, where it be if it is to sound as Stray intended. It must be dry, and peppery, and it was at.

the competent cast were t Chapman as the Soldier's (with Mr. Guilbault as his and Curt Allen as the image (with Leo Snyder voice). Mr. Cole's narras very well read in an al and direct manner.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559
MAY 5 1956

55

TOP O' THE MORNING

EDITED BY PEGGY BROWN

Ah, tis May and as Laura Hulse suggests, a time when we're temped to wander. . . . I let my thoughts wander ahead of me this week—ahead to summer and vacations . . . and I thought of the sea and could almost smell the sea—sea like the sea in Patricia King's poem . . . Vera Ramos Keelan attended the final 75th Anniversary Boston Symphony concert and was inspired to write her beautiful Beethoven tribute . . . Another voice, Katherine Saunders this time, in favor of an anthology and a reminder that, going back to George Ryan, there are a good many years and a good many poems. A monumental task indeed it will be. At least 370 poems are printed a year. Those of you who know the number of years you've been reading the column can figure the rest. Any takers?

Pilgrimage

May is a month of birdsong
and of fragrance,
A time in which we're tempted
to be vagrants;
A vagabond would sure deserve
bird,
I weep for him who having writ, ne'er
heard

. . . bids us drink, on love and life to
sup.

Great music magic binds all brothers
fast,
Souls blending like the fragrance of
fresh flowers,
The chorus singing, how it overpowers,
And bids us pray this golden hour will
last,
While seeking Him, a friend to have and
be,
With Charles Munch and the Boston
Symphony.

VERA RAMOS KEELAN

John Williamson of Wellesley neral chairman of the commi-
, assisted by Daniel B. Ruggles,
Swampscott; Gordon K. Went-
rth, Wellesley; Richard D. Hill,
rblehead; Wesley Beattie, Mel-
; Roger B. Salinger, Newton;
d F. Stockwell, Winchester;
n L. Priddy, Brookline; John Handrahan, North Weymouth; ard D. Muzzy, Wellesley; E.
uton Jennings, Needham; John
Boermeester, Needham; Everett
Chamberlaine, Hingham; Paul
aitses, Melrose; and William C.
ck, Winchester.

Tubby, Mrs. Lawrence Churchill, ley, Mrs. J. Gordon Scannell, Mrs. Howard Deering, Mrs. Mrs. S. Roy Burroughs, and Mrs.
Charles A. Coolidge Jr., Mrs.
George L. Clarke, Mrs. J. P. Kel- Lucy Gillespie.

16. Assisting on the committee are John B. Handrahan of North Weymouth and Everett M. Chamberlain of Hingham.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
MAY 6 1956

EMMANUEL POPS

Emmanuel Night at Pops, sponsored by the Emmanuel College Alumnae Association, will be held Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall.

Committee members are working to make the event a family night, with students and alumnae meeting in family groups. Mrs. George H. Sweeney of Arlington and Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury are cochairmen.

INFORMATION OBSCURED

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 4 1956

News of Concerts and S

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

2-56

MAY 4 1956

NEW RECORDINGS

Stagliano's Fine Horn Playing

By CYRUS DURGIN

The fine playing of James Stagliano, first horn of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is that of a great virtuoso. In two records issued by his own company, Boston Records, Mr. Stagliano's beautiful work is reinforced by the excellence of other musicians. One of these discs contains the E flat Trio, Op. 40, by Brahms, and the F major Quartet for horn and strings by that Czech-born horn virtuoso of the latter 18th century, Jan Vaclav Stich, who became known as Giovanni, or Gen'l Punto.

In Brahms, Mr. Stagliano was joined by Arthur Grumiaux, violin, and pianist Gregory Tucker; in Stich-Punto by Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Samuel Mayes, cello. Both performances are as pleasing as the music is substantial, and both are enhanced by engineering which produced remarkable "presence" of sound.

The second record, one in the New Boston University Anthology, brings the four Horn Concertos by Mozart, with the superb Zimbler Sinfonietta of Boston Symphony men as orchestra. If there is any better horn playing than this by Stagliano—and some of it is really dazzling for grace and agility—I have yet to hear it. The Mozart recording is the first made in Kresge Auditorium at M. I. T. That unique auditorium, acoustically doubtful for "live concerts," makes for an extremely bright, powerful resonance when empty, and the aural results here are very good.

Tchaikovsky by Munch

Last Fall Charles Munch conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of the Tchaikovsky F minor Symphony that was so slow the music fell apart. Over the next performance, I was told, he speeded up. Then it was taped, and the result is a record which might better never have been released. The pace is still too slow, and this dramatic symphony has little of the irresistible surge and passion it ought to have. No credit reflects upon Mr. Munch here. But RCA-Victor gives the recording tremendous hi-fi.

Haydn's "The Seven Last Words of Christ" may be heard in a playing of the very first rank by Messrs. Burgin, Krips, de Pasquale and Mayes, in this grouping styled the Boston Symphony String Quartet. This is devoted playing, of depth and technical finesse, RCA-Victor.

The admirable Pro Musica String Orchestra of Stuttgart has turned out some more satisfying Bach, under the leadership of Rolf Reinhardt. The C minor and C major Concertos for Two Harpsichords were done with the conductor and Helma Elsner at the keyboards, and the Concerto for Violin and Oboe, in D minor, with Will Beh and Friedrich Milde as string and wind soloists, respectively. The vigor of the ensemble is nicely tempered by elegance, Vox.

I find the Viola Concerto by the Swiss Frank Martin a fascinating modern work, bold and contemporary in manner and feeling, but music of high logic and order. Perhaps some day we shall hear it performed "live" in Boston. Meanwhile we can get acquainted with it in the pleasing traversal by Wolfgang Schneiderhan and the Swiss Romande Orchestra conducted by our old friend Ernest Ansermet, London.

The Pilot
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613

MAY 5 1956

Former Fordham President To Receive Eire Society Medal

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, May 5, at 6:30 P. M.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation for the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on Aug. 23 and 25 this year.

The gift will be presented by Joseph Gannon, president of the Society and will be accepted by Michael T. Kelleher, orchestra trustee.

The Society's Gold Medal is being presented to Father Gannon in recognition of his outstanding contributions as a "true educator of men and priest of God."

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 4 1956

Sunday Soloist

ASZ VOSGERCHIAN, ...-known pianist who scored ...ing night of Pops, will ...e soloist Sunday night ...e Liszt First Concerto.

Stravinsky 'Soldat' I Jordan H

By Harold Rogers

During World War I a li tist and a composer, C. F. Ra and Igor Stravinsky, sought r uge in Switzerland. Bereft of outlet for their creative ene gies, they found no way which they could stage a full scale spectacle comparable those that had made Stravinsky's name famous.

"Why then not do something simple?" they reasoned, according to Ramuz' report in his "Souvenirs sur Igor Stravinsky."

"Why not write a piece that would dispense with a large hall or a vast public; a piece scored for a few instruments and employing but two or three actors? Since there are no more theaters, we would have a theater all our own, that is, our own scenery which could be mounted without difficulty no matter where, even in the open; we would have resumed the tradition of the itinerant theaters."

Thus "L'Histoire du Soldat" came into being. Stravinsky turned out his clever score for seven musicians—two strings (violin and contrabass), two woodwinds (clarinet and bassoon), two brass (trumpet and trombone), and percussion. There are three main characters —the Soldier, the Princess, and the Devil.

* * *

Last night a winning performance of "L'Histoire du Soldat" was presented in Jordan Hall by members of the New England Conservatory under the direction of Roger Voisin, first trumpeter of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It was produced and directed by George Guilbault, also heard as the Soldier's voice.

This production was particularly interesting for a novel departure in the staging. The orchestra sat on stage, right, in shirtsleeves (as was the case at the 1918 première in Lausanne, when Ernest Ansermet conducted). On stage, left, sat a narrator, Earl Cole, with a microphone before him. Between them was a large screen for a shadow play.

In this way the whole thing took on a delightful story-book quality, an illusion somewhat spoiled when the actors stepped before the screen. It was not altogether necessary that they ...ve their shadow world, yet ... Princess's dance would ...lly have been so effective if ... only in shadow.

... the Princess, Sonia Klosek ... a nimble and expert per- ...ance combining certain ele- ...s of ballet with modern ... The Devil and the Soldier ...ost stature when they ap- ...d in the flesh, the former ...ng too much like a charac- ...t a fancy dress ball, the ... too young.

* * *

...t taken as a whole, the pro- ...on had much to commend ...r. Voisin's direction kept ...usic on its toes, where it ...be if it is to sound as Stra- ...y intended. It must be dry, ... and peppery, and it was ...at.

... the competent cast were ...t Chapman as the Soldier's ... (with Mr. Guilbault as his ... and Curt Allen as the ...s image (with Leo Snyder ... voice). Mr. Cole's narra- ...as very well read in an ...al and direct manner.

...OK BY R. J. SCOTT

...Chronicle
...HAM, Mass.
Independent
...c. 4824

...y Memorial
...TH, Mass.
Independent

...are visiting in Washington ...road, Cohasset. They were entertained at a dinner party given at Norman ...Farm, Rockville, Md., by Con... and Mrs. Donald W. Nichols...

...Mass.
Rep.

...Stephen Nagy, Gail Nelson, Kevin O'Brian, John O'Connell, Sharon O'Connell, Starr Ockenga, Nancy Olson, John Orsini, Jean Palmer, Wayne Paskerian, Herbert Payonzack, Carol Peterson, Patricia Picarielio, Richard Pierce, Richard Rigano, Linda Rigdon, Bromley Roberts, Carol Robertz, Beatrice Rohrbough, Judy Rogers, Susan Rogers, Joyce Rollins, Kevin Rose, Myrna Rosen, ...Virginia Murphy.

...Marilyn Murray, Betsy Murdock, Brucemt Nassar, Saundra Mulhern, ...ng food and oxygen through ...lowing red river of life, beat... It pumps your blood, a fast- ...pumphouse. ...heart can be called a four-room ...In its simplest sense, your ...just what is it doing for you? ...While it does these things, ...gallons. ...it pumps more than 100 million ...gallons. In a Biblical lifespan, ...not blood at the rate of 166 ...and recirculates your 11 pints ...times. Each hour it circulates ...will beat more than 2½ billion ...in a 70-year lifetime your heart ...only between beats for rest. ...born until you die, it stops ...From the moment you are ...atomic-age science. ...created by all the genius of ...duplicated by any device ever ...or ounce, it does a job un- ...ess than a pound. But ounce ...Even in a big man, it weighs ...your spine on your diaphragm. ...middle of your chest, near ...called f...

...Vassar-Dartmouth night at the Pops ...o be held on Wednesday, May 16, at ...Symphony Hall are Mrs. Lawrence ...Reeve, Mrs. Rollin M. Gallagher, Jr., ...Mrs. William C. Hammond, Jr., Mrs. ...Donald G. Parrot, Mrs. G. Peter ...Connolly, III, Mrs. William L. Sal- ...tonstall, Mrs. William T. Glidden ...and Mrs. John W. Leggett, all of ...Manchester.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

85

MAY 5 1956

TOP O' THE MORNING

EDITED BY PEGGY BROWN

Ah, tis May and as Laura Hulse suggests, a time when we're temped to wander. . . . I let my thoughts wander ahead of me this week—ahead to summer and vacations . . . and I thought of the sea and could almost smell the sea—sea like the sea in Patricia King's poem . . . Vera Ramos Keelan attended the final 75th Anniversary Boston Symphony concert and was inspired to write her beautiful Beethoven tribute . . . Another voice, Katherine Saunders this time, in favor of an anthology and a reminder that, going back to George Ryan, there are a good many years and a good many poems. A monumental task indeed it will be. At least 370 poems are printed a year. Those of you who know the number of years you've been reading the column can figure the rest. Any takers?

Pilgrimage

May is a month of birdsong
and of fragrance,
A time in which we're tempted
to be vagrants;
A vagabond would sure deserve
a ...

...saunter
...en.
...RA HULSE

...he glass.
...t pass.
...leaves
...eaves.
...N KING

...mphony
...lls the air
...t gifted

...bird,
I weep for him who having wit, ...
heard
...

John Williamson of Wellesley ...neral chairman of the commi... ...e, assisted by Daniel B. Ruggles, ...Swampscott; Gordon K. Went- ...rth, Wellesley; Richard D. Hill, ...rblehead; Wesley Beattie, Mel- ...e; Roger B. Salinger, Newton; ...d F. Stockwell, Winchester; ...n L. Priddy, Brookline; John ...Handrahan, North Weymouth; ...ard D. Muzzy, Wellesley; E. ...on Jennings, Needham; John ...oermeester, Needham; Everett ...hamberlaine, Hingham; Paul ...itses, Melrose; and William C. ...k, Winchester.

...Tubby, Mrs. Lawrence Churchill, ...ley, Mrs. J. Gordon Scannell, ...Mrs. Howard Deering, Mrs. ...Mrs. S. Roy Burroughs, and Mrs. ...Charles A. Coolidge Jr., Mrs. ...Lucy Gillespie. ...George L. Clarke, Mrs. J. P. Kel-

...and bids us drink, on love and life to sup.

Great music magic binds all brothers
fast,
Souls blending like the fragrance of
fresh flowers,
The chorus singing, how it overpowers,
And bids us pray this golden hour will
last,
While seeking Him, a friend to have and
be,
With Charles Munch and the Boston
Symphony.

VERA RAMOS KEELAN

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

MAY 6 1956

EMMANUEL POPS

Emmanuel Night at Pops, sponsored by the Emmanuel College Alumnae Association, will be held Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall.

Committee members are working to make the event a family night, with students and alumnae meeting in family groups. Mrs. George H. Sweeney of Arlington and Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury are ...chairmen.

INFORMATION OBSCURED

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 4 1956

News of Concerts and Scree

2-56

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 4 1956

NEW RECORDINGS

Stagliano's Fine Horn Playing

By CYRUS DURGIN

The fine playing of James Stagliano, first horn of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is that of a real virtuoso. In two records issued by his own company, Boston Records, Mr. Stagliano's beautiful work is reinforced by the excellence of other musicians. One of these discs contains the E flat Trio, Op. 40, by Brahms, and the F major Quartet for horn and strings by that Czech-born horn virtuoso of the latter 18th century, Jan Vaclav Stich, who became known as Giovanni, or Gen'l Punto.

In Brahms, Mr. Stagliano was joined by Arthur Grumiaux, violin, and pianist Gregory Tucker; in Stich-Punto by Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Samuel Mayes, cello. Both performances are as pleasing as the music is substantial, and both are enhanced by engineering which produced remarkable "presence" of sound.

The second record, one in the New Boston University Anthology, brings the four Horn Concertos by Mozart, with the superb Zimbler Sinfonietta of Boston Symphony men as orchestra. If there is any better horn playing than this by Stagliano—and some of it is really dazzling for grace and agility—I have yet to hear it. The Mozart recording is the first made in Kresge Auditorium at M. I. T. That unique auditorium, acoustically doubtful for "live concerts," makes for an extremely bright, powerful resonance when empty, and the aural results here are very good.

Tchaikovsky by Munch

Last Fall Charles Munch conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of the Tchaikovsky F minor Symphony that was so slow the music fell apart. Over the next performance, I was told, he speeded up. Then it was taped, and the result is a record which might better never have been released. The pace is still too slow, and this dramatic symphony has little of the irresistible surge and passion it ought to have. No credit reflects upon Mr. Munch here. But RCA-Victor gives the recording tremendous hi-fi.

Haydn's "The Seven Last Words of Christ" may be heard in a playing of the very first rank by Messrs. Burgin, Krips, de Pasquale and Mayes, in this grouping styled the Boston Symphony String Quartet. This is devoted playing, of depth and technical finesse. RCA-Victor.

The admirable Pro Musica String Orchestra of Stuttgart has turned out some more satisfying Bach, under the leadership of Rolf Reinhardt. The C minor and C major Concertos for Two Harpsichords were done with the conductor and Helma Elsner at the keyboards, and the Concerto for Violin and Oboe, in D minor, with Will Beh and Friedrich Milde as string and wind soloists, respectively. The vigor of the ensemble is nicely tempered by elegance. Vox.

I find the Viola Concerto by the Swiss Frank Martin a fascinating modern work, bold and contemporary in manner and feeling, but music of high logic and order. Perhaps some day we shall hear it performed "live" in Boston. Meanwhile we can get acquainted with it in the pleasing traversal by Wolfgang Schneiderhan and the Swiss Romande Orchestra conducted by our old friend Ernest Ansermet. London.

The Pilot
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613

MAY 5 1956

Former Fordham President To Receive Eire Society Medal

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, May 5, at 6:30 P. M.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation for the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on Aug. 23 and 25 this year.

The gift will be presented by Joseph Gannon, president of the Society and will be accepted by Michael T. Kelleher, orchestra trustee.

The Society's Gold Medal is being presented to Father Gannon in recognition of his outstanding contributions as a "true educator of men and priest of God."

Stravinsky 'Soldat' In Jordan Hall

By Harold Rogers

During World War I a librettist and a composer, C. F. Ramuz and Igor Stravinsky, sought refuge in Switzerland. Bereft of an outlet for their creative energies, they found no way by which they could stage a full-scale spectacle comparable to those that had made Stravinsky's name famous.

"Why then not do something simple?" they reasoned, according to Ramuz' report in his "Souvenirs sur Igor Stravinsky."

"Why not write a piece that would dispense with a large hall or a vast public; a piece scored for a few instruments and employing but two or three actors? Since there are no more theaters, we would have a theater all our own, that is, our own scenery which could be mounted without difficulty no matter where, even in the open; we would have resumed the tradition of the itinerant theaters."

Thus "L'Histoire du Soldat" came into being. Stravinsky turned out his clever score for seven musicians—two strings (violin and contrabass), two woodwinds (clarinet and bassoon), two brass (trumpet and trombone), and percussion. There are three main characters—the Soldier, the Princess, and the Devil.

* * *

Last night a winning performance of "L'Histoire du Soldat" was presented in Jordan Hall by members of the New England Conservatory under the direction of Roger Voisin, first trumpeter of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It was produced and directed by George Guilbault, also heard as the Soldier's voice.

This production was particularly interesting for a novel departure in the staging. The orchestra sat on stage, right, in shirtsleeves (as was the case at the 1918 première in Lausanne, when Ernest Ansermet conducted). On stage, left, sat a narrator, Earl Cole, with a microphone before him. Between them was a large screen for a shadow play.

In this way the whole thing took on a delightful story-book quality, an illusion somewhat spoiled when the actors stepped before the screen. It was not altogether necessary that they leave their shadow world, yet the Princess's dance would hardly have been so effective if seen only in shadow.

As the Princess, Sonia Klosek gave a nimble and expert performance combining certain elements of ballet with modern dance. The Devil and the Soldier both lost stature when they appeared in the flesh, the former looking too much like a character at a fancy dress ball, the latter too young.

* * *

But taken as a whole, the production had much to commend it. Mr. Voisin's direction kept the music on its toes, where it must be if it is to sound as Stravinsky intended. It must be dry, witty, and peppery, and it was all that.

In the competent cast were Robert Chapman as the Soldier's image (with Mr. Guilbault as his voice) and Curt Allen as the Devil's image (with Leo Snyder as his voice). Mr. Cole's narration was very well read in an informal and direct manner.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 4 1956

Sunday Soloist

...NNE VOSGERCHIAN, ...town pianist who scored ... opening night of Pops, will ... the soloist Sunday night ... Liszt First Concerto.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

85

MAY 5 1956

TOP O' THE MORNING

EDITED BY PEGGY BROWN

Ah, tis May and as Laura Hulse suggests, a time when we're temped to wander. . . . I let my thoughts wander ahead of me this week—ahead to summer and vacations . . . and I thought of the sea and could almost smell the sea—sea like the sea in Patricia King's poem . . . Vera Ramos Keelan attended the final 75th Anniversary Boston Symphony concert and was inspired to write her beautiful Beethoven tribute . . . Another voice, Katherine Saunders this time, in favor of an anthology and a reminder that, going back to George Ryan, there are a good many years and a good many poems. A monumental task indeed it will be. At least 370 poems are printed a year. Those of you who know the number of years you've been reading the column can figure the rest. Any takers?

Pilgrimage

May is a month of birdsong
and of fragrance,
A time in which we're tempted
to be vagrants;
A vagabond would sure deserve
a judge's pardon

...saunter
...den.
...RA HULSE

...the glass.
...not pass.
...d leaves
...he eaves.
...SON KING

...ymphony
...d fills the air
...ost gifted

I weep for him who having writ, ne'er heard
The silken wings of his own doves so fair,

Great music magic binds all brothers fast,
Souls blending like the fragrance of fresh flowers,
The chorus singing, how it overpowers,
And bids us pray this golden hour will last,
While seeking Him, a friend to have and be,
With Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony.

VERA RAMOS KEELAN

...ht at
...ines-
...Sym-
...benefit of the scholarship funds of the two colleges.

The Vassar Club Pops Committee chairman is Mrs. Thomas Morse of Brookline.

...John Williamson of Wellesley ...neral chairman of the commi..., assisted by Daniel B. Ruggles, ... Swampscott; Gordon K. Went...rth, Wellesley; Richard D. Hill, ...rblehead; Wesley Beattie, Mel...e; Roger B. Salinger, Newton; ...d F. Stockwell, Winchester; ...an L. Priddy, Brookline; John ... Handrahan, North Weymouth; ...hard D. Muzzy, Wellesley; E. ...rton Jennings, Needham; John ... Boermeester, Needham; Everett ... Chamberlaine, Hingham; Paul ...Vaitses, Melrose; and William C. ...ack, Winchester.

Patronesses in the Belmont area include: Mrs. Herschel Baker, Mrs. David Cogan, Mrs. Vernon Stoneman, Mrs. Paul Tubby, Mrs. Lawrence Churchill, Mrs. Howard Deering, Mrs. Charles A. Coolidge Jr., Mrs. George L. Clarke, Mrs. J. P. Kelley, Mrs. J. Gordon Scannell, Mrs. S. Roy Burroughs, and Mrs. Lucy Gillespie.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

MAY 6 1956

EMMANUEL POPS

Emmanuel Night at Pops, sponsored by the Emmanuel College Alumnae Association, will be held Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall.

Committee members are working to make the event a family night, with students and alumnae meeting in family groups. Mrs. George H. Sweeney of Arlington and Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury are cochairmen.

INFORMATION OBSCURED

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
MAY 4 1956

News of Concerts and Scre

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241
MAY 4 1956

NEW RECORDINGS

Stagliano's Fine Horn Playing

By CYRUS DURGIN

The fine playing of James Stagliano, first horn of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is that of a great virtuoso. In two records issued by his own company, Boston Records, Mr. Stagliano's beautiful work is reinforced by the excellence of other musicians. One of these discs contains the E flat Trio, Op. 40, by Brahms, and the F major Quartet for horn and strings by that Czech-born horn virtuoso of the latter 18th century Jan Vaclav Stich, who became known as Giovanni, or Gen'l Punto.

In Brahms, Mr. Stagliano was joined by Arthur Grumiaux, violin, and pianist Gregory Tucker; in Stich-Punto by Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Samuel Mayes, cello. Both performances are as pleasing as the music is substantial, and both are enhanced by engineering which produced remarkable "presence" of sound.

The second record, one in the new Boston University Anthology, brings the four Horn Concertos by Mozart, with the superb Zimbler Sinfonietta of Boston Symphony men as orchestra. If there is any better horn playing than this by Stagliano—and some of it is really dazzling for grace and agility—I have yet to hear it. The Mozart recording is the first made in Kresge Auditorium at M. I. T. That unique auditorium, acoustically doubtful for "live concerts," makes for an extremely bright, powerful resonance when empty, and the aural results here are very good.

Tchaikovsky by Munch

Last Fall Charles Munch conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of the Tchaikovsky F minor Symphony that was so slow the music fell apart. Over the next performance, I was told, he speeded up. Then it was taped, and the result is a record which might better never have been released. The pace is still too slow, and this dramatic symphony has little of the irresistible surge and passion it ought to have. No credit reflects upon Mr. Munch here. But RCA-Victor gives the recording tremendous hi-fi.

Haydn's "The Seven Last Words of Christ" may be heard in a playing of the very first rank by Messrs. Burgin, Krips, de Pasquale and Mayes, in this grouping styled the Boston Symphony String Quartet. This is devoted playing, of depth and technical finesse. RCA-Victor.

The admirable Pro Musica String Orchestra of Stuttgart has turned out some more satisfying Bach, under the leadership of Rolf Reinhardt. The C minor and C major Concertos for Two Harpsichords were done with the conductor and Helma Elsner at the keyboards, and the Concerto for Violin and Oboe, in D minor, with Will Beh and Friedrich Milde as string and wind soloists, respectively. The vigor of the ensemble is nicely tempered by elegance. Vox.

I find the Viola Concerto by the Swiss Frank Martin a fascinating modern work, bold and contemporary in manner and feeling, but music of high logic and order. Perhaps some day we shall hear it performed "live" in Boston. Meanwhile we can get acquainted with it in the pleasing traversal by Wolfgang Schneiderhan and the Swiss Romande Orchestra conducted by our old friend Ernest Ansermet. London.

The Pilot
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613
MAY 5 1956

Former Fordham President To Receive Eire Society Medal

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, May 5, at 6:30 P. M.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation for the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on Aug. 23 and 25 this year.

The gift will be presented by Joseph Gannon, president of the Society and will be accepted by Michael T. Kelleher, orchestra trustee.

The Society's Gold Medal is being presented to Father Gannon in recognition of his outstanding contributions as a "true educator of men and priest of God."

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593
MAY 4 1956

Sunday Soloist

LUISE VOSGERCHIAN, Watertown pianist who scored at opening night of Pops, will again be soloist Sunday night in the Last First Concerto.

Stravinsky 'Soldat' In Jordan Hall

By Harold Rogers

During World War I a librettist and a composer, C. F. Ramuz and Igor Stravinsky, sought refuge in Switzerland. Bereft of an outlet for their creative energies, they found no way by which they could stage a full-scale spectacle comparable to those that had made Stravinsky's name famous.

"Why then not do something simple?" they reasoned, according to Ramuz' report in his "Souvenirs sur Igor Stravinsky."

"Why not write a piece that would dispense with a large hall or a vast public; a piece scored for a few instruments and employing but two or three actors? Since there are no more theaters, we would have a theater all our own, that is, our own scenery which could be mounted without difficulty no matter where, even in the open; we would have resumed the tradition of the itinerant theaters."

Thus "L'Histoire du Soldat" came into being. Stravinsky turned out his clever score for seven musicians—two strings (violin and contrabass), two woodwinds (clarinet and bassoon), two brass (trumpet and trombone), and percussion. There are three main characters—the Soldier, the Princess, and the Devil.

* * *

Last night a winning performance of "L'Histoire du Soldat" was presented in Jordan Hall by members of the New England Conservatory under the direction of Roger Voisin, first trumpeter of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It was produced and directed by George Guilbault, also heard as the Soldier's voice.

This production was particularly interesting for a novel departure in the staging. The orchestra sat on stage, right, in shirtsleeves (as was the case at the 1918 première in Lausanne, when Ernest Ansermet conducted). On stage, left, sat a narrator, Earl Cole, with a microphone before him. Between them was a large screen for a shadow play.

In this way the whole thing took on a delightful story-book quality, an illusion somewhat spoiled when the actors stepped before the screen. It was not altogether necessary that they leave their shadow world, yet the Princess's dance would hardly have been so effective if seen only in shadow.

As the Princess, Sonia Klosek gave a nimble and expert performance combining certain elements of ballet with modern dance. The Devil and the Soldier both lost stature when they appeared in the flesh, the former looking too much like a character at a fancy dress ball, the latter too young.

* * *

But taken as a whole, the production had much to commend it. Mr. Voisin's direction kept the music on its toes, where it must be if it is to sound as Stravinsky intended. It must be dry, witty, and peppery, and it was all that.

In the competent cast were Robert Chapman as the Soldier's image (with Mr. Guilbault as his voice) and Curt Allen as the Devil's image (with Leo Snyder as his voice). Mr. Cole's narration was very well read in an informal and direct manner.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559
MAY 5 1956

85

TOP O' THE MORNING

EDITED BY PEGGY BROWN

Ah, tis May and as Laura Hulse suggests, a time when we're temped to I let my thoughts wander ...—ahead to sum- ...d I thought of ...d the sea— ...s poem ...

phony concert and was insp... her beautiful Beethoven trio... Another voice, Katherine Saunders ... time, in favor of an anthology and a reminder that, going back to George Ryan, there are a good many years and a good many poems. A monumental task indeed it will be. At least 370 poems are printed a year. Those of you who know the number of years you've been reading the column can figure the rest. Any takers?

Pilgrimage

May is a month of birdsong
and of fragrance,
A time in which we're tempted
to be vagrants;
A vagabond would sure deserve
a judge's pardon
... and saunter
...arden.

...URA HULSE

...n
...h the glass.
...not pass.
...and leaves
...the eaves.

...NSON KING

Symphony

...and fills the air
most gifted

I weep for him who ...ing writ, ne'er heard
The silken wings of his own doves so fair;
He offers beauty in a golden cup,
Immortal joy and praises heaven sent,
Sweet music for the ears own nourishment,
And bids us drink, on love and life to sup.

Great music magic binds all brothers fast,
Souls blending like the fragrance of fresh flowers,
The chorus singing, how it overpowers,
And bids us pray this golden hour will last,
While seeking Him, a friend to have and be,
With Charles Munch and the ~~Boston~~ Symphony.

VERA RAMOS KEELAN

Dartmouth Night at Pops to Be May 16

The annual Dartmouth night at the Boston Symphony Pops, has been announced for Wednesday, May 16. Proceeds will be contributed to the Greater Boston Scholarship Fund, which is sponsored by the Dartmouth Alumni Association, who is secretary of the Vassar Club, Mrs. John W. Wendell, Jr., Mrs. Frank Waterman, 3rd., Mrs. Robert Forster, Mrs. H. Shippee Goodhue, Mrs. Bradford Leyland, Mrs. William H. Batchelor, Mrs. Samuel Tyler, Jr., Mrs. Charles H. Wood, Mrs. John O. Outwater, Jr., and Mrs. H. Burton Powers.

Reservations may be obtained from the Vassar Club by calling Miss Virginia Bridge at ASpinwall 7-0506.

John Williamson of Wellesley is general chairman of the committee, assisted by Daniel B. Ruggles, Jr., Swampscott; Gordon K. Wentworth, Wellesley; Richard D. Hill, Marblehead; Wesley Beattie, Melrose; Roger B. Salinger, Newton; Fred F. Stockwell, Winchester; Allan L. Priddy, Brookline; John B. Handrahan, North Weymouth; Richard D. Muzzy, Wellesley; E. Morton Jennings, Needham; John M. Boermeester, Needham; Everett M. Chamberlaine, Hingham; Paul S. Vaitses, Melrose; and William C. Cusack, Winchester.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
MAY 6 1956

EMMANUEL POPS

Emmanuel Night at Pops, sponsored by the Emmanuel College Alumnae Association, will be held Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall.

Committee members are working to make the event a family night, with students and alumnae meeting in family groups. Mrs. George H. Sweeney of Arlington and Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury are ~~co~~chairmen.

INFORMATION OBSCURED

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
MAY 4 1956

News of Concerts and Scre

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241
2-56

NEW RECORDINGS

Stagliano's Fine Horn Playing

By CYRUS DURGIN

The fine playing of James Sta-iano, first horn of the Boston mphony Orchestra, is that of reat virtuoso. In two records ued by his own company, Bos- Records, Mr. Stagliano's beau- ul work is reinforced by the cellence of other musicians. One these discs contains the E flat o. Op. 40, by Brahms, and the major Quartet for horn and ings by that Czech-born horn tuoso of the latter 18th century Vaclav Stich, who became own as Giovanni, or Gen'l nto.

n Brahms, Mr. Stagliano was ed by Arthur Grumiaux, violin, pianist Gregory Tucker; in ch-Punto by Ruth Posselt, vio- Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and nuel Mayes, cello. Both per- mances are as pleasing as the sic is substantial, and both are hanced by engineering which oduced remarkable "presence" sound.

The second record, one in the w Boston University Anthology, ings the four Horn Concertos Mozart, with the superb Zim- er Sinfonietta of Boston Sym- ony men as orchestra. If there any better horn playing than s by Stagliano—and some of it really dazzling for grace and ility—I have yet to hear it. The Mozart recording is the first made Kresge Auditorium at M. I. T. at unique auditorium, acoustically doubtful for "live concerts," makes for an extremely bright, powerful resonance when empty and the aural results here are very good.

Tchaikovsky by Munch

Last Fall Charles Munch conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of the Tchaikovsky F minor Symphony that was so slow the music fell apart. Over the next performance, I was told, he speeded up. Then it was taped, and the result is a record which might better never have been released. The pace is still too slow, and this dramatic symphony has little of the irresistible surge and passion it ought to have. No credit reflects upon Mr. Munch here. But RCA-Victor gives the recording tremendous hi-fi.

Haydn's "The Seven Last Words of Christ" may be heard in a playing of the very first rank by Messrs. Burgin, Krips, de Pasquale and Mayes, in this grouping styled the Boston Symphony String Quartet. This is devoted playing, of depth and technical finesse. RCA-Victor.

The admirable Pro Musica String Orchestra of Stuttgart has turned out some more satisfying Bach, under the leadership of Rolf Reinhardt. The C minor and C major Concertos for Two Harpsichords were done with the conductor and Helma Elsner at the keyboards, and the Concerto for Violin and Oboe, in D minor, with Will Beh and Friedrich Milde as string and wind soloists, respectively. The vigor of the ensemble is nicely tempered by elegance. Vox.

I find the Viola Concerto by the Swiss Frank Martin a fascinating modern work, bold and contemporary in manner and feeling, but music of high logic and order. Perhaps some day we shall hear it performed "live" in Boston. Meanwhile we can get acquainted with it in the pleasing traversal by Wolfgang Schneiderhan and the Swiss Romande Orchestra conducted by our old friend Ernest Ansermet. London.

The Pilot
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613
MAY 5 - 1956

Former Fordham President To Receive Eire Society Medal

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, May 5, at 6:30 P. M.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation for the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on Aug. 23 and 25 this year.

The gift will be presented by Joseph Gannon, president of the Society and will be accepted by Michael T. Kelleher, orchestra trustee.

The Society's Gold Medal is being presented to Father Gannon in recognition of his outstanding contributions as a "true educator of men and priest of God."

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593
MAY 4 1956

Sunday Soloist

ISE VOSGERCHIAN, stown pianist who scored opening night of Pops, will be soloist Sunday night The Last First Concerto.

Stravinsky 'Soldat' In Jordan Hall

By Harold Rogers

During World War I a librettist and a composer, C. F. Ramuz and Igor Stravinsky, sought refuge in Switzerland. Bereft of an outlet for their creative energies, they found no way by which they could stage a full-scale spectacle comparable to those that had made Stravinsky's name famous.

"Why then not do something simple?" they reasoned, according to Ramuz' report in his "Souvenirs sur Igor Stravinsky."

"Why not write a piece that would dispense with a large hall or a vast public; a piece scored for a few instruments and employing but two or three actors? Since there are no more theaters, we would have a theater all our own, that is, our own scenery which could be mounted without difficulty no matter where, even in the open; we would have resumed the tradition of the itinerant theaters."

Thus "L'Histoire du Soldat" came into being. Stravinsky turned out his clever score for seven musicians—two strings (violin and contrabass), two woodwinds (clarinet and bassoon), two brass (trumpet and trombone), and percussion. There are three main characters—the Soldier, the Princess, and the Devil.

* * *

Last night a winning performance of "L'Histoire du Soldat" was presented in Jordan Hall by members of the New England Conservatory under the direction of Roger Voisin, first trumpeter of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It was produced and directed by George Guilbault, also heard as the Soldier's voice.

This production was particularly interesting for a novel departure in the staging. The orchestra sat on stage, right, in shirtsleeves (as was the case at the 1918 première in Lausanne, when Ernest Ansermet conducted). On stage, left, sat a narrator, Earl Cole, with a microphone before him. Between them was a large screen for a shadow play.

In this way the whole thing took on a delightful story-book quality, an illusion somewhat spoiled when the actors stepped before the screen. It was not altogether necessary that they leave their shadow world, yet the Princess's dance would hardly have been so effective if seen only in shadow.

As the Princess, Sonia Klosek gave a nimble and expert performance combining certain elements of ballet with modern dance. The Devil and the Soldier both lost stature when they appeared in the flesh, the former looking too much like a character at a fancy dress ball, the latter too young.

* * *

But taken as a whole, the production had much to commend it. Mr. Voisin's direction kept the music on its toes, where it must be if it is to sound as Stravinsky intended. It must be dry, witty, and peppery, and it was all that.

In the competent cast were Robert Chapman as the Soldier's image (with Mr. Guilbault as his voice) and Curt Allen as the Devil's image (with Leo Snyder as his voice). Mr. Cole's narration was very well read in an informal and direct manner.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559
MAY 5 1956

85

THE MORNIN

EDITED BY PEGGY BROWN

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH Episcopal Marlboro St., Belmont Rev. Robert C. Derr

Lucy G

Laura Hulse temped to ghts wander ead to sum- I thought of ell the sea— King's poem attended the Boston Sym- hired to write tribute Saunders this ogy and a re- George Ryan rs and a good al task indeed ms are printed know the num- ber of years you've been reading the column can figure the rest. Any takers?

Pilgrimage

May is a month of birdsong
and of fragrance,
A time in which we're tempted
to be vagrants;
A vagabond would sure deserve
a judge's pardon
So let's step out and saunter
round the garden.

LAURA HULSE

Sea Cabin

The sea is coming through the glass.
The smell of saltness will not pass.
It blows away dry heat, and leaves
The scent of waves upon the eaves.

PATRICIA ROBINSON KING

Beethoven's Ninth Symphony

Beethoven's spirit soars and fills the air
With music sweeter than most gifted bird,
I weep for him who having writ, ne'er heard
The silken wings of his own doves so fair;
He offers beauty in a golden cup,
Immortal joy and praises heaven sent,
Sweet music for the ears own nourishment,
And bids us drink, on love and life to sup.

Great music magic binds all brothers fast,
Souls blending like the fragrance of fresh flowers,
The chorus singing, how it overpowers,
And bids us pray this golden hour will last,
While seeking Him, a friend to have and be,
With Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony.

VERA RAMOS KEELAN

Halifax

HALIFAX GRANGE

Halifax Grange met Tuesday evening at Town Hall with Mrs. Lala Foley, master presiding. Members of Mayflower Past Masters' Association filled the chairs and assisted with the opening and closing. Mrs. Virginia Jennins, Pomona representative to Halifax, was seated at the right of the master. The meeting of the Past Masters' Association was held at noon and scheduled for May 4 has been cancelled.

Elisabeth Brown Class for men, Mrs. Imler, teacher, of Church Parlor.

Class for Kindergarten and Two - Years Old during the Morning Worship at 10:45 A.M. Dr. Henry H. Presler of the Leonard Theological School will preach. Mr. P. India will H Rev. Harry T. Atkinson scholarship funds of the two colleges.

Rev. 6. 10:00 A.

The Vassar Club Pops Committee chairman is Mrs. Thomas Morse of Brookline and she is helped by Mrs. Andrew Rankin of Dedham for patronesses, Mrs. Don Ross of Newton Highlands for mailing, Mrs. Robert Haydock of Newton Center for flowers, and Mrs. J. Charles Drooker of Brookline and Mrs. H. Burton Powers of Wellesley for publicity.

Wellesley patronesses include Mrs. John B. Rowland, Mrs. Sumner W. Ferris, Mrs. Charles C. Hewett, Jr., Mrs. J. Robert Lyman, Mrs. Roger Perry, Jr., who is secretary of the Vassar Club, Mrs. John W. Wendell, Jr., Mrs. Frank Waterman, 3rd., Mrs. Robert Forster, Mrs. H. Shippen Goodhue, Mrs. Bradford Leyland, Mrs. William H. Batchelor, Mrs. Samuel Tyler, Jr., Mrs. Charles H. Wood, Mrs. John O. Outwater, Jr., and Mrs. H. Burton Powers.

Reservations may be obtained from the Vassar Club by calling Miss Virginia Bridge at ASpinwall 7-0506.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
MAY 6 1956

EMMANUEL POPS

Emmanuel Night at Pops, sponsored by the Emmanuel College Alumnae Association, will be held Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall.

Committee members are working to make the event a family night, with students and alumnae meeting in family groups. Mrs. George H. Sweeney of Arlington and Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury are cochairmen.

INFORMATION OBSCURED

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 4 1956

News of Concerts and Screen

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

1956

NEW RECORDINGS

Stagliano's Fine Horn Playing

By CYRUS DURGIN

The fine playing of James Stagliano, first horn of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is that of a real virtuoso. In two records issued by his own company, Boston Records, Mr. Stagliano's beautiful work is reinforced by the excellence of other musicians. One of these discs contains the E flat Trio, Op. 40, by Brahms, and the F major Quartet for horn and strings by that Czech-born horn virtuoso of the latter 18th century, Jan Vaclav Stich, who became known as Giovanni, or Gen'l Punto.

In Brahms, Mr. Stagliano was joined by Arthur Grumiaux, violin, and pianist Gregory Tucker; in Stich-Punto by Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Samuel Mayes, cello. Both performances are as pleasing as the music is substantial, and both are enhanced by engineering which produced remarkable "presence" of sound.

The second record, one in the New Boston University Anthology, brings the four Horn Concertos by Mozart, with the superb Zimbler Sinfonietta of Boston Symphony men as orchestra. If there is any better horn playing than this by Stagliano—and some of it is really dazzling for grace and agility—I have yet to hear it. The Mozart recording is the first made in Kresge Auditorium at M. I. T. That unique auditorium, acoustically doubtful for "live concerts," makes for an extremely bright, powerful resonance when empty, and the aural results here are very good.

Tchaikovsky by Munch

Last Fall Charles Munch conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of the Tchaikovsky F minor Symphony that was so slow the music fell apart. Over the next performance, I was told, he speeded up. Then it was taped, and the result is a record which might better never have been released. The pace is still too slow, and this dramatic symphony has little of the irresistible surge and passion it ought to have. No credit reflects upon Mr. Munch here. But RCA-Victor gives the recording tremendous hi-fi.

Haydn's "The Seven Last Words of Christ" may be heard in a playing of the very first rank by Messrs. Burgin, Krips, de Pasquale and Mayes, in this grouping styled the Boston Symphony String Quartet. This is devoted playing, of depth and technical finesse. RCA-Victor.

The admirable Pro Musica String Orchestra of Stuttgart has turned out some more satisfying Bach, under the leadership of Rolf Reinhardt. The C minor and C major Concertos for Two Harpsichords were done with the conductor and Helma Elsner at the keyboards, and the Concerto for Violin and Oboe, in D minor, with Will Beh and Friedrich Milde as string and wind soloists, respectively. The vigor of the ensemble is nicely tempered by elegance. Vox

I find the Viola Concerto by the Swiss Frank Martin a fascinating modern work, bold and contemporary in manner and feeling, but music of high logic and order. Perhaps some day we shall hear it performed "live" in Boston. Meanwhile we can get acquainted with it in the pleasing traversal by Wolfgang Schneiderhan and the Swiss Romande Orchestra conducted by our old friend Ernest Ansermet. London.

The Pilot
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613

MAY 5 - 1956

Former Fordham President To Receive Eire Society Medal

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, May 5, at 6:30 P. M.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation for the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on Aug. 23 and 25 this year.

The gift will be presented by Joseph Gannon, president of the Society and will be accepted by Michael T. Kelleher, orchestra trustee.

The Society's Gold Medal is being presented to Father Gannon in recognition of his outstanding contributions as a "true educator of men and priest of God."

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 4 1956

Sunday Soloist

LUISE VOSGERCHIAN, Watertown pianist who scored hit opening night of Pops, will again be soloist Sunday night in the Liszt First Concerto.

Stravinsky 'Soldat' In Jordan Hall

By Harold Rogers

During World War I a librettist and a composer, C. F. Ramuz and Igor Stravinsky, sought refuge in Switzerland. Bereft of an outlet for their creative energies, they found no way by which they could stage a full-scale spectacle comparable to those that had made Stravinsky's name famous.

"Why then not do something simple?" they reasoned, according to Ramuz' report in his "Souvenirs sur Igor Stravinsky."

"Why not write a piece that would dispense with a large hall or a vast public; a piece scored for a few instruments and employing but two or three actors? Since there are no more theaters, we would have a theater all our own, that is, our own scenery which could be mounted without difficulty no matter where, even in the open; we would have resumed the tradition of the itinerant theaters."

Thus "L'Histoire du Soldat" came into being. Stravinsky turned out his clever score for seven musicians—two strings (violin and contrabass), two woodwinds (clarinet and bassoon), two brass (trumpet and trombone), and percussion. There are three main characters—the Soldier, the Princess, and the Devil.

* * *

Last night a winning performance of "L'Histoire du Soldat" was presented in Jordan Hall by members of the New England Conservatory under the direction of Roger Voisin, first trumpeter of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It was produced and directed by George Guilbault, also heard as the Soldier's voice.

This production was particularly interesting for a novel departure in the staging. The orchestra sat on stage, right, in shirtsleeves (as was the case at the 1918 première in Lausanne, when Ernest Ansermet conducted). On stage, left, sat a narrator, Earl Cole, with a microphone before him. Between them was a large screen for a shadow play.

In this way the whole thing took on a delightful story-book quality, an illusion somewhat spoiled when the actors stepped before the screen. It was not altogether necessary that they leave their shadow world, yet the Princess's dance would hardly have been so effective if seen only in shadow.

As the Princess, Sonia Klosek gave a nimble and expert performance combining certain elements of ballet with modern dance. The Devil and the Soldier both lost stature when they appeared in the flesh, the former looking too much like a character at a fancy dress ball, the latter too young.

* * *

But taken as a whole, the production had much to commend it. Mr. Voisin's direction kept the music on its toes, where it must be if it is to sound as Stravinsky intended. It must be dry, witty, and peppery, and it was all that.

In the competent cast were Robert Chapman as the Soldier's image (with Mr. Guilbault as his voice) and Curt Allen as the Devil's image (with Leo Snyder as his voice). Mr. Cole's narration was very well read in an informal and direct manner.

Filene
In Wellesley
WE 5-3800
Patronize Our Advertisers

Thomas J. [illegible] Seigelman, Mrs. J. Andrew [illegible]ath, Mrs. William N. Weikert, Mrs. James T. Harker, Mrs. G. Frank Cram, Mrs. Wilson Palen Palmer, Mrs. Randall Bell will serve as patronesses from the Marblehead area at the Vassar - Dartmouth Night at the Pops to be held Wednesday, May 16, at Symphony Hall for the benefit of the scholarship funds of the two colleges.

Brookline and Mrs. H. Burton Powers of Wellesley for publicity.

Patronesses in the Plymouth area include Mrs. Lothrop Withington, Jr., and Bryce Prindle.

Tickets may be obtained from the Vassar club by calling Miss Virginia Bridge at Aspinwall 1-0506.

[illegible] John Gray, Mrs. John Ware Jr., Mrs. Gordon White, and Mrs. Lawrence Pratt.

Tickets may be obtained from the Vassar Club by calling Miss Virginia Bridge at ASpinwall 7-0506.

BELMONT ST. BAPTIST CHURCH
Templeton Pkwy. Belmont St.
Rev. Robert L. Willett, Pastor

ST. MARTHA'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH
Marlboro St., Belmont
Rev. Robert [illegible]

85

Halifax
MAY 5 1956

HALIFAX GRANGE

Halifax Grange met Tuesday evening at Town Hall with Mrs. Lala Foley, master, presiding. Members of Mayflower Past Masters' Association filled the chairs and assisted with the opening and closing of the Past Master. The meeting of the Past Masters' Association was called to order by Mrs. Virginia Jennings and closed with the opening and closing of the Past Master. The meeting to Halifax, Pomona, representative to Halifax, was seated to the right of the

INFORMATION OBSCURED

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 4 1956

News of Concerts and Screen

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 4 1956

NEW RECORDINGS

Stagliano's Fine Horn Playing

By CYRUS DURGIN

The fine playing of James Stagliano, first horn of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is that of a real virtuoso. In two records issued by his own company, Boston Records, Mr. Stagliano's beautiful work is reinforced by the excellence of other musicians. One of these discs contains the E flat Trio, Op. 40, by Brahms, and the F major Quartet for horn and strings by that Czech-born horn virtuoso of the latter 18th century known as Vaclav Stich, who became known as Giovanni, or Gen'l Punto.

In Brahms, Mr. Stagliano was joined by Arthur Grumiaux, violin, and pianist Gregory Tucker; in Stich-Punto by Ruth Posselt, violin, Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Samuel Mayes, cello. Both performances are as pleasing as the music is substantial, and both are enhanced by engineering which produced remarkable "presence" of sound.

The second record, one in the new Boston University Anthology, brings the four Horn Concertos of Mozart, with the superb Zimmer Sinfonietta of Boston Symphony men as orchestra. If there is any better horn playing than this by Stagliano—and some of it is really dazzling for grace and ability—I have yet to hear it. The Mozart recording is the first made in Kresge Auditorium at M. I. T. That unique auditorium, acoustically doubtful for "live concerts," makes for an extremely bright, powerful resonance when empty, and the aural results here are very good.

Tchaikovsky by Munch

Last Fall Charles Munch conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of the Tchaikovsky F minor Symphony that was so slow the music fell apart. Over the next performance, I was told, he speeded up. Then it was taped, and the result is a record which might better never have been released. The pace is still too slow, and this dramatic symphony has little of the irresistible surge and passion it ought to have. No credit reflects upon Mr. Munch here. But RCA-Victor gives the recording tremendous hi-fi.

Haydn's "The Seven Last Words of Christ" may be heard in a playing of the very first rank by Messrs. Burgin, Krips, de Pasquale and Mayes, in this grouping styled the Boston Symphony String Quartet. This is devoted playing, of depth and technical finesse. RCA-Victor.

The admirable Pro Musica String Orchestra of Stuttgart has turned out some more satisfying Bach, under the leadership of Rolf Reinhardt. The C minor and C major Concertos for Two Harpsichords were done with the conductor and Helma Elsner at the keyboards, and the Concerto for Violin and Oboe, in D minor, with Will Beh and Friedrich Milde as string and wind soloists, respectively. The vigor of the ensemble is nicely tempered by elegance. Vox.

I find the Viola Concerto by the Swiss Frank Martin a fascinating modern work, bold and contemporary in manner and feeling, but music of high logic and order. Perhaps some day we shall hear it performed "live" in Boston. Meanwhile we can get acquainted with it in the pleasing traversal by Wolfgang Schneiderhan and the Swiss Romande Orchestra conducted by our old friend Ernest Ansermet. London.

The Pilot
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613

MAY 5 1956

Former Fordham President To Receive Eire Society Medal

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, May 5, at 6:30 P. M.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation for the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on Aug. 23 and 25 this year.

The gift will be presented by Joseph Gannon, president of the Society and will be accepted by Michael T. Kelleher, orchestra trustee.

The Society's Gold Medal is being presented to Father Gannon in recognition of his outstanding contributions as a "true educator of men and priest of God."

Stravinsky 'Soldat' In Jordan Hall

By Harold Rogers

During World War I a librettist and a composer, C. F. Ramuz and Igor Stravinsky, sought refuge in Switzerland. Bereft of an outlet for their creative energies, they found no way by which they could stage a full-scale spectacle comparable to those that had made Stravinsky's name famous.

"Why then not do something simple?" they reasoned, according to Ramuz' report in his "Souvenirs sur Igor Stravinsky."

"Why not write a piece that would dispense with a large hall or a vast public; a piece scored for a few instruments and employing but two or three actors? Since there are no more theaters, we would have a theater all our own, that is, our own scenery which could be mounted without difficulty no matter where, even in the open; we would have resumed the tradition of the itinerant theaters."

Thus "L'Histoire du Soldat" came into being. Stravinsky turned out his clever score for seven musicians—two strings (violin and contrabass), two woodwinds (clarinet and bassoon), two brass (trumpet and trombone), and percussion. There are three main characters—the Soldier, the Princess, and the Devil.

* * *

Last night a winning performance of "L'Histoire du Soldat" was presented in Jordan Hall by members of the New England Conservatory under the direction of Roger Voisin, first trumpeter of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It was produced and directed by George Guilbault, also heard as the Soldier's voice.

This production was particularly interesting for a novel departure in the staging. The orchestra sat on stage, right, in shirtsleeves (as was the case at the 1918 première in Lausanne, when Ernest Ansermet conducted). On stage, left, sat a narrator, Earl Cole, with a microphone before him. Between them was a large screen for a shadow play.

In this way the whole thing took on a delightful story-book quality, an illusion somewhat spoiled when the actors stepped before the screen. It was not altogether necessary that they leave their shadow world, yet the Princess's dance would hardly have been so effective if seen only in shadow.

As the Princess, Sonia Klosek gave a nimble and expert performance combining certain elements of ballet with modern dance. The Devil and the Soldier both lost stature when they appeared in the flesh, the former looking too much like a character at a fancy dress ball, the latter too young.

* * *

But taken as a whole, the production had much to commend it. Mr. Voisin's direction kept the music on its toes, where it must be if it is to sound as Stravinsky intended. It must be dry, witty, and peppery, and it was all that.

In the competent cast were Robert Chapman as the Soldier's image (with Mr. Guilbault as his voice) and Curt Allen as the Devil's image (with Leo Snyder as his voice). Mr. Cole's narration was very well read in an informal and direct manner.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 4 1956

Sunday Soloist

...ISE VOSGERCHIAN, well-known pianist who scored ... opening night of Pops, will be soloist Sunday night in the Liszt First Concerto.

Plan Night at Pops

Vassar Alumnae of the Plymouth area are busy planning for the Vassar-Dartmouth Night at the Pops to be held on Wednesday evening, May 16, at Symphony hall, for the benefit of the scholarship funds of the two colleges.

The Vassar Club Pops committee chairman is Mrs. Thomas Morse of Brookline, who is helped by Mrs. Andrew Rankin of Dedham for patronesses, Mrs. Don Ross of Newton Highlands for mailing, Mrs. Robert Haydock of Newton Center for flowers, and Mrs. J. Charles Drooker of Brookline and Mrs. H. Burton Powers of Wellesley for publicity.

Patronesses in the Plymouth area include Mrs. Lothrop Withington, Jr., and Bryce Prindle.

Tickets may be obtained from the Vassar club by calling Miss Virginia Bridge at Aspinwall 1-0506.

... John Gray, Mrs. John Ware Jr., Mrs. Gordon White, and Mrs. Lawrence Pratt.

Tickets may be obtained from the Vassar Club by calling Miss Virginia Bridge at ASpinwall 7-0506.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

85

MAY 5 1956

TOP O' THE MORNING

EDITED BY PEGGY BROWN

Ah, tis May and as Laura Hulse suggests, a time when we're temped to wander. . . . I let my thoughts wander ahead of me this week—ahead to summer and vacations . . . and I thought of the sea and could almost smell the sea—sea like the sea in Patricia King's poem . . . Vera Ramos Keelan attended the final 75th Anniversary Boston Symphony concert and was inspired to write her beautiful Beethoven tribute . . . Another voice, Katherine Saunders this time, in favor of an anthology and a reminder that, going back to George Ryan, there are a good many years and a good many poems. A monumental task indeed it will be. At least 370 poems are printed a year. Those of you who know the number of years you've been reading the column can figure the rest. Any takers?

Pilgrimage

May is a month of birdsong
and of fragrance,
A time in which we're tempted
to be vagrants;
A vagabond would sure deserve
a judge's pardon
So let's step out and saunter
round the garden.

LAURA HULSE

Sea Cabin

The sea is coming through the glass.
The smell of saltness will not pass.
It blows away dry heat, and leaves
The scent of waves upon the eaves.

PATRICIA ROBINSON KING

Beethoven's Ninth Symphony

Beethoven's spirit soars and fills the air
With music sweeter than most gifted bird,
I weep for him who having writ, ne'er heard
The silken wings of his own doves so fair;
He offers beauty in a golden cup,
Immortal joy and praises heaven sent,
Sweet music for the ears own nourishment,
And bids us drink, on love and life to sup.

Great music magic binds all brothers fast,
Souls blending like the fragrance of fresh flowers,
The chorus singing, how it overpowers,
And bids us pray this golden hour will last,
While seeking Him, a friend to have and be,
With Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony.

VERA RAMOS KEELAN

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

MAY 6 1956

EMMANUEL POPS

Emmanuel Night at Pops, sponsored by the Emmanuel College Alumnae Association, will be held Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall.

Committee members are working to make the event a family night, with students and alumnae meeting in family groups. Mrs. George H. Sweeney of Arlington and Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury are cochairmen.

INFORMATION OBSCURED

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
MAY 4 1956

News of Concerts and Screen

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241
MAY 4 1956

NEW RECORDINGS

Stagliano's Fine Horn Playing

By CYRUS DURGIN

The fine playing of James Sta-ano, first horn of the Boston mphony Orchestra, is that of eat virtuoso. In two records ued by his own company, Bos- Records, Mr. Stagliano's beau- l work is reinforced by the ellence of other musicians. One these discs contains the E flat o. Op. 40, by Brahms, and the major Quartet for horn and ngs by that Czech-born horn tuoso of the latter 18th century Vaclav Stich, who became wn as Giovanni, or Gen'l to.

Brahms, Mr. Stagliano was ed by Arthur Grumiaux, violin, pianist Gregory Tucker; in h-Punto by Ruth Posselt, vio- Joseph de-Pasquale, viola, and uel Mayes, cello. Both per- hances are as pleasing as the ic is substantial, and both are anced by engineering which duced remarkable "presence" ound.

he second record, one in the Boston University Anthology, gs the four Horn Concertos Mozart, with the superb Zim- Sinfonietta of Boston Sym- y men as orchestra. If there hy better horn playing than hy Stagliano—and some of it edly dazzling for grace and ity—I have yet to hear it. The art recording is the first made Kresge Auditorium at M. I. T. unique auditorium, acoustically doubtful for "live concerts," es for an extremely bright, erful resonance when empty the aural results here are ver d.

Tchaikovsky by Munch

st Fall Charles Munch con- ed the Boston Symphony Or- tra in a performance of the ikovsky F minor Symphony was so slow the music fell Over the next performance, told, he speeded up. Then as taped, and the result is rd which might better neve been released. The pace s still too slow, and this dramatic symphony has little of the irresistible surge and passion it ought to have. No credit reflects upon Mr. Munch here. But RCA-Victor gives the recording tremendous hi-fi.

Haydn's "The Seven Last Words of Christ" may be heard in a playing of the very first rank by Messrs. Burgin, Krips, de Pasquale and Mayes, in this group-ing styled the Boston Symphony String Quartet. This is devoted playing, of depth and technical finesse. RCA-Victor.

The admirable Pro Musica String Orchestra of Stuttgart has turned out some more satisfying Bach, under the leadership of Rolf Reinhardt. The C minor and C major Concertos for Two Harpsichords were done with the conductor and Helma Elsner at the keyboards, and the Concerto for Violin and Oboe, in D minor, with Will Beh and Friedrich Milde as string and wind soloists, respectively. The vigor of the ensemble is nicely tempered by elegance. Vox.

I find the Viola Concerto by the Swiss Frank Martin a fascinating modern work, bold and contemporary in manner and feeling, but music of high logic and order. Perhaps some day we shall hear it performed "live" in Boston. Meanwhile we can get acquainted with it in the pleasing traversal by Wolfgang Schneiderhan and the Swiss Romande Orchestra conducted by our old friend Ernest Ansermet. London.

The Pilot
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613
MAY 5 1956

Former Fordham President To Receive Eire Society Medal

More than 750 members and their friends will attend the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston to be held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, May 5, at 6:30 P. M.

Speakers will be the Honorable John J. Hearne, Ireland's Ambassador to the United States, and Edward B. Hanify, prominent Boston attorney.

Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the Eire Society Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., former president of Fordham University, and the presentation of a gift of $1000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in appreciation for the concerts to be given by the orchestra in Cork and Dublin on Aug. 23 and 25 this year.

The gift will be presented by Joseph Gannon, president of the Society and will be accepted by Michael T. Kelleher, orchestra trustee.

The Society's Gold Medal is being presented to Father Gannon in recognition of his outstanding contributions as a "true educator of men and priest of God."

Stravinsky 'Soldat' In Jordan Hall

By Harold Rogers

During World War I a librettist and a composer, C. F. Ramuz and Igor Stravinsky, sought refuge in Switzerland. Bereft of an outlet for their creative energies, they found no way by which they could stage a full-scale spectacle comparable to those that had made Stravinsky's name famous.

"Why then not do something simple?" they reasoned, according to Ramuz' report in his "Souvenirs sur Igor Stravinsky."

"Why not write a piece that would dispense with a large hall or a vast public; a piece scored for a few instruments and employing but two or three actors? Since there are no more theaters, we would have a theater all our own, that is, our own scenery which could be mounted without difficulty no matter where, even in the open; we would have resumed the tradition of the itinerant theaters."

Thus "L'Histoire du Soldat" came into being. Stravinsky turned out his clever score for seven musicians—two strings (violin and contrabass), two woodwinds (clarinet and bassoon), two brass (trumpet and trombone), and percussion. There are three main characters—the Soldier, the Princess, and the Devil.

* * *

Last night a winning performance of "L'Histoire du Soldat" was presented in Jordan Hall by members of the New England Conservatory under the direction of Roger Voisin, first trumpeter of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It was produced and directed by George Guilbault, also heard as the Soldier's voice.

This production was particularly interesting for a novel departure in the staging. The orchestra sat on stage, right, in shirtsleeves (as was the case at the 1918 première in Lausanne, when Ernest Ansermet conducted). On stage, left, sat a narrator, Earl Cole, with a microphone before him. Between them was a large screen for a shadow play.

In this way the whole thing took on a delightful story-book quality, an illusion somewhat spoiled when the actors stepped before the screen. It was not altogether necessary that they leave their shadow world, yet the Princess's dance would hardly have been so effective if seen only in shadow.

As the Princess, Sonia Klosek gave a nimble and expert performance combining certain elements of ballet with modern dance. The Devil and the Soldier both lost stature when they appeared in the flesh, the former looking too much like a character at a fancy dress ball, the latter too young.

* * *

But taken as a whole, the production had much to commend it. Mr. Voisin's direction kept the music on its toes, where it must be if it is to sound as Stravinsky intended. It must be dry, witty, and peppery, and it was all that.

In the competent cast were Robert Chapman as the Soldier's image (with Mr. Guilbault as his voice) and Curt Allen as the Devil's image (with Leo Snyder as his voice). Mr. Cole's narration was very well read in an informal and direct manner.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593
MAY 4 1956

Sunday Soloist

VOSGERCHIAN, pianist who scored night of Pops, will night First Concerto.

Planning Vassar Night At Pops

Vassar alumnae of the Needham, Dover and Sherborn areas are busy planning "Vassar-Dartmouth Night' 'at the pops to be held on Wednesday evening May 16, at Symphony Hall, for the benefit of the scholarship funds of the two colleges.

The Vassar Club Pops chairman is Mrs. Thomas Morse of Brookline, assisted by Mrs. Andrew Rankin of Dedham, Mrs. Don Ross of Newton Highlands, Mrs. Robert Haydock of Newton Center, Mrs. J. Charles Drooker of Brookline, and Mrs. H. Burton Powers of Wellesley.

Needham patronesses include: Mrs. Dudley L. Milliken, Mrs. Donald Came, Mrs. Lawrence Lombard, Mrs. Gordon Myers, Mrs. Milton Hardin, Mrs. Herbert Motley, Jr., Mrs. Powell Robinson. Dover patronesses are Mrs. Richard Mannegold, Mrs. Finley Perry, Mrs. Frederick Blodgett, Mrs. John Gray, Mrs. John Ware Jr., Mrs. Gordon White, and Mrs. Lawrence Pratt.

Tickets may be obtained from the Vassar Club by calling Miss Virginia Bridge at ASpinwall 7-0506.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559
MAY 5 1956

85

TOP O' THE MORNING

EDITED BY PEGGY BROWN

Ah, tis May and as Laura Hulse suggests, a time when we're temped to wander. . . . I let my thoughts wander ahead of me this week—ahead to summer and vacations . . . and I thought of the sea and could almost smell the sea—sea like the sea in Patricia King's poem . . . Vera Ramos Keelan attended the final 75th Anniversary Boston Symphony concert and was inspired to write her beautiful Beethoven tribute . . . Another voice, Katherine Saunders this time, in favor of an anthology and a reminder that, going back to George Ryan, there are a good many years and a good many poems. A monumental task indeed it will be. At least 370 poems are printed a year. Those of you who know the number of years you've been reading the column can figure the rest. Any takers?

Pilgrimage

May is a month of birdsong
and of fragrance,
A time in which we're tempted
to be vagrants;
A vagabond would sure deserve
a judge's pardon
So let's step out and saunter
round the garden.

LAURA HULSE

Sea Cabin

The sea is coming through the glass.
The smell of saltness will not pass.
It blows away dry heat, and leaves
The scent of waves upon the eaves.

PATRICIA ROBINSON KING

Beethoven's Ninth Symphony

Beethoven's spirit soars and fills the air
With music sweeter than most gifted bird,
I weep for him who having writ, ne'er heard
The silken wings of his own doves so fair;
He offers beauty in a golden cup,
Immortal joy and praises heaven sent,
Sweet music for the ears own nourishment,
And bids us drink, on love and life to sup.

Great music magic binds all brothers fast,
Souls blending like the fragrance of fresh flowers,
The chorus singing, how it overpowers,
And bids us pray this golden hour will last,
While seeking Him, a friend to have and be,
With Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony.

VERA RAMOS KEELAN

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
MAY 6 1956

EMMANUEL POPS

Emmanuel Night at Pops, sponsored by the Emmanuel College Alumnae Association, will be held Monday, May 14, at Symphony Hall.

Committee members are working to make the event a family night, with students and alumnae meeting in family groups. Mrs. George H. Sweeney of Arlington and Mrs. Edward C. Keane of West Roxbury are cochairmen.

The Pilot
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613
MAY 5 1956

Teachers Learned 'Know-How' During Music Conferences

By JOSEPH McLELLAN
(PILOT Staff Writer)

Most of the sessions at the National Catholic Music Educators Association convention were concerned with the problem of how Catholic schools should teach music. Lecturers, performers and demonstrators ushered the assembled music teachers through a mass of "how to" sessions: new techniques on the violin, problems of vocal students, the crucial switch from a plastic flute to a trombone in a grammar school class, and the use of films and other techniques in teaching the piano.

At other sessions, and in the talk-fests between sessions which are among the most fruitful parts of any convention, another deeper problem came up constantly. To be a truly good educator, a teacher must know more than how. He (or in most cases, she) must know why she is teaching.

There are many answers to the question, "Why Teach Music?" but according to Msgr. Thomas J. Quigley, First Vice President of NCMEA and editor of the organization's magazine, MUSART, the most important answer is simply that the children want it, need it and deserve it.

Msgr. Quigley writes from experience. The son of a musician, he began to take violin lessons from his father when he was five years old. His father's untimely death and the lack of a music program at school deprived him of a musical education. It also gave him a determination to help others in the same situation when he could. As superintendent of Catholic schools in Pittsburgh, for seventeen years and president of the NCMEA from 1951 to 1955, he has done much to fulfill this ambition.

For Catholic schools, according to Msgr. Quigley, the most important reason for teaching music is that, like philosophy, ethics and the other fine arts, it is a way of seeking God.

"In our theology," he said, "we learn that God is all Truth, all Good and all Beauty, and our spiritual writers tell us to seek God in everything we do. All the fine arts are a pursuit of beauty and, in its ultimate expression, beauty is God. People are equipped differently for this pursuit of God, which is the fundamental purpose of our life—the saint, usually, will stick mainly to the avenue of Goodness, while the scholar follows the path of truth. If we fail to keep open the third way, that of Beauty, for those whose disposition is to follow it, we are leaving a barrier between the soul and God." This point was touched on by the Holy Father in his recent encyclical on sacred music.

"There is a little bit of the scholar, a little bit of the saint, and a little bit of the artist in everyone," he said. "It is the duty of the school to understand this. It is an educational crime for the school to neglect any side of a pupil—particularly a Catholic school where it is recognized that talents are God-given and that God's plan calls for their development."

The purpose of music teaching, in a Catholic school or in any school is not to produce a bumper crop of composers or virtuosi, Msgr. Quigley stressed. But if the schools are to develop the whole man, as their basic purpose and philosophy require, they must give attention to his emotional development. This means the study of fine art, and particularly music, which is a means of recording, controlling and expressing emotion.

Another duty of the school is to acquaint students with their heritage, the great tradition which has been handed down to our time by those who have gone before us. For any American school, this means a study of American music, where our finest traditions are enshrined. The Catholic school has an additional duty, to bring to life the glorious past of the Church—which still lives in its music.

While the purposes are timeless, the conditions and techniques in music are in a state of constant change today. New ideas, important developments, improved methods are being worked out all the time in widely separated parts of the country.

CLEARING HOUSE

According to Rev. Cletus P. Madsen, National President of the NCMEA, this is what gives the organization its peculiar value. It acts as a clearing-house for ideas in the field, receiving them from their originators and channeling them to the teachers who will be able to use them, through its magazine, conventions, regional organizations and other means.

"Music education, and in fact all education in Catholic schools, is a way of conditioning man for his life in the Mystical Body of Christ." Fr. Madsen said. "The NCMEA is a service organization—the service being to channel the best-thought-out means of doing this to the teachers of the nation."

"There is a place in NCMEA for every specialist form of music. By conventions, workshops, institutes and committee reports, these specialists present to us the best means of teaching. We are still a young organization—only fourteen years old, and our format is still changing. In his encyclical, 'Musicae Sacrae Disciplina,' Pope Pius XII observed that we are taking care of the Mystical Body in the 20th century, and we must be prepared to use 20th century techniques."

LAMENTATION

A bit of old Boston history was revived by the Welch Chorale of New York. The choristers performed the little-known "Lamentation over Boston," written during the Revolutionary War by William Billings.

During the seige of Boston, Billings took refuge with his friend, Paul Revere, who engraved the plates for his "New England Psalm-Singers," in Watertown. Here, in imitation of the 136th Psalm (137th in the King James version) Billings "sat down and wept" over the beseiged city.

A tanner's apprentice by trade, Billings made a real mark on the music of his age. Besides being a revolutionary in his political sentiments, he carried his independence into his composition. His publishers, the Music Press, Inc., of New York, quote him as saying that he was not "confined to any Rules for Composition by any that went before him."

The "Lamentation," a curious mixture of biblical and Revolutionary sentiments, begins with a familiar but unfamiliar phrase: "By the rivers of Watertown we sat down and wept . . . when we remembered thee, O Boston . . . As for our friends, Lord, God of Heaven preserve them, defend them, deliver and restore them unto us . . .

"A voice was heard in Roxbury which echoed through the continent; weeping, weeping, weeping for Boston because of their danger. . ."

POPULAR SONGS

Rock and roll, rhythm and blues, and the more progressive forms of jazz are not the only controversial subjects in the musical world today. In the rarified regions of serious music, even including religious music, long hairs are being turned white by the ultra-modern techniques of a younger generation.

One of the members of the avant-garde in church music, Rev. Russell Woollen whose Mass No. 3 was sung in excerpts at a convention concert by the Welch Chorale. Father Woollen has written music for four Masses, two of which have been published by a Boston firm. His First Mass was written for the wedding of a personal friend, Paul Hume, music critic of the Washington Post who received the famous threatening letter from President Truman for his remarks on Margaret's singing.

Although his Masses have been approved for use in churches by diocesan music commissions throughout the United States (and including Boston) Fr. Woollen has run into strong opposition from some Catholic music-lovers.

"They wait outside the church after it's over," he said in an interview here, "and when I come out they tell me how terrible it was. The audiences fall into three groups—a few who are wildly in favor of the music, a few who are wildly against it, and the large majority who just don't care."

In addition to his Masses, Fr. Woollen has published a number of secular works including music for orchestras, organ and piano and chamber music. A long-playing record of his Quartet for lute and strings is being prepared for release by Transition, Inc., a local recording company.

A convention like the one just finished in Boston brings the best minds in the country, on these particular problems, together in one place where they can compare experiences and ideas. In addition to the formal program, spontaneous groups are formed of people who share special interests. Often, in the places where they live and work, there is no-one with whom they can discuss these detailed problems, but at a national meeting they can find scores of others doing the same work, sharing the same problems, and all ready to work out solutions which will help them all.

IN THE SERVICE OF GOD . . . A demonstration of the boy choir investiture ceremony was given at the NCMEA convention by Rev. Edward Beucler of Corpus Christi Church, Auburndale and the boys' choir of Our Lady of Pity Church, Cambridge. The investiture ritual is an English adaptation by Paul Holtin, choir director at Our Lady of Pity Church, from one used by the "Petits Chanteurs a la Croix de Bois." (Pilot Photos by Stack)

MUSIC WITH CHARM . . . Arthur Fiedler, Boston Pops Orchestra conductor, smiles upon Caroline Woron, violin solist of the Philadelphia Archdiocesan High School Girls' Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Feidler made an unprecedented guest-conductor appearance for the NCMEA concert on the eve of the Boston Pops opening. The Philadelphia high school group performed on Monday, April 30.

NATIONAL AWARD . . . Paul Creston (left) composer and organist of New York City received the NCMEA citation of honor from president Cletus P. Madsen with Rt. Rev. Timothy E. O'Leary, Archdiocesan Superintendent of Schools and convention chairman, presiding. (Pilot Photo by Stack)

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 5 1956

Society: Empire Dance 'Must' for Debs; Bryn Mawr Fund to Benefit

TODAY'S THE DAY of the annual Daffodil Club Fair, which will be held on the grounds of the Chestnut Hill School this afternoon to benefit the Children's Hospital. For more than 40 years, the 9-to-15-year-old members of the club have been running this fair themselves to raise a substantial contribution to the hospital, and helping with this year's fair will be Alison Hall, Amy Fay and Dianna Marto.

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

The Empire Dinner Dance next Saturday is a "must" on every 1956-57 debutante's invitation list, not only because this has been for 30 years the traditional "first party" for the debs of each season, but also because it has so long helped the very good cause of the Bryn Mawr Scholarship Fund.

Ushers will come from Princeton, Yale, Williams and other leading colleges to help the Harvard ushers on Saturday, and dozens of sherry parties are being given for the girls and their partners, some of the largest at the Sheraton Plaza and at the Somerset Club. Debs of this past season will see that the pretty debs-to-come, who'll be graduating next month from Beaver and Milton and Concord and Garrison Forest and Miss Hall's, meet lots of new friends and good partners.

Jean Magoun is chairman of the floor committee, assisted by Ann Harwood, Sally Murray, Elissa English, Wendy Adams, Joan Baldwin, Elizabeth Hall, Whitney Drury, Isabel Ellis, Catherine Eppinger, and others. Campbell Steward heads the ushers, with John Cabot, Derwin Stevens, Alexander Daley, Alfred Donovan and Thomas Frost leading a corps that also includes James Smith, Howard Dickinson, Dudley Morrison, Frank P. Griswold 3d, John Eager, Stanley Rinehart, Henry Hammond, James Smith, John C. Vincent Jr., John Finley 3d, Charles deErney, Peter Partridge, David Hutchinson and others.

PRESIDENTS and hospital chairmen of the Garden Clubs are meeting May 9 at Horticultural Hall to plan their Garden Clubs service for veterans' hospitals. This wonderful program, which has helped many a hospitalized veteran through long, difficult hours, has as its cochairmen Mrs. C. Rodgers Burgin and Mrs. Sherman L. Whipple Jr.

FROM NEW YORK comes the announcement today of the engagement of postdebutante Aerielle Frost, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Frost, to Gordon Dewart, son of Mrs. Emery J. Trott of Boston and Torremolinos, Spain, and Gordon Dewart of Boston.

Miss Frost was presented to society in Newport and at the Grosvenor Ball and Junior Assemblies in New York in 1951. She is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hervie C. Harris of New York and the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Frost of Chicago. She studied at Garrison Forest School in Maryland and at Les Aigles, Chantilly, France.

Mr. Dewart, grandson of the late Rev. and Mrs. William H. Dewart of Boston and the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dickerman of Boston, prepared at Phillips Andover and at Cambridge School for Brown University. He served with the Navy for two years.

PRE-SCHOOLERS WILL BENEFIT from the Junior League-sponsored Pops concert of May 26. The benefit is being planned by members of the League's Professional Group to raise funds for The Associated Day Care Services of Metropolitan Boston. Proceeds will go also towards equipment for the recreational program of the North Bennet St. Industrial School.

Miss Constance Walker heads the committee in charge of Junior League Night at Symphony Hall, working with Miss Maureen Duane, Miss Nancy Day and Miss Elizabeth Johnson.

LONG-RANGE PLANNING credit goes to Leonard Baron of Weston, who is making it possible for Boston University's George Gershwin Committee and its Friends of Music to take over all seats in the Boston Opera House on Oct. 3 for the opening night performance of the Royal Danish Ballet, to benefit the B. U. scholarship fund for music and drama students. Working with both committees are Aaron Richmond and Danish Ambassador Henrik de Kauggman, who will be honored at a dinner before the opening.

LETTERS TO 15,000 friends of the North Shore Babies Hospital go out each year from the office where volunteers help on the hospital's appeals committee. Mrs. Leo J. Mawn reported this week as Auxiliary members met in their new office at Ropes House on Dearborn st. to plan Open House Day for Friday, May 11. Open house day will be the hospital's observance of National Hospital Week.

On May 17, Mrs. Fellowes Davis of 420 Locust st., Danvers, will be hostess at a membership tea at three. More than 150 newcomers have joined the Auxiliary this year. Helping hostesses will be Mrs. Leo A. Dimond, Auxiliary membership chairman, assisted by Mrs. John A. Little and Mrs. J. Harold Stewart.

Also helping are Mrs. Edward E. Burritt Jr., Mrs. Forest Mason Jr., Mrs. John Kossowan, Mrs. Aristotle Vontzalides, Mrs. George Kimball, Mrs. R. E. Mroczkowski, Mrs. Charles Pinkham Jr., Mrs. Samuel Hoar Jr., and Mrs. John K. Putnam.

North Shore Babies' Hospital Auxiliary officers and members of the Auxiliary board will be at the tea to meet Auxiliary members and their guests. Also invited will be Mrs. Frank B. Wallis, present chairman of the board of managers, and Mrs. Charles H. Goodhue Jr., former chairman.

Mrs. Richard C. Marcy is hospitality chairman, and Mrs. Edward L. Richardson will be in charge of the flowers.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 7 1956

Transcript
DEDHAM, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4,294

MAY 11 1956

DAR Ladies Attend Pops

Several Dedham ladies were in attendance Monday Night at Symphony Hall, Boston, when Boston Tea Party Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was honored at a "Night at the Pops."

Attending were Mrs. Herbert Perry, regent of Contentment Chapter, D.A.R.; Mrs. Betty Guild, Miss Marion Acker, Mrs. H. Wendell Beal, Mrs. Rodney Larcom, Mrs. Mabelle Senning, Mrs. Edwin Downs, Mrs. Forrest Freeman, Mrs. Charles Hughes, Miss Gertrude MacPeek, Mrs. Estella MacPeek, Miss Marguerite Allen, Mrs. Elizabeth Buckler, Mrs. Joseph Sullivan and Mrs. Helena Bauer.

thur J. Anderson, Jr.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 111,372

MAY 6 1956

BURGIN TO APPEAR AT MUSIC WORKSHOP

New York, May 5—This year's annual workshop (the fourth) of the American Symphony League has been set for Providence, R. I. in mid-JuUne, in conjunction with the 1956 national convention of the league. Among the musicians who will take part in the sessions, conducted on behalf of conductors from community symphonies all over the country who participate in the convention, are Richard Burgin, long-time concertmaster and associate conductor of the Boston Symphony, Mason Jones, first horn of the Philadelphia Symphony, Saul Goodman, celebrated percussion chief of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony, and numerous colleagues from all of these groups.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 5 1956

Next Week at the Pops—

Fiedler, Dickson to Conduct; Five Soloists to Be Heard

Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Pops concerts at Symphony Hall next week, with the exception of Friday evening when Harry Ellis Dickson will make his first appearance as assistant conductor. Giuseppe de Lellis will be piano soloist in two movements from Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 23 in A major, K. 488, under Mr. Dickson's direction.

Other piano soloists for the week include Luise Vosgerchian, who will play Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat on Sunday evening. Leo Litwin will be heard in the Gershwin Piano Concerto in F on Monday and Saturday evenings.

Ozan Marsh will play the Liszt "Totentanz" on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday evenings. Kenneth Gordon will be the soloist in the Paganini-Wilhelmj Violin Concerto in D major on Sunday evening, May 13.

Three special nights have been arranged, all of which are open to the public—Massachusetts Institute of Technology on Sunday evening, Bowdoin College on Thursday, and Wellesley College on Saturday.

The programs:

Monday Evening, May 7

The Stars and Stripes Forever, March ..... Sousa
Scene and Waltz of the Snow Flakes ..... Tchaikovsky
Meditation from "Thaïs" ..... Massenet
Solo Violin: Alfred Krips
España, Rhapsody ..... Chabrier
Deep Forest ..... Daniels
Piano Concerto in F ..... Gershwin
Soloist: Leo Litwin
Selections from "My Fair Lady" ..... Loewe-Hayman
Bugler's Holiday ..... Anderson
American Patrol ..... Meacham
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Tuesday Evening, May 8

Procession of the Sardar, from "Caucasian Sketches" ..... Ippolitov-Ivanov
Roses from the South, Waltzes ..... Strauss
Fantasia on Greensleeves ..... Vaughan Williams
Overture to "Oberon" ..... Weber
Totentanz for Piano and Orchestra ..... Liszt
Soloist: Ozan Marsh
Suite from "Peer Gynt" ..... Grieg
Popspourri ..... Arr by Mason
Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing ..... Fain-Mason
Geneviève Galop ..... Offenbach-Rodge
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Wednesday Evening, May 9

Pomp and Circumstance ..... Elgar
Overture to "The Merry Wives of Windsor" ..... Nicolai
Pavane ..... Ravel
Polovetsian Dances from "Prince Igor" ..... Borodin
Totentanz for Piano and Orchestra ..... Liszt
Soloist: Ozan Marsh
Suite from "Galté Parisienne" ..... Offenbach
Popspourri ..... Arr. by Mason
On the Trail, from "Grand Canyon Suite" ..... Grofé
Up the Street, March ..... Morse
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Bowdoin College Night
Thursday Evening, May 10

Washington Post, March ..... Sousa
Overture to "Russian and Ludmilla" ..... Glinka
Finlandia, Tone Poem ..... Sibelius
Totentanz for Piano and Orchestra ..... Liszt
Soloist: Ozan Marsh
Bowdoin College Glee Club
Frederic Tillotson, Director
The Meddiebempsters
T. Douglas Stenberg, Director
Popspourri ..... Arr. by Mason
The Typewriter ..... Anderson
Bowdoin College Medley Arr. by Bodge
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Friday Evening, May 11

French Military March ..... Saint-Saëns
The Roman Carnival, Overture ..... Berlioz
Clair de Lune ..... Debussy
Three Dances from "The Three-Cornered Hat" ..... Falla
Piano Concerto No. 23, in A Major, K. 488 ..... Mozart
Soloist: Giuseppe de Lellis
Where the Citrons Bloom, Waltzes ..... Strauss
Dance of the Hours, from "La Gioconda" ..... Ponchielli
Selections from "Carousel" ..... Rodgers
Bugler's Holiday ..... Anderson
Sailors' Dance, from "The Red Poppy" ..... Glière
Harry Ellis Dickson conducting

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

MAY 6 1956

The Boston Pops

Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra move into the second week of the 1956 season tonight at Symphony Hall. Concerts continue to be given every night. Harry Ellis Dickson, recently named assistant conductor of the Pops, will make his first appearance of the season conducting the program next Friday evening. His soloist will be the pianist Giuseppe de Lellis, playing two movements from Mozart's Concerto in A Major, K. 488. Other soloists this week—all pianists—will include Luise Vosgerchian, who will play the Liszt Concerto in E Flat tonight; Leo Litwin, who will play the Gershwin Concerto tomorrow night and Saturday; and Ozan Marsh, who will play the Liszt "Todtentanz" on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

As always, tickets for all Pops concerts are on sale at the Symphony Hall box-office one week in advance of each concert.

At the Pops

Tonight
Regis Night

Washington Post, March ..... Sousa
Music of the Spheres, Waltzes ..... Josef Strauss
Prayer of Thanksgiving ..... Valerius
Overture to "Orpheus in the Underworld" ..... Offenbach
Organ Concerto No. 2, in B flat ..... Handel
Soloist: Berj Zamkochian
Bolero ..... Ravel
Regis College Glee Club
Berj Zamkochian, Director
Selection from "Carousel" ..... Rodgers
Alouette, Gypsy Tango ..... Gade
Wedding Dance ..... Press
Regis Alma Mater
Arthur Fiedler, Conducter

Sunday Night
MIT Night

Wedding March, from "The Golden Cockerel" ..... Rimsky-Korsakov
Three Dances from "The Three-Cornered Hat" ..... Falla
Iron Works ..... Mossolov
Overture to "La Belle Hélène" ..... Offenbach
Piano Concerto No. 1, in E-flat ..... Liszt
Soloist: Luise Vosgerchian
MIT Glee Club
Klaus Liepmann conducting
Popspourri ..... Arr. by Mason
Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing ..... Fain-Mason
Thunder and Lightning ..... Strauss
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 7 1956

Deadline May 9 For Pops Tickets

May 9 is the deadline for getting tickets for Middlebury, Goucher, Mills, and Wells Night at the Pops, Thursday, May 17. The four college alumnae groups have taken half the floor of Symphony Hall that evening for the benefit of scholarship funds.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 8 1956

By a Staff Photographer

Ozan Marsh will be piano soloist at the Pops tonight, Wednesday, and Thursday.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

Society:

Empire Dance 'Must' for Debs; Bryn Mawr Fund to Benefit

TODAY'S THE DAY of the annual Daffodil Club Fair, which will be held on the grounds of the Chestnut Hill School this afternoon to benefit the Children's Hospital. For more than 40 years, the 9-to-15-year-old members of the club have been running this fair themselves to raise a substantial contribution to the hospital, and helping with this year's fair will be Alison Hall, Amy Fay and Dianna Marto.

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

The Empire Dinner Dance next Saturday is a "must" on every 1956-57 debutante's invitation list, not only because this has been for 30 years the traditional "first party" for the debs of each season, but also because it has so long helped the very good cause of the Bryn Mawr Scholarship Fund.

Ushers will come from Princeton, Yale, Williams and other leading colleges to help the Harvard ushers on Saturday, and dozens of sherry parties are being given for the girls and their partners, some of the largest at the Sheraton Plaza and at the Somerset Club. Debs of this past season will see that the pretty debs-to-come, who'll be graduating next month from Beaver and Milton and Concord and Garrison Forest and Miss Hall's, meet lots of new friends and good partners.

Jean Magoun is chairman of the floor committee, assisted by Ann Harwood, Sally Murray, Elissa English, Wendy Adams, Joan Baldwin, Elizabeth Hall, Whitney Drury, Isabel Ellis, Catherine Eppinger, and others. Campbell Steward heads the ushers, with John Cabot, Derwin Stevens, Alexander Daley, Alfred Donovan and Thomas Frost leading a corps that also includes James Smith, Howard Dickinson, Dudley Morrison, Frank P. Griswold 3d, John Eager, Stanley Rinehart, Henry Hammond, James Smith, John C. Vincent Jr., John Finley 3d, Charles deErney, Peter Partridge, David Hutchinson and others.

Chicago. She studied at Garrison Forest School in Maryland and at Les Aigles, Chantilly, France.

Mr. Dewart, grandson of the late Rev. and Mrs. William H. Dewart of Boston and the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dickerman of Boston, prepared at Phillips Andover and at Cambridge School for Brown University. He served with the Navy for two years.

PRE-SCHOOLERS WILL BENEFIT from the Junior League-sponsored Pops concert of May 26. The benefit is being planned by members of the League's Professional Group to raise funds for The Associated Day Care Services of Metropolitan Boston. Proceeds will go also towards equipment for the recreational program of the North Bennet St. Industrial School.

Miss Constance Walker heads the committee in charge of Junior League Night at Symphony Hall, working with Miss Maureen Duane, Miss Nancy Day and Miss Elizabeth Johnson.

PRESIDENTS and hospital chairmen of the Garden Clubs are meeting May 9 at Horticultural Hall to plan their Garden Clubs service for veterans hospitals. This wonderful program, which has helped many a hospitalized veteran through long, difficult hours, has as its cochairmen Mrs. C. Rodgers Burgin and Mrs. Sherman L. Whipple Jr.

FROM NEW YORK comes the announcement today of the engagement of postdebutante Aerielle Frost, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Frost, to Gordon Dewart, son of Mrs. Emery J. Trott of Boston and Torremolinos, Spain, and Gordon Dewart of Boston.

Miss Frost was presented to society in Newport and at the Governor Ball and Junior Assembly in New York in 1951. She is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Herbie C. Hoover of New York and the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Frost of

LONG-RANGE PLANNING credit goes to Leonard Baron of Weston, who is making it possible for Boston University's George Gershwin Committee and its Friends of Music to take over all seats in the Boston Opera House on Oct. 3 for the opening night performance of the Royal Danish Ballet, to benefit the B. U. scholarship fund for music and drama students. Working with both committees are Aaron Richmond and Danish Ambassador Henrik de Kauggman, who will be honored at a dinner before the opening.

LETTERS TO 15,000 friends of the North Shore Babies Hospital go out each year from the office where volunteers help on the hospital's appeals committee. Mrs. Leo J. Mawn reported this week as Auxiliary members met in their new office at Ropes House on Dearborn st. to plan Open House Day for Friday, May 11. Open house day will be the hospital's observance of National Hospital Week.

On May 17, Mrs. Fellowes Davis of 420 Locust st., Danvers, will be hostess at a membership tea at three. More than 150 newcomers have joined the Auxiliary this year. Helping hostesses will be Mrs. Leo A. Dimond, Auxiliary membership chairman, assisted by Mrs. John A. Little and Mrs. J. Harold Stewart.

Also helping are Mrs. Edward E. Burritt Jr., Mrs. Forest Mason Jr., Mrs. John Kossowan, Mrs. Aristotle Vontzalides, Mrs. George Kimball, Mrs. R. E. Mroczkowski, Mrs. Charles Pinkham Jr., Mrs. Samuel Hoar Jr., and Mrs. John K. Putnam.

North Shore Babies' Hospital Auxiliary officers and members of the Auxiliary board will be at the tea to meet Auxiliary members and their guests. Also invited will be Mrs. Frank B. Wallis, present chairman of the board of managers, and Mrs. Charles H. Goodhue Jr., former chairman.

Mrs. Richard C. Marcy is hospitality chairman, and Mrs. Edward L. Richardson will be in charge of the flowers.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 7 1956

Transcript
DEDHAM, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4,294

MAY 11 1956

DAR Ladies Attend Pops

Several Dedham ladies were in attendance Monday Night at Symphony Hall, Boston, when Boston Tea Party Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was honored at a "Night at the Pops."

Attending were Mrs. Herbert Perry, regent of Contentment Chapter, D.A.R.; Mrs. Betty Guilc, Miss Marion Acker, Mrs. H. Wendell Beal, Mrs. Rodney Larcom, Mrs. Mabelle Senning, Mrs. Edwin Downs, Mrs. Forrest Freeman, Mrs. Charles Hughes, Miss Gertrude MacPeek, Mrs. Estella MacPeek, Miss Marguerite Allen, Mrs. Elizabeth Buckler, Mrs. Joseph Sullivan and Mrs. Helena Bauer.

Thur J. Anderson, Jr.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 111,372

MAY 6 1956

BURGIN TO APPEAR AT MUSIC WORKSHOP

New York, May 5—This year's annual workshop (the fourth) of the American Symphony League has been set for Providence, R. I. in mid-JuUne, in conjunction with the 1956 national convention of the league. Among the musicians who will take part in the sessions, conducted on behalf of conductors from community symphonies all over the country who participate in the convention, are Richard Burgin, long-time concertmaster and associate conductor of the Boston Symphony, Mason Jones, first horn of the Philadelphia Symphony, Saul Goodman, celebrated percussion chief of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony, and numerous colleagues from all of these groups.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 5 1956

Next Week at the Pops—

Fiedler, Dickson to Conduct; Five Soloists to Be Heard

Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Pops concerts at Symphony Hall next week, with the exception of Friday evening when Harry Ellis Dickson will make his first appearance as assistant conductor. Giuseppe de Lellis will be piano soloist in two movements from Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 23 in A major, K. 488, under Mr. Dickson's direction.

Other piano soloists for the week include Luise Vosgerchian, who will play Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat on Sunday evening. Leo Litwin will be heard in the Gershwin Piano Concerto in F on Monday and Saturday evenings.

Ozan Marsh will play the Liszt "Totentanz" on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday evenings. Kenneth Gordon will be the soloist in the Paganini-Wilhelmj Violin Concerto in D major on Sunday evening, May 13.

Three special nights have been arranged, all of which are open to the public—Massachusetts Institute of Technology on Sunday evening, Bowdoin College on Thursday, and Wellesley College on Saturday.

The programs:

Monday Evening, May 7

The Stars and Stripes Forever, March ..... Sousa
Scene and Waltz of the Snow Flakes ..... Tchaikovsky
Meditation from "Thais" ..... Massenet
Solo Violin: Alfred Krips
España, Rhapsody ..... Chabrier
Deep Forest ..... Daniels
Piano Concerto in F ..... Gershwin
Soloist: Leo Litwin
Selections from "My Fair Lady" ..... Loewe-Hayman
Bugler's Holiday ..... Anderson
American Patrol ..... Meacham
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Tuesday Evening, May 8

Procession of the Sardar, from "Caucasian Sketches" .. Ippolitov-Ivanov
Roses from the South, Waltzes ..... Strauss
Fantasia on Greensleeves ..... Vaughan Williams
Overture to "Oberon" ..... Weber
Totentanz for Piano and Orchestra ..... Liszt
Soloist: Ozan Marsh
Suite from "Peer Gynt" ..... Grieg
Popspeurri ..... Arr by Mason
Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing ..... Fain-Mason
Genevieve Galop ..... Offenbach-Bodge
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Wednesday Evening, May 9

Pomp and Circumstance ..... Elgar
Overture to "The Merry Wives of Windsor" ..... Nicolai
Pavane ..... Ravel
Polovetzian Dances from "Prince Igor" ..... Borodin
Totentanz for Piano and Orchestra ..... Liszt
Soloist: Ozan Marsh
Suite from "Gaité Parisienne" ..... Offenbach
Popsrama ..... Arr. by Mason
On the Trail, from "Grand Canyon Suite" ..... Grofé
Up the Street, March ..... Morse
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Bowdoin College Night
Thursday Evening, May 10

Washington Post, March ..... Sousa
Overture to "Russian and Ludmilla" ..... Glinka
Finlandia, Tone Poem ..... Sibelius
Totentanz for Piano and Orchestra ..... Liszt
Soloist: Ozan Marsh
Bowdoin College Glee Club
Frederic Tillotson, Director
The Meddiebempsters
T. Douglas Stenberg, Director
Popspourri ..... Arr. by Mason
The Typewriter ..... Anderson
Bowdoin College Medley Arr. by Bodge
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Friday Evening, May 11

French Military March .. Saint-Saëns
The Roman Carnival, Overture ..... Berlioz
Clair de Lune ..... Debussy
Three Dances from "The Three-Cornered Hat" ..... Falla
Piano Concerto No. 23, in A Major, K. 488 ..... Mozart
Soloist: Giuseppe de Lellis
Where the Citrons Bloom, Waltzes ..... Strauss
Dance of the Hours, from "La Gioconda" ..... Ponchielli
Selections from "Carousel" .. Rodgers
Bugler's Holiday ..... Anderson
Sailors' Dance, from "The Red Poppy" ..... Glière
Harry Ellis Dickson conducting

At the Pops

Tonight
Regis Night

Washington Post, March ..... Sousa
Music of the Spheres, Waltzes ..... Josef Strauss
Prayer of Thanksgiving ..... Valerius
Overture to "Orpheus in the Underworld" ..... Offenbach
Organ Concerto No. 2, in B flat ..... Handel
Soloist: Ber' Zamkochian
Bolero ..... Ravel
Regis College Glee Club
Berj Zamkochian, Director
Selection from "Carousel" ... Rodgers
Jalousie, Gypsy Tango ..... Gade
Wedding Dance ..... Press
Regis Alma Mater
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Sunday Night
MIT Night

Wedding March, from "The Golden Cockerel" ..... Rimsky-Korsakov
Three Dances from "The Three-Cornered Hat" ..... Falla
Iron Works ..... Mossolov
Overture to "La Belle Hélène" ..... Offenbach
Piano Concerto No. 1, in E-flat .. Liszt
Soloist: Luise Vosgerchian
MIT Glee Club
Klaus Liepmann conducting
Popspourri ..... Arr. by Mason
Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing ..... Fain-Mason
Thunder and Lightning ..... Strauss
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 7 1956

Deadline May 9 For Pops Tickets

May 9 is the deadline for getting tickets for Middlebury, Goucher, Mills, and Wells Night at the Pops, Thursday, May 17. The four college alumnae groups have taken half the floor of Symphony Hall that evening for the benefit of scholarship funds.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

MAY 6 1956

The Boston Pops

Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra move into the second week of the 1956 season tonight at Symphony Hall. Concerts continue to be given every night. Harry Ellis Dickson, recently named assistant conductor of the Pops, will make his first appearance of the season conducting the program next Friday evening. His soloist will be the pianist Giuseppe de Lellis, playing two movements from Mozart's Concerto in A Major, K. 488. Other soloists this week—all pianists—will include Luise Vosgerchian, who will play the Liszt Concerto in E Flat tonight; Leo Litwin, who will play the Gershwin Concerto tomorrow night and Saturday; and Ozan Marsh, who will play the Liszt "Todtentanz" on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

As always, tickets for all Pops concerts are on sale at the Symphony Hall box-office one week in advance of each concert.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 8 1956

By a Staff Photographer

Ozan Marsh will be piano soloist at the Pops tonight, Wednesday, and Thursday.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 5 1956

Society: Empire Dance 'Must' for Debs; Bryn Mawr Fund to Benefit

TODAY'S THE DAY of the annual Daffodil Club Fair, which will be held on the grounds of the Chestnut Hill School this afternoon to benefit the Children's Hospital. For more than 40 years, the 9-to-15-year-old members of the club have been running this fair themselves to raise a substantial contribution to the hospital, and helping with this year's fair will be Alison Hall, Amy Fay and Dianna Marto.

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

The Empire Dinner Dance next Saturday is a "must" on every 1956-57 debutante's invitation list, not only because this has been for 30 years the traditional "first party" for the debs of each season, but also because it has so long helped the very good cause of the Bryn Mawr Scholarship Fund.

Ushers will come from Princeton, Yale, Williams and other leading colleges to help the Harvard ushers on Saturday, and dozens of sherry parties are being given for the girls and their partners, some of the largest at the Sheraton Plaza and at the Somerset Club. Debs of this past season will see that the pretty debs-to-come, who'll be graduating next month from Beaver and Milton and Concord and Garrison Forest and Miss Hall's, meet lots of new friends and good partners.

Jean Magoun is chairman of the floor committee, assisted by Ann Harwood, Sally Murray, Elissa English, Wendy Adams, Joan Baldwin, Elizabeth Hall, Whitney Drury, Isabel Ellis, Catherine Eppinger, and others. Campbell Steward heads the ushers, with John Cabot, Derwin Stevens, Alexander Daley, Alfred Donovan and Thomas Frost leading a corps that also includes James Smith, Howard Dickinson, Dudley Morrison, Frank P. Griswold 3d, John Eager, Stanley Rinehart, Henry Hammond, James Smith, John C. Vincent Jr., John Finley 3d, Charles deErney, Peter Partridge, David Hutchinson and others.

PRESIDENTS and hospital chairmen of the Garden Clubs are meeting May 9 at Horticultural Hall to plan their Garden Clubs service for veterans' hospitals. This wonderful program, which has helped many a hospitalized veteran through long, difficult hours, has as its cochairmen Mrs. C. Rodgers Burgin and Mrs. Sherman L. Whipple Jr.

FROM NEW YORK comes the announcement today of the engagement of postdebutante Aerielle Frost, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Frost, to Gordon Dewart, son of Mrs. Emery J. Trott of Boston and Torremolinos, Spain, and Gordon Dewart of Boston.

Miss Frost was presented to society in Newport and at the Grosvenor Ball and Junior Assemblies in New York in 1951. She is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hervie C. Harris of New York and the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Frost of Chicago. She studied at Garrison Forest School in Maryland and at Les Aigles, Chantilly, France.

Mr. Dewart, grandson of the late Rev. and Mrs. William H. Dewart of Boston and the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dickerman of Boston, prepared at Phillips Andover and at Cambridge School for Brown University. He served with the Navy for two years.

PRE-SCHOOLERS WILL BENEFIT from the Junior League-sponsored Pops concert of May 26. The benefit is being planned by members of the League's Professional Group to raise funds for The Associated Day Care Services of Metropolitan Boston. Proceeds will go also towards equipment for the recreational program of the North Bennet St. Industrial School.

Miss Constance Walker heads the committee in charge of Junior League Night at Symphony Hall, working with Miss Maureen Duane, Miss Nancy Day and Miss Elizabeth Johnson.

LONG-RANGE PLANNING credit goes to Leonard Baron of Weston, who is making it possible for Boston University's George Gershwin Committee and its Friends of Music to take over all seats in the Boston Opera House on Oct. 3 for the opening night performance of the Royal Danish Ballet, to benefit the B. U. scholarship fund for music and drama students. Working with both committees are Aaron Richmond and Danish Ambassador Henrik de Kauggman, who will be honored at a dinner before the opening.

LETTERS TO 15,000 friends of the North Shore Babies Hospital go out each year from the office where volunteers help on the hospital's appeals committee. Mrs. Leo J. Mawn reported this week as Auxiliary members met in their new office at Ropes House on Dearborn st. to plan Open House Day for Friday, May 11. Open house day will be the hospital's observance of National Hospital Week.

On May 17, Mrs. Fellowes Davis of 420 Locust st., Danvers, will be hostess at a membership tea at three. More than 150 newcomers have joined the Auxiliary this year. Helping hostesses will be Mrs. Leo A. Dimond, Auxiliary membership chairman, assisted by Mrs. John A. Little and Mrs. J. Harold Stewart.

Also helping are Mrs. Edward E. Burritt Jr., Mrs. Forest Mason Jr., Mrs. John Kossowan, Mrs. Aristotle Vontzalides, Mrs. [illegible] Kimball, Mrs. R. E.

27c
ST PANS
[illegible] Wednesday, May 9th and 10th at 9:00 a.m.
Bottom prices. This great sale, that this store [illegible] mark every single item

Because the Daughters of the American Revolution are pledged to support American music, Arthur Fiedler will emphasize American and patriotic music at the Pops Concert this evening. He has arranged to play "Deep Forest" by Mabel Daniels, who will be in the audience at a table with Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Cronkhite and Mrs. John Hollett, who, with Mrs. Ross Currier is chairman.

At Mrs. Currier's table will be Capt. and Mrs. George P. Lord, and Capt. and Mrs. Edmund Barry. With Mrs. Willard F. Richards, state vice-regent will be Mr. Richards, Mrs. William Stanley Parker, and Headmaster and Mrs. John K. Whittemore of Hillside School, which benefits from this concert. Other subscribers include Mrs. Winthrop Adams, Miss Constance Hall, Mrs. Hamilton H. Sweet, Mrs. Samuel MacLeod, Mrs. Henry A. Webster, Jr., Mrs. Robert Bostwich and Mrs. Arthur J. Anderson, Jr.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 111,372

MAY 6 1956

BURGIN TO APPEAR AT MUSIC WORKSHOP

New York, May 5—This year's annual workshop (the fourth) of the American Symphony League has been set for Providence, R. I. in mid-JuUne, in conjunction with the 1956 national convention of the league. Among the musicians who will take part in the sessions, conducted on behalf of conductors from community symphonies all over the country who participate in the convention, are Richard Burgin, long-time concertmaster and associate conductor of the Boston Symphony, Jason Jones, first horn of the Philadelphia Symphony, Saul Goodman, celebrated percussion chief of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony, and numerous colleagues from all of these groups.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 5 1956

Next Week at the Pops—

Fiedler, Dickson to Conduct; Five Soloists to Be Heard

Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Pops concerts at Symphony Hall next week, with the exception of Friday evening when Harry Ellis Dickson will make his first appearance as assistant conductor. Giuseppe de Lellis will be piano soloist in two movements from Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 23 in A major, K. 488, under Mr. Dickson's direction.

Other piano soloists for the week include Luise Vosgerchian, who will play Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat on Sunday evening. Leo Litwin will be heard in the Gershwin Piano [illegible]erto in F on Monday and [illegible]rday evenings.

[illegible]an Marsh will play the [illegible]t "Totentanz" on Tuesday, [illegible]nesday, and Thursday eve[illegible]gs. Kenneth Gordon will be [illegible] soloist in the Paganini-Wi[illegible]mj Violin Concerto in D [illegible]or on Sunday evening, May [illegible]

Three special nights have [illegible]en arranged, all of which are [illegible]en to the public—Massachu[illegible]tts Institute of Technology on [illegible]nday evening, Bowdoin Col[illegible]ge on Thursday, and Wellesley [illegible]ollege on Saturday.

The programs:

Monday Evening, May 7

The Stars and Stripes Forever, March ..... Sousa
Scene and Waltz of the Snow Flakes ..... Tchaikovsky
Meditation from "Thais" ..... Massenet
Solo Violin: Alfred Krips
España, Rhapsody ..... Chabrier
Deep Forest ..... Daniels
Piano Concerto in F ..... Gershwin
Soloist: Leo Litwin
Selections from "My Fair Lady" ..... Loewe-Hayman
Bugler's Holiday ..... Anderson
American Patrol ..... Meacham
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Tuesday Evening, May 8

Procession of the Sardar, from "Caucasian Sketches" ..... Ippolitov-Ivanov
Roses from the South, Waltzes ..... Strauss
Fantasia on Greensleeves ..... Vaughan Williams
Overture to "Oberon" ..... Weber
Totentanz for Piano and Orchestra ..... Liszt
Soloist: Ozan Marsh
Suite from "Peer Gynt" ..... Grieg
Popapourri ..... Arr by Mason
Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing ..... Fain-Mason
Genevieve Galop ..... Offenbach-Bodge
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Wednesday Evening, May 9

Pomp and Circumstance ..... Elgar
Overture to "The Merry Wives of Windsor" ..... Nicolai
Pavane ..... Ravel
Polovetsian Dances from "Prince Igor" ..... Borodin
Totentanz for Piano and Orchestra ..... Liszt
Soloist: Ozan Marsh
Suite from "Gaîté Parisienne" ..... Offenbach
Popapourri ..... Arr. by Mason
On the Trail, from "Grand Canyon Suite" ..... Grofé
Up the Street, March ..... Morse
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Bowdoin College Night
Thursday Evening, May 10

Washington Post, March ..... Sousa
Overture to "Russian and Ludmilla" ..... Glinka
Finlandia, Tone Poem ..... Sibelius
Totentanz for Piano and Orchestra ..... Liszt
Soloist: Ozan Marsh
Bowdoin College Glee Club
Frederic Tillotson, Director
The Meddiebempsters
T. Douglas Stenberg, Director
Popapourri ..... Arr. by Mason
The Typewriter ..... Anderson
Bowdoin College Medley Arr. by Bodge
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Friday Evening, May 11

French Military March ..... Saint-Saëns
The Roman Carnival, Overture ..... Berlioz
Clair de Lune ..... Debussy
Three Dances from "The Three-Cornered Hat" ..... Falla
Piano Concerto No. 23, in A Major, K. 488 ..... Mozart
Soloist: Giuseppe de Lellis
Where the Citrons Bloom, Waltzes ..... Strauss
Dance of the Hours, from "La Gioconda" ..... Ponchielli
Selections from "Carousel" ..... Rodgers
Bugler's Holiday ..... Anderson
Sailors' Dance, from "The Red Poppy" ..... Glière
Harry Ellis Dickson conducting

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

MAY 6 1956

The Boston Pops

Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra move into the second week of the 1956 season tonight at Symphony Hall. Concerts continue to be given every night. Harry Ellis Dickson, recently named assistant conductor of the Pops, will make his first appearance of the season conducting the program next Friday evening. His soloist will be the pianist Giuseppe de Lellis, playing two movements from Mozart's Concerto in A Major, K. 488. Other soloists this week—all pianists—will include Luise Vosgerchian, who will play the Liszt Concerto in E Flat tonight; Leo Litwin, who will play the Gershwin Concerto tomorrow night and Saturday; and Ozan Marsh, who will play the Liszt "Todtentanz" on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

As always, tickets for all Pops concerts are on sale at the Symphony Hall box-office one week in advance of each concert.

At the Pops

Tonight
Regis Night

Washington Post, March ..... Sousa
Music of the Spheres, Waltzes ..... Josef Strauss
Prayer of Thanksgiving ..... Valerius
Overture to "Orpheus in the Underworld" ..... Offenbach
Organ Concerto No. 2, in B flat ..... Handel
Soloist: Ber' Zamkochian
Bolero ..... Ravel
Regis College Glee Club
Berj Zamkochian, Director
Selections from "Carousel" ..... Rodgers
Jalousie, Gypsy Tango ..... Gade
Wedding Dance ..... Press
Regis Alma Mater
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Sunday Night
MIT Night

Wedding March, from "The Golden Cockerel" ..... Rimsky-Korsakov
Three Dances from "The Three-Cornered Hat" ..... Falla
Iron Works ..... Mossolov
Overture to "La Belle Hélène" ..... Offenbach
Piano Concerto No. 1, in E-flat ..... Liszt
Soloist: Luise Vosgerchian
MIT Glee Club
Klaus Liepmann conducting
Popapourri ..... Arr. by Mason
Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing ..... Fain-Mason
Thunder and Lightning ..... Strauss
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 7 1956

Deadline May 9 For Pops Tickets

May 9 is the deadline for getting tickets for Middlebury, Goucher, Mills, and Wells Night at the Pops, Thursday, May 17. The four college alumnae groups have taken half the floor of Symphony Hall that evening for the benefit of scholarship funds.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 8 1956

By a Staff Photographer

Ozan Marsh will be piano soloist at the Pops tonight, Wednesday, and Thursday.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,915

MAY 5 1956

Sights and Sidelights

By THE SIGHTSEER

A fine picture of the work afloat of the nation's largest "ship," the Seamen's Institute, is given in the 121st annual report of the enterprise directed by the Rev. Raymond S. Hall, D. D., who was the first paratroop chaplain in the history of the U. S. Army and is a native of Lynn.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Hall of 16 Locust Street, Mr. Hall reports that the Seamen's Church Institute is the "world's largest shore home for active merchant seamen of all races and all creeds."

The annual report points out that for most American merchant seamen and thousands from abroad, New York City is "America."

"Eight million people," it points out, "enjoy the benefits of the busiest and the best natural harbor in the world. This fabulous 'Bagdad on the subway' was not created alone by the building, buying and leasing of the metropolitan honeycomb; New York rose on the sweet songs and bitter sweat of the merchant seamen who have actually gone to Bagdad and to all other exotic and prosaic cities of the known world."

For more than 120 years, the Seamen's Church Institute has held out the succoring hand of relief to millions of those from the world's shipping into New York.

It housed those from the clipper ships of New England maritime memory, the first steam-propelled vessels of the Cunard Line with their great side wheelers down to the oil and Diesel driven monarchs of today's mammoths of the ocean.

Last year, says Dr. Hall's annual report, 250,000 lodgings were booked for the night at 25 South Street, where the latchstring is out every night of the year.

More than 110,000 seamen enjoyed the free equipment of the beautifully decorated Game Room. Free movies are shown three night weekly, a tremendous service to seamen from behind the iron curtain whose pay is low.

Birthday parties, barbershop quartets, card games, chess and coffee all contribute to the fun in the Janet Roper Club. More than 13,000 books were placed aboard ships. Sailors also received 130,000 magazines.

The Lynn-born director of this great service institute and Mrs. Hall live with their three sons, Raymond S. Hall, Jr., Benjamin Hall and Thomas Hall at Northport, N. Y., on Long Island.

* * *

HERE AND THERE . . . Named as chairman of the Missionary and Stewardship Education program in the Eastern area of Massachusetts Thursday at the State convention of the American Baptist Foreign Missionary Society at a Brockton meeting was Mrs. Ralph H. Lightbody of Lynn, wife of the pastor of Washington Street Baptist Church. . . . "How the Cost of Office Equipment Affects Accounting Reports," was the topic of John B. Cleaves of the General Electric Company in Lynn at the recent Spring Forum of the North Shore Chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants at the Thomson Club in Nahant. . . . Mrs. Lydon Carew and son, Warren, former residents of Lynn, and now operators of the North Rochester, N. H., general store, have returned to their business after a visit in Swampscott. . . . Miss Sally Lewis and her brother, Philip, both of Swampscott, have been at their Summer home at Barnstead in New Hampshire for the past week enjoying the fine skiing. . . . Two local men are aiding the comittee in charge of the annual Dartmouth Night at the Boston Symphony Pops on Wednesday, May 16. They include Daniel R. Ruggles, Jr. of Swampscott, and Richard D. Hill of Marblehead. . . . Two local girls have been chosen by the University of Massachusetts Precisionettes drill team. They include Miss Jeanne M. Watman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Watman of 5 Belle Avenue, Lynn; and Miss Sandra L. Strong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Strong of 12 Barnstable Street, Swampscott. Miss Watman is a sophomore at the University and Miss Strong, a freshman, is also a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority.

Sunday Advertiser
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 547,691

MAY 6 1956

Aspiring Youth With Master

MARGARET BACHMAN is shown looking over score with Arthur Fiedler before Dana Hall Night at the Pops. She is a junior at Dana Hall, Wellesley and was the feature soloist Friday night, playing the Mozart Piano Concerto in A Major, K414. The evening was sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association for the benefit of the Building Fund.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

MAY 6 1956

Serving on the committee for the Junior League's Night at Symphony Pops May 26 are (left to right) Miss Barbara Marshall, Miss Connie Walker and Miss Maureen Duane.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

MAY 6 1956

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

MAY 6 1956

EIRE SOCIETY BANQUET—Speakers at the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society of Boston last night included, left to right, Irish Ambassador John J. Hearne, Dr. Regina Madden, Joseph Gannon, toastmaster, and the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon.

Irish Ambassador Sees Soul Of Europe Saved by U. S. Aid

American aid and co-operation has saved the "soul of Europe" from communism, the Irish ambassador to the United States said last night.

John J. Hearns said in an address to nearly 800 members of the Eire Society of Boston that the partnership of the western democracies and the United States had given Europe an "opportunity to revitalize the sources from which its genius sprang."

Hearne added that the ties that bound Ireland to the United States, "though light as air, are as strong as links of iron."

Ambassadar Hearne was principal speaker at the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society, in the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

Another highlight of the evening was the presentation of the society's Gold Medal to the Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon of New York, former president of Fordham University.

CITED FOR ELOQUENCE

He was cited as a priest and educator who had "promoted love of learning and love of God; who has stirred men's minds and moved their hearts with the magic of his eloquence."

The society also presented a $1,000 gift to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, in appreciation of its concerts given in Ireland last year.

Other banquet speakers were Atty. Edward B. Hanify of Boston, who praised immigrant Irish women for giving the United States outstanding sons, and Fr. Gannon, who voiced hope that Russia might some day return to God and help to bring a lasting peace to the world.

HONORED GUESTS

Head table guests were: Humphrey J. Mahoney, Charles T. Burke, Joseph V. Cronin, Miss Francis D. McCarthy, Dr. George Potter; William G. Schofield.

Also, Miss Elizabeth M. McMahon, the Rev. Thomas J. Carroll, Michael T. Kelliher, Miss Helen Landreth, Joseph Gannon, Dr. Regina Midden.

Also Eileen A. Whelan, Joseph Shields, William B. Carolan, Miss M. Frances Fox, I. Jerome O'Connor, Hugh A. Moriarty, Thomas H. Buckley, and Daniel J. O'Brien.

our procedure. It is also the declared abjective of full listeners with a recounting recovery of health which is Irish history, spiced with his

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 8 1956

Dartmouth Night Tomorrow at Pops

The annual Dartmouth Night the Pops Concert in Symphony will be held tomorrow night at Hall.

Proceeds of the concert will be contributed to the Greater Boston Scholarship fund, which is sponsored by the Dartmouth Alumni Association.

John Williamson of Wellesley is general chairman of the Pops committee. He is assisted by Roger B. Salinger of Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,915

MAY 5 1956

Sights and Sidelights

By THE SIGHTSEER

A fine picture of the work afloat of the nation's largest "ship," the Seamen's Institute, is given in the 121st annual report of the enterprise directed by the Rev. Raymond S. Hall, D. D., who was the first paratroop chaplain in the history of the U. S. Army and is a native of Lynn.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Hall of 16 Locust Street, Mr. Hall reports that the Seamen's Church Institute is the "world's largest shore home for active merchant seamen of all races and all creeds."

The annual report points out that for most American merchant seamen and thousands from abroad, New York City is "America."

"Eight million people," it points out, "enjoy the benefits of the busiest and the best natural harbor in the world. This fabulous 'Bagdad on the subway' was not created alone by the building, buying and leasing of the metropolitan honeycomb; New York rose on the sweet songs and bitter sweat of the merchant seamen who have actually gone to Bagdad and to all other exotic and prosaic cities of the known world."

For more than 120 years, the Seamen's Church Institute has held out the succoring hand of relief to millions of those from the world's shipping into New York.

It housed those from the clipper ships of New England maritime memory, the first steam-propelled vessels of the Cunard Line with their great side wheelers down to the oil and Diesel driven monarchs of today's mammoths of the ocean.

Last year, says Dr. Hall's annual report, 250,000 lodgings were booked for the night at 25 South Street, where the latchstring is out every night of the year.

More than 110,000 seamen enjoyed the free equipment of the beautifully decorated Game Room. Free movies are shown three night weekly, a tremendous service to seamen from behind the iron curtain whose pay is low.

Birthday parties, barbershop quartets, card games, chess and coffee all contribute to the fun in the Janet Roper Club. More than 13,000 books were placed aboard ships. Sailors also received 130,000 magazines.

The Lynn-born director of this great service institute and Mrs. Hall live with their three sons, Raymond S. Hall, Jr., Benjamin Hall and Thomas Hall at Northport, N. Y., on Long Island.

* * *

HERE AND THERE . . . Named as chairman of the Missionary and Stewardship Education program in the Eastern area of Massachusetts Thursday at the State convention of the American Baptist Foreign Missionary Society at a Brockton meeting was Mrs. Ralph H. Lightbody of Lynn, wife of the pastor of Washington Street Baptist Church. . . . "How the Cost of Office Equipment Affects Accounting Reports," was the topic of John B. Cleaves of the General Electric Company in Lynn at the recent Spring Forum of the North Shore Chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants at the Thomson Club in Nahant. . . . Mrs. Lydon Carew and son, Warren, former residents of Lynn, and now operators of the North Rochester, N. H., general store, have returned to their business after a visit in Swampscott. . . . Miss Sally Lewis and her brother, Philip, both of Swampscott, have been at their Summer home at Barnstead in New Hampshire for the past week enjoying the fine skiing. . . . Two local men are aiding the comittee in charge of the annual Dartmouth Night at the Boston Symphony Pops on Wednesday, May 16. They include Daniel R. Ruggles, Jr. of Swampscott, and Richard D. Hill of Marblehead. . . . Two local girls have been chosen by the University of Massachusetts Precisionettes drill team. They include Miss Jeanne M. Watman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Watman of 5 Belle Avenue, Lynn; and Miss Sandra L. Strong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Strong of 12 Barnstable Street, Swampscott. Miss Watman is a sophomore at the University and Miss Strong, a freshman, is also a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority.

Sunday Advertiser
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 547,691

MAY 6 1956

Henri Bendel
WORTH AVE.
FLORIDA
HENRI BENDEL needs no introduction to women on ov means and finest only the worlds found in ral can be plated us

JESUIT CITED—The Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., is presented the Eire Society of Boston's Gold Medal by Dr. Regina Madden, award chairman. Observing are Irish Ambassador John J. Hearne, left, and Joseph Gannon, society president

U. S. Saved Europe's Soul, Envoy Tells Eire Society

American faith, co-operation, aid, idealism, and confidence, has enabled Europe to save its soul and survive communism, Irish Ambassador John J. Hearne declared last night at the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society at the Sheraton Plaza.

The Irish diplomat said the Marshall plan not only built up Europe economically but "the result was not a mere re-stocking and re-arming of a beleagured outpost, it undoubtedly meant that the soul of Europe was saved."

Explaining Irish foreign policy, he said, "In that constant negotiation for the solution of its problems of which a country's foreign policy consists, we must, to be successful, reject anything that savours of the doctrinaire. Our principals must be as certain and endurable as the stars.

"But we must see that we havev the right principles, that there is no improvement constant re-examination can make in their expression. And to these true principles we must always be obedient and they must always regulate our conduct."

"While we must be true to our principles," Hearne said, "we must not be doctrinaire in our procedure. It is after all the declared abjective of full recovery of health which is served by convalescent homes for the sick. No sensible doctor will allow his patient express his demand for full health by getting up straight away.

"His right to health, which is undoubted, must not be turned into a right to die. Just as the patient must be a patient and be prepared slowly to recover. so must we be satisfied somewhat to be in the condition of a convalescent trying every day to come back a bit further into health."

Father Gannon Given Medal

The Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., former president of Fordham University, was presented the Eire Society gold medal, honoring his "outstanding contribution as a true educator of men and a priest of God."

The citation read: "The Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., who in his life as an educator of men and a priest of God has voiced the essential ideals of the Irsh race, promoting love of learning and love of God; who has stirred men's minds and moved their hearts as he touched them with the magic of his eloquence; who has borne proudly his racial heritage, through his personal achievements enhancing its glory."

In accepting the award, the Jesuit educator thrilled his listeners with a recounting of Irish history, spiced with his

Aspiring Youth With Master

MARGARET BACHMAN is shown looking over score with Arthur Fiedler before Dana Hall Night at the Pops. She is a junior at Dana Hall, Wellesley and was the feature soloist Friday night, playing the Mozart Piano Concerto in A Major, K414. The evening was sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association for the benefit of the Building Fund.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

MAY 6 1956

Serving on the committee for the Junior League's Night at Symphony Pops May 26 are (left to right) Miss Barbara Marshall, Miss Connie Walker and Miss Maureen Duane.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 8 1956

Dartmouth Night Tomorrow at Pops

The annual Dartmouth Night the Pops Concert in Symphony will be held tomorrow night at Hall.

Proceeds of the concert will be contributed to the Greater Boston Scholarship fund, which is sponsored by the Dartmouth Alumni Association.

John Williamson of Wellesley is general chairman of the Pops committee. He is assisted by Roger B. Salinger of Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,915

MAY 5 1956

Sights and Sidelights

By THE SIGHTSEER

A fine picture of the work afloat of the nation's largest "ship," the Seamen's Institute, is given in the 121st annual report of the enterprise directed by the Rev. Raymond S. Hall, D. D., who was the first paratroop chaplain in the history of the U. S. Army and is a native of Lynn.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Hall of 16 Locust Street, Mr. Hall reports that the Seamen's Church Institute is the "world's largest shore home for active merchant seamen of all races and all creeds."

The annual report points out that for most American merchant seamen and thousands from abroad, New York City is "America."

"Eight million people," it points out, "enjoy the benefits of the busiest and the best natural harbor in the world. This fabulous 'Bagdad on the subway' was not created alone by the building, buying and leasing of the metropolitan honeycomb; New York rose on the sweet songs and bitter sweat of the merchant seamen who have actually gone to Bagdad and to all other exotic and prosaic cities of the known world."

For more than 120 years, the Seamen's Church Institute has held out the succoring hand of relief to millions of those from the world's shipping into New York.

It housed those from the clipper ships of New England maritime memory, the first steam-propelled vessels of the Cunard Line with their great side wheelers down to the oil and Diesel driven monarchs of today's mammoths of the ocean.

Last year, says Dr. Hall's annual report, 230,000 lodgings were booked for the night at 25 South Street, where the latchstring is out every night of the year.

More than 110,000 seamen enjoyed the free equipment of the beautifully decorated Game Room. Free movies are shown three night weekly, a tremendous service to seamen from behind the iron curtain whose pay is low.

Birthday parties, barbershop quartets, card games, chess and coffee all contribute to the fun in the Janet Roper Club. More than 13,000 books were placed aboard ships. Sailors also received 130,000 magazines.

The Lynn-born director of this great service institute and Mrs. Hall live with their three sons, Raymond S. Hall, Jr., Benjamin Hall and Thomas Hall at Northport, N. Y., on Long Island.

* * *

HERE AND THERE . . . Named as chairman of the Missionary and Stewardship Education program in the Eastern area of Massachusetts Thursday at the State convention of the American Baptist Foreign Missionary Society at a Brockton meeting was Mrs. Ralph H. Lightbody of Lynn, wife of the pastor of Washington Street Baptist Church. . . . "How the Cost of Office Equipment Affects Accounting Reports," was the topic of John B. Cleaves of the General Electric Company in Lynn at the recent Spring Forum of the North Shore Chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants at the Thomson Club in Nahant. . . . Mrs. Lydon Carew and son, Warren, former residents of Lynn, and now operators of the North Rochester, N. H., general store, have returned to their business after a visit in Swampscott. . . . Miss Sally Lewis and her brother, Philip, both of Swampscott, have been at their Summer home at Barnstead in New Hampshire for the past week enjoying the fine skiing. . . . Two local men are aiding the comittee in charge of the annual Dartmouth Night at the Boston Symphony Pops on Wednesday, May 16. They include Dana R. Ruggles, Jr. of Swampscott, and Richard D. Hill of Marblehead. . . . Two local girls have been chosen by the University of Massachusetts Precisionettes drill team. They include Miss Jeanne M. Watman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Watman of 5 Belle Avenue, Lynn; and Miss Sandra L. Strong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Strong of 12 Barnstable Street, Swampscott. Miss Watman is a sophomore at the University and Miss Strong, a freshman, is also a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority.

Sunday Advertiser
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 547,691

MAY 6 1956

FIRST UNITUS
Worth A
DELI

Henri Bendel
WORTH AVE.
FLORIDA
HENRI BENDEL needs no introduction to women-only the world's finest can be found in Bendel's platinum plated

JESUIT CITED—The Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., is presented the Eire Society of Boston's Gold Medal by Dr. Rene Madden, award chairman. Observing are John J. Hearne, left, and Joseph Garr...

U. S. Saved Envoy T...

American ... aid, idealism, ... has enabled Europe ... soul and survive ... Irish Ambassador J... Hearne declared last night ... the 19th annual dinner of the Eire Society at the Sherat... Plaza.

The Irish diplomat said the Marshall plan not only built up Europe economically but "the result was not a mere re-stocking and re-arming of a beleagured outpost, it undoubtedly meant that the soul of Europe was saved."

Explaining Irish foreign policy, he said, "In that constant negotiation for the solution of its problems of which a country's foreign policy consists, we must, to be successful, reject anything that savours of the doctrinaire. Our principals must be as certain and endurable as the stars.

"But we must see that we havev the right principles, that there is no improvement constant re-examination can make in their expression. And to these true principles we must always be obedient and they must always regulate our conduct."

"While we must be true to our principles," Hearne said, "we must not be doctrinaire in our procedure. It is after all the declared abjective of full recovery of health which is ... be prepar... so must we ... what to be ... a convalescent ... to come back a bit ... health."

Father Gannon Given Medal

The Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., former president of Fordham University, was presented the Eire Society gold medal, honoring his "outstanding contribution as a true educator of men and a priest of God."

The citation read: "The Very Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., who in his life as an educator of men and a priest of God has voiced the essential ideals of the Irsh race, promoting love of learning and love of God; who has stirred men's minds and moved their hearts as he touched them with the magic of his eloquence; who has borne proudly his racial heritage, through his personal achievements enhancing its glory."

In accepting the award, the Jesuit educator thrilled his listeners with a recounting of Irish history, spiced with his

...ional definition of "Blarney" ...poetic re-arrangement of the ...

...other highlight of the ban... was the acceptance of a ... of $1000 by Michael T. ...ses of a European tour of ... Boston Symphony Orches... which will begin its tour ... two concerts in Ireland.

Aspiring Youth With Master...

MARGARET BACHMAN is shown looking over score with Arthur Fiedler before Dana Hall Night at the Pops. She is a junior at Dana Hall, Wellesley and was the feature soloist Friday night, playing the Mozart Piano Concerto in A Major, K414. The evening was sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association for the benefit of the Building Fund.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

MAY 6 1956

Serving on the committee for the Junior League's Night at Symphony Pops May 26 are (left to right) Miss Barbara Marshall, Miss Connie Walker and Miss Maureen Duane.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 8 1956

Dartmouth Night Tomorrow at Pops

The annual Dartmouth Night ... will be held tomorrow night at the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall.

Proceeds of the concert will be contributed to the Greater Boston Scholarship fund, which is sponsored by the Dartmouth Alumni Association.

John Williamson of Wellesley is general chairman of the Pops committee. He is assisted by Roger B. Salinger of Boston.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

MAY 6 1956

An Orchestra's 75th Anniversary

Two Major Works In Symphony Season

By TUCKER KEISER

The 75th anniversary season of the Boston Symphony Orchestra did not quite fulfill the expectations we had for it. Only six of the 15 newly commissioned works were premiered; two proved to be outright duds, one a revision of a piece written for the orchestra's 50th anniversary, one very short, and only two good pieces of music which will be heard again. Both Piston's Sixth Symphony and Martinu's Sixth Symphony (heard originally a year ago) are climactic creative achievements in the careers of the composers.

Of the seven guest conductors, only one, Arthur Fiedler, was making his debut in this series. The others were old friends of Symphony audiences, including Burgin, Bernstein, Ansermet, Monteux, Woodworth, and Villa Lobos. The latter led the orchestra only in the premiere of the composer's Symphony No. 11. Mr. Bernstein's one appearance brought back some of the glamour and excitement—and intermission discussion of the music—from a former regime.

Were Memorable

Of the 14 instrumental soloists, one remembers as outstanding David Abel's promising debut in the Brahms' Violin Concerto under Monteux, Eugene Istomin's sterling performance of the Beethoven Fourth Piano Concerto, and the warm reading Samuel Mayes and Francescatti gave the Brahms Double Concerto.

The programming was not partcularly imaginative, Charles Munch, the conductor, sticking adhesively to standard fare. Understandably, Mozart headed the list with 13 works (some pretty minor Mozart it's true), Beethoven received eight hearings, and Brahms six. Mr. Fiedler's one concert was a special case in that he tried to give a substantial afternoon within a "Pops" framework. Mr. Berstein in a single week end, tried desperately to wrench the series into the contemporary.

In several cases the programming was thoughtless, as in the final week end when Mabel Daniel's "A Psalm of Praise," an unpretentious choral piece for festive occasions, was used as a curtain raiser for the Beethoven Ninth. The initial choral sound spoiled somewhat the impact of Beethoven's final movement; at the same time the Beethoven, so powerful and moving, killed the effect of Miss Daniel's piece.

Another "thoughtless" bit of programming was the coupling of Debussy's "Le Martyre de Saint Sebastien," with Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto. The Debussy is a bore, a contrived cliche-ridden text set listlessly in the same manner. The 75 minutes running time seems interminable.

The playing this season has been what we have come to expect. The orchestra, made up of some of the finest symphonic players in the world, can rise to almost every occasion. However, raggedness and roughness often creep into the performances because Mr. Munch dislikes rehearsals and often conducts by "ear," so to speak.

The conductor seems to sense audience reactions keenly. If he does not get the response he wants at a performance he may change tempo or dynamic level at the next. Pieces may be performed at one tempo on Friday afternoon and an entirely different one at the Saturday concert. A case in point was the Tchaikovsky "Romeo and Juliet." The Friday playing time was 24 minutes, on Saturday it took only 19.

In all fairness, it should be stated that Mr. Munch has one of the toughest conducting schedules in the symphonic world, and he should feel no reluctance in asking the guest conductors to give him more help by taking over more concerts during their visits.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 8 1956

Gardener's Delight

Spring Plant Sale Set In Weston

By MAGGIE WELLS, Society Editor

Our first-hand knowledge of gardens could handily be transcribed on a daisy petal—but we know what's going on in the garden world!

We know, for instance, that out Weston way, people are casting anxious eyes at awakening flower beds. This we gather from news that the Spring Plant Sale on the lawn of the First Parish Church in Weston will take place May 16.

GARDENERS EXCHANGE THINNINGS AT SALE

Cheery geraniums, annuals, rock garden plants and shrubs will also be included in the affair. Sponsored by the Benevolent Alliance of the First Parish, the sale will go on from 11 a.m. until 4 p.m.

DANINSH KING ON LOCAL LIST

His Majesty, King Frederick IX of Denmark heads the patron list for the benefit opening of the Royal Danish Ballet here, October 3. Members of the George Gershwin Music of Boston University are sponsoring the first-night performance of the famous ballet company.

Proceeds of the evening will benefit the scholarship fund of the School of Fine and Applied Arts.

Mrs. J. Greene Carter is chairman of the affair. Mmes. Alexander Steinert and Albert C. Titcomb are co-chairmen of a dinner to be given before the performance, for Danish Ambassador, Henrik de Kauffmann, Benjamin Kaplan, Henry Newbegin, and Haven Parker.

NEW HAMPSHIRE NIGHT ON MAY 17

The following evening, Governor and Mrs. Lane Dwinell of New Hampshire will be guests of honor at the fourth annual University of New Hampshire Night at Pops. The university's concert choir will be featured in the program.

University President Eldon Lee Johnson and Mrs. Johnson will be honored at a reception at the Harvard Club before the concert. Members of the committee include Bernerd Delman, Ann Silver and Paul I. Mann.

The St. Elizabeth Hospital Nurses' Alumnae Association will sponsor the Pops Concert Wednesday evening, May 30. Joanne O'Brien of Natick is chairman of the affair.

Telephone Night

The annual Telephone Night at Pops will be Thursday, May 24. It is sponsored by the Telephone Pioneers and reservations may be made with Arthur F. Grenier at 50 Oliver St.

Thirty disabled veterans will be guests of the group. Committee and the Friends of

Courant (m)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Republican
Circ. 94,124

MAY 6 1956

A School of War In Time of Peace

This has been a year in which a number of diverse and venerable institutions have celebrated their 75th birthday. The University of Connecticut was established in 1881; so was the Boston Symphony Orchestra; and so was one of the United States Army's senior schools, the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. It must have been quite a year, 1881.

Perhaps none of these septuagenarian institutions has contributed as much to the country as a whole as the Army school. It is one of some 58 separate Army-operated or sponsored schools, which offer about 300 courses for officers and an equal number for enlisted men. But it is the only one that teaches the use of the combined arms and services in combat. It is there that officers selected to take high command and staff positions learn "how the Army fights" with major units. General Eisenhower is a graduate, class of 1926. In World War II some 18,000 officers went through the course. In World War I General Pershing felt that, without the staff training afforded by the school, the tremendous problems of combat, supply, and transportation could not have been solved.

Yet, strangely enough, Leavenworth has always been a stepchild of the nation's educational system. Only this year are plans taking shape for an academic building designed to meet the instructional needs. Most of the present school buildings are converted gymnasiums or riding halls. In peacetime, when the school is serving its most useful purpose of training officers for combat, it can't command the interest of Congress. Its anniversary today should serve to remind the nation at large that a dedicated institution, constantly reviewing and improving doctrine and programs, is constantly at work against the time of need.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 8 1956

Times (e)
GLOUCESTER, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 8,809

MAY 9 1956

Pops Night Aids Scholarships

Vassar Alumnae of the Gloucester area are busy planning for the Vassar-Dartmouth Night at the Pops to be held on Wednesday evening, May 16, at Symphony Hall, for the benefit of the scholarship funds of the two colleges.

The Vassar Club Pops Committee Chairman is Mrs. Thomas Morse of Brookline and she is helped by Mrs. Andrew Rankin of Dedham for patronesses, Mrs. Don Ross of Newton Highlands for mailing, Mrs. Robert Haydock of Newton Center for flowers, and Mrs. J. Charles Drooker of Brookline and Mrs. H. Burton Powers of Wellesley for publicity.

Patronesses in the Gloucester area include Mrs. George Bates, Mrs. Laurence F. Brooks, and Mrs. William A. Bolger.

Tickets may be obtained from the Vassar Club by calling Miss Virginia Bridge.

SINGING AT THE POPS May 12 will be the Wellesley College Tupelos. "Wellesley Night" will be conducted under the sponsorship of the Boston Wellesley College Club. Front row (left to right) Marcia Shick, Pat Spaulding, Chris Brautigan, Sue Routsong, business manager; Mary Ann Hayward, Suzanne Hewitt. Second row: Betsy Campbell, Sue Snodgrass, Julie Cuyler, leader; Georgia Sue Herberger; Barbara Pereira. Back row: Claire Wilkinson; Leslie Meyer, Marguerite Beer, Ann Mueller, Jane Blount, Judy Lees, Scotty Hartmann, Ela Thorington.

Variety
NEW YORK, N. Y.
Weekly Amusements

MAY 9 1956

71st BOSTON POPS

Inaugurate Post of Asst. Conductor with Dickson

Boston, May 8.

The 71st season of the Boston Pops will be inaugurated tonight, Tuesday (1), in Symphony Hall. It's Arthur Fiedler's 27th year as conductor. Seats will be removed and replaced by tables in the traditional Pops manner.

For the first time there's an assistant conductor, Harry Ellis Dickson, member of the violin section in the parent Boston Symphony.

Concerts will continue nightly through May. During June, concerts will be played nightly except Sunday. Season closes on June 30.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 9 1956

Bowdoin Glee Club To Sing with 'Pops'

The Bowdoin College Club will make its annual appearance with the Boston "Pops" Orchestra tomorrow evening in Symphony Hall, and will present two spirituals, a group of Bowdoin songs and selections from "Oklahoma," "The Student Prince" and "South Pacific." Soloists will include Norman C. Nicholson, Jr., of Greenwich, Conn.; Raymond E. Demers, Jr., of Auburn, Me.; and Peter E. Potter of Westbrook, Me. The Meddiebemsters will also sing.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

MAY 6 1956

n Orchestra's 75th Anniversary

Two Major Works In Symphony Season

By TUCKER KEISER

The 75th anniversary season of the Boston Symphony Orchestra did not quite fulfill the expectations we had for it. Only six of the 15 newly commis- [illegible] premiered; [illegible] thought he was telling her s[illegible] was good.

Sophia laughed. She helpe[illegible] herself to two big portions [illegible] prawns in curry, on mounds of rice floating in butter. Some girl, some appetite!

"I want to get married when I am 24 or 25, and he must be intelligent, but not handsome," Sophia said.

"Why not handsome?" my B. W. asked her.

"Because I'm jealous. I couldn't stand it if other women looked at him. I haven't found [illegible]

[illegible] only one, [illegible] making his de[illegible] The others were old friends of Symphony audiences, including Burgin, Bernstein, Ansermet, Monteux, Woodworth, and Villa Lobos. The latter led the orchestra only in the premiere of the composer's Symphony No. 11. Mr. Bernstein's one appearance brought back some of the glamour and excitement—and intermission discussion of the music—from a former regime.

Were Memorable

Of the 14 instrumental soloists, one remembers as outstanding David Abel's promising debut in the Brahms' Violin Concerto under Monteux, Eugene Istomin's sterling performance of the Beethoven Fourth Piano Concerto, and the warm reading Samuel Mayes and Francescatti gave the Brahms Double Concerto.

The programming was not particularly imaginative, Charles Munch, the conductor, sticking adhesively to standard fare. Understandably, Mozart headed the list with 13 works (some pretty minor Mozart it's true), Beethoven received eight hearings, and Brahms six. Mr. Fiedler's one concert was a special case in that he tried to give a substantial afternoon within a "Pops" framework. Mr. Berstein in a single week desperately to wrench [illegible]s into the contem- [illegible]ral cases the program- [illegible]htless, as in the

Another "thoughtless" programming was the coupling of Debussy's "Le Martyre de Saint Sebastien," with Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto. The Debussy is a bore, a contrived cliche-ridden text set listlessly in the same manner. The 75 minutes running time seems interminable.

The playing this season has been what we have come to expect. The orchestra, made up of some of the finest symphonic players in the world, can rise to almost every occasion. However, raggedness and roughness often creep into the performances because Mr. Munch dis-

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 8 1956

Gardener's Delight

Spring Plant Sale Set In Weston

By MAGGIE WELLS, Society Editor

Our first-hand knowledge of gardens could handily be transcribed on a daisy petal—but we know what's going on in the garden world!

We know, for instance, that out Weston way, people are casting anxious eyes at awakening flower beds. This we gather from news that the Spring Plant Sale on the lawn of the First Parish Church in Weston will take place May 16.

GARDENERS EXCHANGE THINNINGS AT SALE

This sixth annual sale will give Weston toilers in the soil a chance to exchange spring thinnings, taken from overcrowded flower pots. Mrs. Richard P. Holland is chairman of an active committee currently collecting thinnings from old and new gardens in the vicinity.

Her helpers include Mmes. Clinton V. Dean Jr., Howard M. Forbes, George O. Russell Jr., Warren T. Vaughan Jr. and Edwin C. Woodland.

Cheery geraniums, annuals, rock garden plants and shrubs will also be included in the affair. Sponsored by the Benevolent Alliance of the First Parish, the sale will go on from 11 a.m. until 4 p.m.

DANINSH KING ON LOCAL LIST

His Majesty, King Frederick IX of Denmark heads the patron list for the benefit opening of the Royal Danish Ballet here, October 3. Members of the George Gershwin Music of Boston University are sponsoring the first-night performance of the famous ballet company.

Proceeds of the evening will benefit the scholarship fund of the School of Fine and Applied Arts.

Mrs. J. Greene Carter is chairman of the affair. Mmes. Alexander Steinert and Albert C. Titcomb are co-chairmen of a dinner to be given before the performance, for Danish Ambassador, Henrik de Kauffman.

POPS DATES CONTINUE AT SYMPHONY HALL

"Pops" dates continue to pop up all over the place. Vassar Night, May 16, will benefit the Vassar Club's scholarship fund. Those who've made deservations for the evening include Mmes. Kenneth Murdock, Benjamin Kaplan, Henry Newbegin, and Haven Parker.

NEW HAMPSHIRE NIGHT ON MAY 17

The following evening, Governor and Mrs. Lane Dwinell of New Hampshire will be guests of honor at the fourth annual University of New Hampshire Night at Pops. The university's concert choir will be featured in the program.

University President Eldon Lee Johnson and Mrs. Johnson will be honored at a reception at the Harvard Club before the concert. Members of the committee include Bernerd Delman, Ann Silver and Paul I. Mann.

The St. Elizabeth Hospital Nurses' Alumnae Association will sponsor the Pops Concert Wednesday evening, May 30. Joanne O'Brien of Natick is chairman of the affair.

Telephone Night

The annual Telephone Night at Pops will be Thursday, May 24. It is sponsored by the Telephone Pioneers and reservations may be made with Arthur F. Grenier at 50 Oliver St.

Thirty disabled veterans will be guests of the group. Committee and the Friends of

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 8 1956

Times (e)
GLOUCESTER, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 8,809

MAY 9 1956

Pops Night Aids Scholarships

Vassar Alumnae of the Gloucester area are busy planning for the Vassar-Dartmouth Night at the Pops to be held on Wednesday evening, May 16, at Symphony Hall, for the benefit of the scholarship funds of the two colleges.

The Vassar Club Pops Committee Chairman is Mrs. Thomas Morse of Brookline and she is helped by Mrs. Andrew Rankin of Dedham for patronesses, Mrs. Don Ross of Newton Highlands for mailing, Mrs. Robert Haydock of Newton Center for flowers, and Mrs. J. Charles Drooker of Brookline and Mrs. H. Burton Powers of Wellesley for publicity.

Patronesses in the Gloucester area include Mrs. George Bates, Mrs. Laurence F. Brooks, and Mrs. William A. Bolger.

Tickets may be obtained from the Vassar Club by calling Miss Virginia Bridge.

SINGING AT THE POPS May 12 will be the Wellesley College Tupelos. "Wellesley Night" will be conducted under the sponsorship of the Boston Wellesley College Club. Front row (left to right) Marcia Shick, Pat Spaulding, Chris Brautigan, Sue Routsong, business manager; Mary Ann Hayward, Suzanne Hewitt. Second row: Betsy Campbell, Sue Snodgrass, Julie Cuyler, leader; Georgia Sue Herberger; Barbara Pereira. Back row: Claire Wilkinson; Leslie Meyer, Marguerite Beer, Ann Mueller, Jane Blount, Judy Lees, Scotty Hartmann, Ela Thorington.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 9 1956

Bowdoin Glee Club To Sing with 'Pops'

The Bowdoin College Club will make its annual appearance with the Boston "Pops" Orchestra tomorrow evening in Symphony Hall, and will present two spirituals, a group of Bowdoin songs and selections from "Oklahoma," "The Student Prince" and "South Pacific." Soloists will include Norman C. Nicholson, Jr., of Greenwich, Conn.; Raymond E. Demers, Jr.; of Auburn, Me.; and Peter E. Potter of Westbrook, Me. The Meddiebemsters will also sing.

Courant (m)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Republican
Circ. 94,124

M[illegible] 1956

A School of War In Time of Peace

This has been a year in which a number of diverse and venerable institutions have celebrated their 75th birthday. The University of Connecticut was established in 1881; so was the Boston Symphony Orchestra; and so was one of the United States Army's senior schools, the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. It must have been quite a year, 1881.

Perhaps none of these septuagenarian institutions has contributed as much to the country as a whole as the Army school. It is one of some 58 separate Army-operated or sponsored schools, which offer about 300 courses for officers and an equal number for enlisted men. But it is the only one that teaches the use of the combined arms and services in combat. It is there that officers selected to take high command and staff positions learn "how the Army fights" with major units. General Eisenhower is a graduate, class of 1926. In World War II some 18,000 officers went through the course. In World War I General Pershing felt that, without the staff training afforded by the school, the tremendous problems of combat, supply, and transportation could not have been solved.

Yet, strangely enough, Leavenworth has always been a stepchild of the nation's educational system. Only this year are plans taking shape for an academic building designed to meet the instructional needs. Most of the present school buildings are converted gymnasiums or riding halls. In peacetime, when the school is serving its most useful purpose of training officers for combat, it can't command the interest of Congress. Its anniversary today should serve to remind the nation at large that a dedicated institution, constantly reviewing and improving doctrine and programs, is constantly at work against the time of need.

Variety
NEW YORK, N. Y.
Weekly Amusements

MAY 9 1956

71st BOSTON POPS

Inaugurate Post of Asst. Conductor with Dickson

Boston, May 8.

The 71st season of the Boston Pops will be inaugurated tonight, Tuesday (1), in Symphony Hall. It's Arthur Fiedler's 27th year as conductor. Seats will be removed and replaced by tables in the traditional Pops manner.

For the first time there's an assistant conductor, Harry Ellis Dickson, member of the violin section in the parent Boston Symphony.

Concerts will continue nightly through May. During June, concerts will be played nightly except Sunday. Season closes on June 30.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
ependent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

MAY 6 1956

n Orchestra's 75th Anniversary

Two Major Works In Symphony Season

By TUCKER KEISER

The 75th anniversary season f the Boston Symphony Orhestra did not quite fulfill the xpectations we had for it. Only ix of the 15 newly commis- was a title that ... premiered; thought he was telling her sh desperately to wrench was good. es into the contem-

Sophia laughed. She helpe herself to two big portions ral cases the program- prawns in curry, on mounds of tless, as in the rice floating in butter. Some girl, some appetite!

"I want to get married when I am 24 or 25, and he must be intelligent, but not handsome," Sophia said.

"Why not handsome?" my B. W. asked her.

"Because I'm jealous. I couldn't stand it if other women looked at him. I haven't found phy one, ... making his d... series. Daniel ...

The others were old friends of Symphony audiences, including Burgin, Bernstein, Ansermet, Monteux, Woodworth, and Villa Lobos. The latter led the orchestra only in the premiere of the composer's Symphony No. 11. Mr. Bernstein's one appearance brought back some of the glamour and excitement—and intermission discussion of the music—from a former regime.

Were Memorable

Of the 14 instrumental soloists, one remembers as outstanding David Abel's promising debut in the Brahms' Violin Concerto under Monteux, Eugene Istomin's sterling performance of the Beethoven Fourth Piano Concerto, and the warm reading Samuel Mayes and Francescatti gave the Brahms Double Concerto.

The programming was not particularly imaginative, Charles Munch, the conductor, sticking adhesively to standard fare. Understandably, Mozart headed the list with 13 works (some pretty minor Mozart it's true), Beethoven received eight hearings, and Brahms six. Mr. Fiedler's one concert was a special case in that he tried to give a substantial afternoon within a "Pops" framework. Mr. Berstein in a single week

Another "thoughtless programming was the coupling of Debussy's "Le Martyre de Saint Sebastien," with Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto. The Debussy is a bore, a contrived cliche-ridden text set listlessly in the same manner. The 75 minutes running time seems interminable.

The playing this season has been what we have come to expect. The orchestra, made up of some of the finest symphonic players in the world, can rise to almost every occasion. However, raggedness and roughness often creep into the performances because Mr. Munch dis-

Times (e)
GLOUCESTER, Mass.
ndependent Republican
Circ. 8,809

MAY 9 1956

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 8 1956

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 8 1956

Gardener's Delight

Spring Plant Sale Set In Weston

By MAGGIE WELLS, Society Editor

Our first-hand knowledge of gardens could handily be transcribed on a daisy petal—but we know what's going on in the garden world!

We know, for instance, that out Weston way, people are casting anxious eyes at awakening flower beds. This we gather from news that the Spring Plant Sale on the lawn of the First Parish Church in Weston will take place May 16.

GARDENERS EXCHANGE THINNINGS AT SALE

This sixth annual sale will give Weston toilers in the soil a chance to exchange spring thinnings, taken from overcrowded flower pots. Mrs. Richard P. Holland is chairman of an active committee currently collecting thinnings from old and new gardens in the vicinity.

Her helpers include Mmes. Clinton V. Dean Jr., Howard M. Forbes, George O. Russell Jr., Warren T. Vaughan Jr. and Edwin C. Woodland.

Cheery geraniums, annuals, rock garden plants and shrubs will also be included in the affair. Sponsored by the Benevolent-Alliance of the First Parish, the sale will go on from 11 a.m. until 4 p.m.

DANINSH KING ON LOCAL LIST

His Majesty, King Frederick IX of Denmark heads the patron list for the benefit opening of the Royal Danish Ballet here, October 3. Members of the George Gershwin Music of Boston University are sponsoring the first-night performance of the famous ballet company.

Proceeds of the evening will benefit the scholarship fund of the School of Fine and Applied Arts.

Mrs. J. Greene Carter is chairman of the affair. Mmes. Alexander Steinert and Albert C. Titcomb are co-chairmen of a dinner to be given before the performance, for Danish Ambassador, Henrik de Kauffman.

POPS DATES CONTINUE AT SYMPHONY HALL

"Pops" dates continue to pop up all over the place. Vassar Night, May 16, will benefit the Vassar Club's scholarship fund. Those who've made deservations for the evening include Mmes. Kenneth Murdock, Benjamin Kaplan, Henry Newbegin, and Haven Parker.

NEW HAMPSHIRE NIGHT ON MAY 17

The following evening, Governor and Mrs. Lane Dwinell of New Hampshire will be guests of honor at the fourth annual University of New Hampshire Night at Pops. The university's concert choir will be featured in the program.

University President Eldon Lee Johnson and Mrs. Johnson will be honored at a reception at the Harvard Club before the concert. Members of the committee include Bernerd Delman, Ann Silver and Paul I. Mann.

The St. Elizabeth Hospital Nurses' Alumnae Association will sponsor the Pops Concert Wednesday evening, May 30. Joanne O'Brien of Natick is chairman of the affair.

Telephone Night

The annual Telephone Night at Pops will be Thursday, May 24. It is sponsored by the Telephone Pioneers and reservations may be made with Arthur F. Grenier at 50 Oliver St.

Thirty disabled veterans will be guests of the group. Committee and the Friends of

Courant (m)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Republican
Circ. 94,124

M... 1956

A School of War In Time of Peace

This has been a year in which a number of diverse and venerable institutions have celebrated their 75th birthday. The University of Connecticut was established in 1881; so was the Boston Symphony Orchestra; and so was one of the United States Army's senior schools, the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. It must have been quite a year, 1881.

Perhaps none of these septuagenarian institutions has contributed as much to the country as a whole as the Army school. It is one of some 58 separate Army-operated or sponsored schools, which offer about 300 courses for officers and an equal number for enlisted men. But it is the only one that teaches the use of the combined arms and services in combat. It is there that officers selected to take high command and staff positions learn "how the Army fights" with major units. General Eisenhower is a graduate, class of 1926. In World War II some 18,000 officers went through the course. In World War I General Pershing felt that, without the staff training afforded by the school, the tremendous problems of combat, supply, and transportation could not have been solved.

Yet, strangely enough, Leavenworth has always been a stepchild of the nation's educational system. Only this year are plans taking shape for an academic building designed to meet the instructional needs. Most of the present school buildings are converted gymnasiums or riding halls. In peacetime, when the school is serving its most useful purpose of training officers for combat, it can't command the interest of Congress. Its anniversary today should serve to remind the nation at large that a dedicated institution, constantly reviewing and improving doctrine and programs, is constantly at work against the time of need.

SINGING AT THE POPS May 12 will be the Wellesley College Tupelos. "Wellesley Night" will be conducted under the sponsorship of the Boston Wellesley College Club. Front row (left to right) Marcia Shick, Pat Spaulding, Chris Brautigan, Sue Routsong, business manager; Mary Ann Hayward, Suzanne Hewitt. Second row: Betsy Campbell, Sue Snodgrass, Julie Cuyler, leader; Georgia Sue Herberger; Barbara Pereira. Back row: Claire Wilkinson; Leslie Meyer, Marguerite Beer, Ann Mueller, Jane Blount, Judy Lees, Scotty Hartmann, Ela Therington.

Easily

...are busy planning for the Vassar-Dartmouth Night at the Pops to be held on Wednesday evening, May 16, at Symphony Hall, for the benefit of the scholarship funds of the two colleges.

The Vassar Club Pops Committee chairman is Mrs. Thomas Morse of Brookline and she is helped by Mrs. Andrew Rankin of Dedham for patronesses, Mrs. Don Ross of Newton Highlands for mailing, Mrs. Robert Haydock of Newton Center for flowers, and Mrs. J. Charles Drooker of Brookline and Mrs. H. Burton Powers of Wellesley for publicity.

Patronesses in the Gloucester area include Mrs. George Bates, Mrs.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 9 1956

Bowdoin Glee Club To Sing with 'Pops'

The Bowdoin College Club will make its annual appearance with the Boston "Pops" Orchestra tomorrow evening in Symphony Hall, and will present two spirituals, a group of Bowdoin songs and selections from "Oklahoma," "The Student Prince" and "South Pacific." Soloists will include Norman C. Nicholson, Jr., of Greenwich, Conn.; Raymond E. Demers, Jr.; of Auburn, Me.; and Peter E. Potter of Westbrook, Me. The Meddiehemsters will also sing.

Variety
NEW YORK, N. Y.
Weekly Amusements

MAY 9 1956

71st BOSTON POPS

Inaugurate Post of Asst. Conductor with Dickson

Boston, May 8.

The 71st season of the Boston Pops will be inaugurated tonight, Tuesday (1), in Symphony Hall. It's Arthur Fiedler's 27th year as conductor. Seats will be removed and replaced by tables in the traditional Pops manner.

For the first time there's an assistant conductor, Harry Ellis Dickson, member of the violin section in the parent Boston Symphony.

Concerts will continue nightly through May. During June, concerts will be played nightly except Sunday. Season closes on June 30.

90

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 8 1956

SOCIETY: Farm and Garden Association Holds Benefit Plant Sale on 15th

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

Scholarships for country girls who could not otherwise go to college is one of the fine jobs accomplished by the New England Farm and Garden Association, and their annual plant sale and luncheon May 15 at Mrs. Edwin S. Webster's will help with this worthwhile sale.

Always a treat for garden lovers, this pleasant day in Mrs. Webster's famous Chestnut Hill garden with its hundreds of beautiful tulips, Chinese peony trees, old-fashioned bleeding heart, and rare trillium, is also a chance to stock up on special plants for your own garden. Choice white fuchsias, heliotrope, lemon, verbena, unusual herbs, brilliant lantana, and scores of seedlings and blossoming plants will be available beginning at 10 o'clock.

This year's party will be called a "Hindu Mela," and lunch will be served under a large Indian tent, with guest of honor Dharam Jit Singh, who will speak on "Feats, Flowers, and the Wishing Well." Mrs. John H. Cunningham and Mrs. Frank A. Day Jr. are co-chairmen of the program, and also helping are Mrs. Harry S. Middenorf, Mrs. George W. Smith, Mrs. Charles A. Welch, Miss Elizabeth Weld, Mrs. Paul F. Clark, Mrs. Homer Sweet, Mrs. Richard Mclanathan, Mrs. H. Bigelow Emerson, Mrs. James M. Newell Jr., Mrs. C. Terry Collens, Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard and others.

IN WESTON, enthusiastic gardeners are planning to exchange favorite cuttings, thinnings, and seedlings from each other's gardens at the 6th annual Spring Plant Sale at the First Parish Church on the 16th. Mrs. Richard P. Holland is chairman of the sale, which benefits the Benevolent Alliance of the First Parish. Mrs. Clinton V. Dean Jr. is among the committee helping with this neighborly occasion, to which all are welcome, and also helping plan the day are Mrs. Howard M. Forbes, Mrs. Roswell Eldridge, Mrs. William Elliston, Mrs. Warren Vaughan Jr., Mrs. Harold T. Wilson, Mrs. Edwin Woodland, and Mrs. George Russell Jr.

A SEPTEMBER WEDDING is planned by Miss Helen M. Cheney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Cheney of Dorchester, who are announcing her engagement to Samuel J. Picone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Picone of Dorchester. The ceremony will take place at St. Margaret's Church.

IN BERMUDA are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sisson of Chestnut Hill and Carl De Suze, who flew from Logan Airport Saturday.

TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT of Smith Pops at Symphony Hall and Mary McMurtrie takes table reservations to swell the funds for the scholarships made possible by this annual benefit.

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 8 1956

GIFT FOR SUMMER TOUR of Boston Symphony, a $1000 check is presented to Michael T. Kelleher, trustee, and Charles Munch, conductor, by Pres. Joseph Gannon of Eire Society of Boston. European trip opens with concerts in Cork and Dublin.

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 10 1956

PLAN SYMPHONY HALL EVENT—Temple Mishkan Tefila will sponsor Pops Night at Boston Symphony Hall on June 12. Members of the women's committee, shown above, are, left to right: Mmes. David Shapiro, Harry LaVine (coordinator), Samuel Bojar and Hyman Siegel, president of Sisterhood. In charge of the general committee is Morris Rothstein. Other members are: Mrs. Joseph Bailet, Nathan D. Berman, Mrs. David Feldman, Phillip L. Frank, Nathan Fredman, Robert Glaser, Alan H. Goldstein, Morton Gondleman, Alvin Koppel, Samuel Kushnir, Joseph Lasoff, George M. Levy, Morris Levy, Samuel Marcovitz, Eliot Michelson, Oscar Miller, Mrs. Joseph Pessin, Howard J. Richard, Bertram Rodman, Herbert Sacks, David Shapiro, Samuel Sparks, Bennett Stayman, Leon Steinberg, Alan Tichnor and Jean Weinstein.

News
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 9,700

MAY 10 1956

Journal
CONCORD, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 1,800

MAY 10 1956

Miss Lee Ellice Comins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Danforth W. Comins, Jr. of Barnes Hill road, and Miss Diana Frothingham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Frothingham, the Fenn School, are members of the Radcliffe Choral Society which sang Beethoven's Ninth Symphony in two joint concerts with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Harvard Glee Club. The concerts, held on April 27 and 28 in Symphony Hall, concluded the 75th anniversary year of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with which the RCS and HGC sing annually.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 869,241

MAY 6 1956

SYMPHONY OFFICIAL FETED

In honor of his 75th birthday yesterday, and 40 years' service with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, during which he is estimated to have "handed over" $30,000,000 to the orchestra's treasury, Gordon B. Simpson, box office chief, was given a party at Symphony Hall, attended by his present and past associates. Simpson, at left, is shown being presented by orchestra manager Thomas D. Perry Jr. with an album containing 75 silver dollars and the autographs of the guests.

Journal
HINGHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,250

MAY 10 1956

Clipper
DUXBURY, Mass.

MAY 10 1956

Free Press
MELROSE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,278

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 9 1956

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 10 1956

Record
MILTON, Mass.
Weekly Local
Circ. 4,950

MAY 11 1956

Vassar Alumnae Pops Night Wed.

Vasar alumnae in Milton area busy planning for the Vassar Dartmouth Night at the Pops Wednesday evening at Symphony Hall for the benefit of the scholarship funds of the two colleges.

Milton patrones es include Mrs. Howard Abel, Mrs. Arthur B. Perry, Mrs. Frank McSherry, Mrs. George Wislocki, Mrs. C. Rogers Burgin, Mrs. John B. Sturges, Miss Harriet Littlefield, Mrs. James L. Coombs, Miss Ruth Tucker, Mrs. Wilson H. Pyle IV, Mrs. William C. Quimby, Jr., Mrs. Roger Paul Shea, Mrs. James A. Roberts and Mrs. Lowry F. Davenport.

Tickets may be obtained from the Vassar Club by calling Miss Virginia Bridge at ASpinwall 7-0506.

Herald
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4468

MAY 10 1956

Leader-Herald
EVERETT, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 12,900

MAY 10 1956

Dora Dannenberg will preside. The Junior Class of the State Teachers College at Boston is planning to attend its annual "Pops Night" at Symphony Hall, Tuesday, May 15. Serving on the committee is Miss Marilyn Chisholm of 9 Summit av.

mont. While at the University she was elected to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities and was a member of Scarlet Key (honorary activities society).

Other members of the committee are: Miss Virginia Brigham, 15 Bellevue road; Dr. Royal Rrye, 11 Whitcomb st., The Jack Danahys and Mrs. Ralph Libby.

The Alumni Celebration, which will feature the annual address by Boston University's President, Dr. Harold C. Case, is scheduled for the first weekend in June.

Boston University night at the Pops, Arthur Fiedler conducting will be held in Symphony Hall June 1 at 8:15 p. m.

The giant clambake, to be held at Boston University Field Saturday, June 2, will feature the cutting of an eight-foot Alumni Reunion Cake, a "25-Year-Hit Parade" by the Boston University Band, and the annual address by Dr. Case.

Late Saturday afternoon the Marine Salute to Boston University on the Charles River, featuring more than 100 yachts from the Watertown, Charlesgate, Charles River, Newton and Massachusetts Bay Association yacht clubs, will parade west from the Basin, ending off the Boston University Campus.

Following the Marine Salute all reunioning grads will join in the ground-breaking ceremonies for the new womens' dormitory to be located at 140 Bay State rd. near Sherborn st.

The weekend celebration will be concluded with the Baccalaureate Service and Commencement Exercises on Sunday, June 3.

90

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 8 1956

SOCIETY: Farm and Garden Association Holds Benefit Plant Sale on 15th

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

Scholarships for country girls who could not otherwise go to college is one of the fine jobs accomplished by the New England Farm and Garden Association, and their annual plant sale and luncheon May 15 at Mrs. Edwin S. Webster's will help with this worthwhile sale.

Always a treat for garden lovers, this pleasant day in Mrs. Webster's famous Chestnut Hill garden with its hundreds of beautiful tulips, Chinese peony trees, old-fashioned bleeding heart, and rare trillium, is also a chance to stock up on special plants for your own garden. Choice white fuchsias, heliotrope, lemon, verbena, unusual herbs, brilliant lantana, and scores of seedlings and blossoming plants will be available beginning at 10 o'clock.

This year's party will be called a "Hindu Mela," and lunch will be served under a large Indian tent, with guest of honor Dharam Jit Singh, who will speak on "Feats, Flowers, and the Wishing Well." Mrs. John H. Cunningham and Mrs. Frank A. Day Jr. are co-chairmen of the program, and also helping are Mrs. Harry S. Middenorf, Mrs. George W. Smith, Mrs. Charles A. Welch, Miss Elizabeth Weld, Mrs. Paul F. Clark, Mrs. Homer Sweet, Mrs. Richard Mclanathan, Mrs. H. Bigelow Emerson, Mrs. James M. Newell Jr., Mrs. C. Terry Collens, Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard and others.

IN WESTON, enthusiastic gardeners are planning to exchange favorite cuttings, thinnings, and seedlings from each other's gardens at the 6th annual Spring Plant Sale at the First Parish Church on the 16th. Mrs. Richard P. Holland is chairman of the sale, which benefits the Benevolent Alliance of the First Parish. Mrs. Clinton V. Dean Jr. is among the committee helping with this neighborly occasion, to which all are welcome, and also helping plan the day are Mrs. Howard M. Forbes, Mrs. Roswell Eldridge, Mrs. William Elliston, Mrs. Warren Vaughan Jr., Mrs. Harold T. Wilson, Mrs. Edwin Woodland, and Mrs. George Russell Jr.

A SEPTEMBER WEDDING is planned by Miss Helen M. Cheney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Cheney of Dorchester, who are announcing her engagement to Samuel J. Picone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Picone of Dorchester. The ceremony will take place at St. Margaret's Church.

IN BERMUDA are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sisson of Chestnut Hill and Carl De Suze, who flew from Logan Airport Saturday.

TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT of Smith Pops at Symphony Hall and Mary McMurtrie takes table reservations to swell the funds for the scholarships made possible by this annual benefit.

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 8 1956

GIFT FOR SUMMER TOUR of Boston Symphony, a $1000 check is presented to Michael T. Kelleher, trustee, and Charles Munch, conductor, by Pres. Joseph Gannon of Eire Society of Boston. European trip opens with concerts in Cork and Dublin.

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 10 1956

News
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 9,700

MAY 10 1956

Journal
CONCORD, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 1,800

MAY 10 1956

Miss Lee Ellice Comins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Danforth W. Comins, Jr. of Barnes Hill road, and Miss Diana Frothingham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Frothingham, the Fenn School, are members of the Radcliffe Choral Society which sang Beethoven's Ninth Symphony in two joint concerts with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Harvard Glee Club. The concerts, held on April 27 and 28 in Symphony Hall, concluded the 75th anniversary year of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with which the RCS and HGC sing annually.

PLAN SYMPHONY HALL EVENT—Temple Mishkan Tefila will sponsor Pops Night at Boston Symphony Hall on June 12. Members of the women's committee, shown above, are, left to right: Mmes. David Shapiro, Harry LaVine (coordinator), Samuel Bojar and Hyman Siegel, president of Sisterhood. In charge of the general committee is Morris Rothstein. Other members are: Mrs. Joseph Bailet, Nathan D. Berman, Mrs. David Feldman, Phillip L. Frank, Nathan Fredman, Robert Glaser, Alan H. Goldstein, Morton Gondleman, Alvin Koppel, Samuel Kushnir, Joseph Lasoff, George M. Levy, Morris Levy, Samuel Marcovitz, Eliot Michelson, Oscar Miller, Mrs. Joseph Pessin, Howard J. Richard, Bertram Rodman, Herbert Sacks, David Shapiro, Samuel Sparks, Bennett Stayman, Leon Steinberg, Alan Tichnor and Jean Weinstein.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

MAY 6 1956

SYMPHONY OFFICIAL FETED

In honor of his 75th birthday yesterday, and 40 years' service with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, during which he is estimated to have "handed over" $30,000,000 to the orchestra's treasury, Gordon B. Simpson, box office chief, was given a party at Symphony Hall, attended by his present and past associates. Simpson, at left, is shown being presented by orchestra manager Thomas D. Perry Jr. with an album containing 75 silver dollars and the autographs of the guests.

Journal
HINGHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,250

MAY 10 1956

Clipper
DUXBURY, Mass.

MAY 10 1956

Free Press
MELROSE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,278

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 9 1956

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 10 1956

Record
MILTON, Mass.
Weekly Local
Circ. 4,950

MAY 11 1956

Vassar Alumnae Pops Night Wed.

Vasar alumnae in Milton area are busy planning for the Vassar-Dartmouth Night at the Pops Wednesday evening at Symphony Hall for the benefit of the scholarship funds of the two colleges.

Milton patronesses include Mrs. Howard Abel, Mrs. Arthur B. Perry, Mrs. Frank McSherry, Mrs. George Wislocki, Mrs. C. Rogers Burgin, Mrs. John B. Sturges, Miss Harriet Littlefield, Mrs. James L. Coombs, Miss Ruth Tucker, Mrs. Wilson H. Pyle IV, Mrs. William C. Quimby, Jr., Mrs. Roger Paul Shea, Mrs. James A. Roberts and Mrs. Lowry F. Davenport.

Tickets may be obtained from the Vassar Club by calling Miss Virginia Bridge at ASpinwall 7-0506.

Herald
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4468

MAY 10 1956

Leader-Herald
EVERETT, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 12,900

MAY 10 1956

Dora Dannenberg will preside. The Junior Class of the State Teachers College at Boston is planning to attend its annual "Pops Night" at Symphony Hall, Tuesday, May 15. Serving on the committee is Miss Marilyn Chisholm of 9 Summit av.

mont. While at the University she was elected to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities and was a member of Scarlet Key (honorary activities society).

Other members of the committee are: Miss Virginia Brigham, 15 Bellevue road; Dr. Royal Rrye, 11 Whitcomb st., The Jack Danahys and Mrs. Ralph Libby.

The Alumni Celebration, which will feature the annual address by Boston University's President, Dr. Harold C. Case, is scheduled for the first weekend in June.

Boston University night at the Pops, Arthur Fiedler conducting will be held in Symphony Hall June 1 at 8:15 p. m.

The giant clambake, to be held at Boston University Field Saturday, June 2, will feature the cutting of an eight-foot Alumni Reunion Cake, a "25-Year-Hit Parade" by the Boston University Band, and the annual address by Dr. Case.

Late Saturday afternoon the Marine Salute to Boston University on the Charles River, featuring more than 100 yachts from the Watertown, Charlesgate, Charles River, Newton and Massachusetts Bay Association yacht clubs, will parade west from the Basin, sailing off the Boston University Campus.

Following the Marine Salute all reunioning grads will join in the ground-breaking ceremonies for the new womens' dormitory to be located at 140 Bay State rd. near Sherborn st.

The weekend celebration will be concluded with the Baccalaureate Service and Commencement Exercises on Sunday, June 3.

90

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 8 1956

SOCIETY: Farm and Garden Association Holds Benefit Plant Sale on 15th

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

Scholarships for country girls who could not otherwise go to college is one of the fine jobs accomplished by the New England Farm and Garden Association, and their annual plant sale and luncheon May 15 at Mrs. Edwin S. Webster's will help with this worthwhile sale.

Always a treat for garden lovers, this pleasant day in Mrs. Webster's famous Chestnut Hill garden with its hundreds of beautiful tulips, Chinese peony trees, old-fashioned bleeding heart, and rare trillium, is also a chance to stock up on special plants for your own garden. Choice white fuchsias, heliotrope, lemon, verbena, unusual herbs, brilliant lantana, and scores of seedlings and blossoming plants will be available beginning at 10 o'clock.

This year's party will be called a "Hindu Mela," and lunch will be served under a large Indian tent, with guest of honor Dharam Jit Singh, who will speak on "Feats, Flowers, and the Wishing Well." Mrs. John H. Cunningham and Mrs. Frank A. Day Jr. are co-chairmen of the program, and also helping are Mrs. Harry S. Middenorf, Mrs. George W. Smith, Mrs. Charles A. Welch, Miss Elizabeth Weld, Mrs. Paul F. Clark, Mrs. Homer Sweet, Mrs. Richard Mclanathan, Mrs. H. Bigelow Emerson, Mrs. James M. Newell Jr., Mrs. C. Terry Collens, Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard and others.

IN WESTON, enthusiastic gardeners are planning to exchange favorite cuttings, thinnings, and seedlings from each other's gardens at the 6th annual Spring Plant Sale at the First Parish Church on the 16th. Mrs. Richard P. Holland is chairman of the sale, which benefits the Benevolent Alliance of the First Parish. Mrs. Clinton V. Dean Jr. is among the committee helping with this neighborly occasion, to which all are welcome, and also helping plan the day are Mrs. Howard M. Forbes, Mrs. Roswell Eldridge, Mrs. William Elliston, Mrs. Warren Vaughan Jr., Mrs. Harold T. Wilson, Mrs. Edwin Woodland, and Mrs. George Russell Jr.

A SEPTEMBER WEDDING is planned by Miss Helen M. Cheney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Cheney of Dorchester, who are announcing her engagement to Samuel J. Picone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Picone of Dorchester. The ceremony will take place at St. Margaret's Church.

IN BERMUDA are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sisson of Chestnut Hill and Carl De Suze, who flew from Logan Airport Saturday.

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 8 1956

GIFT FOR SUMMER TOUR of Boston Symphony, a $1000 check is presented to Michael T. Kelleher, trustee, and Charles Munch, conductor, by Pres. Joseph Gannon of Eire Society of Boston. European trip opens with concerts in Cork and Dublin.

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 10 1956

PLAN SYMPHONY HALL EVENT—Temple Mishkan Tefila will sponsor Pops Night at Boston Symphony Hall on June 12. Members of the women's committee, shown above, are, left to right: Mmes. David Shapiro, Harry LaVine (coordinator), Samuel Bojar and Hyman Siegel, president of Sisterhood. In charge of the general committee is Morris Rothstein. Other members are: Mrs. Joseph Ballet, Nathan D. Berman, Mrs. David Feldman, Phillip L. Frank, Nathan Fredman, Robert Glaser, Alan H. Goldstein, Morton Gondleman, Alvin Koppel, Samuel Kushnir, Joseph Lasoff, George M. Levy, Morris Levy, Samuel Marcovitz, Eliot Michelson, Oscar Miller, Mrs. Joseph Pessin, Howard J. Richard, Bertram Rodman, Herbert Sacks, David Shapiro, Samuel Sparks, Bennett Stayman, Leon Steinberg, Alan Tichnor and Jean Weinstein.

Night At Pops

Mrs. Norace Homer, president of the Arlington Women's Republican Club, announces the cancellation of the club's plan to sponsor a night at the Boston Pops.

"This change in our program will allow more complete support of the community for the Pops Concert of the Philharmonic Society of Arlington to be held at the Robbins Memorial Town Hall June 2. Meanwhile, the Women's Republican Club will make plans for another project in the fall, to take the place of the cacelled affair."

The meeting at Thoreau School Auditorium for the annual business meeting and election of officers for the coming school year.

Following the elections, Mr. Bernard Megin and his staff will discuss the Physical Education and Athletic program in the Con-

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

MAY 6 1956

SYMPHONY OFFICIAL FETED

In honor of his 75th birthday yesterday, and 40 years' service with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, during which he is estimated to have "handed over" $30,000,000 to the orchestra's treasury, Gordon B. Simpson, box office chief, was given a party at Symphony Hall, attended by his present and past associates. Simpson, at left, is shown being presented by orchestra manager Thomas D. Perry Jr. with an album containing 75 silver dollars and the autographs of the guests.

Journal
HINGHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,250

MAY 10 1956

Clipper
DUXBURY, Mass.

Wednesday. All net proceeds from the sale of tickets will be contributed to the Greater Boston Scholarship Fund, sponsored by the Dartmouth Alumni Association.

John Williamson of Wellesley is general chairman of the committee, assisted by Roger B. Salinger of Newton.

Preceding the performance, a number of dinner parties will be held. Among the hosts will be Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wentworth of Wellesley, the Richard Hills of Marblehead, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Beattie of Melrose, Mr. and Mrs. E. Morton Jennings of Needham, and the Fred Stockwells of Winchester.

Herald
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan

JUNE 1 1955

Five Belmont residents are now busy with the plans for the Boston University Alumni weekend.

Miss Sandra Bailey, 24 Oak Street, is chairman of the Belmont Promotion Committee. A graduate of 1955, she is presently helping to organize the Boston University Club of Belmont. While at the University she was elected to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities and was a member of Scarlet Key (honorary activities society).

Other members of the committee are: Miss Virginia Brigham, 15 Bellevue road; Dr. Royal Rrye, 11 Whitcomb st., The Jack Danahys and Mrs. Ralph Libby.

The Alumni Celebration, which will feature the annual address by Boston University's President, Dr. Harold C. Case, is scheduled for the first weekend in June.

Boston University night at the Pops, Arthur Fiedler conducting will be held in Symphony Hall June 1 at 8:15 p. m.

The giant clambake, to be held at Boston University Field Saturday, June 2, will feature the cutting of an eight-foot Alumni Reunion Cake, a "25-Year-Hit Parade" by the Boston University Band, and the annual address by Dr. Case.

Late Saturday afternoon the Marine Salute to Boston University on the Charles River, featuring more than 100 yachts from the Watertown, Charlesgate, Charles River, Newton and Massachusetts Bay Association yacht clubs, will parade west from the Basin, ending off the Boston University Campus.

Following the Marine Salute all reunioning grads will join in the ground-breaking ceremonies for the new womens' dormitory to be located at 140 Bay State rd. near Sherborn st.

The weekend celebration will be concluded with the Baccalaureate Service and Commencement Exercises on Sunday, June 3.

90

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 8 1956

SOCIETY: Farm and Garden Association Holds Benefit Plant Sale on 15th

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

Scholarships for country girls who could not otherwise go to college is one of the fine jobs accomplished by the New England Farm and Garden Association, and their annual plant sale and luncheon May 15 at Mrs. Edwin S. Webster's will help with this worthwhile sale.

Always a treat for garden lovers, this pleasant day in Mrs. Webster's famous Chestnut Hill garden with its hundreds of beautiful tulips, Chinese peony trees, old-fashioned bleeding heart, and rare trillium, is also a chance to stock up on special plants for your own garden. Choice white fuchsias, heliotrope, lemon, verbena, unusual herbs, brilliant lantana, and scores of seedlings and blossoming plants will be available beginning at 10 o'clock.

This year's party will be called a "Hindu Mela," and lunch will be served under a large Indian tent, with guest of honor Dharam Jit Singh, who will speak on "Feats, Flowers, and the Wishing Well." Mrs. John H. Cunningham and Mrs. Frank A. Day Jr. are co-chairmen of the program, and also helping are Mrs. Harry S. Middenorf, Mrs. George W. Smith, Mrs. Charles A. Welch, Miss Elizabeth Weld, Mrs. Paul F. Clark, Mrs. Homer Sweet, Mrs. Richard Mclanathan, Mrs. H. Bigelow Emerson, Mrs. James M. Newell Jr., Mrs. C. Terry Collens, Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard and others.

IN WESTON, enthusiastic gardeners are planning to exchange favorite cuttings, thinnings, and seedlings from each other's gardens at the 6th annual Spring Plant Sale at the First Parish Church on the 16th. Mrs. Richard P. Holland is chairman of the sale, which benefits the Benevolent Alliance of the First Parish. Mrs. Clinton V. Dean Jr. is among the committee helping with this neighborly occasion, to which all are welcome, and also helping plan the day are Mrs. Howard M. Forbes, Mrs. Roswell Eldridge, Mrs. William Elliston, Mrs. Warren Vaughan Jr., Mrs. Harold T. Wilson, Mrs. Edwin Woodland, and Mrs. George Russell Jr.

A SEPTEMBER WEDDING is planned by Miss Helen M. Cheney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Cheney of Dorchester, who are announcing her engagement to Samuel J. Picone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Picone of Dorchester. The ceremony will take place at St. Margaret's Church.

IN BERMUDA are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sisson of Chestnut Hill and Carl De Suze, who flew from Logan Airport Saturday.

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 8 1956

GIFT FOR SUMMER TOUR of Boston Symphony, a $1000 check is presented to Michael T. Kelleher, trustee, and Charles Munch, conductor, by Pres. Joseph Gannon of Eire Society of Boston. European trip opens with concerts in Cork and Dublin.

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 10 1956

PLAN SYMPHONY HALL EVENT—Temple Mishkan Tefila will sponsor Pops Night at Boston Symphony Hall on June 12. Members of the women's committee, shown above, are, left to right: Mmes. David Shapiro, Harry LaVine (coordinator), Samuel Bojar and Hyman Siegel, president of Sisterhood. In charge of the general committee is Morris Rothstein. Other members are: Mrs. Joseph Bailet, Nathan D. Berman, Mrs. David Feldman, Phillip L. Frank, Nathan Fredman, Robert Glaser, Alan H. Goldstein, Morton Gondleman, Alvin Koppel, Samuel Kushnir, Joseph Lasoff, George M. Levy, Morris Levy, Samuel Marcovitz, Eliot Michelson, Oscar Miller, Mrs. Joseph Pessin, Howard J. Richard, Bertram Rodman, Herbert Sacks, David Shapiro, Samuel Sparks, Bennett Stayman, Leon Steinberg, Alan Tichnor and Jean Weinstein.

Night At Pops

Mrs. Norace Homer, president of the Arlington Women's Republican Club, announces the cancellation of the club's plan to sponsor a night at the Boston Pops.

"This change in our program will allow more complete support of the community for the Pops Concert of the Philharmonic Society of Arlington to be held at the Robbins Memorial Town Hall June 2. Meanwhile, the Women's Republican Club will make plans for another project in the fall, to take the place of the cacelled affair."

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

MAY 6 1956

SYMPHONY OFFICIAL FETED

In honor of his 75th birthday yesterday, and 40 years' service with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, during which he is estimated to have "handed over" $30,000,000 to the orchestra's treasury, Gordon B. Simpson, box office chief, was given a party at Symphony Hall, attended by his present and past associates. Simpson, at left, is shown being presented by orchestra manager Thomas D. Perry Jr. with an album containing 75 silver dollars and the autographs of the guests.

Journal
HINGHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,250

MAY 10 1956

Clipper
DUXBURY, Mass.

Herald
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan

JUNE 1 1955

Five Belmont residents are now busy with the plans for the Boston University Alumni weekend.

Miss Sandra Bailey, 24 Oak Street, is chairman of the Belmont Promotion Committee. A graduate of 1955, she is presently helping to organize the Boston University Club of Belmont. While at the University she was elected to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities and was a member of Scarlet Key (honorary activities society).

Other members of the committee are: Miss Virginia Brigham, 15 Bellevue road; Dr. Royal Rye, 11 Whitcomb st., The Jack Danahys and Mrs. Ralph Libby.

The Alumni Celebration, which will feature the annual address by Boston University's President, Dr. Harold C. Case, is scheduled for the first weekend in June.

Boston University night at the Pops, Arthur Fiedler conducting will be held in Symphony Hall June 1 at 8:15 p. m.

The giant clambake, to be held at Boston University Field Saturday, June 2, will feature the cutting of an eight-foot Alumni Reunion Cake, a "25-Year-Hit Parade" by the Boston University Band, and the annual address by Dr. Case.

Late Saturday afternoon the Marine Salute to Boston University on the Charles River, featuring more than 100 yachts from the Watertown, Charlesgate, Charles River, Newton and Massachusetts Bay Association yacht clubs, will parade west from the Basin, ending off the Boston University Campus.

Following the Marine Salute all reunioning grads will join in the ground-breaking ceremonies for the new womens' dormitory to be located at 140 Bay State rd. near Sherborn st.

The weekend celebration will be concluded with the Baccalaureate Service and Commencement Exercises on Sunday, June 3.

Wednesday. All net proceeds from the sale of tickets will be contributed to the Greater Boston Scholarship Fund, sponsored by the Dartmouth Alumni Association.

John Williamson of Wellesley is general chairman of the committee, assisted by Roger B. Salinger of Newton.

Preceding the performance, a number of dinner parties will be held. Among the hosts will be Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wentworth of Wellesley, the Richard Hills of Marblehead, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Beattie of Melrose, Mr. and Mrs. E. Morton Jennings of Needham, and the Fred Stockwells of Winchester.

90

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 8 1956

SOCIETY: Farm and Garden Association Holds Benefit Plant Sale on 15th

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

Scholarships for country girls who could not otherwise go to college is one of the fine jobs accomplished by the New England Farm and Garden Association, and their annual plant sale and luncheon May 15 at Mrs. Edwin S. Webster's will help with this worthwhile sale.

Always a treat for garden lovers, this pleasant day in Mrs. Webster's famous Chestnut Hill garden with its hundreds of beautiful tulips, Chinese peony trees, old-fashioned bleeding heart, and rare trillium, is also a chance to stock up on special plants for your own garden. Choice white fuchsias, heliotrope, lemon, verbena, unusual herbs, brilliant lantana, and scores of seedlings and blossoming plants will be available beginning at 10 o'clock.

This year's party will be called a "Hindu Mela," and lunch will be served under a large Indian tent, with guest of honor Dharam Jit Singh, who will speak on "Feats, Flowers, and the Wishing Well." Mrs. John H. Cunningham and Mrs. Frank A. Day Jr. are co-chairmen of the program, and also helping are Mrs. Harry S. Middenorf, Mrs. George W. Smith, Mrs. Charles A. Welch, Miss Elizabeth Weld, Mrs. Paul F. Clark, Mrs. Homer Sweet, Mrs. Richard Mclanathan, Mrs. H. Bigelow Emerson, Mrs. James M. Newell Jr., Mrs. C. Terry Collens, Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard and others.

IN WESTON, enthusiastic gardeners are planning to exchange favorite cuttings, thinnings, and seedlings from each other's gardens at the 6th annual Spring Plant Sale at the First Parish Church on the 16th. Mrs. Richard P. Holland is chairman of the sale, which benefits the Benevolent Alliance of the First Parish. Mrs. Clinton V. Dean Jr. is among the committee helping with this neighborly occasion, to which all are welcome, and also helping plan the day are Mrs. Howard M. Forbes, Mrs. Roswell Eldridge, Mrs. William Elliston, Mrs. Warren Vaughan Jr., Mrs. Harold T. Wilson, Mrs. Edwin Woodland, and Mrs. George Russell Jr.

A SEPTEMBER WEDDING is planned by Miss Helen M. Cheney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Cheney of Dorchester, who are announcing her engagement to Samuel J. Picone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Picone of Dorchester. The ceremony will take place at St. Margaret's Church.

IN BERMUDA are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sisson of Chestnut Hill and Carl De Suze, who flew from Logan Airport Saturday.

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 8 1956

TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT of Smith Pops at Symphony Hall, and Mary McMurtrie takes table reservations to swell the funds for the scholarships made possible by this annual benefit.

GIFT FOR SUMMER TOUR of Boston Symphony, a $1000 check is presented to Michael T. Kelleher, trustee, and Charles Munch, conductor, by Pres. Joseph Gannon of Eire Society of Boston. European trip opens with concerts in Cork and Dublin.

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 10 1956

News
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 9,700

MAY 10 1956

Journal
CONCORD, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 1,800

MAY 10 1956

Miss Lee Ellice Comins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Danforth W. Comins, Jr. of Barnes Hill road, and Miss Diana Frothingham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Frothingham, the Fenn School, are members of the Radcliffe Choral Society which sang Beethoven's Ninth Symphony in two joint concerts with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Harvard Glee Club. The concerts, held on April 27 and 28 in Symphony Hall, concluded the 75th anniversary year of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with which the RCS and HGC sing annually.

PLAN SYMPHONY HALL EVENT—Temple Mishkan Tefila will sponsor Pops Night at Boston Symphony Hall on June 12. Members of the women's committee, shown above, are, left to right: Mmes. David Shapiro, Harry LaVine (coordinator), Samuel Bojar and Hyman Siegel, president of Sisterhood. In charge of the general committee is Morris Rothstein. Other members are: Mrs. Joseph Ballet, Nathan D. Berman, Mrs. David Feldman, Phillip L. Frank, Nathan Fredman, Robert Glaser, Alan H. Goldstein, Morton Gondleman, Alvin Koppel, Samuel Kushnir, Joseph Lasoff, George M. Levy, Morris Levy, Samuel Marcovitz, Eliot Michelson, Oscar Miller, Mrs. Joseph Pessin, Howard J. Richard, Bertram Rodman, Herbert Sacks, David Shapiro, Samuel Sparks, Bennett Stayman, Leon Steinberg, Alan Tichnor and Jean Weinstein.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

MAY 6 1956

:CIAL FETED

fice chief, was given a party at ymphony Hall, attended by his resent and past associates. Simpon, at left, is shown being preented by orchestra manager homas D. Perry Jr. with an lbum containing 75 silver dollars nd the autographs of the guests.

Herald
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4468

MAY 10 1956

Leader-Herald
EVERETT, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 12,900

MAY 10 1956

Dora Dannenberg will preside at the Junior Class of the State Teachers College at Boston is planning to attend its annual "Pops Night" at Symphony Hall, Tuesday, May 15. Serving on the committee is Miss Marilyn Chisholm of 9 Summit av.

mont. While at the University she was elected to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities and was a member of Scarlet Key (honorary activities society).

Other members of the committee are: Miss Virginia Brigham, 15 Bellevue road; Dr. Royal Rrye, 11 Whitcomb st., The Jack Danahys and Mrs. Ralph Libby.

The Alumni Celebration, which will feature the annual address by Boston University's President, Dr. Harold C. Case, is scheduled for the first weekend in June.

Boston University night at the Pops, Arthur Fiedler conducting will be held in Symphony Hall June 1 at 8:15 p. m.

The giant clambake, to be held at Boston University Field Saturday, June 2, will feature the cutting of an eight-foot Alumni Reunion Cake, a "25-Year-Hit Parade" by the Boston University Band, and the annual address by Dr. Case.

Late Saturday afternoon the Marine Salute to Boston University on the Charles River, featuring more than 100 yachts from the Watertown, Charlesgate, Charles River, Newton and Massachusetts Bay Association yacht clubs, will parade west from the Basin, ending off the Boston University Campus.

Following the Marine Salute all reunioning grads will join in the ground-breaking ceremonies for the new womens' dormitory to be located at 140 Bay State rd. near Sherborn st.

The weekend celebration will be concluded with the Baccalaureate Service and Commencement Exercises on Sunday, June 3.

he are tmouth
eld on 16, at benefit the rons nas by am of g, on
J. hd
saes
ls, n td
d

at the Pops will be held next Wednesday with proceeds going to the Dartmouth Alumni Association's Greater Boston Scholarship Fund.

John Williamson of Wellesley is Pops Committee chairman, assisted by Roger B. Salinger of Newton.

Road; Roger B. Salinger, Newton; Fred F. Stockwell, Winchester; Allan L. Priddy, Brookline; John B. Handrahan, North Weymouth; Richard D. Muzzy, Wellesley; E. Morton Jennings, Needham; John M. Boermeester, Needham; Everett M. Chamberlaine, Hingham; Paul S. Vaitses Jr., of Larchmont Road; and William C. Cusack, Winchester.

90

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 8 1956

SOCIETY: Farm and Garden Association Holds Benefit Plant Sale on 15th

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

Scholarships for country girls who could not otherwise go to college is one of the fine jobs accomplished by the New England Farm and Garden Association, and their annual plant sale and luncheon May 15 at Mrs. Edwin S. Webster's will help with this worthwhile sale.

Always a treat for garden lovers, this pleasant day in Mrs. Webster's famous Chestnut Hill garden with its hundreds of beautiful tulips, Chinese peony trees, old-fashioned bleeding heart, and rare trillium, is also a chance to stock up on special plants for your own garden. Choice white fuchsias, heliotrope, lemon, verbena, unusual herbs, brilliant lantana, and scores of seedlings and blossoming plants will be available beginning at 10 o'clock.

This year's party will be called a "Hindu Mela," and lunch will be served under a large Indian tent, with guest of honor Dharam Jit Singh, who will speak on "Feats, Flowers, and the Wishing Well." Mrs. John H. Cunningham and Mrs. Frank A. Day Jr. are co-chairmen of the program, and also helping are Mrs. Harry S. Middenorf, Mrs. George W. Smith, Mrs. Charles A. Welch, Miss Elizabeth Weld, Mrs. Paul F. Clark, Mrs. Homer Sweet, Mrs. Richard Mclanathan, Mrs. H. Bigelow Emerson, Mrs. James M. Newell Jr., Mrs. C. Terry Collens, Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard and others.

IN WESTON, enthusiastic gardeners are planning to exchange favorite cuttings, thinnings, and seedlings from each other's gardens at the 6th annual Spring Plant Sale at the First Parish Church on the 16th. Mrs. Richard P. Holland is chairman of the sale, which benefits the Benevolent Alliance of the First Parish. Mrs. Clinton V. Dean Jr. is among the committee helping with this neighborly occasion, to which all are welcome, and also helping plan the day are Mrs. Howard M. Forbes, Mrs. Roswell Eldridge, Mrs. William Elliston, Mrs. Warren Vaughan Jr., Mrs. Harold T. Wilson, Mrs. Edwin Woodland, and Mrs. George Russell Jr.

A SEPTEMBER WEDDING is planned by Miss Helen M. Cheney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Cheney of Dorchester, who are announcing her engagement to Samuel J. Picone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Picone of Dorchester. The ceremony will take place at St. Margaret's Church.

IN BERMUDA are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sisson of Chestnut Hill and Carl De Suze, who flew from Logan Airport Saturday.

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 8 1956

TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT of Smith Pops at Symphony Hall and Mary McMurtrie takes table reservations to swell the funds for the scholarships made possible by this annual benefit.

GIFT FOR SUMMER TOUR of Boston Symphony, a $1000 check is presented to Michael T. Kelleher, trustee, and Charles Munch, conductor, by Pres. Joseph Gannon of Eire Society of Boston. European trip opens with concerts in Cork and Dublin.

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 10 1956

News
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 9,700

MAY 10 1956

Journal
CONCORD, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 1,800

MAY 10 1956

Miss Lee Ellice Comins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Danforth W. Comins, Jr. of Barnes Hill road, and Miss Diana Frothingham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Frothingham, the Fenn School, are members of the Radcliffe Choral Society which sang Beethoven's Ninth Symphony in two joint concerts with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Harvard Glee Club. The concerts, held on April 27 and 28 in Symphony Hall, concluded the 75th anniversary year of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with which the RCS and HGC sing annually.

PLAN SYMPHONY HALL EVENT—Temple Mishkan Tefila will sponsor Pops Night at Boston Symphony Hall on June 12. Members of the women's committee, shown above, are, left to right: Mmes. David Shapiro, Harry LaVine (coordinator), Samuel Bojar and Hyman Siegel, president of Sisterhood. In charge of the general committee is Morris Rothstein. Other members are: Mrs. Joseph Bailet, Nathan D. Berman, Mrs. David Feldman, Phillip L. Frank, Nathan Fredman, Robert Glaser, Alan H. Goldstein, Morton Gondleman, Alvin Koppel, Samuel Kushnir, Joseph Lasoff, George M. Levy, Morris Levy, Samuel Marcovitz, Eliot Michelson, Oscar Miller, Mrs. Joseph Pessin, Howard J. Richard, Bertram Rodman, Herbert Sacks, David Shapiro, Samuel Sparks, Bennett Stayman, Leon Steinberg, Alan Tichnor and Jean Weinstein.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

MAY 6 1956

OFFICIAL FETED

...day office chief, was given a party at Symphony Hall, attended by his present and past associates. Simpson, at left, is shown being presented by orchestra manager Thomas D. Perry Jr. with an album containing 75 silver dollars and the autographs of the guests.

...ndent

YOU CAN BE A HYPNOTIST!

At Pops May 16

The annual Dartmouth Night at the Boston Symphony Pops, has been announced for Wednesday, May 16. All net proceeds from the sale of tickets will be contributed to the Greater Boston Scholarship Fund which is sponsored by the Dartmouth Alumni Association.

John Williamson, of Wellesley, is general chairman of the Pops Committee, assisted by the following: Daniel B. Rugles Jr., Swampscott; Gordon K. Wentworth, Wellesley; Richard D. Hill, Marblehead; Wesley Beattie of Mooreland Road; Roger B. Salinger, Newton; Fred F. Stockwell, Winchester; Allan L. Priddy, Brookline; John B. Handrahan, North Weymouth; Richard D. Muzzy, Wellesley; E. Morton Jennings, Needham; John M. Boermeester, Needham; Everett M. Chamberlaine, Hingham; Paul S. Vaitses Jr., of Larchmont Road; and William C. Cusack, Winchester.

Herald
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4468

MAY 10 1956

Leader-Herald
EVERETT, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 12,900

MAY 10 1956

Dora Dannenberg will preside. The Junior Class of the State Teachers College at Boston is planning to attend its annual "Pops Night" at Symphony Hall, Tuesday, May 15. Serving on the committee is Miss Marilyn Chisholm of 9 Summit av.

...are ...mouth ...ld on ...16, at ...benefit ...the ...pops ...has by ...am ...of ...g, ...on ...J. ...hd ...s-...a-...es ...s, ...t-...c-...t

...the Belmont. While at the University she was elected to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities and was a member of Scarlet Key (honorary activities society).

Other members of the committee are: Miss Virginia Brigham, 15 Bellevue road; Dr. Royal Rrye, 11 Whitcomb st., The Jack Danahys and Mrs. Ralph Libby.

The Alumni Celebration, which will feature the annual address by Boston University's President, Dr. Harold C. Case, is scheduled for the first weekend in June.

Boston University night at the Pops, Arthur Fiedler conducting will be held in Symphony Hall June 1 at 8:15 p. m.

The giant clambake, to be held at Boston University Field Saturday, June 2, will feature the cutting of an eight-foot Alumni Reunion Cake, a "25-Year-Hit Parade" by the Boston University Band, and the annual address by Dr. Case.

Late Saturday afternoon the Marine Salute to Boston University on the Charles River, featuring more than 100 yachts from the Watertown, Charlesgate, Charles River, Newton and Massachusetts Bay Association yacht clubs, will parade west from the Basin, ending off the Boston University Campus.

Following the Marine Salute all reuniioning grads will join in the ground-breaking ceremonies for the new womens' dormitory to be located at 140 Bay State rd. near Sherborn st.

The weekend celebration will be concluded with the Baccalaureate Service and Commencement Exercises on Sunday, June 3.

90

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 8 1956

SOCIETY: Farm and Garden Association Holds Benefit Plant Sale on 15th

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

Scholarships for country girls who could not otherwise go to college is one of the fine jobs accomplished by the New England Farm and Garden Association, and their annual plant sale and luncheon May 15 at Mrs. Edwin S. Webster's will help with this worthwhile sale.

Always a treat for garden lovers, this pleasant day in Mrs. Webster's famous Chestnut Hill garden with its hundreds of beautiful tulips, Chinese peony trees, old-fashioned bleeding heart, and rare trillium, is also a chance to stock up on special plants for your own garden. Choice white fuchsias, heliotrope, lemon, verbena, unusual herbs, brilliant lantana, and scores of seedlings and blossoming plants will be available beginning at 10 o'clock.

This year's party will be called a "Hindu Mela," and lunch will be served under a large Indian tent, with guest of honor Dharam Jit Singh, who will speak on "Feats, Flowers, and the Wishing Well." Mrs. John H. Cunningham and Mrs. Frank A. Day Jr. are co-chairmen of the program, and also helping are Mrs. Harry S. Middenorf, Mrs. George W. Smith, Mrs. Charles A. Welch, Miss Elizabeth Weld, Mrs. Paul F. Clark, Mrs. Homer Sweet, Mrs. Richard Mclanathan, Mrs. H. Bigelow Emerson, Mrs. James M. Newell Jr., Mrs. C. Terry Collens, Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard and others.

IN WESTON, enthusiastic gardeners are planning to exchange favorite cuttings, thinnings, and seedlings from each other's gardens at the 6th annual Spring Plant Sale at the First Parish Church on the 16th. Mrs. Richard P. Holland is chairman of the sale, which benefits the Benevolent Alliance of the First Parish. Mrs. Clinton V. Dean Jr. is among the committee helping with this neighborly occasion, to which all are welcome, and also helping plan the day are Mrs. Howard M. Forbes, Mrs. Roswell Eldridge, Mrs. William Elliston, Mrs. Warren Vaughan Jr., Mrs. Harold T. Wilson, Mrs. Edwin Woodland, and Mrs. George Russell Jr.

A SEPTEMBER WEDDING is planned by Miss Helen M. Cheney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Cheney of Dorchester, who are announcing her engagement to Samuel J. Picone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Picone of Dorchester. The ceremony will take place at St. Margaret's Church.

IN BERMUDA are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sisson of Chestnut Hill and Carl De Suze, who flew from Logan Airport Saturday.

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 8 1956

TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT of Smith Pops at Symphony Hall and Mary McMurtrie takes table reservations to swell the funds for the scholarships made possible by this annual benefit.

GIFT FOR SUMMER TOUR of Boston Symphony, a $1000 check is presented to Michael T. Kelleher, trustee, and Charles Munch, conductor, by Pres. Joseph Gannon of Eire Society of Boston. European trip opens with concerts in Cork and Dublin.

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 10 1956

PLAN SYMPHONY HALL EVENT—Temple Mishkan Tefila will sponsor Pops Night at Boston Symphony Hall on June 12. Members of the women's committee, shown above, are, left to right: Mmes. David Shapiro, Harry LaVine (coordinator), Samuel Bojar and Hyman Siegel, president of Sisterhood. In charge of the general committee is Morris Rothstein. Other members are: Mrs. Joseph Bailet, Nathan D. Berman, Mrs. David Feldman, Phillip L. Frank, Nathan Fredman, Robert Glaser, Alan H. Goldstein, Morton Gondleman, Alvin Koppel, Samuel Kushnir, Joseph Lasoff, George M. Levy, Morris Levy, Samuel Marcovitz, Eliot Michelson, Oscar Miller, Mrs. Joseph Pessin, Howard J. Richard, Bertram Rodman, Herbert Sacks, David Shapiro, Samuel Sparks, Bennett Stayman, Leon Steinberg, Alan Tichnor and Jean Weinstein.

News
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 9,700

MAY 10 1956

Journal
CONCORD, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 1,800

MAY 10 1956

Miss Lee Ellice Comins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Danforth W. Comins, Jr. of Barnes Hill road, and Miss Diana Frothingham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Frothingham, the Fenn School, are members of the Radcliffe Choral Society which sang Beethoven's Ninth Symphony in two joint concerts with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Harvard Glee Club. The concerts, held on April 27 and 28 in Symphony Hall, concluded the 75th anniversary year of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with which the RCS and HGC sing annually.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent

IAL FETED

e chief, was given a party at phony Hall, attended by his ent and past associates. Simp-at left, is shown being preed by orchestra manager mas D. Perry Jr. with a m containing 75 silver dollars the autographs of the guests.

Herald
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4468

MAY 10 1956

Leader-Herald
EVERETT, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 12,900

MAY 10 1956

Dora Dannenberg will preside at the Junior Class of the State Teachers College at Boston is planning to attend its annual "Pops Night" at Symphony Hall, Tuesday, May 15. Serving on the committee is Miss Marilyn Chisholm of 9 Summit av.

e are
tmouth

Night at the Pops to be held on Wednesday evening, May 16, at Symphony Hall for the benefit of the scholarship funds of the two colleges. The Vassar Club Pops Committee Chair is Mrs. Thomas Morse of Brookline, assisted by Mrs. Andrew Rankin of Dedham for patronesses, Mrs. Don Foss of Newton Highlands for mailing, Mrs. Robert Haydock of Newton Center for flowers, and Mrs. J. Charles Drooker of Brookline and Mrs. H. Burton Powers of Wellesley for publicity. Duxbury patronesses include Mrs. Charles Carruthers, Mrs. Stuart Huckins, Mrs. David McClosky, Mrs. Warren Stetson, Mrs. Nathaniel Cutler, Jr., Mrs. Cherry Emerson, and Miss Marian Peterson. Tickets may be obtained from the Vasser Club by calling Miss Virginia Bridge at ASpinwall 7-0506.

el-mont. While at the University she was elected to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities and was a member of Scarlet Key (honorary activities society).

Other members of the committee are: Miss Virginia Brigham, 15 Bellevue road; Dr. Royal Rrye, 11 Whitcomb st., The Jack Danahys and Mrs. Ralph Libby.

The Alumni Celebration, which will feature the annual address by Boston University's President, Dr. Harold C. Case, is scheduled for the first weekend in June.

Boston University night at the Pops, Arthur Fiedler conducting will be held in Symphony Hall June 1 at 8:15 p. m.

The giant clambake, to be held at Boston University Field Saturday, June 2, will feature the cutting of an eight-foot Alumni Reunion Cake, a "25-Year-Hit Parade" by the Boston University Band, and the annual address by Dr. Case.

Late Saturday afternoon the Marine Salute to Boston University on the Charles River, featuring more than 100 yachts from the Watertown, Charlesgate, Charles River, Newton and Massachusetts Bay Association yacht clubs, will parade west from the Basin, ending off the Boston University Campus.

Following the Marine Salute all reunioning grads will join in the ground-breaking ceremonies for the new womens' dormitory to be located at 140 Bay State rd. near Sherborn st.

The weekend celebration will be concluded with the Baccalaureate Service and Commencement Exercises on Sunday, June 3.

90

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 8 1956

SOCIETY: Farm and Garden Association Holds Benefit Plant Sale on 15th

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

Scholarships for country girls who could not otherwise go to college is one of the fine jobs accomplished by the New England Farm and Garden Association, and their annual plant sale and luncheon May 15 at Mrs. Edwin S. Webster's will help with this worthwhile sale.

Always a treat for garden lovers, this pleasant day in Mrs. Webster's famous Chestnut Hill garden with its hundreds of beautiful tulips, Chinese peony trees, old-fashioned bleeding heart, and rare trillium, is also a chance to stock up on special plants for your own garden. Choice white fuchsias, heliotrope, lemon, verbena, unusual herbs, brilliant lantana, and scores of seedlings and blossoming plants will be available beginning at 10 o'clock.

This year's party will be called a "Hindu Mela," and lunch will be served under a large Indian tent, with guest of honor Dharam Jit Singh, who will speak on "Feats, Flowers, and the Wishing Well." Mrs. John H. Cunningham and Mrs. Frank A. Day Jr. are co-chairmen of the program, and also helping are Mrs. Harry S. Middenorf, Mrs. George W. Smith, Mrs. Charles A. Welch, Miss Elizabeth Weld, Mrs. Paul F. Clark, Mrs. Homer Sweet, Mrs. Richard Mclanathan, Mrs. H. Bigelow Emerson, Mrs. James M. Newell Jr., Mrs. C. Terry Collens, Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard and others.

IN WESTON, enthusiastic gardeners are planning to exchange favorite cuttings, thinnings, and seedlings from each other's gardens at the 6th annual Spring Plant Sale at the First Parish Church on the 16th. Mrs. Richard P. Holland is chairman of the sale, which benefits the Benevolent Alliance of the First Parish. Mrs. Clinton V. Dean Jr. is among the committee helping with this neighborly occasion, to which all are welcome, and also helping plan the day are Mrs. Howard M. Forbes, Mrs. Roswell Eldridge, Mrs. William Elliston, Mrs. Warren Vaughan Jr., Mrs. Harold T. Wilson, Mrs. Edwin Woodland, and Mrs. George Russell Jr.

A SEPTEMBER WEDDING is planned by Miss Helen M. Cheney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Cheney of Dorchester, who are announcing her engagement to Samuel J. Picone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Picone of Dorchester. The ceremony will take place at St. Margaret's Church.

IN BERMUDA are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sisson of Chestnut Hill and Carl De Suze, who flew from Logan Airport Saturday.

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 8 1956

TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT of Smith Pops at Symphony Hall and Mary McMurtrie takes table reservations to swell the funds for the scholarships made possible by this annual benefit.

GIFT FOR SUMMER TOUR of Boston Symphony, a $1000 check is presented to Michael T. Kelleher, trustee, and Charles Munch, conductor, by Pres. Joseph Gannon of Eire Society of Boston. European trip opens with concerts in Cork and Dublin.

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 10 1956

News
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 9,700

MAY 10 1956

Journal
CONCORD, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 1,800

MAY 10 1956

Miss Lee Ellice Comins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Danforth W. Comins, Jr. of Barnes Hill road, and Miss Diana Frothingham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Frothingham, the Fenn School, are members of the Radcliffe Choral Society which sang Beethoven's Ninth Symphony in two joint concerts with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Harvard Glee Club. The concerts, held on April 27 and 28 in Symphony Hall, concluded the 75th anniversary year of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with which the RCS and HGC sing annually.

PLAN SYMPHONY HALL EVENT—Temple Mishkan Tefila will sponsor Pops Night at Boston Symphony Hall on June 12. Members of the women's committee, shown above, are, left to right: Mmes. David Shapiro, Harry LaVine (coordinator), Samuel Bojar and Hyman Siegel, president of Sisterhood. In charge of the general committee is Morris Rothstein. Other members are: Mrs. Joseph Bailet, Nathan D. Berman, Mrs. David Feldman, Phillip L. Frank, Nathan Fredman, Robert Glaser, Alan H. Goldstein, Morton Gondleman, Alvin Koppel, Samuel Kushnir, Joseph Lasoff, George M. Levy, Morris Levy, Samuel Marcovitz, Eliot Michelson, Oscar Miller, Mrs. Joseph Pessin, Howard J. Richard, Bertram Rodman, Herbert Sacks, David Shapiro, Samuel Sparks, Bennett Stayman, Leon Steinberg, Alan Tichnor and Jean Weinstein.

Sunda
BOSTO
Indep
Circ.

MAY

METHODIST CHURCH

Day, at 11 a. m. Sunday School at the Parish House on Washington St. at 9:30. Francis Perry, Superintendent. Young People at the Parish House Sunday at 6 p. m., Donald King, leader.

The Evening Alliance meets at the Parish House Thursday at 8 p. m. Hostesses will be Mrs. Elmer Glass and Mrs. Russell Seaver.

The Day Alliance meets at the Parish House for sewing Thursday, May 17, at 10:30 a. m. Luncheon will be served at 12:30: hostesses will be Mrs. Elizabeth Clark, Mrs. Gertrude Coffin, and Mrs. Margaret Farnsworth. The Senior f, was given a party at Hall, attended by his d past associates. Simpft, is shown being pre- orchestra manager D. Perry Jr. with ntaining 75 silver dollars utographs of the guests.

FETED

Herald
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan

On May 16th

Vassar Alumnae from the Hingham area are busy planning for the Vassar-Dartmouth Night at the "Pops" to be held Wednesday evening, May 16th at Boston Symphony Hall for the benefit of the scholarship funds of the two colleges.

Mrs. Thomas Morse of Brookline heads the Vassar Pops Committee.

Patronesses from Hingham include: Mrs: Miles Wambaugh, Mrs. Higbee Burgess, Mrs. Lawrence Dana, Mrs. Joseph C. Roper, Jr., Mrs. Humphrey Swift, Mrs. Peter Prudden, Mrs. Louville Niles, Mrs. Thomas Perry and Mrs. Joseph Allen.

Tickets may be obtained from the Vassar Club by calling Miss Virginia Bridge, ASpinwall 7-0506.

JUNE 1 TO 3

Five Belmont residents are now busy with the plans for the Boston University Alumni weekend.

Miss Sandra Bailey, 34 Oak Street, is chairman of the Belmont Promotion Committee. A graduate of 1955, she is presently helping to organize the Boston University Club of Belmont. While at the University she was elected to Who's Who among Students in American Colleges and Universities and was a member of Scarlet Key (honorary activities society).

Other members of the committee are: Miss Virginia Brigham, 15 Bellevue road; Dr. Royal Rrye, 11 Whitcomb st., The Jack Danahys and Mrs. Ralph Libby.

The Alumni Celebration, which will feature the annual address by Boston University's President, Dr. Harold C. Case, is scheduled for the first weekend in June.

Boston University night at the Pops, Arthur Fiedler conducting will be held in Symphony Hall June 1 at 8:15 p. m.

The giant clambake, to be held at Boston University Field Saturday, June 2, will feature the cutting of an eight-foot Alumni Reunion Cake, a "25-Year-Hit Parade" by the Boston University Band, and the annual address by Dr. Case.

Late Saturday afternoon the Marine Salute to Boston University on the Charles River, featuring more than 100 yachts from the Watertown, Charlesgate, Charles River, Newton and Massachusetts Bay Association yacht clubs, will parade west from the Basin, ending off the Boston University Campus.

Following the Marine Salute all reunioning grads will join in the ground-breaking ceremonies for the new womens' dormitory to be located at 140 Bay State rd. near Sherborn st.

The weekend celebration will be concluded with the Baccalaureate Service and Commencement Exercises on Sunday, June 3.

TIGHT BINDING

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 10 1956

Society: Let's See -- There's Doc, Dopey, Sneezy, Sleepy, Happy and . . .

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" will go on tour this month from the North Bennet-st. Industrial School. On May 26, a cast of 23 children—now busy designing costumes and scenery—will head for Concord to give a benefit performance in aid of the Boxford Summer Camp, which the school runs for North End youngsters.

Mrs. Henry B. Bigelow is entertaining at tea at her house on Sudbury road in Concord this afternoon to make plans for the country performance. This year will be the 36th in the records of tour performances by the Red Feather agency's dramatic club. club.

Clayton Greene, Mrs. Henry V. Greenough, Mrs. John Quincy Adams, Mrs. Robert C. Butman, Mrs. Frederick T. Walkey, Mrs. Brooks Stevens Jr., Mrs. Ernest R. Spinney, Mrs. Dana B. Hinckley, Mrs. Henry A. Laughlin, Mrs. Robert J. Rodday and Mrs. Graydon Smith.

IN HOLLIS, N. H.—Mr. and Mrs. Roland G. Hanson are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Shirley Anne, to Jason W. Dade, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Dade of Winchester. Miss Hanson is a student at Gordon College. Her fiance graduated from Gordon and is attending its Divinity School. An August wedding is planned.

LAST YEAR'S GRADUATES of Vassar will have a reunion of their own at Vassar night at Pops on May 16, because the flower sellers are drawn from members of the 1955 class now living near Boston. Proceeds from the tickets and the camellias and gardenias will aid the Boston Vassar Club's Scholarship Fund.

Vendors will include Mary North, Susan Cosgriff and Letitia Ewing, who have an apartment together in Cambridge; Eda Contigulia, Ruth Zeller, Emily Schacht and Margaret Gallo, who also share a Cambridge apartment. Other flower sellers are Eleanor Schatsky, Joan Conroy, Rosemary Lum, Dana Tilman, Mrs. John Halstead, Mrs. Byron T. Atwood Jr., Mrs. Bradford Wellman, Mrs. David Colt, ball that evening, planned by Miss Greta Clark, Nicholas De Wolf and members of the Boston Lions Club, there will be a fortune teller to add to the entertainment. Among the first to accept invitations to serve as sponsors for the party are Mr. and Mrs. John Codman Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Jerome S. Augustine and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Henderson 3d. Thomas Groom is in charge of tickets.

A MUSICAL BENEFIT planned for the Beth El Temple Center will be a recital to be offered on May 19 by Minuetta Kessler at the Center in Belmont. "A World Passed By" which was chosen by a jury of music critics to be presented at the Boston Arts Festival last June, will be on the program. Mrs. David M. Banen is concert chairman.

Mrs. Gordon Abbott Jr., Mrs. John B. Henderson, Mrs. William Schwartz, Mrs. George Antich and Mrs. John L. Bennett.

Mrs. Robert Haydock Jr. of Newton is chairman of the flower committee.

AT THE CAMBRIDGE BOAT CLUB on May 25, a king and queen will be chosen to reign over the Bal des Yeux, which benefits eye research. At the FRIDAY will be Beaver Night at Pops. Mrs. Herbert C. Talbot, Beaver alumna, and Judy and Toby Talbot, are helping with plans.

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 10 1956

Citizen
BRIGHTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 9,550

MAY 10 1956

ANNUAL POPS NIGHT Junior Auxiliary of Jewish Memorial Hospital will be held Tuesday, May 22, at Symphony Hall. Miss Arlene Flashenberg, Brookline, is general chairman, and tickets may be obtained from her.

Hospital Auxiliary Installs Officers

Miss Lois Cibley of Allston was installed as president of Junior Auxiliary of Jewish Memorial Hospital Tuesday evening, May 8, in the hospital's auditorium, 45 Townsend St., Roxbury.

Miss Thelma Schwartz, also of Allston, was installed as treasurer, along with Miss Betty Segal, a newly elected member of the board. Mrs. Robert Rubin of Brighton was installed as recording secretary. Entertainment was provided by the Brotherhood Temple Ohabei Shalom Glee Club.

Reports were given on the Give and Earn Dinner to be held May 10 in Sherry Bitlmore Hotel, and the Pops Night scheduled for May 22.

Journal
REVERE, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 7950

MAY 10 1956

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 11 1956

91

Symphony's Perry Awaits Soviet Word on Orchestra Visit

A "da" from Moscow will send Thomas D. Perry Jr., Boston Symphony manager, winging to Europe tomorrow to arrange the final details of the orchestra's tour which may take it to Russia.

Preliminary arrangements have been made; Perry says his bag is packed for the trip. He awaits only favorable word from the Russian Government.

The Boston Symphony's European tour begins in Ireland on Aug. 24 and includes visits to Germany and the Scandinavian countries, with Helsinki, the Easternmost stop scheduled at the moment.

With some rearrangement of the already planned tour, it would be an easy matter for the Boston Symphony to go on from Helsinki to Leningrad or Moscow.

According to informed sources in Washington, the State Department has advised the Symphony management not to cancel concerts already scheduled for the West side of the Iron Curtain just to squeeze in a trip to Russia.

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 11 1956

N. H. University's Pops Night Thursday

University of New Hampshire's annual Pops Night will be held Thursday night at 8:30 in Symphony Hall. The university choir will take part in the evening's selections.

A reception at the Harvard Club at 6:45 p. m., prior to Pops, will introduce the recently appointed president and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. Eldon L. Johnson, to Greater Boston alumni.

Gov. and Mrs. Lane Dwinell of New Hampshire will be honored guests.

The choir of 60 students, under the direction of Prof. Karl Bratton, will participate in selections of New Hampshire folk tunes.

Proceeds will go to the Alumni Club's Gold Star scholarship fund. Members of the committee are Bernard Delman of Boston, Amy Silver of Brookline and Paul I. Mann of Brookline.

Citizen
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-partisan
Circ. 4,129

MAY 11 1956

The junior class of the State Teachers College at Boston is planning to attend its annual "Pops Night" at Symphony Hall, Tuesday, May 15. Serving on the committee in charge of arrangements is Miss Irene Driscoll, 3 Leicester rd.

GOING TO POPS—Robert Janvrin, teacher, buys ticket for "Revere Night at the Pops" from student Terry Mayo. At the right is Marietta Nigrelli. Other students pictured are Arthur Rosenblatt, left, and Leslie Yampolsky. The Revere High Choral club, under the direction of William O. Goss, will sing at a Pops concert May 20. The evening already is a sellout. (Photo by John Walsh)

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 11 1956

EMMANUEL NIGHT AT POPS—Mrs. James J. McDonnell of Norwood, Mrs. Frank P. Marchetti of Somerville and Mrs. Joseph L. Gillis of West Roxbury, left to right, go over program for Emmanuel Night at the Pops Monday at Symphony Hall.

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 10 1956

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 397,884

MAY 11 1956

Closed.

UNIV. OF MASS. NIGHT

The annual University of Massachusetts Night will be held Wednesday, June 13, at the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall. Proceeds will go to the Greater Boston Scholarship Fund.

TIGHT BINDING

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 10 1956

Society: Let's See -- There's Doc, Dopey, Sneezy, Sleepy, Happy and . . .

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" will go on tour this month from the North Bennet-st. Industrial School. On May 26, a cast of 23 children—now busy designing costumes and scenery—will head for Concord to give a benefit performance in aid of the Boxford Summer Camp, which the school runs for North End youngsters.

Mrs. Henry B. Bigelow is entertaining at tea at her house on Sudbury road in Concord this afternoon to make plans for the country performance. This year will be the 36th in the records of tour performances by the Red Feather agency's dramatic club. club.

Clayton Greene, Mrs. Henry V. Greenough, Mrs. John Quincy Adams, Mrs. Robert C. Butman, Mrs. Frederick T. Walkey, Mrs. Brooks Stevens Jr., Mrs. Ernest R. Spinney, Mrs. Dana B. Hinckley, Mrs. Henry A. Laughlin, Mrs. Robert J. Rodday and Mrs. Graydon Smith.

IN HOLLIS, N. H.—Mr. and Mrs. Roland G. Hanson are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Shirley Anne, to Jason W. Dade, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Dade of Winchester. Miss Hanson is a student at Gordon College. Her fiance graduated from Gordon and is attending its Divinity School. An August wedding is planned.

LAST YEAR'S GRADUATES of Vassar will have a reunion of their own at Vassar night at Pops on May 16, because the flower sellers are drawn from members of the 1955 class now living near Boston. Proceeds from the tickets and the camellias and gardenias will aid the Boston Vassar Club's Scholarship Fund.

Vendors will include Mary North, Susan Cosgriff and Letitia Ewing, who have an apartment together in Cambridge; Eda Contigulia, Ruth Zeller, Emily Schacht and Margaret Gallo, who also share a Cambridge apartment. Other flower sellers are Eleanor Schatsky, Joan Conroy, Rosemary Lum, Dana Tilman, Mrs. John Halstead, Mrs. Gordon Abbott Jr., Mrs. John B. Henderson, Mrs. William Schwartz, Mrs. George Antich and Mrs. John L. Bennett.

Mrs. Robert Haydock Jr. of Newton is chairman of the flower committee.

AT THE CAMBRIDGE BOAT CLUB on May 25, a king and queen will be chosen to reign over the Bal des Yeux, which benefits eye research. At the ball that evening, planned by Miss Greta Clark, Nicholas De Wolf and members of the Boston Lions Club, there will be a fortune teller to add to the entertainment. Among the first to accept invitations to serve as sponsors for the party are Mr. and Mrs. John Codman Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Jerome S. Augustine and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Henderson 3d. Thomas Groom is in charge of tickets.

A MUSICAL BENEFIT planned for the Beth El Temple Center will be a recital to be offered on May 19 by Minuetta Kessler at the Center in Belmont. "A World Passed By" which was chosen by a jury of music critics to be presented at the Boston Arts Festival last June, will be on the program. Mrs. David M. Banen is concert chairman.

Byron T. Atwood Jr., Mrs. Bradford Wellman, Mrs. David Colt,

FRIDAY will be Beaver Night at Pops. Mrs. Herbert C. Talbot, Beaver alumna, and Judy and Toby Talbot, are helping with plans.

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 10 1956

Citizen
BRIGHTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 9,550

10 1956

ANNUAL POPS NIGHT Junior Auxiliary of Jewi Memorial Hospital will be he Tuesday, May 22, at Symphon Hall. Miss Arlene Flashenberg, Brookline, is general chairman, and tickets may be obtained from her.

Hospital Auxiliary Installs Officers

Miss Lois Cibley of Allston was installed as president of Junior Auxiliary of Jewish Memorial Hospital Tuesday evening, May 8, in the hospital's auditorium, 45 Townsend St., Roxbury.

Miss Thelma Schwartz, also of Allston, was installed as treasurer, along with Miss Betty Segal, a newly elected member of the board. Mrs. Robert Rubin of Brighton was installed as recording secretary. Entertainment was provided by the Brotherhood Temple Ohabei Shalom Glee Club.

Reports were given on the Give and Earn Dinner to be held May 10 in Sherry Bitlmore Hotel, and the Pops Night scheduled for May 22.

Journal
REVERE, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 7950

10 1956

GOING TO POPS—Robert Janvrin, teacher, buys ticket for "Revere Night at the Pops" from student Terry Mayo. At the right is Marietta Nigrelli. Other students pictured are Arthur Rosenblatt, left, and Leslie Yampolsky. The Revere High Choral club, under the direction of William O. Goss, will sing at a Pops concert May 20. The evening already is a sellout. (Photo by John Walsh)

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 11 1956

EMMANUEL NIGHT AT POPS—Mrs. James J. McDonnell of Norwood, Mrs. Frank P. Marchetti of Somerville and Mrs. Joseph L. Gillis of West Roxbury, left to right, go over program for Emmanuel Night at the Pops Monday at Symphony Hall.

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 11 1956

Symphony's Perry Awaits Soviet Word on Orchestra Visit

A "da" from Moscow will send Thomas D. Perry Jr., Boston Symphony manager, winging to Europe tomorrow to arrange the final details of the orchestra's tour which may take it to Russia.

Preliminary arrangements have been made; Perry says his bag is packed for the trip. He awaits only favorable word from the Russian Government.

The Boston Symphony's European tour begins in Ireland on Aug. 24 and includes visits to Germany and the Scandinavian countries, with Helsinki, the Easternmost stop scheduled at the moment.

With some rearrangement of the already planned tour, it would be an easy matter for the Boston Symphony to go on from Helsinki to Leningrad or Moscow.

According to informed sources in Washington, the State Department has advised the Symphony management not to cancel concerts already scheduled for the West side of the Iron Curtain just to squeeze in a trip to Russia.

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 11 1956

N. H. University's Pops Night Thursday

University of New Hampshire's annual Pops Night will be held Thursday night at 8:30 in Symphony Hall. The university choir will take part in the evening's selections.

A reception at the Harvard Club at 6:45 p. m., prior to Pops, will introduce the recently appointed president and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. Eldon L. Johnson, to Greater Boston alumni.

Gov. and Mrs. Lane Dwinell of New Hampshire will be honored guests.

The choir of 60 students, under the direction of Prof. Karl Bratton, will participate in selections of New Hampshire folk tunes.

Proceeds will go to the Alumni Club's Gold Star scholarship fund.

Members of the committee are Bernard Delman of Boston, Ann Silver of Brookline and Paul I. Mann of Brookline.

Citizen
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-partisan
Circ. 4,129

MAY 11 1956

The junior class of the State Teachers College at Boston is planning to attend its annual "Pops Night" at Symphony Hall, Tuesday, May 15. Serving on the committee in charge of arrangements is Miss Irene Driscoll, 3 Leicester rd.

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 10 1956

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 397,884

MAY 11 1956

missed.

UNIV. OF MASS. NIGHT

The annual University of Massachusetts Night will be held Wednesday, June 13, at the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall. Proceeds will go to the Greater Boston Scholarship Fund.

TIGHT BINDING

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 10 1956

Society: Let's See -- There's Doc, Dopey, Sneezy, Sleepy, Happy and . . .

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" will go on tour this month from the North Bennet-st. Industrial School. On May 26, a cast of 23 children—now busy designing costumes and scenery—will head for Concord to give a benefit performance in aid of the Boxford Summer Camp, which the school runs for North End youngsters.

Mrs. Henry B. Bigelow is entertaining at tea at her house on Sudbury road in Concord this afternoon to make plans for the country performance. This year will be the 36th in the records of tour performances by the Red Feather agency's dramatic club. club.

Clayton Greene, Mrs. Henry V. Greenough, Mrs. John Quincy Adams, Mrs. Robert C. Butman, Mrs. Frederick T. Walkey, Mrs. Brooks Stevens Jr., Mrs. Ernest R. Spinney, Mrs. Dana B. Hinckley, Mrs. Henry A. Laughlin, Mrs. Robert J. Rodday and Mrs. Graydon Smith.

IN HOLLIS, N. H.—Mr. and Mrs. Roland G. Hanson are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Shirley Anne, to Jason W. Dade, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Dade of Winchester. Miss Hanson is a student at Gordon College. Her fiance graduated from Gordon and is attending its Divinity School. An August wedding is planned.

LAST YEAR'S GRADUATES of Vassar will have a reunion of their own at Vassar night at Pops on May 16, because the flower sellers are drawn from members of the 1955 class now living near Boston. Proceeds from the tickets and the camellias and gardenias will aid the Boston Vassar Club's Scholarship Fund.

Vendors will include Mary North, Susan Cosgriff and Letitia Ewing, who have an apartment together in Cambridge; Eda Contigulia, Ruth Zeller, Emily Schacht and Margaret Gallo, who also share a Cambridge apartment. Other flower sellers are Eleanor Schatsky, Joan Conroy, Rosemary Lum, Dana Tilman, Mrs. John Halstead, Mrs. Byron T. Atwood Jr., Mrs. Bradford Wellman, Mrs. David Colt, Mrs. Gordon Abbott Jr., Mrs. John B. Henderson, Mrs. William Schwartz, Mrs. George Antich and Mrs. John L. Bennett.

Mrs. Robert Haydock Jr. of Newton is chairman of the flower committee.

AT THE CAMBRIDGE BOAT CLUB on May 25, a king and queen will be chosen to reign over the Bal des Yeux, which benefits eye research. At the ball that evening, planned by Miss Greta Clark, Nicholas De Wolf and members of the Boston Lions Club, there will be a fortune teller to add to the entertainment. Among the first to accept invitations to serve as sponsors for the party are Mr. and Mrs. John Codman Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Jerome S. Augustine and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Henderson 3d. Thomas Groom is in charge of tickets.

A MUSICAL BENEFIT planned for the Beth El Temple Center will be a recital to be offered on May 19 by Minuetta Kessler at the Center in Belmont. "A World Passed By" which was chosen by a jury of music critics to be presented at the Boston Arts Festival last June, will be on the program. Mrs. David M. Banen is concert chairman.

FRIDAY will be Beaver Night at Pops. Mrs. Herbert C. Talbot, Beaver alumna, and Judy and Toby Talbot, are helping with plans.

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 10 1956

Citizen
BRIGHTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 9,550

MAY 10 1956

ANNUAL POPS NIGHT Junior Auxiliary of Jewi Memorial Hospital will be he Tuesday, May 22, at Symphon Hall. Miss Arlene Flashenberg, Brookline, is general chairman, and tickets may be obtained from her.

Hospital Auxiliary Installs Officers

Miss Lois Cibley of Allston was installed as president of Junior Auxiliary of Jewish Memorial Hospital Tuesday evening, May 8, in the hospital's auditorium, 45 Townsend St., Roxbury.

Miss Thelma Schwartz, also of Allston, was installed as treasurer, along with Miss Betty Segal, a newly elected member of the board. Mrs. Robert Rubin of Brighton was installed as recording secretary. Entertainment was provided by th Brotherhood Temple Oha Shalom Glee Club.

Reports were given o Give and Earn Dinner held May 10 in Sherry Hotel, and the Pop scheduled for May 22.

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 11 1956

Symphony's Perry Awaits Soviet Word on Orchestra Visit

A "da" from Moscow will send Thomas D. Perry Jr., Boston Symphony manager, winging to Europe tomorrow to arrange the final details of the orchestra's tour which may take it to Russia.

Preliminary arrangements have been made; Perry says his bag is packed for the trip. He awaits only favorable word from the Russian Government.

The Boston Symphony's European tour begins in Ireland on Aug. 24 and includes visits to Germany and the Scandinavian countries, with Helsinki, the Easternmost stop scheduled at the moment.

With some rearrangement of the already planned tour, it would be an easy matter for the Boston Symphony to go on from Helsinki to Leningrad or Moscow.

According to informed sources in Washington, the State Department has advised the Symphony management not to cancel concerts already scheduled for the West side of the Iron Curtain just to squeeze in a trip to Russia.

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 11 1956

N. H. University's Pops Night Thursday

University of New Hampshire's annual Pops Night will be held Thursday night at 8:30 in Symphony Hall. The university choir will take part in the evening's selections.

A reception at the Harvard Club at 6:45 p. m., prior to Pops, will introduce the recently appointed president and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. Eldon L. Johnson, to Greater Boston alumni.

Gov. and Mrs. Lane Dwinell of New Hampshire will be honored guests.

The choir of 60 students, under the direction of Prof. Karl Bratton, will participate in selections of New Hampshire folk tunes.

Proceeds will go to the Alumni Club's Gold Star scholarship fund.

Members of the committee are Bernard Delman of Boston, Ann Silver of Brookline and Paul I. Mann of Brookline.

Citizen
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-partisan
Circ. 4,129

MAY 11 1956

The junior class of the State Teachers College at Boston is planning to attend its annual "Pops Night" at Symphony Hall, Tuesday, May 15. Serving on the committee in charge of arrangements is Miss Irene Driscoll, 3 Leicester rd.

Journal
REVERE, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 7950

MAY 10 1956

GOING TO POPS—Robert Janvrin, teacher, buys ticket for "Revere Night at the Pops" from student Terry Mayo. At the right is Marietta Nigrelli. Other students pictured are Arthur Rosenblatt, left, and Leslie Yampolsky. The Revere High Choral club, under the direction of William O. Goss, will sing at a Pops concert May 20. The evening already is a sellout. (Photo by John Walsh)

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 11 1956

EMMANUEL NIGHT AT POPS—Mrs. James J. McDonnell of Norwood, Mrs. Frank P. Marchetti of Somerville and Mrs. Joseph L. Gillis of West Roxbury, left to right, go over program for Emmanuel Night at the Pops Monday at Symphony Hall.

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan

MASS. NIGHT AT POPS

The annual University of Massachusetts night will be held June 13 at the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall. Proceeds will go to the Greater Boston Scholarship Fund of the Boston Alumni Club.

TIGHT BINDING

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 10 1956

Society: Let's See -- There's Doc, Dopey, Sneezy, Sleepy, Happy and . . .

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" will go on tour this month from the North Bennet-st. Industrial School. On May 26, a cast of 23 children—now busy designing costumes and scenery—will head for Concord to give a benefit performance in aid of the Boxford Summer Camp, which the school runs for North End youngsters.

Mrs. Henry B. Bigelow is entertaining at tea at her house on Sudbury road in Concord this afternoon to make plans for the country performance. This year will be the 36th in the records of tour performances by the Red Feather agency's dramatic club. club.

Clayton Greene, Mrs. Henry V. Greenough, Mrs. John Quincy Adams, Mrs. Robert C. Butman, Mrs. Frederick T. Walkey, Mrs. Brooks Stevens Jr., Mrs. Ernest R. Spinney, Mrs. Dana B. Hinckley, Mrs. Henry A. Laughlin, Mrs. Robert J. Rodday and Mrs. Graydon Smith.

IN HOLLIS, N. H.—Mr. and Mrs. Roland G. Hanson are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Shirley Anne, to Jason W. Dade, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Dade of Winchester. Miss Hanson is a student at Gordon College. Her fiance graduated from Gordon and is attending its Divinity School. An August wedding is planned.

LAST YEAR'S GRADUATES of Vassar will have a reunion of their own at Vassar night at Pops on May 16, because the flower sellers are drawn from members of the 1955 class now living near Boston. Proceeds from the tickets and the camellias and gardenias will aid the Boston Vassar Club's Scholarship Fund.

Vendors will include Mary North, Susan Cosgriff and Letitia Ewing, who have an apartment together in Cambridge; Eda Contigulia, Ruth Zeller, Emily Schacht and Margaret Gallo, who also share a Cambridge apartment. Other flower sellers are Eleanor Schatsky, Joan Conroy, Rosemary Lum, Dana Tilman, Mrs. John Halstead, Mrs. Mrs. Gordon Abbott Jr., Mrs. John B. Henderson, Mrs. William Schwartz, Mrs. George Antich and Mrs. John L. Bennett.

Mrs. Robert Haydock Jr. of Newton is chairman of the flower committee.

AT THE CAMBRIDGE BOAT CLUB on May 25, a king and queen will be chosen to reign over the Bal des Yeux, which benefits eye research. At the ball that evening, planned by Miss Greta Clark, Nicholas De Wolf and members of the Boston Lions Club, there will be a fortune teller to add to the entertainment. Among the first to accept invitations to serve as sponsors for the party are Mr. and Mrs. John Codman Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Jerome S. Augustine and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Henderson 3d. Thomas Groom is in charge of tickets.

A MUSICAL BENEFIT planned for the Beth El Temple Center will be a recital to be offered on May 19 by Minuetta Kessler at the Center in Belmont. "A World Passed By" which was chosen by a jury of music critics to be presented at the Boston Arts Festival last June, will be on the program. Mrs. David M. Banen is concert chairman.

Byron T. Atwood Jr., Mrs. Bradford Wellman, Mrs. David Cult,

FRIDAY will be Beaver Night at Pops. Mrs. Herbert C. Talbot, Beaver alumna, and Judy and Toby Talbot, are helping with plans.

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 10 1956

Citizen
BRIGHTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 9,550

MAY 10 1956

ANNUAL POPS NIGHT Junior Auxiliary of Jewi Memorial Hospital will be he Tuesday, May 22, at Symphon Hall. Miss Arlene Flashenberg, Brookline, is general chairman, and tickets may be obtained from her.

Hospital Auxiliary Installs Officers

Miss Lois Cibley of Allston was installed as president of Junior Auxiliary of Jewish Memorial Hospital Tuesday evening, May 8, in the hospital's auditorium, 45 Townsend St., Roxbury.

Miss Thelma Schwartz, also of Allston, was installed as treasurer, along with Miss Betty Segal, a newly elected member of the board. Mrs. Robert Rubin of Brighton was installed as recording secretary. Entertainment was provided by th Brotherhood Temple Oha Shalom Glee Club.

Reports were given o Give and Earn Dinner held May 10 in Sherry F Hotel, and the Pop scheduled for May 22.

Journal
REVERE, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 7950

MAY 10 1956

GOING TO POPS—Robert Janvrin, teacher, buys ticket for "Revere Night at the Pops" from student Terry Mayo. At the right is Marietta Nigrelli. Other students pictured are Arthur Rosenblatt, left, and Leslie Yampolsky. The Revere High Choral club, under the direction of William O. Goss, will sing at a Pops concert May 20. The evening already is a sellout. (Photo by John Walsh)

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 11 1956

Symphony's Perry Awaits Soviet Word on Orchestra Visit

A "da" from Moscow will send Thomas D. Perry Jr., Boston Symphony manager, winging to Europe tomorrow to arrange the final details of the orchestra's tour which may take it to Russia.

Preliminary arrangements have been made; Perry says his bag is packed for the trip. He awaits only favorable word from the Russian Government.

The Boston Symphony's European tour begins in Ireland on Aug. 24 and includes visits to Germany and the Scandinavian countries, with Helsinki, the Easternmost stop scheduled at the moment.

With some rearrangement of the already planned tour, it would be an easy matter for the Boston Symphony to go on from Helsinki to Leningrad or Moscow.

According to informed sources in Washington, the State Department has advised the Symphony management not to cancel concerts already scheduled for the West side of the Iron Curtain just to squeeze in a trip to Russia.

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 11 1956

N. H. University's Pops Night Thursday

University of New Hampshire's annual Pops Night will be held Thursday night at 8:30 in Symphony Hall. The university choir will take part in the evening's selections.

A reception at the Harvard Club at 6:45 p. m., prior to Pops, will introduce the recently appointed president and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. Eldon L. Johnson, to Greater Boston alumni.

Gov. and Mrs. Lane Dwinell of New Hampshire will be honored guests.

The choir of 60 students, under the direction of Prof. Karl Bratton, will participate in selections of New Hampshire folk tunes.

Proceeds will go to the Alumni Club's Gold Star scholarship fund.

Members of the committee are Bernard Delman of Boston, Ann Silver of Brookline and Paul I. Mann of Brookline.

Citizen
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-partisan
Circ. 4,129

MAY 11 1956

The junior class of the State Teachers College at Boston is planning to attend its annual "Pops Night" at Symphony Hall, Tuesday, May 15. Serving on the committee in charge of arrangements is Miss Irene Driscoll, 3 Leicester rd.

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 11 1956

EMMANUEL NIGHT AT POPS—Mrs. James J. McDonnell of Norwood, Mrs. Frank P. Marchetti of Somerville and Mrs. Joseph L. Gillis of West Roxbury, left to right, go over program for Emmanuel Night at the Pops Monday at Symphony Hall.

chusetts Ni... will be held Wednesday, June 13, at the Pops Concert, Symphony Hall.

Proceeds of the concert will be contributed to the Greater Boston Scholarship Fund of the Boston Alumni Club.

Dr. J. Henry Winn of Newton is president of the Boston Club. Co-chairmen of the Pops Committee are Robert Spillen of Needham and Eleanor Bateman of Boston.

INFORMATION OBSCURED

97

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 12 1956

Society: Famed Chestnut Hill Gardens Open for Visitors May 14, 21

(Globe Photo by John Sheahan)

READY TO PARTICIPATE in Dedham's big annual Memorial Day Horse Show at the Country and Polo Club is Penny Crittendon of Dover, and ready to make it a blue ribbon is "Heather". Proceeds of the show will as usual go to the Children's Medical Center.

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

The interesting contemporary house built for the late Serge Koussevitzky, Boston Symphony Orchestra's long-famous conductor, will be open—as well as the lovely garden designed to match the house—for Monday's Chestnut Hill Garden Club visitors' day.

Both this Monday, the 14th, and on Monday, the 21st, some of the famous and beautiful gardens of this handsome Boston suburb will be open to the public, and on both days luncheon will be served. This coming Monday, the Koussevitsky house, now owned by Mrs. Robert Reiser, will be open for the luncheon, which will be a help-yourself chef's salad served with hot French and Italian breads and coffee.

Also open will be Mrs. Edwin S. Webster's marvelous gardens on Hammond st., John Goodrich's neighboring Essex-road garden, which has never been open before, Mrs. Charles W. Mason's at nearby-road garden, which has a fascinating woodland with Spring primroses and bulbs, and a very old rose garden.

Mrs. Richard Walcott's garden has an outdoor living-room terrace, lovely flower borders and a fountain, and Mrs. James Parker's Goddard-av. garden includes an orchid and hibiscus greenhouse which the Parkers themselves planned and have filled with plants.

May 17, the renowned little gardens of Beacon Hill will be open from 10 to 6, rain or shine, and in addition to the favorite gardens of Mrs. Robert Cushman, Mrs. Thomas Howard and Mrs. Frederick Stagg, there will be a new garden, that of Theodore Hebert, Consul for the Netherlands, whose sister, Miss Polly Hebert, is showing their fabulous collection of Dutch bulbs in blossom. Dozens of Beacon Hill neighbors will act as hostesses for the open house, which also includes the gardens of Mrs. James White, Mrs. Edward Taft and Mrs. Clayton Rice.

IN THE COUNTRY, Open House Day for some of Middleton's oldest houses will be Saturday, May 19, and included is the interesting old house now owned by the Charles Hadley Watkins. Mr. Watkins, who did such an outstanding job in helping the Lantern League raise funds for the restoration of the old North Church steeple, went to the White House to present President Eisenhower with a special print of the church. Mrs. Watkins, president of the Middleton Historical Society, which is sponsoring the town's first open house day, is author of several books on early New England pottery and glass.

FOR THE SIXTH YEAR, Boston graduates of Sweet Briar College will hold an auction for the benefit of the college's scholarship fund. The latest in electrical appliances will be sold, as well as old-fashioned hooked rugs and food prepared according to family recipes. Alumnae from all over the country are sending donations to the house of Mrs. Howard B. Sloan in Topsfield for the May 14 benefit, which begins at 10:30.

Sponsors for the auction include Mrs. Richard M. Wyman, Mrs. Franklin Parker, Mrs. Albert Goodhue, Mrs. William Robertson, Mrs. Ganson Taggart, Mrs. George Hill, Mrs. Harvey Chamberlain, Mrs. Leo Feuer, Mrs. Robert Hill and Mrs. Keith Pecear.

"CROSSING THE TIME BRIDGE" will be the subject of a lecture by Carl de Suze to benefit St. John's Church in Beverly Farms on May 25. Mrs. Charles Tifft is in charge of tickets for the 8:15 benefit at Horticultural Hall in Manchester.

Among the many planning dinner parties before the lecture are the John Bryants, the Tudor Lelands, the Samuel Hallowells and the George Hodges. Mrs. William Carson, president of the Altar Guild, and Mrs. Bayard Warren are planning dinner parties for their grandchildren. Also sponsoring this event are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Batchelder, Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Bigelow, Samuel Cabot Jr., Charles E. Cotting, Brinley M. Hall, Mrs. Herbert Jaques, Mrs. John T. Nightingale, Mr. and Mrs. Bradbury Patch, Mr. and Mrs. Renouf Russell, Mr. Henry Vance, Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Wadsworth, Mrs. Grassie B. Ward and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wigglesworth.

Times
BELLOWS FALLS, Vt.
Weekly Ind. Republican
Circ. 3,413

MAY 10 1956

About Town

Miss Barbara Booth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Booth, is home following her graduation from the Thompson School of Agriculture of the University of New Hampshire last week. She is with Dr. Tucker Burr at his veterinary hospital, but according to present plans will return to the University in the fall to continue her studies. spend a part of the summer in Europe with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Cabot is president of the board of trustees of the orchestra.

Citizen
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-partisan
Circ. 4,129

MAY 11 1956

Simmons Night at Pops

The annual Simmons College Night at the Pops will be held on Wednesday evening, May 23.

Proceeds from this event will be used for a scholarship fund as well as toward a general gift to the Alumnae Association.

Tickets may be purchased from Mrs. Arthur G. Carlson, Jr., of 131 Pine st., or from Mrs. Frank Adams at the College, 300 The Fenway, before May 17.

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 95,115

MAY 13 1956

Radcliffe Students Of Area Sing With Boston Symphony

Miss Gayle Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Avery W. Barnes of Racebrook Road, Woodbridge, and Miss Barbara Ulman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ulman Jr. of Wepawaug Road, Woodbridge, are members of the Radcliffe Choral Society which sang Beethoven's Ninth Symphony in two joint concerts with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Harvard Glee Club recently in Symphony Hall, Boston, Mass.

The concerts concluded the 75th anniversary year of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with which the RCS and the HGC sing annually.

The mixed choruses and the orchestra also performed "Psalm of Praise" written last year for Radcliffe College's 75th anniversary by Mabel Daniels. Miss Daniels, who is a member of the class of 1900 at Radcliffe, is one of the college's distinguished alumnae.

Telegram-News (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Democrat
Circ. 21,784

MAY 14 1956

POPS SPONSORS

Marblehead sponsors of the Vassar-Dartmouth Night at the Boston Pops, to be held Wednesday at Symphony Hall, Boston include Mrs. Thomas J. Bowen, Mrs. J. Andrew Heath, Mrs. G. Frank Cram, Mrs. Randall Bell, Mrs. William Palmer, Mrs. John E. Seigelman, Mrs. William N. Weikert and Mrs. James T. Parker.

Proceeds will be used for the benefit of the scholarship funds of both colleges.

New England Newscap Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

MAY 15 1956

New Pops Sponsors Announced

New sponsors are announced for Saturday's Blossom Time at the Pops, sponsored each year by the Guild of the Infant Saviour.

They include the William Curleys, Margaret M. Curran, Mmes. Richard Grozier and Francis T. Leahy, Dr. and Mrs. James P. O'Hare, the P. A. O'Connells and the Daniel G. O'Connors.

Other sponsors are Dr. and Mrs. William Lanigan, R. Estes Keaney, the Augustus W. Peabodys and the James T. Hillians.

Advocate
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,987

MAY 10 1956

CHANGE OF PLANS

Mrs. Horace Homer, president of the Arlington Women's Republican Club, this week announced the cancellation of the club's plan to sponsor a night at the Boston Pops, June 2.

"This change in our program will allow more complete support of the community for the Pops concert of the Philharmonic Society of Arlington to be held at the Robbins Memorial Town Hall on June 2," said Mrs. Homer.

"Meanwhile, the Women's Republican club will make plans for another project in the fall, to take the place of

Banker and Tradesman
CAMBRIDGE, Mass.
Weekly
Circ. 3,571

MAY 12 1956

Realtors Pops Night

Sunday evening, May 20, will be Realtors' Night at the Pops. Half of Symphony Hall has been reserved for Realtors and their friends. Those who attended Realtors Night last year had a wonderful time and this year will be even better.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

MAY 13 1956

Miss Greta Tobin, chairman of the committee planning the annual Proparvulis Night at Pops, Saturday, at Symphony Hall.

Courier
WAREHAM, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 2,400

MAY 10 1956

Local Girl Takes Part In Pops Concert

Miss Elaine Govoni, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Govoni, High St., Wareham, was one of the participants in the Regis College Glee Club who presented a number at the Boston Pops Orchestra held Saturday evening under the direction of Arthur Fiedler.

She also assisted in playing for the combined Regis and Holy Cross Glee Club concert at the Sheriton Plaza Hotel in Boston a few weeks ago.

Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 101,564

MAY 12 1956

To Solo With Boston 'Pops'

Miss Silvi Lindstrom, daughter of Mrs. Sonja Lindstrom, 120 Malden St., will be soloist with the Boston "Pops" in Boston Symphony Hall Monday night.

A pianist, Miss Lindstrom was a soloist at the Worcester Music Festival last year.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 12 1956

Fuller Gift Organ Is Played Tomorrow

A new $50,000 organ given to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology by Alvah T. Fuller, former governor of Massachusetts, will be played for the first time tomorrow, Klaus Liepmann, Director of Music, announced today.

Mr. Fuller is a trustee of numerous educational and musical institutions, among them the New England Conservatory of Music and the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Pierre Cochereau, organist for the Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris, will be the solist at 3 p.m. at Kresge Auditorium in a program which will also include dedicatory remarks by James R. Killian, Jr., President of M.I.T. The concert is being presented by the M.I.T. Baton Society, honorary student musical society.

News (e)
GARDNER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 6,592

MAY 13 1956

The public is invited to attend a film showing at the West Branch of the Levi Heywood Memorial Library, Tuesday evening, May 15th at 8.15. The following films will be shown: Road to Gaspe — American youth hostelers explore the picturesque Gaspe Peninsula. Historic Quebec, Cap des Rosiers Lighthouse and Bonaventure Island are shown; Tanglewood Story — Serge Koussevitsky conducts the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the Tanglewood Music Festival; Family Outing — Family vacation in camping grounds of Banff National Park.

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 12 1956

At the Pops

Tonight is Wellesley College Night at the Boston Pops in Symphony Hall. Arthur Fiedler conducts. The program:

Pomp and Circumstance, Elgar; Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro," Mozart; Dynamiden, Waltzes, Josef Strauss; Suite from "The Nutcracker," Tchaikovsky; Piano Concerto in F, Gershwin (Soloist: Leo Litwin), The Wellesley College Tupelos. Selections from "My Fair Lady," Loewe-Hayman; Love is a Many-Splendored Thing, Fain-Mason; Dance of the Buffoons from "Snow Maiden," Rimsk.-Korsakoff; Wellesley Alma Mater.

INFORMATION OBSCURED

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 12 1956

Society: Famed Chestnut Hill Gardens Open for Visitors May 14, 21

(Globe Photo by John Sheahan)

READY TO PARTICIPATE in Dedham's big annual Memorial Day Horse Show at the Country and Polo Club is Penny Crittendon of Dover, and ready to make it a blue ribbon is "Heather". Proceeds of the show will as usual go to the Children's Medical Center.

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

The interesting contemporary house built for the late Serge Koussevitzky, Boston Symphony Orchestra's long-famous conductor, will be open—as well as the lovely garden designed to match the house—for Monday's Chestnut Hill Garden Club visitors' day.

Both this Monday, the 14th, and on Monday, the 21st, some of the famous and beautiful gardens of this handsome Boston suburb will be open to the public, and on both days luncheon will be served. This coming Monday, the Koussevitsky house, now owned by Mrs. Robert Reiser, will be open for the luncheon, which will be a help-yourself chef's salad served with hot French and Italian breads and coffee.

Also open will be Mrs. Edwin S. Webster's marvelous gardens on Hammond st., John Goodrich's neighboring Essex-road garden, which has never been open before, Mrs. Charles W. Mason's Essex-road garden, which has a fascinating woodland with Spring primroses and bulbs, and a very old rose garden.

Mrs. Richard Walcott's garden has an outdoor living-room terrace, lovely flower borders and a fountain, and Mrs. James Parker's Goddard-av. garden includes an orchid and hibiscus greenhouse which the Parkers themselves planned and have filled with plants.

May 17, the renowned little gardens of Beacon Hill will be open from 10 to 6, rain or shine, and in addition to the favorite gardens of Mrs. Robert Cushman, Mrs. Thomas Howard and Mrs. Frederick Stagg, there will be a new garden, that of Theodore Hebert, Consul for the Netherlands, whose sister, Miss Polly Hebert, is showing their fabulous collection of Dutch bulbs in blossom. Dozens of Beacon Hill neighbors will act as hostesses for the open house, which also includes the gardens of Mrs. James White, Mrs. Edward Taft and Mrs. Clayton Rice.

IN THE COUNTRY, Open House Day for some of Middleton's oldest houses will be Saturday, May 19, and included is the interesting old house now owned by the Charles Hadley Watkins. Mr. Watkins, who did such an outstanding job in helping the Lantern League raise funds for the restoration of the old North Church steeple, went to the White House to present President Eisenhower with a special print of the church. Mrs. Watkins, president of the Middleton Historical Society, which is sponsoring the town's first open house day, is author of several books on early New England pottery and glass.

FOR THE SIXTH YEAR, Boston graduates of Sweet Briar College will hold an auction for the benefit of the college's scholarship fund. The latest in electrical appliances will be sold, as well as old-fashioned hooked rugs and food prepared according to family recipes. Alumnae from all over the country are sending donations to the house of Mrs. Howard B. Sloan in Topsfield for the May 14 benefit, which begins at 10:30.

Sponsors for the auction include Mrs. Richard M. Wyman, Mrs. Franklin Parker, Mrs. Albert Goodhue, Mrs. William Robertson, Mrs. Ganson Taggart, Mrs. George Hill, Mrs. Harvey Chamberlain, Mrs. Leo Feuer, Mrs. Robert Hill and Mrs. Keith Pecear.

"CROSSING THE TIME BRIDGE" will be the subject of a lecture by Carl de Suze to benefit St. John's Church in Beverly Farms on May 25. Mrs. Charles Tifft is in charge of tickets for the 8:15 benefit at Horticultural Hall in Manchester.

Among the many planning dinner parties before the lecture are the John Bryants, the Tudor Lelands, the Samuel Hallowells and the George Hodges. Mrs. William Carson, president of the Altar Guild, and Mrs. Bayard Warren are planning dinner parties for their grandchildren. Also sponsoring this event are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Batchelder, Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Bigelow, Samuel Cabot Jr., Charles E. Cotting, Brinley M. Hall, Mrs. Herbert Jaques, Mrs. John T. Nightingale, Mr. and Mrs. Bradbury Patch, Mr. and Mrs. Renouf Russell, Mr. Henry Vance, Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Wadsworth, Mrs. Grassie B. Ward and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wigglesworth.

Times
BELLOWS FALLS, Vt.
Weekly Ind. Republican
Circ. 3,413

MAY 10 1956

About Town

Miss Barbara Booth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Booth, is home following her graduation from the Thompson School of Agriculture of the University of New Hampshire last week. She is with Dr. Tucker Burr at his veterinary hospital, but according to present plans will return to the University in the fall to continue her studies. spend a part of the summer in Europe with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Cabot is president of the board of trustees of the orchestra.

Citizen
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-partisan
Circ. 4,129

MAY 11 1956

Simmons Night at Pops

The annual Simmons College Night at the Pops will be held on Wednesday evening, May 23.

Proceeds from this event will be used for a scholarship fund as well as toward a general gift to the Alumnae Association.

Tickets may be purchased from Mrs. Arthur G. Carlson, Jr., of 131 Pine st., or from Mrs. Frank Adams at the College, 300 The Fenway, before May 17.

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 95,115

MAY 13 1956

Radcliffe Students Of Area Sing With Boston Symphony

Miss Gayle Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Avery W. Barnes of Racebrook Road, Woodbridge, and Miss Barbara Ulman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ulman Jr. of Wepawaug Road, Woodbridge, are members of the Radcliffe Choral Society which sang Beethoven's Ninth Symphony in two joint concerts with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Harvard Glee Club recently in Symphony Hall, Boston, Mass.

The concerts concluded the 75th anniversary year of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with which the RCS and the HGC sing annually.

The mixed choruses and the orchestra also performed "Psalm of Praise" written last year for Radcliffe College's 75th anniversary by Mabel Daniels. Miss Daniels, who is a member of the class of 1900 at Radcliffe, is one of the college's distinguished alumnae.

New England Newspaper Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Telegram-News (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Democrat
Circ. 21,784

MAY 14 1956

POPS SPONSORS

Marblehead sponsors of the Vassar-Dartmouth Night at the Boston Pops, to be held Wednesday at Symphony Hall, Boston include Mrs. Thomas J. Bowen, Mrs. J. Andrew Heath, Mrs. G. Frank Cram, Mrs. Randall Bell, Mrs. William Palmer, Mrs. John E. Seigelman, Mrs. William N. Weikert and Mrs. James T. Parker.

Proceeds will be used for the benefit of the scholarship funds of both colleges.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

MAY 13 1956

New Pops Sponsors Announced

New sponsors are announced for Saturday's Blossom Time at the Pops sponsored each year by the Guild of the Infant Saviour.

They include the William Curleys, Margaret M. Curran, Mmes. Richard Grozier and Francis T. Leahy, Dr. and Mrs. James P. O'Hare, the P. A. O'Connells and the Daniel G. O'Connors.

Other sponsors are Dr. and Mrs. William Lanigan, R. Emmet Keaney, the Augustus W. Peters and the James T. Hallinans.

Advocate
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,987

MAY 10 1956

CHANGE OF PLANS

Mrs. Horace Homer, president of the Arlington Women's Republican Club, this week announced the cancellation of the club's plan to sponsor a night at the Boston Pops, June 2.

"This change in our program will allow more complete support of the community for the Pops concert of the Philharmonic Society of Arlington to be held at the Robbins Memorial Town Hall on June 2," said Mrs. Homer.

"Meanwhile, the Women's Republican club will make plans for another project in the fall, to take the place of the

Banker and Tradesman
CAMBRIDGE, Mass.
Weekly
Circ. 3,571

MAY 12 1956

Realtors Pops Night

Sunday evening, May 20, will be Realtors' Night at the Pops. Half of Symphony Hall has been reserved for Realtors and their friends. Those who attended Realtors Night last year had a wonderful time and this year will be even better.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

MAY 13 1956

Miss Greta Tobin, chairman of the committee planning the annual Proparvulis Night at Pops, Saturday, at Symphony Hall.

Courier
WAREHAM, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 2,400

MAY 10 1956

Local Girl Takes Part In Pops Concert

Miss Elaine Govoni, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Govoni, High St., Wareham, was one of the participants in the Regis College Glee Club who presented a number at the Boston Pops Orchestra held Saturday evening under the direction of Arthur Fiedler.

She also assisted in playing for the combined Regis and Holy Cross Glee Club concert at the Sheriton Plaza Hotel in Boston a few weeks ago.

Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 101,564

MAY 12 1956

To Solo With Boston 'Pops'

Miss Silvi Lindstrom, daughter of Mrs. Sonja Lindstrom, 120 Malden St., will be soloist with the Boston "Pops" in Boston Symphony Hall Monday night.

A pianist, Miss Lindstrom was a soloist at the Worcester Music Festival last year.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 12 1956

Fuller Gift Organ Is Played Tomorrow

A new $50,000 organ given to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology by Alvan T. Fuller, former governor of Massachusetts, will be played for the first time tomorrow, Klaus Liepmann, Director of Music, announced today.

Mr. Fuller is a trustee of numerous educational and musical institutions, among them the New England Conservatory of Music and the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Pierre Cochereau, organist for the Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris, will be the solist at 3 p.m. at Kresge Auditorium in a program which will also include dedicatory remarks by James R. Killian, Jr., President of M.I.T. The concert is being presented by the M.I.T. Baton Society, honorary student musical society.

News (e)
GARDNER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 6,592

MAY [illegible]

The public is invited to attend a film showing at the West Branch of the Levi Heywood Memorial Library, Tuesday evening, May 15th at 8.15. The following films will be shown: Road to Gaspe — American youth hostelers explore the picturesque Gaspe Peninsula. Historic Quebec, Cap des Rosiers Lighthouse and Bonaventure Island are shown; Tanglewood Story — Serge Koussevitsky conducts the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the Tanglewood Music Festival; Family Outing — Family vacation in camping grounds of Banff National Park.

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 12 1956

At the Pops

Tonight is Wellesley College Night at the Boston Pops in Symphony Hall. Arthur Fiedler conducts. The program:

[illegible] and Circumstance, E[illegible] Marriage [illegible] Prelude, "Wag[illegible] from "The Nutcr[illegible] Suite; Piano Concerto [illegible] Tchaikovsky (Soloist: Leo Litt[illegible]); Selections Wellesley College Tupelos. Selections from "My Fair Lady," Loewe-Hay[illegible] Love is a Many-Splendored Thing, Fain-Mason; Dance of the P[illegible] from "Snow Maiden," Rimsky-Korsakoff; Wellesley Alma Mater.

92

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 12 1956

Society: Famed Chestnut Hill Gardens Open for Visitors May 14, 21

(Globe Photo by John Sheahan)

READY TO PARTICIPATE in Dedham's big annual Memorial Day Horse Show at the Country and Polo Club is Penny Crittendon of Dover, and ready to make it a blue ribbon is "Heather". Proceeds of the show will as usual go to the Children's Medical Center.

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

The interesting contemporary house built for the late Serge Koussevitzky, Boston Symphony Orchestra's long-famous conductor, will be open—as well as the lovely garden designed to match the house—for Monday's Chestnut Hill Garden Club visitors' day.

Both this Monday, the 14th, and on Monday, the 21st, some of the famous and beautiful gardens of this handsome Boston suburb will be open to the public, and on both days luncheon will be served. This coming Monday, the Koussevitsky house, now owned by Mrs. Robert Reiser, will be open for the luncheon, which will be a help-yourself chef's salad served with hot French and Italian breads and coffee.

Also open will be Mrs. Edwin S. Webster's marvelous gardens on Hammond st., John Goodrich's neighboring Essex-road garden, which has never been open befor[illegible] Mrs. Charles W. Mason [illegible]y-road garden, which ha[illegible] fascinating woodland with Spring primroses and bulbs, and a very old rose garden.

Mrs. Richard Walcott's garden has an outdoor living-room terrace, lovely flower borders and a fountain, and Mrs. James Parker's Goddard-av. garden includes an orchid and hibiscus greenhouse which the Parkers themselves planned and have filled with plants.

May 17, the renowned little gardens of Beacon Hill will be open from 10 to 6, rain or shine, and in addition to the favorite gardens of Mrs. Robert Cushman, Mrs. Thomas Howard and Mrs. Frederick Stagg, there will be a new garden, that of Theodore Hebert, Consul for the Netherlands, whose sister, Miss Polly Hebert, is showing their fabulous collection of Dutch bulbs in blossom. Dozens of Beacon Hill neighbors will act as hostesses for the open house, which also includes the gardens of Mrs. James White, Mrs. Edward Taft and Mrs. Clayton Rice.

IN THE COUNTRY, Open House Day for some of Middleton's oldest houses will be Saturday, May 19, and included is the interesting old house now owned by the Charles Hadley Watkins. Mr. Watkins, who did such an outstanding job in helping the Lantern League raise funds for the restoration of the old North Church steeple, went to the White House to present President Eisenhower with a special print of the church. Mrs. Watkins, president of the Middleton Historical Society, which is sponsoring the town's first open house day, is author of several books on early New England pottery and glass.

FOR THE SIXTH YEAR, Boston graduates of Sweet Briar College will hold an auction for the benefit of the college's scholarship fund. The latest in electrical appliances will be sold, as well as old-fashioned hooked rugs and food prepared according to family recipes. Alumnae from all over the country are sending donations to the house of Mrs. Howard B. Sloan in Topsfield for the May 14 benefit, which begins at 10:30.

Sponsors for the auction include Mrs. Richard M. Wyman, Mrs. Franklin Parker, Mrs. Albert Goodhue, Mrs. William Robertson, Mrs. Ganson Taggart, Mrs. George Hill, Mrs. Harvey Chamberlain, Mrs. Leo Feuer, Mrs. Robert Hill and Mrs. Keith Pecear.

"CROSSING THE TIME BRIDGE" will be the subject of a lecture by Carl de Suze to benefit St. John's Church in Beverly Farms on May 25. Mrs. Charles Tifft is in charge of tickets for the 8:15 benefit at Horticultural Hall in Manchester.

Among the many planning dinner parties before the lecture are the John Bryants, the Tudor Lelands, the Samuel Hallowells and the George Hodges. Mrs. William Carson, president of the Altar Guild, and Mrs. Bayard Warren are planning dinner parties for their grandchildren. Also sponsoring this event are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Batchelder, Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Bigelow, Samuel Cabot Jr., Charles E. Cotting, Brinley M. Hall, Mrs. Herbert Jaques, Mrs. John T. Nightingale, Mr. and Mrs. Bradbury Patch, Mr. and Mrs. Renouf Russell, Mr. Henry Vance, Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Wadsworth, Mrs. Grassie B. Ward and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wigglesworth.

Times
BELLOWS FALLS, Vt.
Weekly Ind. Republican
Circ. 3,418

MAY 10 1956

About Town

Miss Barbara Booth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Booth, is home following her graduation from the Thompson School of Agriculture of the University of New Hampshire last week. She is with Dr. Tucker Burr at his veterinary hospital, but according to present plans will return to the University in the fall to continue her studies. spend a part of the summer in Europe with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Cabot is president of the board of trustees of the orchestra.

Citizen
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-partisan
Circ. 4,129

MAY 11 1956

Simmons Night at Pops

The annual Simmons College Night at the Pops will be held on Wednesday evening, May 23.

Proceeds from this event will be used for a scholarship fund as well as toward a general gift to the Alumnae Association.

Tickets may be purchased from Mrs. Arthur G. Carlson, Jr., of 131 Pine st., or from Mrs. Frank Adams at the College, 300 The Fenway, before May 17.

Telegram-News (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Democrat
Circ. 21,784

MAY 14 1956

POPS SPONSORS

Marblehead sponsors of the Vassar-Dartmouth Night at the Boston Pops, to be held Wednesday at Symphony Hall, Boston include Mrs. Thomas J. Bowen, Mrs. J. Andrew Heath, Mrs. G. Frank Cram, Mrs. Randall Bell, Mrs. William Palmer, Mrs. John E. Seigelman, Mrs. William N. Weikert and Mrs. James T. Parker.

Proceeds will be used for the benefit of the scholarship funds of both colleges.

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 95,115

MAY 13 1956

Radcliffe Students Of Area Sing With Boston Symphony

Miss Gayle Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Avery W. Barnes of Racebrook Road, Woodbridge, and Miss Barbara Ulman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ulman Jr. of Wepawaug Road, Woodbridge, are members of the Radcliffe Choral Society which sang Beethoven's Ninth Symphony in two joint concerts with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Harvard Glee Club recently in Symphony Hall, Boston, Mass.

The concerts concluded the 75th anniversary year of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with which the RCS and the HGC sing annually.

The mixed choruses and the orchestra also performed "Psalm of Praise" written last year for Radcliffe College's 75th anniversary by Mabel Daniels. Miss Daniels, who is a member of the class of 1900 at Radcliffe, is one of the college's distinguished alumnae.

New England Newscap Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

MAY 15 1956

New Pops Sponsors Announced

New sponsors are announced for Saturday's Blossom Time at the Pops, sponsored each year by the Guild of the Infant Saviour.

They include the William Curleys, Margaret M. Curran, Mmes. Richard Grozier and Francis T. Leahy, Dr. and Mrs. James P. O'Hare, the P. A. O'Connells and the Daniel G. O'Connors.

Other sponsors are Dr. and Mrs. William Lanigan, R. Es[illegible] Keaney, the Augustus W. [illegible]rys and the James T. [illegible]lians.

Advocate
ARLINGTON, Mass
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,987

MAY 10 1956

CHANGE OF PLANS

Mrs. Horace Homer, president of the Arlington Women's Republican Club, this week announced the cancellation of the club's plan to sponsor a night at the Boston Pops, June 2.

"This change in our program will allow more complete support of the community for the Pops concert of the Philharmonic Society of Arlington to be held at the Robbins Memorial Town Hall on June 2," said Mrs. Homer.

"Meanwhile, the Women's Republican club will make plans for another project in the fall, to take the place of [illegible]

Banker and Tradesman
CAMBRIDGE, Mass.
Weekly
Circ. 3,571

MAY 12 1956

Realtors Pops Night

Sunday evening, May 20, will be Realtors' Night at the Pops. Half of Symphony Hall has been reserved for Realtors and their friends. Those who attended Realtors Night last year had a wonderful time and this year will be even better.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

MAY 13 1956

Miss Greta Tobin, chairman of the committee planning the annual Proparvulis Night at Pops, Saturday, at Symphony Hall.

Courier
WAREHAM, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 2,400

MAY 10 1956

Local Girl Takes Part In Pops Concert

Miss Elaine Govoni, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Govoni, High St., Wareham, was one of the participants in the Regis College Glee Club who presented a number at the Boston Pops Orchestra held Saturday evening under the direction of Arthur Fiedler.

She also assisted in playing for the combined Regis and Holy Cross Glee Club concert at the Sheriton Plaza Hotel in Boston a few weeks ago.

Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 101,564

MAY 12 1956

To Solo With Boston 'Pops'

Miss Silvi Lindstrom, daughter of Mrs. Sonja Lindstrom, 120 Malden St., will be soloist with the Boston "Pops" in Boston Symphony Hall Monday night.

A pianist, Miss Lindstrom was a soloist at the Worcester Music Festival last year.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 12 1956

Fuller Gift Organ Is Played Tomorrow

A new $50,000 organ given to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology by Alvan T. Fuller, former governor of Massachusetts, will be played for the first time tomorrow, Klaus Liepmann, Director of Music, announced today.

Mr. Fuller is a trustee of numerous educational and musical institutions, among them the New England Conservatory of Music and the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Pierre Cochereau, organist for the Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris, will be the solist at 3 p.m. at Kresge Auditorium in a program which will also include dedicatory remarks by James R. Killian, Jr., President of M.I.T. The concert is being presented by the M.I.T. Baton Society, honorary student musical society.

News (e)
GARDNER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 6,592

MAY 1[illegible]

The public is invited to attend a film showing at the West Branch of the Levi Heywood Memorial Library, Tuesday evening, May 15th at 8.15. The following films will be shown: Road to Gaspe — American youth hostelers explore the picturesque Gaspe Peninsula. Historic Quebec, Cap des Rosiers Lighthouse and Bonaventure Island are shown; Tanglewood Story — Serge Koussevitsky conducts the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the Tanglewood Music Festival; Family Outing — Family vacation in camping grounds of Banff National Park.

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 12 1956

At the Pops

Tonight is Wellesley College Night at the Boston Pops in Symphony Hall. Arthur Fiedler conducts. The program:

Pomp and Circumstance, Elgar; Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro," Mozart; Dynamiden, Waltzes, Josef Strauss; Suite from "The Nutcracker," Tchaikovsky; Piano Concerto in F, Gershwin (Soloist: Leo Litwin), The Wellesley College Tupelos. Selections from "My Fair Lady," Loewe-Hayman; Love is a Many-Splendored Thing, Fain-Mason; Dance of the Buffoons from "Snow Maiden," Rimsky-Korsakoff; Wellesley Alma Mater.

97

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 12 1956

Society: Famed Chestnut Hill Gardens Open for Visitors May 14, 21

(Globe Photo by John Sheahan)

READY TO PARTICIPATE in Dedham's big annual Memorial Day Horse Show at the Country and Polo Club is Penny Crittendon of Dover, and ready to make it a blue ribbon is "Heather". Proceeds of the show will as usual go to the Children's Medical Center.

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

The interesting contemporary house built for the late Serge Koussevitzky, Boston Symphony Orchestra's long-famous conductor, will be open—as well as the lovely garden designed to match the house—for Monday's Chestnut Hill Garden Club visitors' day.

Both this Monday, the 14th, and on Monday, the 21st, some of the famous and beautiful gardens of this handsome Boston suburb will be open to the public, and on both days luncheon will be served. This coming Monday, the Koussevitsky house, now owned by Mrs. Robert Reiser, will be open for the luncheon, which will be a help-yourself chef's salad served with hot French and Italian breads and coffee.

Also open will be Mrs. Edwin S. Webster's marvelous gardens on Hammond st., John Goodrich's neighboring Essex-road garden, which has never been open before; Mrs. Charles W. Mason's Essex-road garden, which has a fascinating woodland with Spring primroses and bulbs, and a very old rose garden.

Mrs. Richard Walcott's garden has an outdoor living-room terrace, lovely flower borders and a fountain, and Mrs. James Parker's Goddard-av. garden includes an orchid and hibiscus greenhouse which the Parkers themselves planned and have filled with plants.

May 17, the renowned little gardens of Beacon Hill will be open from 10 to 6, rain or shine, and in addition to the favorite gardens of Mrs. Robert Cushman, Mrs. Thomas Howard and Mrs. Frederick Stagg, there will be a new garden, that of Theodore Hebert, Consul for the Netherlands, whose sister, Miss Polly Hebert, is showing their fabulous collection of Dutch bulbs in blossom. Dozens of Beacon Hill neighbors will act as hostesses for the open house, which also includes the gardens of Mrs. James White, Mrs. Edward Taft and Mrs. Clayton Rice.

IN THE COUNTRY, Open House Day for some of Middleton's oldest houses will be Saturday, May 19, and included is the interesting old house now owned by the Charles Hadley Watkins. Mr. Watkins, who did such an outstanding job in helping the Lantern League raise funds for the restoration of the old North Church steeple, went to the White House to present President Eisenhower with a special print of the church. Mrs. Watkins, president of the Middleton Historical Society, which is sponsoring the town's first open house day, is author of several books on early New England pottery and glass.

FOR THE SIXTH YEAR, Boston graduates of Sweet Briar College will hold an auction for the benefit of the college's scholarship fund. The latest in electrical appliances will be sold, as well as old-fashioned hooked rugs and food prepared according to family recipes. Alumnae from all over the country are sending donations to the house of Mrs. Howard B. Sloan in Topsfield for the May 14 benefit, which begins at 10:30.

Sponsors for the auction include Mrs. Richard M. Wyman, Mrs. Franklin Parker, Mrs. Albert Goodhue, Mrs. William Robertson, Mrs. Ganson Taggart, Mrs. George Hill, Mrs. Harvey Chamberlain, Mrs. Leo Feuer, Mrs. Robert Hill and Mrs. Keith Pecear.

"CROSSING THE TIME BRIDGE" will be the subject of a lecture by Carl de Suze to benefit St. John's Church in Beverly Farms on May 25. Mrs. Charles Tifft is in charge of tickets for the 8:15 benefit at Horticultural Hall in Manchester.

Among the many planning dinner parties before the lecture are the John Bryants, the Tudor Lelands, the Samuel Hallowells and the George Hodges. Mrs. William Carson, president of the Altar Guild, and Mrs. Bayard Warren are planning dinner parties for their grandchildren. Also sponsoring this event are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Batchelder, Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Bigelow, Samuel Cabot Jr., Charles E. Cotting, Brinley M. Hall, Mrs. Herbert Jaques, Mrs. John T. Nightingale, Mr. and Mrs. Bradbury Patch, Mr. and Mrs. Renouf Russell, Mr. Henry Vance, Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Wadsworth, Mrs. Grassie B. Ward and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wigglesworth.

Times
BELLOWS FALLS, Vt.
Weekly Ind. Republican
Circ. 3,418

MAY 10 1956

About Town

Miss Barbara Booth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Booth, is home following her graduation from the Thompson School of Agriculture of the University of New Hampshire last week. She is with Dr. Tucker Burr at his veterinary hospital, but according to present plans will return to the University in the fall to continue her studies. spend a part of the summer in Europe with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Cabot is president of the board of trustees of the orchestra.

Citizen
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-partisan
Circ. 4,129

MAY 11 1956

Simmons Night at Pops

The annual Simmons College Night at the Pops will be held on Wednesday evening, May 23.

Proceeds from this event will be used for a scholarship fund as well as toward a general gift to the Alumnae Association.

Tickets may be purchased from Mrs. Arthur G. Carlson, Jr., of 131 Pine st., or from Mrs. Frank Adams at the College, 300 The Fenway, before May 17.

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 95,115

MAY 13 1956

Radcliffe Students Of Area Sing With Boston Symphony

Miss Gayle Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Avery W. Barnes of Racebrook Road, Woodbridge, and Miss Barbara Ulman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ulman Jr. of Wepawaug Road, Woodbridge, are members of the Radcliffe Choral Society which sang Beethoven's Ninth Symphony in two joint concerts with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Harvard Glee Club recently in Symphony Hall, Boston, Mass.

The concerts concluded the 75th anniversary year of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with which the RCS and the HGC sing annually.

The mixed choruses and the orchestra also performed "Psalm of Praise" written last year for Radcliffe College's 75th anniversary by Mabel Daniels. Miss Daniels, who is a member of the class of 1900 at Radcliffe, is one of the college's distinguished alumnae.

Telegram-News (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Democrat
Circ. 21,784

MAY 14 1956

POPS SPONSORS

Marblehead sponsors of the Vassar-Dartmouth Night at the Boston Pops, to be held Wednesday at Symphony Hall, Boston include Mrs. Thomas J. Bowen, Mrs. J. Andrew Heath, Mrs. G. Frank Cram, Mrs. Randall Bell, Mrs. William Palmer, Mrs. John E. Seigelman, Mrs. William N. Weikert and Mrs. James T. Parker.

Proceeds will be used for the benefit of the scholarship funds of both colleges.

New England Newscap Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

MAY 15 1956

New Pops Sponsors Announced

New sponsors are announced for Saturday's Blossom Time at the Pops, sponsored each year by the Guild of the Infant Saviour.

They include the William Curleys, Margaret M. Curran, Mmes. Richard Grozier and Francis T. Leahy, Dr. and Mrs. James P. O'Hare, the P. A. O'Connells and the Daniel G. O'Connors.

Other sponsors are Dr. and Mrs. William Lanigan, R. Estes Keaney, the Augustus W. Peters and the James T. Williams.

Advocate
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,987

MAY 10 1956

CHANGE OF PLANS

Mrs. Horace Homer, president of the Arlington Women's Republican Club, this week announced the cancellation of the club's plan to sponsor a night at the Boston Pops, June 2.

"This change in our program will allow more complete support of the community for the Pops concert of the Philharmonic Society of Arlington to be held at the Robbins Memorial Town Hall on June 2," said Mrs. Homer.

"Meanwhile, the Women's Republican club will make plans for another project in the fall, to take the place of the cancelled one.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

MAY 13 1956

Miss Greta Tobin, chairman of the committee planning the annual Proparvulis Night at Pops, Saturday, at Symphony Hall.

Courier
WAREHAM, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 2,400

MAY 10 1956

Local Girl Takes Part In Pops Concert

Miss Elaine Govoni, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Govoni, High St., Wareham, was one of the participants in the Regis College Glee Club who presented a number at the Boston Pops Orchestra held Saturday evening under the direction of Arthur Fiedler.

She also assisted in playing for the combined Regis and Holy Cross Glee Club concert at the Sheriton Plaza Hotel in Boston a few weeks ago.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 12 1956

Fuller Gift Organ Is Played Tomorrow

A new $50,000 organ given to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology by Alvan T. Fuller, former governor of Massachusetts, will be played for the first time tomorrow, Klaus Liepmann, Director of Music, announced today.

Mr. Fuller is a trustee of numerous educational and musical institutions, among them the New England Conservatory of Music and the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Pierre Cochereau, organist for the Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris, will be the solist at 3 p.m. at Kresge Auditorium in a program which will also include dedicatory remarks by James R. Killian, Jr., President of M.I.T. The concert is being presented by the M.I.T. Baton Society, honorary student musical society.

News (e)
GARDNER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 6,592

MAY 13 1956

The public is invited to attend a film showing at the West Branch of the Levi Heywood Memorial Library, Tuesday evening, May 15th at 8.15. The following films will be shown: Road to Gaspe — American youth hostelers explore the picturesque Gaspe Peninsula. Historic Quebec, Cap des Rosiers Lighthouse and Bonaventure Island are shown; Tanglewood Story — Serge Koussevitsky conducts the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the Tanglewood Music Festival; Family Outing — Family vacation in camping grounds of Banff National Park.

Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 101,564

MAY 12 1956

To Solo With Boston 'Pops'

Miss Silvi Lindstrom, daughter of Mrs. Sonja Lindstrom, 120 Malden St., will be soloist with the Boston "Pops" in Boston Symphony Hall Monday night.

A pianist, Miss Lindstrom was a soloist at the Worcester Music Festival last year.

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 12 1956

At the Pops

Tonight is Wellesley College Night at the Boston Pops in Symphony Hall. Arthur Fiedler conducts. The program:

Pomp and Circumstance, Elgar; Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro," Mozart; Dynamiden, Waltzes, Josef Strauss; Suite from "The Nutcracker," Tchaikovsky; Piano Concerto in F, Gershwin (Soloist: Leo Litwin). The Wellesley College Tupelos. Selections from "My Fair Lady," Loewe-Hayman; Love is a Many-Splendored Thing, Fain-Mason; Dance of the Buffoons from "Snow Maiden," Rimsky-Korsakoff; Wellesley Alma Mater.

Ledger
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly
Circ. 3,571

MAY 12 1956

Realtors Pops Night

Sunday evening, May 20, will be Realtors' Night at the Pops. Half of Symphony Hall has been reserved for Realtors and their friends. Those who attended Realtors Night last year had a wonderful time and this year will be even better.

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

Next Week at the Pops—

Alfred Krips, Pappoutsakis On Schedule

Eight soloists—two violinists, four pianists, one flutist, one trumpeter—will be heard in as many evenings at the Pops in Symphony Hall beginning Sunday.

Violin soloists will be Kenneth Gordon, who will play the Paganini-Wilhelmj Concerto in D major Sunday, and Alfred Krips who will be heard in Mozart's Concerto in A major, K. 219, on Saturday evening.

Piano soloists for the week include Sylvi Lindstrom, who will play the Liszt Hungarian Fantasy on Monday; Luise Vosgerchian, who will be soloist in the Liszt Concerto No. 1 in E-flat on Wednesday; Leo Litwin in the Addinsell "Warsaw" Concerto on Thursday; and Monte Nelson in the first movement of the Tchaikovsky Concerto No. 1 in B-flat minor on Sunday, May 20.

James Pappoutsakis will be flute soloist in the Chaminade Concertino for Flute and Orchestra on Tuesday evening. Armando Ghitalla will be trumpet soloist in Rossini's Largo al Factotum from "The Barber of Seville" on Friday evening.

Three special nights have been arranged — Massachusetts Institute of Technology on Sunday evening, Emmanuel College on Monday, and Lasell Junior College on Friday.

The programs:

Monday Evening, May 14
Emmanuel College Night
Coronation March, from "The Prophet" ..... Meyerbeer
Dynamiden, Waltzes ... Josef Strauss
Intermezzo, from "Cavalleria Rusticana" ..... Mascagni
Suite from "The Nutcracker" ..... Tchaikovsky
Hungarian Fantasy for Piano and Orchestra ..... Liszt
Soloist: Sylvi Lindstrom
Marche Slave ..... Tchaikovsky
Emmanuel College Glee Club
Rodolphe E. Pepin, Director
Popspourri ..... Arr. by Mason
I Whistle a Happy Tune, from "The King and I" ..... Rodgers
Malaguena ..... Lecuona
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Tuesday Evening, May 15
On the Mall, March ..... Goldman
Roses from the South, Waltzes ..... Strauss
Agnus Dei, from "L'Arlésienne" .. Bizet
Bolero ..... Ravel
Fugue a la Gigue ..... Bach-Holst
Concertino for Flute and Orchestra ..... Chaminade
Soloist: James Pappoutsakis
Romeo and Juliet, Overture-Fantasia ..... Tchaikovsky
Many Happy Returns . Arr. by Mason
Pops Polka ..... Mason
TViana ..... Arr. by Hayman
Harry Ellis Dickson conducting

Wednesday Evening, May 16
Procession of Bacchus, from "Sylvia" ..... Délibes
Overture to "La Périchole" ..Offenbach
Fantasia on Greensleeves ..... Vaughan Williams
1001 Nights, Waltzes from "Indigo" ..... Strauss
The Sorcerer's Apprentice ..... Dukas
Piano Concerto No. 1, in E flat ..... Liszt
Soloist: Luise Vosgerchian
Selections from "My Fair Lady" .Loewe
Sarabande ..... Anderson
Songs of Dartmouth
Arthur Fiedler, conductor

Thursday Evening, May 17
Pomp and Circumstance ..... Elgar
Music of the Spheres, Waltzes ..... Josef Strauss
Overture to "Mignon" ..... Thomas
Espana, Rhapsody ..... Chabrier
Suite from "The Nutcracker" ..... Tchaikovsky
"Warsaw" Concerto ..... Addinsell
Soloist: Leo Litwin
University of New Hampshire Concert Choir
Karl H. Bratton, Director
Popspourri ..... Arr. by Mason
The Waltzing Cat ..... Anderson
Triumphal March, from "Aida" .Verdi
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Friday Evening, May 18
Lasell Junior College Night
Knightsbridge March ..... Coates
Doctrinen, Waltzes ....Eduard Strauss
Largo al Factotum, from "The Barber of Seville" ..... Rossini
Trumpet Solo: Armando Ghitalla
Overture to "Poet and Peasant" ..... von Suppé
Roumanian Rhapsody No. 1 ....Enesco
Orphean Club of Lasell Junior College
James H. Remley, Director
Popsorama ..... Arr. by Mason
Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing ..... Fain
TViana ..... Arr. by Hayman
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

Saturday Evening, May 19
Rakoczy March ..... Berlioz
Overture to "The Grand Duchess of Gerolstein" ..... Offenbach
Panis Angelicus ..... Franck
Danube Waves, Waltzes .... Ivanovici
Violin Concerto in A major, K. 219 ..... Mozart
Soloist: Alfred Krips
Marche Slave ..... Tchaikovsky
Selections from "My Fair Lady" ..... Loewe
The Song from "Moulin Rouge" ..... Auric
Cheyenne Indian War Dance .. Skilton
Arthur Fiedler Conductor

Sunday Evening, May 20
Marche Militaire ..... Schubert
Suite from "The Water Music" .Handel
Clair de Lune ..... Debussy
Suite from "Graduation Ball . Strauss
Waltz of the Snowflakes . Tchaikovsky
Piano Concerto No. 1, in B-flat minor (first movement) Tchaikovsky
Soloist: Monte Nelson
The Revere High School Choral Club:
William O. Goss, Jr., Director
Popspourri ..... Arr. by Mason
Bugler's Holiday ..... Anderson
American Patrol ..... Meacham
Arthur Fiedler, Conductor

James Abresch

Kenneth Gordon will play the Paganini Concerto in D major Sunday night at the Pops.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 15 1956

Re-elected

SAMUEL D. SHAPIRO of elected chairman of the Brookline, has been re-Histadrut "Pops" Concert Committee. Concert will be held Thursday night, June 21.

Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,384

MAY 16 1956

93

Local Pianist To Appear At Pops Concert

CONCERT PIANIST Sara Locke of 54 Heard st., who will appear with the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Pops, Wednesday evening, May 23, playing Saint Saen's Fourth Concerto in C Minor.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 15 1956

Sing At Pops

UNIVERSITY OF NEW HAMPSHIRE night at the Boston Pops will feature the 60-voice University choir in a program of folk songs and classics. Prof. Karl Bratton (center) will direct the choir Thursday night.

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 14 1956

Berkshire Festival Programs Include Several Choral Works

Large-scale choral compositions, always an important part of the programs of the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood in Lenox, again figure prominently in the plans for the 1956 Festival this Summer.

Charles Munch, conductor of the Festival and music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has scheduled Bach's Passion According to Saint John for Sunday afternoon, July 15, with the Berkshire Festival Chorus trained by Hugh Ross, and the following vocal soloists: Adele Addison, soprano; Florence Kopleff, contralto; David Lloyd, tenor; and Mac Morgan, bass.

One week earlier, on Saturday evening, July 7, Mr. Ross will conduct the Military Mass by Martinu and the Hymn and Fuguing Tune Number 11 by Henry Cowell, both with the Yale Glee Club.

On Saturday evening, Aug. 4, in observance of the 200th anniversary of the birth of Mozart, Leonard Bernstein will conduct the Kyrie and Gloria from the composer's Mass in C Minor with soloists including Eunice Alberts, contralto, and Mr. Lloyd, tenor.

Music of Wagner

Two concerts devoted to the music of Richard Wagner will present extended concert performances of excerpts from the music dramas: on Saturday evening, July 21, Mr. Munch will conduct Act I of "Die Walkure" with Margaret Harshaw, soprano; Albert Da Costa, tenor; and James Pease, bass; and the Festival will conclude on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 12, with scenes from Act III of "Die Meistersinger," with Messrs. Pease and Da Costa, and Marguerite Willauer, soprano, along with the Festival Chorus prepared by Hugh Ross.

Instrumental soloists in the "Bach-Mozart" concerts during the first two week-ends in the Theatre-Concert Hall will include Benny Goodman, clarinet, July 6 (Mozart's Clarinet Concerto); four members of the Boston Woodwind Quintet, July 7, (Mozart's Woodwind Sinfonia Concertante); Lukas Foss, piano, July 8 (Bach's Concerto in D Minor); Luboshutz and Nemenoff and Boris Goldovsky (Mozart Concertos for 1, 2 and 3 Pianos), July 13; William Kroll, violin, July 14 (Bach's Concerto in E); and Doriot Anthony Dwyer, flute, July 14 (Bach's Suite No. 2).

Music Shed Programs

The concerts in the Music Shed through the last four week-ends (July 20-Aug. 12) will include Rudolf Serkin, July 28 (Schumann's Piano Concerto); Ruth Posselt, July 29 (Hindemith's Violin Concerto); Jocy de Oliveira, Aug. 3 (Ravel's Piano Concerto); Zino Francescatti, Ang. 5 (Tchaikovsky's Violin Concerto).

Guest conductirs will be, in addition to the above-mentioned Hugh Ross and Leonard Bernstein: Richard Burgin, Eleazar de Carvalho, Lukas Foss and Pierre Monteux.

Chamber music will be performed at six successive Wednesday evening concerts by the Kroll String Quartet; the Boston Symphony Quartet, with Benny Goodman, clarinet; the Brass Ensemble, conducted by Roger Voisin, and Margaret Harshaw, soprano, accompanied by Ralph Berkowitz, piano; the Beaux Arts Trio; Rudolph Serkin and members of the Boston Woodwind Quintet, and Zino Francescatti, violin, with Artur Balsam, piano.

Messenger (e)
NORWOOD, Mass.
Tri-Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,750

MAY 15 1956

Planning Pops

Nurses from the New England Hospital will serve as flower girls at the annual Night at Pops on Saturday, May 26, conducted for the benefit of the hospital by its women's auxiliary, the "Friends".

Co-chairmen of the Pops Committee are Mrs. Alfred L. Solow of Wollaston and Mrs. Philip H. Sherwood of Westwood

Telegram-News (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Democrat
Circ. 21,784

MAY 16 1956

POPS SPONSORS

Marblehead sponsors of tonight's Vassar-Dartmouth night at the Pops at Symphony hall, Boston, include Mrs. Thomas J. Bowen, Mrs. J. Andrew Heath, Mrs. G. Frank Cram, Mrs. Randall Bell, Mrs. William Palmer, Mrs. John E. Seigelman, Mrs. William N. Weikert and Mrs. James T. Parker.

Proceeds will be used for the benefit of the scholarship funds of both colleges.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 18 1956

New Englanders Stress 'Travel for a Purpose'

Special to The Christian Science Monitor

New England

There is a new trend in tourist travel in New England—travel for a purpose.

The summer vacationist is beginning to seek out the more serious type of attractions such as music, drama, and art in addition to serene lakes, majestic mountains, and relaxing recreation.

Without being too narrowly provincial, it should be pointed out that New England possesses vast resources for the purposeful traveler, as well as good inns and resorts for his comfort.

Consider art: By keeping to the main highways, it is entirely possible to review the whole tradition of western art at museums in Boston, Springfield, Hartford, and Worcester; the French masterworks at Smith College; the Orozco murals at Dartmouth College; the magpie collection of Americana at the Shelburne Museum in Vermont.

Take music: The Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood with the Boston Symphony Orchestra runs from July 4 to Aug. 12. The weekend concerts at spectacular Castle Hill in Ipswich, Mass., start June 29. The curtain raiser, combining all the arts, is the Fifth Annual Boston Arts Festival from June 9 to 24 in the Public Garden. The Festival will present without charge a 16-day program of art exhibitions, drama, opera, ballet, music, poetry, and folk dance to an expected audience of 750,000.

Williamstown, Mass., the home of Williams College, is at the scenic top of the Berkshires and within striking distance of Tanglewood. It is also the site for the Williams Inn, the original Treadway Inn, right on the campus.

Additional summer attractions include a 10-week theater season beginning June 26 in the Adams Memorial Theater; the lavish Clark Art Institute which shelters one of the greatest private art collections of our day in what is probably the most functional museum in the country.

History is built and furrowed into the New England landscape. An essential for the history-interested traveler is Old Sturbridge Village in central Massachusetts. It recreates a town of the early 19th Century with some 40 buildings on a 200-acre preserve which is open daily from 9:30 to 5:30.

More romantic history, the saga of the Green Mountain Boys, is implicit in the Rutland region of Vermont. Crown Point Road that brought Ethan Allen to victory at Ticonderoga, defeat at Hubbardton, and finally victory at Bennington has been marked for posterity as it winds through the Vermont forests.

For seafarer-travelers, the route leads to Cape Cod. Here is the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, the New Bedford Whaling Museum, the feel of history in the seascapes and the evocation of the past in antiques.

Such is a brief sampling of New England for the purposeful traveler. Distance may lend enchantment to Europe, but the paterfamilias (and others) faced with the logistics of travel and a battered budget will find that more things than charity begin at home in New England.

Messenger (e)
NORWOOD, Mass.
Tri-Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,750

MAY 15 1956

Republicans Plan Night At The Pops

The Massachusetts Council of Young Republicans will hold their annual fund raising Pops concert at Symphony Hall on Sunday, June 3, at 8 p.m.

Anyone who has attended "Republican Night at the Pops" knows what a popular affair it is, when Republicans young and old

Continued on Page Four

wood Young Republican Club are Mrs. Richard Boch, 744 Neponset street, Nor-4555, and Miss Mary Riley, 19 Walters road, Nor-7-0136-M. Individual tickets may be purchased and tables for five are available

Miss Patricia Bech and Miss Mary Riley have been selected by the Massachusetts Council to usher at the affair.

Mrs Boch and Miss Riley wish to take this opportunity to extend an invitation to all Republicans in Norwood to attend this affair.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

MAY 17 1956

B. I. Auxiliary Will Sponsor Night at Pops

For the 13th year Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary will sponsor a Night at Pops to benefit the Tumor and Cancer Clinic.

The program book for the June 16 concert at Symphony Hall will be dedicated to Mrs. Samuel Rabinowitz, adviser to the group for eight years. Flowers will be sold during the evening by Bernice Greene and Evelyn Mason.

Estelle Levine is general chairman. Her ticket committee, headed by Rena Hyman and Felice Miller, is invited to a Pre-Pops Garden Party, June 10. Admission is the sale of 10 or more Pops tickets.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 18 1956

UNH Head Honored By Alumni Here

The president of the University of New Hampshire, Dr. Eldon L. Johnson, made his first official visit to Boston yesterday to attend an informal reception in his honor at the Harvard Club and "UNH Night" at the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall.

With Mrs. Johnson and their two daughters, Shelley and Joan, he greeted 150 members of the Boston Alumni Club of university graduates at a coffee hour preceding the concert.

Dr. Johnson, who is only 47, was dean of the college of liberal arts and the graduate school of the University of Oregon when he was named the 13th president of the University of New Hampshire, last May.

With Dr. Johnson and Mrs. Johnson was Gov Lane Dwinell of New Hampshire, and the governor's military aides.

After the reception, they attended the fifth annual "UNH Night" at the Pops sponsored by the Boston Alumni Club. More than 750 alumni and guests were present.

Bernie Delman was chairman of arrangements and Paul Mann, president of the club, chairman of the committee in charge. Robert M. Taylor, manager of the Harvard Club and a UNH alumnus, was host for the coffee hour.

Jewish Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 9,000

MAY 17 1956

"POPS" CHAIRMAN — Samuel D. Shapiro of Brookline, was re-elected Chairman of the Histadrut "Pops" Concert Committee last week at a luncheon meeting at the Bradford Hotel. The annual Histadrut Night at "Pops" will be held at Symphony Hall Thursday, June 21st. Richard Tucker, leading American tenor, will be guest soloist.

Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,432

MAY 17 1956

Juniors Plan Pops Night

ARLENE FLASHENBERG
. . . chairman

The annual Pops Night of the Junior Auxiliary of the Jewish Memorial hospital will be held Tuesday, May 22, at Symphony hall. Miss Arlene Flashenberg is general chairman.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 18 1956

Simmons Night At Pops May 23

Simmons College Night at Pops for the benefit of the Scholarship Fund will be held Wednesday, May 23. Sponsored by the Simmons Club of Boston, a Night at Pops has become a college tradition of nearly 40 years standing. During that time concerts have been under the direction of three outstanding conductors, Agide Jacchia, Alfredo Casella and Arthur Fiedler.

Wednesday night's concert will feature the Simmons College Glee Club directed by Mr. Burton Cleaves, director of musical activities at the college. His guest will be Miss Gena Branscombe, New York, who is the composer of "The Bridesmaid's Song" which she dedicated to the Glee Club.

Among those attending will be: president of the college, William E. Park, and Mrs. Park; Dean Eleanor Clifton; Mr. and Mrs. J. Garton Needham; Mrs. Richard P. Bonney, president of the Simmons Club of Boston; Mrs. Frank Adams, chairman of the committee; Mrs. Frederck Shepard, Jr.; Dean and Mrs. Wyle Sypher; Dr. and Mrs. Weldon Welfling; Dr. and Mrs. John A. Timm; Prof. Edith Helman, and Marjory Stimson.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 18 1956

New Englanders Stress 'Travel for a Purpose'

Special to The Christian Science Monitor

New England

There is a new trend in tourist travel in New England—travel for a purpose.

The summer vacationist is beginning to seek out the more serious type of attractions such as music, drama, and art in addition to serene lakes, majestic mountains, and relaxing recreation.

Without being too narrowly provincial, it should be pointed out that New England possesses vast resources for the purposeful traveler, as well as good inns and resorts for his comfort.

Consider art: By keeping to the main highways, it is entirely possible to review the whole tradition of western art at museums in Boston, Springfield, Hartford, and Worcester; the French masterworks at Smith College; the Orozco murals at Dartmouth College; the magpie collection of Americana at the Shelburne Museum in Vermont.

Take music: The Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood with the Boston Symphony Orchestra runs from July 4 to Aug. 12. The weekend concerts at spectacular Castle Hill in Ipswich, Mass., start June 29. The curtain raiser, combining all the arts, is the Fifth Annual Boston Arts Festival from June 9 to 24 in the Public Garden. The Festival will present without charge a 16-day program of art exhibitions, drama, opera, ballet, music, poetry, and folk dance to an expected audience of 750,000.

Williamstown, Mass., the home of Williams College, is at the scenic top of the Berkshires and within striking distance of Tanglewood. It is also the site for the Williams Inn, the original Treadway Inn, right on the campus.

Additional summer attractions include a 10-week theater season beginning June 26 in the Adams Memorial Theater; the lavish Clark Art Institute which shelters one of the greatest private art collections of our day in what is probably the most functional museum in the country.

History is built and furrowed into the New England landscape. An essential for the history-interested traveler is Old Sturbridge Village in central Massachusetts. It recreates a town of the early 19th Century with some 40 buildings on a 200-acre preserve which is open daily from 9:30 to 5:30.

More romantic history, the saga of the Green Mountain Boys, is implicit in the Rutland region of Vermont. Crown Point Road that brought Ethan Allen to victory at Ticonderoga, defeat at Hubbardton, and finally victory at Bennington has been marked for posterity as it winds through the Vermont forests.

For seafarer-travelers, the route leads to Cape Cod. Here is the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, the New Bedford Whaling Museum, the feel of history in the seascapes and the evocation of the past in antiques.

Such is a brief sampling of New England for the purposeful traveler. Distance may lend enchantment to Europe, but the paterfamilias (and others) faced with the logistics of travel and a battered budget will find that more things than charity begin at home in New England.

Santa Fe's New

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 18 1956

UNH Head Honored By Alumni Here

The president of the University of New Hampshire, Dr. Eldon L. Johnson, made his first official visit to Boston yesterday to attend an informal reception in his honor at the Harvard Club and "UNH Night" at the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall.

With Mrs. Johnson and their two daughters, Shelley and Joan, he greeted 150 members of the Boston Alumni Club of university graduates at a coffee hour preceding the concert.

Dr. Johnson, who is only 47, was dean of the college of liberal arts and the graduate school of the University of Oregon when he was named the 13th president of the University of New Hampshire, last May.

With Dr. Johnson and Mrs. Johnson was Gov Lane Dwinell of New Hampshire, and the governor's military aides.

After the reception, they attended the fifth annual "UNH Night" at the Pops sponsored by the Boston Alumni Club. More than 750 alumni and guests were present.

Bernie Delman was chairman of arrangements and Paul Mann, president of the club, chairman of the committee in charge. Robert M. Taylor, manager of the Harvard Club and a UNH alumnus, was host for the coffee hour.

Jewish Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 9,000

MAY 17 1956

Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,432

MAY 17 1956

LEGAL NOTICE
COMMONWEALTH OF

Vaccine will be released for pregnant women to the family physician as soon as the office procedure will permit.

Vaccine will be released at the same time by the Norwood Board of Health to Norwood physicians who have patients in Boston, Canton, Sharon, Walpole, Westwood, Needham, and Dedham. The vac-gather from all over the State for an evening's entertainment and enjoyment. Governor Herter, Lt. Governor Whittier, Attorney General Fingold, and Senate President Richard Furbush and many other office holders will be present again this year.

Pops Concert...

Continued from Page One

Pops Co-chairman from the Norwood Young Republican Club are Mrs. Richard Boch, 744 Nepons street, Nor-4555, and Miss Mary Riley, 19 Walters road, Nor-7-0136-M. Individual tickets may be purchased and tables for five are available

Miss Patricia Bech and Miss Mary Riley have been selected by the Massachusetts Council to usher at the affair.

Mrs Boch and Miss Riley wish to take this opportunity to extend an invitation to all Republicans in Norwood to attend this affair.

"POPS" CHAIRMAN — Samuel D. Shapiro of Brookline, was re-elected Chairman of the Histadrut "Pops" Concert Committee last week at a luncheon meeting at the Bradford Hotel. The annual Histadrut Night at "Pops" will be held at Symphony Hall Thursday, June 21st. Richard Tucker, leading American tenor, will be guest soloist.

Juniors Plan Pops Night

ARLENE FLASHENBERG
. . . chairman

The annual Pops Night of the Junior Auxiliary of the Jewish Memorial hospital will be held Tuesday, May 22, at Symphony hall. Miss Arlene Flashenberg is general chairman.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

MAY 17 1956

B. I. Auxiliary Will Sponsor Night at Pops

For the 13th year Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary will sponsor a Night at Pops to benefit the Tumor and Cancer Clinic.

The program book for the June 16 concert at Symphony Hall will be dedicated to Mrs. Samuel Rabinowitz, adviser to the group for eight years. Flowers will be sold during the evening by Bernice Greene and Evelyn Mason.

Estelle Levine is general chairman. Her ticket committee, headed by Rena Hyman and Felice Miller, is invited to a Pre-Pops Garden Party, June 10. Admission is the sale of 10 or more Pops tickets.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 18 1956

Simmons Night At Pops May 23

Simmons College Night at Pops for the benefit of the Scholarship Fund will be held Wednesday, May 23. Sponsored by the Simmons Club of Boston, a Night at Pops has become a college tradition of nearly 40 years standing. During that time concerts have been under the direction of three outstanding conductors, Agide Jacchia, Alfredo Casella and Arthur Fiedler.

Wednesday night's concert will feature the Simmons College Glee Club directed by Mr. Burton Cleaves, director of musical activities at the college. His guest will be Miss Gena Branscombe, New York, who is the composer of "The Bridesmaid's Song" which she dedicated to the Glee Club.

Among those attending will be: president of the college, William E. Park, and Mrs. Park; Dean Eleanor Clifton; Mr. and Mrs. J. Garton Needham; Mrs. Richard P. Bonney, president of the Simmons Club of Boston; Mrs. Frank Adams, chairman of the committee; Mrs. Frederck Shepard, Jr.; Dean and Mrs. Wyle Sypher; Dr. and Mrs. Weldon Welfling; Dr. and Mrs. John A. Timm; Prof. Edith Helman, and Marjory Stimson.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

MAY 18 1956

Garden Tours

Several Open Gates To Public

By MAGGIE WELLS,
Society Editor

Haven't heard so much people about gardens since James Thurber's friend saw that unicorn in his petunia patch.

Perhaps inside, we're bombarded by shows of garden [illegible] as though [illegible] anybody is [illegible] his garden gate to the public, for one [illegible] or another.

SEVEN GARDENS ON MONDAY

The Chestnut Hill Garden Club will have the last half [illegible] Monday, with seven [illegible] welcoming visitors to peep in their gardens. The [illegible] of "two Mondays in May" will take place, rain or shine from 11 a. m. to 6:30 p. m.

Proponents of both sun-heated pits and more convenient-type greenhouses will be able to view fine examples of their pet structures Monday.

Mrs. John H. Cunningham, who favors the sun-heated pit, will open her garden and greenhouse at 53 Seaver St., Brookline. Mrs. Louis Curtis's conventional greenhouse will be included in the tour, as will Mrs. James P. Parker's.

Mr. Parker, also a member of the Club, built the latter greenhouse for his wife, to house her orchid and hibiscus plants.

The Parkers' garden, scheduled for the first Monday, is being included again in the second list. Their dogwood trees, which failed to bloom on schedule last week, are glorious now!

Other gardeners on Monday's list are Mmes. Lewis I. Prouty, Hamilton Heard, John Dane Jr. and George R. Minot. Luncheon will be sold at Mrs. Dane's house, at 342 Warren Street.

MORE MEN GARDENERS

Chestnut Hill gardeners are fanning the coals of the man-in - the - garden controversy which flared ever so slightly in this column recently.

Their Club's first few presidents, they point out, were all men. Richard Saltonstall, father of the distinguished senator, served from 1915 to 1921. Others included A. Winsor Weld, Ernest B. Dane, Edwin S. Webster, James B. Colt, George B. Baker and John P. Ramsey.

Mrs. Webster became the group's first lady president, in 1932.

POPS SHOTS

"Buy My Violets?" will be the question on the lips of many a Junior Leaguer next Saturday evening, May 26. A bevy of beauties from the League's Professional Group, sponsoring that night's Pops Concert, in Symphony Hall, will sell violets and gardenias during intermissions.

The flower-vendors will include Joanne Orr, chairman, Kathy French, Charlotte Benner, Nancy Strouce, Betty Johnson and Jill Littlefield.

SIMMONS TO BENEFIT WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Next Wednesday evening's Pops Concert will be sponsored by the Simmons Club of Boston, to benefit their Scholarship Fund.

President and Mrs. William E. Park will be in the audience that evening. Others who've made reservations for the concert include Mmes. Frank Adams, Frederick Shepard Jr. and Dr. and Mrs. John A. Timm.

RIGHT WAY of doing housework is demonstrated by Mrs. Walter Stafford, South Boston, a heart patient. Mrs. Stafford saves energy by not bending to sweep her floor.

SAN RAFAEL, CALIF.
Independent-Journal
Circ. D. 17,040

MAY 15 1956

Boston 'Pops' Signs Sausalito Duo-Pianists

Sausalito's husband-wife piano team, Peggy and Milton Salkind, have been signed to play with conductor Arthur Fiedler and the Boston "Pops" Orchestra in Boston the night of May 29.

This was disclosed yesterday by Milton Salkind who noted happily: "It's our biggest opportunity to date."

The two-pianists were first noticed by Fiedler last summer when the Salkinds played Benjamin Britten's "Scottish Ballad" for two pianos in a San Francisco Symphony Orchestra "Pops" concert conducted by the famous leader.

They will perform the same number at Boston's Symphony Hall May 29. It will be a Boston premiere for the work.

The engagement with the Boston "Pops" will be the Salkinds' first performance with a major symphony orchestra of the eastern seaboard.

ERIE, PA.
DISPATCH
Circ. D. 39,622 - S. 43,164

MAY 20 1956

ARTHUR FIEDLER, veteran conductor of the famous BOSTON POPS ORCHESTRA, conducts its new series of broadcast concerts Monday nights at 8:15-9 over NBC Radio and WIKK. The orchestra's repertoire ranges from symphonic classics to popular show tunes and novelties. The concerts are broadcast from Symphony Hall in Boston.

Maybe 56

THE PUBLIC CARES

Its Reaction to Philharmonic Analysis Shows It Values Orchestra's Role

By HOWARD TAUBMAN

THERE has been a steady flow of letters from readers commenting on last Sunday's discussion of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony and its problems. The correspondence has come from the metropolitan area and distant parts of the country, from present and former subscribers, from veteran and new listeners and from persons whose acquaintance with the orchestra is through radio and records.

The very bulk of this reaction should be an encouragement to those of us who are interested in music and the future of the Philharmonic. It proves that many people in the city, state and nation care about the orchestra and its services.

But they seem to want reform. All but a few of the letters endorse the main thesis spread out on this page: that the Philharmonic's performances, programs, attendance and prestige have been going downhill and that a drastic overhauling of its policies is needed.

Much of the comment centers on the functions and obligations of the musical director.

Ray Berry, editor of The American Organist, observes: "Theoretically the musical director of any organization should be permitted full control. Actually this control is seldom thus found, since pressures, influences and other frequently deleterious influences are usually actively present."

Share of Season

William K. Munson of Floral Park, N. Y., believes that the musical director should be with the orchestra a larger proportion of the season than has been the custom in recent years.

William Max Fiedler, head of Alfred University's Music Department and son of Max Fiedler, Boston Symphony conductor from 1908 to 1911, goes into this theme at greater length.

"You put the Boston Symphony and the Philadelphia on record as having esprit de corps. Why? Because they play under one conductor * * * in most of their rehearsal and concerts.

"I have sometimes observed how concerned a musician becomes, playing today under Toscanini and maybe next week, let's say, under another great one, Bruno Walter. He will think, Toscanini wants it this way and Walter wants it that way. Musicians are extremely sensitive. Mahler once refused to direct 'Tristan' if Toscanini would direct it in the same season.

"The solution would be: one chief conductor, a very outstanding one, for the whole series of concerts, all programs planned in advance for the whole season, as you suggest, so that the public before buying their tickets would know exactly what to expect. So ONE conductor, like Boston, Philadelphia and other major towns. This is the way it has worked for centuries in Europe."

Exhausting Demands

Under ideal conditions this would be the proper procedure. But the extent of the New York Philharmonic season, with its twenty-eight weeks, its different series and its varying programs, makes such a solution improbable. The demands of the job are too great for one man.

The truth must be faced that there is no paragon of the baton alive whose musical sympathies are so wide-ranging that he could bring equal enthusiasm and illumination to every facet of the repertory. A modern symphonic season is expected to cover too much ground, and even the finest and most catholic of conductors have blind spots where certain schools, styles and composers are concerned.

Perhaps the New York Philharmonic can learn some lessons from the London Philharmonia. The latter orchestra, which was assembled in the first instance for recording purposes, is a superb instrument, splendidly trained and vibrantly responsive. It does not have a permanent conductor; its leaders seem to be invited for their special affinities. It appears to play with equal felicity for all.

The New York Philharmonic may not be in a state where it could do so today. But given a musical director who would help to restore its pride and its standards of performance and who would see to it that slipshod work would not be tolerated under any circumstances, this orchestra could function effectively under any number of other leaders.

Guests of Rank

It would be necessary, however, to have guest conductors whose vision and insight inspire musicians and the audience alike. There are a number of such men around, conductors who have established that they have unusual understanding of special and higher, important sections of the repertory.

There will be occasion later on to examine other issues raised by this discussion of the Philharmonic's difficulties. One comment mentioned by a reader needs attention immediately.

A woman writes that she has been a Philharmonic subscriber for more than the thirty-five years she has lived in New York. She writes that she is now giving up her subscription because she is unhappy over the programs. If she has been influenced in any way to cancel by last Sunday's analysis, this column is distressed.

It should be emphasized again that there was no intention whatever to harm the Philharmonic. The aim was exactly the opposite. It was felt that only by speaking candidly could a campaign to halt and reverse the downward trend in the orchestra's fortunes be stimulated.

The subscribers should play an active role in such a campaign. Rather than cancel, they should communicate their feelings of discontent to the conductor, the management and the board. Subscribers are the life-blood of any orchestral season. Their views would receive attention, you may be sure, if enough of them were articulate.

Indifference

One of the troubles with the Philharmonic in recent years has been that the public and the community have often been indifferent to its programs or lack of it. Displeased subscribers have just dropped out, as many letters received this week bear witness. Many who have continued to attend concerts have sat through good, bad and indifferent performances without making clear how they really felt.

New York is so big and busy a city that it seems to pay little heed to some of the institutions that contribute to its preeminence. If there is public pride in a cultural organization like the Philharmonic, it is well concealed.

Look at Detroit. There the orchestra had disappeared, and a determined movement led by outstanding citizens and industries built a new one. Now the community, with the Ford Company making a big contribution, is building a hall for the orchestra.

If the Philharmonic is in trouble, we all share a small part of the blame. The city, from the Mayor down, should rally behind it. We should criticize its shortcomings and demand reform, but we should see to it that it remains in existence, going on to greater communal usefulness and finer musical achievement than ever before.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 18 1956

New Englanders Stress 'Travel for a Purpose'

Special to The Christian Science Monitor

New England

There is a new trend in tourist travel in New England—travel for a purpose.

The summer vacationist is beginning to seek out the more serious type of attractions such as music, drama, and art in addition to serene lakes, majestic mountains, and relaxing recreation.

Without being too narrowly provincial, it should be pointed out that New England possesses vast resources for the purposeful traveler, as well as good inns and resorts for his comfort.

Consider art: By keeping to the main highways, it is entirely possible to review the whole tradition of western art at museums in Boston, Springfield, Hartford, and Worcester; the French masterworks at Smith College; the Orozco murals at Dartmouth College; the magpie collection of Americana at the Shelburne Museum in Vermont.

Take music: The Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood with the Boston Symphony Orchestra runs from July 4 to Aug. 12. The weekend concerts at spectacular Castle Hill in Ipswich, Mass., start June 29. The curtain raiser, combining all the arts, is the Fifth Annual Boston Arts Festival from June 9 to 24 in the Public Garden. The Festival will present without charge a 16-day program of art exhibitions, drama, opera, ballet, music, poetry, and folk dance to an expected audience of 750,000.

Williamstown, Mass., the home of Williams College, is at the scenic top of the Berkshires and within striking distance of Tanglewood. It is also the site for the Williams Inn, the original Treadway Inn, right on the campus.

Additional summer attractions include a 10-week theater season beginning June 26 in the Adams Memorial Theater; the lavish Clark Art Institute which shelters one of the greatest private art collections of our day in what is probably the most functional museum in the country.

History is built and furrowed into the New England landscape. An essential for the history-interested traveler is Old Sturbridge Village in central Massachusetts. It recreates a town of the early 19th Century with some 40 buildings on a 200-acre preserve which is open daily from 9:30 to 5:30.

More romantic history, the saga of the Green Mountain Boys, is implicit in the Rutland region of Vermont. Crown Point Road that brought Ethan Allen to victory at Ticonderoga, defeat at Hubbardton, and finally victory at Bennington has been marked for posterity as it winds through the Vermont forests.

For seafarer-travelers, the route leads to Cape Cod. Here is the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, the New Bedford Whaling Museum, the feel of history in the seascapes and the evocation of the past in antiques.

Such is a brief sampling of New England for the purposeful traveler. Distance may lend enchantment to Europe, but the paterfamilias (and others) faced with the logistics of travel and a battered budget will find that more things than charity begin at home in New England.

Messenger (e)
NORWOOD, Mass.
Tri-Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,750

MAY 15 1956

Republicans Plan Night At The Pops

The Massachusetts Council of Young Republicans will hold their annual fund raising Pops concert at Symphony Hall on Sunday, June 3, at 8 p.m.

Anyone who has attended "Republican Night at the Pops" knows what a popular affair it is, when Republicans young and old

Continued on Page Four

wood Young Republican Club are Mrs. Richard Boch, 744 Nepon street, Nor-4555, and Miss Mary Riley, 19 Walters road, Nor-7-0136-M. Individual tickets may be purchased and tables for five are available

Miss Patricia Bech and Miss Mary Riley have been selected by the Massachusetts Council to usher at the affair.

Mrs Boch and Miss Riley wish to take this opportunity to extend an invitation to all Republicans in Norwood to attend this affair.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

MAY 17 1956

B. I. Auxiliary Will Sponsor Night at Pops

For the 13th year Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary will sponsor a Night at Pops, to benefit the Tumor and Cancer Clinic.

The program book for the June 16 concert at Symphony Hall will be dedicated to Mrs. Samuel Rabinowitz, adviser to the group for eight years. Flowers will be sold during the evening by Bernice Greene and Evelyn Mason.

Estelle Levine is general chairman. Her ticket committee, headed by Rena Hyman and Felice Miller, is invited to a Pre-Pops Garden Party, June 10. Admission is the sale of 10 or more Pops tickets.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 18 1956

UNH Head Honored By Alumni Here

The president of the University of New Hampshire, Dr. Eldon L. Johnson, made his first official visit to Boston yesterday to attend an informal reception in his honor at the Harvard Club and "UNH Night" at the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall.

With Mrs. Johnson and their two daughters, Shelley and Joan, he greeted 150 members of the Boston Alumni Club of university graduates at a coffee hour preceding the concert.

Dr. Johnson, who is only 47, was dean of the college of liberal arts and the graduate school of the University of Oregon when he was named the 13th president of the University of New Hampshire, last May.

With Dr. Johnson and Mrs. Johnson was Gov Lane Dwinell of New Hampshire, and the governor's military aides.

After the reception, they attended the fifth annual "UNH Night" at the Pops sponsored by the Boston Alumni Club. More than 750 alumni and guests were present.

Bernie Delman was chairman of arrangements and Paul Mann, president of the club, chairman of the committee in charge. Robert M. Taylor, manager of the Harvard Club and a UNH alumnus, was host for the coffee hour.

Jewish Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 9,000

MAY 17 1956

"POPS" CHAIRMAN — Samuel D. Shapiro of Brookline, was re-elected Chairman of the Histadrut "Pops" Concert Committee last week at a luncheon meeting at the Bradford Hotel. The annual Histadrut Night at "Pops" will be held at Symphony Hall Thursday, June 21st. Richard Tucker, leading American tenor, will be guest soloist.

Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,432

MAY 17 1956

Juniors Plan Pops Night

ARLENE FLASHENBERG
. . . chairman

The annual Pops Night of the Junior Auxiliary of the Jewish Memorial hospital will be held Tuesday, May 22, at Symphony hall. Miss Arlene Flashenberg is general chairman.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 18 1956

Simmons Night At Pops May 23

Simmons College Night at Pops for the benefit of the Scholarship Fund will be held Wednesday, May 23. Sponsored by the Simmons Club of Boston, a Night at Pops has become a college tradition of nearly 40 years standing. During that time concerts have been under the direction of three outstanding conductors, Agide Jacchia, Alfredo Casella and Arthur Fiedler.

Wednesday night's concert will feature the Simmons College Glee Club directed by Mr. Burton Cleaves, director of musical activities at the college. His guest will be Miss Gena Branscombe, New York, who is the composer of "The Bridesmaid's Song" which she dedicated to the Glee Club.

Among those attending will be: president of the college, William E. Park, and Mrs. Park; Dean Eleanor Clifton; Mr. and Mrs. J. Garton Needham; Mrs. Richard P. Bonney, president of the Simmons Club of Boston; Mrs. Frank Adams, chairman of the committee; Mrs. Frederck Shepard, Jr.; Dean and Mrs. Wyle Sypher; Dr. and Mrs. Weldon Welfling; Dr. and Mrs. John A. Timm; Prof. Edith Helman, and Marjory Stimson.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

MAY 18 1956

Garden Tours

Several Open Gates To Public

By MAGGIE WELLS,
Society Editor

Haven't heard so much hoopla about gardens since James Thurber's friend saw that unicorn in his petunia patch.

From every side, we're bombarded with news of garden tours. It seems as though everybody who's anybody is opening his garden gate to the general public, for one good cause or another.

SEVEN GARDENS OPEN MONDAY

The Chestnut Hill Garden Club will have the last half of its tour Monday, with seven residents welcoming visitors to inspect their gardens. The second of "Two Mondays in May" will take place, rain or shine, from 11 a. m. to 6:30 p. m.

Proponents of both sun-heated pits and more conventional-type greenhouses will be able to view fine examples of their pet structures Monday.

Mrs. John H. Cunningham, who favors the sun-heated pit, will open her garden and greenhouse at 53 Seaver St., Brookline. Mrs. Louis Curtis's conventional greenhouse will be included in the tour, as will Mrs. James P. Parker's.

Mr. Parker, also a member of the Club, built the latter greenhouse for his wife, to house her orchid and hibiscus plants.

The Parkers' garden, scheduled for the first Monday, is being included again in the second list. Their dogwood trees, which failed to bloom on schedule last week, are glorious now!

Other gardeners on Monday's list are Mmes. Lewis I. Prouty, Hamilton Heard, John Dane Jr. and George R. Minot. Luncheon will be sold at Mrs. Dane's house, at 342 Warren Street.

MORE MEN GARDENERS

Chestnut Hill gardeners are fanning the coals of the man-in-the-garden controversy which flared ever so slightly in this column recently.

Their Club's first few presidents, they point out, were all men. Richard Saltonstall, father of the distinguished senator, served from 1915 to 1921. Others included A. Winsor Weld, Ernest B. Dane, Edwin S. Webster, James B. Colt, George B. Baker and John P. Ramsey.

Mrs. Webster became the group's first lady president, in 1932.

POPS SHOTS

"Buy My Violets?" will be the question on the lips of many a Junior Leaguer next Saturday evening, May 26. A bevy of beauties from the League's Professional Group, sponsoring that night's Pops Concert, in Symphony Hall, will sell violets and gardenias during intermissions.

The flower-vendors will include Joanne Orr, chairman, Kathy French, Charlotte Benner, Nancy Strouce, Betty Johnson and Jill Littlefield.

RIGHT WAY of doing housework is demonstrated by Mrs. Walter Stafford, South Boston, a heart patient. Mrs. Stafford saves energy by not bending to sweep her floor.

SIMMONS TO BENEFIT WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Next Wednesday evening's Pops Concert will be sponsored by the Simmons Club of Boston, to benefit their Scholarship Fund.

President and Mrs. William E. Park will be in the audience that evening. Others who've made reservations for the concert include Mmes. Frank Adams, Frederick Shepard Jr. and Dr. and Mrs. John A. Timm.

SAN RAFAEL, CALIF.
Independent-Journal
Circ. D. 17,040

MAY 15 1956

Boston 'Pops' Signs Sausalito Duo-Pianists

Sausalito's husband-wife piano team, Peggy and Milton Salkind, have been signed to play with conductor Arthur Fiedler and the Boston "Pops" Orchestra in Boston the night of May 29.

This was disclosed yesterday by Milton Salkind who noted happily: "It's our biggest opportunity to date."

The duo-pianists were first noticed by Fiedler last summer when the Salkinds played Benjamin Britten's "Scottish Ballad" for two pianos in a San Francisco Symphony Orchestra "Pops" concert conducted by the famous leader.

They will perform the same number at Boston's Symphony Hall May 29. It will be a Boston premiere for the work.

The engagement with the Boston "Pops" will be the Salkinds' first performance with a major symphony orchestra of the eastern seaboard.

ERIE, PA.
DISPATCH
Circ. D. 39,622 - S. 43,164

MAY 20 1956

ARTHUR FIEDLER, veteran conductor of the famous BOSTON POPS ORCHESTRA, conducts its new series of broadcast concerts Monday nights at 8:15-9 over NBC Radio and WIKK. The orchestra's repertoire ranges from symphonic classics to popular show tunes and novelties. The concerts are broadcast from Symphony Hall in Boston.

Mayfair 56

THE PUBLIC CARES

Its Reaction to Philharmonic Analysis Shows It Values Orchestra's Role

By HOWARD TAUBMAN

THERE has been a steady flow of letters from readers commenting on last Sunday's discussion of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony and its problems. The correspondence has come from the metropolitan area and distant parts of the country, from present and former subscribers, from veteran and new listeners and from persons whose acquaintance with the orchestra is through radio and records.

The very bulk of this reaction should be an encouragement to those of us who are interested in music and the future of the Philharmonic. It proves that many people in the city, state and nation care about the orchestra and its services.

But they seem to be of two forms. All but a few of the letters endorse the main theme spread out on this page: that the Philharmonic's performances, programs, attendance and prestige have been going downhill and that a drastic overhauling of its policies is needed.

Much of the comment centers on the functions and obligations of the musical director.

Ray Berry, editor of The American Organist, observes: "Theoretically the musical director of any organization should be permitted full control. Actually this control is seldom thus found, since pressures, influences and other frequently delicate influences are actively present."

Share of Season

William K. Munro of Forest Park, N. Y., believes that the musical director should be with the orchestra a larger proportion of the season than has been the custom in recent years.

William Max Fiedler, head of Alfred University's Music Department and son of Max Fiedler, Boston Symphony conductor from 1908 to 1911, goes this theme at greater length.

"You put the Boston Symphony and the Philadelphia on record as having esprit de corps. Why? Because they play under one conductor * * * in most of their rehearsal and concerts.

"I have sometimes wondered how concerned a musician becomes, playing today under Toscanini and maybe next week, let's say, under another great one, Bruno Walter. He will think, Toscanini wants it this way and Walter wants it that way. Musicians are extremely sensitive. Mahler once refused to direct 'Tristan' if Toscanini would direct it in the same season.

"The solution would be one chief conductor, a very outstanding one, for the whole series of concerts, all programs planned in advance for the whole season, as you suggest, so that the public before buying their tickets would know exactly what to expect. So ONE conductor, like Boston, Philadelphia and other major towns. This is the way it has worked for centuries in Europe."

Exhausting Demands

Under ideal conditions this would be the proper procedure. But the extent of the New York Philharmonic season, with its twenty-eight weeks, its different series and its varying programs, makes such a solution improbable. The demands of the job are too great for one man.

The truth must be faced that there is no paragon of the baton alive whose musical sympathies are so wide-ranging that he could bring equal enthusiasm and illumination to every facet of the repertory. A modern symphonic season is expected to cover too much ground, and even the finest and most catholic of conductors have blind spots where certain schools, styles and composers are concerned.

Perhaps the New York Philharmonic can learn some lessons from the London Philharmonia. The latter orchestra, which was assembled in the first instance for recording purposes, is a superb instrument, splendidly trained and vibrantly responsive. It does not have a permanent conductor; its leaders seem to be invited for their special affinities. It appears to play with equal felicity for all.

The New York Philharmonic may not be in a state where it could do so today. But given a musical director who would help to restore its pride and its standards of performance and who would see to it that slipshod work would not be tolerated under any circumstances, this orchestra could function effectively under any number of other leaders.

Guests of Rank

It would be necessary, however, to have guest conductors of rank and insight, [illegible] the audience and the [illegible]. There are a number of such men around. [illegible] who have established [illegible] have unusual understanding of specific and higher [illegible] sections of the repertory.

There would be actually better on to examine other [illegible] used by this discussion of the Philharmonic's ills. [illegible] mentioned by a [illegible] ten [illegible] freedom.

A [illegible] who has been a Philharmonic subscriber for more than the thirty-five years she has lived in New York writes [illegible] new girl [illegible] because she is unhappy over the programs. If she has been influenced in any way to cancel by last Sunday's analysis this column is distressed.

It should be emphasized again that there [illegible] no intention whatever to harm the Philharmonic. The aim was exactly the opposite. It was felt that only by speaking candidly could a campaign to halt and reverse the downward trend of the orchestra's fortunes be stimulated.

The subscribers should play an active role in the campaign. Rather than cancel they should communicate their feelings of discontent to the conductor, the management and the board. Subscribers are the life-blood of any orchestral season. Their views would receive attention, you may be sure, if enough of them were articulate.

Indifference

One of the troubles with the Philharmonic in recent years has been that the public and the community have not been indifferent to its progress or lack of it. Displeased subscribers have just dropped out. As many letters received last week bear witness. Many who have continued to attend concerts have sat through good, bad and indifferent performances without making clear how they really felt.

New York is so big and busy a city that it seems to pay little heed to some of the institutions that contribute to its preeminence. If there is public pride in a cultural organization like the Philharmonic, it is well concealed.

Look at Detroit. There the orchestra had disappeared, and a determined movement led by outstanding citizens and industries built a new one. Now the community, with the Ford Company making a big contribution, is building a hall for the orchestra.

If the Philharmonic is in trouble, we all share a small part of the blame. The city, from the Mayor down, should rally behind it. We should criticize its shortcomings and demand reform, but we should see to it that it remains in existence, going on to greater communal usefulness and finer musical achievement than ever before.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

MAY 18 1956

Garden Tours

Several Open Gates To Public

By MAGGIE WELLS,
Society Editor

Haven't heard so much people about gardens since James Thurber's friend saw that unicorn in his petunia patch.

From every side, we're bombarded with news of garden tours. It seems as though everybody who's anybody is opening his garden gate to the special public, for one good cause or another.

SEVEN GARDENS OPEN MONDAY

The Chestnut Hill Garden Club will have the last half of its tour Monday, with seven residents welcoming visitors to inspect their gardens. The second of "Two Mondays in May" will take place, rain or shine, from 11 a. m. to 6:30 p. m.

Proponents of both sun-heated pits and more conventional-type greenhouses will be able to view fine examples of their pet structures Monday.

Mrs. John H. Cunningham, who favors the sun-heated pit, will open her garden and greenhouse at 53 Seaver St., Brookline. Mrs. Louis Curtis's conventional greenhouse will be included in the tour, as will Mrs. James P. Parker's.

Mr. Parker, also a member of the Club, built the latter greenhouse for his wife, to house her orchid and hibiscus plants.

The Parkers' garden, scheduled for the first Monday, is being included again in the second list. Their dogwood trees, which failed to bloom on schedule last week, are glorious now!

Other gardeners on Monday's list are Mmes. Lewis I. Prouty, Hamilton Heard, John Dane Jr. and George R. Minot. Luncheon will be sold at Mrs. Dane's house, at 342 Warren Street.

MORE MEN GARDENERS

Chestnut Hill gardeners are fanning the coals of the man-in-the-garden controversy which flared ever so slightly in this column recently.

Their Club's first few presidents, they point out, were all men. Richard Saltonstall, father of the distinguished senator, served from 1915 to 1921. Others included A. Winsor Weld, Ernest B. Dane, Edwin S. Webster, James B. Colt, George B. Baker and John P. Ramsey.

Mrs. Webster became the group's first lady president, in 1932.

POPS SHOTS

"Buy My Violets?" will be the question on the lips of many a Junior Leaguer next Saturday evening, May 26. A bevy of beauties from the League's Professional Group, sponsoring that night's Pops Concert, in Symphony Hall, will sell violets and gardenias during intermissions.

The flower-vendors will include Joanne Orr, chairman, Kathy French, Charlotte Benner, Nancy Strouce, Betty Johnson and Jill Littlefield.

RIGHT WAY of doing housework is demonstrated by Mrs. Walter Stafford, South Boston, a heart patient. Mrs. Stafford saves energy by not bending to sweep her floor.

SIMMONS TO BENEFIT WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Next Wednesday evening's Pops Concert will be sponsored by the Simmons Club of Boston, to benefit their Scholarship Fund.

President and Mrs. William E. Park will be in the audience that evening. Others who've made reservations for the concert include Mmes. Frank Adams, Frederick Shepard Jr. and Dr. and Mrs. John A. Timm.

SAN RAFAEL, CALIF.
Independent-Journal
Circ. D. 17,040

MAY 15 1956

Boston 'Pops' Signs Sausalito Duo-Pianists

Sausalito's husband-wife piano team, Peggy and Milton Salkind, have been signed to play with conductor Arthur Fiedler and the Boston "Pops" Orchestra in Boston the night of May 29.

This was disclosed yesterday by Milton Salkind who noted happily: "It's our biggest opportunity to date."

The duo-pianists were first noticed by Fiedler last summer when the Salkinds played Benjamin Britten's "Scottish Ballad" for two pianos in a San Francisco Symphony Orchestra "Pops" concert conducted by the famous leader.

They will perform the same number at Boston's Symphony Hall May 29. It will be a Boston premiere for the work.

The engagement with the Boston "Pops" will be the Salkinds' first performance with a major symphony orchestra of the eastern seaboard.

ERIE, PA.
DISPATCH
Circ. D. 39,622 - S. 43,164

MAY 20 1956

ARTHUR FIEDLER, veteran conductor of the famous BOSTON POPS ORCHESTRA, conducts its new series of broadcast concerts Monday nights at 8:15-9 over NBC Radio and WIKK. The orchestra's repertoire ranges from symphonic classics to popular show tunes and novelties. The concerts are broadcast from Symphony Hall in Boston.

Maybe 56

THE PUBLIC CARES

Its Reaction to Philharmonic Analysis Shows It Values Orchestra's Role

By HOWARD TAUBMAN

THERE has been a steady flow of letters from readers commenting on last Sunday's discussion of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony and its problems. The correspondence has come from the metropolitan area and distant parts of the country, from present and former subscribers, from veteran and new listeners and from persons whose acquaintance with the orchestra is through radio and records.

The very bulk of this reaction should be an encouragement to those of us who are interested in music and the future of the Philharmonic. It proves that many people in the city, state and nation care about the orchestra and its services.

But they seem to want reforms. All but a few of the letters endorse the main thesis spread out on this page: that the Philharmonic's performances, programs, attendance and prestige have been going downhill and that a drastic overhauling of its policies is needed.

Much of the comment centers on the functions and obligations of the musical director.

Ray Berry, editor of The American Organist, observes: "Theoretically the musical director of any organization should be permitted full control; actually this control is seldom thus found, since pressures, influences and other frequently deleterious influences are usually actively present."

Share of Season

William K. Munson, of Floral Park, N. Y., believes that the musical director should be with the orchestra a larger proportion of the season than has been the custom in recent years.

William Max Fiedler, head of Alfred University's Music Department and son of Max Fiedler, Boston Symphony conductor from 1908 to 1911, goes into this theme at greater length.

"You put the Boston Symphony and the Philadelphia on record as having esprit de corps. Why? Because they play under one conductor * * * in most of their rehearsal and concerts.

"I have sometimes observed how concerned a musician becomes, playing today under Toscanini and maybe next week, let's say, under another great one, Bruno Walter. He will think, Toscanini wants it this way and Walter wants it that way. Musicians are extremely sensitive. Mahler once refused to direct 'Tristan' if Toscanini would direct it in the same season.

"The solution would be: one chief conductor, a very outstanding one, for the whole series of concerts, all programs planned in advance for the whole season, as you suggest, so that the public before buying their tickets would know exactly what to expect. So ONE conductor, like Boston, Philadelphia and other major towns. This is the way it has worked for centuries in Europe."

Exhausting Demands

Under ideal conditions this would be the proper procedure. But the extent of the New York Philharmonic season, with its twenty-eight weeks, its different series and its varying programs, makes such a solution improbable. The demands of the job are too great for one man.

The truth must be faced that there is no paragon of the baton alive whose musical sympathies are so wide-ranging that he could bring equal enthusiasm and illumination to every facet of the repertory. A modern symphonic season is expected to cover too much ground, and even the finest and most catholic of conductors have blind spots where certain schools, styles and composers are concerned.

Perhaps the New York Philharmonic can learn some lessons from the London Philharmonia. The latter orchestra, which was assembled in the first instance for recording purposes, is a superb instrument, splendidly trained and vibrantly responsive. It does not have a permanent conductor; its leaders seem to be invited for their special affinities. It appears to play with equal felicity for all.

The New York Philharmonic may not be in a state where it could do so today. But given a musical director who would help to restore its pride and its standards of performance and who would see to it that slipshod work would not be tolerated under any circumstances, this orchestra could function effectively under any number of other leaders.

Guests of Rank

It would be necessary, however, to have guest conductors whose title and insignia the musicians and the audience would respect. There are a number of such men around, conductors who have established that they have unusual understanding of special and limited, but important sections of the repertory.

There will be occasion later on to examine other issues raised by this discussion of the Philharmonic. One important one mentioned by a reader needs attention immediately.

A woman writes that she has been a Philharmonic subscriber for more than the thirty-five years she has lived in New York. She writes that she is now giving up her subscription because she is unhappy over the programs. If she has been influenced in any way to cancel by last Sunday's analysis, this column is distressed.

It should be emphasized again that there was no intention whatever to harm the Philharmonic. The aim was exactly the opposite. It was felt that only by speaking candidly could a campaign to halt and reverse the downward trend in the orchestra's fortunes be stimulated.

The subscribers should play an active role in such a campaign. Rather than cancel, they should communicate their feelings of discontent to the conductor, the management and the board. Subscribers are the life-blood of any orchestral season. Their views would receive attention, you may be sure, if enough of them were articulate.

Indifference

One of the troubles with the Philharmonic in recent years has been that the public and the community have often been indifferent to its progress or lack of it. Displeased subscribers have just dropped out, as many letters received this week bear witness. Many who have continued to attend concerts have sat through good, bad and indifferent performances, without making clear how they really felt.

New York is so big and busy a city that it seems to pay little heed to some of the institutions that contribute to its preeminence. If there is public pride in a cultural organization like the Philharmonic, it is well concealed.

Look at Detroit. There the orchestra had disappeared, and a determined movement led by outstanding citizens and industries built a new one. Now the community, with the Ford Company making a big contribution, is building a hall for the orchestra.

If the Philharmonic is in trouble, we all share a small part of the blame. The city, from the Mayor down, should rally behind it. We should criticize its shortcomings and demand reform, but we should see to it that it remains in existence, going on to greater communal usefulness and finer musical achievement than ever before.

96

DOWN BEAT
(Chicago, Ill.)
MAY 16 1956

Classics

DOWN BEAT

THE LATEST OF the Russian virtuosi to tour this country is a relative young[illegible] 29, named Mstistlav Rostropovi[illegible] impact on our audiences pe[illegible] been dulled by the visits of [illegible]trakh and Emil Gilels; s[illegible] the goliaths like Casals [illegible]erman, who are no longer ac[illegible] the cellists are rare who have [illegible]ater articulateness or brilliance [illegible] one than does Rostropovich.

In the [illegible] of his tour, Rostropovich has [illegible] behind at least one superb albu[illegible] Entitled Rostropovich Plays Bac[illegible] it contains the Suite No. 2 and the [illegible] No. 3, both for cello solo, and two shorter pieces for cello and orches[illegible] (Vanguard VRS-6026).

ALL ARE PLAYED with passionate eloquence and exceptional technique. Probably the most that can be said for Mr. R[illegible] in this performance is that he did nothing presumptuous to make the recordings after the suites had previously been recorded for all time by the great Casals. The Vanguard engineering, incidentally, is very good.

Other [illegible]ings of uncommon excellence [illegible] left by Oistrakh and Gilels. The latter revitalizes the rather shopworn Piano Concerto No. 1 by Tchaikovsky with commanding force and elegant cascades of notes (Victor LM-1969). Fritz Reiner conducts the Chicago Symphony orchestra pointedly and unobtrusive to the soloist's display of bravura.

Oistrakh wo[illegible] with Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony orchestra on three op[illegible] presents the gamut of challenges [illegible] virtuoso: Chausson's Po[illegible], Saint Saëns' Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso, and excerpts from [illegible] and Juliet by Berlioz (Victor [illegible]). Perhaps the most dazzl[illegible] the three Russians, Oistrakh [illegible] three pieces impeccab[illegible], with [illegible] precision, and great beauty of t[illegible].

JOSEF HOFMA[illegible] the famous child prodigy [illegible]st before the turn of the century, [illegible] turned [illegible] the concert hall at a ma[illegible] age and then disappeared again m[illegible]eriously. In his day, he had been call[illegible] the greatest pianist of all time.

On No[illegible] 28, 1937, [illegible] celebrated his 50th pr[illegible]ssional year with a return concert [illegible] the Metropolitan Opera House. [illegible]rtions of that concert are available now on a Columbia LP (ML 4929) in low fidelity, of course; but the sho[illegible]ing sound reproduction are more than compensated for by the wonder [illegible] performance. The disc's six bands are of Chopin and the rest are of Mendelssohn, Beethoven, Ra[illegible]ninoff, and Moszkowski.

The pla[illegible] is sensitive, compassionate, de[illegible]tly [illegible] and marvelously restrai[illegible]

RECOMMENDED: Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony orchestra; Tchaikovsky's Sy[illegible] No. 4 (Victor LM-1953). Read in good taste with excellent control [illegible] And very well engineered.

Nathan Milstein [illegible] William Steinberg and the Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra; Beethoven's Vio[illegible]

RICHMOND, VA.
NEWS-LEADER
Circ. D. 99,100
MAY 19 1956

here.

BOSTON POPS CONCERT

English, French and Viennese music will comprise the program of the Boston Pops Orchestra in a concert to be conducted by Arthur Fiedler Monday, (NBC radio, 8:15 p.m.; WLEE). Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance March No. 1," Thomas' "Mignon Overture," Josef Strauss' "Music of the Spheres Waltzes" and Chabrier's "Espana Rhapsody" will be played.

MAY 20 1956

RECORDINGS

Musical Picnic With 'Pops'

Little needs to be said by way of description or criticism where the music of Arthur Fiedler and the Boston "Pops" Orchestra is concerned. The group is without peer in the light concert field. Again Fiedler and his group have devoted themselves to a recording session and have been able to maintain the high quality of their previous output.

In the new album, "Boston Pops Picnic" (RCA Victor) they've concerned themselves with Ketelby's "In a Persian Market," Von Suppe's "Poet and Peasant" overture, Josef Strauss' "Village Swallow Waltz," Leroy Anderson's "Waltzing Cat," James Mason's "Pops Polka" and "Enchanted Sea," Ernesto Lecuona's "Malaguena," Gade's "Jalousie" and Ivanovici's "Danube Waves" (better known as "The Anniversary Song" from the movie "The Jolson Story").

Three years ago RCA Victor released a limited edition of the Nine Beethoven Symphonies perfo[illegible] Toscanini and the NBC Symphony Orchestra. They sold at that time for $52.40. This same series will now be released in unlimited numbers for $27.98.

The above [illegible] treasure and a bargain at that time. Toscanini is no longer recording, hence the treasure is valu[illegible] above price and still the price is now almost half.

Colorado [illegible] cogent [illegible] quent.

Pierre Monteux [illegible] Boston Symphony orchestra as [illegible] Symphony No. 5 ("Reformation") [illegible] (Victor LM 1901). Monteux's [illegible] is [illegible]

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.
NEWS
Circ. D. 159,492
MAY 31 1956

Boston Pops Disc Is a 'Picnic'

A musical outing especially for "middle brow" music lovers is available in "Boston Pops Picnic," with Conductor Arthur Fiedler as host.

In the [illegible] album, Fiedler [illegible] familiar [illegible] selections [illegible] able surp[illegible]

The "[illegible] "Jalous[illegible] "Poet [illegible] "Malaguen[illegible] [illegible]an Market" and "Pops Polka."

BATON ROUGE, LA.
ADVOCATE
Circ. D. 22,756 - S. 32,011
MAY 27 1956

Boston Pops Concert

Rhythmical numbers will dominate the Boston Pops Orchestra's program, directed by Arthur Fiedler Monday, 7:15 to 8 p.m. on WJBO. Selections will include "Procession of Bacchus" from the ballet "Sylvia" by Delibes, the "Orpheus in Hades" overture by Offenbach, the "Nutcracker Suite" by Tchaikovsky and Wagner's "Ride of the Valkyries."

Citizen
BROOKLINE, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 16,250 free
MAY 31 1956

Rotary Club Service Awards Given Two More Residents

Honoring two more Brookline residents for outstanding careers, the Rotary Club presented its Distinguished Public Service citations to Mrs. Nina Fletcher Little, a trustee of the Public Library for seven years and president of the Brookline Friendly Society for ten years, and Dr. Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra and the Boston Symphony Esplanade concerts, at its sixteenth annual awards meeting last Thursday at Longwood Towers.

Chairman James H. Henderson of the awards committee presided and in opening the meeting he explained the significance of the certificates and why they are given as a feature of the civic activities of the club. With members of the Kiwanis and Lions clubs, municipal and Rotary district officials and former recipients of the citation as guests, a company of some 300 was present for the occasion.

Presented by T. Roger Keane, the award to Mrs. Little carries the following citation: "Scholar, Author, Humanitarian. With a profound appreciation of the rich heritage from the life and arts of America's past . . . with a deeply sympathetic understanding of the intellectual and physical needs of the present . . . she has made an extraordinary and enduring contribution to the happiness and well-being of the people of this grateful community."

Presented by Past President Arthur A. O'Shea, the award to Dr. Fiedler, which was accepted by Mrs. Fiedler in the absence of her husband, bears the following inscription: "A gifted master of music who has brought the charm of his genius, the enthusiasm of his personality and the perfection of cropped up all over the Continent within a few years, and while some of them also give attention to other branches of the fine arts, almost invariably these festivals lean heavily on musical fare [illegible]med by highly touted m[illegible] [illegible]ainmentors and soloists.

(Continued on Page Eight)

AT AWARDS MEETING OF ROTARY CLUB. Left to right: Arthur A. O'Shea, Mrs. Arthur Fiedler, T. Roger Keane and Mrs. Nina Fletcher Little.

The shaky economy of many European cities and villages was thereby bolstered, and it was inevitable that promoters in this country [illegible] would begin to im[illegible] European counterparts.

Great Interest

Throughout [illegible] we have been [illegible] with announcements [illegible] old festivals now [illegible] ir summer plans. Many [illegible] of dubious impo[illegible] but few are offering [illegible]ons great interest.

The Berkshire Mu[illegible] Center has the best-know[illegible] American festivals, whi[illegible] this year from July [illegible] to August 12. It will celebrate its 14th season with a dazzling array of guest conductors and soloists. The core of the Berkshire Center, of course, is the Boston Symphony Orchestra. [illegible] will play a season of concerts at its summer home, the Berkshire Music Shed, and will be conducted by Charles Munch, Eleazar de Carvalho, Leonard Bernstein, Pierre Monteux and Richard Burgin. Rudolph Serkin tops its list of soloists.

In addition to the orchestra series, which will open July 20, there will be a Bach-Mozart series, and a chamber-music

MUSIC CALENDAR

May 20—Haydn's Creation, Willey B. Daniel, Jr., director; 5 p.m., Fifth Street Baptist Church.

24—Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, Sidney Harth, conductor; 8:30 p.m., Gardencourt.

25—St. Francis in The Fields Choir, Grant Graves, director; 8:15 p.m., St. Francis in The Fields.

27—Phillip Malpas, organist, and Samuel B. [illegible], baritone; 4:30 p.m., St. Mark[illegible] Church.

For add[illegible] or corrections to this calendar, c[illegible] the Louisville Chamber of Commerce, AMherst 2421.

Two

For tour o[illegible] festiva[illegible] Both ar[illegible] both a[illegible] One, at [illegible]cia[illegible]zes Aspen, [illegible] Festival [illegible]ferings.

Two o[illegible] in the [illegible] City—Pu[illegible] brand-ne[illegible] Moore, [illegible] Doe." Th[illegible] 30 with [illegible] Tosca."

[illegible]ntered[illegible]eras [illegible] in the[illegible]on's s[illegible]ilable [illegible] Ope[illegible] 30 Clev[illegible] The A[illegible]ne 27, [illegible]ember 2. [illegible] will [illegible] play [illegible] turned will [illegible] and [illegible] Vronsky [illegible] Primrose, [illegible] Juilliard [illegible] Lhevinne [illegible]

Izler Sol[illegible] Aspen orc[illegible] the list of [illegible] formed is [illegible] venturesom[illegible] posers to be [illegible] Schumann [illegible] this hardly [illegible] of the sta[illegible] festival wi[illegible] chure and [illegible] write Music [illegible] P. O. Box 4[illegible]

Of course[illegible] cinnati con[illegible] val that att[illegible] opera fans [illegible] Opera each [illegible] the operas [illegible] season will [illegible] viata," "Ma[illegible] "Don Pasqu[illegible]

[illegible]otz

[illegible]estivals [illegible]Summer

[illegible]cia Albanese, Frances [illegible] Stevens and Brian [illegible]ve already been en[illegible]

[illegible]sville box office for [illegible]ra is at the Shackle[illegible]ompany. The season [illegible]ne 30.

[illegible]CHMOND, VA.
[illegible]EWS-LEADER
Circ. D. 99,100
MAY 25 1956

[illegible]ER CHATTER

[illegible]nic Mood [illegible]nhanced [illegible]ecordings

[illegible]ime is here and along [illegible]usic to match a picnic [illegible]

[illegible] collection of old fa[illegible]d newcomers has just [illegible]rded by the Boston [illegible]estra, Arthur Fiedler [illegible]. Released by Victor, [illegible] prove as integral a [illegible] picnic as the everts.

[illegible]lways has planned his [illegible]tdoor concerts as one [illegible]nic—with varied fare [illegible] too ostentatious or [illegible] "Picnic" album is no [illegible]e conducts, for ex[illegible] familiar stand-bys [illegible] "In a Persian Mar[illegible]guena" and "Danube [illegible]

[illegible] also are interesting [illegible]ch as "Pops Polka," [illegible]ted Sea" and "Vil[illegible]s Waltz" which apes [illegible] twittering of birds.

[illegible] in love—who isn't [illegible]e in the spring?— [illegible] album, "Alone To[illegible]ecca. Starring Joe [illegible] Whispering Choir" [illegible]arks," it sings of [illegible]s where a couple [illegible]: "April in Paris," [illegible] York," "In the [illegible]ght," "Alone To[illegible]

[illegible]ong include "My [illegible]Hill," "You Were [illegible]e "Easy to Love," [illegible]cish Things."

[illegible]otally, has been [illegible] at Paramount [illegible] the vocal and [illegible]ts for the Bing [illegible]Going My Way." [illegible] of his own [illegible]Angle."

[illegible]usual for the [illegible] instruments [illegible] bass, drums, [illegible]es, harp and [illegible]

N. K.

tomley and is the father of two daughters and a son, Johanna, Deborah and Peter.

"Wasting no time in utilizing his God-given talents, he made his concert debut in Berlin at the age of 17 years, later joining the Boston Symphony Orchestra as a violinist in 1915, thereby becoming its youngest member. He organized the Boston Sinfonietta. In 1929, he organized the Boston Symphony Outdoor Esplanade concerts and has served as its conductor since that time.

"He has likewise been conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra since 1930, in which connection he has become particularly well-known throughout the world. He is a faculty member of the Boston University College of Music and has been conductor of the Cecelia Society of Boston, the Uunversity Glee Club of Providence and the MacDowell Club Orchestra

"In 1953, he toured the United States extensively with the Boston Pops Tour Orchestra, playing 64 concerts in almost as many cities in 68 days — going from New York to Florida, as far west as Texas, and finishing in New York State. This tour was so successful that it was repeated in 1954 and these two ventures brought to many listeners for the first time the Fiedler personality and versatility previously sensed only in part by hearing his Boston Pops recordings and broadcasts.

"He received an Honorary Master's Degree from Tufts University in 1931 and a degree of Doctor of Music from Boston University in 1951. He is also an honorary member of the American Guild of Organists, and received the honor Chevalier, Legion d'Honneur, France, in 1953. It is most fitting, therefore, that we should pay tribute and due honor to this great disciple of the art of music who has brought so much credit to, not only his home town of Brookline, but to the metropolitan area of Boston as well. It is accordingly a sincere privilege for me to present to Dr. Fiedler on behalf of the Rotary Club of Brookline this Distinguished Service Award"

96

DOWN BEAT
(Chicago, Ill.)
MAY 16 1956

Classics

THE LATEST OF the Russian virtuosi to tour this country is a relative young[illegible] 29, named Mstistlav Rostropovich. [illegible] impact on our audiences per[illegible] been dulled by the visits of [illegible] Oistrakh and Emil Gilels; st[illegible] the goliaths like Casals [illegible] Piatigorsky, who are no longer ac[illegible] the cellists are rare who have [illegible] greater articulateness or brilliance [illegible] than does Rostropovich.

In the [illegible] of his tour, Rostropovich has [illegible] behind at least one superb albu[illegible] Entitled Rostropovich Plays Bach, [illegible] containing the Suite No. 2 and the Suite No. 3, both for cello solo, and [illegible] shorter pieces for cello and orchestra [illegible] (Vanguard VRS-6026).

ALL ARE PLAYED with passionate eloquence and exceptional technique. Probably [illegible] most that can be said for Mr. R[illegible] in this performance is that he did n[illegible] presumptuous to make the recordings after the suites had previously b[illegible] recorded for all time by the great Casals. The Vanguard engineering, [illegible] is very good.

Other [illegible] of uncommon excellence [illegible] left by Oistrakh and Gilels. Th[illegible] revitalizes the rather shopworn Piano Concerto No. 1 by Tchaikovsky with commanding force and elegant cascades of notes (Victor LM-1969). Fritz Reiner conducts the Chicago Symphony orchestra pointedly and unobtrusive to the soloist's display of bravura.

Oistrakh wo[illegible] with Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony orchestra on three opuses which present the gamut of challenges [illegible] violin virtuoso: Chausson's Poème, Saint Saëns' Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso, and excerpts from Romeo and Juliet by Berlioz (Victor [illegible] 1938). Perhaps the most dazzli[illegible] the three Russians, Oistrakh [illegible] three pieces impeccab[illegible] with [illegible] precision, and great beau[illegible] of f[illegible]

JOSEF HOFMA[illegible] the famous child prodigy [illegible] before the turn of the century, [illegible] turned to the concert hall at a ma[illegible] age and then disappeared again m[illegible] seriously in this day, he had been call[illegible] the greatest pianist of all time.

On No[illegible] 28, 1936, [illegible] celebrated his 50th professional [illegible] with a return concert at the Metropolitan Opera House. [illegible] of that concert are available now on a Columbia LP (ML 4929) in low fidelity, of course; but the shortcomings in sound reproduction are more than compensated for by the wonder of the performance. On the disc six bravura pieces are of Chopin and the rest are of Mendelssohn, Beethoven, Rachmaninoff and Moszkowski.

The playing is sensitive, compassionate, delicately [illegible], and marvelously restrained.

RECOMMENDED: Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony orchestra; Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 4 (Victor LM-1953). Read in good taste with excellent control [illegible] and very well engineered.

[illegible] Nathan Milstein [illegible] William Steinberg and the Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra; Beethoven's Violin Concerto (Victor [illegible]) [illegible] cogent and [illegible] eloquent. [illegible] Pierre Monteux and the Boston Symphony orchestra [illegible] Symphony No. 8 ("Pathétique") (Victor LM-1901) [illegible] Monteux's [illegible] is [illegible] concerting [illegible] Festival Overture (Melusine) [illegible]

RICHMOND, VA.
NEWS-LEADER
Circ. D. 99,100
MAY 19 1956

hero[illegible]

BOSTON POPS CONCERT

English, French and Viennes[illegible] music will comprise the program of the Boston Pops Orchestra in a concert to be conducted by Arthur Fiedler Monday, (NBC radio, 8:15 p.m.; WLEE). Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance March No. 1," Thomas' "Mignon Overture," Josef Strauss' "Music of the Spheres Waltzes" and Chabrier's "Espana Rhapsody" will be played.

MAY 20 1956

RECORDINGS

Musical Picnic With 'Pops'

Little needs to be said by way of description or criticism where the music of Arthur Fiedler and the Boston "Pops" Orchestra is concerned. The group is without peer in the light concert field. Again Fiedler and his group have devoted themselves to a recording session and have been able to maintain the high quality of their previous output.

In the new album, "Boston Pops Picnic" (RCA Victor) they've concerned themselves with Ketelby's "In a Persian Market," Von Suppe's "Poet and Peasant" overture, Josef Strauss' "Village Swallows Waltz," Leroy Anderson's "Waltzing Cat," James Mason's "Pops Polka" and "Enchanted Sea," Ernesto Lecuona's "Malaguena," Gade's "Jalousie" and Ivanovici's "Danube Waves" (better known as "The Anniversary Song" from the movie "The Jolson Story").

Three years ago RCA Victor released a limited edition of the Nine Beethoven Symphonies performed by Toscanini and the NBC Symphony Orchestra. They sold at that time for $52.40. This same series will now be released in unlimited numbers for $27.98.

The above was a treasure and a bargain at that time. Toscanini is no longer recording, hence the treasure is valuable beyond price and still the price is now almost half.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.
NEWS
Circ. D. 159,492
MAY 31 1956

Boston Pops Disc Is a 'Picnic'

A musical outing especially for "middle brow" music lovers is available in "Boston Pops Picnic," with Conductor Arthur Fiedler as host.

In the [illegible] RCA album, Fiedler [illegible] familiar [illegible] selections [illegible] able surp[illegible]

The "[illegible] "Jalousie," [illegible] "Poet [illegible] "Malaguena," [illegible] Market" and "Pops Polka."

BATON ROUGE, LA.
ADVOCATE
Circ. D. 22,756 - S. 32,011
MAY 27 1956

Boston Pops Concert

Rhythmical numbers will dominate the Boston Pops Orchestra's program, directed by Arthur Fiedler Monday, 7:15 to 8 p.m. on WJBO. Selections will include "Procession of Bacchus" from the ballet "Sylvia" by Delibes, the "Orpheus in Hades" overture by Offenbach, the "Nutcracker Suite" by Tchaikovsky and Wagner's "Ride of the Valkyries."

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

REAL ESTATE & INSURANCE

CASH for ANTIQUES: Chairs, tables, bureaus, glassware, brica-brac, furniture, silver, marble-top [illegible] Also [illegible] Boston Furniture Co. [illegible]

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
Norfolk, ss. PROBATE COURT.
To the Attorney General of the United States, Otto of Allen Frothingham, Esq., and to all persons interested in the trust estate under the will of John A. Balfour late of Brookline in said County, deceased, for the benefit of Leslie L. Balfour and others.
The trustee of said estate has presented to said Court for allowance its seventeenth to twenty-first and final accounts inclusive.
If you desire to object thereto or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Brookline before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the twenty-second day of June, 1956, the return day of this citation.
Witness, James F. Reynolds, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this twenty-third day of May in the year one thousand nine hundred and fifty-six.
ANNA E. HIRSCH, Register.
5/31-6/7-14

Brookline Post, AL., Summer Z. Kaplan of Brookline Post, J.W.V., and Richard Delehanty of Brookline Chapter, D.A.V., spoke at the High School. Speaking at the other schools were James E. Maloney, Charles L. Maxon and Francis J. Hickey of Rutledge Post, Charles J. Kickham, Jr., Jerome D. Goodman and Arthur J. Martin of Brookline Post, combated by all.

AL., Philander S. Ratzkoff and Leon Pocck of Brookline Post, J.W.V., and Joseph J. Donovan and Melvin J. Levine of Brookline Chapter, D.A.V.

is good and right, and bourgeois science which must be

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
Norfolk, ss. PROBATE COURT.
To all persons interested in the estate of [illegible] of Brookline in said County, deceased.
[illegible] John F. Moran [illegible] of medi- however, [illegible] those [illegible] and illustri- [illegible] one who [illegible] the field [illegible] anguished [illegible] extremely [illegible] in the [illegible] many ac- [illegible] he honors [illegible] owed upon [illegible] wn as he [illegible] us, it will [illegible] point out [illegible] ts.
[illegible] native of [illegible] Boston and attended Boston Latin School, following which he pursued his education at the Royal Academy in Berlin, studying conducting under Arno Kleffel and Rudolf Krasselt, violin under Willy Hess, piano under Carl Lamson and chamber music under Dohnan- [illegible] He is married to Ellen Bot-

RICHMOND, VA.
NEWS-LEADER
Circ. D. 99,100
MAY 25 1956

Rotary Club Service Award Given Two More Resident[illegible]

(Continued from Page One)

his art to every corner of the world . . . under his guidance and direction a love for classical music in the lighter vein has been fostered in the hearts of the great masses of people, leading to a keener appreciation of the art."

nent within a few years, and while some of them also give attention to other branches of the fine arts, [illegible] these festivals [illegible] musical fare [illegible] by highly touted m[illegible] and soloists.

The shaky economy of many European cities and villages was thereby bolstered, and it was inevitable that promoters in this country [illegible] would begin to im[illegible] European counterparts.

Great Interest

Through[illegible] we have been [illegible] nouncements [illegible] festivals now, [illegible] mer plans. Many [illegible] of dubious impo[illegible] but few are offerin[illegible] great interest.

The Berkshire Mu[illegible] Center has the best-known [illegible] ican festivals, whi[illegible] this year from Jul[illegible] to August 12. It will celebrate its 14th season with a dazzling array of guest conductors and soloists. The core of the Berkshire Center, of course, is the Boston Symphony Orchestra. [illegible] will play a season of concerts at its summer home, the Berkshire Music Shed, and will be conducted by Charles Munch, Eleazar de Carvalho, Leonard Bernstein, Pierre Monteux and Richard Burgin. Rudolph Serkin tops its list of soloists.

In addition to the orchestra series, which will open July 20, there will be a Bach-Mozart series, and a chamber-music dreams [illegible] visito[illegible] summ[illegible] tion, [illegible] Jr., [illegible] all, [illegible]

Tw

For [illegible] tour o[illegible] festiva[illegible] Beth ar[illegible] both a[illegible] Ore, at[illegible] cia[illegible]zes [illegible] Aspen, [illegible] Festival [illegible] ferings.

Two o[illegible] In the [illegible] City—Pu[illegible] brand-ne[illegible] Moore, [illegible] Doe." Th[illegible] 30 with [illegible] "Tosca." [illegible]

[illegible] tion for [illegible] sketch- [illegible] fields of [illegible] roster [illegible] ived the [illegible] Award, [illegible] Morse of Boston (West Roxbury) [illegible] pointed administrator of said estate [illegible] without giving a surety on his bond.
If you desire to object thereto you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at ten o'clock in the forenoon on the twentieth day of June 1956, the return day of this citation.
Witness, James F. Reynolds, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this twenty-fifth day of May in the year one thousand nine hundred and fifty-six.
ANNA E. HIRSCH, Register.
5/31-6/7-14

MUSIC CALENDAR

May 20—Mervin's Creation, Wiley B. Daniel, Jr., director) 5 p.m., Fifth Street Baptist Church.
24—Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, Sidney Harth, conductor) 8:30 p.m., Gardencourt.
25—St. Francis in The Fields Choir, Grant Graves, director) 8:15 p.m., St. Francis in The Fields.
27—Phillip Malzac, organist, and Samuel B. [illegible] baritone) 4:30 p.m., St. Mark's [illegible] Church.
For additions or corrections to this calendar call the Louisville Chamber of Commerce, AMherst 2421.

[illegible] otz

[illegible]estivals [illegible] Summer

[illegible]cia Albanese, Frances [illegible]e Stevens and Brian [illegible] we already been en-

[illegible]isville box office for [illegible]era is at the Shackle- [illegible] Company. The season [illegible]une 30.

[illegible]ER CHATTER

[illegible]nic Mood [illegible]nhanced [illegible] Recordings

[illegible] time is here and along [illegible]usic to match a picnic [illegible]

[illegible] y collection of old fa- [illegible]d newcomers has just [illegible]rded by the Boston [illegible]estra, Arthur Fiedler [illegible]. Released by Victor, [illegible] prove as integral a [illegible] picnic as the ever- [illegible]ts.

[illegible] lways has planned his [illegible]tdoor concerts as one [illegible] nic—with varied fare [illegible] too ostentatious or [illegible] "Picnic" album is no [illegible] He conducts, for ex- [illegible] familiar stand-bys [illegible] "In a Persian Mar- [illegible] guena" and "Danube [illegible]

[illegible] also are interesting [illegible] uch as "Pops Polka," [illegible]ted Sea" and "Vil- [illegible]s Waltz" which apes [illegible] twittering of birds.

* *

[illegible] in love—who isn't [illegible]e in the spring?— [illegible] album, "Alone To- [illegible]cca. Starring Joe [illegible] Whispering Choir" [illegible]arks," it sings of [illegible]s where e couple [illegible]: "April in Paris," [illegible]w York." "In the [illegible]ght," "Alone To- [illegible]

[illegible]ions include "My [illegible]ill," "You Were [illegible] "Easy to Love," [illegible]glish Things.'

[illegible]otally, has been [illegible] at Paramount [illegible] the vocal and [illegible]ts for the Bing [illegible] Going My Way," [illegible]hit of his own [illegible] Jingle."

[illegible] usual for the [illegible] and instruments [illegible] bass, drums, [illegible]es, harp and

N. K.

tomley and is the father of two daughters and a son, Johanna, Deborah and Peter.

"Wasting no time in utilizing his God-given talents, he made his concert debut in Berlin at the age of 17 years, later joining the Boston Symphony Orchestra as a violinist in 1915, thereby becoming its youngest member. He organized the Boston Sinfonietta. In 1929, he organized the Boston Symphony Outdoor Esplanade concerts and has served as its conductor since that time.

"He has likewise been conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra since 1930, in which connection he has become particularly well-known throughout the world. He is a faculty member of the Boston University College of Music and has been conductor of the Cecelia Society of Boston, the Uunversity Glee Club of Providence and the MacDowell Club Orchestra.

"In 1953, he toured the United States extensively with the Boston Pops Tour Orchestra, playing 64 concerts in altra, playing 64 concerts in 68 days most as many cities in 68 days — going from New York to Florida, as far west as Texas, and finishing in New York State. This tour was so successful that it was repeated in 1954 and these two ventures brought to many listeners for the first time the Fiedler personality and versatility previously sensed only in part by hearing his Boston Pops recordings and broadcasts.

"He received an Honorary Master's Degree from Tufts University in 1931 and a degree of Doctor of Music from Boston University in 1951. He is also an honorary member of the American Guild of Organists, and received the honor France, in 1953. It is most fitting, therefore, that we should pay tribute and due honor to this great disciple of the art of music who has brought so much credit to, not only his home town of Brookline, but to the metropolitan area of Boston as well. It is accordingly a sincere privilege for me to present to Dr. Fiedler on behalf of the Rotary Club of Brookline this Distinguished Service Award"

96

DOWN BEAT
(Chicago, Ill.)
MAY 16 1956

Classics

DOWN BEAT

THE LATEST OF the Russian virtuosi to tour this country is a relative young[illegible] named Mstistlav Rostropovi[illegible] impact on our audiences pe[illegible] been dulled by the visits of [illegible]trakh and Emil Gilels; st[illegible] the goliaths like Casals [illegible]erman, who are no longer ac[illegible] the cellists are rare who have [illegible]ater articulateness or brilliance [illegible]one than does Rostropovich.

In the [illegible] of his tour, Rostropovich has [illegible]ehind at least one superb alb[illegible] Entitled Rostropovich Plays Bac[illegible] contains the Suite No. 2 and the [illegible] No. 3, both for cello solo, and [illegible] shorter pieces for cello and orches[illegible] (Vanguard VRS-6026).

ALL ARE PLAYED with passionate eloquence [illegible] exceptional technique. Probably the most that can be said for Mr. [illegible] this performance is that he did n[illegible] presumptuous to make the record[illegible] after the suites had previously b[illegible]ecorded for all time by the great Casals. The Vanguard engineering [illegible] is very good.

Other [illegible] of uncommon excellence [illegible] left by Oistrakh and Gilels. Th[illegible] revitalizes the rather shopw[illegible] Piano Concerto No. 1 by Tchaikovsky with commanding force and eleg[illegible] cascades of notes (Victor LM-1969). [illegible] Fritz Reiner conducts the Chicago Symphony orchestra pointedly and unobtrusive to the soloist's display of bravura.

Oistrakh wo[illegible] with Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony orchestra on three op[illegible] presents the gamut of challenges [illegible] virtuoso: Chausson's Po[illegible], Saint Saëns' Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso, and excerpts from [illegible] and Juliet by Berlioz (Victor [illegible]). Perhaps the most dazzl[illegible] the three Russians, Oistrakh [illegible] three pieces impeccab[illegible] with [illegible] precision, and great beauty of f[illegible].

JOSEF HOFMA[illegible] famous child prodigy [illegible]st befo[illegible] the turn of the century, [illegible]turned [illegible] the concert hall at a ma[illegible] age and then disappeared again m[illegible]eriously. In this day, he had been call[illegible] the greatest pianist of all time.

On No[illegible] 28, 19[illegible] celebrated his 50th professional year with a return concert at the Metropolitan Opera House. [illegible] of that concert are available now on a Columbia LP (ML 4929) in low fidelity, of course; but the sho[illegible] sound reproduction ar[illegible] more than compensated by the wonder of the performance. On the disc six bands are of Chopin and the res[illegible] are of Mendelssohn, Beethoven, Ra[illegible]nin[illegible], and Moszkowski.

The pla[illegible] is sensitive, compassionate, de[illegible] tuned, and marvelously restrai[illegible].

RECOMMENDED: [illegible] Charles Munch and the Boston [illegible] orchestra; Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 4 (Victor LM-1953). Read in good taste with excellent control [illegible]. And very well engineered. [illegible] Milstein [illegible] and the Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra; Beethoven's Violin

RICHMOND, VA.
NEWS-LEADER
Circ. D. 99,100
MAY 19 1956

hero[illegible]

BOSTON POPS CONCERT

English, French and Viennese music will comprise the program of the Boston Pops Orchestra in a concert to be conducted by Arthur Fiedler Monday, (NBC radio, 8:15 p.m.; WLEE). Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance March No. 1," Thomas' "Mignon Overture," Josef Strauss' "Music of the Spheres Waltzes" and Chabrier's "Espana Rhapsody" will be played.

MAY 20 1956

RECORDINGS

Musical Picnic With 'Pops'

Little needs to be said by way of description or criticism where the music of Arthur Fiedler and the Boston "Pops" Orchestra is concerned. The group is without peer in the light concert field. Again Fiedler and his group have devoted themselves to a recording session and have been able to maintain the high quality of their previous output.

In the new album, "Boston Pops Picnic" (RCA Victor) they've concerned themselves with Ketelby's "In a Persian Market," Von Suppe's "Poet and Peasant" overture, Josef Strauss' "Village Swallow Waltz," Leroy Anderson's "Waltzing Cat," James Mason's "Pops Polka" and "Enchanted Sea," Ernesto Lecuona's "Malaguena," Gade's "Jalousie" and Ivanovici's "Danube Waves" (better known as "The Anniversary Song" from the movie "The Jolson Story").

Three years ago RCA Victor released a limited edition of the Nine Beethoven Symphonies perfo[illegible] Toscanini and the NBC Symphony Orchestra. They sold at that time for $52.40. This same series will now be released in unlimited numbers for $27.98.

The above [illegible] treasure and a bargain at that time. Toscanini is no longer recording, hence the treasure is valu[illegible] beyond price and still the price is now almost half.

Colosseum (Capitol P8313) [illegible] cogent and [illegible] quent.

Pierre Monteux [illegible] this Boston Symphony orchestra as [illegible] Symphony No. 6 ("Pathétique" [illegible] LM 1901). Monteux's [illegible] is penetrating [illegible] Symphony [illegible] Festival Overture (Mercury [illegible]).

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.
NEWS
Circ. D. 159,492
MAY 31 1956

Boston Pops Disc Is a 'Picnic'

A musical outing especially for "middle brow" music lovers is available in "Boston Pops Picnic," with Conductor Arthur Fiedler as host.

In the [illegible] Fiedler [illegible] familiar [illegible] selections [illegible] able surp[illegible]

The "[illegible] "Jalous[illegible] "Poet [illegible] "Malaguen[illegible] [illegible]an Market" and "Pops Polka."

BATON ROUGE, LA.
ADVOCATE
Circ. D. 22,756 - S. 32,011
MAY 27 1956

Boston Pops Concert

Rhythmical numbers will dominate the Boston Pops Orchestra's program, directed by Arthur Fiedler Monday, 7:15 to 8 p.m. on WJBO. Selections will include "Procession of Bacchus" from the ballet "Sylvia" by Delibes, the "Orpheus in Hades" overture by Offenbach, the "Nutcracker Suite" by Tchaikovsky and Wagner's "Ride of the Valkyries."

LOUISVILLE, KY.
COURIER JOURNAL
Circ. D. 202,911 - S. 300,325
MAY 20 1956

MUSIC IN KENTUCK[illegible]

Flourishing Sea[illegible] Is In Prospect fo[illegible]

2 SUMMER MUSIC FESTIVALS, once the monopoly of Europe, are now flourishing in increasing numbers throughout the United States. The annual special issue of Musical America, which tries to give an overall picture of musical events around the country, recently listed more than 50 [illegible] for the coming [illegible]son.

After [illegible] WAR, Europe discovered [illegible] sure way to attract [illegible] and especially dollar-happy Americans, was to organize [illegible] music festivals. They cropped up all over the Continent within a few years, and while some of them also give attention to other branches of the fine arts, [illegible] invariably these festivals [illegible] heavily on musical fare [illegible]med by highly touted m[illegible] organizations and soloists.

The shaky economy of many European cities and villages was thereby bolstered, and it was inevitable that promoters in this country [illegible] would begin to im[illegible] European counterparts.

Great Interest

Throughout [illegible] we have see[illegible] nouncements [illegible] festivals now [illegible] mer plans. Many [illegible] of dubious impo[illegible] but few are offerin[illegible] great interest.

The Berkshire Mu[illegible] Cen[illegible] has the best-known [illegible] ican festivals, wh[illegible] this year from Jul[illegible] Augu[illegible] 12. It will celebrate its [illegible]th sea[illegible] son with a dazzling array of guest conductors and soloists. The core of the Berkshire Center, of course, is the Boston Symphony Orchestra. [illegible] will play a season of concerts at its summer home, the Berkshire Music Shed, and will be conducted by Charles Munch, Eleazar de Carvalho, Leonard Bernstein, Pierre Monteux and Richard Burgin. Rudolph [illegible] tops its list of soloists.

In addition to the orchestra series, which will open July 20, there will be a Bach-Mozart series, and a chamber-music series [illegible] as Be[illegible] Zino [illegible] ally p[illegible] ule t[illegible] this s[illegible]

The [illegible] vides [illegible] grou[illegible] claim[illegible] visitor[illegible] summ[illegible] tion, [illegible] Jr., [illegible] [illegible]ll, [illegible]

Tw[illegible]

For [illegible] tour o[illegible] festiva[illegible] Beth an[illegible] both a[illegible] One, at[illegible] cializes [illegible] Aspen, [illegible] Festival [illegible]ferings.

Two o[illegible] In the [illegible] City—Pu[illegible] brand-ne[illegible] Moore, [illegible] Doe." Th[illegible] 30 with [illegible] "Tosca." [illegible]

[illegible] the [illegible]son's [illegible]ilable [illegible] Ope[illegible] Clev[illegible] The A[illegible] ne 27, [illegible]ember 2, [illegible] will [illegible] na[illegible] have pla[illegible]tured wil[illegible] [illegible] an[illegible] [illegible] Primrose, [illegible] Juilliard [illegible] Lhevinne [illegible] Izler So[illegible] Aspen orc[illegible] the list of [illegible] formed is [illegible] venturesom[illegible] posers to D[illegible] Schumann [illegible] this hardy [illegible] of the sta[illegible] festival w[illegible] chure and [illegible] write Musi[illegible] P. O. Box [illegible]

Of cour[illegible] cinnati con[illegible] val that att[illegible] opera fans [illegible] Opera each [illegible] the operas [illegible] season will [illegible] viata," "M[illegible] "Don Pasqu[illegible]

MUSIC CALENDAR

May 20—Haydn's Creation, Wiley B. Daniel, Jr. director) 5 p.m., Fifth Street Baptist Church.

24—Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, Sidney Harth, conductor) 8:30 p.m., Gardencourt.

25—St. Francis in The Fields Choir, Grant Graves, director) 8:15 p.m., St. Francis in The Fields.

27—Phillip Maloney, organist, and Samuel E. [illegible] baritone) 4:30 p.m., St. Mark[illegible] Church.

For additions or corrections to this calendar call the Louisville Chamber of Commerce, AMherst 2421.

In presenting the citation for Dr. Fiedler, Mr. O'Shea sketched his work in various fields of service, saying:

"As we look over the roster of those who have received the Distinguished Service Award, we find that it has been the priviledge of the Rotary Club to bestow honors upon those representing the field of medicine, research, education and public service. Today, however, we are adding to that illustrious panel of recipients one who has gained renown in the field of music.

"As for our distinguished guest, it would be extremely difficult to summarize in the time available his many accomplishments and the honors which have been bestowed upon him elsewhere. Known as he is so well by all of us, it will suffice if I merely point out some of the highlights.

"Dr. Fiedler is a native of Boston and attended Boston Latin School, following which he pursued his education at the Royal Academy in Berlin, studying conducting under Arno Kleffel and Rudolf Krasselt, violin under Willy Hess, piano under Carl Lamson and chamber music under Dohnanyi. He is married to Ellen Bottomley and is the father of two daughters and a son, Johanna, Deborah and Peter.

"Wasting no time in utilizing his God-given talents, he made his concert debut in Berlin at the age of 17 years, later joining the Boston Symphony Orchestra as a violinist in 1915, thereby becoming its youngest member. He organized the Boston Sinfonietta. In 1929, he organized the Boston Symphony Outdoor Esplanade concerts and has served as its conductor since that time.

"He has likewise been conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra since 1930, in which connection he has become particularly well-known throughout the world. He is a faculty member of the Boston University College of Music and has been conductor of the Cecelia Society of Boston, the Uunversity Glee Club of Providence and the MacDowell Club Orchestra.

"In 1953, he toured the United States extensively with the Boston Pops Tour Orchestra, playing 64 concerts in almost as many cities in 68 days — going from New York to Florida, as far west as Texas, and finishing in New York State. This tour was so successful that it was repeated in 1954 and these two ventures brought to many listeners for the first time the Fiedler personality and versatility previously sensed only in part by hearing his Boston Pops recordings and broadcasts.

"He received an Honorary Master's Degree from Tufts University in 1931 and a degree of Doctor of Music from Boston University in 1951. He is also an honorary member of the American Guild of Organists, and received the honor France, in 1953. It is most fitting, therefore, that we should pay tribute and due honor to this great disciple of the art of music who has brought so much credit to, not only his home town of Brookline, but to the metropolitan area of Boston as well. It is accordingly a sincere privilege for me to present to Dr. Fiedler on behalf of the Rotary Club of Brookline this Distinguished Service Award"

[illegible]otz

[illegible]estivals [illegible] Summer

[illegible]cia Albanese, Frances [illegible]e Stevens and Brian [illegible]we already been en[illegible]

[illegible]sville box office for [illegible]era is at the Shackle[illegible] Company. The season [illegible]une 30.

[illegible]CHMOND, VA.
[illegible]EWS-LEADER
Circ. D. 99,100
MAY 25 1956

[illegible]ER CHATTER

[illegible]nic Mood [illegible]nhanced [illegible]ecordings

[illegible]time is here and along [illegible]usic to match a picnic [illegible] collection of old fa[illegible]d newcomers has just [illegible]rded by the Boston [illegible]estra, Arthur Fiedler [illegible]. Released by Victor, [illegible] prove as integral a [illegible] picnic as the ever[illegible]ts.

[illegible]lways has planned his [illegible]tdoor concerts as one [illegible]nic—with varied fare [illegible] too ostentatious or [illegible] "Picnic" album is no [illegible]e conducts for ex[illegible] familiar stand-bys [illegible] "In a Persian Mar[illegible]guena" and "Danube [illegible] also are interesting [illegible]ch as "Pops Polka," [illegible]ted Sea" and "Vil[illegible]s Waltz" which apes [illegible] twittering of birds.

* *

[illegible] in love—who isn't [illegible]e in the spring?— [illegible] album, "Alone To[illegible]ecca. Starring Joe [illegible] 'Whispering Choir' [illegible]arks," it sings of [illegible]s where a couple [illegible]: "April in Paris," [illegible]w York," "In the [illegible]ght," "Alone To[illegible]

[illegible]ns include "My [illegible]ill," "You Were [illegible] "Easy to Love," [illegible]cish Things.' [illegible]otally, has been [illegible] at Paramount [illegible] the vocal and [illegible]s for the Bing [illegible] Going My Way," [illegible] hit of his own [illegible] Jingle."

[illegible]usual for the [illegible]nd instruments [illegible] bass, drums, [illegible]es, harp and [illegible]

N. K.

96

DOWN BEAT
(Chicago, Ill.)
MAY 16 1956

Classics

DOWN BEAT

THE LATEST OF the Russian virtuosi to tour this country is a relative youngster [illegible] 29, named Mstistlav Rostropovich. [illegible] impact on our audiences per[illegible] been dulled by the visits of [illegible] Oistrakh and Emil Gilels; st[illegible] the goliaths like Casals [illegible] Feuermann, who are no longer ac[illegible] the cellists are rare who have [illegible] greater articulateness or brilliance [illegible] than does Rostropovich.

In the [illegible] of his tour, Rostropovich has [illegible] behind at least one superb albu[illegible] Entitled Rostropovich Plays Bach, it contains the Suite No. 2 and the [illegible] No. [illegible] both for cello solo, and two shorter pieces for cello and orches[illegible] (Vanguard VRS-6026).

ALL ARE PLAYED with passionate eloquence [illegible] exceptional technique. Probably the most that can be said for Mr. [illegible] in this performance is that he did nothing presumptuous to make the recording after the suites had previously been recorded for all time by the great [illegible]. The Vanguard engineering, [illegible] very good.

Other [illegible] of uncommon excellence [illegible] by Oistrakh and Gilels. The [illegible] revitalizes the rather shopworn Piano Concerto No. 1 by Tchaikovsky with commanding force and elegant cascades of notes (Victor LM-1969). Fritz Reiner conducts the Chicago Symphony orchestra pointedly and unobtrusive to the soloist's display of bravura.

Oistrakh wo[illegible] with Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony orchestra on three op[illegible] presents the gamut of challenges [illegible] violin virtuoso: Chausson's Po[illegible], Saint Saëns' Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso, and excerpts from [illegible] and Juliet by Berlioz (Victor [illegible]). Perhaps the most dazzling [illegible] three Russians, Oistrakh [illegible] three pieces impeccab[illegible], with [illegible] precision, and great beauty of re[illegible].

JOSEF HOFMA[illegible] the famous child prodigy [illegible] before the turn of the century, [illegible] turned to the concert hall at a ma[illegible] age and their disappeared again mysteriously. In his day, he had been called the greatest pianist of all time.

On Nov. 28, 193[illegible] celebrated his 50th professional year with a return concert at the Metropolitan Opera House. Portions of that concert are available now on a Columbia LP (ML 4929) in low fidelity, of course; but the shortcomings in sound reproduction are more than compensated for by the wonder of the performance. On the disc six bands are of Chopin and the rest are of Mendelssohn, Beethoven, Ra[illegible]ninoff and Moszkowski.

The playing is sensitive, compassionate, delicately [illegible], and marvelously restrained. [illegible]

RECOMMENDED: Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony orchestra; Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 4 (Victor LM-1953). Read in good taste with excellent control [illegible]. And very well engineered. [illegible] Nathan Milstein [illegible] William Steinberg and the Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra; Beethoven's Violin Concerto [illegible] cogent [illegible] quent. [illegible] Pierre Monteux [illegible] Boston Symphony orchestra as [illegible] Symphony No. 6 ("Pathétique") [illegible] (Victor LM-1901) [illegible]

RICHMOND, VA.
NEWS-LEADER
Circ. D. 99,100
MAY 19 1956

BOSTON POPS CONCERT

English, French and Viennese music will comprise the program of the Boston Pops Orchestra in a concert to be conducted by Arthur Fiedler Monday, (NBC radio, 8:15 p.m.; WLEE). Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance March No. 1," Thomas' "Mignon Overture," Josef Strauss' "Music of the Spheres Waltzes" and Chabrier's "Espana Rhapsody" will be played.

MAY 20 1956

RECORDINGS

Musical Picnic With 'Pops'

Little needs to be said by way of description or criticism where the music of Arthur Fiedler and the Boston "Pops" Orchestra is concerned. The group is without peer in the light concert field. Again Fiedler and his group have devoted themselves to a recording session and have been able to maintain the high quality of their previous output.

In the new album, "Boston Pops Picnic" (RCA Victor) they've concerned themselves with Ketelby's "In a Persian Market," Von Suppe's "Poet and Peasant" overture, Josef Strauss' "Village Swallow Waltz," Leroy Anderson's "Waltzing Cat," James Mason's "Pops Polka" and "Enchanted Sea," Ernesto Lecuona's "Malaguena," Gade's "Jalousie" and Ivanovici's "Danube Waves" (better known as "The Anniversary Song" from the movie "The Jolson Story").

Three years ago RCA Victor released a limited edition of the Nine Beethoven Symphonies perfo[illegible] Toscanini and the NBC Symphony Orchestra. They sold at that time for $52.40. This same series will now be released in unlimited numbers for $27.98.

The above was a treasure and a bargain at that time. Toscanini is no longer recording, hence the treasure is value above price and still the price is now almost half.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.
NEWS
Circ. D. 159,492
MAY 31 1956

Boston Pops Disc Is a 'Picnic'

A musical outing especially for "middle brow" music lovers is available in "Boston Pops Picnic," with Conductor Arthur Fiedler as host.

In the [illegible] RCA album Fiedler [illegible] familiar [illegible] selections [illegible] able surr[illegible]

The "[illegible] "Jalous[illegible] "Poet [illegible] "Malaguena," [illegible] Market" and "Pops Polka."

BATON ROUGE, LA.
ADVOCATE
Circ. D. 22,756 - S. 32,011
MAY 27 1956

Boston Pops Concert

Rhythmical numbers will dominate the Boston Pops Orchestra's program, directed by Arthur Fiedler Monday, 7:15 to 8 p.m. on WJBO. Selections will include "Procession of Bacchus" from the ballet "Sylvia" by Delibes, the "Orpheus in Hades" overture by Offenbach, the "Nutcracker Suite" by Tchaikovsky and Wagner's "Ride of the Valkyries."

LOUISVILLE, KY.
COURIER JOURNAL
Circ. D. 202,911 - S. 300,325
MAY 20 1956

REFRIGERATION SERVICE

PROMPT, courteous, dependable service on all makes of commercial and household refrigerators, air conditioners; 24-hour service. Shon's Refrigeration Service Co. AS 1-5675. tf

ROOMS FOR RENT

BROOKLINE — Ideal for students, business people. Parking. LO 6-4050. tf

BROOKLINE: LARGE SUNNY warm room. 3 windows. Pleasant surroundings. 526 Harvard St. Suite 3. BE 2-5584.

LIGHT HOUSEKEEPING room or rooms. Parkway Hotel, 29 Boulevard, Severe. RE 8-7009. 5/17-6/28

COLLIDGE CORNER. Large renovated furnished room next to bath. LO 6-3996.

SINGLE ROOM. Nurse or business woman preferred. Community kitchen. LO 6-8754.

URNISHED ROOM OR Studio apartment. Kitchen, bath. Parking on Commonwealth Ave. carline. St. Ignatius parish. For one or two business women. Call ST 2-6687.

[illegible] & SON PAINTERS — Interior and exterior paperhanging. Prompt service ST 2-4463. tf

QUALITY PAPERHANGING — Free estimates on request. Prompt service. ST 2-1106. Fred C. Fraseman, 26 Murdock Street.

A-1 PAPERHANGING. Prices low. [illegible]

MUSIC IN KENTUCKIANA By William Mootz

Flourishing Season of Music Festivals Is In Prospect for This Coming Summer

SUMMER MUSIC FESTIVALS, once the monopoly of Europe, are now flourishing in increasing numbers throughout the United States. The annual special issue of Musical America which tries to give an overall picture of musical events around the country recently listed more than [illegible] such events for the coming summer season.

After the war, Europe discovered this was a sure way to attract tourists, and especially dollar-happy Americans, was to organize a music festival. They cropped up all over the Continent within a few years, and while some of them also give attention to other branches of the fine arts, invariably these festivals lean heavily on musical fare, [illegible] by highly touted [illegible] organizations and soloists.

The shaky economy of many European cities and villages was thereby bolstered, and it was inevitable that promoters in this country [illegible] would begin to [illegible] European counterparts.

Great Interest

Throughout [illegible] months we have been [illegible] with announcements [illegible] and old festivals now [illegible] their summer plans. Many [illegible] seem of dubious impo[illegible] but few are offering [illegible] great interest.

The Berkshire Music Center has the best-known [illegible] American festivals, which will extend this year from July [illegible] to August 12. It will celebrate its 16th season with a dazzling array of guest conductors and soloists. The core of the Berkshire Center, of course, is the Boston Symphony Orchestra. [illegible] will play a season of concerts at its summer home, the Berkshire Music Shed, and will be conducted by Charles Munch, Eleazar de Carvalho, Leonard Bernstein, Pierre Monteux and Richard Burgin. Rudolph Serkin tops its list of soloists.

In addition to the orchestra series, which will open July 20, there will be a Bach-Mozart series, and a chamber-music series, presenting such artists as Benny Goodman, Serkin and Zino Francescatti. Opera is usually part of the Berkshire schedule too, although the plans for this summer are still indefinite.

The surrounding territory provides an ideal vacation background for the festival. It is claimed that more than 100,000 visitors came to the festival last summer. For complete information, write to Thomas D. Perry, Jr., Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Massachusetts.

Two In The West

For music lovers planning a tour of the West, there are two festivals of special importance. Both are comparatively new, and both apparently are thriving. One, at Central City, Col., specializes in opera. The other, at Aspen, Col., rivals the Berkshire Festival in the scope of its offerings.

Two operas will be presented in the opera house at Central City—Puccini's "Tosca" and a brand-new opera by Douglas Moore, "The Ballad of Baby Doe." The season will open June 30 with the summer's first "Tosca." The "Ballad" will be premiered July [illegible], and the two operas will alternate nightly from then on until July 28. The season's schedule and tickets are available by writing the Central City Opera House Association, [illegible] Cleveland Place, Denver.

The Aspen Festival will open June 27 and run through September 2. The schedule of artists who will perform includes 30 or more names, and many of them have played in Louisville. Featured will be Mack Harrell, Jo[illegible] and Nikolai Graudan, [illegible] and Babin, William Primrose, Szymon Goldberg, the Juilliard Quartet, Rosina Lhevinne and many others.

Izler Solomon will conduct the Aspen orchestra this year, and the list of music that will be performed is both stimulating and venturesome. The three composers to be honored are Mozart, Schumann and Honegger, but this hardly gives a clear picture of the staggering repertory the festival will cover. For a brochure and complete information, write Music Associates at Aspen, P. O. Box 488, Aspen, Col.

Of course, each summer Cincinnati conducts an opera festival that attracts many Louisville opera fans to the Cincinnati Zoo Opera each summer. Some of the operas in its repertory this season will be "Turandot," "Traviata," "Marriage of Figaro," "Don Pasquale," "Rigoletto" and "Faust." Licia Albanese, Frances Yeend, Rise Stevens and Brian Sullivan have already been engaged.

The Louisville box office for the Zoo Opera is at the Shackleton Piano Company. The season will open June 30.

MUSIC CALENDAR

May 20—Haydn's Creation, Wiley B. Daniel, Jr., director; 5 p.m., Fifth Street Baptist Church.

24—Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, Sidney Harth, conductor; 8:30 p.m., Garden-court.

25—St. Francis in The Fields Choir, Grant Graves, director; 8:15 p.m., St. Francis in The Fields.

27—Philip Malone, organist, and Samuel E. [illegible], baritone; 4:30 p.m., St. Mark's [illegible] Church.

For additions or corrections to this calendar call the Louisville Chamber of Commerce, AMherst 2421.

RICHMOND, VA.
NEWS-LEADER
Circ. D. 99,100
MAY 25 1956

PLATTER CHATTER

Picnic Mood Is Enhanced In Recordings

Picnic time is here and along with it music to match a picnic mood.

A happy collection of old favorites and newcomers has just been recorded by the Boston Pops Orchestra, Arthur Fiedler conducting. Released by Victor, it should prove as integral a part of a picnic as the ever-present ants.

Fiedler always has planned his informal outdoor concerts as one plans a picnic—with varied fare none of it too ostentatious or heavy. This "Picnic" album is no exception. He conducts, for example, such familiar stand-bys as "Jalousie," "In a Persian Market," "Malaguena" and "Danube Waves."

But there also are interesting new pieces such as "Pops Polka," the "Enchanted Sea" and "Village Swallows Waltz" which apes in places the twittering of birds.

* * *

For those in love—who isn't a little in love in the spring?—there's a new album, "Alone Together," by Decca. Starring Joe Lilley and his "Whispering Choir" and the "Skylarks," it sings of all the places where a couple would like to be: "April in Paris," "Autumn in New York," "In the Still of the Night," "Alone Together."

Other selections include "My Heart Stood Still," "You Were Meant for Me," "Easy to Love," and "These Foolish Things."

Lilley, incidentally, has been musical director at Paramount for 15 years, and the vocal and choir arrangements for the Bing Crosby picture, "Going My Way," and has a song of his own in "Jingle, Jangle, Jingle."

This record is unusual for the blend of voices and instruments including guitar, bass, drums, piano, vibraphones, harp and flute.

N. K.

DOWN BEAT
(Chicago, Ill.)
MAY 16 1956

Classics

DOWN BEAT

THE LATEST OF the Russian virtuosi to tour this country is a relative youngster [illegible] 29, named Mstistlav Rostropovich. His impact on our audiences perhaps has been dulled by the visits of David Oistrakh and Emil Gilels; still, [illegible] the goliaths like Casals and Feuerman, who are no longer active, the cellists are rare who have greater articulateness or brilliance of tone than does Rostropovich.

In the wake of his tour, Rostropovich has left behind at least one superb album. Entitled Rostropovich Plays Bach, it contains the Suite No. 2 and the Suite No. 5, both for cello solo, and two shorter pieces for cello and orchestra (Vanguard VRS-6026).

ALL ARE PLAYED with passionate eloquence and exceptional technique. Probably the most that can be said for Mr. R. in this performance is that he did nothing presumptuous to make the recording after the suites had previously been recorded for all time by the great Casals. The Vanguard engineering, incidentally, is very good.

Other recordings of uncommon excellence were left by Oistrakh and Gilels. The latter revitalizes the rather shopworn Piano Concerto No. 1 by Tchaikovsky with commanding force and elegant cascades of notes (Victor LM-1969). Fritz Reiner conducts the Chicago Symphony orchestra pointedly and unobtrusive to the soloist's display of bravura.

Oistrakh works with Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony orchestra on three opuses which present the gamut of challenges to a violin virtuoso: Chausson's Poème, Saint Saens' Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso, and excerpts from Romeo and Juliet by Berlioz (Victor LM-1938). Perhaps the most dazzling of the three Russians, Oistrakh plays all three pieces impeccably, with touch, precision, and great beauty of feeling.

JOSEF HOFMANN, the famous child prodigy just before the turn of the century, returned to the concert hall at a mature age and then disappeared again mysteriously. In his day, he had been called the greatest pianist of all time.

On Nov. 28, 1955, he celebrated his 50th professional year with a return concert at the Metropolitan Opera House. Portions of that concert are available now on a Columbia LP (ML 4929) in low fidelity, of course; but the shortcomings in sound reproduction are more than compensated for by the wonder of the performance. On the disc, six bands are of Chopin and the rest are of Mendelssohn, Beethoven, Rachmaninoff and Moszkowski.

The playing is sensitive, compassionate, delicately fluent, and marvelously restrained.

RECOMMENDED: Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony orchestra; Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 4 (Victor LM-1953). Read in good taste with excellent control over the score. And very well engineered.

Nathan Milstein with William Steinberg and the Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra; Beethoven's Violin Concerto (Capitol P8318). Milstein cogent and [illegible] the orchestra [illegible] quent.

Pierre Monteux and the Boston Symphony orchestra; Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 6 ("Pathétique") (Victor LM 1901). Monteux's [illegible] penetrating, tasteful [illegible] Antal Dorati and Minneapolis Symphony [illegible] Brahms' Symphony No. 1; Brahms' Academic Festival Overture (Mercury [illegible]). [illegible]

RICHMOND, VA.
NEWS-LEADER
Circ. D. 99,100
MAY 19 1956

BOSTON POPS CONCERT

English, French and Viennese music will comprise the program of the Boston Pops Orchestra in a concert to be conducted by Arthur Fiedler Monday, (NBC radio, 8:15 p.m.; WLEE). Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance March No. 1," Thomas' "Mignon Overture," Josef Strauss' "Music of the Spheres Waltzes" and Chabrier's 'Espana' Rhapsody" will be played.

MAY 20 1956

RECORDINGS

Musical Picnic With 'Pops'

Little needs to be said by way of description or criticism where the music of Arthur Fiedler and the Boston "Pops" Orchestra is concerned. The group is without peer in the light concert field. Again Fiedler and his group have devoted themselves to a recording session and have been able to maintain the high quality of their previous output.

In the new album, "Boston Pops Picnic" (RCA Victor) they've concerned themselves with Ketelby's "In a Persian Market," Von Suppe's "Poet and Peasant" overture, Josef Strauss' "Village Swallow Waltz," Leroy Anderson's "Waltzing Cat," James Mason's "Pops Polka" and "Enchanted Sea," Ernesto Lecuona's "Malaguena," Gade's "Jalousie" and Ivanovici's "Danube Waves" (better known as "The Anniversary Song" from the movie "The Jolson Story").

Three years ago RCA Victor released a limited edition of the Nine Beethoven Symphonies performed by Toscanini and the NBC Symphony Orchestra. They sold at that time for $52.40. This same series will now be released in unlimited numbers for $27.98.

The above was a treasure and a bargain at that time. Toscanini is no longer recording, hence the treasure is valuable beyond price and still the price is now almost half.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.
NEWS
Circ. D. 159,492
MAY 31 1956

Boston Pops Disc Is a 'Picnic'

A musical outing especially for "middle brow" music lovers is available in "Boston Pops Picnic," with Conductor Arthur Fiedler as the host.

In the [illegible] RCA album, Fiedler selects [illegible] familiar [illegible] selections [illegible] able surp[illegible]

The "picnic" mixture [illegible] "Jalousie," [illegible] "Poet and Peasant" [illegible] "Malaguena," [illegible] Persian Market" and "Pops Polka."

BATON ROUGE, LA.
ADVOCATE
Circ. D. 22,756 - S. 32,011
MAY 27 1956

Boston Pops Concert

Rhythmical numbers will dominate the Boston Pops Orchestra's program, directed by Arthur Fiedler Monday, 7:15 to 8 p.m. on WJBO. Selections will include "Procession of Bacchus" from the ballet "Sylvia" by Delibes, the "Orpheus in Hades" overture by Offenbach, the "Nutcracker Suite" by Tchaikovsky and Wagner's "Ride of the Valkyries."

LOUISVILLE, KY.
COURIER JOURNAL
Circ. D. 202,911 - S. 300,325
MAY 20 1956

MUSIC IN KENTUCKIANA — By William Mootz

Flourishing Season of Music Festivals Is In Prospect for This Coming Summer

SUMMER MUSIC FESTIVALS, once the monopoly of Europe, are now flourishing in increasing numbers throughout the United States. The annual special issue of Musical America, which tries to give an overall picture of musical events around the country, recently listed more than 50 such events for the coming summer season.

After the last war, Europe discovered that one sure way to attract tourists, and especially dollar-happy Americans, was to organize a music festival. They cropped up all over the Continent within a few years; and, while some of them also give attention to other branches of the fine arts, almost invariably these festivals lean heavily on musical fare performed by highly touted musical organizations and soloists.

The shaky economy of many European cities and villages was thereby bolstered, and it was inevitable that promoters in this country eventually would begin to imitate their European counterparts.

Great Interest

Throughout the last month we have been flooded with announcements of new and old festivals now making their summer plans. Many of them seem of dubious importance, but few are offering attractions of great interest.

The Berkshire Music Center has the best-known of the American festivals, which will extend this year from July 5 to August 12. It will celebrate its 14th season with a dazzling array of guest conductors and soloists. The core of the Berkshire Center, of course, is the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It will play a season of concerts at its summer home, the Berkshire Music Shed, and will be conducted by Charles Munch, Eleazar de Carvalho, Leonard Bernstein, Pierre Monteux and Richard Burgin. Rudolph Serkin tops its list of soloists.

In addition to the orchestra series, which will open July 20, there will be a Bach-Mozart series, and a chamber-music series, presenting such artists as Benny Goodman, Serkin and Zino Francescatti. Opera is usually part of the Berkshire schedule too, although the plans for this summer are still indefinite.

The surrounding territory provides an ideal vacation background for the festival. It is claimed that more than 100,000 visitors came to the festival last summer. For complete information, write to Thomas D. Perry, Jr., Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Massachusetts.

Two In The West

For music lovers planning a tour of the West, there are two festivals of special importance. Both are comparatively new, and both apparently are thriving. One, at Central City, Col., specializes in opera. The other, at Aspen, Col., rivals the Berkshire Festival in the scope of its offerings.

Two operas will be presented in the opera house at Central City—Puccini's "Tosca" and a brand-new opera by Douglas Moore, "The Ballad of Baby Doe." The season will open June 30 with the summer's first "Tosca." The "Ballad" will be premiered July 7, and the two operas will alternate nightly from then on until July 28. The season's schedule and tickets are available by writing the Central City Opera House Association, 609 Cleveland Place, Denver.

The Aspen Festival will open June 27 and run through September 2. The schedule of artists who will perform includes 30 or more names, and many of them have played in Louisville. Featured will be Mack Harrell, Joaquin and Nikolai Graudan, Vronsky and Babin, William Primrose, Szymon Goldberg, the Juilliard Quartet, Rosina Lhevinne and many others.

Izler Solomon will conduct the Aspen orchestra this year, and the list of music that will be performed is both stimulating and venturesome. The three composers to be honored are Mozart, Schumann and Honegger, but this hardly gives a clear picture of the staggering repertory the festival will cover. For a brochure and complete information, write Music Associates at Aspen, P. O. Box 488, Aspen, Col.

Of course, each summer Cincinnati conducts an opera festival that attracts many Louisville opera fans to the Cincinnati Zoo Opera each summer. Some of the operas in its repertory this season will be "Turandot," "Traviata," "Marriage of Figaro," "Don Pasquale," "Rigoletto" and "Faust." Licia Albanese, Frances Yeend, Rise Stevens and Brian Sullivan have already been engaged.

The Louisville box office for the Zoo Opera is at the Shackleton Piano Company. The season will open June 30.

MUSIC CALENDAR

May 20—Haydn's Creation, Wiley B. Daniel, Jr., director; 5 p.m., Fifth Street Baptist Church.

24—Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, Sidney Harth, conductor; 8:30 p.m., Gardencourt.

25—St. Francis In The Fields Choir, Grant Graves, director; 8:15 p.m., St. Francis In The Fields.

27—Philip Maipas, organist, and Samuel B. Kelly, baritone; 4:30 p.m., St. Mark's Episcopal Church.

For additions or corrections to this calendar, call the Louisville Chamber of Commerce, AMherst 2421.

RICHMOND, VA.
NEWS-LEADER
Circ. D. 99,100
MAY 25 1956

PLATTER CHATTER

Picnic Mood Is Enhanced In Recordings

Picnic time is here and along with it music to match a picnic mood.

A happy collection of old favorites and newcomers has just been recorded by the Boston Pops Orchestra, Arthur Fiedler conducting. Released by Victor, it should prove as integral a part of a picnic as the ever-present ants.

Fiedler always has planned his informal outdoor concerts as one plans a picnic—with varied fare none of it too ostentatious or heavy. This "Picnic" album is no exception. He conducts, for example, [illegible] stand-bys as "Jalousie," [illegible] Persian Market," "Malaguena," [illegible] "Danube Waves."

But there are [illegible] interesting new pieces such as "Pops Polka," the "Chabrier S[illegible]" and "Village S[illegible] Waltz" [illegible] pops in pieces [illegible]

[illegible]

N. K.

MUSICAL AMERICA
NEW YORK, N. Y.

MAY 1956

On the front cover

THE Boston Symphony, of which Charles Munch is the music director, celebrates this season the 75th anniversary of its founding. As usual, it has been a busy season for the Bostonians, for aside from its many concerts this winter and its performances in the Berkshire Festival, it will make a European tour early in the fall. In Europe its first performance will be at the Edinburgh Festival on Aug. 24.

MT Born in Strasbourg, Mr. Munch at the age of 21 contemplated a medical career, but soon he was devoting all his time to the study of violin. During World War I he became a violinist in the Strasbourg Orchestra, and he also taught in this city's conservatory. Later he became concertmaster of the Gewandhaus Orchestra in Leipzig.

In 1929, he settled in Paris, where he founded the Orchestre Symphonique de Paris, conducting the Lamoureux Concerts as well. In succeeding seasons he began the round of guest engagements that have made him a world traveler. In 1937, he succeeded Philippe Gaubert as conductor of the Paris Conservatory Orchestra, the position he held through the war period. He was engaged in the spring of 1948 to succeed Serge Koussevitzky as regular conductor of the Boston Symphony beginning with the season of 1949-50. (Photograph by Karsh, Ottawa)

CHARLES MUNCH

Musical America

MAY 1956

St. Louis Conference Marks 50th Year Of Music Educators

Dorothy Maynor—Her Career and Home Life Offer No Conflicts

Pueblo Indian Music—A Central Force In a Happy Existence

International and National Reports

CHARLES MUNCH

MUSICAL AMERICA
NEW YORK, N. Y.

MAY 1956

On the front cover

THE Bost[illegible] symphony, of which Charles Munch is the music director, celebrat[illegible] his season the 75th anniversary of its founding. As usual, this has be[illegible] busy season for the Bostonians, for aside from its many concerts th[illegible] nter and its performances in the Berkshire Festival, it will make [illegible] opean tour early in the fall. In Europe its first performance will b[illegible] he Edinburgh Festival on Aug. 24.

Born in [illegible]ourg, Mr. Munch at the age of 21 contemplated a medical career, bu[illegible] he was devoting all his time to the study of violin. After Wo[illegible] ar I, he became a violinist in the Strasbourg Orchestra, and he al[illegible] ght in this city's conservatory. Later he became concertmaster of [illegible]ewandhaus Orchestra in Leipzig.

In 192[illegible] settled in Paris, where he founded the Orchestre Symphonique de [illegible] conducting the Lamoureux Concerts as well. In succeeding s[illegible] he began the round of guest engagements that have made him a w[illegible]raveler. In 1937, he succeeded Philippe Gaubert as conductor of [illegible]aris Conservatory Orchestra, the position he held through the war [illegible] He was engaged in the spring of 1948 to succeed Serge Koussev[illegible] regular conductor of the Boston Symphony beginning with the [illegible] of 1949-50. (Photograph by Karsh, Ottawa)

CHARLES MUNCH

Musical America

MAY
1956

St. Louis Conference Marks 50th Year Of Music Educators

Dorothy Maynor—Her Career and Home Life Offer No Conflicts

Pueblo Indian Music—A Central Force In a Happy Existence

International and National Reports

CHARLES MUNCH

cal—Beethoven's Ninth at Symphony

Lenscraft

Arthur Fiedler will open the 71st season of Pops concerts in Symphony Hall Tuesday night.

During the first five weeks there will be concerts every night, including Sunday. After the fifth week the concerts will be played Monday through Saturday evenings, with no Sunday concerts.

Tickets for each of the performances during the first week of the season are now on sale at the Symphony Hall box office, and tickets will be on sale throughout the season one week in advance of each concert.

The soloists for the opening week include five pianists and one organist. Luisa Vosgerchian will be heard in Liszt's Concerto No. 1 on Opening night and again on Sunday night. On Wednesday night Mineko Sasanuma will play the first movement of Rachmaninoff's Concerto No. 2; on Thursday, Leo Litwin the Weber Concertstück; on Friday, Meg Bachman the Mozart Concerto No. 12. Berj Zamkochian will be organ soloist in Handel's Concerto No. 3 on Saturday evening.

'Psalm' by Mabel Daniels In Final Weekend Program

By Harold Rogers

There are few works so appropriate for ending a season as Beethoven's Ninth Symphony.

This was Charles Munch's choice for the concluding concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's 75th anniversary. With it he set the welkin singing yesterday afternoon in Symphony Hall, and he will doubtless do so again tonight. There is an extra concert this season—the one scheduled for Sunday night when Mr. Munch will conduct Beethoven's Seventh and Tchaikovsky's "Pathétique."

Exuberant joy was the keynote yesterday, in the titles as well as the music. Mr. Munch opened with the first performance at these concerts of "A Psalm of Praise" by Mabel Daniels, composed for the 75th anniversary of Radcliffe College last year. And the closing choral movement of Beethoven's Ninth, of course, is set to Schiller's "Ode to Joy."

Miss Daniels is the dean of American women composers. Few, if any, have matched her achievement, especially in the choral field. She is not afraid to be daring, an attribute much in evidence in her "Psalm of Praise." She can set up spare, open-positioned chords, and her discreet dissonances add a dash of contemporary salt.

But the important thing about this work is that it says what it wants to say in no uncertain terms. With texts from the Old Testament the chorus sings of praise, chants of praise, shouts of praise.

* * *

The orchestra does its share, too, in mirroring the instruments named in the song—the psaltery and harp, flute, viol, and lute, trumpet, pipe, and timbrel, drum, sackbut, cymbals of brass, dulcimer and shawm. What is more, Miss Daniels simplified this diffuse ensemble to strings, three trumpets, and percussion, with a resulting effect, we dare say, as joyous as anything heard in Biblical times.

The excellent choral forces are those trained by G. Wallace Woodworth—the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society. For the Beethoven Ninth they were joined by four superb soloists whom we know well in Boston—Adele Addison, soprano, Eunice Alberts, contralto, David Lloyd, tenor, and Mac Morgan, bass. Their voices are matched in opulent timbre and dynamics. They are artists of the first order.

* * *

Since the quality of joy was uppermost in yesterday's program, it is the sad duty of this listener to register a few joyless observations. If Mr. Munch wishes to take the second movement—marked Molto vivace and Presto—as fast as these markings permit, then he should discipline his players until they can play the music that fast. There was the confusion of imprecision more than once. On the other hand, Mr. Munch took the Adagio molto so slowly that the woodwind section nearly fell apart during its featured portion.

There is no gainsaying that Mr. Munch adds electricity to nearly everything he puts his baton to, and he added much intensity to the "Ode to Joy" yesterday. But after observing his way Beethoven for seven seasons, it is apparent that he is unpredictable when playing Beethoven's works, and we may as well resign ourselves to this fact.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD-TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 336,443 - S. 528,253

JUN 7 1956

Symphony Dates

The Boston Symphony Orchestra will give its usual series of five concerts at the Brooklyn Academy of Music during the 1956-'57 season, it was announced yesterday by the Brooklyn Academy of Arts and Sciences. Charles Munch, the orchestra's regular conductor, will direct concerts on Nov. 16, Dec. 14, Jan. 11, 1957, Feb. 8 and March 22.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-0700

Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 113,08[illegible]

JUN 7, 1956

Minneapolis Here In Bushnell Series

Although the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra is one of the oldest established in the country, Hartford music lovers have their first opportunity to hear it "in person" in this season's Bushnell Memorial Series.

The Minneapolis is one of five foremost American orchestras presented in the 1956-'57 Bushnell Series, for which season ticket applications are being accepted.

* * *

"WE ARE PLEASED" next season's tour of the Minneapolis Symphony will bring it to the east coast and make it available to us," said managing Director William Steinsensen today. "This orchestra has been rated for years as the finest in North America. The very fact that Eugene Ormandy was its regular conductor five years before going to the Philadelphia Orchestra and that Dimitri Mitropoulos succeeded him and remained a dozen years before going to the New York Philharmonic Symphony, is evidence of its quality. The present conductor, Antonio Dorati, is internationally famous in the field of music."

Dorati, who will conduct the 53-year-old Minneapolis Symphony in its concert here next season, has achieved a reputation in Europe as well as in this country. He was chosen in the summer of 1953 to conduct the Stockholm Orchestra in a concert celebrating the 700th anniversary of the founding of the city.

* * *

IN ADDITION to the Minneapolis, the following other orchestras and conductors will be included in next season's annual Bushnell Memorial Series:

New York Philharmonic-Symphony, Dimitri Mitropoulos; Cleveland Symphony, George Szell; Boston Symphony, Charles Munch; Philadelphia Orchestra, Eugene Ormandy.

Guest soloists will be presented with the Cleveland and Minneapolis orchestras in classical works.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
EXAMINER
Circ. D. 233,928 - S. 510,389

MAY 31 1956

They'll Tr[illegible]

SUMMER BRINGS a variety of vacation itineraries and for delegates to national conventions there are fun times sandwiched in with business sessions.

Off June 18 for the biennial convention of Kappa Kappa Gamma in Syampscott, Mass., will be several local representatives. Mrs. Arthur Scheu of the East Bay Alumnae Association will be a delegate as will Gray Burnham, president of the UC chapter house.

Mary Lou Coate, rush chairman, will go along as will Marily Purkiss. Alumnae groups, 316 in all, in the United States, Canada, Hawaii and the British Isles, will be represented at the convention as well as eighty-five active chapters throughout the United States and Canada.

Sidelights of the convention will be a picnic on the Atlantic coast, a trip to Gloucester, the fishing port, and an evening in Boston at the Boston Pops Symphony.

7 to Get B.C. Honorary Degrees

Herald Nov 29

BOSTON COLLEGE HONORARY DEGREES will be conferred June 13 on (left to right) Edward F. Williams, Atty. Bartholomew A. Brickley, Bishop Fredrick A. Donaghy, John W. King, Charles Munch, Prof. Peter J. W. Debye and Sen. John F. Kennedy.

[illegible]ppa Convention

MRS. PAGE GOSSAGE SNAPS A PICTURE OF DELEGATES WHO WILL ATTEND KAPPA CONVENTION
Left to right, Mrs. Arthur Scheu, Marily Purkiss and Mary Lou Coate will be off for the East June 18

cal—Beethoven's Ninth at Symphony

Lenscraft

Arthur Fiedler will open the 71st season of Pops concerts in Symphony Hall Tuesday night.

During the first five weeks there will be concerts every night including Sunday. After the fifth week the concerts will be played Monday through Saturday evenings, with no Sunday concerts.

Tickets for each of the performances during the first week of the season are now on sale at the Symphony Hall box office, and tickets will be on sale throughout the season one week in advance of each concert.

The soloists for the opening week include five pianists and one organist. Luise Vosgerchian will be heard in Liszt's Concerto No. 1 on opening night and again on Sunday night. On Wednesday night Mineko Sasahara will play the first movement of Rachmaninov's Concerto No. 3; on Thursday, Leo Litwin the Weber Concertstück; on Friday, Meg Bachman the Mozart Concerto No. 12. Berj Zamkochian will be organ soloist in Handel's Concerto No. 2 on Saturday evening.

'Psalm' by Mabel Daniels In Final Weekend Program

By Harold Rogers

There are few works so appropriate for ending a season as Beethoven's Ninth Symphony.

This was Charles Munch's choice for the concluding concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's 75th anniversary. With it he set the welkin ringing yesterday afternoon in Symphony Hall, and he will doubtless do so again tonight. There is an extra concert this season—the one scheduled for Sunday night when Mr. Munch will conduct Beethoven's Seventh and Tchaikovsky's "Pathétique."

Exuberant joy was the keynote yesterday, in the titles as well as the music. Mr. Munch opened with the first performance at these concerts of "A Psalm of Praise" by Mabel Daniels, composed for the 75th anniversary of Radcliffe College last year. And the closing choral movement of Beethoven's Ninth, of course, is set to Schiller's "Ode to Joy."

Miss Daniels is the dean of American women composers. Few, if any, have matched her achievement, especially in the choral field. She is not afraid to be daring, an attribute much in evidence in her "Psalm of Praise." She can set up spare, open-positioned chords, and her discreet dissonances add a dash of contemporary salt.

But the important thing about this work is that it says what it wants to say in no uncertain terms. With texts from the Old Testament the chorus sings of praise, chants of praise, shouts of praise.

* * *

The orchestra does its share, too, in mirroring the instruments named in the song—the psaltery and harp, flute, viol, and lute, trumpet, pipe, and timbrel, drum, sackbut, cymbals of brass, dulcimer, and shawm. What is more, Miss Daniels simplified this Biblical ensemble to strings, three trumpets, and percussion, with a resulting effect, we dare say, as joyous as anything heard in Biblical times.

The excellent choral forces are those trained by G. Wallace Woodworth—the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society. For the Beethoven Ninth they were joined by four superb soloists whom we know well in Boston—Adele Addison, soprano, Eunice Alberts, contralto, David Lloyd, tenor, and Mac Morgan, bass. Their voices are matched in opulent timbre and dynamics. They are artists of the first order.

* * *

Since the quality of joy was uppermost in yesterday's program, it is the sad duty of this listener to register a few joyless observations. If Mr. Munch wishes to take the second movement—marked Molto vivace and Presto—as fast as these markings permit, then he should discipline his players until they can play the music that fast. There was the confusion of imprecision more than once. On the other hand, Mr. Munch took the Adagio molto so slowly that the woodwind section nearly fell apart during its featured portion.

There is no gainsaying that Mr. Munch adds electricity to nearly everything he puts his baton to, and he added much intensity to the "Ode to Joy" yesterday. But after observing his way Beethoven for seven seasons, it is apparent that he is unpredictable when playing Beethoven's works, and we may as well resign ourselves to this fact.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD-TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 336,441 - S. 528,253

JUN 7 1956

Symphony Dates

The Boston Symphony Orchestra will give its usual series of five concerts at the Brooklyn Academy of Music during the 1956-57 season, it was announced yesterday by the Brooklyn Academy of Arts and Sciences. Charles Munch, the orchestra's regular conductor, will direct concerts on Nov. 16, Dec. 14, Jan. 11, 1957, Feb. 8 and March 22.

Herald May 29

7 to Get B.C. Honorary Degrees

BOSTON COLLEGE HONORARY DEGREES will be conferred June 13 on, (left to right), Edward F. Williams, Atty. Bartholomew A. Brickley, Bishop Frederick A. Donaghy, John W. King, Charles Munch, Prof. Peter J. W. Debye and Sen. John F. Kennedy.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
EXAMINER
Circ. D. 233,928 - S. 510,389

MAY 31 1956

They'll Tr ppa Convention

SUMMER BRINGS a variety of vacation itineraries and for delegates to national conventions there are fun times sandwiched in with business sessions.

Off June 18 for the biennial convention of Kappa Kappa Gamma in Syampscott, Mass., will be several local representatives. Mrs. Arthur Scheu of the East Bay Alumnae Association will be a delegate as will Gray Burnham, president of the UC chapter house.

Mary Lou Coate, rush chairman, will go along as will Marily Purkiss. Alumnae groups, 316 in all, in the United States, Canada, Hawaii and the British Isles, will be represented at the convention as well as eighty-five active chapters throughout the United States and Canada.

Sidelights of the convention will be a picnic on the Atlantic coast, a trip to Gloucester, the fishing port, and an evening in Boston at the Boston Pops Symphony.

MRS. PAGE GOSSAGE SNAPS A PICTURE OF DELEGATES WHO WILL ATTEND KAPPA CONVENTION
Left to right, Mrs. Arthur Scheu, Marily Purkiss and Mary Lou Coate will be off for the East June 18

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078 Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 113,081

APR 1 1956

Minneapolis Here In Bushnell Series

Although the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra is one of the oldest established in the country, Hartford music lovers have their first opportunity to hear it "in person" in next season's Bushnell Symphony Series.

The Minneapolis is one of five foremost American orchestras presented in the Bushnell Series, for which season ticket applications are being accepted.

* * *

"WE ARE PLEASED" next season's tour of the Minneapolis Symphony will bring it to the east coast and make it available to us," said Managing Director William T. Jensen today. "This orchestra has been rated for years as the finest in North America. The very fact that Eugene Ormandy was its regular conductor five years before going to the Philadelphia Orchestra, and that Dimitri Mitropoulos succeeded him and remained a dozen years before going to the New York Philharmonic-Symphony, is evidence of its quality. The present conductor, Antonio Dorati, is internationally known in the field of music."

Dorati, who will conduct the 53-year-old Minneapolis Symphony in its concert here next season, has achieved a major reputation in Europe as well as in this country. He was chosen in the summer of 1953 to conduct the Stockholm Orchestra in a concert celebrating the 700th anniversary of the founding of the city.

* * *

IN ADDITION to the Minneapolis, the following other orchestras and conductors will be included in next season's annual Bushnell Symphony Series:

New York Philharmonic-Symphony, Dimitri Mitropoulos; Cleveland Symphony, George Szell; Boston Symphony, Charles Munch; Philadelphia Orchestra, Eugene Ormandy.

Guest soloists will be presented with the Cleveland and Minneapolis orchestras in classic works.

cal—Beethoven's Ninth at Symphony

Lenscraft

Arthur Fiedler will open the 71st season of Pops concerts in Symphony Hall Tuesday night.

During the first five weeks there will be concerts every night including Sunday. After the fifth week the concerts will be played Monday through Saturday evenings, with no Sunday concerts.

Tickets for each of the performances during the first week of the season are now on sale at the Symphony Hall box office, and tickets will be on sale throughout the season one week in advance of each concert.

The soloists for the opening week include five pianists and one organist. Luise Vosgerchian will be heard in Liszt's Concerto No. 1 on opening night and again on Sunday night. On Wednesday night Mineko Sasahara will play the first movement of Rachmaninov's Concerto No. 3; on Thursday, Leo Litwin the Weber Concertstück; on Friday, Meg Bachman the Mozart Concerto No. 12. Berj Zamkochian will be organ soloist in Handel's Concerto No. 2 on Saturday evening.

'Psalm' by Mabel Daniels In Final Weekend Program

By Harold Rogers

There are few works so appropriate for ending a season as Beethoven's Ninth Symphony.

This was Charles Munch's choice for the concluding concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's 75th anniversary. With it he set the welkin ringing yesterday afternoon in Symphony Hall, and he will doubtless do so again tonight. There is an extra concert this season—the one scheduled for Sunday night when Mr. Munch will conduct Beethoven's Seventh and Tchaikovsky's "Pathétique."

Exuberant joy was the keynote yesterday, in the titles as well as the music. Mr. Munch opened with the first performance at these concerts of "A Psalm of Praise" by Mabel Daniels, composed for the 75th anniversary of Radcliffe College last year. And the closing choral movement of Beethoven's Ninth, of course, is set to Schiller's "Ode to Joy."

Miss Daniels is the dean of American women composers. Few, if any, have matched her achievement, especially in the choral field. She is not afraid to be daring, an attribute much in evidence in her "Psalm of Praise." She can set up spare, open-positioned chords, and her discreet dissonances add a dash of contemporary salt.

But the important thing about this work is that it says what it wants to say in no uncertain terms. With texts from the Old Testament the chorus sings of praise, chants of praise, shouts of praise.

* * *

The orchestra does its share, too, in mirroring the instruments named in the song—the psaltery and harp, flute, viol, and lute, trumpet, pipe, and timbrel, drum, sackbut, cymbals of brass, dulcimer and shawm. What is more, Miss Daniels simplified this Biblical ensemble to strings, three trumpets, and percussion, with a resulting effect, we dare say, as joyous as anything heard in Biblical times.

The excellent choral forces are those trained by G. Wallace Woodworth—the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society. For the Beethoven Ninth they were joined by four superb soloists whom we know well in Boston—Adele Addison, soprano, Eunice Alberts, contralto, David Lloyd, tenor, and Mac Morgan, bass. Their voices are matched in opulent timbre and dynamics. They are artists of the first order.

* * *

Since the quality of joy was uppermost in yesterday's program, it is the sad duty of this listener to register a few joyless observations. If Mr. Munch wishes to take the second movement—marked Molto vivace and Presto—as fast as these markings permit, then he should discipline his players until they can play the music that fast. There was the confusion of imprecision more than once. On the other hand, Mr. Munch took the Adagio molto so slowly that the woodwind section nearly fell apart during its featured portion.

There is no gainsaying that Mr. Munch adds electricity to nearly everything he puts his baton to, and he added much intensity to the "Ode to Joy" yesterday. But after observing his way Beethoven for seven seasons, it is apparent that he is unpredictable when playing Beethoven's works, and we may as well resign ourselves to this fact.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD-TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 336,441 - S. 525,253

JUN 7 1956

Symphony Dates

The Boston Symphony Orchestra will give its usual series of five concerts at the Brooklyn Academy of Music during the 1956-'57 season, it was announced yesterday by the Brooklyn Academy of Arts and Sciences. Charles Munch, the orchestra's regular conductor, will direct concerts on Nov. 16, Dec. 14, Jan. 11, 1957, Feb. 8 and March 22.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4300

Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 113,081

JUNE 7, 1956

Minneapolis Here In Bushnell Series

Although the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra is one of the oldest established in the country, Hartford music lovers have their first opportunity to hear it "in person" in this season's Bushnell Symphony Series.

The Minneapolis is one of five foremost American orchestras presented in the 1956-57 Bushnell Series, for which season ticket applications are now being accepted.

* * *

"WE ARE PLEASED" next season's tour of the Minneapolis Symphony will take it to the east coast and it is available to us," said managing Director William T. Ingersten today. "This orchestra has been rated for years as the finest in North America. The very fact that Eugene Ormandy was its regular conductor five years before going to the Philadelphia Orchestra, and that Dimitri Mitropoulos succeeded him and remained a dozen years before going to the New York Philharmonic-Symphony, is evidence of its quality. The present conductor, Antonio Dorati, is internationally known in the field of music."

Dorati, who will conduct the 53-year-old Minneapolis Symphony in its concert here next season, has achieved a major reputation in Europe as well as in this country. He was chosen in the summer of 1953 to conduct the Stockholm Orchestra in a concert celebrating the 700th anniversary of the founding of the city.

* * *

IN ADDITION to the Minneapolis, the following other orchestras and conductors will be included in next season's annual Bushnell Symphony Series:

New York Philharmonic-Symphony, Dimitri Mitropoulos; Cleveland Symphony, George Szell; Boston Symphony, Charles Munch; Philadelphia Orchestra, Eugene Ormandy.

Guest soloists will be presented with the Cleveland and Minneapolis orchestras in the four weeks.

Left to right), Edward F. Williams, John W. King, Charles Munch, Prof. Peter J. W.

rary Degrees

ld May 29

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
EXAMINER
Circ. D. 233,928 - S. 510,389

MAY 31 1956

They'll Travel East for the Kappa Convention

SUMMER BRINGS a variety of vacation itineraries and for delegates to national conventions there are fun times sandwiched in with business sessions.

Off June 18 for the biennial convention of Kappa Kappa Gamma in Syampscott, Mass., will be several local representatives. Mrs. Arthur Scheu of the East Bay Alumnae Association will be a delegate as will Gray Burnham, president of the UC chapter house.

Mary Lou Coate, rush chairman, will go along as will Marily Purkiss. Alumnae groups, 316 in all, in the United States, Canada, Hawaii and the British Isles, will be represented at the convention as well as eighty-five active chapters throughout the United States and Canada.

Sidelights of the convention will be a picnic on the Atlantic coast, a trip to Gloucester, the fishing port, and an evening in Boston at the Boston Pops Symphony.

MRS. PAGE GOSSAGE SNAPS A PICTURE OF DELEGATES WHO WILL ATTEND KAPPA CONVENTION
Left to right, Mrs. Arthur Scheu, Marily Purkiss and Mary Lou Coate will be off for the East June 18

TIGHT BINDING

AMARILLO, TEX.
NEWS
Circ. D. 39,800

MAY 18 1956

In the Groove

Boston Pops Has Picnic for Summer Fun

With summer on its way, RCA Victor is releasing in May the Boston Pops Picnic album, designed to delight the musical taste of everyone everywhere. Although this might seem to be more of a classical release, the selections included in this album are of universal appeal, a blend of old favorites and enchanting new discoveries by the Conductor Arthur Fiedler on "13" LP disk.

Newly recorded [illegible] to bring back memories [illegible] such gems as Gade's "Jo[illegible]," [illegible]cuona's "Malagueña," [illegible] "In a Persian Market," [illegible] Suppe's "Poet and Peasant Overture," and Ivanovici's "Danube Waves," popularized by [illegible] Johann as "The Anniversary Waltz."

Also included are such palatable treats as "The Waltzing Cat," penned especially for the Pops by Leroy Anderson; "Pops Polka" and "Enchanted Sea," dedicated by composer Jack Mason to Arthur Fiedler; and Josef Strauss' "Village Swallow Waltz."

The Boston Pops Picnic album recorded in Symphony Hall, Boston, is in New Orthophonic High Fidelity Sound.

• • •

The well-known harmonica virtuoso, Leo Diamond, is also a skin-diving enthusiast and decided to do a "musical report" on skin diving. The result was an interesting album titled Skin Diver Suite which consists of a series of accepted impressions set down for the purpose of communicating the skin diver's adventurous probings.

• • •

In merging his art and his hobby, Diamond may have been struck by the parallel between the sequence of events in a skin diver's plunge and the structure of a musical composition. In both there is a preparatory period, then a series of adventures based on this music—percussion in this case being sound produced by objects of differing weights and timbres being struck by tools of differing weights and timbres. The organization of groups of such struck sounds in time and space (pitch) gives one an association of thought and feeling that is music, percussive music. So here "time" is more than a matter of hands on a clock.

Included are: The Jukes Family Takes a Holiday, E-MC Squared, Time Machine, World Without Time, The Minute, The Stone Age, Whoo-Doo-Voodoo, A Chinese Painting, Abstraction, Kinetic Energy, Swingcussion, Roulette, P.S. He Lost.—RSW.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Allston Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. [illegible]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Citizen
BROOKLINE, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 16,250 free

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Star
WINCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,200

JUN 8 1956

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record
MILTON, Mass.
Weekly Local
Circ. 4,950

JUN [illegible] 1956

Miss Mary Lou McCarthy of Milton, representing New Rochelle College, is co-chairman for "College Night at Pops," June 16.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

Hamilton-Wenham Chronicle
SOUTH HAMILTON, Mass.
Indep. Republican
Circ. 750

JUN 8 1956

[illegible] Pompano, Fla.

• • •

G. Johnstone Geikie, Jr., will be guest artist with the Boston Pops, Arthur Fiedler conducting, on Friday evening, June 15, at 8:30 o'clock in Symphony Hall, Boston.

• • •

Mrs. Lulu Preston, formerly of

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Journal (e)
MERIDEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 8,203

JUN 8 1956

World Of Music

NEW YORK (UP) — Next season, the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Boston Symphony will swap conductors for two concerts.

Eugene Ormandy, music director of the Philadelphians, will conduct the Bostonians twice in Boston, while Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, will be in Philadelphia conducting the Philadelphians.

In addition to Munch, the Philadelphia Orchestra will have three other guest conductors next season — Ernest Ansermet, founder and conductor of Orchestra de la Suisse Romande; Pierre Monteux, and William Steinberg, conductor of the Pittsburgh Symphony.

The season will open Oct. 5 and close April 20, 1957.

Norman Dello Jolo, one of the best known contemporary composers, has been appointed to the faculty of the Mannes College of Music and will teach composition. His newest opera, "The Trial at Rouen," was given its world premiere on a television network recently.

Jan Peerce, Metropolitan Opera tenor, is in Russia under the auspices of the State Department. He made his first appearance in a concert at the Moscow Conservatory on June 6.

The plan is for him to appear in three leading tenor roles of Italian opera in Moscow's Bolshoi theatre and he will be the first American to appear in opera at that theatre.

The operas are "Rigoletto," "La Traviata," and "The Masked Ball." Peerce also will appear in concert in Leningrad, Tiflis, and Kiev and, after a month, go on to Italy.

EIRE NIGHT SPONSORS

Arthur E. Haley of 49 Salisbury street, Richard Maguire of 20 Ridgefield road, and J. Joseph Maloney of 6 Lincolnshire way, are among the sponsors of the Eire Society of Boston's annual Night at Pops on Friday, June 8, at Symphony Hall.

The proceeds will go toward a contribution of $1,000 made by the Eire Society this month to the Boston Symphony Orchestra to enable it to open its European tour this summer with concerts in Cork and Dublin.

Among the numbers to be played is the "Eire Suite," a special arrangement of Irish pieces for the Boston Pops Orchestra commissioned for by the Eire Society several years ago.

[illegible] so little known in America [illegible]

* * *

[illegible] Saxter-Finegan orchestra [illegible] up with an assortment of [illegible] pounds for their latest Victor offering, Adventure[illegible] This album, however, [illegible] fascinating and cleverly executed.

This is an album of percussion

Languages, is a beautiful collection of French, Italian and English love songs.

The English melodies are Cole Porter's hits from the Broadway shows "Can-Can." The Italian selection includes "Arrivederci Roma" and a lovely French verse titled "Telephonez-Moi, Cherie," which is a current American hit (known to us as "Kiss and Run"). Signorina Ramieri, who has a glorious caressing voice, is as much at home singing either French or English lyrics as she is in Italian. Although not represented here, one of her most eloquent media of expression is the Spanish song (Girl On the Spanish Steps)—and she also has a distinct penchant for Flemish songs, so mov-

---

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 7 1956

OFFICERS OF HISTADRUT NIGHT at Pops Concert Thursday June 21, at Symphony Hall. Guest soloist will be Richard Tucker and Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra. Left to right are: Samuel D. Shapiro, chairman; Alexander Shapiro, secretary-treasurer; Benjamin Cohen, co-chairman; Oscar Sterman, honorary chairman.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
FRAMINGHAM, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 11,200

JUN 9 1956

Fisk Memorial Methodist
Natick, Massachusetts

Rev. William J. Ogle, minister; Howard Tyrrell, minister of music.

9:30, children's day program in the church sanctuary. 11, morning service of worship. Sermon, "Under a Bunch of Grapes." Members of the Masonic fraternity will be guests in their observance of St. John's Sunday.

Monday, at 1, retarded children's program.

Tuesday at 7:30, board of trustees meeting. 8, official board meeting. The Lend-A-Hand group will hold a dinner meeting at Wallace's, Framingham. The Challenger group will hold a dinner [illegible]

Wednesday at 7, Boy Scout Troop No. 35. 8:30, a banquet honoring our college students, high school graduates and [illegible] will be held in [illegible] hall. The banquet [illegible] by the W. S. C. S.

Thursday [illegible] program of retarded [illegible] 11, adult choir rehearsal [illegible] Fellowship Friday [illegible] "Pops" Concert. Night at [illegible] new members and Reception [illegible] Baptism will Sacrament of [illegible] be held on Sunday, June 17. The morning worship service will be at 10 a. m.

For information in regard to the Vacation church school to be held from June 18 through July 3, please call Mrs. Charles Moody, Francomia avenue, director of the school.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Vermont Tribune
LUDLOW, Vt.
Weekly Ind. Republican
Circ. 1,091

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Press
STONEHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,600

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Yarmouth Register
YARMOUTHPORT, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 883

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript
MILTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,800

JUN 8

Miss Daryl Ann Thomson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Thomson of 1031 Metropolitan Ave., will be a member of the New England Conservatory Chorus when it sings at the Boston Pops Concert tomorrow night. Miss Thomson has just completed her freshman year at the Conservatory where she is majoring in music therapy.

• • •

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

Tri-Town Times
SHREWSBURY, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,892

JUN 7 1956

Shrewsbury Seniors To Attend Pops

Senior groups of the musical organizations in the Shrewsbury public schools will attend the Boston "Pops" at Symphony Hall, Saturday night, June 9. The "Pops" have long been a musical treat and an added feature for this particular evening is "Conservatory Night" with the chorus from New England Conservatory taking part in the program. Mr. Lorne Ford head of the Shrewsbury Music department, and a Conservatory graduate made arrangements [illegible] tickets. Members of the [illegible] School Glee Club, Madrigal [illegible] Senior Band will be in [illegible] Hip. Accompanying the group will be Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Trumble, Mrs. Doris Vella and Miss Carol Croteau. Mr. and Mrs. David Rocher of the school department, and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Ervin, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Francis, Mr. and Mrs. Arne Menton, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Prior and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schoenfeldt from the School Music Association.

SUBSCRIBE NOW!

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Union Leader (m) & (e)
MANCHESTER, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 45,622

JUN 8 1956

Boston Symphony Will Give Russian Concerts

BOSTON — (UP) — The Boston symphony orchestra announced last night it will give concerts in Moscow and Leningrad, becoming the first American symphony orchestra to perform in the Soviet Union.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Gazette (e)
HAVERHILL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 18,794

JUN 8 1956

MERRIMAC ITEMS

Selectmen are receiving applications for the post of Civil Defense director, left vacant by the death of Parker T. Walton. Persons interested should submit their applications at the town office before June 11.

Mrs. Harold Poor and Miss Barbara Poor, 8 Union st., attended the Boston Pops concert Wednesday with members of the choir of St. James Episcopal Church, Amesbury.

TIGHT BINDING

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record
MILTON, Mass.
Weekly Local
Circ. 4,950

JUN 7 1956

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Journal (e)
MERIDEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 8,203

JUN 8 1956

AMARILLO, TEX.
NEWS
Circ. D. 39,800

MAY 1 1956

In the Groove

Boston Pops Has Picnic for Summer Fun

With summer on its way, RCA Victor is releasing in May the Boston Pops Picnic album, designed to delight the musical taste of everyone—everywhere. Although this might seem to be more of a classical release, the selections included in this album are of universal appeal, a blend of old favorites and enchanting new discoveries by Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler on a 12" LP disk.

Newly recorded [illegible] to bring back memories [illegible] such gems as Gade's "Je[illegible]," [illegible]cuona's "Malaguena," [illegible] "In a Persian Market," [illegible] Suppe's "Poet and Peasant Overture," and Ivanovici's "Danube Waves," popularized by Al Jolson as "The Anniversary Waltz."

Also included are such palatable treats as "The Waltzing Cat," penned especially for the Pops by Leroy Anderson; "Pops Polka" and "Enchanted Sea," dedicated by composer Jack Mason to Arthur Fiedler; and Josef Strauss' "Village Swallow Waltz."

The Boston Pops Picnic album, recorded in Symphony Hall, Boston, is in New Orthophonic High Fidelity Sound.

• • •

The well-known harmonica virtuoso, Leo Diamond, is also a skin-diving enthusiast and decided to do a "musical report" on skin diving. The result was an interesting album titled Skin Diver Suite which consists of a series of accepted impressions set down for the purpose of communicating the skin diver's adventurous probings.

• • •

In merging his art and his hobby, Diamond may have been struck by the parallel between the sequence of events in a skin diver's plunge and the structure of a musical composition. In both there is a preparatory period, then a series of adventures based on this [illegible] RCA Victor recordings, Her latest album, Love in Three Languages, is a beautiful collection of French, Italian and English love songs.

The English melodies are Cole Porter's hits from the Broadway shows "Can-Can." The Italian selection includes "Arrivederci Roma" and a lovely French verse titled "Telephonez-Moi, Cherie," which is a current American hit (known to us as "Kiss and Run"). Signorina Ranieri, who has a glorious caressing voice, is as much at home singing either French or English lyrics as she is in Italian. Although not represented here, one of her most eloquent media of expression is the Spanish song (Girl On the Spanish Steps)—and she also has a distinct penchant for Flemish songs, so mov-

JUN 7 1956

Eire Society Has Night At Pops

Several residents of this area are among the sponsors of the Eire Society of Boston's annual night at the Pops to be held on Friday evening, June 8, in Symphony Hall. They are Joseph Gannon, president of the Society, and Lillian Hartigan, both of Brookline, and Mr. and Mrs. John P. Cavanagh of Brighton. The proceeds will go toward the Eire Society's donation of $1,000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra to enable it to open its European concert tour this summer with concerts in Cork and Dublin. Among the numbers to be played is the Eire Suite, a special arrangement of Irish pieces for the Boston Pops Orchestra commissioned by the Eire Society several years ago.

Kadimah Sisterhood

[illegible] prepi[illegible] to th[illegible] K[illegible] succ[illegible] now [illegible] the [illegible]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

Hamilton-Wenham Chronicle
SOUTH HAMILTON, Mass.
Indep. Republican
Circ. 750

JUN 8 1956

Miss Mary Lou McCarthy of Milton, representing New Rochelle College, is co-chairman for "College Night at Pops," June 16.

[illegible] Pompano, Fla.

• • • •

G. Johnstone Geikie, Jr., will be guest artist with the Boston Pops, Arthur Fiedler conducting, on Friday evening, June 15, at 8:30 o'clock in Symphony Hall, Boston.

• • • •

Mrs. Lulu Preston, formerly of [illegible]

[illegible] it so little known in America.

• • •

[illegible] Santer-Finegan orchestra [illegible] up with an assortment of sounds for their latest Victor offering, Adventure in Time. The sounds, however, are fascinating and cleverly executed.

This is an album of percussion music—percussion in this case being sound produced by objects of differing weights and timbres being struck by tools of differing weights and timbres. The organization of groups of such struck sounds in time and space (pitch) gives off an association of thought and feeling that is music, percussive music. So here "time" is more than a matter of hands on a clock.

Included are: The Jukes Family Takes a Holiday, E-MC Squared, Time Machine, World Without Time, The Minute, The Stone Age, Whoo-Doo-Voodoo, A Chinese Painting, Abstraction, Kinetic Energy, Swingcussion, Roulette, P.S. He Lost.—RSW.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

World Of Music

NEW YORK (UP) — Next season, the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Boston Symphony will swap conductors for two concerts.

Eugene Ormandy, music director of the Philadelphians, will conduct the Bostonians twice in Boston, while Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, will be in Philadelphia conducting the Philadelphians.

In addition to Munch, the Philadelphia Orchestra will have three other guest conductors next season — Ernest Ansermet, founder and conductor of Orchestra de la Suisse Romande; Pierre Monteux, and William Steinberg, conductor of the Pittsburgh Symphony.

The season will open Oct. 5 and close April 20, 1957.

Norman Dello Jolo, one of the best known contemporary composers, has been appointed to the faculty of the Mannes College of Music and will teach composition. His newest opera, "The Trial at Rouen," was given its world premiere on a television network recently.

Jan Peerce, Metropolitan Opera tenor, is in Russia under the auspices of the State Department. He made his first appearance in a concert at the Moscow Conservatory on June 6.

The plan is for him to appear in three leading tenor roles of Italian opera in Moscow's Bolshoi theatre and he will be the first American to appear in opera at that theatre.

The operas are "Rigoletto," "La Traviata," and "The Masked Ball." Peerce also will appear in concert in Leningrad, Tiflis, and Kiev and, after a month, go on to Italy.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 26,000

JUN 7 1956

OFFICERS OF HISTADRUT NIGHT at Pops Concert Thursday June 21, at Symphony Hall. Guest soloist will be Richard Tucker and Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra. Left to right are: Samuel D. Shapiro, chairman; Alexander Shapiro, secretary-treasurer; Benjamin Cohen, co-chairman; Oscar Sterman, honorary chairman.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
FRAMINGHAM, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 11,206

JUN 9 1956

Fisk Memorial Methodist

Natick, Massachusetts

Rev. William J. Ogle, minister; Howard Tyrrell, minister of music.

9:30, children's day program in the church sanctuary. 11, morning service of worship. Sermon, "Under a Bunch of Grapes." Members of the Masonic fraternity will be guests in their observance of St. John's Sunday.

Monday, at 1, retarded children's program.

Tuesday at 7:30, board of trustees meeting. 8, official board meeting. The Lent-A-Hand group will hold a dinner meeting at Wallace's, Framingham. The Challenger group will hold a dinner [illegible]

Wednesday at 7, Boy Scout Troop No. 35. 8:30, [illegible] banquet honoring our college students, high school graduates [illegible] will be held in [illegible] the W. S. C. S. banquet [illegible]

Thursday [illegible] program of retarded [illegible] 15, adult choir rehearsal [illegible] Fellowship Night at [illegible] "Pops" Concert. Reception of new members and Sacrament of Holy Baptism will be held on Sunday, June 17. The morning worship service will be at 10 a. m.

For information in regard to the vacation church school to be held from June 18 through July 3, please call Mrs. Charles Moody, Francomia avenue, director of the school.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Vermont Tribune
LUDLOW, Vt.
Weekly Ind. Republican
Circ. 1,091

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Press
STONEHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,600

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Yarmouth Register
YARMOUTHPORT, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 883

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript
MILTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,800

JUN 8

Miss Daryl Ann Thomson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Thomson of 1031 Metropolitan Ave., will be a member of the New England Conservatory Chorus when it sings at the Boston Pops Concert tomorrow night. Miss Thomson has just completed her freshman year at the Conservatory where she is majoring in music therapy.

• • •

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

Tri-Town Times
SHREWSBURY, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,892

JUN 7 1956

Shrewsbury Seniors To Attend Pops

Senior groups of the musical organizations in the Shrewsbury public schools will attend the Boston "Pops" at Symphony Hall, Saturday night, June 9. The "Pops" have long been a musical treat and an added feature for this particular evening is "Conservatory Night" with the chorus from New England Conservatory taking part in the program. Mr. Lorne Ford head of the Shrewsbury Music department, and a Conservatory graduate made arrangements [illegible] tickets. Members of the High School Glee Club, Majorettes and Senior Band will be [illegible] Trip. Accompanying the [illegible] be Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Trumbull [illegible] Vella and Miss Carol Croteau, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Roche of the school department, and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Ervin, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Francis, Mr. and Mrs. Arno Menton, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Prior and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schoenfeldt from the School Music Association.

SUBSCRIBE NOW!

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Union Leader (m) & (e)
MANCHESTER, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 45,622

JUN 8 1956

Boston Symphony Will Give Russian Concerts

BOSTON — (UP) — The Boston symphony orchestra announced last night it will give concerts in Moscow and Leningrad, becoming the first American symphony orchestra to perform in the Soviet Union.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Gazette (e)
HAVERHILL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 18,794

JUN 8 1956

MERRIMAC ITEMS

Selectmen are receiving applications for the post of Civil Defense director, left vacant by the death of Parker T. Walton. Persons interested should submit their applications at the town office before June 11.

Mrs. Harold Poor and Miss Barbara Poor, 8 Union st., attended the Boston Pops concert Wednesday with members of the choir of St. James Episcopal Church, Amesbury.

YORK, N. Y.
ALD-TRIBUNE
336,443 - S. 528,253

JUN 7 1956

[illegible]ony Dates

[illegible]ston Symphony Orchestra will give its usual series of concerts at the Brooklyn Academy of Music during the season, it was announced yesterday by the Brooklyn Museum of Arts and Sciences. [illegible] conductor, will [illegible] on Nov. 16, Dec. [illegible], 1957, Feb. 8 and [illegible]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 113,081

JUN 7 1956

Minneapolis Here In Bushnell Series

Although the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra is one of the oldest established in the country, Hartford music lovers have their first opportunity to hear it "in person" in this season's Bushnell Symphony Series.

The Minneapolis is one of five foremost American orchestras presented in the 1956-57 Bushnell Series, for which season ticket applications are now being accepted.

• • •

"WE ARE PLEASED [illegible] next season's tour of the Minneapolis Symphony will [illegible] it to the east coast and [illegible] it available to us," said Managing Director William T. [illegible]tensen today. "This ensemble has been rated for years as the finest in North America. The very fact that Eugene Ormandy was its regular conductor five years before going to the Philadelphia Orchestra, [illegible] that Dimitri Mitropoulos succeeded him and remained [illegible] years before going to the New York Philharmonic Symphony, is evidence of its quality. The present conductor, Antonio Dorati, is internationally [illegible] the field of music."

Dorati, who will conduct [illegible]-year-old Minneapolis [illegible] in its concert here, [illegible] has achieved a [illegible] in Europe as [illegible] country. He was [illegible] summer of 1953 [illegible] the Stockholm [illegible] concert celebrating [illegible] anniversary of the [illegible] city.

• • •

IN ADDITION to the Minneapolis, the following other orchestras and conductors are included in next season's [illegible] Bushnell Symphony Series: New York Philharmonic [illegible] Dimitri Mitropoulos; Cleveland Symphony, [illegible]; Boston Symphony, [illegible]; Charles Munch; Philadelphia Orchestra, Eugene Ormandy. Guest soloists will be booked with the Cleveland and Minneapolis orchestras [illegible] vocal works.

TIGHT BINDING

YORK, N. Y.
LD-TRIBUNE
36,443 S. 528,253

JUN 7 1956

ony Dates

ston Symphony Or-ll give its usual series ncerts at the Brooklyn
of Music during the season, it was anesterday by the Brook-and Sci-
regular conductor, will certs on Nov. 16, Dec.
11, 1957, Feb. 8 and

New England Newsclip Agency
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2
Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democ
Circ. 113,081

JUN 7, 1956

Minneapolis Here In Bushnell Series

Although the Minnea
Symphony Orchestra is on the oldest established in country, Hartford music l have their first opportuni hear it "in person" in season's Bushnell Symp
Series.

The Minneapolis is on five foremost American or tras presented in the 1956
Bushnell Series, for which son ticket applications are being accepted.

• • •

"WE ARE PLEASED
next season's tour of the neapolis Symphony will it to the east coast and it available to us," said
aging Director William T. tensen today. "This en has been rated for years
the finest in North A
The very fact that Eugen
mandy was its regular con
five years before going
Philadelphia Orchestra,
that Dimitri Mitropoulo
peeded him and rena dozen years before going
New York Philharmoni
phony, is evidence of its q
the present conductor, ratti, is internationally
the field of music.
Dorati, who will co
year-old Minneap in its concert has achieved in Europe country. He w summer of 19
the Stockholm
concert celebr anniversary of city.

• • •

IN ADDITION to t
apolis, the following
chestras and conducto instituted in next sea
a n u a l Bushnell
Series:
New York Philharm
p Mitropoulos, Dimitri
Cleveland Symphon
Sz ell; Boston
Charles Munch;
Orchestra, Eugene
Guest soloists
Slated with the Minneapolis orche
ical works.

AMARILLO, TEX.
NEWS
Circ. D. 39,800

MAY 1 8 1956

In the Groove

Boston Pops Has Picnic for Summer Fun

With summer on its way, RCA Victor is releasing in May the Boston Pops Picnic album, designed to delight the musical taste of everyone—everywhere. Although this might seem to be more of a classical release, the selections included in this album are of universal appeal, a blend of old favorites and enchanting new discoveries by the Conductor Arthur Fiedler on a 12" LP disk.

Newly recorded to bring back memories such gems as Gade's "Jalousie," Lecuona's "Malaguena," "In a Persian Market," Suppe's "Poet and Peasant Overture," and Ivanovici's "Danube Waves," popularized by Al Jolson as "The Anniversary Waltz."

Also included are such palatable treats as "The Waltzing Cat," penned especially for the Pops by Leroy Anderson; "Pops Polka" and "Enchanted Sea," dedicated by composer Jack Mason to Arthur Fiedler; and Josef Strauss' "Village Swallow Waltz."

The Boston Pops Picnic album, recorded in Symphony Hall, Boston, is in New Orthophonic High Fidelity Sound.

• • •

The well-known harmonica virtuoso, Leo Diamond, is also a skin-diving enthusiast and decided to do a "musical report" on skin diving. The result was an interesting album titled Skin Diver Suite which consists of a series of accepted impressions set down for the purpose of communicating the skin diver's adventurous probings.

• • •

In merging his art and his hobby, Diamond may have been struck by the parallel between the sequence of events in a skin diver's plunge and the structure of a musical composition. In both there is a preparatory period, then a series of adventures based on this preparation and, finally, a return to the point of departure.

• • •

Katyna Ranieri, a highly successful singer in European countries for several years, has now become widely known in the United States through her RCA Victor recordings. Her latest album, Love in Three Languages, is a beautiful collection of French, Italian and English love songs.

The English melodies are Cole Porter's hits from the Broadway shows "Can-Can." The Italian selection includes "Arrivederci Roma" and a lovely French verse titled "Telephonez-Moi, Cherie," which is a current American hit (known to us as "Kiss and Run"). Signorina Ranieri, who has a glorious caressing voice, is as much at home singing either French or English lyrics as she is in Italian. Although not represented here, one of her most eloquent media of expression is the Spanish song (Girl On the Spanish Steps)—and she also has a distinct penchant for Flemish songs, so moving but so little known in America.

* * *

• • •

The Sauter-Finegan orchestra comes up with an assortment of weird sounds for their latest RCA Victor offering, Adventure in Time. The sounds, however, are fascinating and cleverly executed.

This is an album of percussion music—percussion in this case being sound produced by objects of differing weights and timbres being struck by tools of differing weights and timbres. The organization of groups of such struck sounds in time and space (pitch) gives off an association of thought and feeling that is music, percussion music. So here "time" is more than a matter of hands on a clock.

Included are The Jukes Family Takes a Holiday, E-MC Squared, Time Machine, World Without Time, The Minute, The Stone Age, Whoo-Doo-Voodoo, A Chinese Painting, Abstraction, Kinetic Energy, Swingcussion, Roulette, P.S. He Lost.—RSW.

JUN 7 1956

Eire Society Has Night At Pops

Several residents of this area are among the sponsors of the Eire Society of Boston's annual night at the Pops to be held on Friday evening, June 8, in Symphony Hall. They are Joseph Gannon, president of the Society, and [illegible] Hartigan, both of Brookline, and Mr. and Mrs. John [illegible] of Brighton. The proceeds will go toward the [illegible] donation of $[illegible] Boston Symphony Orchestra to enable it to open its European concert tour this summer with concerts in Cork and Dublin. Among the numbers to be played is the Eire Suite, a special arrangement of Irish pieces for the Boston Pops Orchestra commissioned by the Eire Society several years ago.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Record
MILTON, Mass.
Weekly Local
Circ. 4,950

JUN [illegible]

Miss Mary Lou McCarthy, o[illegible] Milton, representing New R[illegible]chelle College, is co-chairman for "College Night at Pops," June 16.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068
Hamilton-Wenham Chronicle
SOUTH HAMILTON, Mass.
Indep. Republican
Circ. 750

JUN 8 1956

[illegible] Pompano, Fla.

• • •

G. Johnstone Geikie, Jr., will be guest artist with the Boston Pops, Arthur Fiedler conducting, on Friday evening, June 15, at 8:30 o'clock in Symphony Hall, Boston.

• • •

Mrs. Lulu Preston, formerly of

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Journal (e)
MERIDEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 8,203

JUN 8 1956

World Of Music

NEW YORK (UP) — Next season, the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Boston Symphony will swap conductors for two concerts.

Eugene Ormandy, music director of the Philadelphians, will conduct the Bostonians twice in Boston, while Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, will be in Philadelphia conducting the Philadelphians.

In addition to Munch, the Philadelphia Orchestra will have three other guest conductors next season — Ernest Ansermet, founder and conductor of Orchestra de la Suisse Romande; Pierre Monteux, and William Steinberg, conductor of the Pittsburgh Symphony.

The season will open Oct. 5 and close April 20, 1957.

Norman Dello Joio, one of the best known contemporary composers, has been appointed to the faculty of the Mannes College of Music and will teach composition. His newest opera, "The Trial at Rouen," was given its world premiere on a television network recently.

Jan Peerce, Metropolitan Opera tenor, is in Russia under the auspices of the State Department. He made his first appearance in a concert at the Moscow Conservatory on June 6.

The plan is for him to appear in three leading tenor roles of Italian opera in Moscow's Bolshoi theatre and he will be the first American to appear in opera at that theatre.

The operas are "Rigoletto," "La Traviata," and "The Masked Ball." Peerce also will appear in concert in Leningrad, Tiflis, and Kiev and, after a month, go on to Italy.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 7 1956

OFFICERS OF HISTADRUT NIGHT at Pops Concert Thursday June 21, at Symphony Hall. Guest soloist will be Richard Tucker and Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra. Left to right are: Samuel D. Shapiro, chairman; Alexander Shapiro, secretary-treasurer; Benjamin Cohen, co-chairman; Oscar Sterman, honorary chairman.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
News (e)
FRAMINGHAM, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 11,200

JUN 9 1956

Fisk Memorial Methodist

Natick, Massachusetts

Rev. William J. Ogle, minister; Howard Tyrrell, minister of music.

9:30, children's day program in the church sanctuary. 11, morning service of worship. Sermon, "Under a Bunch of Grapes." Members of the Masonic fraternity will be guests in their observance of St. John's Sunday.

Monday, at 1, retarded children's program.

Tuesday at 7:30, board of trustees meeting, a official board meeting. The Lent-A-Hand group will hold a dinner meeting at Wallace's, Framingham. The Challenger group will hold a dinner outing.

Wednesday at 7, Boy Scout Troop No. 35. 8:30, a banquet honoring our college students, high school graduates, and [illegible] will be held in [illegible] Hall. The banquet [illegible] the W. S. C. S.

Thur[illegible] program of rehearsals [illegible] 11, adult choir rehearsal [illegible] Hall. Fellowship Friday [illegible] "Pops" Concert. Night at [illegible] members and Reception of new members and Sacrament of Infant Baptism will be held on Sunday, June 17. The morning worship service will be at 10 a. m.

For information in regard to the vacation church school to be held from June 18 through July 3, please call Mrs. Charles Moody, Francomis avenue, director of the school.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Vermont Tribune
LUDLOW, Vt.
Weekly Ind. Republican
Circ. 1,091

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Press
STONEHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,600

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Yarmouth Register
YARMOUTH, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. [illegible]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Transcript
MILTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. [illegible]

JUN 8

Miss Daryl Ann Thomson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Thomson of 1031 Metropolitan Ave., will be a member of the New England Conservatory Chorus when it sings at the Boston Pops Concert tomorrow night. Miss Thomson has just completed her freshman year at the Conservatory where she is majoring in music therapy.

• • •

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068
Tri-Town Times
SHREWSBURY, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,892

JUN 7 1956

Shrewsbury Seniors To Attend Pops

Senior groups of the musical organizations in the Shrewsbury public schools will attend the Boston "Pops" at Symphony Hall, Saturday night, June 9. The "Pops" have long been a musical treat and an added feature for this particular evening is "Conservatory Night" with the chorus from New England Conservatory taking part in the program. Mr. Lorne Ford head of the Shrewsbury Music department, and a Conservatory graduate made arrangements and obtained tickets. Members of the High School Glee Club, Majorettes and Senior Band will be [illegible] Accompanied by Mr. [illegible] be Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Drum [illegible] Vella and Miss Carol Colson, Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Rochefort, the school department, and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Ervin, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Francis, Mr. and Mrs. Arne Menton, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Prior and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schoenfeldt from the School Music Association.

SUBSCRIBE NOW!

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Union Leader (m) & (e)
MANCHESTER, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 45,622

JUN 8 1956

Boston Symphony Will Give Russian Concerts

BOSTON — (UP) — The Boston symphony orchestra announced last night it will give concerts in Moscow and Leningrad, becoming the first American symphony orchestra to perform in the Soviet Union.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Gazette (e)
HAVERHILL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 18,794

JUN 8 1956

MERRIMAC ITEMS

Selectmen are receiving applications for the post of Civil Defense director, left vacant by the death of Parker T. Walton. Persons interested should submit their applications at the town office before June 11.

Mrs. Harold Poor and Miss Barbara Poor, 8 Union st., attended the Boston Pops concert Wednesday with members of the choir of St. James Episcopal Church, Amesbury.

TIGHT BINDING

Y YORK, N. Y.
ALD-TRIBUNE
336,443 - S. 528,253

JUN 7 1956

ony Dates

oston Symphony Orhil give its usual series
ncerts at the Brooklyn
of Music during the season, it was anesterday by the Brook-ty of Arts and Sci-harles Munch, the or-regular conductor, will ncerts on Nov. 16, Dec.
11, 1957, Feb. 8 and

New England Newsclip Agency
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2
Times (e)
HARTFORD, Con
Independent Democr
Circ. 113,081

JUN 7, 1956

Minneapolis Here In Bushnell Serie

Although the Minnea
Symphony Orchestra is on the oldest established in country, Hartford music l have their first opportunit hear it "in person" in season's Bushnell Sympl
Series.

The Minneapolis is on five foremost American orc tras presented in the 1956-
Bushnell Series, for which
son ticket applications are being accepted.

* * *

"WE ARE PLEASED
next season's tour of the neapolis Symphony will
it to the east coast and
it available to us," said
aging Director William T. tensen today. "This ens
has been rated for years
the finest in North Am
The very fact that Euge
mandy was its regular con
five years before going
Philadelphia Orchestra,
that Dimitri Mitropoulo
ceeded him and remai
dozen years before going
New York Philharmoni
phony, is evidence of its qu
The present conductor, A Dorati, is internationally in the field of music.
Dorati, who will co
year-old Minneapo phony in its concert son, has achieved nation in Europe his country. He w
the summer of 195
the Stockholm
concert celebr anniversary of t ing of the city.

* * *

IN ADDITION to th
apolis, the following
chestras and conducto included in next seas annual Bushnell S
Series:
New York Philharm
phony, Dimitri M
Cleveland Symphony
Szell; Boston
Charles Munch,
Orchestra, Eugene
Guest soloists
sented with the Minneapolis orche
ical works.

AMARILLO, TEX.
NEWS
Circ. D. 39,800

JUN 7 1956

In the Groove

Boston Pops Has Picnic for Summer Fun

With summer on its way, RCA Victor is releasing in May the Boston Pops Picnic album, designed to delight the musical taste of everyone—everywhere. Although this might seem to be more of a classical release, the selections included in this album are of universal appeal, a blend of old favorites and enchanting new discoveries by Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler on one 12" LP disk.

Newly recorded and sure to bring back memories are such gems as Gade's "Jalousie," Lecuona's "Malaguena," Ketelby's "In a Persian Market," von Suppe's "Poet and Peasant Overture," and Ivanovici's "Danube Waves," popularized by Al Jolson as "The Anniversary Waltz."

Also included are such palatable treats as "The Waltzing Cat," penned especially for the Pops by Leroy Anderson; "Pops Polka" and "Enchanted Sea," dedicated by composer Jack Mason to Arthur Fiedler; and Josef Strauss' "Village Swallow Waltz."

The Boston Pops Picnic album, recorded in Symphony Hall, Boston, is in New Orthophonic High Fidelity Sound.

• • •

The well-known harmonica virtuoso, Leo Diamond, is also a skin-diving enthusiast and decided to do a "musical report" on skin diving. The result was an interesting album titled Skin Diver Suite which consists of a series of accepted impressions set down for the purpose of communicating the skin diver's adventurous probings.

• • •

In merging his art and his hobby, Diamond may have been struck by the parallel between the sequence of events in a skin diver's plunge and the structure of a musical composition. In both there is a preparatory period, then a series of adventures based on this preparation and, finally, a return to the point of departure.

• • •

Katyna Ranieri, a highly successful singer in European countries for several years, has now become widely known in the United States through her RCA Victor recordings. Her latest album, Love in Three Languages, is a beautiful collection of French, Italian and English love songs.

The English melodies are Cole Porter's hits from the Broadway shows "Can-Can." The Italian selection includes "Arrivederci Roma" and a lovely French verse titled "Telephonez-Moi, Cherie," which is a current American hit (known to us as "Kiss and Run"). Signorina Ranieri, who has a glorious caressing voice, is as much at home singing either French or English lyrics as she is in Italian. Although not represented here, one of her most eloquent media of expression is the Spanish song (Girl On the Spanish Steps)—and she also has a distinct penchant for Flemish songs, so moving but so little known in America.

* * *

KATYNA RANIERI

• • •

The Sauter-Finegan orchestra comes up with an assortment of weird sounds in their latest RCA Victor offering, Adventure in Time. The sounds, however, are fascinating and cleverly executed.

This is an album of percussion music—percussion in this case being sound produced by objects of differing weights and timbres being struck by tools of differing weights and timbres. The organization of groups of such struck sounds in time and space (pitch) gives off an association of thought and feeling that is music, percussion music. So here "time" is more than a matter of hands on a clock.

Included are: The Jukes Family Takes a Holiday, E-MC Squared, Time Machine, World Without Time, The Minute, The Stone Age, Whoo-Doo-Voodoo, A Chinese Painting, Abstraction, Kinetic Energy, Swingcussion, Roulette, P.S. He Lost.—RSW.

JUN 7 1956

Eire Society Has Night At Pops

Several residents of this area are among the sponsors of the Eire Society of Boston's annual night at the Pops to be held on Friday evening, June 8, in Symphony Hall. They are Joseph Gannon, president of the Society, and Lorian Hartigan, both of Brookline, and Mr. and Mrs. John F. Cullinagh of Brighton. The proceeds will go toward the Eire Society's donation of $1,000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra to enable it to open its European concert tour this summer with concerts in Cork and Dublin. Among the numbers to be played is the Eire Suite, a special arrangement of Irish pieces for the Boston Pops Orchestra commissioned by the Eire Society several years ago.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Record
MILTON, Mass.
Weekly Local
Circ. 4,950

JUN 8 1956

Miss Mary Lou McCarthy o
Milton, representing New Ro chelle College, is co-chairmar for "College Night at Pops,"
June 16.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068
Hamilton-Wenham Chronicle
SOUTH HAMILTON, Mass.
Indep. Republican
Circ. 750

JUN 8 1956

of Pompano, Fla.

* * *

G. Johnstone Geikie, Jr., will be guest artist with the Boston Pops, Arthur Fiedler conducting, on Friday evening, June 15, at 8:30 o'clock in Symphony Hall, Boston.

* * *

Mrs. Lulu Preston, formerly of

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Journal (e)
MERIDEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 8,203

JUN 8 1956

World Of Music

NEW YORK (UP) — Next season, the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Boston Symphony will swap conductors for two concerts.

Eugene Ormandy, music director of the Philadelphians, will conduct the Bostonians twice in Boston, while Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, will be in Philadelphia conducting the Philadelphians.

In addition to Munch, the Philadelphia Orchestra will have three other guest conductors next season — Ernest Ansermet, founder and conductor of Orchestra de la Suisse Romande; Pierre Monteux, and William Steinberg, conductor of the Pittsburgh Symphony.

The season will open Oct. 5 and close April 20, 1957.

Norman Dello Jolo, one of the best known contemporary composers, has been appointed to the faculty of the Mannes College of Music and will teach composition. His newest opera, "The Trial at Rouen," was given its world premiere on a television network recently.

Jan Peerce, Metropolitan Opera tenor, is in Russia under the auspices of the State Department. He made his first appearance in a concert at the Moscow Conservatory on June 6.

The plan is for him to appear in three leading tenor roles of Italian opera in Moscow's Bolshoi theatre and he will be the first American to appear in opera at that theatre.

The operas are "Rigoletto," "La Traviata," and "The Masked Ball." Peerce also will appear in concert in Leningrad, Tiflis, and Kiev and, after a month, go on to Italy.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 7 1956

OFFICERS OF HISTADRUT NIGHT at Pops Concert Thursday June 21, at Symphony Hall. Guest soloist will be Richard Tucker and Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra. Left to right are: Samuel D. Shapiro, chairman; Alexander Shapiro, secretary-treasurer; Benjamin Cohen, co-chairman; Oscar Sterman, honorary chairman.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
News (e)
FRAMINGHAM, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 11,200

JUN 9 1956

Fisk Memorial Methodist

Natick, Massachusetts

Rev. William J. Ogle, minister; Howard Tyrrell, minister of music.

9:30, children's day program in the church sanctuary. 11, morning service of worship. Sermon, "Under a Bunch of Grapes." Members of the Masonic fraternity will be guests in their observance of St. John's Sunday.

Monday, at 1, retarded children's program.

Tuesday at 7:30, board of trustees meeting. 8, official board meeting. The Lend-A-Hand group will hold a dinner meeting at Wallace's, Framingham. The Challenger group will hold a dinner outing.

Wednesday at 7, Boy Scout Troop No. 35. 6:30, a banquet honoring our college students, high school graduates and servicemen will be held in the church hall. The banquet [illegible] by the W. S. C. S.

Thursday [illegible] program of retarded [illegible] 15, adult choir rehearsal.

Friday [illegible] Adult Fellowship Night at [illegible] Pops" Concert.

Reception of new members and Sacrament of Infant Baptism will be held on Sunday, June 17. The morning worship service will be at 10 a. m.

For information in regard to the vacation church school to be held from June 18 through July 3, please call Mrs. Charles Moody, Franconia avenue, director of the school.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Press
STONEHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,600

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Yarmouth Register
YARMOUTH PORT,
Weekly Republican

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068
Tri-Town Times
SHREWSBURY, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,892

JUN 7 1956

Shrewsbury Seniors To Attend Pops

Senior groups of the musical organizations in the Shrewsbury public schools will attend the Boston "Pops" at Symphony Hall, Saturday night, June 9. The "Pops" have long been a musical treat and an added feature for this particular evening in "Conservatory Night" with the chorus from New England Conservatory taking part in the program. Mr. Lorne Ford head of the Shrewsbury Music department, and a Conservatory graduate made arrangements and obtained tickets. Members of the High School Glee Club, Mixed Chorus, Senior Band will be included in the trip. Accompanying [illegible] will be Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Trunfio, Mr. Louis Vella and Miss Carol Croteau, Mr. and Mrs. David Roche, of the school department, and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Ervin, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Francis, Mr. and Mrs. Arne Menton, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Prior and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schoenfeldt from the School Music Association.

SUBSCRIBE NOW!

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Union Leader (m) & (e)
MANCHESTER, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 45,622

JUN 8 1956

Boston Symphony Will Give Russian Concerts

BOSTON — (UP) — The Boston symphony orchestra announced last night it will give concerts in Moscow and Leningrad, becoming the first American symphony orchestra to perform in the Soviet Union.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Gazette (e)
HAVERHILL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 18,794

JUN 8 1956

MERRIMAC ITEMS

Selectmen are receiving applications for the post of Civil Defense director, left vacant by the death of Parker T. Walton. Persons interested should submit their applications at the town office before June 11.

Mrs. Harold Poor and Miss Barbara Poor, 8 Union st., attended the Boston Pops concert Wednesday with members of the choir of St. James Episcopal Church, Amesbury.

Miss Daryl Ann Thomson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Thomson of 1031 Metropolitan Ave., will be a member of the New England Conservatory Chorus when it sings at the Boston Pops Concert tomorrow night. Miss Thomson has just completed her freshman year at the Conservatory where she is majoring in music therapy.

TIGHT BINDING

W YORK, N. Y.
ALD-TRIBUNE
336,443 - S. 528,253

JUN 7 1956

hony Dates

Boston Symphony Or- will give its usual series oncerts at the Brooklyn y of Music during the season, it was an- yesterday by the Brook- Arts and Sci- Charles Munch, the or- s regular conductor, will oncerts on Nov. 16, Dec. 11, 1957, Feb. 8 and 22.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democr.
Circ. 113,081

JUN 7, 1956

Minneapolis Here In Bushnell Series

Although the Minnea Symphony Orchestra is one the oldest established in country, Hartford music lo have their first opportunit hear it "in person" in season's Bushnell Symp Series.

The Minneapolis is the five foremost American orc tras presented in the 1956- Bushnell Series, for which son ticket applications are being accepted.

• • •

"WE ARE PLEASED next season's tour of the neapolis Symphony will it to the east coast and it available to us," said M aging Director William T. tensen today. "This ensem has been rated for years am the finest in North Ame The very fact that Eugene mandy was its regular condu five years before going to Philadelphia Orchestra, that Dimitri Mitropoulos ceeded him and remaine dozen years before going to New York Philharmonic-S phony, is evidence of its qua The present conductor, An ratti, is internationally fam the field of music."

Dorati, who will conduct year-old Minneapolis Sy in its concert here n ori, has achieved a nota tation in Europe as well is country. He was cho summer of 1953 to c the Stockho Orc concert co ratin 100th anniversary ing of the city.

• • •

IN ADDITION t apolis, the followi chestras and condu included in next s annual Bushnell Series:

New York Philhar p hony, Dimitri M Cleveland Symphon Szell; Boston Charles Munch; P Orchestra, Eugene O Guest soloists will ented with the Clev Minneapolis orchestra ical works.

AMARILLO, TEX.
NEWS
Circ. D. 39,800

MAY

In the Groove

Boston Pops Has Picnic for Summer Fun

With summer on its way, RCA Victor is releasing in May the Boston Pops Picnic album, designed to delight the musical taste of everyone everywhere. Although this might seem to be more of a classical release, the selections included in this album are of universal appeal, a blend of old favorites and enchanting new discoveries by Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler on a 12" LP disk.

Newly recorded expressly to bring back memories such gems as Gade's "Jalousie," Lacuona's "Malaguena," Ketelbey's "In a Persian Market," Von Suppe's "Poet and Peasant Overture," and Ivanovici's "Danube Waves," popularized by Al Jolson as "The Anniversary Waltz."

Also included are such palatable treats as "The Waltzing Cat," penned especially for the Pops by Leroy Anderson; "Pops Polka" and "Enchanted Sea," dedicated by composer Jack Mason to Arthur Fiedler; and Josef Strauss' "Village Swallow Waltz."

The Boston Pops Picnic album, recorded in Symphony Hall, Boston, is in New Orthophonic High Fidelity Sound.

• • •

The well-known harmonica virtuoso, Leo Diamond, is also a skin-diving enthusiast and decided to do a "musical report" on skin diving. The result was an interesting album titled Skin Diver Suite which consists of a series of accepted impressions set down for the purpose of communicating the skin diver's adventurous probings.

• • •

In merging his art and his hobby, Diamond may have been struck by the parallel between the sequence of events in a skin diver's plunge and the structure of a musical composition. In both there is a preparatory period, then a series of adventures based on this preparation and, finally, a return to the point of departure.

• • •

Katyna Ranieri, a highly successful singer in European countries for several years, has now become widely known in the United States through her RCA Victor recordings. Her latest album, Love in Three Languages, is a beautiful collection of French, Italian and English love songs.

The English melodies are Cole Porter's hits from the Broadway shows "Can-Can." The Italian selection includes "Arrivederci Roma" and a lovely French verse titled "Telephonez-Moi, Cherie," which is a current American hit (known to us as "Kiss and Run"). Signorina Ranieri, who has a glorious caressing voice, is as much at home singing either French or English lyrics as she is in Italian. Although not represented here, one of her most eloquent media of expression is the Spanish song (Girl On the Spanish Steps)—and she also has a distinct penchant for Flemish songs, so moving but so little known in America.

* * *

KATYNA RANIERI

• • •

The Sauter-Finegan orchestra comes up with an assortment of weird sounds in their latest RCA Victor offering, Adventure in Time. The sounds, however, are fascinating and cleverly executed.

This is an album of percussion music—percussion in this case being sound produced by objects of differing weights and timbres being struck by tools of differing weights and timbres. The organization of groups of such struck sounds in time and space (pitch) gives off an association of thought and feeling that is music, percussion music. So here "time" is more than a matter of hands on a clock.

Included are: The Jukes Family Takes a Holiday, E-MC Squared, Time Machine, World Without Time, The Minute, The Stone Age, Whoo-Doo-Voodoo, A Chinese Painting, Abstraction, Kinetic Energy, Swingcussion, Roulette, P.S. He Lost.—RSW.

JUN 7 1956

Eire Society Has Night At Pops

Several residents of this area are among the sponsors of the Eire Society of Boston's annual night at the Pops to be held on Friday evening, June 8, in Symphony Hall. They are Joseph Gannon, president of the Society, and Lillian Hartigan, both of Brookline, and Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Cavanagh of Brighton. The proceeds will go toward the Eire Society's donation of $1,000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra to enable it to open its European concert tour this summer with concerts in Cork and Dublin. Among the numbers to be played is the Eire Suite, a special arrangement of Irish pieces for the Boston Pops Orchestra commissioned by the Eire Society several years ago.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record
MILTON, Mass.
Weekly Local
Circ. 4,950

JUN 7 1956

Miss Mary Lou McCarthy of Milton, representing New Rochelle College, is co-chairman for "College Night at Pops," June 16.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

Hamilton-Wenham Chronicle
SOUTH HAMILTON, Mass.
Indep. Republican
Circ. 750

JUN 8 1956

of Pompano, Fla.

* * *

G. Johnstone Geikie, Jr., will be guest artist with the Boston Pops, Arthur Fiedler conducting, on Friday evening, June 15, at 8:30 o'clock in Symphony Hall, Boston.

* * *

Mrs. Lulu Preston, formerly of

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Journal (e)
MERIDEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 8,203

JUN 8 1956

World Of Music

NEW YORK (UP) — Next season, the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Boston Symphony will swap conductors for two concerts.

Eugene Ormandy, music director of the Philadelphians, will conduct the Bostonians twice in Boston, while Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, will be in Philadelphia conducting the Philadelphians.

In addition to Munch, the Philadelphia Orchestra will have three other guest conductors next season — Ernest Ansermet, founder and conductor of Orchestra de la Suisse Romande; Pierre Monteux, and William Steinberg, conductor of the Pittsburgh Symphony.

The season will open Oct. 5 and close April 20, 1957.

Norman Dello Jolo, one of the best known contemporary composers, has been appointed to the faculty of the Mannes College of Music and will teach composition. His newest opera, "The Trial at Rouen," was given its world premiere on a television network recently.

Jan Peerce, Metropolitan Opera tenor, is in Russia under the auspices of the State Department. He made his first appearance in a concert at the Moscow Conservatory on June 6.

The plan is for him to appear in three leading tenor roles of Italian opera in Moscow's Bolshoi theatre and he will be the first American to appear in opera at that theatre.

The operas are "Rigoletto," "La Traviata," and "The Masked Ball." Peerce also will appear in concert in Leningrad, Tiflis, and Kiev and, after a month, go on to Italy.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 7 1956

OFFICERS OF HISTADRUT NIGHT at Pops Concert Thursday June 21, at Symphony Hall. Guest soloist will be Richard Tucker and Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra. Left to right are: Samuel D. Shapiro, chairman; Alexander Shapiro, secretary-treasurer; Benjamin Cohen, co-chairman; Oscar Sterman, honorary chairman.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
FRAMINGHAM, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 11,200

JUN 9 1956

Fisk Memorial Methodist

Natick, Massachusetts

Rev. William J. Ogle, minister; Howard Tyrrell, minister of music.

9:30, children's day program in the church sanctuary. 11, morning service of worship. Sermon, "Under a Bunch of Grapes." Members of the Masonic fraternity will be guests in their observance of St. John's Sunday.

Monday, at 1, retarded children's program.

Tuesday at 7:30, board of trustees meeting. 8, official board meeting. The Lend-A-Hand group will hold a dinner meeting at Wallace's, Framingham. The Challenger group will hold a dinner outing.

Wednesday at 7, Boy Scout Troop No. 35. 8:30, banquet honoring our college students, high school graduates, and servicemen, will be held in the [illegible] Hall. The banquet [illegible] by the W. S. C. S.

Thursday [illegible] program of retarded [illegible] 15, adult choir rehearsal [illegible] Fellowship Night at [illegible] "Pops" Concert.

Reception of new members and Sacrament of Infant Baptism will be held on Sunday, June 17. The morning worship service will be at 10 a. m.

For information in regard to the Vacation church school to be held from June 18 through July 3, please call Mrs. Charles Moody, Franconia avenue, director of the school.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Vermont Tribune
LUDLOW, Vt.
Weekly Ind. Republican
Circ. 1,09[illegible]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

Tri-Town Times
SHREWSBURY, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,892

JUN 7 1956

Shrewsbury Seniors To Attend Pops

Senior groups of the musical organizations in the Shrewsbury public schools will attend the Boston "Pops" at Symphony Hall, Saturday night, June 9. The "Pops" have long been a musical treat and an added feature for this particular evening is "Conservatory Night" with the chorus from New England Conservatory taking part in the program. Mr. Lorne Ford head of the Shrewsbury Music department, and a Conservatory graduate made arrangements for obtained tickets. Members of the High School Glee Club, Majoretts and Senior Band will be included in the trip. Accompanying the group will be Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Trunbull, Mr. Denis Vella and Miss Carol Croteau, Mr. and Mrs. David Roche, of the school department, and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Ervin, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Francis, Mr. and Mrs. Arne Menton, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Prior and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schoenfeldt from the School Music Association.

SUBSCRIBE NOW!

To Sing at Boston Pops

Leonard Edwin Bearse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bearse of Hyannis, will be a member of the New England Conservatory Chorus when it sings at the Boston Pops Concert Saturday, June 9. Mr. Bearse is a bass. He has just completed his Junior year at the New England Conservatory, where he is majoring in Music Education.

Massachusetts Golf Association

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Union Leader (m) & (e)
MANCHESTER, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 45,622

JUN 8 1956

Boston Symphony Will Give Russian Concerts

BOSTON — (UP) — The Boston symphony orchestra announced last night it will give concerts in Moscow and Leningrad, becoming the first American symphony orchestra to perform in the Soviet Union.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Gazette (e)
HAVERHILL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 18,794

JUN 8 1956

MERRIMAC ITEMS

Selectmen are receiving applications for the post of Civil Defense director, left vacant by the death of Parker T. Walton. Persons interested should submit their applications at the town office before June 11.

Mrs. Harold Poor and Miss Barbara Poor, 8 Union st., attended the Boston Pops concert Wednesday with members of the choir of St. James Episcopal Church, Amesbury.

TIGHT BINDING

W YORK, N. Y.
ALD-TRIBUNE
D. 336,443 - S. 528,253

JUN 7 1956

hony Dates

Boston Symphony Or- will give its usual series concerts at the Brooklyn y of Music during the season, it was an- d yesterday by the Brook- Academy of Arts and Sci- Charles Munch, the or- s regular conductor, will oncerts on Nov. 16, Dec. . 11, 1957, Feb. 8 and 22.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 118,081

JUN 7, 1956

Minneapolis Here In Bushnell Series

Although the Minnea Symphony Orchestra is on the oldest established in country, Hartford music have their first opportuni hear it "in person" in season's Bushnell Symp Series.

The Minneapolis is bi five foremost American or tras presented in the 1956- Bushnell Series, for which son ticket applications are being accepted.

* * *

"WE ARE PLEASED next season's tour of the neapolis Symphony it to the east coast it available to aging Dir William tensen, t has been the fines The very mandy wa five years Philadelphi that Dimit ceeded him dozen years New York phony, is evi The present Doati, is inter the field of Doati, who year-old Mi ng in its co ori, has achi ation in Eu is country. summer c the Stockho concert cel 60th anniversary the city.

* * *

IN ADDITION to t apolis, the following chestras and conductors included in next season a annual Bushnell Sym Series:

New York Philharmonic p by Dimitri Mitrop Cleveland Symphony, Szell; Boston Sym Charles Munch; Philad Orchestra, Eugene Ormandy.

Guest soloists will be sented with the Cleve Minneapolis orchestras, ical works.

AMARILLO, TEX.
NEWS
Circ. D. 39,800

MAY

In the Groove

Boston Pops Has Picnic for Summer Fun

With summer on its way, RCA Victor is releasing in May the Boston Pops Picnic album, designed to delight the musical taste of everyone—everywhere. Although this might seem to be more of a classical release, the selections included in this album are of universal appeal, a blend of old favorites and enchanting new discoveries by Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler on one 12" LP disk.

Newly recorded and sure to bring back memories are such gems as Gade's "Jeanette and Jeanot," Lecuona's "Malaguena," Ketelbey's "In a Persian Market," Von Suppe's "Poet and Peasant Overture," and Ivanovici's "Danube Waves," popularized by Al Jolson, "The Anniversary Waltz."

Also included are such palatable treats as "The Waltzing Cat," penned especially for the Pops by Leroy Anderson; "Pops Polka" and "Enchanted Sea," dedicated by composer Jack Mason to Arthur Fiedler; and Josef Strauss' "Village Swallow Waltz."

The Boston Pops Picnic album, recorded in Symphony Hall, Boston, is in New Orthophonic High Fidelity Sound.

* * *

The well-known harmonica virtuoso, Leo Diamond, is also a skin-diving enthusiast and decided to do a "musical report" on skin diving. The result was an album titled Skin

---

JUN 7 1956

Eire Society Has Night At Pops

Several residents of this area are among the sponsors of the Eire Society of Boston's annual night at the Pops to be held on Friday evening, June 8, in Symphony Hall. They are Joseph Gannon, president of the Society, and Lillian Hartigan, both of Brookline, and Mr. and Mrs. John P. Cavanagh of Brighton. The proceeds will go toward the Eire Society's donation of $1,000 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra to enable it to open its European concert tour this summer with concerts in Cork and Dublin. Among the numbers to be played is the Eire Suite, a special arrangement of Irish pieces for the Boston Pops Orchestra commissioned by the Eire Society several years ago.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record
MILTON, Mass.
Weekly Local
Circ. 4,950

JUN 8 1956

Miss Mary Lou McCarthy of Milton, representing New Rochelle College, is co-chairman for "College Night at Pops," June 16.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

Hamilton-Wenham Chronicle
SOUTH HAMILTON, Mass.
Indep. Republican
Circ. 750

JUN 8 1956

or Pompano, Fla.

* * *

G. Johnstone Geikie, Jr., will be guest artist with the Boston Pops, Arthur Fiedler conducting, on Friday evening, June 15, at 8:30 o'clock in Symphony Hall, Boston.

* * *

Mrs. Lalu Preston, formerly of

---

preparation and, finally, a return to the point of departure.

* * *

Katyna Ranieri, a highly successful singer in European countries for several years, has now become widely known in the United States through her RCA Victor recordings. Her latest album, Love in Three Languages, is a beautiful collection of French, Italian and English love songs.

The English melodies are Cole Porter's hits from the Broadway shows "Can-Can." The Italian selection includes "Arrivederci Roma" and a lovely French verse titled "Telephonez-Moi, Cherie," which is a current American hit (known to us as "Kiss and Run"). Katyna Ranieri, who has a glorious singing voice, is as much at ease singing either French or Italian lyrics as she is in Italian. Not represented here, but most eloquent media of expression is the Spanish song (Under the Spanish Steps)—she also has a distinct penchant for Flemish songs, so moving but so little known in America.

* * *

KATYNA RANIERI

* * *

The Sauter-Finegan orchestra comes up with an assortment of weird sounds in their latest RCA Victor offering, Adventure in Time. The sounds, however, are fascinating and cleverly executed.

This is an album of percussion music—percussion in this case being sound produced by objects of differing weights and timbres being struck by tools of differing weights and timbres. The organization of groups of such struck sounds in time and space (pitch) gives off an association of thought and feeling that is music, perhaps music. So here "time" is more than a matter of hands on a clock.

Included are: The Jukes Family Takes a Holiday, E-MC Squared, Time Machine, World Without Time, The Minute, The Stone Age, Whoo-Doo-Voodoo, A Chinese Painting, Abstraction, Kinetic Energy, Swingcussion, Roulette, P.S. He Lost.—RSW.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 7 1956

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Journal (e)
MERIDEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 8,203

JUN 8 1956

World Of Music

NEW YORK (UP) — Next season, the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Boston Symphony will swap conductors for two concerts.

Eugene Ormandy, music director of the Philadelphians, will conduct the Bostonians twice in Boston, while Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, will be in Philadelphia conducting the Philadelphians.

In addition to Munch, the Philadelphia Orchestra will have three other guest conductors next season — Ernest Ansermet, founder and conductor of Orchestra de la Suisse Romande; Pierre Monteux, and William Steinberg, conductor of the Pittsburgh Symphony.

The season will open Oct. 5 and close April 20, 1957.

Norman Dello Jolo, one of the best known contemporary composers, has been appointed to the faculty of the Mannes College of Music and will teach composition. His newest opera, "The Trial at Rouen," was given its world premiere on a television network recently.

Jan Peerce, Metropolitan Opera tenor, is in Russia under the auspices of the State Department. He made his first appearance in a concert at the Moscow Conservatory on June 6.

The plan is for him to appear in three leading tenor roles of Italian opera in Moscow's Bolshoi theatre and he will be the first American to appear in opera at that theatre.

The operas are "Rigoletto," "La Traviata," and "The Masked Ball." Peerce also will appear in concert in Leningrad, Tiflis, and Kiev and, after a month, go on to Italy.

OFFICERS OF HISTADRUT NIGHT at Pops Concert Thursday June 21, at Symphony Hall. Guest soloist will be Richard Tucker and Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra. Left to right are: Samuel D. Shapiro, chairman; Alexander Shapiro, secretary-treasurer; Benjamin Cohen, co-chairman; Oscar Sterman, honorary chairman.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
FRAMINGHAM, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 11,200

JUN 9 1956

Fisk Memorial Methodist

Natick, Massachusetts

Rev. William J. Ogle, minister; Howard Tyrrell, minister of music.

9:30, children's day program in the church sanctuary. 11, morning service of worship. Sermon, "Under a Bunch of Grapes." Members of the Masonic fraternity will be guests in their observance of St. John's Sunday.

Monday, at 1, retarded children's program.

Tuesday at 7:30, board of trustees meeting. 8, official board meeting. The Lend-A-Hand group will hold a dinner meeting at Wallace's, Framingham. The Challenger group will hold a dinner outing.

Wednesday at 7, Boy Scout Troop No. 35. 8:30, a banquet honoring our college students, high school graduates and servicemen will be held in the church hall. The banquet [illegible] the W. S. C. S.

Thursday [illegible] program of retarded [illegible] 7:15, adult choir rehearsal [illegible] Fellowship Night at [illegible] "Pops" Concert.

Reception of new members and Sacrament of Infant Baptism will be held on Sunday, June 17. The morning worship service will be at 10 a. m.

For information in regard to the Vacation church school to be held from June 18 through July 3, please call Mrs. Charles Moody, Franconia avenue, director of the school.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

Tri-Town Times
SHREWSBURY, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,892

JUN 7 1956

Shrewsbury Seniors To Attend Pops

Senior groups of the musical organizations in the Shrewsbury public schools will attend the Boston "Pops" at Symphony Hall, Saturday night, June 9. The "Pops" have long been a musical treat and an added feature for this particular evening is "Conservatory Night" with the chorus from New England Conservatory taking part in the program. Mr. Lorne Ford head of the Shrewsbury Music department, and a Conservatory graduate made arrangements and obtained tickets. Members of the High School Glee Club, Majorettes and Senior Band will be included in the trip. Accompanying them will be Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Trunfiro, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Vella and Miss Carol Croteau, Mr. and Mrs. David Rocher of the school department, and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Ervin, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Francis, Mr. and Mrs. Arne Menton, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Prior and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schoenfeldt from the School Music Association.

SUBSCRIBE NOW!

JUN 7

ALBERT WARREN TO SING AT POPS CONCERT

Albert Emery Warren, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel E. Warren of 8 Pine st. will be a member of the New England Conservatory Chorus when it sings at the Boston Pops Concert Saturday, June 9. The second Saturday night in June has been New England Conservatory night at Pops since 1930 when Mr. Fiedler became Pops conductor.

Mr. Warren is a bass. He has just completed his sophomore year at the New England Conservatory, where he is majoring in music education. Under the direction of Lorna Cooke deVaron, its permanent conductor, the Conservatory Chorus will sing English, Latin-American and modern American songs.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Union Leader (m) & (e)
MANCHESTER, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 45,622

JUN 8 1956

Boston Symphony Will Give Russian Concerts

BOSTON — (UP) — The Boston symphony orchestra announced last night it will give concerts in Moscow and Leningrad, becoming the first American symphony orchestra to perform in the Soviet Union.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Gazette (e)
HAVERHILL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 18,794

JUN 8 1956

MERRIMAC ITEMS

Selectmen are receiving applications for the post of Civil Defense director, left vacant by the death of Parker T. Walton. Persons interested should submit their applications at the town office before June 11.

Mrs. Harold Poor and Miss Barbara Poor, 8 Union st., attended the Boston Pops concert Wednesday with members of the choir of St. James Episcopal Church, Amesbury.

TIGHT BINDING

W YORK, N. Y.
ALD-TRIBUNE
336,443 - S. 528,253

JUN 7 1956

hony Dates

Boston Symphony Or- will give its usual series concerts at the Brooklyn y of Music during the season, it was an- yesterday by the Brook- Charles Munch, the Sci- s regular conductor, will onsorts on Nov. 16, Dec. 11, 1957, Feb. 8 and 22.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 118,081

JUN 7 1956

Minneapolis Here In Bushnell Series

Although the Minne Symphony Orchestra is the oldest established country. Hartford mu have [illegible] season [illegible] Series:

New York Philharmo p [illegible] Dimitri Mit Cleveland Symphony, Sz [illegible] t; Boston Sy Charles Munch, Phil Orchestra, Eugene Ormandy. Guest soloists will [illegible] with the Cleve Minneapolis orchestras [illegible] ical works.

AMARILLO, TEX.
NEWS
Circ. D. 39,800

MAY 18 1956

In the Groove

Boston Pops Has Picnic for Summer Fun

With summer on its way, RCA Victor is releasing in May the Boston Pops Picnic album, designed to delight the musical taste of everyone—everywhere. Although this might seem to be more of a classical release, the selections included on this album are of universal appeal, a blend of old favorites and enchanting new discoveries by Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler on a "12" LP disk.

Newly recorded [illegible] to bring back memories [illegible] such gems as Gade's "Je[illegible]", Leoncavallo's "Malagueña, [illegible] in a Persian Market," [illegible] Suppe's "Poet and Peasant Ov[illegible]ture," and Ivanovici's "Danube Waves," popularized by St. John's "The Anniversary Waltz."

Also included are such palatable treats as "The Waltzing Cat," arranged especially for the Pops by Leroy Anderson; "Pomp Polka," by H. DININGROOM SET, TABLE, pieces, buffet and china closet, 4[illegible] preparation and, finally, a return to the point of departure.

* * *

Katyna Ranieri, a highly successful singer in European countries for several years, has become widely known in the United States through her Victor recordings. Her album, Love in Three Tempos, is a beautiful collection of French, Italian and English love songs.

English melodies are Cole Porter hits from the Broadway "Can-Can." The Italian selections includes "Arrivederci Roma" and a lovely French verse of "Telephonez-Moi, Cherie," and a current American hit (such as "Kiss and Run"). Ranieri, who has a glorious singing voice, is as much at home singing either French or English lyrics as she is in Italian. Though not represented here, at her most eloquent media is her expression in the Spanish song (On the Spanish Steps)—she also has a distinct penchant for Flemish songs, so moving but so little known in America.

* * *

KATYNA RANIERI

* * *

The Sauter-Finegan orchestra comes up with an assortment of weird sounds in their latest RCA Victor offering, Adventures in Time. The sounds, however, are fascinating and cleverly arranged.

This is an album of percussion music—percussion in this case being sound produced by objects of differing weights and timbres being struck by tools of differing weights and timbres. The organization of groups of such struck sounds in time and space (pitch) gives off an association of thought and feeling that is music, percussion music. So here "time" is more than a matter of hands on a clock.

Included are: The Jukes Family Takes a Holiday, E-MC Squared, Time Machine, World Without Time, The Minute, The Stone Age, Whoo-Doo-Voodoo, A Chinese Painting, Abstraction, Kinetic Energy, Swingcussion, Roulette, P.S. He Lost.—RSW.

JUN 7 1956

Eire Society Has Night At Pops

Several residents of this area are among the sponsors of the Eire Society of Boston's annual night at the Pops to be held on Friday evening, June 8, in Symphony Hall. They are Joseph Gannon, president of the Society, and Lillian Hartigan, both of Brookline, and Mr. and Mrs. John P. Cavanagh of Brighton. The proceeds will go toward the Society's donation of $[illegible] to the Boston Symphony Orchestra to enable it to open its European concert tour this summer with concerts in Cork and Dublin. Among the numbers to be played is the Eire Suite, a special arrangement of Irish pieces for the Boston Pops Orchestra commissioned by the Eire Society several years ago.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record
MILTON, Mass.
Weekly Local
Circ. 4,950

JUN [illegible]

Miss Mary Lou McCarthy of Milton, representing New Rochelle College, is co-chairman for "College Night at Pops," June 16.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

Hamilton-Wenham Chronicle
SOUTH HAMILTON, Mass.
Indep. Republican
Circ. 750

JUN 8 1956

[illegible] Pompano, Fla.

* * *

G. Johnstone Gelkie, Jr., will be guest artist with the Boston Pops, Arthur Fiedler conducting, on Friday evening, June 15, at 8:30 o'clock in Symphony Hall, Boston.

* * *

Mrs. Lulu Preston, formerly of

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Journal (e)
MERIDEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 8,203

JUN 8 1956

World Of Music

NEW YORK (UP) — Next season, the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Boston Symphony will swap conductors for two concerts.

Eugene Ormandy, music director of the Philadelphians, will conduct the Bostonians twice in Boston, while Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, will be in Philadelphia conducting the Philadelphians.

In addition to Munch, the Philadelphia Orchestra will have three other guest conductors next season — Ernest Ansermet, founder and conductor of Orchestra de la Suisse Romande; Pierre Monteux, and William Steinberg, conductor of the Pittsburgh Symphony.

The season will open Oct. 5 and close April 20, 1957.

Norman Dello Jolo, one of the best known contemporary composers, has been appointed to the faculty of the Mannes College of Music and will teach composition. His newest opera, "The Trial at Rouen," was given its world premiere on a television network recently.

Jan Peerce, Metropolitan Opera tenor, is in Russia under the auspices of the State Department. He made his first appearance in a concert at the Moscow Conservatory on June 6.

The plan is for him to appear in three leading tenor roles of Italian opera in Moscow's Bolshoi theatre and he will be the first American to appear in opera at that theatre.

The operas are "Rigoletto," "La Traviata," and "The Masked Ball." Peerce also will appear in concert in Leningrad, Tiflis, and Kiev and, after a month, go on to Italy.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 7 1956

OFFICERS OF HISTADRUT NIGHT at Pops Concert Thursday June 21, at Symphony Hall. Guest soloist will be Richard Tucker and Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra. Left to right are: Samuel D. Shapiro, chairman; Alexander Shapiro, secretary-treasurer; Benjamin Cohen, co-chairman; Oscar Sterman, honorary chairman.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
FRAMINGHAM, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 11,200

JUN 9 1956

Fisk Memorial Methodist
Natick, Massachusetts

Rev. William J. Ogle, minister; Howard Tyrrell, minister of music.

9:30, children's day program in the church sanctuary. 11, morning service of worship. Sermon, "Under a Bunch of Grapes." Members of the Masonic fraternity will be guests in their observance of St. John's Sunday.

Monday, at 1, retarded children's program.

Tuesday at 7:30, board of trustees meeting. 8, official board meeting. The Lend-A-Hand group will hold a dinner meeting at Wallace's, Framinghan. The Challenge group will hold a dinner outing.

Wednesday at 7, Boy Scout Troop No. 35. 8:30, banquet honoring our college graduates, high school graduates. [illegible] will be held [illegible] hall. The banquet [illegible] the W. S. C. S.

Thursday [illegible] program of retarded [illegible] adult choir rehearsal.

Friday [illegible] Fellowship Night at [illegible] "Pops" Concert. Reception [illegible] members and Sacrament [illegible] Baptism will be held on Sunday, June 17. The morning worship service will be at 10 a. m.

For information in regard to the vacation church school to be held from June 18 through July 3, please call Mrs. Charles Moody, Franconia avenue, director of the school.

JUN 7 1956

Local Girls To Sing In Boston Pops Concert

LUDLOW—Miss Jeanette Peniuk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Peniuk of 65 Pleasant Street, and Miss Shirley M. Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Newton H Rose of 13 Pleasant Street, will both be members of the New England Conservatory Chorus when it sings at the Boston Pops Concert Saturday, June 9. The second Saturday night in June has been New England Conservatory night at Pops since 1930 when Arthur Fiedler became Pops conductor.

Miss Peniuk is an alto and has just completed her junior year at the New England Conservatory where she is majoring in Music Education.

Miss Rose is a soprano and has just completed her freshman year at the Conservatory where she is also majoring in Music Education.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

Tri-Town Times
SHREWSBURY, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,892

JUN 7 1956

Shrewsbury Seniors To Attend Pops

Senior groups of the musical organizations in the Shrewsbury public schools will attend the Boston "Pops" at Symphony Hall, Saturday night, June 9. The "Pops" have long been a musical treat and an added feature for this particular evening is a "Conservatory Night" with the chorus from New England Conservatory taking part in the program. Mr. Lorne Ford head of the Shrewsbury Music department, and a Conservatory graduate made arrangements [illegible] tickets. Members [illegible] School Glee Club, [illegible] Junior Band will be [illegible] Accompanied [illegible] be Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Trunfio, [illegible] Vella and Miss Carol Cutean, Mr. and Mrs. David Roche of the school department, and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Ervin, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Francis, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Menton, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Prior and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schoenfeldt from the School Music Association.

SUBSCRIBE NOW!

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Union Leader (m) & (e)
MANCHESTER, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 45,622

JUN 8 1956

Boston Symphony Will Give Russian Concerts

BOSTON — (UP) — The Boston symphony orchestra announced last night it will give concerts in Moscow and Leningrad, becoming the first American symphony orchestra to perform in the Soviet Union.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Gazette (e)
HAVERHILL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 18,794

JUN 8 1956

MERRIMAC ITEMS

Selectmen are receiving applications for the post of Civil Defense director, left vacant by the death of Parker T. Walton. Persons interested should submit their applications at the town office before June 11.

Mrs. Harold Poor and Miss Barbara Poor, 8 Union st., attended the Boston Pops concert Wednesday with members of the choir of St. James Episcopal Church, Amesbury.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 184,973

JUN 9 1956

Final Three Weeks of Pops

The last three weeks of Boston Pops concerts begins on Monday evening, with six concerts scheduled during the coming week on Monday through Saturday evenings. The concerts of Monday and Thursday will be closed to the general public, the entire house having been taken over respectively by the Harvard Class of 1931 and the National Confectioners Ass'n.

During the remainder of the week three pianists and a violinist will be the soloists. Bernard Kritzman will play the first movement from Tchaikovsky's Piano Concert in B Flat Minor on Tuesday evening; Wednesday Leo Litwin will play the first movement from Gershwin's Piano Concerto in F; and on Friday John Geikie will play the Mendelssohn G Minor Concerto. Saturday evening, with Harry Ellis Dickson conducting, Dorothy Bales will play the Violin Concerto No. 4 in D Minor by Vieuxtemps.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BRIDGEPORT, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 61,159

JUN 10 1956

CONCERT FAVORITES

The Boston Pops orchestra, directed by Arthur Fiedler, will present a program of concert favorites Monday night at 8:15 o'clock over WRCA radio. The concert will open with the Prelude to Act III from "Lohengrin" by Wagner, Handel's Suite from "The Water Music," Gould's "American Salute," and the Suite from "Graduation Ball" by Strauss as the finale.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 253,604

JUN 10 1956

Pusey Opens Big Harvard Week Today

Harvard University begins its five-day commencement week program this afternoon, when Dr. Nathan M. Pusey, president, delivers the baccalaureate address to departing seniors at Memorial Church.

He will climax the festivities Thursday, with award of some 3000 honorary and academic degrees at commencement exercises in Tercentenary Theater in the morning, and an address to the alumni in the same open-air setting in the afternoon.

Close to 15,000 persons will witness these academic rites.

Return of Alumni

In the intervening days, symposia, chapel services, tours of the university, reunions in and out of Cambridge will mark the return of alumni to the Harvard scene.

They will hear a special symposium on the future size and buildings of Harvard College in New Lecture Hall, Wednesday morning.

Participants in this program

(Continued on Page Six)

its spread across Prentiss Field, and holds a moonlight cruise Tuesday night. That afternoon, graduates of the Naval R.O.T.C. will be commissioned in Paine Music Hall.

Senior Class Day exercises are scheduled for Seven Quadrangle Wednesday morning with joint commissioning ceremonies for Army and Air Force R. O. T. C. units in Paine Hall in the afternoon.

Alumni classes have luncheons on Wednesday, prior to the parade to Soldier's Field for the baseball game with Yale in the afternoon.

Commencement exercises on Thursday are under the direction of Powell M. Cabot, university marshal. C. Douglas Dillon, Ambassador to France and member of the 25-year class, will be chief marshal for the alumni.

Speakers at the alumni exercises in the afternoon include Gov. Herter, Dr. Pusey, Francis W. Hatch, president of the alumni association and two honorary degree recipients.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 253,604

JUN 10 1956

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Advertiser
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 547,691

JUN 10 1956

800 TO RECEIVE TUFTS DEGREES

Fourteen honorary degrees and more than 800 academic degrees will be awarded this afternoon at Tufts University in exercises for 2:30 this afternoon on the main campus.

Following presentation of the degrees by Dr. Nils Y. Wessell, eighth president of the 104-year-old college, Hon. John Moors Cabot, American ambassador to Sweden, will deliver the commencement address on the subject "It Is Not Freedom That Mayes You Free."

Those who will receive honorary degrees in addition to Ambassador Cabot are:

Rear Admiral Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission; Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization; Dr. Henry Roy Aldrich, secretary of the Geological Society of America; Dr. Max Tishler, Tufts Class of '28, research analyst; Dr. John Twiss Blake, Tufts Class of '21, vice president of Simplex Wire & Cable Co., Cambridge; Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Nancy Duke Lewis, dean of Pembroke College.

Also Nelson W. Aldrich, Boston architect and chairman of the Boston Arts Festival; Weston Howland, trustee of Boston Dispensary; Rev. Arthur W. Webster of First Universalist Church, Salem; Theodore W. Hodges, Tufts Class of '14, president and treasurer of White & Hodges, Inc.; Joseph W. Morton, Tufts Class of '11, retiring after 32 years as alumni secretary; Clarence S. Cassidy, business manager of Tufts Schools of Medicine and Dental Medicine.

rds at the annual meet-
front) Chester Hayes of
Robert W. Meserve of who made the awards;
Marion of Los Angeles;
of Tuckahoe, N. Y.

the commencement speaker and an honorary degree recipient. He will speak on the subject: "It is Not Freedom that Makes You Free."

Honorary degrees two will be presented to Rear Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission and president of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, N. J.; Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization, and president-on-leave of Ohio Wesleyan University; Dr. Henry Roy Aldrich, secretary of the Geological Society of America, and two Tufts graduates, Dr. Max Tichler, vice president and executive director of the Merck, Sharp & Dohme Research Laboratories; and Dr. John Twiss Blake, vice president of the Simplex Wire & Cable Co., of Cambridge.

The degree of Doctor of Humane Letters (honorary) will be awarded Charles Munch, musical director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Dean Nancy Duke Lewis of Pembroke College; Nelson W. Aldrich, Boston architect and chairman of the board of the Boston Arts Festival; and Weston Howland, trustee of the Boston Dispensary and chairman of its rehabilitation committee.

The Rev. Arthur W. Webster, minister of the First Universalist Church of Salem and a graduate of Crane Theological School of Tufts, will be honored with the degree of Doctor of Divinity.

Two veteran Tufts administrative officers also will be honored. Joseph W. Morton, the dean of alumni secretaries in American colleges and universities, will be awarded the degree of Master of Arts. He retires next month after 32 years as Tufts alumni secretary.

Clarence S. Cassidy, business manager of the Tufts schools of dicine and dental medicine, l receive the Bachelor of siness Administration degree. The degree of Bachelor of ence, extra ordinem, will be esented to Theodore W. dges, president and treasurer the Everett firm of White & odges, Inc., manufacturers of ning oils.

wards to 7 ufts Alumni

Balou Hall, Tufts University's dest building, was rededicated sterday as a highlight of umni Day activities.. The hall, ilt in 1853, was recently renoted.

Dean George S. Miller, Alumni Association president, gave alumni distinguished service awards to seven alumni for service to the university.

Receiving them were Mrs. Clara Foster Fraser, Boston, Jackson '31; William H. Griffiths, class of 1929, of Tuckahoe, N. Y.; Chester Hayes, '06, Waldsboro, Me.; Dr. Nathan Brody, School of Medicine, '33, of Laconia, N. H.; Robert M. Meserve, '31, of Waltham; Dr. Charles E. Hatch, School of Dental Medicine, '16, of Wellesley, and Guy E. Marion, '03, of Los Angeles, Calif.

Speaker for the 50-year-reunion class, of which Dean Miller was chairman, was F. B. Mackenzie, '06, of Wellesley.

Dean Miller was re-elected president of the Tufts Alumni Association. Other officers are: Dr. E. Marshall Hodkins, West Newton; Mrs. George D. Hall, Quincy; Richard H. Pierce, Melrose, and Dr. William M. Parks, vice presidents; Fred P. Nickless, Jr., Beverly, secretary, and Mrs. John C. G. DeWolfe, neurologist.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Sun
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,774

JUN 10 1956

Senior Week Activities to a

LOWELL—Members of t graduating class at Lowell Teachers college participated in sever social functions as a part of th traditional Senior week activities. Monday a lobster cookou at Corbetts pond was held. Committee members in charge of th affair were: Clemmie Flomp Georgia Watson, Janet King, Ir Rentzeperies, Jack Walker, Clair Nanis and Frank Durant. Mar McLaren was in charge of a rangements for the class trip Symphony hall, Boston, on Wednesday for the performance the Boston Pops. Heading th committee for the cook-out Rye beach on Thursday we Mary Reynolds, Phyllis Kno and Joan Obey. Friday, sent students took part in the Cl day activities and participated the traditional ivy planting. Shirley Walsh and Mary Lou Riordan directed the plans for the moonlight cruise which was held on Saturday.

Committee members who assisted in plans for the annual senior formal which will be held Monday at the Andover Country club are: Phyllis Knox, Irene Beaupre, Mary Ellen Moore, Ann Lo[illegible] Curran, [illegible] Fairbanks, Jane Fredette, Iris Rentzeperies, Lorraine Cullen, Rita Davey, Nancy Richardson, Marjie Tapley, Jackie Hayes, Mary-Sue Reynolds, and Marie Geary.

Faculty commencements

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Eagle (m)
LAWRENCE, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 3,048

JUN 11 1956

About Town

Crystal Rebekah lodge, 85, I.O.O.F., will hold its annual memorial exercises at a meeting to be held Thursday at 7:45 p. m. in Odd Fellows hall with Mrs. Lucie Lee Hancock, noble grand, presiding. There will be special music for the ceremony which will be followed by refreshments.

Miss Lillian Legunas 6 Montgomery street, participated in the week end festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening the entire group attended the Boston Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories. The annual luncheon for all classes was held at the Carousel room of the Hotel Bradford.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,623

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 184,973

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

JUN 11 1956

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Kennebec Journal (m)
AUGUSTA, Me.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 12,986

JUN 11 1956

ith their son, Lt. Herbert Gray, ho is stationed there with the .S. Army.

Miss Carolyn Wilson of 31 reenville St., participated in e weekend festivities planned r Fisher Junior College Alu ae in Boston. Friday even he entire group attended Boston Pops Concert at Sy hony Hall. Saturday morn was open house at colle our dormitories and break was served to all early ris The annual luncheon for a lasses was held at the Hotel Bradford.

POPS CLOSED TONIGHT

The Harvard Class of 1931 has taken over the entire house for the Boston Pops concert tonight. It is closed to the general public.

ops For Monday

Boston Concerto. Saturday evening, with Harry Ellis Dickson conducting, Dorothy Bales will play the Violin Concerto No. 4 in D Minor by

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

JUN 11 1956

Symphony Gathering To Attract 1,000

PROVIDENCE — More than 1,000 members and managers of symphony orchestras have started to assemble here for the annual convention of the American Symphony Orchestra League.

Representatives of about 35 orchestras from throughout the United States, Canada and Hawaii have registered for the week-long work shop. The convention will last three days.

Boston Symphony members participating are: Richard Bergen, concert master; Joseph d Pasquale, violist; doriot Dwyer flutist; Ralph Gonberg, oboist Sino Cioffi, clarenetist, an Sherman Walt, bassoonist.

100

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 184,973

JUN 9 1956

Final Three Weeks of Pops

The last three weeks of Boston Pops concerts begins on Monday evening, with six concerts scheduled during the coming week on Monday through Saturday evenings. The concerts of Monday and Thursday will be closed to the general public, the entire house having been taken over respectively by the Harvard Class of 1931 and the National Confectioners Ass'n.

During the remainder of the week three pianists and a violinist will be the soloists. Bernard Kritzman will play the first movement from Tchaikovsky's Piano Concert in B Flat Minor on Tuesday evening; Wednesday Leo Litwin will play the first movement from Gershwin's Piano Concerto in F, and on Friday John Geikie will play the Mendelssohn G Minor Concerto. Saturday evening, with Harry Ellis Dickson conducting, Dorothy Bales will play the Violin Concerto No. 4 in D Minor by Vieuxtemps.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BRIDGEPORT, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 61,159

JUN 10 1956

CONCERT FAVORITES

The Boston Pops orchestra, directed by Arthur Fiedler, will present a program of concert favorites Monday night at 8:15 o'clock over WRCA radio. The concert will open with the Prelude to Act III from "Lohengrin" by Wagner, Handel's Suite from "The Water Music," Gould's "American Salute," and the Suite from "Graduation Ball" by Strauss as the finale.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 253,604

JUN 10 1956

Pusey Opens Big Harvard Week Today

Harvard University begins its five-day commencement week program this afternoon, when Dr. Nathan M. Pusey, president, delivers the baccalaureate address to departing seniors at Memorial Church.

He will climax the festivities Thursday, with award of some 3000 honorary and academic degrees at commencement exercises in Tercentenary Theater in the morning, and an address to the alumni in the same open-air setting in the afternoon.

Close to 15,000 persons will witness these academic rites.

Return of Alumni

In the intervening days, symposia, chapel services, tours of the university, reunions in and out of Cambridge will mark the return of alumni to the Harvard scene.

They will hear a special symposium on the future size and buildings of Harvard College in New Lecture Hall, Wednesday morning.

Participants in this program

(Continued on Page Six)

its spread Monday evening, and holds a moonlight cruise Tuesday night. That afternoon, graduates of the Naval R.O.T.C. will be commissioned in Paine Music Hall.

Senior Class Day exercises are scheduled for Sever Quadrangle Wednesday morning, with joint commissioning ceremonies for Army and Air Force R. O. T. C. units at Paine Hall in the afternoon.

Alumni classes have luncheons on Wednesday, prior to the parade to Soldier's Field for the baseball game with Yale in the afternoon.

Commencement exercises Thursday are under the direction of Powell M. Cabot, university marshal. C. Douglas Dillon, Ambassador to France and member of the 25 year class will be chief marshal for the alumni.

Speakers at the alumni exercises in the afternoon include Gov. Herter, Dr. Pusey, Francis W. Hatch, president of the alumni association and two honorary degree recipients.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Sun
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,774

JUN 10 1956

Senior Week Activities to a

LOWELL—Members of t graduating class at Lowell Teac ers college participated in sever social functions as a part of th traditional Senior week activ ties. Monday a lobster cookou at Corbetts pond was held. Com mittee members in charge of thi affair were: Clemmie Flomp Georgia Watson, Janet King, Iri Rentzeperies, Jack Walker, Clair Nanis and Frank Durant. Mar McLaren was in charge of ar rangements for the class trip t Symphony hall, Boston, on Wed nesday for the performance o the Boston Pops. Heading th committee for the cook-out a Rye beach on Thursday wer Mary Reynolds, Phyllis Knox and Joan Obey. Friday, senio students took part in the Clas day activities and participated i the traditional ivy planting. Shirley Walsh and Mary Lou Riordan directed the plans for the moonlight cruise which was held on Saturday.

Committee members who assisted in plans for the annual senior formal which will be held Monday at the Andover Country club are: Phyllis Knox, Irene Beaupre, Mary Ellen Moore, Ann Louise Curran, Barbara Fairbanks, Jane Fredette, Iris Rentzeperies, Lorraine Cullen, Rita Davey, Nancy Richardson, Marjie Tapley, Jackie Hayes, Mary-Sue Reyonlds, and Marie Geary.

Faculty Commitments

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Kennebec Journal (m)
AUGUSTA, Me.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 12,986

JUN 11 1956

ith their son, Lt. Herbert Gray, ho is stationed there with the .S. Army.

Miss Carolyn Wilson of 31 reenville St., participated in e weekend festivities planned or Fisher Junior College Alu ae in Boston. Friday eveni he entire group attended t Boston Pops Concert at Sy phony Hall. Saturday morn was open house at the colleg our dormitories and break was served to all early ris The annual luncheon for all classes was held at the Hotel Bradford.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 253,604

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Advertiser
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 547,691

JUN 10 1956

800 TO RECEIVE TUFTS DEGREES

Fourteen honorary degrees and more than 800 academic degrees will be awarded this afternoon at Tufts University in exercises for 2:30 this afternoon on the main campus.

Following presentation of the degrees by Dr. Nils Y. Wessell, eighth president of the 104-year-old college, Hon. John Moors Cabot, American ambassador to Sweden, will deliver the commencement address on the subject "It Is Not Freedom That Mayes You Free."

Those who will receive honorary degrees in addition to Ambassador Cabot are:

Rear Admiral Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission; Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization; Dr. Henry Roy Aldrich, secretary of the Geological Society of America; Dr. Max Tishler, Tufts Class of '28, research analyst; Dr. John Twiss Blake, Tufts Class of '21, vice president of Simplex Wire & Cable Co., Cambridge; Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Nancy Duke Lewis, dean of Pembroke College.

Also Nelson W. Aldrich, Boston architect and chairman of the Boston Arts Festival; Weston Howland, trustee of Boston Dispensary; Rev. Arthur W. Webster of First Universalist Church, Salem; Theodore W. Hodges, Tufts Class of '14, president and treasurer of White & Hodges, Inc.; Joseph W. Morton, Tufts Class of '11, retiring after 32 years as alumni secretary; Clarence S. Cassidy, business manager of Tufts Schools of Medicine and Dental Medicine.

the commencement speaker and an honorary degree recipient. He will speak on the subject: "It is Not Freedom that Makes You Free."

Honorary degrees also will be presented to Rear Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission and president of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, N. J.; Dr. Arthur S. Fleming, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization and prresident-on-leave of Ohio Wesleyan University; Dr. Henry Roy Aldrich, secretary of the Geological Society of America, and two Tufts graduates, Dr. Max Tichler, vice president and executive director of the Merck, Sharp & Dohme Research Laboratories; and Dr. John Twiss Blake, vice president of the Simplex Wire & Cable Co., of Cambridge.

The degree of Doctor of Humane Letters (honorary) will be awarded Charles Munch, musical director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Dean Nancy Duke Lewis of Pemroke College; Nelson W. Aldrich, Boston architect and chairman of the board of the Boston Arts Festival; and Weston Howland, trustee of the Boston Dispensary and chairman of its rehabilitation committee.

The Rev. Arthur W. Webster, minister of the First Universalist Church of Salem and a graduate of Crane Theological School of Tufts, will be honored with the degree of Doctor of Divinity.

Two veteran Tufts administrative officers also will be honored. Joseph W. Morton, the dean of alumni secretaries in American colleges and universities, will be awarded the degree of Master of Arts. He retires next month after 32 years as Tufts alumni secretary.

Clarence S. Cassidy, business manager of the Tufts schools of rds at the annual meet-

front) Chester Hayes of
Robert W. Meserve of
who made the awards;
Marion of Los Angeles;
of Tuckahoe, N. Y.

dicine and dental medicine.
ll receive the Bachelor of usiness Administration degree.
The degree of Bachelor of ence, extra ordinem, will be esented to Theodore W.
dges, president and treasurer
the Everett firm of White & odges, Inc., manufacturers of nning oils.

wards to 7 ufts Alumni

Balou Hall, Tufts University's dest building, was rededicated esterday as a highlight of lumni Day activities.. The hall, uilt in 1853, was recently reno-ted.

Dean George S. Miller, Alumni Association president, gave alumni distinguished service awards to seven alumni for service to the university.

Receiving them were Mrs. Clara Foster Fraser, Boston, Jackson '31; William H. Griffiths, class of 1928, of Tuckahoe, N. Y.; Chester Hayes, '06, Waldsboro, Me.; Dr. Nathan Brody, School of Medicine, '33, of Laconia, N. H.; [illegible] M. Meserve '31, of Waltham; Dr. Charles E. Hatch, School of Dental Medicine '16, of Wellesley, and Guy E. Ma[illegible] '03, of Los Angeles, Calif.

Speaker for the 50-year-[illegible] class, of which Dean Miller was chairman, was F. B. Mackenzie, '06, of Wellesley.

Dean Miller was re-elected president of the Tufts Alumni Association. Other officers are: Dr. E. Marshall Hodgson, West Newton; Mrs. George D. Hall, Quincy; Richard H. Pierce, Melrose, and Dr. William M. Parks, vice presidents; Fred P. Nickless, Jr., Beverly, secretary and Mrs. John C. G. DeWolfe, necrologist.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Eagle (m)
LAWRENCE, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 3,048

JUN 11 1956

About Town

Crystal Rebekah lodge, 85, I.O.O.F., will hold its annual memorial exercises at a meeting to be held Thursday at 7:45 p. m. in Odd Fellows hall with Mrs. Lucie Lee Hancock, noble grand, presiding. There will be special music for the ceremony which will be followed by refreshments.

Miss Lillian Legunas 6 Montgomery street, participated in the week end festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening the entire group attended the Boston Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories. The annual luncheon for all classes was held at the Carousel room of the Hotel Bradford.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,628

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 184,973

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

JUN 1[illegible]

POPS CLOSED TONIGHT

The Harvard Class of 1931 has taken over the entire house for the Boston Pops concert tonight. It is closed to the general public.

ops For Monday

Boston Concerto. Saturday evening, with ncerts Harry Ellis Dickson conducting.
will be Dorothy Bales will play the Vioentire lin Concerto No. 4 in D Minor by over by and the s'n.
of the nist ritz-nent
Con-
Tues-Lit-
nent osed to certo use has leikie
Harvard Minor National
ectively.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

Symphony Gatherings To Attract 1,000

PROVIDENCE [illegible]
1,000 members and [illegible] symphony orche[illegible] ed to assemb[illegible]
nual conven[illegible]
Symphony Orch[illegible]
Represe[illegible] orchestras from [illegible]
United Sta[illegible]
Hawaii have registered for the week-long work shop. The c vention will last three days.

Boston Symphony member participating are [illegible] Fo
gen, concert m[illegible]
Pasquale, violin[illegible] flutist; Ralph [illegible]
Nina Ciccio, [illegible]
Sherman Walt, bassoo[illegible]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 184,973
JUN 9 1956

Final Three Weeks of Pops

The last three weeks of Boston Pops concerts begins on Monday evening, with six concerts scheduled during the coming week on Monday through Saturday evenings. The concerts of Monday and Thursday will be closed to the general public, the entire hou[illegible] been taken [illegible] Harvard [illegible] National [illegible] of the [illegible] violin- [illegible] Bernard [illegible] first [illegible] ovsky's [illegible] Minor [illegible] Tuesday [illegible] first [illegible] Piano [illegible] Friday [illegible] Men-

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Post
BRIDGEPORT, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 61,159
JUN 10 1956

CONCERT FAVORITES

The Boston Pops orchestra, directed by Arthur Fiedler, will present a program of concert favorites Monday night at 8:15 o'clock over WRCA radio. The concert will open with the Prelude to Act III from "Lohengrin" by Wagner, Handel's Suite from "The Water Music," Gould's "American Salute," and the Suite from "Graduation Ball" by Strauss as the finale.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Sun
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,774
JUN 10 1956

Week Opens

(Continued from First Page)

are Prof. John H. Finley, Jr., master of Eliot House, John U. Monro, director of the financial aid office, and McGeorge Bundy, dean of the faculty of arts and sciences, moderator.

At a Wednesday luncheon of the Harvard Foundation for Advanced Study and Research and the Harvard Law School Alumni Association, Justice Felix Frankfurter of the U. S. Supreme Court and Dr. James Phinney Baxter, president of Williams College will speak.

Alumni of the 25-year class of 1931 meet today at a reception at Harkness Commons. Tomorrow at 12:15, they will hold a memorial service for deceased members in Memorial Church. A Pops concert and dinner for the class is scheduled tomorrow night in Symphony Hall.

Harvard Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa holds its elections and exercises tomorrow. Speakers will be Chiang Yee and the poet John Holmes.

SENIOR CLASS SPREAD

Harvard's senior class holds its spread Monday evening, and holds a moonlight cruise Tuesday night. That afternoon, graduates of the Navy R.O.T.C. will be commissioned in Paine Music Hall.

Senior Class Day exercises are scheduled for Sever Quadrangle Wednesday morning, with joint commissioning ceremonies for Army and Air Force R. O. T. C. units at Paine Hall in the afternoon.

Alumni classes have reunions on Wednesday, prior to the parade to Soldier's Field for the baseball game with Yale in the afternoon.

Commencement exercises Thursday are under the direction of Powell M. Cabot, university marshal. C. Douglas Dillon, Ambassador to France and member of the 25-year class, will be chief marshal for the alumni.

Speakers at the alumni exercises in the afternoon include Gov. Herter, Dr. Pusey, Francis W. Hatch, president of the alumni association and two honorary degree recipients.

Senior Week Activities to a

LOWELL—Members of t[illegible] graduating class at Lowell Teachers college participated in several social functions as a part of the traditional Senior week activities. Monday a lobster cookout at Corbetts pond was held. Committee members in charge of this affair were: Clemmie Flom[illegible], Georgia Watson, Janet King, Ir[illegible] Rentzeperies, Jack Walker, Clair[illegible] Nanis and Frank Durant. Mary McLaren was in charge of arrangements for the class trip to Symphony hall, Boston, on Wednesday for the performance of the Boston Pops. Heading the committee for the cook-out at Rye beach on Thursday were Mary Reynolds, Phyllis Knox and Joan Obey. Friday, senior students took part in the Class day activities and participated in the traditional ivy planting. Shirley Walsh and Mary Lou Riordan directed the plans for the moonlight cruise which was held on Saturday.

Committee members who assisted in plans for the annual senior formal which will be held Monday at the Andover Country club are: Phyllis Knox, Irene Beaupre, Mary Ellen Moore, Ann Louise Curran, Barbara Fairbanks, Jane Fredette, Iris Rentzeperies, Lorraine Cullen, Rita Davey, Nancy Richardson, Marjie Tapley, Jackie Hayes, Mary-Sue Reynolds, and Marie Geary.

Faculty Commencements

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Kennebec Journal (m)
AUGUSTA, Me.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 12,986
JUN 11 1956

[illegible]th their son, Lt. Herbert Gray, [illegible]ho is stationed there with the [illegible].S. Army.

Miss Carolyn Wilson of 31 [illegible]reenville St., participated in [illegible]e weekend festivities planned [illegible]or Fisher Junior College Alum[illegible]ae in Boston. Friday evening [illegible]he entire group attended the [illegible]oston Pops Concert at Sym[illegible]hony Hall. Saturday, morning [illegible]was open house at the college's [illegible]our dormitories and breakfast [illegible]was served to all early risers. [illegible]The annual luncheon for all [illegible]lasses was held at the Hotel [illegible]Bradford.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Eagle (m)
LAWRENCE, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 3,048
JUN 11 1956

About Town

Crystal Rebekah lodge, 85, I.O.O.F., will hold its annual memorial exercises at a meeting to be held Thursday at 7:45 p. m. in Odd Fellows hall with Mrs. Lucie Lee Hancock, noble grand, presiding. There will be special music for the ceremony which will be followed by refreshments.

Miss Lillian Legunas 6 Montgomery street, participated in the week end festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening the entire group attended the Boston Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories. The annual luncheon for all classes was held at the Carousel room of the Hotel Bradford.

JUN 11 1956

Harvard Takes Pops

Tonight, which ushers in the final three weeks of Pops, and Thursday night will be closed to the public. The entire house has been taken over by the Harvard Class of 1931 and the National Confectioners Assn., respectively.

JUN 10 1956

TUFTS AWARD RECIPIENTS—Distinguished service awards at the annual meeting of the Tufts Alumni Association yesterday went to (front) Chester Hayes of Waldoboro, Me.; Mrs. Clara Foster Fraser of Boston; Robert W. Meserve of Waltham; Dean George S. Miller, Association president who made the awards; and (rear) Dr. Nathan Brody of Laconia, N. H.; Guy C. Marion of Los Angeles; Dr. Charles E. Hatch of Wellesley, and William H. Griffiths of Tuckahoe, N. Y.

Graduation Exercises at Tufts Today

Fourteen honorary degrees and 893 degrees in course will be awarded at Tufts University's centennial commencement exercises, at 2:30 P. M., today. The degrees will be presented by Dr. Nils Y. Wessell, eighth president of the 104-year-old Medford institution.

John Moors Cabot, American ambassador to Sweden, will be the commencement speaker and an honorary degree recipient. He will speak on the subject: "It is Not Freedom that Makes You Free."

Honorary degrees also will be presented to Rear Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission and president of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, N. J.; Dr. Arthur S. Fleming, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization, and president-on-leave of Ohio Wesleyan University; Dr. Henry Roy Aldrich, secretary of the Geological Society of America, and two Tufts graduates, Dr. Max Tichler, vice president and executive director of the Merck, Sharp & Dohme Research Laboratories; and Dr. John Twiss Blake, vice president of the Simplex Wire & Cable Co., of Cambridge.

The degree of Doctor of Humane Letters (honorary) will be awarded Charles Munch, musical director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Dean Nan[illegible] of Pembroke College; Nelson W. Aldrich, Boston architect and chairman of the board of the Boston Arts Festival; and Weston Howland, trustee of the Boston Dispensary and chairman of its rehabilitation committee.

The Rev. Arthur W. Webster, minister of the First Universalist Church of [illegible] and a graduate of Crane Theological School of Tufts, will be honored [illegible] degree of Doctor of Divinity.

Two veteran Tufts administrative officers also will be honored. Joseph W. Morton, the dean of alumni secretaries in American colleges and universities, will be awarded the degree of Master of Arts. He retires next month after 32 years as Tufts alumni secretary.

Clarence S. Cassidy, business manager of the Tufts schools of medicine and dental medicine, will receive the Bachelor of Business Administration degree.

The degree of Bachelor of Science, extra ordinem, will be presented to Theodore W. Hodges, president and treasurer of the Everett firm of White & Hodges, Inc., manufacturers of tanning oils.

Awards to 7 Tufts Alumni

Balou Hall, Tufts University's oldest building, was rededicated yesterday as a highlight of Alumni Day activities.. The hall, built in 1853, was recently renovated.

Dean George S. Miller, Alumni Association president, gave alumni distinguished service awards to seven alumni for service to the university.

Receiving them were Mrs. Clara Foster Fraser, Boston, Jackson '31; William H. Griffiths, class of 1928, of Tuckahoe, N. Y.; Chester Hayes, '06, Waldsboro, Me.; Dr. Nathan Brody, School of Medicine, '33, of Laconia, N. H.; Robert M. Meserve, '31, of Waltham; Dr. Charles E. Hatch, School of Dental Medicine, '16, of Wellesley, and Guy E. Marion, '03, of Los Angeles, Calif.

Speaker for the 50-year-reunion class, of which Dean Miller was chairman, was F. B. Mackenzie, '06, of Wellesley.

Dean Miller was re-elected president of the Tufts Alumni Association. Other officers are: Dr. E. Marshall Hodkins, West Newton; Mrs. George D. Hall, Quincy; Richard H. Pierce, Melrose, and Dr. William M. Parks, vice presidents; Fred P. Nickless, Jr., Beverly, secretary, and Mrs. John C. G. DeWolfe, necrologist.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749
JUN 11 1956

Symphony Gathering To Attract 1,000

PROVIDENCE—More tha[illegible] 1,000 members and managers o[illegible] symphony orchestras have start[illegible]ed to assemble here for the an[illegible]nual convention of the American Symphony Orchestra League.

Representatives of about 3[illegible] orchestras from throughout the United States, Canada and Hawaii have registered for the week-long work shop. The convention will last three days.

Boston Symphony members participating are: Richard Bergen, concert master; Joseph d[illegible] Pasquale, violist; doriot Dwyer, flutist; Ralph Gonberg, oboist; Gino Cioffi, clarenetist, and Sherman Walt, bassoonist.

[illegible]ps For Monday

[illegible] Boston [illegible]ncerts [illegible] will be [illegible] entire [illegible]over by [illegible] and the [illegible]'n. [illegible] of the [illegible]hist [illegible]itz- [illegible]ent [illegible]con- [illegible]ues- [illegible] Lit- [illegible]nent [illegible]certo [illegible]eikie [illegible] Minor

Concerto. Saturday evening, with Harry Ellis Dickson conducting, Dorothy Bales will play the Violin Concerto No. 4 in D Minor by [illegible]

100
New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 184,973
JUN 9 1956

Final Three Weeks of Pops

The last three weeks of Boston Pops concerts begins on Monday evening, with six concerts scheduled during the coming week on Monday through Saturday evenings. The concerts of Monday and Thursday will be closed to the general public, the entire hou[illegible]een taken [illegible] Harvard [illegible] National [illegible] of the [illegible] a violin- [illegible] Bernard [illegible] e first [illegible] tovsky's [illegible] Minor [illegible] nesday [illegible] e first [illegible] Piano [illegible] Friday [illegible] Men-

flying in here $$$ more)-one
-from Paris to H
SEMENT
Attention mi college dressed miss the finest too.
they were made, some irregulars
43 short, 40 to 44 long, 40 to 44
L JACKETS
d Fabric--Du
NAL VALUES MOND
$39.95

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Post
BRIDGEPORT, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 61,159
JUN 10 1956

CONCERT FAVORITES

The Boston Pops orchestra, directed by Arthur Fiedler, will present a program of concert favorites Monday night at 8:15 o'clock over WRCA radio. The concert will open with the Prelude to Act III from "Lohengrin" by Wagner, Handel's Suite from "The Water Music," Gould's "American Salute," and the Suite from "Graduation Ball" by Strauss as the finale.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Sun
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,774
JUN 10 1956

Week Opens

(Continued from First Page)

are Prof. John H. Finley, Jr., master of Eliot House, John U. Monro, director of the financial aid office, and McGeorge Bundy, dean of the faculty of arts and sciences, moderator.

At a Wednesday luncheon of the Harvard Foundation for Advanced Study and Research and the Harvard Law School Alumni Association, Justice Felix Frankfurter of the U. S. Supreme Court and Dr. James Phinney Baxter, president of Williams College will speak.

Alumni of the 25-year class of 1931 meet today at a reception at Harkness Commons. Tomorrow at 12:15, they will hold a memorial service for deceased members in Memorial Church. A Pops concert and dinner for the class is scheduled tomorrow night in Symphony Hall.

Harvard Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa holds its elections and exercises tomorrow. Speakers will be Chiang Yee and the poet, John Holmes.

SENIOR CLASS SPREAD

Harvard's senior class holds its spread Monday evening, and holds a moonlight cruise Tuesday night. That afternoon, graduates of the Naval R.O.T.C. will be commissioned in Paine Music Hall.

Senior Class Day exercises are scheduled for Sever Quadrangle Wednesday morning, with joint commissioning ceremonies for Army and Air Force R. O. T. C. units at Paine Hall in the afternoon.

Alumni classes have luncheons on Wednesday, prior to the parade to Soldier's Field for the baseball game with Yale in the afternoon.

Commencement exercises Thursday are under the direction of Powell M. Cabot, university marshal. C. Douglas Dillon, Ambassador to France and member of the 25 year class will be chief marshal for the alumni.

Speakers at the alumni exercises in the afternoon include Gov. Herter, Dr. Pusey, Francis W. Hatch, president of the alumni association and two honorary degree recipients.

Senior Week Activities to a[illegible]

LOWELL—Members of t[illegible] graduating class at Lowell Teachers college participated in several social functions as a part of the traditional Senior week activities. Monday a lobster cookout at Corbetts pond was held. Committee members in charge of this affair were: Clemmie Flomp, Georgia Watson, Janet King, Iris Rentzeperies, Jack Walker, Claire Nanis and Frank Durant. Mary McLaren was in charge of arrangements for the class trip to Symphony hall, Boston, on Wednesday for the performance of the Boston Pops. Heading the committee for the cook-out at Rye beach on Thursday were Mary Reynolds, Phyllis Knox and Joan Obey. Friday, senior students took part in the Class day activities and participated in the traditional ivy planting. Shirley Walsh and Mary Lou Riordan directed the plans for the moonlight cruise which was held on Saturday.

Committee members who assisted in plans for the annual senior formal which will be held Monday at the Andover Country club are: Phyllis Knox, Irene Beaupre, Mary Ellen Moore, Ann Louise Curran, Barbara Fairbanks, Jane Fredette, Iris Rentzeperies, Lorraine Cullen, Rita Davey, Nancy Richardson, Marjie Tapley, Jackie Hayes, Mary-Sue Reyonlds, and Marie Geary.

Faculty Commitments

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Kennebec Journal (m)
AUGUSTA, Me.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 12,986
JUN 11 1956

ith their son, Lt. Herbert Gray, ho is stationed there with the .S. Army.

Miss Carolyn Wilson of 31 reenville St., participated in e weekend festivities planned or Fisher Junior College Alumae in Boston. Friday evening he entire group attended the oston Pops Concert at Symhony Hall. Saturday morning vas open house at the college's our dormitories and breakfast vas served to all early risers. The annual luncheon for all lasses was held at the Hotel Bradford.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Eagle (m)
LAWRENCE, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 3,048
JUN 11 1956

About Town

Crystal Rebekah lodge, 85, I.O.O.F., will hold its annual memorial exercises at a meeting to be held Thursday at 7:45 p. m. in Odd Fellows hall with Mrs. Lucie Lee Hancock, noble grand, presiding. There will be special music for the ceremony which will be followed by refreshments.

Miss Lillian Legunas 6 Montgomery street, participated in the week end festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening the entire group attended the Boston Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories. The annual luncheon for all classes was held at the Carousel room of the Hotel Bradford.

JUN 10 1956

TUFTS AWARD RECIPIENTS—Distinguished service awards at the annual meeting of the Tufts Alumni Association yesterday went to (front) Chester Hayes of Waldoboro, Me.; Mrs. Clara Foster Fraser of Boston; Robert W. Meserve of Waltham; Dean George S. Miller, Association president who made the awards; and (rear) Dr. Nathan Brody of Laconia, N. H.; Guy C. Marion of Los Angeles; Dr. Charles E. Hatch of Wellesley, and William H. Griffiths of Tuckahoe, N. Y.

Graduation Exercises at Tufts Today

Fourteen honorary degrees and 893 degrees in course will be awarded at Tufts University's centennial commencement exercises, at 2:30 P. M., today. The degrees will be presented by Dr. Nils Y. Wessell, eighth president of the 104-year-old Medford institution.

John Moors Cabot, American ambassador to Sweden, will be the commencement speaker and an honorary degree recipient. He will speak on the subject: "It is Not Freedom that Makes You Free."

Honorary degrees also will be presented to Rear Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission and president of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, N. J.; Dr. Arthur S. Fleming, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization and prfesident-on-leave of Ohio Wesleyan University; Dr. Henry Roy Aldrich, secretary of the Geological Society of America, and two Tufts graduates, Dr. Max Tichler, vice president and executive director of the Merck, Sharp & Dohme Research Laboratories; and Dr. John Twiss Blake, vice president of the Simplex Wire & Cable Co., of Cambridge.

The degree of Doctor of Humane Letters (honorary) will be awarded Charles Munch, musical director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Dean Nancy Dow Lewis of Pemroke College; Nelson W. Aldrich, Boston architect and chairman of the board of the Boston Arts Festival; and Weston Howland, trustee of the Boston Dispensary and chairman of its rehabilitation committee.

The Rev. Arthur W. Webster, minister of the First Universalist Church of Salem and a graduate of Crane Theological School of Tufts, will be honored with the degree of Doctor of Divinity.

Two veteran Tufts administrative officers also will be honored. Joseph W. Morton, the dean of alumni secretaries in American colleges and universities, will be awarded the degree of Master of Arts. He retires next month after 32 years as Tufts alumni secretary.

Clarence S. Cassidy, business manager of the Tufts schools of medicine and dental medicine, will receive the Bachelor of Business Administration degree.

The degree of Bachelor of Science, extra ordinem, will be presented to Theodore W. Hodges, president and treasurer of the Everett firm of White & Hodges, Inc., manufacturers of tanning oils.

Awards to 7 Tufts Alumni

Balou Hall, Tufts University's oldest building, was rededicated yesterday as a highlight of Alumni Day activities.. The hall, built in 1853, was recently renovated.

Dean George S. Miller, Alumni Association president, gave alumni distinguished service awards to seven alumni for service to the university.

Receiving them were Mrs. Clara Foster Fraser, Boston, Jackson '31; William H. Griffiths, class of 1928, of Tuckahoe, N. Y.; Chester Hayes, '06, Waldsboro, Me.; Dr. Nathan Brody, School of Medicine, '33, of Laconia, N. H.; Robert M. Meserve '31, of Waltham; Dr. Charles E. Hatch, School of Dental Medicine '18, of Wellesley, and Guy E. Marion, '03, of Los Angeles, Calif.

Speaker for the 50-year-[illegible] class, of which Dean Miller was chairman, was F. B. Mackenzie, '06, of Wellesley.

Dean Miller was re-elected president of the Tufts Alumni Association. Other officers are: Dr. E. Marshall Hodkins, West Newton; Mrs. George D. Hall, Quincy; Richard H. Pierce, Melrose, and Dr. William M. Parks, vice presidents; Fred P. Nickless, Jr., Beverly, secretary, and Mrs. John C. G. DeWolfe, necrologist.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

Symphony Gathering To Attract 1,000

PROVIDENCE—More than 1,000 members and many [illegible] of symphony orchestras be[illegible] expected to assemble [illegible] annual convention [illegible] Symphony Orch[illegible] League.

Representatives [illegible] orchestras from [illegible] United States [illegible] Hawaii have registered for the week-long work shop. The convention will last three days.

Boston Symphony members participating are: Richard Bergen, concert master; Joseph [illegible] Pasquale, violins; Doris Dwyer, flutist; Ralph Gomberg, oboist; Sino Cozza, clarinetist; and Sherman Walt, bassoon.

JUN 11 1956

ops For Monday

Boston Concerto. Saturday evening, with Harry Ellis Dickson conducting. Dorothy Bales will play the Violin Concerto No. 4 in D Minor by

Harvard Takes Pops

Tonight, which ushers in the final three weeks of Pops, and Thursday night will be closed to the public. The entire house has been taken over by the Harvard Class of 1931 and the National Confectioners Assn., respectively.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 184,973

JUN 9 1956

Final Three Weeks of Pops

The last three weeks of Boston Pops concerts begins on Monday evening, with six concerts scheduled during the coming week on Monday through Saturday evenings. The concerts of Monday and Thursday will be closed to the general public, the entire house [illegible] been taken [illegible] Harvard [illegible] National [illegible] of the [illegible] a violin- [illegible] Bernard [illegible] he first [illegible] kovsky's [illegible] Minor [illegible] nesday [illegible] e first [illegible] Piano [illegible] Friday [illegible] Mendelssohn G Minor Concerto. Saturday evening, with Harry Ellis Dickson conducting, Dorothy Bales will play the Violin Concerto No. 4 in D Minor by Vieux-[illegible]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BRIDGEPORT, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 61,159

JUN 10 1956

CONCERT FAVORITES

The Boston Pops orchestra, directed by Arthur Fiedler, will present a program of concert favorites Monday night at 8:15 o'clock over WRCA radio. The concert will open with the Prelude to Act III from "Lohengrin" by Wagner, Handel's Suite from "The Water Music," Gould's "American Salute," and the Suite from "Graduation Ball" by Strauss as the finale.

SEMENT
Attention m[illegible] college [illegible] dressed miss [illegible] the finest too.
from Paris to h[illegible] $$$ more)-one [illegible] flying in here [illegible] they were made, some irregulars [illegible] 43 short, 40 to 44 long, 40 to 44
[illegible] L JACKETS
[illegible] Fabric--Du[illegible]
[illegible] NAL VALUES MOND[illegible]
$39.[illegible]

[illegible] Week Opens

(Continued from First Page)

are Prof. John H. Finley, Jr., master of Eliot House, John U. Monro, director of the financial aid office, and McGeorge Bundy, dean of the faculty of arts and sciences, moderator.

At a Wednesday luncheon of the Harvard Foundation for Advanced Study and Research and the Harvard Law School Alumni Association, Justice Felix Frankfurter of the U. S. Supreme Court and Dr. James Phinney Baxter, president of Williams College will speak.

Alumni of the 25-year class of 1931 meet today at a reception at Harkness Commons. Tomorrow at 12:15, they will hold a memorial service for deceased members in Memorial Church. A Pops concert and dinner for the class is scheduled tomorrow night in Symphony Hall.

Harvard Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa holds its elections and exercises tomorrow. Speakers will be Chiang Yee and the poet, John Holmes.

SENIOR CLASS SPREAD

Harvard's senior class holds its spread Monday evening and holds a moonlight cruise Tuesday night. That afternoon, graduates of the Navy R.O.T.C. will be commissioned in Paine Music Hall.

Senior Class Day exercises are scheduled for Sever Quadrangle Wednesday morning, with joint commissioning ceremonies for Army and Air Force R. O. T. C. units at Paine Hall in the afternoon.

Alumni classes have luncheons on Wednesday, prior to the parade to Soldier's Field for the baseball game with Yale in the afternoon.

Commencement exercises Thursday are under the direction of Powell M. Cabot, university marshal. C. Douglas Dillon, Ambassador to France and member of the 25 year class will be chief marshal for the alumni.

Speakers at the alumni exercises in the afternoon include Gov. Herter, Dr. Pusey, Francis W. Hatch, president of the alumni association and two honorary degree recipients.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Sun
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,774

JUN 10 1956

Senior Week [illegible] Activities to a[illegible]

LOWELL—Members of t[illegible] graduating class at Lowell Teachers college participated in several social functions as a part of the traditional Senior week activities. Monday a lobster cookout at Corbetts pond was held. Committee members in charge of this affair were: Clemmie Flomp[illegible], Georgia Watson, Janet King, Iri[illegible] Rentzeperies, Jack Walker, Clair[illegible] Nanis and Frank Durant. Mar[illegible] McLaren was in charge of arrangements for the class trip to Symphony hall, Boston, on Wednesday for the performance of the Boston Pops. Heading the committee for the cook-out at Rye beach on Thursday were Mary Reynolds, Phyllis Knox and Joan Obey. Friday, senior students took part in the Class day activities and participated in the traditional ivy planting. Shirley Walsh and Mary Lou Riordan directed the plans for the moonlight cruise which was held on Saturday.

Committee members who assisted in plans for the annual senior formal which will be held Monday at the Andover Country club are: Phyllis Knox, Irene Beaupre, Mary Ellen Moore, Ann Louise Curran, Barbara Fairbanks, Jane Fredette, Iris Rentzeperies, Lorraine Cullen, Rita Davey, Nancy Richardson, Marjie Tapley, Jackie Hayes, Mary-Sue Reynolds, and Marie Geary.

Faculty commitments [illegible]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Kennebec Journal (m)
AUGUSTA, Me.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 12,986

JUN 11 1956

[illegible] ith their son, Lt. Herbert Gray, who is stationed there with the U.S. Army.

Miss Carolyn Wilson of 31 Greenville St., participated in the weekend festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening the entire group attended the Boston Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories and breakfast was served to all early risers. The annual luncheon for all classes was held at the Hotel Bradford.

JUN 10 1956

TUFTS AWARD RECIPIENTS—Distinguished service awards at the annual meeting of the Tufts Alumni Association yesterday went to (front) Chester Hayes of Waldoboro, Me.; Mrs. Clara Foster Fraser of Boston; Robert W. Meserve of Waltham; Dean George S. Miller, Association president who made the awards; and (rear) Dr. Nathan Brody of Laconia, N. H.; Guy C. Marion of Los Angeles; Dr. Charles E. Hatch of Wellesley, and William H. Griffiths of Tuckahoe, N. Y.

Graduation Exercises at Tufts Today

Fourteen honorary degrees and 893 degrees in course will be awarded at Tufts University's centennial commencement exercises, at 2:30 P. M., today. The degrees will be presented by Dr. Nils Y. Wessell, eighth president of the 104-year-old Medford institution.

John Moors Cabot, American ambassador to Sweden, will be the commencement speaker and an honorary degree recipient. He will speak on the subject: "It is Not Freedom that Makes You Free."

Honorary degrees also will be presented to Rear Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, [illegible]rman of the Atomic Energy Com[illegible]ssion and president of the Institute [illegible] Advanced Study at Princeton, N. J.; [illegible] Arthur S. Fleming, director of the [illegible]ce of Defense Mobilization and [illegible]sident-on-leave of Ohio Wesleyan [illegible]ersity; Dr. Henry Roy Aldrich, sec[illegible] Geological Society of [illegible] two Tufts graduates, Dr. [illegible] vice president and execu[illegible] of the Merck, Sharp & [illegible]ch Laboratories; and Dr. [illegible]lake, vice president of the [illegible] & Cable Co., of Cam[illegible]

[illegible]e of Doctor of Humane [illegible]norary) will be awarded [illegible]ch, musical director of the [illegible]mphony Orchestra; Dean [illegible] of Pemroke College; [illegible] American Boston architect [illegible]an of the board of the [illegible] Festival; and Weston How[illegible]e of the Boston Dispensary, [illegible]an of its rehabilitation com[illegible]

[illegible]v. Arthur W. Webster, min[illegible] the First Universalist Church [illegible] and a graduate of Crane The[illegible]chool of Tufts, will be honored [illegible] degree of Doctor of Divinity. [illegible] two veteran Tufts administrative officers also will be hon[illegible]. Joseph W. Morton, the [illegible]an of alumni secretaries in [illegible]merican colleges and universities, will be awarded the degree [illegible]f Master of Arts. He retires next month after 32 years as Tufts alumni secretary.

Clarence S. Cassidy, business manager of the Tufts schools of medicine and dental medicine, will receive the Bachelor of Business Administration degree.

The degree of Bachelor of Science, extra ordinem, will be presented to Theodore W. Hodges, president and treasurer of the Everett firm of White & Hodges, Inc., manufacturers of tanning oils.

Awards to 7 Tufts Alumni

Balou Hall, Tufts University's oldest building, was rededicated yesterday as a highlight of Alumni Day activities.. The hall, built in 1853, was recently renovated.

Dean George S. Miller, Alumni Association president, gave alumni distinguished service awards to seven alumni for service to the university.

Receiving them were Mrs. Clara Foster Fraser, Boston, Jackson '31; William H. Griffiths, class of 1928, of Tuckahoe, N. Y.; Chester Hayes, '06, Waldsboro, Me.; Dr. Nathan Brody, School of Medicine, '33, of Laconia, N. H.; Robert M. Meserve '31, of Waltham; Dr. Charles E. Hatch, School of Dental Medicine, '16, of Wellesley, and Guy E. Marion, '03, of Los Angeles, Calif.

Speaker for the 50-year-reunion class, of which Dean Miller was chairman, was F. B. Mackenzie, '06, of Wellesley.

Dean Miller was re-elected president of the Tufts Alumni Association. Other officers are: Dr. E. Marshall Hodkins, West Newton; Mrs. George D. Hall, Quincy; Richard H. Pierce, Melrose, and Dr. William M. Parks, vice presidents; Fred P. Nickless, Jr., Beverly, secretary, and Mrs. John C. G. DeWolfe, necrologist.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Eagle (m)
LAWRENCE, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 3,048

JUN 11 1956

About Town

Crystal Rebekah lodge, 85, I.O.O.F., will hold its annual memorial exercises at a meeting to be held Thursday at 7:45 p. m. in Od[illegible] Lucie[illegible] presi[illegible] mus[illegible] will [illegible] gor[illegible] week [illegible] Fishe[illegible] Bosto[illegible] group [illegible] Conc[illegible] urda[illegible] the [illegible] annu[illegible] was [illegible] of th[illegible]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

JUN 11 1956

Symphony Gatherin[illegible] To Attract 1,000

PROVIDENCE -- More th[illegible] 1,000 members and managers [illegible] symphony orchestras have sta[illegible]ed to assemble here [illegible] the a[illegible]nual convention of the Americ[illegible] Symphony Orchestra League.

Representatives of about [illegible] orchestras from throughout th[illegible] United States, Canada a[illegible] Hawaii have registered for th[illegible] week-long work shop. The con[illegible]vention will last three days.

Boston Symphony member[illegible] participating are: Richard Be[illegible]gen, concert master; Joseph [illegible] Pasquale, violist; doriot Dwyer [illegible] flutist; Ralph Gomberg, oboist; Sino Cioffi, clarenetist, an[illegible] Sherman Walt, bassoon[illegible]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

JUN 11 1956

Private Pops For Monday

The last three weeks of Boston Pops begin tonight. The concerts of Monday and Thursday will be closed to the public, the entire house having been taken over by the Harvard Class of 1931 and the National Confectioners Ass'n.

During the remainder of the week three pianists and a violinist will be soloists. Bernard Kritzman will play the first movement from Tchaikovsky's Piano Concerto in B Flat Minor on Tuesday evening; Wednesday, Leo Litwin will play the first movement from Gershwin's Piano Concerto in F; and on Friday John Geikie will play the Mendelssohn G Minor Concerto. Saturday evening, with Harry Ellis Dickson conducting, Dorothy Bales will play the Violin Concerto No. 4 in D Minor by [illegible]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Mercury (e)
MEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 6,842

JUN 11 1956

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

June 11

HONORARY DEGREE RECIPIENTS at Tufts yesterday were, left to right, seated, Dean Nancy Duke Lewis, Weston Howland, Rear Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, President Nils Y. Wessell, John M. Cabot, Charles Munch, Henry R. Aldrich, standing, Joseph W. Morton, Clarence C. Cassidy, Theodore W. Hodges, Arthur W. Webster, John T. Blake, Arthur S. Flemming, Max Tishler and Nelson W. Aldrich.

Cabot Says U.S. Can Find Lesson In Red Challenge

The challenge of Communism may prove to be beneficial to the United States, the American ambassador to Sweden said at the Tufts University centennial commencement.

"The very weight of its propaganda," said John Moors Cabot, "is impelling us to re-examine our own nation, to correct abuses, to bring what we actually do into accordance with our principles."

14 RECEIVE HONORARY DEGREES

Cabot, one of 14 honorary degree recipients, said "preaching morality to other nations is not a good substitute for practicing it one's self."

President Nils Y. Wessel conferred 893 degrees upon candidates from undergradute, graduate and professional schools.

Among the honorary degree recipients were:

Rear Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission; Charles Munch, musical director of the Boston Symphony, and Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization.

INDUSTRIALIST ALSO HONORED

Also, Nelson W. Aldrich, chairman of the board of the Boston Arts Festival; Weston Howland, trustee of the Boston Dispensary; and Rev. Arthur W. Webster, minister of the First Universalist Church of Salem.

...ist, to bring what we actually do into accord with our principles."

The ambassador was one of 14 receiving honorary degrees on the occasion of the Tufts centennial. Others were:

Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission; Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization; Dr. Henry Roy Aldrich, secretary of the Geological Society of America; Dr. Max Tishler, president of Merck, Sharp & Dohme Research Laboratories Division of Merck & Co.

Also Dr. John Twiss Blake, vice-president of the Simplex Wire & Cable Company; Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Nancy Duke Lewis, dean of Pembroke College, Brown University; Nelson W. Aldrich, Boston architect; Weston Howland, trustee of the Boston Dispensary; the Rev. Arthur W. Webster, pastor of First Universalist Church, Salem.

Also Joseph W. Morton, who retires in July after serving 32 years as Tufts alumni secretary; Clarence Cassidy, business manager and bursar for 40 years of Tufts Schools of Medicine and Dental Medicine; and Theodore W. Hodges, president of White & Hodges, Inc., Everett tanning oil firm.

...Wire-Cable Co., Cambridge. The latter two candidates are Tufts University graduates.

Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will receive an honorary doctorate of humane letters from the school.

The same honorary degree will be conferred on Dean Nancy Duke Lewis of Pembroke College; Nelson W. Aldrich, Boston architect and chairman of the Boston Arts Festival, and Weston Howland, ...

Various ways of raising money were discussed, and the date of ...

...mherst yesterday, said it would be "national ... for the United States ... aim at anything less than ... best educational system ... world."

William E. Park, president of Simmons College, said ...day that the only possible ... of atomic power will ...rom moral and spiritual ... at Simmons baccalau... exercises at Temple ...

...ent Nathan R. Pusey ... baccalaureate ... the traditional five-...

...re W. Hodges, Everett ...alist, also was honored, as were two Tufts officers. They were Joseph W. Morton, retiring alumni secretary, and Clarence S. Cassidy, business manager of the Schools of Medicine and Dental Medicine.

...Bishop John J. ... Worcester, a member ...Class of 1931 at Bos... delivered the bac... address at the Im... Conception Church ...ave.

...Cushing yester... the address at ...llege baccalaureate ...bkille's Church in ...

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Express (e)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 30,719

JUN 11 1956

TWO ON THE AISLE
By Harold L. Cail

Looking Ahead

A publicity release from Young & Rubicam's Bureau of Industrial Service is rather intriguing. It starts off saying that Wally Cox is returning to the television waves in the fall, but that's not the intriguing part, not in this corner anyway. What arouses attention here is the line "The performance combines the best of Harold Lloyd, Charles Chaplin, Tom Swift and Frank Merriwell." That's biting off quite a mouthfull, but time will tell. Cox's show will be "The Adventures Of Hiram Holiday," based on Paul Gallico stories of some years back, and is being written, produced and directed by Phil Rapp. Rapp is known for the screenplay of "Secret Life Of Walter Mitty," with Danny Kaye, and "Topper," and Baby Snooks, among others on radio and TV.

* * * *

They Make Wheels Go 'Round

Huff Photo

With the summer theater season just around the corner, scenes like this are typical at the various showshops. Here we see, left to right, Grant Miles, general manager of Lakewood, its theater, inn, cottages, and store, Edward Colin Dawson, new publicity representative there, and Henry Richards, who directs the productions. Miles, a baseball fan, is wearing his favorite hat and looking as much as possible like the late Miller Huggins of the New York Yankees. Dawson's faraway look is born of a notation on the clipboard he's holding of an impending deadline. Richards looks a little owlish because he's breaking in anew pair of specs. However, come Saturday night and the 56th opening, and everything will fall into place.

* * * * *

Cy Gets His Wish

Several weeks ago when I was in Boston, Cy Durgin of the Boston Globe was wishing he'd get into Russia with the Boston Symphony Orchestra which he's going to accompany on its European tour the latter part of the summer. Well, Friday, when I was there again, the news was in the morning paper that the Symphony would go to Russia for six days. Cy was quite elated. He and Rudy Elie, the Herald's music man, are believed the only critics who'll accompany the orchestra on its tour. I asked Cy to give the Kremlin a Bronx Cheer for me, but he said not until he had one foot over the border. When I mentioned previously about the Boston newspaper folks who were taking extended trips, I didn't know that Marjorie Adams, the Globe movie critic, also was Europe-bound. She's with Jack Hamilton and his wife.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News-Tribune (e)
WALTHAM, Mass.
Independent Republi...
Circ. 13,413

JUN 12 1956

Night at Pop...

The Boston chapters ... alumnae association of th... lege of Mt. St. Vincent, ... dale, N. Y., Mt. St. Mary's ... lege, Hooksett, N. H., and ... Rochelle College, New Roc... N. Y., will sponsor a nigh... the Boston Pops on Satur... Proceeds will benefit sch... ships and other college fun...

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Messenger (e)
NORWOOD, Mass.
Tri-Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,7...

JUN 1... 1956

Young G.O.P. Attend Pops

On Sunday evening, June 3, the Norwood Young Republican Club participated in the annual fund raising project of the Massachusetts Council of Young Republicans.

Anyone who has attended Republican Night at the Pops know what a popular affair it is when Republicans, young and old, gather from all over Massachusetts to listen to the wonderful and inspiring music of Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Pops co-chairmen from Norwood were Mrs. Richard Boch and Miss Mary Riley. Those attending from the Norwood Club were: Mr. and Mrs. Richard Boch, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Ham, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ellertson, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard D'Orlando, Miss Mary Riley and Mr. John Hanlon, Mrs. Ernest Paciorkowski, Mrs. Robert Hen...man and Miss Patricia Beck.

Thursday, June 21, was set for a "Stop and Shop" sale of food and used clothing, to be held on the "Green" near the monument at 2 p. m. A sale in August and a harvest supper also were planned.

The attendance was 26 and the weather was perfect.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

June 11

THE BOSTON DAILY GLOB

TUFTS HONORARY DEGREE RECIPIENTS—Honored at centennial Commencement were, front row, Dean Nancy Duke Lewis, Weston Howland, Adm Lewis L. Strauss, Tuft Pres. Nils Y. Wessell, Ambassador John M. Cabot, Dr. Charles Munch and Henry R. Aldrich. Rear row, Joseph W. Morton, Clarence C. Cassidy, Theodore W. Hodges, Arthur W. Webster, John T. Blake, Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, Max Tishler and Nelson W. Aldrich.

ghts Endangeri
arns at Tufts F

College, the University of New Hampshire, University of Maine, and the University of Vermont.

Baccalaureates, were held at

...mherst yesterday, said it would be "national for the United States Aim at anything less than Best educational system ...e world."

William E. Park, president of Simmons College, said day that the only possible of atomic power will rom moral and spiritual at Simmons baccalau- exercises at Temple ...ent Nathan R. Pusey ... baccalaureate ... the "traditional five-day ...

...cism." chats informally before the exercises with Prof. Kenneth MacKillop Jr., of 22 Brooks road, Medford, chairman of the department of music, who was Mr. Munch's Commencement escort.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Express (e)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 30,719

JUN 11 1956

Looking Ahead

A publicity release from Young & Rubicam's Bureau of Industrial Service is rather intriguing. It starts off saying that Wally Cox is returning to the television waves in the fall, but that's not the intriguing part, not in this corner anyway. What arouses attention here is the line "The performance combines the best of Harold Lloyd, Charles Chaplin, Tom Swift and Frank Merriwell." That's biting off quite a mouthfull, but time will tell. Cox's show will be "The Adventures Of Hiram Holiday," based on Paul Gallico stories of some years back, and is being written, produced and directed by Phil ...

JUN 11 1956

Cabot Says U.S. Can Find Lesson In Red Challenge

The challenge of Communism may prove to be beneficial to the United States, the American ambassador to Sweden said at the Tufts University centennial commencement.

"The very weight of its propapanda," said John Moors Cabot, "is impelling us to re-examine our own nation, to correct abuses, to bring what we actually do into accordance with our principles."

14 RECEIVE HONORARY DEGREES

Cabot, one of 14 honorary degree recipients, said "preaching morality to other nations is not a good substitute for practicing it one's self."

President Nils Y. Wessel conferred 893 degrees upon candidates from undergradute, graduate and professional schools.

Among the honorary degree recipients were:

Rear Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission; Charles Munch, musical director of the Boston Symphony, and Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, director of the office of Defense Mobilization.

INDUSTRIALIST ALSO HONORED

Also, Nelson W. Aldrich, chairman of the board of the Boston Arts Festival; Weston Howland, trustee of the Boston Dispensary; and Rev. Arthur W. Webster, minister of the First Universalist Church of Salem.

Theodore W. Hodges, Everett industrialist, also was honored, as were two Tufts officers. They were Joseph W. Morton, retiring alumni secretary, and Clarence S. Cassidy, business manager of the Schools of Medicine and Dental Medicine.

...shop John J. Worcester, a mem- Class of 1931 at Bos- delivered the bac- address at the Im- Conception Church ...ave.

...Cushing yester- ...d the address at ...llege baccalaureate ...bkill's Church in ist, to bring what we actually do into accord with our principles."

The ambassador was one of 14 receiving honorary degrees on the occasion of the Tufts centennial. Others were:

Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission; Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization; Dr. Henry Roy Aldrich, secretary of the Geological Society of America; Dr. Max Tishler, president of Merck, Sharp & Dohme Research Laboratories Division of Merck & Co.

Also Dr. John Twiss Blake, vice-president of the Simplex Wire & Cable Company; Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Nancy Duke Lewis, dean of Pembroke College, Brown University; Nelson W. Aldrich, Boston architect; Weston Howland, trustee of the Boston Dispensary; the Rev. Arthur W. Webster, pastor of First Universalist Church, Salem.

Also Joseph W. Morton, who retires in July after serving 32 years as Tufts alumni secretary; Clarence Cassidy, business manager and bursar for 40 years of Tufts Schools of Medicine and Dental Medicine; and Theodore W. Hodges, president of White & Hodges, Inc., Everett tanning oil firm.

...wire-Cable Co., Cambridge. The latter two candidates are Tufts University graduates.

Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will receive an honorary doctorate of humane letters from the school.

The same honorary degree will be conferred on Dean Nancy Duke Lewis of Pembroke College; Nelson W. Aldrich, Boston architect and chairman of the Boston Arts Festival, and Weston Howland, were played.

Various ways of raising money were discussed, and the date of

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Messenger (e)
NORWOOD, Mass.
Tri-Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,750

JUN 12 1956

Young G.O.P. Attend Pops

On Sunday evening, June 3, the Norwood Young Republican Club participated in the annual fund raising project of the Massachusetts Council of Young Republicans.

Anyone who has attended Republican Night at the Pops know what a popular affair it is when Republicans, young and old, gather from all over Massachusetts to listen to the wonderful and inspiring music of Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Pops co-chairmen from Norwood were Mrs. Richard Boch and Miss Mary Riley. Those attending from the Norwood Club were: Mr. and Mrs. Richard Boch, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Ham, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ellertson, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard D'Orlando, Miss Mary Riley and Mr. John Hanlon, Mrs. Ernest Pastorkowski, Mrs. Robert Hanman and Miss Patricia Beck.

Thursday, June 21, was set for a "Stop and Shop" sale of food and used clothing, to be held on the "Green" near the monument at 2 p. m. A sale in August and a harvest supper also were planned.

The attendance was 26 and the weather was perfect.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond

News-Tribune (e
WALTHAM, Mas
Independent Republi
Circ. 13,413

JUN 12 1956

Night at Pop

The Boston chapters of alumnae association of the lege of Mt. St. Vincent, dale, N. Y., Mt. St. Mary's lege, Hooksett, N. H., and Rochelle College, New Roch N. Y., will sponsor a nigh the Boston Pops on Satur Proceeds will benefit sche ship and other college fun

...ed by ...estra; ...Chop- ...azilian ...Novaes. ...as ser- ...sidence, ...business ...records

...Some regard for political lines also. However, funny business is too be expected. New Hampshire is too good a state to stand for it. The proposed change is in the interest of efficiency, and one must suppose that its possible benefits are such as to enlist firm, if, here and there amongst communities that will lose representative individuality, some- what grudging support.

Graduation Rites

West Must Win Friends, Editor Tells UNH Grads

WALTHAM, N. H., June 10—[illegible] Ward Weeks, edi[illegible]

EDFORD (MASS.) DAILY MERCURY, MONDAY, JUNE 1[illegible]

MUSICAL INTERLUDE at Tufts Centennial Commencement Sunday — Charles Munch, right, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who received the honorary degree of humane letters and was cited by President Nils Y. Wessell as "artistic citizen of the world," chats informally before the exercises with Prof. Kenneth MacKillop Jr., of 22 Brooks road, Medford, chairman of the department of music, who was Mr. Munch's Commencement escort.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Express (e)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 30,719

JUN 1 1 1956

TWO ON THE AISLE

BY HAROLD L. CAIL

Looking Ahead

A publicity release from Young & Rubicam's Bureau of Industrial Service is rather intriguing. It starts off saying that Wally Cox is returning to the television waves in the fall, but that's not the intriguing part, not in this corner anyway. What arouses attention here is the line "The performance combines the best of Harold Lloyd, Charles Chaplin, Tom Swift and Frank Merriwell." That's biting off quite a mouthfull, but time will tell. Cox's show will be "The Adventures Of Hiram Holiday," based on Paul Gallico stories of some years back, and is being written, produced and directed by Phil [illegible]

[illegible] Hertzer was the speaker yeste[illegible] day at Norwich University's 137th commencement. He r[illegible] ceived an honorary doctor [illegible] laws degree from Maj.-Ge[illegible] Ernest N. Harmon, president [illegible] the military school.

[illegible] counter-revolution were ident[illegible] fied as retired generals Jua[illegible] Jose Valle and Raul Tanco, wh[illegible] had been active in the Pero[illegible] government. Arrest bulletin[illegible] were sent out for them.

[illegible] ferri[illegible]

The revolt, which began at [illegible] 11 p.m. Saturday, lasted only 12 hours.

The heaviest fighting was at La Plata, the provincial capital 35 miles southeast of here, where Vice-President Rear Adm. Isaac F. Rojas sent planes to bomb and [illegible]

[illegible] Vermont.

[illegible] ble Baccalaureates, were held at [illegible]

[illegible] nounced the "summary trials a[illegible] continuing."

The executions were being ca[illegible] ried out under martial law im[illegible] posed throughout Argentina. D[illegible] crees by Aramburu empowere[illegible] any loyal officer to try an[illegible] persons carrying unauthorize[illegible] weapons, disobeying police order[illegible] or "demonstrating suspicious behavior."

At least one leader of the up[illegible] rising was reported executed and another captured.

Former army Capt. Adolph Cesar Philippeaux, leader of the insurrection at Santa Rosa, was captured and awaiting trial.

Retired Lt.-Col. Oscar Lorenzo Cogorno, leader of the revolt at La Plata, was among 14 rebels executed yesterday after his capture in Buenos Aires province.

The two "big" leaders of the [illegible]

Circ. 166,512

JUN 1 1 1956

U.S. U[illegible]

By a Staff Writer of The [illegible]

Medford, Mass.

"Preaching morality to other nations is not a good substitute for practicing it one's self," John Moors Cabot, United States Ambassador to Sweden, told Tufts University graduates at Tufts 100th commencement ceremonies.

"Let us practice what we preach when we talk about rights," he said. "The road to chaos and subjugation may well be paved by those who demand what they consider inalienable rights without thinking of the consequences.

"It is a curious phenomenon," he continued, "that today free nations are more inclined to criticize relative minor breaches of democratic principles in other free countries than crimes in Communist countries so staggering they numb the imagination."

The ambassador, who has on three occasions lived under Communist rule, urged that "the very weight of Communist propaganda is impelling us to reexamine our own nation, to correct abuses where they exist, to bring what we actually do into accord with our principles."

The ambassador was one of 14 receiving honorary degrees on the occasion of the Tufts centennial. Others were:

Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission; Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization; Dr. Henry Roy Aldrich, secretary of the Geological Society of America; Dr. Max Tishler, president of Merck, Sharp & Dohme Research Laboratories Division of Merck & Co.

Also Dr. John Twiss Blake, vice-president of the Simplex Wire & Cable Company; Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Nancy Duke Lewis, dean of Pembroke College, Brown University; Nelson W. Aldrich, Boston architect; Weston Howland, trustee of the Boston Dispensary; the Rev. Arthur W. Webster, pastor of First Universalist Church, Salem.

Also Joseph W. Morton, who retires in July after serving 32 years as Tufts alumni secretary; Clarence Cassidy, business manager and bursar for 40 years of Tufts Schools of Medicine and Dental Medicine; and Theodore W. Hodges, president of White & Hodges, Inc., Everett tanning oil firm.

[illegible] Wire-Cable Co., Cambridge. The latter two candidates are Tufts University graduates.

Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will receive [illegible] honorary doctorate of humane letters from the school.

The same honorary degree will be conferred on Dean Nancy Duke Lewis of Pembroke College; Nelson W. Aldrich, Boston architect and chairman of the Boston Arts [illegible] and Weston Howland, [illegible]

NOMINEES—To be conferred [illegible] at Tufts University's centen[illegible] left: Top, John Moors Cabot, [illegible] eodore W. Hodges, Weston [illegible] Lewis, Lewis L. Strauss, the [illegible] son W. Aldrich.

[illegible]es

[illegible]t at Tufts [illegible] Afternoon

[illegible] of the school and president [illegible] Everett tanning oil com[illegible], will be awarded an hon[illegible] degree of bachelor of [illegible]ce, extra ordinem.

[illegible] mherst yesterday, said [illegible] it would be "national [illegible] for the United States [illegible] Aim at anything less than [illegible] best educational system [illegible] world."

[illegible] William E. Park, presi[illegible] of Simmons College, said [illegible] day that the only possible [illegible] of atomic power will [illegible] from moral and spiritual [illegible] at Simmons baccalau[illegible] exercises at Temple [illegible] meeting house.

[illegible] ent Nathan R. Pusey [illegible] the baccalaureate [illegible] to open the traditional [illegible] five-day program for [illegible] uming alumni and the [illegible] ree candidates.

College opened its [illegible] ement week activities [illegible] when 600 members [illegible] duating class attened [illegible] k mass in the Bapst [illegible] auditorium.

[illegible] the Bishop John J. [illegible] Worcester, a mem[illegible] Class of 1931 at Bos[illegible] delivered the bac[illegible] address at the Im[illegible] Conception Church [illegible] ave.

[illegible] Cushing yester[illegible] the address at [illegible] llege baccalaureate [illegible] bkille's Church in [illegible]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Messenger (e)
NORWOOD, Mass.
Tri-Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,750

JUN 1 2 1956

Young G.O.P. Attend Pops

On Sunday evening, June 3, the Norwood Young Republican Club participated in the annual fund raising project of the Massachusetts Council of Young Republicans.

Anyone who has attended Republican Night at the Pops know what a [illegible] affair it is when Republicans, young and old, gather from [illegible] Massachusetts to listen to the wonderful and inspiring music of Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Pops co-chairmen from Norwood were Mrs. Richard Boch and Miss Mary Riley. Those attending from the Norwood Club were: Mr. and Mrs. Richard Boch, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Ham, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ellertson, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard D'Orlando, Miss Mary Riley and Mr. John Hanlon, Mrs. Ernest Pacforkowski, Mrs. Robert [illegible] man and Miss Patricia Beck.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News-Tribune (e)
WALTHAM, Mass.
Independent Republi[illegible]
Circ. 13,413

JUN 1 2 1956

Night at Po[illegible]

The Boston chapters [illegible] alumnae association of th[illegible] lege of Mt. St. Vincent, [illegible] dale, N. Y., Mt. St. Mary's [illegible] lege, Hooksett, N. H., and [illegible] Rochelle College, New Roc[illegible] N. Y., will sponsor a nig[illegible] the Boston Pops on Satu[illegible] Proceeds will benefit sch[illegible] ship[illegible] and other college fu[illegible]

Thursday, June 21, was set for a "Stop and Shop" sale of food and used clothing, to be held on the "Green" near the monument at 2 p. m. A sale in August and a harvest supper also were planned.

The attendance was 26 and the weather was perfect.

Various ways of raising money were discussed, and the date of [illegible]

UNH Graduation Rites

West Must Win Friends, Editor Tells UNH Grads

DURHAM, N. H., June 10—[illegible] ward Weeks, edi[illegible]

MUSICAL INTERLUDE at Tufts Centennial Commencement Sunday - Charles Munch, right, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who received the honorary degree of humane letters and was cited by President Nils Y. Wessell as "artistic citizen of the world," chats informally before the exercises with Prof. Kenneth MacKillop Jr., of 22 Brooks road, Medford, chairman of the department of music, who was Mr. Munch's Commencement escort.

EDFORD (MASS.) DAILY MERCURY, MONDAY, JUNE 11

The revolt, which began at shortly after midnight and 11 p.m. Saturday, lasted only 12 hours.

The heaviest fighting was at La Plata, the provincial capital 35 miles southeast of here, where Vice-President Rear Adm. Isaac F. Rojas sent planes to bomb and peri was

The executions were being ca ried out under martial law in posed throughout Argentina. D crees by Aramburu empowere any loyal officer to try an persons carrying unauthorize weapons, disobeying police order or "demonstrating suspicious behavior."

At least one leader of the up rising was reported executed and another captured.

Former army Capt. Adolph Cesar Philippeaux, leader of the insurrection at Santa Rosa, was captured and awaiting trial.

Retired Lt.-Col. Oscar Lorenzo Cogorno, leader of the revolt at La Plata, was among 14 rebels executed yesterday after his capture in Buenos Aires province.

The two "big" leaders of the counter-revolution were identified as retired generals Juan Jose Valle and Raul Tanco, who had been active in the Peron government. Arrest bulletins were sent out for them.

Circ. 166,812

JUN 11 1956

U.S. Ur

By a Staff Writer of The

Medford, Mass.

"Preaching morality to other nations is not a good substitute for practicing it one's self," John Moors Cabot, United States Ambassador to Sweden, told Tufts University graduates at Tufts 100th commencement ceremonies.

"Let us practice what we preach when we talk about rights," he said. "The road to chaos and subjugation may well be paved by those who demand what they consider inalienable rights without thinking of the consequences.

"It is a curious phenomenon," he continued, "that today free nations are more inclined to criticize relative minor breaches of democratic principles in other free countries than crimes in Communist countries so staggering they numb the imagination."

The ambassador, who has on three occasions lived under Communist rule, urged that "the very weight of Communist propaganda is impelling us to reexamine our own nation, to correct abuses where they exist, to bring what we actually do into accord with our principles."

The ambassador was one of 14 receiving honorary degrees on the occasion of the Tufts centennial. Others were:

Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission; Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization; Dr. Henry Roy Aldrich, secretary of the Geological Society of America; Dr. Max Tishler, president of Merck, Sharp & Dohme Research Laboratories Division of Merck & Co.

Also Dr. John Twiss Blake, vice-president of the Simplex Wire & Cable Company; Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Nancy Duke Lewis, dean of Pembroke College, Brown University; Nelson W. Aldrich, Boston architect; Weston Howland, trustee of the Boston Dispensary; the Rev. Arthur W. Webster, pastor of First Universalist Church, Salem.

Also Joseph W. Morton, who retires in July after serving 32 years as Tufts alumni secretary; Clarence Cassidy, business manager and bursar for 40 years of Tufts Schools of Medicine and Dental Medicine; and Theodore W. Hodges, president of White & Hodges, Inc., Everett tanning oil firm.

Baccalaureates, were held at Vermont.

NOMINEES—To be conferred at Tufts University's centen- left: Top, John Moors Cabot, eodore W. Hodges, Weston Lewis, Lewis L. Strauss, the lson W. Aldrich.

es

t at Tufts

Afternoon

of the school and president n Everett tanning oil com- , will be awarded an hon- y degree of bachelor of ce, extra ordinem.

mherst yesterday, said it would be "national for the United States. Aim at anything less than est educational system e world."

William E. Park, president of Simmons College, said day that the only possible of atomic power will from moral and spiritual at Simmons baccalau- exercises at Temple Meeting House.

ent Nathan R. Pusey baccalaureate to open the traditional five-day program for urning alumni and the ree candidates.

College opened its ement week activities when 600 members duating class attened k mass in the Bapst uditorium.

ght Bishop John J. Worcester, a mem- Class of 1931 at Bos- delivered the bac- address at the Im- Conception Church ave.

Cushing yester- d the address at llege baccalaureate bkille's Church in

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Messenger (e)
NORWOOD, Mass.
Tri-Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,750

JUN 12 1956

Young G.O.P. Attend Pops

On Sunday evening, June 3, the Norwood Young Republican Club participated in the annual fund raising project of the Massachusetts Council of Young Republicans.

Anyone who has attended Republican Night at the Pops know what a popular affair it is when Republicans, young and old, gather from all over Massachusetts to listen to the wonderful and inspiring music of Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Pops co-chairmen from Norwood were Mrs. Richard Boch and Miss Mary Riley. Those attending from the Norwood Club were: Mr. and Mrs. Richard Boch, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Ham, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eilertson, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard D'Orlando, Miss Mary Riley and Mr. John Hanlon, Mrs. Ernest Paciorkowski, Mrs. Robert Hemman and Miss Patricia Beck.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Express (e)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 30,719

JUN 11 1956

TWO ON THE AISLE

By Harold L. Cail

Looking Ahead

A publicity release from Young & Rubicam's Bureau of Industrial Service is rather intriguing. It starts off saying that Wally Cox is returning to the television waves in the fall, but that's not the intriguing part, not in this corner anyway. What arouses attention here is the line "The performance combines the best of Harold Lloyd, Charles Chaplin, Tom Swift and Frank Merriwell." That's biting off quite a mouthfull, but time will tell. Cox's show will be "The Adventures Of Hiram Holiday," based on Paul Gallico stories of some years back, and is being written, produced and directed by Phil [illegible]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News-Tribune (e)
WALTHAM, Mass.
Independent Republi
Circ. 13,413

JUN 12 1956

Night at Po

The Boston chapters alumnae association of th lege of Mt. St. Vincent, dale, N. Y., Mt. St. Mary' lege, Hooksett, N. H., and Rochelle College, New Roc N. Y., will sponsor a nig the Boston Pops on Satu Proc will benefit sch ship d other college fu

Various ways of raising money were discussed, and the date of

Thursday, June 21, was set for a "Stop and Shop" sale of food and used clothing, to be held on the "Green" near the monument at 2 p. m. A sale in August and a harvest supper also were planned.

The attendance was 26 and the weather was perfect.

Graduation Rites

West Must Win Friends, Editor Tells UNH Grads

DURHAM, N. H., June 10—Ed- were at their worst, many Ameri- Kenny Weeks, editor of the Atlantic can writers were appalled and said here today that silenced,"

EDFORD (MASS.) DAILY MERCURY, MONDAY, JUNE

MUSICAL INTERLUDE at Tufts Centennial Commencement Sunday — Charles Munch, right, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who received the honorary degree of humane letters and was cited by President Nils Y. Wessell as "artistic citizen of the world," chats informally before the exercises with Prof. Kenneth MacKillop Jr., of 22 Brooks road, Medford, chairman of the department of music, who was Mr. Munch's Commencement escort.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Express (e)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 30,719

JUN 11 1956

Looking Ahead

A publicity release from Young & Rubicam's Bureau of Industrial Service is rather intriguing. It starts off saying that Wally Cox is returning to the television waves in the fall, but that's not the intriguing part, not in this corner anyway. What arouses attention here is the line "The performance combines the best of Harold Lloyd, Charles Chaplin, Tom Swift and Frank Merriwell." That's biting off quite a mouthfull, but time will tell. Cox's show will be "The Adventures Of Hiram Holiday," based on Paul Gallico stories of some years back, and is being written, produced and directed by Phil R...

...ne House ... some regard for political lines also.

However, funny business is not to be expected. New Hampshire is too good a state to stand for it. The proposed change is in the interest of efficiency, and one must suppose that its possible benefits are such as to enlist firm, if, here and there amongst communities that will lose representative individuality, some-what grudging support.

TUFTS HONORARY DEGREE NOMINEES—To be conferred honorary degrees this afternoon at Tufts University's centennial commencement are, from left: Top, John Moors Cabot, Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, Theodore W. Hodges, Weston Howard. Bottom, Nancy Duke Lewis, Lewis L. Strauss, the Rev. Arthur W. Webster and Nelson W. Aldrich.

14 Honorary Degrees

Commencement at Tufts Is Set for This Afternoon

The centennial commencement exercises of Tufts University will be staged this afternoon on the main campus in a setting of rich pageantry and tradition of the 104-year-old school.

Dr. Nils Y. Wessell, eighth president of the college, will confer 14 honorary degrees and more than 800 degrees on undergraduate, graduate and professional school students during the colorful ceremonies, starting at 2:30 p. m.

John Moors Cabot, United States ambassador to Sweden, will deliver the commencement address, and will receive an honorary doctorate of science. His topic will be, "It Is Not Freedom That Makes You Free."

Rear Admiral Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the United States Atomic Energy Commission and president of the board of trustees of the Institute for Advanced Studies at Princeton, and Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization, also will receive honorary doctorates of science.

Other Doctorates

Similar honorary degrees also will be awarded to Dr. Henry Roy Aldrich, secretary of the Geological Society of America; Dr. Max Tishler, vice president of Merck, Sharp-Dohme Research Laboratories, and Dr. John Twiss Blake, vice president of Simplex Wire-Cable Co., Cambridge. The latter two candidates are Tufts University graduates.

Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will receive an honorary doctorate of humane letters from the school.

The same honorary degree will be conferred on Dean Nancy Duke Lewis of Pembroke College; Nelson W. Aldrich, Boston architect and chairman of the Boston Arts ... and Weston Howland, ...

uate of the school and president of an Everett tanning oil company, will be awarded an honorary degree of bachelor of science, extra ordinem.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News-Tribune (e
WALTHAM, Mass
Independent Republi
Circ. 13,413

JUN 12 1956

Night at Pop

The Boston chapters ... alumnae association of th... lege of Mt. St. Vincent, ... dale, N. Y., Mt. St. Mary's ... lege, Hooksett, N. H., and ... Rochelle College, New Roch... N. Y., will sponsor a nigh... the Boston Pops on Satur... Proceeds will benefit sch... ship... d other college fun...

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Messenger (e)
NORWOOD, Mass.
Tri-Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,750

JUN 12 1956

Young G.O.P. Attend Pops

On Sunday evening, June 3, the Norwood Young Republican Club participated in the annual fund raising project of the Massachusetts Council of Young Republicans.

Anyone who has attended Republican Night at the Pops know what a popular affair it is when Republicans, young and old, gather from all over Massachusetts to listen to the wonderful and inspiring music of Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Pops co-chairmen from Norwood were Mrs. Richard Boch and Miss Mary Riley. Those attending from the Norwood Club were: Mr. and Mrs. Richard Boch, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Ham, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ellertson, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard D'Orlando, Miss Mary Riley and Mr. John Hanlon, Mrs. Ernest Paciorkowski, Mrs. Robert ... man and Miss Patricia Beck.

Thursday, June 21, was set for a "Stop and Shop" sale of food and used clothing, to be held on the "Green" near the monument at 2 p. m. A sale in August and a harvest supper also were planned.

The attendance was 26 and the weather was perfect.

Various ways of raising money were discussed, and the date of ... were played.

...mherst yesterday, said it would be "national ... for the United States ...m at anything less than ...est educational system ... world."

William E. Park, president of Simmons College, said ...day that the only possible ... of atomic power will ...om moral and spiritual ... at Simmons baccalau... exercises at Temple ...eeting House.

...ent Nathan R. Pusey ... baccalaureate ... the traditional five-day program for ...uming alumni and the ...ee candidates.

College opened its ...ment week activities when 600 members ...duating class attened ... mass in the Bapst ...ditorium.

...ht Bishop John J. ... Worcester, a mem... Class of 1931, at Bos... delivered the bac... address at the Im... Conception Church ...ave.

... Cushing yester... ...d the address at ...llege baccalaureate ...bkillop Church in ...

...ts Endangeri...

...arns at Tufts ...

...ub- College, the University of New ... by Hampshire, University of ...hey Maine, and the University of ...ble Vermont.

Baccalaureates, were held at ...

...ed Chestnut Hill

...ed out under martial ... The executions were ... continuing."

...posed throughout Argen... ...crees by Aramburu el... ...any loyal officer to ... persons carrying una... weapons, disobeying po... or "demonstrating ... behavior."

At least one leader ... rising was reported ... and another captured.

Former army Capt. ... Cesar Philippeaux, lead... insurrection at Santa ... captured and awaiting ... Retired Lt.-Col. ... Volt at La Plata, was ... renzo Cogorno, leader ... rebels executed yeste... his capture in Bue... provinces.

The two "big" lead...

The revolt, which began at shortly after midnight ... 11 p.m. Saturday, lasted only 12 hours.

The heaviest fighting was at La Plata, the provincial capital 35 miles southeast of here, where Vice-President Rear Adm. Isaac F. Bojes sent planes to bomb and ...

...Bank Stocks

	Bid	Asked
Bk of Am Trust 1.60	37¼	39¼
Bk of NY 10a	300	307
Bankers Tr 2.60	63¼	67¼
Bost Nat 1.20	25	27
Chase Nat 1.20	41¼	43¼
Chem Corn 1.20	41¼	43¼
Chem Hanover 1.20	41¼	43¼
Colonial 1.20	25¼	27¼
Commonwealth 1.20	25¼	27¼
Continental 1.20	25¼	27¼
Corn Exch 1.20	41¼	43¼
Empire 1.20	25¼	27¼
First Nat 1.20	41¼	43¼
Fulton 1.20	25¼	27¼
Guaranty 1.20	41¼	43¼
Hanover 1.20	41¼	43¼
Irving 1.20	25¼	27¼
Manufacturers 1.20	41¼	43¼
Manufacturers Tr 2.60	63¼	67¼
Marine Mid 1.20	25¼	27¼
Nat City 1.20	41¼	43¼
Nat Shawmut 1.20	25¼	27¼
New Amsterdam 1.20	25¼	27¼
Penn 1.20	25¼	27¼
Public 1.20	25¼	27¼
Sterling Nat 1.20	25¼	27¼
Tr Co of N A 1.20	25¼	27¼
Westchester 1.20	25	30
Bankers Tr 2.60	63¼	67¼
Boston Safe Dep 2	60	65
Boston Tr 1.60	42	45
Bost Safe Dep 2	60¾	64¾
Bost Tr Co 1.60	45	48
Brookline Tr 2	50¾	53¾
Bunker Hill 2	71½	76½
Bunker Hill Dep M 2	50¾	53¾
Bd Accid 1.80	45	48
Commercial 1	71½	76½
Commonwealth 2	57½	60½
Commonwealth Dep M 2	50¾	53¾
Commonwealth Tr 1.60	42	45
Conn Gen Life 1.20	25¼	27¼
Conn Mut Life 1.20	25¼	27¼
Conn Tr 1.20	25¼	27¼
Continental Ill 1.20	25¼	27¼
Crocker 1.20	25¼	27¼
Cuyahoga 1.20	25¼	27¼
Detroit 1.20	25¼	27¼
Detroit Tr 1.20	25¼	27¼
Dime 1.20	25¼	27¼
Eq Life 1.20	25¼	27¼
Fidelity Phila 1.20	25¼	27¼
First Nat Bost 2	60	63
First Nat Chic 2	60	63
First Nat Det 1.20	25¼	27¼
First Nat Pitts 1.20	25¼	27¼
First Nat Tr 1.20	25¼	27¼
Gen Amer Life 1.20	25¼	27¼
Gen Amer Tr 1.20	25¼	27¼
Girard Tr 1.20	25¼	27¼
Grant Life 1.20	25¼	27¼
Hartford Fire 2	60	63
Home Life 1.20	25¼	27¼
Home Life Ins 1.20	25¼	27¼
Home Life Tex 1.40	25¼	27¼
Ins Co N A 1.20	25¼	27¼
Jersey Ins 1.20	25¼	27¼
Lincoln Nat 1.20	25¼	27¼
Liberty Nat 1.20	25¼	27¼
Life Ins Co Va 1.20	25¼	27¼
Life Ins Co Ga 1.20	25¼	27¼
Life Ins Co Tex 1.20	25¼	27¼
Life Ins Co Va 1.20	25¼	27¼
Life Ins Co Wis

Many NE Graduation Rites

West Must Win Friends, Editor Tells UNH Grads

DURHAM, N. H., June 10—Edward Weeks, editor of the Atlantic Monthly, said here today that writers were at their worst, many Ameri-

EDFORD (MASS.) DAILY MERCURY, MONDAY, JUN

MUSICAL INTERLUDE at Tufts Centennial Commencement Sunday — Charles Munch, right, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who received the honorary degree of humane letters and was cited by President Nils Y. Wessell as "artistic citizen of the world," chats informally before the exercises with Prof. Kenneth MacKillop Jr., of 22 Brooks road, Medford, chairman of the department of music, who was Mr. Munch's Commencement escort.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Express (e)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 30,719

JUN 1 1 1956

Looking Ahead

A publicity release from Young & Rubicam's Bureau of Industrial Service is rather intriguing. It starts off saying that Wally Cox is returning to the television waves in the fall, but that's not the intriguing part, not in this corner anyway. What arouses attention here is the line "The performance combines the best of Harold Lloyd, Charles Chaplin, Tom Swift and Frank Merriwell." That's biting off quite a mouthfull, but time will tell. Cox's show will be "The Adventures Of Hiram Holiday," based on Paul Gallico stories of some years back, and is being written, produced and directed by Phil Ra

TUFTS HONORARY DEGREE NOMINEES—To be conferred honorary degrees this afternoon at Tufts University's centennial commencement are, from left: Top, John Moors Cabot, Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, Theodore W. Hodges, Weston Howard. Bottom, Nancy Duke Lewis, Lewis L. Strauss, the Rev. Arthur W. Webster and Nelson W. Aldrich.

14 Honorary Degrees

Commencement at Tufts Is Set for This Afternoon

The centennial commencement exercises of Tufts University will be staged this afternoon on the main campus in a setting of rich pageantry and tradition of the 104-year-old school.

Dr. Nils Y. Wessell, eighth president of the college, will confer 14 honorary degrees and more than 800 degrees on undergraduate, graduate and professional school students during the colorful ceremonies, starting at 2:30 p. m.

John Moors Cabot, United States ambassador to Sweden, will deliver the commencement address, and will receive an honorary doctorate of science. His topic will be, "It Is Not Freedom That Makes You Free."

Rear Admiral Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the United States Atomic Energy Commission and president of the board of trustees of the Institute for Advanced Studies at Princeton, and Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization, also will receive honorary doctorates of science.

Other Doctorates

Similar honorary degrees also will be awarded to Dr. Henry Roy Aldrich, secretary of the Geological Society of America; Dr. Max Tishler, vice president of Merck, Sharp-Dohme Research Laboratories, and Dr. John Twiss Blake, vice president of Simplex Wire-Cable Co., Cambridge. The latter two candidates are Tufts University graduates.

Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will receive an honorary doctorate of humane letters from the school.

The same honorary degree will be conferred on Dean Nancy Duke Lewis of Pembroke College; Nelson W. Aldrich, Boston architect and chairman of the Boston Arts Festival, and Weston Howland, a trustee of the Boston Dispensary and chairman of its rehabilitation committee.

The Rev. Arthur W. Webster, minister of the First Universalist Church of Salem, and a graduate of Crane Theological School of Tufts University, will receive a doctorate of divinity.

The Tufts University administrative officers also will be honored during the exercises. They are Joseph W. Morton, dean of alumni secretaries of colleges, and Clarence S. Cassidy, business manager of Tufts schools of medicine and dental medicine. Both will receive honorary master of arts degrees.

Theodore W. Hodges, a grad-

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond

News-Tribune (e
WALTHAM, Mas
Independent Republi
Circ. 13,413

JUN 1 2 1956

Night at Pop

The Boston chapters o alumnae association of th
lege of Mt. St. Vincent, dale, N. Y., Mt. St. Mary's lege, Hooksett, N. H., and Rochelle College, New Roch
N. Y., will sponsor a nigh
the Boston Pops on Satur
Proceeds will benefit scho ship and other college fun

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Messenger (e)
NORWOOD, Mass.
Tri-Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,700

JUN 1 2 1956

Young G.O.P. Attend Pops

On Sunday evening, June 3, the Norwood Young Republican Club participated in the annual fund raising project of the Massachusetts Council of Young Republicans.

Anyone who has attended Republican Night at the Pops know what a popular affair it is when Republicans, young and old, gather from all over Massachusetts to listen to the wonderful and inspiring music of Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Pops co-chairmen from Norwood were Mrs. Richard Boch and Miss Mary Riley. Those attending from the Norwood Club were: Mr. and Mrs. Richard Boch, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Ham, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ellertson, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard D'Orlando, Miss Mary Riley and Mr. John Hanlon, Mrs. Ernest Paciorkowski, Mrs. Robert Hagman and Miss Patricia Beck.

Thursday, June 21, was set for a "Stop and Shop" sale of food and used clothing, to be held on the "Green" near the monument at 2 p. m. A sale in August and a harvest supper also were planned.

The attendance was 26 and the weather was perfect.

Graduation Rites

West Must Win Friends, Editor Tells UNH Grads

N. H., June 10—Ed-editor of the Atlantic were at their

MEDFORD (MASS.) DAILY MERCURY, MONDAY, JUNE 11

MUSICAL INTERLUDE at Tufts Centennial Commencement Sunday — Charles Munch, right, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who received the honorary degree of humane letters and was cited by President Nils Y. Wessell as "artistic citizen of the world," chats informally before the exercises with Prof. Kenneth MacKillop Jr., of 22 Brooks road, Medford, chairman of the department of music, who was Mr. Munch's Commencement escort.

Boswell Lodged In Nevada Jail

CARSON CITY, Nev., June 9 (AP)—Nevada authorities lodged bartender William E. Boswell in jail here today after a cross-country trip from Vermont.

The 35-year-old Boswell faces murder charges in the strangulation of Philadelphia socialite Anne Harris Van Ryne, 29, whose nude body was found in a Carson City apart-

and Chestnut-11:11

Abuse of Rights Endangeri
Diplomat Warns at Tufts

The road to chaos and subjugation may well be paved by people who demand what they consider their inalienable rights without thinking of the consequences, John Moore Cabot, American ambassador to Sweden, said yesterday at commencement exercises of Tufts University.

Exercises were also held at Brandeis University, Amherst College, Dartmouth College, Springfield College, Williams College, the University of New Hampshire, University of Maine, and the University of Vermont.

Baccalaureates, were held at Harvard University, Boston College, Radcliffe College, Regis College, and Simmons College.

Overlook Red Crimes

"Let us practice what we preach when we talk of rights," ambassador Cabot said. "They are not rights for ourselves but privileges, if they are not enjoyed by others.

'It is a curious phenomenon that today free nations are more inclined to criticize relative minor breaches of democratic principles in other free countries than crimes in communist countries so staggering that they numb the imagination."

greater will they have to be "and the greater the risk that they may come too late to be of any use."

Killian Speaker

Dean Lawrence Rose of the General Theological Seminary of New York city delivered the baccalaureate address for Radcliffe College seniors in Memorial Church of Harvard University.

Speaking at the 185th commencement at Amherst College, James R. Killian, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Techonolgy, mherst yesterday, said it would be "national for the United States Am at anything less than Aest educational system

William E. Park, presi- of Simmons College, said rday that the only possible l of atomic power will from moral and spiritual at Simmons baccalau- exercises at Temple Meeting House. dent Nathan R. Pusey ed baccalaureate to open the traditional d five-day program for turning alumni and the 3000 degree candidates.

Boston College opened its commencement week activities yesterday when 600 members of the graduating class attened a 9 o'clock mass in the Bapst Library Auditorium.

Last night Bishop John J. Wright of Worcester, a member of the Class of 1931 at Boston College delivered the baccalaureate address at the Immaculate Conception Church on Harrison ave.

Archbishop Cushing yesterday delivered the address at the Regis College baccalaureate at St. Columbkille's Church in Brighton.

Seven Degrees Given

Honorary degrees were conferred on Mr. Acheson and on six other notables. Bachelor of Arts degrees were conferred on the 193 members of the gradu-

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Express (e)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 30,719

JUN 11 1956

TWO ON THE AISLE
BY HAROLD L. CAIL

Looking Ahead

A publicity release from Young & Rubicam's Bureau of Industrial Service is rather intriguing. It starts off saying that Wally Cox is returning to the television waves in the fall, but that's not the intriguing part, not in this corner anyway. What arouses attention here is the line "The performance combines the best of Harold Lloyd, Charles Chaplin, Tom Swift and Frank Merriwell." That's biting off quite a mouthfull, but time will tell. Cox's show will be "The Adventures Of Hiram Holiday," based on Paul Gallico stories of some years back, and is being written, produced and directed by Phil Ra some regard for political lines also.

However, funny business is not to be expected. New Hampshire is too good a state to stand for it. The proposed change is in the interest of efficiency, and one must suppose that its possible benefits are such as to enlist firm, if, here and there amongst communities that will lose representative individuality, some-what grudging support.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News-Tribune (e)
WALTHAM, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 13,413

JUN 12 1956

Night at Pops

The Boston chapters of the alumnae association of the College of Mt. St. Vincent, Riverdale, N. Y., Mt. St. Mary's College, Hooksett, N. H., and New Rochelle College, New Rochelle, N. Y., will sponsor a night at the Boston Pops on Saturday. Proceeds will benefit scholarships and other college funds.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Eagle (e)
CLAREMONT, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 8,780

JUN 12 1956

Music on the Lawn For Hartland Group

HARTLAND, June 12 — A special treat was provided for the members of the Ladies' Benevolent society at the meeting Thursday at the home of Mrs. R. W. King, when a loud speaker carried the music from records in the house to the group assembled on the lawn.

The first of two numbers was Mozart's 40th Symphony, played by the Boston Symphony orchestra; the other consisted of several Chopin Preludes played by the Brazilian pianist, Madame Guimar Novaes.

Luncheon in picnic style was served on the lawn of the residence, and was followed by a business meeting, after which records were played.

Various ways of raising money were discussed, and the date of Thursday, June 21, was set for a "Stop and Shop" sale of food and used clothing, to be held on the "Green" near the monument at 3 p. m. A sale in August and a harvest supper also were planned.

The attendance was 26 and the weather was perfect.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Messenger (e)
NORWOOD, Mass.
Tri-Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,780

JUN 1 1 1956

Young G.O.P. Attend Pops

On Sunday evening, June 3, the Norwood Young Republican Club participated in the annual fund raising project of the Massachusetts Council of Young Republicans.

Anyone who has attended Republican Night at the Pops know what a popular affair it is when Republicans, young and old, gather from all over Massachusetts to listen to the tender and inspiring music of Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Pops co-chairmen from Norwood were Mrs. Richard Boch and Miss Mary Riley. Those attending from the Norwood Club were: Mr. and Mrs. Richard Boch, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Ham, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ellertson, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard D'Orlando, Miss Mary Riley and Mr. John Hanlon, Mrs. Ernest Paskorkowski, Mrs. Robert [illegible] man and Miss Patricia Beck.

Graduation Rites

West Must Win Friends, Editor Tells UNH Grads

...M. H., June 10—Ed., were at their worst ...said editor of the Atlantic ...can writer ...here today. She ...

MEDFORD (MASS.) DAILY MERCURY, MONDAY, JUNE 11

MUSICAL INTERLUDE at Tufts Centennial Commencement Sunday — Charles Munch, right, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who received the honorary degree of humane letters and was cited by President Nils Y. Wessell as "artistic citizen of the world," chats informally before the exercises with Prof. Kenneth MacKillop Jr., of 22 Brooks road, Medford, chairman of the department of music, who was Mr. Munch's Commencement escort.

Boswell Lodged In Nevada Jail

CARSON CITY, Nev., June 9 (AP)—Nevada authorities lodged bartender William E. Boswell in jail here today after a cross-country trip from Vermont.

The 35-year-old Boswell faces murder charges in the strangulation of Philadelphia socialite Minnie Harris. Van Hyne, 22, whose body was found in a closet in his Carson City apartment, was arrested in Miami.

Abuse of Rights Endangering U. S., Diplomat Warns at Tufts Exercises

The road to chaos and subjugation may well be paved by people who demand what they consider their inalienable rights without thinking of the consequences, John Moore Cabot, American ambassador to Sweden, said yesterday at commencement exercises of Tufts University.

Exercises were also held at Brandeis University, Amherst College, Dartmouth College, Springfield College, Williams College, the University of New Hampshire, University of Maine, and the University of Vermont.

Baccalaureates, were held at Harvard University, Boston College, Radcliffe College, Regis College, and Simmons College.

Overlook Red Crimes

"Let us practice what we preach when we talk of rights," ambassador Cabot said. "They are not rights for ourselves but privileges, if they are not enjoyed by others.

'It is a curious phenomenon that today free nations are more inclined to criticize relative minor breaches of democratic principles in other free countries than crimes in communist countries so staggering that they numb the imagination."

...greater will they have to be "and the greater the risk that they may come too late to be of any use."

Killian Speaker

Dean Lawrence Rose of the General Theological Seminary of New York city delivered the baccalaureate address for Radcliffe College seniors in Memorial Church of Harvard University.

Speaking at the 185th commencement at Amherst College, James R. Killian, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Techonolgy, ...

Dr. Nils Y. Wessell, president of Tufts, conferred 14 honorary degrees and more than 800 degrees upon candidates from the undergraduate, graduate and professional schools.

Honorary degrees were conferred on Rear Admiral Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission; Dr. Arthur S. Fleming, director of

Continued on Page 11

...William E. Park, president of Simmons College, said ...rday that the only possible ...of atomic power will ...from moral and spiritual ...at Simmons baccalau... exercises at Temple Meeting ...

...dent Nathan R. Pusey ...ed the baccalaureate ...to open the traditional ...d five-day program for ...turning alumni and the 3000 degree candidates.

Boston College opened its commencement week activities yesterday when 600 members of the graduating class attened a 9 o'clock mass in the Bapst Library Auditorium.

Last night Bishop John J. Wright of Worcester, a member of the Class of 1931 at Boston College delivered the baccalaureate address at the Immaculate Conception Church on Harrison ave.

Archbishop Cushing yesterday delivered the address at the Regis College baccalaureate at St. Columbkille's Church in Brighton.

...Ceremonies.

...Ceremonies.

...Ceremonies

MEDFORD (MASS.) DAILY MERCURY, MONDAY, JUN

Boswell Facing U. S. In Nevada Jail

CARSON CITY, Nev., June 9 (AP)—Nevada authorities lodged bartender William E. Boswell in jail here today after a cross-country trip from Vermont.

The 35-year-old Boswell faces murder charges in the strangulation of Philadelphia socialite Anne Harris Van Rynne in a motel at his Carson City apartment. Miss Van Rynne's body was found in a [illegible]

Graduation Rites Must Win Friends, Tells UNH Grads

[illegible], N. H., June 10—Ed[illegible] editor of the Atlantic [illegible] said here [illegible]

Light Headed Comments

Some essentially useful function - others to gi[illegible] of elegance. All are har[illegible]

MUSICAL INTERLUDE at Tufts Centennial Commencement Sunday - Charles Munch, right, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who received the honorary degree of humane letters and was cited by President Nils Y. Wessell as "artistic citizen of the world," chats informally before the exercises with Prof. Kenneth MacKillop Jr., of 22 Brooks road, Medford, chairman of the department of music, who was Mr. Munch's Commencement escort.

[illegible]es In Exercises

[illegible]t Page

[illegible]ce of D[illegible]ense Mobiliza-[illegible], Dr. Henr[illegible]y Aldrich, [illegible]ecretary of the Geological Society of America; Dr. Max Tishler, Dr. John Twiss Blake, vice president of the Simplex Wire & Cable Co., of Cambridge.

Also, Charles Munch, Boston Symphony Orchestra director. Dean Nancy Duke Lewis of Pembroke College Nelson W. Aldrich Boston architect; Weston Howland, trustee of the Boston D[illegible]ensary; the Rev. Arthur W. W[illegible]ster, minister of the First Universalist Church of Salem; Joseph W. Morton, alumni secretary at Tufts; Clarence S. Cassidy, business manager of the Tufts School of Medicine and Dental Medicine and Theodore W. Hodges, president and treasurer of an Everett tanning oils firm, who delivered the address at the fifth commencement of Brandeis University.

Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson said yesterday that the growth of communist power should be met by the United States and its allies with counter-power based on produc[illegible]

[illegible] than 6000 persons [illegible] the Ullman Amphitheatre exercises.

Seven Degrees Given

Honorary degrees were conferred on Mr. Acheson and on six other notables. Bachelor of Arts degrees were conferred on the 193 members of the graduating class and there were 12 graduate degrees.

The commencement exercises were dedicated to observance of the 100th anniversary of the birth of the late U. S. Supreme Court Justice Louis D. Brandeis for whom the school is named.

Honorary degrees were also conferred on Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, Robert Szold, chairman of the board of the Palestine Economics Corp.; Chief Justice Calvert Magruder of the U. S. Court of Appeals in Boston; Dean Erwin N. Griswold of the Harvard Law School and Irving Dillard, editor of the St. Louis Post Dispatch.

Acheson said increasing producting power means sacrifice of a very specific sort, the subordination of present consumption to investment and the more the sacrifices are postponed the greater will they have to be "and the greater the risk that they may come too late to be of any use."

Killian Speaker

Dean Lawrence Rose of the General Theological Seminary of New York city delivered the baccalaureate address for Radcliffe College seniors in Memorial Church of Harvard University.

Speaking at the 135th commencement at Amherst College, James R. Killian, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Techonolgy, at Amherst yesterday, said that it would be "national folly" for the United States "to aim at anything less than the best educational system in the world."

Dr. William E. Park, president of Simmons College, said yesterday that the only possible control of atomic power will come from moral and spiritual power, at Simmons baccalaureate exercises at Temple Israel Meeting House.

President Nathan R. Pusey delivered the baccalaureate address to open the traditional Harvard five-day program for 5000 returning alumni and the 3000 degree candidates.

Boston College opened its commencement week activities yesterday when 600 members of the graduating class attened a 9 o'clock mass in the Bapst Library Auditorium.

Last night Bishop John J. Wright of Worcester, a member of the Class of 1931 at Boston College delivered the baccalaureate address at the Immaculate Conception Church on Harrison ave.

Archbishop Cushing yesterday delivered the address at the Regis College baccalaureate at St. Columbkille's Church in Brighton.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Express (e)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 30,719

JUN 11 1956

TWO ON THE AISLE
BY HAROLD L. CAIL

Looking Ahead

A publicity release from Young & Rubicam's Bureau of Industrial Service is rather intriguing. It starts off saying that Wally Cox is returning to the television waves in the fall, but that's not the intriguing part, not in this corner anyway. What arouses attention here is the line "The performance combines the best of Harold Lloyd, Charles Chaplin, Tom Swift and Frank Merriwell." That's biting off quite a mouthfull, but time will tell. Cox's show will be "The Adventures Of Hiram Holiday," based on Paul Gallico stories of some years back, and is being written, produced and directed by Phil [illegible]

[illegible] some regard for political lines also.

[illegible] However, funny business is not to be expected. New Hampshire is too good a state to stand for it. The proposed change is in the interest of efficiency, and one must suppose that its possible benefits are such as to enlist firm, if, here and there amongst communities that will lose representative individuality, something grudging support.

WASH
dent Eis Latin Am on June to help can Sta memorab of the Co in 1826 i will write Pan Ame
The 2
will sta
acity

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News-Tribune (e)
WALTHAM, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 13,413

JUN 12 1956

Night at Pops

The Boston chapters of the alumnae association of the College of Mt. St. Vincent, Riverdale, N. Y., Mt. St. Mary's College, Hooksett, N. H., and New Rochelle College, New Rochelle, N. Y., will sponsor a night at the Boston Pops on Saturday. Proc[illegible] will benefit scholarship[illegible] other college funds.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Eagle (e)
CLAREMONT, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 8,780

JUN 12 1956

Music on the Lawn For Hartland Group

HARTLAND, June 12 — A special treat was provided for the members of the Ladies' Benevolent society at the meeting Thursday at the home of Mrs. R. W. King, when a loud speaker carried the music from records in the house to the group assembled on the lawn.

The first of two numbers was Mozart's 40th Symphony, played by the Boston S[illegible] orchestra; the other consisted of several Chopin Preludes played by the Brazilian pian[illegible], Madame Guimar Novaes.

Luncheon in picnic style was served on the lawn of the residence, and was followed by the business meeting, after which records were played.

Various ways of raising money were discussed, and the date of Thursday, June 21, was set for a "Stop and Shop" sale of food and used clothing, to be held on the "Green" near the monument at 2 p. m. A sale in August and a harvest supper also were planned.

The attendance was 26 and the weather was perfect.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Messenger (e)
NORWOOD, Mass.
Tri-Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,750

JUN 12 1956

Young G.O.P. Attend Pops

On Sunday evening, June 3, the Norwood Young Republican Club participated in the annual fund raising project of the Massachusetts Council of Young Republicans.

Anyone who has attended Republican Night at the Pops know what a popular affair it is when Republicans, young and old, gather from all over Massachusetts to listen to the wonderful and inspiring music of Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Pops co-chairmen from Norwood were Mrs. Richard Boch and Miss Mary Riley. Those attending from the Norwood Club were: Mr. and Mrs. Richard Boch, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Ham, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ellertson, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard D'Orlando, Miss Mary Riley and Mr. John Hanlon, Mrs. Ernest Paciorkowski, Mrs. Robert Hanman and Miss Patricia Beck.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 13 1956

102

U.S. Drops Contempt Case Against Furry

Around New England

By a Staff Writer of The Christian Science Monitor

Anthony Julian, United States Attorney for the district of Massachusetts, today successfully moved for dismissal of the contempt of Congress case against Wendell H. Furry because "the evidence in this case which is essentially the same as that in United States vs. (Leon J.) Kamin is deemed insufficient to warrant further prosecution of the defendant on this indictment."

Judge Bailey Aldrich approved the prosecutor's motion to dismiss.

On Jan. 5, Judge Aldrich delivered the opinion that "the Boston investigation (conducted by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R) of Wisconsin at which Mr. Kamin and Mr. Furry testified) was of subversion and espionage affecting privately operated defense plants, and that this was not within the authority Congress had given the committee."

Judge Aldrich further ruled that "the committee had no powers to investigate the general subject of communism."

Both Mr. Furry and Mr. Kamin had refused to name Communists they had known in defense plants, and this refusal was made the basis for the contempt indictments against them.

Boston to Take Over Housing Project

By a Staff Writer of The Christian Science Monitor

South Boston's federal Old Colony Housing Project, the 673-family, $4,500,000 structure built in 1940 for emergency housing of war workers will be taken over by the City of Boston according to Mayor Hynes.

A request that the Boston Housing Authority take over operation of the project as a low-income development was submitted to the authority today by Mayor Hynes.

Boston endeavored to buy the project for $1,900,000 to house West End families displaced by a $28,000,000 redevelopment of the district that is scheduled to get under way in the next several months.

Government officials held out for $2,313,000 but offered to turn the project over to the Boston Housing Authority at no cost for low-rent housing. Mayor Hynes said the city accepted the government's offer to operate the project as a low-income development.

Mill Shutdown Laid to Asian Import

By a Staff Writer of The Christian Science Monitor

Boston

Seabury Stanton, chairman of the executive committee of Berkshire Hathaway, Inc., issued the following statement yesterday:

"All of the 16 manufacturing and finishing divisions of Berkshire Hathaway, Inc., including its subsidiaries, Bourne Mills and Swansea Print Works, will close for two weeks beginning Saturday, June 30, 1956.

"This shutdown period will include the usual one week's vacation which has been granted to employees in previous years during the first week of July.

"The second week of the shutdown represents curtailment made necessary by poor business conditions aggravated in large measure by the increasing importations of low-priced fabrics made in Japan.

"Approximately 13,000 employees will be affected and, in keeping with our labor agreement, will receive vacation pay based on their length of service.

"The State Department has so far refused to establish quotas on goods which may be imported into this country from Japan and apparently feels that our textile industry is expendable.

"The only chance of minimizing this threat to our United States industry lies with the Congress, and it is hoped that legislative action will be taken to limit these low-priced imports before our industry is completely wiped out of existence."

Boston College Honors Kennedy

By a Staff Writer of The Christian Science Monitor

Boston

United States Senator John F. Kennedy (D) of Massachusetts was among recipients of honorary degrees today at Boston College's commencement. He was the principal speaker.

Other honorary degrees went to the Most Rev. Frederick A. Donaghy, Bishop of Wuchow, China, who was long imprisoned by the Communists; Bartholomew A. Brickley, Boston lawyer; Edward Williams, president of the Boston Terminal Company; Dr. Peter J. W. Debye, Cornell University professor; Charles Munch, Conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and John W. King, chairman of the board of John W. Bowen Company, Boston construction firm.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 1[illegible]366

JUN 14 1956

Kennedy Bids B.C. Graduates Participate in Government

(Pictures on Page 33)

A plea for greater public participation in government was sounded yesterday by Sen. Kennedy, commencement speaker at Boston College.

Honorary degrees were awarded to Kennedy and six others. Degrees were awarded to 1052 seniors and 259 graduate students in the college's eight schools.

CITED THEORY

The senator criticized the "feeling of great uninterest and faint distaste with which so many Americans view the governmental process."

He cited the theory that opposing interests will cancel each other out, and produce good government, but added, "I do not think you can always rely on this mutual canceling out to protect the public interest.

He urged the graduates to use "your own cool judgment," and to understand politics.

"Actually, we get, by and large, the kind of political representation that we desire and deserve," he said. "If the people will support politicians of courage, even when it may be employed against what they conceive to be their own immediate interest, then the quality of our public service will be correspondingly increased."

The closing address and benediction were given by Archbishop Cushing.

HONOR DEGREES

Honorary degrees were presented by Very Rev. Joseph R. N. Maxwell, SJ college president, to Kennedy and the following:

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Peter J. W. Debye, Cornell University chemistry professor and Nobel Prize winner; Bartholomew A. Brickley, Boston attorney; the Most Rev. Frederick Anthony Donaghy, prisoner for five years in Red China; John W. King, Boston construction firm head, and Edward Francis Williams, textile industry leader.

Bachelor of arts degrees with honors were awarded to James Thomas Barry, David Henry Gill, Bernard Alwyn Hill Jr., Gerald Gerard Landry, Edward Francis MacLeod, Charles Edward Murgia, Edwin Brooks Niemeyer and Robert Francis Xavier Ronehan.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Independent
Cir. 101,[illegible]4

JUN 1[illegible] 1956

New Engl[illegible] Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, [illegible] • Richmond 2-4200

[illegible] (e)
FRAMI[illegible]G[illegible]AM, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 11,200

JUN 14 1956

12 Honorary Degrees at Harvard

CAMBRIDGE, June 14 (INS) — Justice Felix Frankfurter of the U. S. Supreme Court was honored today by Harvard University on the golden anniversary of his graduation from the Harvard Law school.

Justice Frankfurter, who was professor at Harvard Law school from 1914 to 1939, received the honorary degree of doctor of laws from President Nathan M. Pusey at Harvard's annual commencement exercises in Harvard yard.

Twelve honorary degrees were conferred by President Pusy who also awarded academic degrees to 2,974 students graduating from the college and from the graduate schools.

Honorary degrees of doctor of laws were conferred upon U. S. Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and two members of President Eisenhower's cabinet — Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey.

A newspaper publisher, John Cowles of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune, and Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, also received honorary degrees.

Franklin[illegible] School professor for 100,000 before his appointment to the Supreme Court in 1939, said: "A brilliant and exciting teacher, he has brought to the highest court of the land the stimulus of an incisive man."

Senator Kennedy's citation called him: "Brave officer, able senator, son of Harvard, loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

Mr. Cowles, a Harvard graduate, was called ". . . a servant of education and a journalist with a public conscience."

The graduation ceremonies were in the Harvard Yard where more than 10,000 chairs were set out for the graduates, alumni and their guests.

The ceremonies were opened with the traditional "Call to Order" by the sheriff of Middlesex County, Howard W. Fitzpatrick.

WORCESTER MAN GETS MASTER'S DEGREE

Warren D. Gribbons of Brighton, a native of Worcester, received a master's degree in education today at Harvard University commencement exercises.

Mr. Gribbons received his bachelor's degree last year from Boston University. He is a graduate of High School of Commerce.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 13 1956

U.S. Drops Contempt Case Against Furry

Around New England

By a Staff Writer of The Christian Science Monitor

Anthony Julian, United States Attorney for the district of Massachusetts, today successfully moved for dismissal of the contempt of Congress case against Wendell H. Furry because "the evidence in this case which is essentially the same as that in United States vs. (Leon J.) Kamin is deemed insufficient to warrant further prosecution of the defendant on this indictment."

Judge Bailey Aldrich approved the prosecutor's motion to dismiss.

On Jan. 5, Judge Aldrich delivered the opinion that "the Boston investigation (conducted by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R) of Wisconsin at which Mr. Kamin and Mr. Furry testified) was of subversion and espionage affecting privately operated defense plants, and that this was not within the authority Congress had given the committee."

Judge Aldrich further ruled that "the committee had no powers to investigate the general subject of communism."

Both Mr. Furry and Mr. Kamin had refused to name Communists they had known in defense plants and this refusal was made the basis for the contempt indictments against them.

Boston to Take Over Housing Project

By a Staff Writer of The Christian Science Monitor

South Boston's federal Old Colony Housing Project, the 873 family, $4,500,000 structure built in 1940 for emergency housing of war workers will be taken over by the City of Boston according to Mayor Hynes.

A request that the Boston Housing Authority take over operation of the project as a low-income development was submitted to the authority today by Mayor Hynes.

Boston endeavored to buy the project for $1,900,000 to house West End families displaced by a $28,000,000 redevelopment of the district that is scheduled to get under way in the next several months.

Government officials held out for $3,313,000 but offered to turn the project over to the Boston Housing Authority at no cost for low-rent housing. Mayor Hynes said the city accepted the government's offer to operate the project as a low-income development.

Mill Shutdown Laid to Asian Import

By a Staff Writer of The Christian Science Monitor

Boston

Seabury Stanton, chairman of the executive committee of Berkshire Hathaway, Inc., issued the following statement yesterday:

"All of the 16 manufacturing and finishing divisions of Berkshire Hathaway, Inc., including its subsidiaries, Bourne Mills and Swansea Print Works, will close for two weeks beginning Saturday, June 30, 1956.

"This shutdown period will include the usual one week's vacation which has been granted to employees in previous years during the first week of July.

"The second week of the shutdown represents curtailment made necessary by poor business conditions aggravated in large measure by the increasing importations of low-priced fabrics made in Japan.

"Approximately 13,000 employees will be affected and, in keeping with our labor agreement, will receive vacation pay based on their length of service.

"The State Department has so far refused to establish quotas on goods which may be imported into this country from Japan and apparently feels that our textile industry is expendable.

"The only chance of minimizing this threat to our United States industry lies with the Congress, and it is hoped that legislative action will be taken to limit these low-priced imports before our industry is completely wiped out of existence."

Boston College Honors Kennedy

By a Staff Writer of The Christian Science Monitor

Boston

United States Senator John F. Kennedy (D) of Massachusetts was among recipients of honorary degrees today at Boston College's commencement. He was the principal speaker.

Other honorary degrees went to the Most Rev. Frederick A. Donaghy, Bishop of Wuchow, China, who was long imprisoned by the Communists; Bartholomew A. Brickley, Boston lawyer; Edward Williams, president of the Boston Terminal Company; Dr. Peter J. W. Debye, Cornell University professor; Charles Munch, Conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and John W. King, chairman of the board of John W. Bowen Company, Boston construction firm.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 166,866

JUN 14 1956

Kennedy Bids B.C. Graduates Participate in Government

(Pictures on Page 38)

A plea for greater public participation in government was sounded yesterday by Sen. Kennedy, commencement speaker at Boston College.

Honorary degrees were awarded to Kennedy and six others. Degrees were awarded to 1052 seniors and 259 graduate students in the college's eight schools.

CITED THEORY

The senator criticized the "feeling of great uninterest and faint distaste with which so many Americans view the governmental process."

He cited the theory that opposing interests will cancel each other out, and produce good government, but added, "I do not think you can always rely on this mutual canceling out to protect the public interest.

He urged the graduates to use "your own cool judgment," and to understand politics.

"Actually, we get, by and large, the kind of political representation that we desire and deserve," he said. "If the people will support politicians of courage, even when it may be employed against what they conceive to be their own immediate interest, then the quality of our public service will be correspondingly increased."

The closing address and benediction were given by Archbishop Cushing.

HONOR DEGREES

Honorary degrees were presented by Very Rev. Joseph R. N. Maxwell, SJ college president, to Kennedy and the following:

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Peter J. W. Debye, Cornell University chemistry professor and Nobel Prize winner; Bartholomew A. Brickley, Boston attorney; the Most Rev. Frederick Anthony Donaghy, prisoner for five years in Red China; John W. King, Boston construction firm head, and Edward Francis Williams, textile industry leader.

Bachelor of arts degrees with honors were awarded to James Thomas Barry, David Henry Gill, Bernard Alwyn Hill Jr., Gerald Gerard Landry, Edward Francis MacLeod, Charles Edward Murgia, Edwin Brooks Niemeyer and Robert Francis Xavier Renehan.

12 Honored With Degrees At Harvard

CAMBRIDGE, June 14 (AP)—Harvard University today awarded honorary degrees to four high government officials and eight others prominent in the fields of business, education and science.

Honored were Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the Supreme Court of the United States, Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass), and two cabinet officers, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey.

The others were President John Sloan Dickey of Dartmouth College; John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peterhouse College at Cambridge, England; Dean Edward S. Mason of the Harvard School of Public Administration; Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize bacteriologist of the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy; and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, and for 30 years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

Traditional Ceremony

The honorary degrees were presented in traditional ceremonies in Harvard's 305th commencement. Degrees were awarded nearly 3,000 graduates of the college and graduate schools, including 150 from the medical school and more than 500 law degrees.

The citation to Justice Frankfurter, a Harvard Law School professor for 25 years before his appointment to the Supreme Court in 1939, said: "A brilliant and exciting teacher, he has brought to the highest court of the land the stimulus of an incisive man."

Senator Kennedy's citation called him: "Brave officer, able senator, son of Harvard, loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

Mr. Cowles, a Harvard graduate, was called ". . . a servant of education and a journalist with a public conscience."

The graduation ceremonies were in the Harvard Yard where more than 10,000 chairs were set out for the graduates, alumni and their guests.

The ceremonies were opened with the traditional "Call to Order" by the sheriff of Middlesex County, Howard W. Fitzpatrick.

WORCESTER MAN GETS MASTER'S DEGREE

Warren D. Gribbons of Brighton, a native of Worcester, received a master's degree in education today at Harvard University commencement exercises.

Mr. Gribbons received his bachelor's degree last year from Boston University. He is a graduate of High School of Commerce.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Nonpartisan
Circ. 65,372

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 128,749

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 264,020

JUN 14 1956

Prelate Tells B. C. Paganism Gaining

America is threatened not merely by the machinations of godless Russia, but also by the godlessness of a growing paganism within national institutions, Archbishop Cushing warned more than 12,000 yesterday at the Boston College commencement exercises at Alumni Field.

A burning sun which sent the mercury into the mid-nineties, beamed down on the mortar boards and academic robes of 1258 students, the seven who received honorary degrees, members of the faculty, and the great crowd of parents and friends.

Only the lightest breeze waved the elms and lindens bordering the Chestnut Hill campus as the long academic procession, with the Archbishop at the end, marched from the Tower building down the slope to the field.

The Archbishop told the graduates that "citizens like you are needed. By your fidelity to the sacred nature and purposes of marriage, you will help arrest divorce that is sapping American strength by weakening your homes."

Respect Justice

"By your respect for justice, you will have no sympathy or partnership with unfair practices by capital, labor or government, through which the happiness of our people is blighted. By your devotion to charity, and your knowledge of the sanctity of every human

Continued on Page 9

ENT—Black-robed graduates stand in the torrid sun at Alumni Field while waiting to receive Archbishop Cushing is standing, second from right.

MEET ARCHBISHOP CUSHING — Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Lopez are shown with Archbishop Cushing at Boston College commencement exercises. Lopez is former Vice President of the Philippines. His son, Benjamin, Jr., graduated from Boston College.

BOSTON COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT—Black-robed graduates stand in the torrid sun at Alumni Field while waiting to receive their degrees from Boston College. Archbishop Cushing is standing, second from right.

12,000 Hear Archbishop

Continued from First Page

person, you will have no traffic with bigotry, prejudice, or discrimination, so fatal to the unity and life of government whose charters of liberty recognize the equal rights of all citizens to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

"By your intelligent recognition of the function of authority and its laws, you will keep free from the contagion which confuses liberty with license and anarchy.

"You will help stem the tide of lawlessness that is sending our crime rate up and our crime age down. You will help spread the soundly American principle that liberty to be kept free must be kept under control. You, with your concept of patriotic duty, will never be indifferent to the sacredness of the ballot.

"You can never evade your duty to vote and to vote for the one best fitted to receive that authority which comes from God alone. You are in a position to keep real Americanism alive in your public and private recognition of the God of men and nations.

"You have the knowledge and, we pray, the courage to be different from the millions who have divided themselves from the Americanism of our Founding Fathers by their failure to believe, to worship, and to obey. All of these contributions to the strength and grandeur of our country you are eminently fitted to make. All of these contributions our nation needs.

"Democracy can profit nothing from ignorance. You have solid learning. Democracy cannot be preserved by corruption. You have moral integrity. Democracy cannot be perpetuated by godlessness. You are godly.

"This is a day of hope for our divinely-founded church. Its divine mission is to preserve and spread Christ's teachings, to preserve and preach divine standards of morality, to guard and administer Christ's sacraments, to complete the mission of Christ."

Kennedy Speaks

Senator John F. Kennedy, one of the seven who received honorary degrees, delivered the commencement address. He emphasized the obligations of all who have received higher education to assume a proportionate share of self-government.

"The phrase self-government has fallen into disuse these days," he said. "The centre of government seems so far removed from us that we tend unconsciously in our minds to divide ourselves into two groups, the governors and the governed.

"In spite of the elaborate solar system of local, State and national units of government that encircles our lives, most of us tend to regard ourselves as the objects of governmental policy, and not the makers.

"This state of mind has resulted in the feeling of great uninterest and faint distaste which so many Americans view the governmental process.

Party Disputes

"We tend to look with disfavor at a political structure which seems to emphasize party and factional disputes, where compromise runs rampant, where indirection seems to have become the shortest distance between two points.

"But to look at the political process in this superficial fashion is misleading; it is like looking at an ant hill as merely as bit of sand, and failing to see that it is the cover for a whole labyrinth of life.

"The important thing to remember is that your uninterest in politics will not mean that the various tasks will not be done; they will be done, and usually in a way unsatisfactory to you. There are a great many Americans who do take an intense interest in politics. They recognize that at stake is control of the most powerful and richest country on earth. It is governed by one of the two political parties.

"If a group or a combination of interests can master the parties, or can become a dominant influence in one of them, the stakes are well worth while."

Honorary Degrees

The Very Rev. Joseph R. N. Maxwell, S.J., president of Boston College, also presented honorary degrees to Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, doctor of music; Peter J. W. Debye, Nobel prize winner, doctor of science; Bartholomew A. Brickley, Boston attorney, doctor of laws; Edward Williams, industrial financier and philanthropist, doctor of laws; Bishop Frederick A. Donaghy of Wuchow, China, doctor of laws, and John W. King, general manager, board chairman and treasurer of the John Bowen Construction Co., doctor of laws.

Joseph Michael Harney, B. C. '56, son of Mrs. Ellen Carty, widow of William Harney, mother of eight, was a graduate. He represented 142 years of Catholic education in the Harney family. Mrs. Harney and all her eight children attended Cheverus Grammar School of Blessed Sacrament parish. All eight children have graduated from a Catholic institution of higher learning.

Benjamin Lopez, another member of the graduating class, is the son of Benjamin Lopez, Sr., a former vice president of the Philippine Islands, and currently a Senator. Both Senator and Mrs. Lopez attended yesterday's commencement.

MEET ARCHBISHOP CUSHING — Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Lopez are shown with Archbishop Cushing at Boston College commencement exercises. Lopez is former Vice President of the Philippines. His son, Benjamin, Jr., graduated from Boston College.

New England Newspaper Agency, Inc.
Box 2078 — Richmond 2-4200

Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 11,200

JUN 14 1956

Honorary Degrees at Harvard

CAMBRIDGE, June 14 (INS) — Felix Frankfurter of the U. S. Supreme Court was honored by Harvard University on the 25th anniversary of his graduation from the Harvard Law school. Justice Frankfurter, who was a lecturer at Harvard Law school from 1914 to 1939, received the honorary degree of doctor of laws from President Nathan M. Pusey at Harvard's annual commencement exercises in Harvard yard.

Other honorary degrees were conferred by President Pusey who presented academic degrees to 1,400 graduating from the

... from the graduate ...

... degrees of doctor of ... conferred upon U. S. ... F. Kennedy of Mas... and two members of ... Eisenhower's cabinet — ... Commerce Sinclair ... Secretary of the Treas... Humphrey.

... publisher, John ... Minneapolis Star and ... Charles Munch, con... Boston Symphony ... received honorary ...

... professor ... 100,000 ... appointment to the ... Court in 1939, ... and exciting teach... has brought to the ... court of the land the ... of an incisive man." ... Kennedy's citation ... "Brave officer, able ... son of Harvard, loyal ... he remains steadfast ... ple."

... wles, a Harvard grad... called ". . . a servant ... tion and a journalist ... public conscience." ... raduation ceremonies ... the Harvard Yard ... ore than 10,000 chairs ... out for the graduates, ... nd their guests.

... remonies were opened ... traditional "Call to ... y the sheriff of Mid... County, Howard W. ...

...CESTER MAN ...ASTER'S DEGREE

... D. Gribbons of ... a native of Worces... ...ved a master's de... education today at ... University com... t exercises.

...ibbons received his ... degree last year ... on University. He is ... of High School ...

Twelve Win Citations

Harvard Honors Weeks, Kennedy and Humphrey

Doctor of Laws

JOHN COWLES, publisher, Minneapolis Star and Tribune and chairman of the board, Des Moines Register and Tribune Company; Cowles Magazine, Inc. (Look), Cowles Broadcasting Company:

"His alma mater honors a servant of education and a journalist with a public conscience."

JOHN SLOAN DICKEY, president of Dartmouth College:

"Again we acclaim as our own this insistent advocate of education who seeks a bridge between life and learning."

FELIX FRANKFURTER, associate justice of the United States Supreme Court:

"A brilliant and exciting teacher, he has brought to the highest court of the land the stimulus of an incisive mind."

GEORGE M. HUMPHREY, Secretary of the Treasury:

"Industrialist turned to the service of government; statesman who holds a firm rein on the nation's fiscal policy."

JOHN F. KENNEDY, United States Senator from Massachusetts:

"Brave officer, able Senator, son of Harvard; loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

EDWARD S. MASON, economist, dean of the Harvard School of Public Administration:

"Economist and dean; his expert knowledge and sound counsel guide students in the ways of government and governments in the ways of peace."

SINCLAIR WEEKS, Secretary of Commerce:

"Harvard son, at home alike in politics and business, he finds scope for his abilities in the service of university, state and nation."

Doctor of Letters

HERBERT BUTTERFIELD, historian, master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge, Eng.:

"Exploring the strengths and frailties of history, he evokes a sense of liberty through belief."

HARRY A. WOLFSON, professor of Hebrew literature and philosphy at Harvard:

"From enormous knowledge he graciously illumines the major problems of religious philosophy and their relation to revealed truth."

Doctor of Music

CHARLES MUNCH, conductor, Boston Symphony Orchestra:

"Under his imaginative direction a great orchestra infuses our lives with both beauty and meaning."

Doctor of Science

JOHN F. ENDERS, professor of bacteriology and immunology, Harvard Medical School:

"A calm and imaginative scholar whose patient researches are an inspiration to his profession."

Doctor of Humane Letters

DAVID T. W. McCORD, poet and essayist:

"Artist and poet who personifies in his friendly stewardship Harvard's deep concern for people."

JUN 14 1956

Harvard Citations

Twelve leaders in government, education, science and the arts were awarded honorary degrees at the Harvard commencement today.

The men and their citations:

Doctor of Laws

JOHN COWLES, publisher of Minneapolis Star and Tribune: "His Alma Mater honors a servant of education and a journalist with a public conscience."

JOHN SLOAN DICKEY, president of Dartmouth College: "Again we acclaim as our own this insistent advocate of education who seeks a bridge between life and learning."

FELIX FRANKFURTER, associate justice of the U. S. Supreme Court: "A brilliant and exciting teacher, he has brought to the highest court of the land the stimulus of an incisive mind."

GEORGE. M. HUMPHREY, Secretary of the Treasury: "Industrialist turned to the service of government; a statesman who holds a firm rein on the nation's fiscal policy."

JOHN F. KENNEDY, U. S. senator from Massachusetts: "Brave officer, able Senator, son of Harvard; loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

EDWARD S. MASON, economist, dean of the Harvard School of Public Administration: "Economist and dean; his expert knowledge and sound counsel guide students in the ways of government and governments in the ways of peace."

SINCLAIR WEEKS, secretary of commerce: "Harvard son, at home alike in politics and business, he finds scope for his abilities in the service of university, state, and nation."

Doctor of Letters

HERBERT BUTTERFIELD, historian and Master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge: "Exploring the strengths and frailties of history, he evokes a sense of liberty through belief."

HARRY A. WOLFSON, Hebraic scholar, Nathan Littauer Professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard: "From enormous knowledge he graciously illumines the major problems of religious philosophy and their relation to revealed truth."

Doctor of Music

CHARLES MUNCH, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra: "Under his imaginative direction a great orchestra infuses our lives with both beauty and meaning."

Doctor of Science

JOHN F. ENDERS, Nobel prize winning bacteriologist of the Harvard Medical School and the Children's Hospital: "A calm and imaginative scholar whose patient researches are an inspiration to his profession."

Doctor of Humane Letters

DAVID T. W. McCORD, poet and essayist: "Artist and poet who personifies in his family stewardship Harvard's deep concern for people."

(Photo by Ernest Hill)

Humphrey, Sen. John F. Kennedy and Historian Herbert Butterfield. Back row, Prof. John F. Enders, Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, Publisher John Cowles, Dartmouth President John Sloan Dickey, Dean Edward S. Mason and Poet David T. W. McCord.

B. C. 3

Continued from the First Page

Senator John F. Kennedy, one of the honorary degree recipients, was the principal speaker. He was awarded the degree of doctor of laws.

Others receiving honorary degrees were Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doctor of Music; Peter J. W. Debye, Nobel Prize winner, Doctor of Science; Bartholomew A. Brickley, Boston attorney, Doctor of Laws; Edward Williams, industrialist, financier and philanthropist, Doctor of Laws; Bishop A. Donaghy of Wuchow, China, Doctor of Laws, and John W. King, general manager, board chairman and treasurer of the John Bowen Construction Company, Doctor of Laws.

Among the graduates were Benjamin Lopez Jr., whose father is an ex-Vice President of the Philippine Islands, and Joseph M. Harney of Jamaica Plain, who represented the completion of 142 years of Catholic education in the Harney family.

Prior to the Commencement exercises, 90 seniors received commissions in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps at ceremonies of the Boston College ROTC Unit on the steps of the college's Bapst Library.

The Army commissions were awarded by Col Edwin M. Van Bidder, chief of the Massachusetts Military District, while Lt Col Earl R. McLaughlin presented the Marine commissions; Lt Weston Jenks, assistant professor of English at B. C., awarded the Navy ensign commissions.

...es: Page 2

...ley, Bos-
...strialist, philanthropist and
...cier; Dr. Peter J. W. De-
...Nobel prize winner and
...sor emeritus at Cornell
...sity; Charles Munch,
...or of the Boston Sym-
...orchestra, and John W.
...neral manager, treas-
...board chairman of
...n Construction Com-

...ON COLLEGE

...ge Four

...Doctor of Laws; Dr. Peter
...nator John F. Kennedy, Doc-

...specialists," the gov-
...declared. "In a world of ...turbulence we need, more than ...ever, to depend on the ability
...synthesize the work of spe-
...lists, to view their findings
...proper perspective, to dis-
...general trends, to see be-
...eath the surface of the basic ...human aspirations which have
...governed men of all ages."
At Boston College's Alumni

...ontinued on Page 22, Column 1

...England Clipping Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 — Richmond 2-4200
Evening Globe
BOSTON

...Gazette
WORCESTER, ...
Independent
Circ. 10...
JUN 14 1956

...England Clipping Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 — Richmond 2-4200
News (e)
...NGHAM, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 11,200
JUN 14 1956

...2 Honorary Degrees at Harvard

...BRIDGE, June 14 (INS) — Felix Frankfurter of the Supreme Court was honored by Harvard University on the anniversary of his graduation from the Harvard Law school. Frankfurter, who was at Harvard Law school from 1914 to 1939, received the degree of doctor of laws from President Nathan M. Pusey at Harvard's annual commencement exercises in Harvard yard.

...honorary degrees were conferred by President Pusey who awarded academic degrees to students graduating from the ...

...nd from the gradu...

...degrees of doctor of ... conferred upon U. S. ... John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and two members of Eisenhower's cabinet — ... of Commerce Sinclair ... Secretary of the Treasury ... M. Humphrey.

...paper — publisher, John ... the Minneapolis Star and ... Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony ... also received honorary ...

... professor at 100,000 ... his appointment to the ... Court in 1939, ... brilliant and exciting teacher ... has brought to the ... court of the land the ... of an incisive man." ... Kennedy's citation ... "Brave officer, able ..., son of Harvard, loyal ...y, he remains steadfast ...ciple."

Cowles, a Harvard graduate ... was called "... a servant ...cation and a journalist ... public conscience."

... graduation ceremonies in the Harvard Yard ... more than 10,000 chairs ... out for the graduates, ... and their guests.

...ceremonies were opened ... the traditional "Call to ... by the sheriff of Middlesex County, Howard W. ...rick.

...ORCESTER MAN ... MASTER'S DEGREE

...en D. Gribbons of ..., a native of Worcester, ...ceived a master's degree in education today at ... University commencement exercises.

Gribbons received his ...r's degree last year ... Boston University. He is ...ate of High School of ...rce.

...UNE 13 ...
SAVE-BY-MAIL ... popular, safe and ... way to save. You ... mail-box is "open ... convenient ...

103

England Newspaper Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200
Evening, Class
BO

JUN 14 1956

(Traveler Staff Photo by Ernest Hill)

PRESIDENT Nathan Pusey of Harvard (front, fourth from left), sits with honorary degree recipients at Harvard today. Front (left to right), Conductor Charles Munch, Secretary Sinclair Weeks, Justice Felix Frankfurter, Pusey, Secretary George M. Humphrey, Sen. John F. Kennedy and Historian Herbert Butterfield. Back row, Prof. John F. Enders, Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, Publisher John Cowles, Dartmouth President John Sloan Dickey, Dean Edward S. Mason and Poet David T. W. McCord.

SAVE-BY-MAIL
popular, safe and
way to save. You mail-box is "open
convenie

England Newspaper Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200
Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 100,324
JUN 14 1956

England Newspaper Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200
News (e)
WINCHAM, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 11,200
JUN 14 1956

2 Honorary Degrees at Harvard

CAMBRIDGE, June 14 (INS) — Felix Frankfurter of the Supreme Court was honored by Harvard University on the anniversary of his graduation from the Harvard Law school. Mr. Frankfurter, who was a tutor at Harvard Law school from 1914 to 1939, received the honorary degree of doctor of laws from President Nathan M. Pusey at Harvard's annual commencement exercises in Harvard yard.

The honorary degrees were conferred by President Pusey who awarded academic degrees to students graduating from the

JUN 13 1956

600 BC Seniors Hear Kennedy

U. S. Sen. John F. Kennedy was the principal speaker today as Boston College held its 80th Commencement exercises at Alumni Field.

More than 600 seniors received degrees at the traditional ceremonies.

Kennedy was one of seven men to be awarded honorary degrees by the Boston College president, Very Rev. Joseph R. N. Maxwell, S.J.

The others were:

Most Rev. Frederick A. Donaghy, bishop of Wuchow, China.

BC

(Continued on Page Twenty-nine)

Dr. Peter J. W. Debye, a professor emeritus of Cornell University, who was awarded the Nobel Prize in 1936.

The annual commissioning exercise of the B.C. ROTC unit were held on the library lawn this morning.

Class night exercises were held last night at the Heights. Miss Anne R. Carroll of South Boston delivered the salutatory address, the first woman graduate of Boston College ever chosen for the honor. Other speakers were Brien Concannon of Dorchester and Eugene G. McCarthy of Roxbury.

six honorary John W. Sargeon, and Hartland doctors of Rev. Jere- ciliary bish- John E. Fen- York tax Oestreicher Kuttner of Doctors of ton of Lawrence, consultant Sylvan and Prof. Stephan G. Catholic University. Law.

In his address on the campus on Mt. St. James, Worcester, Gov. Herter said the liberal arts graduate fills a unique role in a world of specialists because he is a "whole man."

"Even in a stable world we could not afford to leave everything to specialists," the governor declared. "In a world of turbulence we need, more than ever, to depend on the ability to synthesize the work of specialists, to view their findings in proper perspective, to discern general trends, to see beneath the surface of the basic human aspirations which have governed men of all ages."

At Boston College's Alumni

Continued on Page 29, Column 1

...now, China; ...attorney; Edward Williams, ...industrialist, philanthropist and ...financier; Dr. Peter J. W. Debye, Nobel prize winner and ...professor emeritus at Cornell University; Charles Munch, ...conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and John W. King, general manager, treasurer and board chairman of John Bowen Construction Company.

BOSTON COLLEGE

Page Four

...rles Muench, Symphony con-
...y, Doctor of Laws; Dr. Peter
...nator John F. Kennedy, Doc-

B. C.

Continued from the First Page

Senator John F. Kennedy, one of the honorary degree recipients, was the principal speaker. He was awarded the degree of doctor of laws.

Others receiving honorary degrees were Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doctor of Music; Peter J. W. Debye, Nobel Prize winner, Doctor of Science; Bartholomew A. Brickley, Boston attorney, Doctor of Laws; Edward Williams, industrialist, financier and philanthropist, Doctor of Laws; Bishop A. Donaghy of Wuchow, China, Doctor of Laws, and John W. King, general manager, board chairman and treasurer of the John Bowen Construction Company, Doctor of Laws.

Among the graduates were Benjamin Lopez Jr., whose father is an ex-Vice President of the Philippine Islands, and Joseph M. Harney of Jamaica Plain, who represented the completion of 142 years of Catholic education in the Harney family.

Prior to the Commencement exercises, 90 seniors received commissions in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps at ceremonies of the Boston College ROTC Unit on the steps of the college's Bapst Library.

The Army commissions were awarded by Col Edwin M. Van Bidder, chief of the Massachusetts Military District, while Lt Col Earl R. McLaughlin presented the Marine commissions; Lt Weston Jenks, assistant professor of English at B. C., awarded the Navy ensign commissions.

...ctual
...ecide,
...he is
...mmer.
...ge of ...formal
...vices is
...ammer
...ave the
...reared
...Test pos-
...learning.
...with the
...tify that
...Alumni
...Profes-
...for edu-
...are more
...ive ability,
...izations, it
...that that
...evail which
...imaginative
...," he said.
...the face of
...power could
...ged by crea-
...hifts by one
...commented
...Union might
...imaginative
...not make our
...pretty useless

...es: Page 2

New England Newscip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 14 1956

103

By a Staff Photographer

Harvard President and Honorary

Three of the 12 men to receive honorary degrees at Harvard's 305th commencement ceremonies today are shown with Dr. Nathan M. Pusey, Harvard president. From left: Senator John F. Kennedy, Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States and George

Kennedy Asks Politic

By Mary Handy
Staff Correspondent of The Christian

Cambridge, Mass.

Senator John F. Kennedy called for a dynamic partnership between the American intellectual and the American politician at Harvard University commencement festivities here today.

"I would ask both groups to recall that the American politician of today and the American intellectual of today are descended from a common ancestry," said the Massachusetts Democratic senator, who was honored by Harvard this morning with an honorary degree.

Degrees Awarded

"Both the American intellectual and politician operate within a common framework—a framework we call liberty," he asid. "Finally, I would stress the great potential gain for both groups resulting from increased political cooperation."

Harvard awarded honorary degrees to 11 others at its 305th commencement ceremonies. Included were two members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, and Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court.

The other honorary degrees were given to:

John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College; Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge, England; Edward S. Mason, an economist and dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Public Administration; Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize bacteriologist and professor of bacteriology and immunology of the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy and Nathan Littauer, professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard; and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, and for 30 years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

'Growing Gap'

"It is regrettable that the gap between the intellectual and politician seems to be growing," Senator Kennedy told some 15,000 alumni, faculty, and friends gathered under the elms of Harvard Yard. He added:

"Instead of synthesis, clash and discord now characterize the relations between the two groups much of the time. . . . Both sides in this battle, it seems to largely distrust.

"The ity rest the pop the sch terity, position anchor

'Wha

"Th hand, the In t pur to opin mis ced fec wh labor

New England Newscip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

New England Newscip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 184,973

New England Newscip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

New England Newscip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 101,564

New England Newscip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

JUN 13 1956

600 BC Seniors Hear Kennedy

U. S. Sen. John F. Kennedy was the principal speaker today as Boston College held its 80th Commencement exercises at Alumni Field.

More than 600 seniors received degrees at the traditional ceremonies.

Kennedy was one of seven men to be awarded honorary degrees by the Boston College president, Very Rev. Joseph R. N. Maxwell, S.J.

The others were:

Most Rev. Frederick A. Donaghy, bishop of Wuchow, China.

BC

(Continued on Page Twenty-nine)

Dr. Peter J. W. Debye, a professor emeritus of Cornell University, who was awarded the Nobel Prize in 1936.

The annual commissioning exercise of the B.C. ROTC unit were held on the library lawn this morning.

Class night exercises were held last night at the Heights.

Miss Anne R. Carroll of South Boston delivered the salutatory address, the first woman graduate of Boston College ever chosen for the honor. Other spakers were Brien Concannon of Dorchester and Eugene G. McCarthy of Roxbury.

ton of Lawrence, ... York tax consultant Sylvan Oestreicher and Prof. Stephan G. Kuttner of Catholic University, Doctors of Law.

In his address on the campus on Mt. St. James, Worcester, Gov. Herter said the liberal arts graduate fills a unique role in a world of specialists because he is a "whole man."

"Even in a stable world we could not afford to leave everything to specialists," the governor declared. "In a world of turbulence we need, more than ever, to depend on the ability to synthesize the work of specialists, to view their findings with proper perspective, to discern general trends, to see beneath the surface of the basic human aspirations which have governed men of all ages."

At Boston College's Alumni

Continued on Page 22, Column 1

...STON DAILY GLOBE—WEDNESDAY, JUNE 13, 1956

Save-by-mail

SAVE-BY-MAIL
popular, safe and
way to save. You
mail-box is "open
your convenie

...duate 1258 ...Seven Today

Donaghy of Wuchow, China; Bartholomew A. Brickley, Boston attorney; Edward Williams, industrialist, philanthropist and financier; Dr. Peter J. W. Debye, Nobel prize winner and professor emeritus at Cornell University; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and John W. King, general manager, treasurer and board chairman of John Bowen Construction Company.

BOSTON COLLEGE

Page Four

...st in its formal ...lete.

...n he faces is ...o be a hammer ...is to give the ...he was reared ...he broadest pos... of his learning. ...familiar with the ...I can testify that

...g at the Alumni ...athering, Profes... ...h called for edu... ...ill nurture more ...d creative ability. ...of civilizations, it ...e all that that ...to prevail which ...ater imaginative ...disposal," he said. ...that the face of ...of power could ...changed by crea... ...ve shifts by one ...He commented ...iet Union might ...come imaginative ...ht even make our ...be pretty useless

...tories: Page 2

...rles Muench, Symphony con... ...y, Doctor of Laws; Dr. Peter ...nator John F. Kennedy, Doc...

B. C.

Continued from the First Page

Senator John F. Kennedy, one of the honorary degree recipients, was the principal speaker. He was awarded the degree of doctor of laws.

Others receiving honorary degrees were Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doctor of Music; Peter J. W. Debye, Nobel Prize winner, Doctor of Science; Bartholomew A. Brickley, Boston attorney, Doctor of Laws; Edward Williams, industrialist, financier and philanthropist, Doctor of Laws; Bishop A. Donaghy of Wuchow, China, Doctor of Laws, and John W. King, general manager, board chairman and treasurer of the John Bowen Construction Company, Doctor of Laws.

Among the graduates were Benjamin Lopez Jr., whose father is an ex-Vice President of the Philippine Islands, and Joseph M. Harney of Jamaica Plain, who represented the completion of 142 years of Catholic education in the Harney family.

Prior to the Commencement exercises, 90 seniors received commissions in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps at ceremonies of the Boston College ROTC Unit on the steps of the college's Bapst Library.

The Army commissions were awarded by Col Edwin M. Van Bidder, chief of the Massachusetts Military District, while Lt Col Earl R. McLaughlin presented the Marine commissions; Lt Weston Jenks, assistant professor of English at B. C., awarded the Navy ensign commissions.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Nonpartisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 14 1956

103

By a Staff Photographer

Harvard President and Honorary

Three of the 12 men to receive honorary degrees at Harvard's 305th commencement ceremonies today are shown with Dr. Nathan M. Pusey, Harvard president. From left: Senator John F. Kennedy, Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court, and George M. Humphrey.

Kennedy Asks Politic

Cambridge, Mass.

By Mary Handy
Staff Correspondent of The Christian

Senator John F. Kennedy called for a dynamic partnership between the American intellectual and the American politician at Harvard University commencement festivities here today.

"I would ask both groups to recall that the American politician of today and the American intellectual of today are descended from a common ancestry," said the Massachusetts Democratic senator, who was honored by Harvard this morning with an honorary degree.

Degrees Awarded

"Both the American intellectual and politician operate within a common framework—a framework we call liberty," he asid. "Finally, I would stress the great potential gain for both groups resulting from increased political cooperation."

Harvard awarded honorary degrees to 11 others at its 305th commencement ceremonies. Included were two members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, and Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court.

The other honorary degrees were given to:

John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College; Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge, England; Edward S. Mason, an economist and dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Public Administration; Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize bacteriologist and professor of bacteriology and immunology of the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy and Naftali Littauer, professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard; and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, and for 30 years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

'Growing Gap'

"It is regrettable that the gap between the intellectual and politician seems to be growing," Senator Kennedy told some 15,000 alumni, faculty, and friends gathered under the elms of Harvard Yard. He added:

"Instead of synthesis, clash and discord now characterize the relations between the two groups much of the time. . . . Both sides in this battle, it seems to largely distrust.

"The p ity rests the popu the scho terity, position anchor

'What

"The hand, the di laborat In the pure a to ch opinio mises cedur fect what "It has ser des polit horr tern Sci S. thru ness sini Char blas the Ot con wh in wh ga Ge Cent Ba Ge Cent Jo Figu Nic Ro

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 184,973

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.

DOUBLE-DOOR WARD-ROBES. Brown, grained RUBBER veneer frame, metal locks. Colors, white, sunfan, blue, green. Consists of train case, 21" and 25" nested within the other. Tapered end-bound, plastic coated

$1

Just THREE LUGGAGE SETS 25 sets

MEN'S 3-pc. BRITISH AND chrome plated with removable nylon bristles. Gift boxed.

(Continued from First Page)

Expelled by the Communists last year, Bishop Donaghy is a brother of Very Rev. William A. Donaghy, S.J., president of Holy Cross College.

Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Atty. Bartholomew A. Brickley of Boston, member of the firm of Brickley, Sears and Cole.

Edward F. Williams, president and director of the Boston Terminal Co.

John W. King, chairman of the board of the John Bowen Construction Co.

Dr. Peter J. W. Debye, a professor emeritus of Cornell University, who was awarded the Nobel Prize in 1936.

The annual commissioning exercise of the B.C. ROTC unit were held on the library lawn this morning.

Class night exercises were held last night at the Heights.

Miss Anne R. Carroll of South Boston delivered the salutatory address, the first woman graduate of Boston College ever chosen for the honor. Other speakers were Brien Concannon of Dorchester and Eugene G. McCarthy of Roxbury.

ton of Lawrence, ... consultant Sylvan Oestreicher and Prof. Stephan G. Kuttner of Catholic University, Doctors of Law.

In his address on the campus on Mt. St. James, Worcester, Gov. Herter said the liberal arts graduate fills a unique role in a world of specialists because he is a "whole man."

"Even in a stable world we could not afford to leave everything to specialists," the governor declared. "In a world of turbulence we need, more than ever, to depend on the ability to synthesize the work of specialists, to view their findings with proper perspective, to discern general trends, to see beneath the surface of the basic human aspirations which have governed men of all ages."

At Boston College's Alumni

Continued on Page 22, Column 1

STON DAILY GLOBE—WEDNESDAY, JUNE 13, 1956

Save-by-mail

SAVE-BY-MAIL popular, safe and way to save. You mail-box is "open ... your convenie

ate 1258 ven Today

Donaghy of Wuchow, China; Bartholomew A. Brickley, Boston attorney; Edward Williams, industrialist, philanthropist and financier; Dr. Peter J. W. Debye, Nobel prize winner and professor emeritus at Cornell University; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and John W. King, general manager, treasurer and board chairman of John Bowen Construction Company.

BOSTON COLLEGE

Page Four

alma egrees sident,
xwell,
nnedy,
Laws,
Bishop
Wuomew trialliams,
an of Bowen
ductor
rches-tor of try dee was
J. W.
her and Cornell
ed from nists, is ident of ry Rev.
J.
six hon-
John W.
geon, and nd, Hart-doctors of
Rev. Jere-liary bish-
hn E. Fen-York tax

in its formal te.
he faces is
be a hammer
s to give the
he was reared broadest pos-
his learning.
miliar with the
can testify that at the Alumni
ering, Profes-
called for edu-
nurture more creative ability, civilizations, it
all that that prevail which imaginative
osal," he said.
at the face of f power could nged by crea-
shifts by one
He commented
Union might e imaginative wer make our pretty useless

es: Page 2

B. C.

Continued from the First Page

Senator John F. Kennedy, one of the honorary degree recipients, was the principal speaker. He was awarded the degree of doctor of laws.

Others receiving honorary degrees were Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doctor of Music; Peter J. W. Debye, Nobel Prize winner, Doctor of Science; Bartholomew A. Brickley, Boston attorney, Doctor of Laws; Edward Williams, industrialist, financier and philanthropist, Doctor of Laws; Bishop A. Donaghy of Wuchow, China, Doctor of Laws, and John W. King, general manager, board chairman and treasurer of the John Bowen Construction Company, Doctor of Laws.

Among the graduates were Benjamin Lopez Jr., whose father is an ex-Vice President of the Philippine Islands, and Joseph M. Harney of Jamaica Plain, who represented the completion of 142 years of Catholic education in the Harney family.

Prior to the Commencement exercises, 90 seniors received commissions in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps at ceremonies of the Boston College ROTC Unit on the steps of the college's Bapst Library.

The Army commissions were awarded by Col Edwin M. Van Bidder, chief of the Massachusetts Military District, while Lt Col Earl R. McLaughlin presented the Marine commissions; Lt Weston Jenks, assistant professor of English at B. C., awarded the Navy ensign commissions.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2070, Boston • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Nonpartisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 14 1956

By a Staff Photographer

Harvard President and Honorary

Three of the 12 men to receive honorary degrees at Harvard's 305th commencement ceremonies today are shown with Dr. Nathan M. Pusey, Harvard president. From left: Senator John F.

Kennedy furter of George

Kennedy Asks Politic

Cambridge, Mass.

By Mary Handy
Staff Correspondent of The Christian

Senator John F. Kennedy called for a dynamic partnership between the American intellectual and the American politician at Harvard University commencement festivities here today.

"I would ask both groups to recall that the American politician of today and the American intellectual of today are descended from a common ancestry," said the Massachusetts Democratic senator, who was honored by Harvard this morning with an honorary degree.

Degrees Awarded

"Both the American intellectual and politician operate within a common framework—a framework we call liberty," he said. "Finally, I would stress the great potential gain for both groups resulting from increased political cooperation."

Harvard awarded honorary degrees to 11 others at its 305th commencement ceremonies. Included were two members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, and Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court.

The other honorary degrees were given to:

John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College; Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge, England; Edward S. Mason, an economist and dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Public Administration; Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize bacteriologist and professor of bacteriology and immunology of the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy and Nathan Littauer, professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard; and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, and for 30 years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

'Growing Gap'

"It is regrettable that the gap between the intellectual and politician seems to be growing," Senator Kennedy told some 15,000 alumni, faculty, and friends gathered under the elms of Harvard Yard. He added:

"Instead of synthesis, clash and discord now characterize the relations between the two groups much of the time. . . . Both sides in this battle, it seems to largely distrust.

"The p ity rests the popu the scho terity, position anchor

'What

"The hand, f the d laborat In the pure to ch opini mises cedur fect what

"I has de poli Sc horr S. ness thru sim bla

luate 1258 Seven Today

Donaghy of Wuchow, China; Bartholomew A. Brickley, Boston attorney; Edward Williams, industrialist, philanthropist and financier; Dr. Peter J. W. Debye, Nobel prize winner and professor emeritus at Cornell University; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and John W. King, general manager, treasurer and board chairman of John Bowen Construction Company.

BOSTON COLLEGE

Page Four

JUN 13 1956

Senator Kennedy Receives Degree At Boston College

BOSTON, June 13 (AP)—U. S. Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) was among recipients of honorary degrees today at Boston College's 80th commencement, at which he was the principal speaker.

The Very Rev. Joseph R. N. Maxwell, S. J., college president, conferred 1,258 degrees in course. Archbishop Richard J. Cushing presided.

In addition to Mr. Kennedy, honorary degrees went to The Most Rev. Frederick A. Donaghy, bishop of Wuchow, China, who was long imprisoned by the Communists; Bartholomew A. Brickley, Boston lawyer; Edward Williams, president of the Boston Terminal Co.; Dr. Peter J. W. Debye, Cornell University professor; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and John W. King, chairman of the board of John W. Bowen Co., Boston construction firm.

Administration, and Rev. Charles F. Donovan, S. J., dean of the School of Education.

Other recipients:

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

Francis J. Brick Award
George M. Bernier, Jr., Newton Center.
Rev. Joseph M. Fitzsimons Award
Lt. Rev. Joseph M. Gill, Winthrop
David Gill Scholarship Fund, $400.
The Scholarship Fund, $400.
George M. Bernier, Jr., Newton Center.
Rev. Patrick J. Duncan Medal
John H. Spurk, Lowell.
Pinneran Commencement Award, $100.
Nicholas M. Taurasso, Salem.
Philosophy Medal
Robert F. X. Renehan, Dorchester.
Leonard Oratory Award
Brian E. Concannon, Dorchester.

Science was Peter J. W. ze winner and of Cornell expelled from communists, is president of ze, Very Rev. ay, S. J.

erred six hon- Dr. John W. O'Meara, Worcester surgeon, and Dr. Francis J. Graceland, Hartford, Ct., psychiatrist, doctors of science, and to Most Rev. Jeremiah F. Minihan, auxiliary bishop of Boston; Judge John E. Fenton of Lawrence, New York tax consultant Sylvan Oestreicher and Prof. Stephan G. Kuttner of Catholic University, Doctors of Law.

In his address on the campus on Mt. St. James, Worcester, Gov. Herter said the liberal arts graduate fills a unique role in a world of specialists because he is a "whole man."

"Even in a stable world we could not afford to leave everything to specialists," the governor declared. "In a world of turbulence we need, more than ever, to depend on the ability to synthesize the work of specialists, to view their findings with proper perspective, to discern general trends, to see beneath the stage of the surface of the basic human aspirations which have governed men of all ages."

At Boston College's Alumni

Continued on Page 22, Column 1

ON DAILY GLOBE—WEDNESDAY, JUNE 13

Save-by-mail

SAVE-BY-MAIL
popular, safe and
way to save. You
mail-box is "open
your convenie

irles Muench, Symphony con-ay, Doctor of Laws; Dr. Peter enator John F. Kennedy, Doc-

the stage of
in its formal
e.

he faces is
be a hammer
s to give the
he was reared
broadest pos-
his learning.
miliar with the
can testify that

at the Alumni
ering, Profes-
called for edu-
nurture more reative ability,
civilizations, it
all that that prevail which imaginative
osal," he said.
t the face of power could nged by crea-
shifts by one e commented
Union might imaginative ven make our pretty useless

es: Page 2

B. C.

Continued from the First Page

Senator John F. Kennedy, one of the honorary degree recipients, was the principal speaker. He was awarded the degree of doctor of laws.

Others receiving honorary degrees were Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doctor of Music; Peter J. W. Debye, Nobel Prize winner, Doctor of Science; Bartholomew A. Brickley, Boston attorney, Doctor of Laws; Edward Williams, industrialist, financier and philanthropist, Doctor of Laws; Bishop A. Donaghy of Wuchow, China, Doctor of Laws, and John W. King, general manager, board chairman and treasurer of the John Bowen Construction Company, Doctor of Laws.

Among the graduates were Benjamin Lopez Jr., whose father is an ex-Vice President of the Philippine Islands, and Joseph M. Harney of Jamaica Plain, who represented the completion of 142 years of Catholic education in the Harney family.

Prior to the Commencement exercises, 90 seniors received commissions in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps at ceremonies of the Boston College ROTC Unit on the steps of the college's Bapst Library.

The Army commissions were awarded by Col Edwin M. Van Bidder, chief of the Massachusetts Military District, while Lt Col Earl R. McLaughlin presented the Marine commissions; Lt Weston Jenks, assistant professor of English at B. C., awarded the Navy ensign commissions.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 5070, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non partisan
Circ. 165,372

JUN 14 1959

By a Staff Photographer

Harvard President and Honorary

Three of the 12 men to receive honorary degrees at Harvard's 305th commencement ceremonies today are shown with Dr. Nathan M. Pusey, Harvard president. From left: Senator John F. Kennedy, former of George M

Kennedy Asks Politici

Cambridge, Mass.

By Mary Handy

Staff Correspondent of The Christian Sc

Senator John F. Kennedy called for a dynamic partnership between the American intellectual and the American politician at Harvard University commencement festivities here today.

"I would ask both groups to recall that the American politician of today and the American intellectual of today are descended from a common ancestry," said the Massachusetts democratic senator, who was honored by Harvard this morning with an honorary degree.

Degrees Awarded

"Both the American intellectual and politician operate within a common framework—a framework we call liberty," he said. "Finally, I would stress the great potential gain for both groups resulting from increased political cooperation."

Harvard awarded honorary degrees to 11 others at its 305th commencement ceremonies. Included were two members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, and Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court.

The other honorary degrees were given to:

John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College; Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge, England; Edward S. Mason, an economist and dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Public Administration; Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize bacteriologist and professor of bacteriology and immunology of the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy and Nathan Littauer, professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard; and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, and for 30 years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

'Growing Gap'

"It is regrettable that the gap between the intellectual and politician seems to be growing," Senator Kennedy told some 15,000 alumni, faculty, and friends gathered under the elms of Harvard Yard. He added:

"Instead of synthesis, clash and discord now characterize the relations between the two groups much of the time. . . .

Both sides in this battle, it seems to m largely un distrust.

"The pol ity rests the popul the schola terity, s position anchor o year.

'What

"The hand, fi the dif laborato In the f pure an to shar opinion mises cedura fect th what i "It has e politic horrib terne thrus sinis blast "L which in G wha wha "T gate

JUN 13 1956

B.C. to Graduate 1258 and Honor Seven Today

Very Rev. Joseph R. N. Maxwell, S. J., president of Boston College, will confer 1258 degrees in course at 80th Commencement exercises on Alumni Field, Chestnut Hill, at 3 p. m. today.

Archbishop Cushing will preside at the ceremonies at which seven honorary degrees will be conferred. Senator John F. Kennedy, one of the degree recipients, will be the principal speaker.

The exercises will be in Boston Garden in the event of rain.

Others to receive honorary degrees are:

Most Rev. Frederick A. Donaghy of Wuchow, China; Bartholomew A. Brickley, Boston attorney; Edward Williams, industrialist, philanthropist and financier; Dr. Peter J. W. Debye, Nobel prize winner and professor emeritus at Cornell University; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and John W. King, general manager, treasurer and board chairman of John Bowen Construction Company.

BOSTON COLLEGE

Page Four

Richard M. Doherty of 165 Wilson av., Wollaston, received the gold medal for general excellence in the College of Business Administration.

Patricia A. Moore, 27 Thompson Lane, Milton, received the medal for general excellence in the School of Education.

The tree oration was given by Brien Concannon of Dorchester, the salutatory by Anne R. Carroll of South Boston and the valedictory by Eugene G. McCarthy of Roxbury.

The academic awards were presented by Rev. John W. Ryan, S. J., dean of the College of Arts and Sciences; Rev. W. Seavey Joyce, S. J., dean of the College of Business Administration, and Rev. Charles F. Donovan, S. J., dean of the School of Education.

Other recipients:

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

Francis J. Brick Award
George M. Bernier, Jr., Newton Center.

Rt. Rev. Joseph M. Fitzsimons Award
David H. Gill, Winthrop

The Scholarship Fund, $400.
George M. Bernier, Jr., Newton Center.

Rev. Patrick J. Duncan Medal
John H. Spurk, Lowell.

Finneran Commencement Award, $100.
Nicholas M. Taurasco, Salem.

Philosophy Medal
Robert F. Renehan, Dorchester.

Lazard (oratory) Award
Brian E. Concannon, Dorchester.

O'Meara, Worcester surgeon, and Dr. Francis J. Graceland, Hartford, Ct., psychiatrist, doctors of science, and to Most Rev. Jeremiah F. Minihan, auxiliary bishop of Boston; Judge John E. Fenton of Lawrence, New York tax consultant Sylvan Oestreicher and Prof. Stephan G. Kuttner of Catholic University, Doctors of Law.

In his address on the campus on Mt. St. James, Worcester, Gov. Herter said the liberal arts graduate fills a unique role in a world of specialists because he is a "whole man."

"Even in a stable world we could not afford to leave everything to specialists," the governor declared. "In a world of turbulence we need, more than ever, to depend on the ability to synthesize the work of specialists, to view their findings with proper perspective, to discern general trends, to see beneath the surface of the basic human aspirations which have governed men of all ages."

At Boston College's Alumni

Continued on Page 22, Column 1

ns alma

y degrees
president,
Maxwell, e.
Kennedy,
of Laws,
to Bishop y of Wurtholomew industrial-Williams, hairman of ohn Bowen conductor ony Orches-Doctor of onorary de-science was eter J. W.

winner and of Cornell

xpelled from mmunists, is president of Very Rev.
, S. J.

red six hon-
Dr. John W.

ESTON DAILY GLOBE—WEDNESDAY, JUNE 13, 19

Save-by-mail

SAVE-BY-MAIL
popular, safe and
way to save. You mail-box is "open
convenie

rles Muench, Symphony con-
y, Doctor of Laws; Dr. Peter
nator John F. Kennedy, Doc-

B. C.

Continued from the First Page

Senator John F. Kennedy, one of the honorary degree recipients, was the principal speaker. He was awarded the degree of doctor of laws.

Others receiving honorary degrees were Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doctor of Music; Peter J. W. Debye, Nobel Prize winner, Doctor of Science; Bartholomew A. Brickley, Boston attorney, Doctor of Laws; Edward Williams, industrialist, financier and philanthropist, Doctor of Laws; Bishop A. Donaghy of Wuchow, China, Doctor of Laws, and John W. King, general manager, board chairman and treasurer of the John Bowen Construction Company, Doctor of Laws.

Among the graduates were Benjamin Lopez Jr., whose father is an ex-Vice President of the Philippine Islands, and Joseph M. Harney of Jamaica Plain, who represented the completion of 142 years of Catholic education in the Harney family.

Prior to the Commencement exercises, 90 seniors received commissions in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps at ceremonies of the Boston College ROTC Unit on the steps of the college's Bapst Library.

The Army commissions were awarded by Col Edwin M. Van Bidder, chief of the Massachusetts Military District, while Lt Col Earl R. McLaughlin presented the Marine commissions; Lt Weston Jenks, assistant professor of English at B. C., awarded the Navy ensign commissions.

F a hammer.
the stage of
in its formal

he faces is
be a hammer to give the e was reared broadest pos-
his learning.
iliar with the an testify that

t the Alumni ring, Profesalled for edu-
nurture more
eative ability.
civilizations, it
ll that that prevail which imaginative
and," he said.
the face of power could ged by crea-shifts by one
e commented
Union might imaginative en make our retty useless

s: Page 2

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston • Richmond 2-4200

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non partisan
Circ. 165,372

JUN 4 1958

103

By a Staff Photographer

Harvard President and Honorary

Three of the 12 men to receive honorary degrees at Harvard's 305th commencement ceremonies today are shown with Dr. Nathan M. Pusey, Harvard president. From left: Senator John F. Kennedy; former of George M

Kennedy Asks Politici

Cambridge, Mass.

By Mary Handy

Staff Correspondent of The Christian Sc

Senator John F. Kennedy called for a dynamic partnership between the American intellectual and the American politician at Harvard University commencement festivities here today.

"I would ask both groups to recall that the American politician of today and the American intellectual of today are descended from a common ancestry," said the Massachusetts democratic senator, who was honored by Harvard this morning with an honorary degree.

Degrees Awarded

"Both the American intellectual and politician operate within a common framework—a framework we call liberty," he said. "Finally, I would stress the great potential gain for both groups resulting from increased political cooperation."

Harvard awarded honorary degrees to 11 others at its 305th commencement ceremonies. Included were two members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, and Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court.

The other honorary degrees were given to:

John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College; Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge, England; Edward S. Mason, an economist and dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Public Administration; Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize bacteriologist and professor of bacteriology and immunology of the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy and Nathan Littauer, professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard; and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, and for 30 years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

'Growing Gap'

"It is regrettable that the gap between the intellectual and politician seems to be growing," Senator Kennedy told some 15,000 alumni, faculty, and friends gathered under the elms of Harvard Yard. He added:

"Instead of synthesis, clash and discord now characterize the relations between the two groups much of the time. . . . Both sides in this battle, it seems to m largely un distrust.

"The poli ity rests u the popula the scholar terity, sli position v anchor of

'What W

"The in hand, fin the diff laborator In the fo pure and to chang opinion; mises a cedural fect the what is

"It se has con politicia horribl ternecir thrust, sinister blast.

"Let which in con what what

"Wa gate C

Continued from the First Page

The honorary degree of doctor of laws will be conferred upon Senator Kennedy, Bishop Donaghy, Brickley, Williams and King. Dr. Debye will receive an honorary doctor of science degree and Munch will receive an honorary doctor of music degree.

Awards Distributed

Last evening, annual Class Night ceremonies were held at Boston College where awards were distributed to outstanding seniors.

Charles E. Murgia of 288 Dudley st., Roxbury, was awarded the gold medal for general excellence in the College of Arts and Sciences. He also won the William Cardinal O'Connell Theology Medal, given to the student who has attained the highest average in all courses in theology studied during four years.

Richard M. Doherty of 165 Wilson av., Wollaston, received the gold medal for general excellence in the College of Business Administration.

Patricia A. Moore, 27 Thompson Lane, Milton, received the medal for general excellence in the School of Education.

The tree oration was given by Brien Concannon of Dorchester, the salutatory by Anne R. Carroll of South Boston and the valedictory by Eugene G. McCarthy of Roxbury.

The academic awards were presented by Rev. John W. Ryan, S. J., dean of the College of Arts and Sciences; Rev. W. Seavey Joyce, S. J., dean of the College of Business Administration, and Rev. Charles F. Donovan, S. J., dean of the School of Education.

Other recipients:

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

Francis J. Brick Award
George M. Bernier, Jr., Newton Center.
Rt. Rev. Joseph M. Fitzgibbons Award
David H. Gill, Winthrop
The Scholarship Fund, $400.
George M. Bernier, Jr., Newton Center.
Rev. Patrick J. Duneaan Medal
John H. Spurk, Lowell.
Pinneran Commencement Award, $100.
Nicholas M. Tsuraso, Salem.
Philosophy Medal
Robert F. X. Sheehan, Dorchester.
Leonard (oratory) Award
Brian E. Concannon, Dorchester.

...rred six hon- ... Dr. John W. O'Meara, Worcester surgeon, and Dr. Francis J. Graceland, Hartford, Ct., psychiatrist, doctors of science, and to Most Rev. Jeremiah F. Minihan, auxiliary bishop of Boston; Judge John E. Fenton of Lawrence, New York tax consultant Sylvan Oestreicher and Prof. Stephan G. Kuttner of Catholic University, Doctors of Law.

In his address on the campus on Mt. St. James, Worcester, Gov. Herter said the liberal arts graduate fills a unique role in a world of specialists because he is a "whole man."

"Even in a stable world we could not afford to leave everything to specialists," the governor declared. "In a world of turbulence we need, more than ever, to depend on the ability to synthesize the work of specialists, to view their findings with proper perspective, to discern general trends, to see beneath the surface of the basic human aspirations which have governed men of all ages."

At Boston College's Alumni

Continued on Page 22, Column 1

...NCEMENT—Dr. Charles Muench, Symphony con- ... Frederick A. Donaghy, Doctor of Laws; Dr. Peter ... Doctor of Science; Senator John F. Kennedy, Doc-

B. C.

Continued from the First Page

Senator John F. Kennedy, one of the honorary degree recipients, was the principal speaker. He was awarded the degree of doctor of laws.

Others receiving honorary degrees were Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doctor of Music; Peter J. W. Debye, Nobel Prize winner, Doctor of Science; Bartholomew A. Brickley, Boston attorney, Doctor of Laws; Edward Williams, industrialist, financier and philanthropist, Doctor of Laws; Bishop A. Donaghy of Wuchow, China, Doctor of Laws, and John W. King, general manager, board chairman and treasurer of the John Bowen Construction Company, Doctor of Laws.

Among the graduates were Benjamin Lopez Jr., whose father is an ex-Vice President of the Philippine Islands, and Joseph M. Harney of Jamaica Plain, who represented the completion of 142 years of Catholic education in the Harney family.

Prior to the Commencement exercises, 90 seniors received commissions in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps at ceremonies of the Boston College ROTC Unit on the steps of the college's Bapst Library.

The Army commissions were awarded by Col Edwin M. Van Bidder, chief of the Massachusetts Military District, while Lt Col Earl R. McLaughlin presented the Marine commissions; Lt Weston Jenks, assistant professor of English at B. C., awarded the Navy ensign commissions.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 507 Boston 1 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 14 1956

By a Staff Photographer

Harvard President and Honorary

Three of the 12 men to receive honorary degrees at Harvard's 305th commencement ceremonies today are shown with Dr. Nathan M. Pusey, Harvard president. From left: Senator John F. Kennedy, ... furter of ... George M ...

Kennedy Asks Politic

Cambridge, Mass.

By Mary Handy

Staff Correspondent of The Christian

Senator John F. Kennedy called for a dynamic partnership between the American intellectual and the American politician at Harvard University commencement festivities here today.

"I would ask both groups to recall that the American politician of today and the American intellectual of today are descended from a common ancestry," said the Massachusetts democratic senator, who was honored by Harvard this morning with an honorary degree.

Degrees Awarded

"Both the American intellectual and politician operate within a common framework—a framework we call liberty," he said. "Finally, I would stress the great potential gain for both groups resulting from increased political cooperation."

Harvard awarded honorary degrees to 11 others at its 305th commencement ceremonies. Included were two members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, and Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court.

The other honorary degrees were given to:

John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College; Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge, England; Edward S. Mason, an economist and dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Public Administration; Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize bacteriologist and professor of bacteriology and immunology of the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy and Nathan Littauer, professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard; and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, and for 30 years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

'Growing Gap'

"It is regrettable that the gap between the intellectual and politician seems to be growing," Senator Kennedy told some 15,000 alumni, faculty, and friends gathered under the elms of Harvard Yard. He added:

"Instead of synthesis, clash and discord now characterize the relations between the two groups much of the time. . . . Both sides in this battle, it seems to largely u distrust.

"The p ity rests the popul the schol terity, s position anchor o

'What W

"The i hand, fin the diff laborator In the fo pure and to chang opinion; mises an cedural fect the what is r

"It see has com politician horrible ternecine thrust, the sinister of blast.

"Let us no which we diff in common. what we fe what we sha

"Was John gate Greek v

JUN 13 1956

Colleges Honor Notables

Sen. John F. Kennedy received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Boston College today and delivered the commencement address to 1258 seniors and graduate students.

In Worcester, Gov. Herter was the commencement speaker at exercises for 393 seniors and seven graduate students at Holy Cross.

In Cambridge, President Wilbur K. Jordan conferred degrees on 230 seniors and 114 graduate students at Radcliffe.

Tomorrow, Harvard holds its commencement. Today, its graduating classes and alumni held their traditional Class Day rites.

Kennedy is slated to pick up another honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Harvard, his alma mater, tomorrow.

At B. C., the honorary degrees were bestowed by the president, Very Rev. Joseph R. N. Maxwell, S. J. In addition to Kennedy, the degrees of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa, went to Bishop Frederick A. Donaghy of Wuchow, China, Atty. Bartholomew A. Brickley of Boston, industrialist-financier Edward Williams, and John W. King, chairman of the board of the John Bowen Construction Co.

To Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, went an honorary Doctor of Music degree. An honorary degree of Doctor of Science was conferred on Dr. Peter J. W. Debye, a Nobel Prize winner and professor emeritus of Cornell University.

Bishop Donaghy, expelled from Red China by the Communists, is the brother of the president of Holy Cross College, Very Rev. William A. Donaghy, S. J.

6 H. C. DEGREES

The latter conferred six honorary degrees: to Dr. John W. O'Meara, Worcester surgeon, and Dr. Francis J. Graceland, Hartford, Ct., psychiatrist, doctors of science, and to Most Rev. Jeremiah F. Minihan, auxiliary bishop of Boston; Judge John E. Fenton of Lawrence, New York tax consultant Sylvan Oestreicher and Prof. Stephan G. Kuttner of Catholic University, Doctors of Law.

In his address on the campus on Mt. St. James, Worcester, Gov. Herter said the liberal arts graduate fills a unique role in a world of specialists because he is a "whole man."

"Even in a stable world we could not afford to leave everything to specialists," the governor declared. "In a world of turbulence we need, more than ever, to depend on the ability to synthesize the work of specialists, to view their findings with proper perspective, to discern general trends, to see beneath the surface of the basic human aspirations which have governed men of all ages."

At Boston College's Alumni

Continued on Page 22, Column 1

BOSTON DAILY GLOBE—WEDNESDAY, JUNE 13 1956

Save-by-mail

SAVE-BY-MAIL popular, safe and way to save. You mail-box is "open ... your convenie

NCEMENT—Dr. Charles Muench, Symphony con- Frederick A. Donaghy, Doctor of Laws; Dr. Peter Doctor of Science; Senator John F. Kennedy, Doc-

...ntation.

...Tie

...berty of the ...hen the ...shmen was im- ...e duty of the ...larly in a re- ...ours—is to con- ...ctive views and ...rty to the affairs ...nation.

...Speaks

...can intellectual ...day must decide, ...it, whether he is ...—or a hammer. ...ny, the stage of ...ast in its formal ...plete.

...on he faces is ...to be a hammer ...is to give the ...h he was reared ...the broadest pos- ...of his learning. ...familiar with the ...I can testify that

...g at the Alumni ...thering, Profes- ...h called for edu- ...ll nurture more ...creative ability. ...of civilizations, it ...all that that ...o prevail which ...ter imaginative ...sposal," he said. ...that the face of ...of power could ...hanged by crea- ...ve shifts by one ...He commented ...Union might ...imaginative ...even make our ...pretty useless

...ries: Page 2

B. C.

Continued from the First Page

Senator John F. Kennedy, one of the honorary degree recipients, was the principal speaker. He was awarded the degree of doctor of laws.

Others receiving honorary degrees were Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doctor of Music; Peter J. W. Debye, Nobel Prize winner, Doctor of Science; Bartholomew A. Brickley, Boston attorney, Doctor of Laws; Edward Williams, industrialist, financier and philanthropist, Doctor of Laws; Bishop A. Donaghy of Wuchow, China, Doctor of Laws, and John W. King, general manager, board chairman and treasurer of the John Bowen Construction Company, Doctor of Laws.

Among the graduates were Benjamin Lopez Jr., whose father is an ex-Vice President of the Philippine Islands, and Joseph M. Harney of Jamaica Plain, who represented the completion of 142 years of Catholic education in the Harney family.

Prior to the Commencement exercises, 90 seniors received commissions in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps at ceremonies of the Boston College ROTC Unit on the steps of the college's Bapst Library.

The Army commissions were awarded by Col Edwin M. Van Bidder, chief of the Massachusetts Military District, while Lt Col Earl R. McLaughlin presented the Marine commissions; Lt Weston Jenks, assistant professor of English at B. C., awarded the Navy ensign commissions.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Boston • Richmond 2-4200

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

By a Staff Photographer

Harvard President and Honorary

Three of the 12 men to receive honorary degrees at Harvard's 305th commencement ceremonies today are shown with Dr. Nathan M. Pusey, Harvard president. From left: Senator John F. Kennedy, Dr. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Dr. John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College.

Kennedy Asks Politic

Cambridge, Mass.

By Mary Handy
Staff Correspondent of The Christia

Senator John F. Kennedy led for a dynamic partnership tween the American intellec- l and the American politician Harvard University com- ncement festivities here to- y.

I would ask both groups to all that the American poli- an of today and the American ellectual of today are de- nded from a common ances- ," said the Massachusetts mocratic senator, who was nored by Harvard this morn- with an honorary degree.

grees Awarded

Both the American intellec- l and politician operate with- a common framework—a mework we call liberty," he d. "Finally, I would stress the at potential gain for both ups resulting from increased litical cooperation."

Harvard awarded honorary grees to 11 others at its 305th mmencement ceremonies. In- uded were two members of esident Eisenhower's Cabinet, cretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, and Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court.

The other honorary degrees were given to:

John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College; Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge, England; Edward S. Mason, an economist and dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Public Administration; Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize bacteriologist and professor of bacteriology and immunology of the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy and Nathan Littauer, professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard; and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, and for 30 years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

'Growing Gap'

"It is regrettable that the gap between the intellectual and politician seems to be growing," Senator Kennedy told some 15,000 alumni, faculty, and friends gathered under the elms of Harvard Yard. He added:

"Instead of synthesis, clash and discord now characterize the relations between the two groups much of the time. . . . Both sides in this battle, it seems t largely distrust

"The ity rest the poi the sch terity, positior anchor

'What

"The hand, the d laborat In the pure a to cha opinior mises cedurs fect t what

"It has c politic horrib ternecine warfare, the most thrust, the acid pen, and most sinister of all—the rhetorical blast.

"Let us not emphasize all on which we differ, but all we have in common. Let us consider not what we fear separately but what we share together.

"Was John Milton to conjugate Greek verbs in his library

Knapp Shoes

eather

US KNOPF

price!

READY NOW • •
BOSTON STORE
OPEN
TONIGHT
'TIL 8:30 P. M.

sts

ayings

N RD., Miami
STOCK
st season's)

Choose to 46 regushorts.
ported tab of beige o

STON DAILY GLOBE—WEDNESDAY, JUNE 12, 19

Save-by-mail

SAVE-BY-MAIL
popular, safe and
way to save. You
mail-box is "open
your convenie

NCEMENT—Dr. Charles Muench, Symphony con- Frederick A. Donaghy, Doctor of Laws; Dr. Peter Doctor of Science; Senator John F. Kennedy, Doc-

Colleges

Continued from Page 5

Field, presiding at the afternoon commencement exercises, Archbishop Cushing said in part:

"Too often and in too many institutions . . . education is shut off from the distinctively human factor in human personality—the soul. You can thank God that you have been spared such a calamity. You can boast that you are the recipients of a training that has kept faith with the soundest of educational traditions and with the sensible rights of education to develop the entire human personality.

"You have a training that keeps faith with the rights of education to develop the entire person physically, mentally, spiritually, morally, in reference to its duties to self, to society and to God."

At Radcliffe's 74th commencement, held in Harvard's Sanders Theater,, the commencement address was delivered by Lewis Mumford, author, philosopher and city planner. His daughter, Alison, was among the seniors who heard him.

"In order to live with impunity in what some people like to call the atomic age," he said, "it may be necessary for us to bring back some of the stone age virtues we have cast aside —not least, a sense of human limits and inviolable moral taboos. We lead not self-directed, but machine-directed lives."

At Harvard, First Marshal Cliff F. Thompson of Kansas City, Mo., led the senior class into the Sever Quadrangle for the Class Day rites. Thompson, former president of the Harvard Crimson, the student newspaper, was assisted by the 1955 football captain, William M. Meigs of Syracuse, N. Y., as second marshal, and Arthur G.

d secretary
d citation.

ar Tie

The liberty of the unanimity when the Establishmen was im- p, the duty of the rticularly in a re- as ours—is to con- objective views and t liberty to the affairs and nation.

rth Speaks

merican intellectual r today must decide, put it, whether he is anvil—or a hammer. r many, the stage of at least in its formal complete.

uestion he faces is he is to be a hammer er he is to give the which he was reared ated the broadest pos- nefits of his learning. who is familiar with the world, I can testify that it."

peaking at the Alumni on gathering, Profes- erworth called for edu- hat will nurture more imagination and creative ability.

"In a conflict of civilizations, it is true above all that that one is likely to prevail which has the greater imaginative power at its disposal," he said.

He warned that the face of world balance of power could be materially changed by creative, imaginative shifts by one side or the other. He commented that the Soviet Union might conceive of some imaginative plan "that might even make our hydrogen bombs pretty useless to us."

Related Stories: Page 2

B. C.

Continued from the First Page

Senator John F. Kennedy, one of the honorary degree recipients, was the principal speaker. He was awarded the degree of doctor of laws.

Others receiving honorary degrees were Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doctor of Music; Peter J. W. Debye, Nobel Prize winner, Doctor of Science; Bartholomew A. Brickley, Boston attorney, Doctor of Laws; Edward Williams, industrialist, financier and philanthropist, Doctor of Laws; Bishop A. Donaghy of Wuchow, China, Doctor of Laws, and John W. King, general manager, board chairman and treasurer of the John Bowen Construction Company, Doctor of Laws.

Among the graduates were Benjamin Lopez Jr., whose father is an ex-Vice President of the Philippine Islands, and Joseph M. Harney of Jamaica Plain, who represented the completion of 142 years of Catholic education in the Harney family.

Prior to the Commencement exercises, 90 seniors received commissions in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps at ceremonies of the Boston College ROTC Unit on the steps of the college's Bapst Library.

The Army commissions were awarded by Col Edwin M. Van Bidder, chief of the Massachusetts Military District, while Lt Col Earl R. McLaughlin presented the Marine commissions; Lt Weston Jenks, assistant professor of English at B. C., awarded the Navy ensign commissions.

England News Agency, Inc.
Richmond 2-4200
Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,372

US KNOPF
price!
READY NOW
BOSTON STORE
OPEN
TONIGHT
TIL 8:30 P. M.
Knopf Shoes
Weather
LN RD., Miami
STOCK

BOSTON DAILY GLOBE—WEDNESDAY, JUNE 13, 19

Save-by-mail
SAVE-BY-MAIL popular, safe and way to save. You mail-box is "open

Staff Photographer

Harvard President and Honorary

Three of the 12 men to receive honorary degrees at Harvard's 305th commencement ceremonies today are shown with Dr. Nathan M. Pusey, Harvard president. From left: Senator John F. Kennedy, Dr. Peter Munch, Symphony conductor, and Dr. John F. Kennedy, Doctor of Laws.

Kennedy Asks Politic

Cambridge, Mass.

By Mary Handy

Staff Correspondent of The Christia

Senator John F. Kennedy called for a dynamic partnership between the American intellectual and the American politician at Harvard University commencement festivities here today.

"I would ask both groups to recall that the American politician of today and the American intellectual of today are descended from a common ancestry," said the Massachusetts democratic senator, who was honored by Harvard this morning with an honorary degree.

Degrees Awarded

"Both the American intellectual and politician operate within a common framework—a framework we call liberty," he said. "Finally, I would stress the great potential gain for both groups resulting from increased political cooperation."

Harvard awarded honorary degrees to 11 others at its 305th commencement ceremonies. Included were two members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, and Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court.

The other honorary degrees were given to:

John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College; Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge, England; Edward S. Mason, an economist and dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Public Administration; Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize bacteriologist and professor of bacteriology and immunology of the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy and Nathan Littauer, professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard; and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, and for 30 years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

'Growing Gap'

"It is regrettable that the gap between the intellectual and politician seems to be growing," Senator Kennedy told some 15,000 alumni, faculty, and friends gathered under the elms of Harvard Yard. He added:

"Instead of synthesis, clash and discord now characterize the relations between the two groups much of the time. . . . Both sides in this battle, it seems t largely distrust.

"The ity rest the pop the sch terity, position anchor

'What

"The hand, fi the di laborato In the pure an to chan opinion; mises a cedural fect the what is

"It se has co politicia horrible ternecir thrust, the acid pen, and—most sinister of all—the rhetorical blast.

"Let us not emphasize all on which we differ, but all we have in common. Let us consider not what we fear separately but what we share together. . . .

"Was John Milton to conjugate Greek verbs in his library

Colleges

Continued from Page 5

Field, presiding at the afternoon commencement exercises, Archbishop Cushing said in part:

"Too often and in too many institutions . . . education is shut off from the distinctively human factor in human personality—the soul. You can thank God that you have been spared such a calamity. You can boast that you are the recipients of a training that has kept faith with the soundest of educational traditions and with the sensible rights of education to develop the entire human personality.

"You have a training that keeps faith with the rights of education to develop the entire person physically, mentally, spiritually, morally, in reference to its duties to self, to society and to God."

At Radcliffe's 74th commencement, held in Harvard's Sanders Theater,, the commencement address was delivered by Lewis Mumford, author, philosopher and city planner. His daughter, Alison, was among the seniors who heard him.

"In order to live with impunity in what some people like to call the atomic age," he said, "it may be necessary for us to bring back some of the stone age virtues we have cast aside—not least, a sense of human limits and inviolable moral taboos. We lead not self-directed, but machine-directed lives."

At Harvard, First Marshal Cliff F. Thompson of Kansas City, Mo., led the senior class into the Sever Quadrangle for the Class Day rites. Thompson, former president of the Harvard Crimson, the student newspaper, was assisted by the 1955 football captain, William M. Meigs of Syracuse, N. Y., as second marshal, and Arthur G. Siler of Orlinda, Cal., track team captain and Rhodes scholar, third marshal.

Alumni of the Harvard graduate schools, gathered in the Harkness Quadrangle of the Graduate Center, heard addresses by U. S. Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, former professor of law at the university, and President James Phinney Baxter, 3rd, of Williams College. For Frankfurter, the occasion marked the 50th anniversary of his graduattion from Harvard Law School.

Eighty of the 998 Harvard seniors who will be graduated tomorrow have been elected to the Phi Beta Kappa honor society. Nineteen of the 80 are Massachusetts residents.

ar Tie

"The liberty of the humanities when the Englishmen was im-, the duty of the ticularly in a re- as ours—is to con- objective views and liberty to the affairs and nation.

rth Speaks

merican intellectual today must decide, put it, whether he is anvil—or a hammer. many, the stage of at least in its formal complete.

uestion he faces is is to be a hammer he is to give the which he was reared ted the broadest pos- efits of his learning. o is familiar with the orld, I can testify that t."

eaking at the Alumni gathering, Profes- worth called for edu- it will nurture more imagination and creative ability.

"In a conflict of civilizations, it is true above all that that one is likely to prevail which has the greater imaginative power at its disposal," he said.

He warned that the face of a balance of power could be completely changed by creative, imaginative shifts by one side or the other. He commented that the Soviet Union might conceive of some imaginative plan "that might even make our hydrogen bombs pretty useless to us."

Related Stories: Page 2

Muench, Symphony con- Doctor of Laws; Dr. Peter or John F. Kennedy, Doc-

B. C.

Continued from the First Page

Senator John F. Kennedy, one of the honorary degree recipients, was the principal speaker. He was awarded the degree of doctor of laws.

Others receiving honorary degrees were Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doctor of Music; Peter J. W. Debye, Nobel Prize winner, Doctor of Science; Bartholomew A. Brickley, Boston attorney, Doctor of Laws; Edward Williams, industrialist, financier and philanthropist, Doctor of Laws; Bishop A. Donaghy of Wuchow, China, Doctor of Laws, and John W. King, general manager, board chairman and treasurer of the John Bowen Construction Company, Doctor of Laws.

Among the graduates were Benjamin Lopez Jr., whose father is an ex-Vice President of the Philippine Islands, and Joseph M. Harney of Jamaica Plain, who represented the completion of 142 years of Catholic education in the Harney family.

Prior to the Commencement exercises, 90 seniors received commissions in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps at ceremonies of the Boston College ROTC Unit on the steps of the college's Bapst Library.

The Army commissions were awarded by Col Edwin M. Van Bidder, chief of the Massachusetts Military District, while Lt Col Earl R. McLaughlin presented the Marine commissions; Lt Weston Jenks, assistant professor of English at B. C., awarded the Navy ensign commissions.

ER MAN
'S DEGREE
Gribbons of ve of Worcesmaster's de tion today versity co
rcises.
received ree last niversity. H
High Scho

JUN 1 3 1956

Kennedy Receives Degree, Speaks at B. C.

1258 Receive B. C. Degrees; Seven Honored

Under a blistering hot sun the 80th Boston College Commencement exercises were held on Alumni Field, Chestnut Hill, this afternoon.

Very Rev. Joseph R. N. Maxwell, S. J., president of the college, presented 1258 degrees in course to students from the various B. C. schools.

The long procession of capped and gowned graduates wound its way slowly from the Tower Building down the slope to Alumni Field.

Archbishop Cushing presided over the exercises, at which seven honorary degrees were conferred.

B. C.
Page Twenty-three

CEMENT—Dr. Charles Muench, Symphony con- Frederick A. Donaghy, Doctor of Laws; Dr. Peter Doctor of Science; Senator John F. Kennedy, Doc-

...ony Orchestra; ...ey, president of ...llege; Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge, England; Edward S. Mason, an economist and dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Public Administration; Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize bacteriologist and professor of bacteriology and immunology of the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy and Nathan Littauer, professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard; and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, and for 30 years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

'Growing Gap'

"It is regrettable that the gap between the intellectual and politician seems to be growing," Senator Kennedy told some 15,000 alumni, faculty, and friends gathered under the elms of Harvard Yard, he added.

"Instead of synthesis, clash and discord now characterize the relations between the two groups much of the time. . . . Both sides in this battle, it

"I would ask both groups to ...ecall that the American poli- ...ician of today and the American ...ntellectual of today are de- ...cended from a common ances- ...ry," said the Massachusetts ...emocratic senator, who was ...onored by Harvard this morn- ...g with an honorary degree.

...egrees Awarded

"Both the American intellec- ...al and politician operate with- ... a common framework—a ...ramework we call liberty," he ...aid. "Finally, I would stress the ...reat potential gain for both ...roups resulting from increased ...olitical cooperation."

Harvard awarded honorary ...egrees to 11 others at its 305th ...ommencement ceremonies. In- ...cluded were two members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, and Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court.

The other honorary degrees were given to:

John Cowles, publisher of the ...ister of Orlinda, Cal., track team ...aptain and Rhodes scholar, third ...arshal and alumni of the Harvard ...ate schools, graduate in the ...aduates by U. S. Circuit Court Judge ...ofessor Felix Frankfurter, former ...d President James Bryant Conant ...xter, 3rd, of the university, Princeton ...ankfurter, James Williams College ...ed the 30th anniversary of the occasion from ...Schools.

B. C.

Continued from the First Page

Senator John F. Kennedy, one of the honorary degree recipients, was the principal speaker. He was awarded the degree of doctor of laws.

Others receiving honorary degrees were Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doctor of Music; Peter J. W. Debye, Nobel Prize winner, Doctor of Science; Bartholomew A. Brickley, Boston attorney, Doctor of Laws; Edward Williams, industrialist, financier and philanthropist, Doctor of Laws; Bishop A. Donaghy of Wuchow, China, Doctor of Laws, and John W. King, general manager, board chairman and treasurer of the John Bowen Construction Company, Doctor of Laws.

Among the graduates were Benjamin Lopez Jr., whose father is an ex-Vice President of the Philippine Islands, and Joseph M. Harney of Jamaica Plain, who represented the completion of 142 years of Catholic education in the Harney family.

Prior to the Commencement exercises, 90 seniors received commissions in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps at ceremonies of the Boston College ROTC Unit on the steps of the college's Bapst Library.

The Army commissions were awarded by Col Edwin M. Van Bidder, chief of the Massachusetts Military District, while Lt Col Earl R. McLaughlin presented the Marine commissions; Lt Weston Jenks, assistant professor of English at B. C., awarded the Navy ensign commissions.

...Frank- ...Secretary ...tation.

...lar Tie

...of the ...Shinamiken, when the ...of Englishmen was im- ...No., the duty of the ...—particularly in a re- ...uch as ours—is to con- ...his objective views and ...e of liberty to the affairs ...state and nation.

...rworth Speaks

American intellectual ...olar today must decide, ...he put it, whether he is ...an anvil—or a hammer. ...for many, the stage of ...least in its formal ...is complete.

...question he faces is ...he is to be a hammer ...ther he is to give the ...n which he was reared ...ucated the broadest pos- ...enefits of his learning. ...who is familiar with the ...world, I can testify that ...it."

...speaking at the Alumni ...ion gathering, Profes- ...terworth called for edu- ...that will nurture more ...tion and creative ability. ...conflict of civilizations, it ...above all that that ...likely to prevail which ...greater imaginative ...its disposal," he said. ...arned that the face of ...balance of power could ...tally changed by crea- ...imaginative shifts by one ...he commented ...Soviet Union might ...imaginative ...at might even make our ...n bombs pretty useless.

...ted Stories: Page 2

Senator Kennedy Receives Degree, Speaks at B. C.

HONORED AT B. C. COMMENCEMENT—Dr. Charles Muench, Symphony conductor, Doctor of Music; Bishop Frederick A. Donaghy, Doctor of Laws; Dr. Peter J. W. Debye, Nobel prize winner, Doctor of Science; Senator John F. Kennedy, Doctor of Laws.

...can politician ...t Harvard University com-...nencement festivities here to-...day.

"I would ask both groups to ...recall that the American poli-...tician of today and the American ...intellectual of today are de-...scended from a common ances-...try," said the Massachusetts ...democratic senator, who was ...honored by Harvard this morn-...ing with an honorary degree.

Degrees Awarded

"Both the American intellec-...tual and politician operate with-...in a common framework—a ...framework we call liberty," he ...said. "Finally, I would stress the ...great potential gain for both ...groups resulting from increased ...political cooperation."

Harvard awarded honorary degrees to 11 others at its 305th commencement ceremonies. Included were two members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, and Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court.

The other honorary degrees were given to:

John Cowles, publisher of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College; Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge, England; Edward S. Mason, an economist and dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Public Administration; Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize bacteriologist and professor of bacteriology and immunology of the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy and Nahum Littauer, professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard; and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, and for 30 years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

'Growing Gap'

"It is regrettable that the gap between the intellectual and politician seems to be growing," Senator Kennedy told some 15,000 alumni, faculty, and friends gathered under the elms of Harvard Yard, he added.

"Instead of synthesis, clash and discord now characterize the relations between the two groups much of the time. . . . Both sides in this battle, it distru... "Th... ity re... the po... the so... terity, ... positio... anchor...

Wha...

"Th... hand, ... the c... labora... It the ... pure a... to wha... opinion... mises ... cedural ... fect th... what is...

"It ... has con... politici... horrible... ternecin... thrust... sinister... blast.

"Let ... which ... what ... what w...

"Was ... gate Gr...

B. C.

Continued from the First Page

Senator John F. Kennedy, one of the honorary degree recipients, was the principal speaker. He was awarded the degree of doctor of laws.

Others receiving honorary degrees were Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doctor of Music; Peter J. W. Debye, Nobel Prize winner, Doctor of Science; Bartholomew A. Brickley, Boston attorney, Doctor of Laws; Edward Williams, industrialist, financier and philanthropist, Doctor of Laws; Bishop A. Donaghy of Wuchow, China, Doctor of Laws, and John W. King, general manager, board chairman and treasurer of the John Bowen Construction Company, Doctor of Laws.

Among the graduates were Benjamin Lopez Jr., whose father is an ex-Vice President of the Philippine Islands, and Joseph M. Harney of Jamaica Plain, who represented the completion of 142 years of Catholic education in the Harney family.

Prior to the Commencement exercises, 90 seniors received commissions in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps at ceremonies of the Boston College ROTC Unit on the steps of the college's Bapst Library.

The Army commissions were awarded by Col Edwin M. Van Bidder, chief of the Massachusetts Military District, while Lt Col Earl R. McLaughlin presented the Marine commissions; Lt Weston Jenks, assistant professor of English at B. C., awarded the Navy ensign commissions.

...Tie

...of the ...Shunamite, when the ...of Englishmen was im-...No, the duty of the ...—particularly in a re-...such as ours—is to con-...his objective views and ...of liberty to the affairs ...state and nation.

...rworth Speaks

American intellectual ...polar today must decide, ...put it, whether he is ...anvil or a hammer. ...for many, the stage of ...at least in its formal ...is complete.

...question he faces is ...he is to be a hammer ...ther he is to give the ...in which he was reared ...ucated the broadest pos-...benefits of his learning. ...who is familiar with the ...world, I can testify that ...it."

...speaking at the Alumni ...tion gathering, Profes-...terworth called for edu-...that will nurture more ...tion and creative ability. ...conflict of civilizations, it ...above all that that ...likely to prevail which ...greater imaginative ...its disposal," he said. ...arned that the face of ...alance of power could ...easily changed by crea-...imaginative shifts by one ...side. He commented ...Soviet Union might ...imaginative ...at might even make our ...a bomb pretty useless.

...ted Stories: Page 2

...ew England News ...

Worry of ...

Sister of Orinda, Cal., ...captain and Rhodes schol-...marshal of the Harvard ...Alumni and Rhodes schol-...schools, graduated in the ...graduate Center, heard ...by U. S. Supreme Court ...Felix Frankfurter, former ...President of Harvard ...James Bryant Conant ...Williams College, Princeton ...graduation from the 50th ...anniversary of the occasion ...Frankfurter, the university ...Schools, who was ...

...Los Angeles Boast: 3d in Telephones

LOS ANGELES, June 13 (AP)—The City of Los Angeles, claiming to rank third in the nation in population, has a new boast today: third nationally in telephones.

Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company says a survey shows 60.3 telephones per 100 population in the central Los Angeles exchange area.

Washington, D. C., has the most, 64.2 telephones per 100, followed by Atlantic City, 62.8 per 100. While Tuscaloosa, Ala., has the fewest, 20.4 per 100 residents, the survey showed.

...Ville, Ky., ...bum, they decided ...tions in English, ...made, to the Hans Christian Andersen Museum at Odense, Den-...mark.

The gifts, which already have ...begun, were legally formalized in Hershold's will. Filed for probate yesterday, The rest of the estate, believed to exceed $250,000, was left to the widow.

...ER MAN ...ER'S DEGREE

...Gribbons of ...ive of Worces-...a master's de-...ation today ...iversity co-...ercises.

...as received ...gree last ...University. ...High Sch...

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 5070, Boston • Richmond 2-4200
Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,372
JUN 14 1956

103

By a Staff Photographer

Harvard President and Honorary Degree Recipients

Three of the 12 men to receive honorary degrees at Harvard's 305th commencement ceremonies today are shown with Dr. Nathan M. Pusey, Harvard president. From left: Senator John F. Kennedy (D) of Massachusetts, Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the Supreme Court, Dr. Pusey, and Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey, Each of the honorees took an invitation.

Kennedy Asks Politician-Scholar Tie

Cambridge, Mass.

By Mary Handy

Staff Correspondent of The Christian Science Monitor

Senator John F. Kennedy called for a dynamic partnership between the American intellectual and the American politician at Harvard University commencement festivities here today.

"I would ask both groups to recall that the American politician of today and the American intellectual of today are descended from a common ancestry," said the Massachusetts Democratic senator, who was honored by Harvard this morning with an honorary degree.

Degrees Awarded

"Both the American intellectual and politician operate within a common framework—a framework we call liberty," he asid. "Finally, I would stress the great potential gain for both groups resulting from increased political cooperation."

Harvard awarded honorary degrees to 11 others at its 305th commencement ceremonies. Included were two members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, and Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court.

The other honorary degrees were given to:

John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College; Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge, England; Edward S. Mason, an economist and dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Public Administration; Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize bacteriologist and professor of bacteriology and immunology of the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy and Nathan Littauer, professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard; and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, and for 30 years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

'Growing Gap'

"It is regrettable that the gap between the intellectual and politician seems to be growing," Senator Kennedy told some 15,000 alumni, faculty, and friends gathered under the elms of Harvard Yard. He added:

"Instead of synthesis, clash and discord now characterize the relations between the two groups much of the time. . . . Both sides in this battle, it seems to me, are motivated by largely unfounded feelings of distrust.

"The politician, whose authority rests upon the mandate of the popular will, is resentful of the scholar who can, with dexterity, slip from position to position without dragging the anchor of public opinion.

'What We Share'

"The intellectual, on the other hand, finds it difficult to accept the differences between the laboratory and the legislature. In the former, the goal is truth, pure and simple, without regard to changing currents of public opinion; in the latter, compromises and majorities and procedural customs and rights affect the ultimate decision as to what is right or just or good. . . .

"It seems to me that the time has come for intellectuals and politicians to put aside those horrible weapons of modern internecine warfare, the barbed thrust, the acid pen, and—most sinister of all—the rhetorical blast.

"Let us not emphasize all on which we differ, but all we have in common. Let us consider not what we fear separately but what we share together. . . .

"Was John Milton to conjugate Greek verbs in his library or talk of the liberty of the ancient Shunamites when the liberty of Englishmen was imperiled? No, the duty of the scholar—particularly in a republic such as ours—is to contribute his objective views and his sense of liberty to the affairs of his state and nation.

Butterworth Speaks

"The American intellectual and scholar today must decide, as Goethe put it, whether he is to be an anvil—or a hammer. Today, for many, the stage of the anvil, at least in its formal phases, is complete.

"The question he faces is whether he is to be a hammer — whether he is to give the world in which he was reared and educated the broadest possible benefits of his learning. As one who is familiar with the political world, I can testify that we need it."

Also speaking at the Alumni Association gathering, Professor Butterworth called for education that will nurture more imagination and creative ability.

"In a conflict of civilizations, it is true above all that that one is likely to prevail which has the greater imaginative power at its disposal," he said.

He warned that the face of world balance of power could be drastically changed by creative, imaginative shifts by one side or the other. He commented that the Soviet Union might conceive of some imaginative plan "that might even make our hydrogen bombs pretty useless to us."

Related Stories: Page 2

104

New England Newspaper Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200
Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 184,241

New England Newspaper Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200
Telegram-News (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Democrat
Circ. 21,784

New England Newspaper Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200
Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.

New England Newspaper Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200
Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,246

New England Newspaper Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200
American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 184,973

New England Newspaper Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200
Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 184,241

New England Newspaper Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200
Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

JUN 14 1956

Humphrey Given Honorary Degrees

...ee To Kennedy

...y Harvard

...Degrees

URSDAY, JUNE 14, 1956

REES AT HARVARD

...rvard Issue

...vent with ... awards ...

tion who seeks a bridge be... life and learning."

Officials Get ...es At Harvard

... Cord a doctorate of humane letters.

Degree citations included:

Kennedy, a Navy PT boat cap... World War II—"brave

...rs to 12

...ils Kennedy

...reet, Master of Education; Ar... ur E. McCarthy, Jr., 18 Mar... in street. Bachelor...

Degree Citations

George M. Humphrey, Secretary of the Treasury, industrialist:

"Industrialist turned to the service of government; a statesman who holds a firm rein on the nation's fiscal policy."

John F. Kennedy (D), United States Senator from Massachusetts:

"Brave officer, able senator, son of Harvard; loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

Edward S. Mason, economist, ...ean of the Harvard School of ...ublic Administration:

"Economist and dean; his ex... ...e Inc. (Look), and Cowl... ...adcasting Co.—"His alma ...honors a servant of edu... ...and a journalist with a pub... ...science."

...ce Frankfurter — "A bril... ...nd exciting teacher, he has ...nt to the highest court of ...nd the stimulus of an in... mind."

...key—"...insistent advocate of ...tion who seeks a bridge be... ...a life and learning."

...frailties of history, he evokes ...a sense of liberty through be... ...lief."

Harry A. Wolfson, Hebraic scholar, Nathan Littauer professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard:

"From enormous knowledge, he graciously illumines the major problems of religious philosophy and their relation to revealed truth."

Doctor of Music degree:

Charles Munch, conductor, Boston Symphony Orchestra:

"Under his imaginative direction, a great orchestra infuses our lives with both beauty and meaning."

Doctor of Science degree:

John F. Enders, professor of bacteriology and immunology, Harvard Medical School, at the Children's Hospital:

"A calm and imaginative scholar whose patient researches are an inspiration to his profession."

Doctor of Humane Letters degree:

David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council since 1925:

"Artist and poet who personifies in his friendly stewardship Harvard's deep concern for people."

...John Sloan Dickey ...th College.

...les, newspaper and ...blisher.

...F. Enders, Nobel ...bacteriologist of ...edical School and ...ital.

...terfield, Eng...

...lason, economist ... Harvard Busi...

...A. Wolfson of ... scholar.

...McCord, poet

...rates of Laws ..., Humphrey, ... Frankfurter, ...d Mason.

...ates of Let... ...tterfield and ...received an ... of Science, ... of Music,

HARVARD
(Continued on Page Sixteen)

JOHN SLOAN DICKEY

CHARLES MUNCH

...ge Humphrey.

...ge Among ...Recipients

...tice Felix Frankfurt... ...the United States ...eme Court, Senator ...F. Kennedy of Massa... ...tetts and two members ...President Eisenhower's ...net received honorary ...grees at Harvard today. They were among 12 na... ...nally prominent figures ...whom Pres. Nathan M. ...usey conferred honorary ...egrees at Harvard's 305th Commencement, amid pomp, circumstance and all the panoply of stately ritual.

The morning ceremonies got under way shortly after 9:15, but not without worry. Escorted by the scarlet-coated National Lancers of Massachusetts, who looked warm indeed astride their heated mounts, Gov. Herter was late in arriving.

He was due at 9:15 in front of Massachusetts Hall, the fount from which much of Harvard's wisdom flows as the headquarters of Pres. Pusey and the Corporation. But he did not arrive there until 9:38, 23 minutes late.

By then the procession had started. The Governor, with other officials, took a shortcut across the Quadrangle and joined the procession at the John Harvard statue.

The two Cabinet members honored were Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey. Awarded an honorary doctorate of music was Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Talking It Over

TWO HONORARY degree recipients chat at Harvard University's Commencement exercises today. They are Charles Munch (left), conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize-winning bacteriologist.

FELIX FRANKFURTER

JOHN COWLES

...John F. Ken... ...sachusetts, an... ...two cab... Sec. of Commerce Sin... and Sec. of Treasury ... Humphrey.

The others were Pre... Sloan Dickey of Dartm... John Cowles, publish... Minneapolis Star an... Charles Munch, condu... Boston Symphony Orc...

...space," said the class ...graduate.

The second and third oldest graduates marching were Clarence A. Bunker, class of '89, a ...

(Continued on Page ...)

George A. Buttrick, Plummer Professor of Christian Morals and Preacher to the University, officiated at the morning chapel service.

Later, the officials paraded through the ranks of seniors.

Preceding them in ceremonial dress were Sheriff Fitzpatrick, and the Sheriff of Suffolk County Frederick R. Sullivan.

Pusey conferred the degrees ...the students by voice as each group was called upon to "draw near" for the awards.

The degrees were later distributed in the eight houses of Harvard College and the eight graduate schools.

Harvard College students received 988 Bachelor Arts degrees, 405 of them with honors.

Degrees awarded in the graduate schools: Arts and Sciences, 416; Education, 114; Design, 55; Business Administration, 587; Public Administration, 42; Medicine, 150; Dental Medicine, 13; Public Health, 68; Law, 508; Divinity, 31.

Exercises closed with the singing of the Commencement Hymn and a benediction.

...him: "Brave officer, able senator son of Harvard, loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

The graduation ceremonies were in the Harvard yard where more than 10,000 chairs were set out for the graduates, alumni and their guests.

The ceremonies were opened with the traditional "call to order" by the Sheriff of Middlesex county, Howard W. Fitzpatrick.

104

102

New England Newsing Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Ri...

Will ever forget!

"Wisk-It's wonderful!"*

"I never saw anything like it!"

*7 DAYS TO WISK DAY!

SMIRNOFF®
THE GREATEST NAME IN VODKA
It leaves you breathless!
80 Proof distilled from grain. Ste. Pierre Smirnoff File. (Div. of Heublein), Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

...y Given Honorary Degrees

...NE 14, 1956

...RVARD

...ils Kennedy

...ee To Kennedy

...Degrees

...reet, Master of Education; Ar-
...ur E. McCarthy, Jr., 18 Mar-
...n street, Bachelor ...

Issue Degree Citations

George M. Humphrey, Secretary of the Treasury, industrialist:

"Industrialist turned to the service of government; a statesman who holds a firm rein on the nation's fiscal policy."

John F. Kennedy (D), United States Senator from Massachusetts:

"Brave officer, able senator, son of Harvard; loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

Edward S. Mason, economist, dean of the Harvard School of Public Administration:

"Economist and dean; his ex-... Inc. (Look), and Cowles Broadcasting Co.—"His alma ... honors a servant of education and a journalist with a public science."

...ce Frankfurter — "A brilliant and exciting teacher, he has ... to the highest court of the land, and ... the stimulus of an independent mind."

...key—"...insistent advocate of ...tion who seeks a bridge between life and learning."

...frailties of history, he evokes a sense of liberty through belief."

Harry A. Wolfson, Hebraic scholar, Nathan Littauer professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard:

"From enormous knowledge, he graciously illumines the major problems of religious philosophy and their relation to revealed truth."

Doctor of Music degree:

Charles Munch, conductor, Boston Symphony Orchestra:

"Under his imaginative direction, a great orchestra infuses our lives with both beauty and meaning."

Doctor of Science degree:

John F. Enders, professor of bacteriology and immunology, Harvard Medical School, at the Children's Hospital:

"A calm and imaginative scholar whose patient researches are an inspiration to his profession."

Doctor of Humane Letters degree:

David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council since 1925:

"Artist and poet who personifies in his friendly stewardship Harvard's deep concern for people."

...John Sloan Dickey ...h College.

...es, newspaper and ...lisher.

...F. Enders, Nobel ... bacteriologist of ...edical School and ...ital.

...terfield, Eng...

...ason, economist ... Harvard Busi-

...A. Wolfson of ... scholar.

...McCord, poet

...rates of Laws ..., Humphrey, ... Frankfurter, ...d Mason.

...rates of Let-
...tterfield and
...received an
... of Science,
... of Music,

HARVARD

(Continued on Page Sixteen)

...es At Harvard

...Cord a doctorate of humane letters.

Degree citations included:

Kennedy, a Navy PT boat cap-
...ld War II—"brave

...rs to 12

JUN 14 1956

CHATTING before Commencement got under way were honorary degree winners, Charles Munch, Boston Symphony Orchestra conductor (left), and Dr. John E. Enders, Harvard's Nobel Prize winning bacteriologist.

JOHN SLOAN DICKEY

CHARLES MUNCH

FELIX FRANKFURTER

JOHN COWLES

...ge Among Recipients

...tice Felix Frankfurter ... the United States ...eme Court, Senator ... F. Kennedy of Massa-...setts and two members ...President Eisenhower's ...inet received honorary ...grees at Harvard today. They were among 12 na-...onally prominent figures ...whom Pres. Nathan M. ...usey conferred honorary ...egrees at Harvard's 305th Commencement, amid pomp, circumstance and all the panoply of stately ritual.

The morning ceremonies got under way shortly after 9:15, but not without worry. Escorted by the scarlet-coated National Lancers of Massachusetts, who looked warm indeed astride their heated mounts, Gov. Herter was late in arriving.

He was due at 9:15 in front of Massachusetts Hall, the fount from which much of Harvard's wisdom flows as the headquarters of Pres. Pusey and the Corporation. But he did not arrive there until 9:38, 23 minutes late.

By then the procession had started. The Governor, with other officials, took a shortcut across the Quadrangle and joined the procession at the John Harvard statue.

The two Cabinet members honored were Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey. Awarded an honorary doctorate of music was Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

...town and they have ... Mr. ...
Clarissa, 11 months old. Mr. ...
Sawyer's sister, Mrs. Charlotte ...
Sawyer Bonfanti, will receive a ... degree at Godard College, Plainfield, Vt., on Monday

Three residents of Lynn proper were among the graduates. They include Zelman Berdichevsky, 23 Wolcott road, Master of Arts; Miss Irene D. Giantonio, 96 South Common street, Master of Education and John G. McManus, ...

(Continued on Page Two)

...ed into the ...er, where ...was held. ...afternoon

...25th Re-
...vard by
...ions of
...Over-
...ices.

...former ...

Busi...

CAMBR... University ... degrees to ... officials and ... in the field ... and science.

Honored ... Felix Frankf... Court of the ... John F. Kenn... sachusetts, and ... Sec. of Commerce Sin... and Sec. of Treasury ... Humphrey.

The others were Pre... Sloan Dickey of Dartm... John Cowles, publish... Minneapolis Star an... Charles Munch, condu... Boston Symphony Orc...

...space," said the class ... graduate.

The second and third oldest graduates marching were Clarence A. Bunker, class of '89, a ...

George A. Buttrick, Plummer Professor of Christian Morals and Preacher to the University, officiated at the morning chapel service.

Later, the officials paraded through the ranks of seniors. Preceding them in ceremonial dress were Sheriff Fitzpatrick, and the Sheriff of Suffolk County Frederick R. Sullivan.

Pusey conferred the degrees to the students by voice as each group was called upon to "draw near" for the awards.

The degrees were later distributed in the eight houses of Harvard College and the eight graduate schools.

Harvard College students received 988 Bachelor Arts degrees, 405 of them with honors.

Degrees awarded in the graduate schools: Arts and Sciences, 416; Education, 114; Design, 55; Business Administration, 587; Public Administration, 42; Medicine, 150; Dental Medicine, 13; Public Health, 68; Law, 503; Divinity, 31.

Exercises closed with the singing of the Commencement Hymn and a benediction.

...temp... tion s... custo... cerem...

him: "Brave officer, able senator, son of Harvard, loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

The graduation ceremonies were in the Harvard yard where more than 10,000 chairs were set out for the graduates, alumni and their guests.

The ceremonies were opened with the traditional "call to order" by the Sheriff of Middlesex county, Howard W. Fitzpatrick.

Honors to 12 In Exercises At Harvard

Harvard conferred honorary degrees today on 12 men—nine of them alumni, three of them members of the faculty, four of them high government officials.

These were the men and these were the degrees they received:

U. S. Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, Sen. John F. Kennedy, Commerce Sec. Sinclair Weeks, Treasury Sec. George M. Humphrey, Dartmouth College President John Sloan Dickey, Publisher John Cowles of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune, Dean Edward S. Mason of the Harvard School of Public Administration, all doctors of laws.

Harvard Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, Cambridge University Prof. Herbert Butterfield, doctors of letters; Harvard Prof. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize winer of 1954, doctor of science; Poet David T. W. McCord, doctor of humane letters, and Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, doctor of music.

JUN 14 1956

Officials Get ...s At Harvard

...Cord a doctorate of humane letters.

Degree citations included:

Kennedy, a Navy PT boat cap... War II—"brave

Degree Citations

George M. Humphrey, Secretary of the Treasury, industrialist:

"Industrialist turned to the service of government; a statesman who holds a firm rein on the nation's fiscal policy."

John F. Kennedy (D), United States Senator from Massachusetts:

"Brave officer, able senator, son of Harvard; loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

Edward S. Mason, economist, ...n of the Harvard School of ...blic Administration:

...e Inc. (Look), and Cowl... ...adcasting Co.—"His alma ...honors a servant of edu... ...and a journalist with a pub... ...science."

...ce Frankfurter — "A bril... ...nd exciting teacher, he has ...t to the highest court of ...nd the stimulus of an in... ...mind."

...key—"...insistent advocate of ...tion who seeks a bridge be... ...life and learning."

...exploring the strengths and frailties of history, he evokes a sense of liberty through belief."

Harry A. Wolfson, Hebraic scholar, Nathan Littauer professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard:

"From enormous knowledge, he graciously illumines the major problems of religious philosophy and their relation to revealed truth."

Doctor of Music degree:

Charles Munch, conductor, Boston Symphony Orchestra:

"Under his imaginative direction, a great orchestra infuses our lives with both beauty and meaning."

Doctor of Science degree:

John F. Enders, professor of bacteriology and immunology, Harvard Medical School, at the Children's Hospital:

"A calm and imaginative scholar whose patient researches are an inspiration to his profession."

Doctor of Humane Letters degree:

David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council since 1925:

"Artist and poet who personifies in his friendly stewardship Harvard's deep concern for people."

...Sloan Dickey ...th College.

...les, newspaper and ...blisher.

...F. Enders, Nobel ...bacteriologist of ...Medical School and ...ital.

...tterfield, Eng...

...Mason, economist ...e Harvard Busi...

...y A. Wolfson of ...c scholar.

...McCord, poet

...orates of Laws ...dy, Humphrey, ... Frankfurter, ...nd Mason.

...orates of Let... ...utterfield and ... received an ...e of Science, ...te of Music.

HARVARD (Continued on Page Sixteen)

JOHN SLOAN DICKEY

CHARLES MUNCH

FELIX FRANKFURTER

JOHN COWLES

...ven Honorary Degrees

...1956

...ils Kennedy

...reet, Master of Education; Ar... ...ur E. McCarthy, Jr., 18 Mar... ...n street, Bachelor ...

...issue

...vent with ... awards ... tion who seeks a bridge been ... life and learning.

...ual meeting of ...umni Associa... ...ternoon exer... ...rs were: ... Gov. Herter, ... of Boston, ... Association; ...f honorary ... into the ...r, where ...was held. ...fternoon ...5th Re... ...ard by ...ns of ...Over... ...ces.

...EDWARD

...Council.

...yer, was ...Uni... ...e he ...Arts ...dent ...salist ...st two ...to the ...Water... ...daughter, ...old. Mr. ...Charlotte ...receive a ...

...years. ... former Cynthia ... town and they have a ... Clarissa, 11 months ... Sawyer's sister, Mrs. ... Sawyer Bonfanti, will ... degree at Godard College, Plain... field, Vt., on Monday

Three residents of Lynn proper were among the graduates. They include Zelman Berdichevsky, 23 Wolcott road, Master of Arts; Miss Irene D. Giantonio, 96 South Common street, Master of Education and John G. McManus,

(Continued on Page Two)

To ... Busin...

CAMBR... University ... degrees to ... officials and ... in the fields ... and science.

Honored we... Felix Frankfu... Court of the ... John F. Kenne... sachusetts, and ... cab... Sec. of Commerce Sin... and Sec. of Treasury Humphrey.

The others were Pre... Sloan Dickey of Dartm... John Cowles, publish... Minneapolis Star an... Charles Munch, condu... Boston Symphony Orc...

...space," said the class ... graduate.

The second and third oldest graduates marching were Clarence A. Bunker, class of '88, a ...

George A. Buttrick, Plummer Professor of Christian Morals and Preacher to the University, officiated at the morning chapel service.

Later, the officials paraded through the ranks of seniors. Preceding them in ceremonial dress were Sheriff Fitzpatrick, and the Sheriff of Suffolk County Frederick R. Sullivan.

Pusey conferred the degrees ...o the students by voice as each group was called upon to "draw near" for the awards.

The degrees were later distributed in the eight houses of Harvard College and the eight graduate schools.

Harvard College students received 988 Bachelor Arts degrees, 405 of them with honors.

Degrees awarded in the graduate schools: Arts and Sciences, 416; Education, 114; Design, 55; Business Administration, 587; Public Administration, 42; Medicine, 150; Dental Medicine, 13; Public Health, 68; Law, 503; Divinity, 31.

Exercises closed with the singing of the Commencement Hymn and a benediction.

...temp... ...tion s... ...custo... ...cerem...

him: "Brave officer, able senator son of Harvard, loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

The graduation ceremonies were in the Harvard yard where more than 10,000 chairs were set out for the graduates, alumni and their guests.

The ceremonies were opened with the traditional "call to order" by the Sheriff of Middlesex county, Howard W. Fitzpatrick.

...ree To Kennedy

...y Harvard

...Degrees

...ge Among ...Recipients

...ice Felix Frankfurt... ... the United States ...eme Court, Senator ...a F. Kennedy of Massa... ...etts and two members ...President Eisenhower's ...inet received honorary ...rees at Harvard today. They were among 12 na... ...nally prominent figures ... whom Pres. Nathan M. ...usey conferred honorary ...egrees at Harvard's 305th Commencement, amid pomp, circumstance and all the panoply of stately ritual.

The morning ceremonies got under way shortly after 9:15, but not without worry. Escorted by the scarlet-coated National Lancers of Massachusetts, who looked warm indeed astride their heated mounts, Gov. Herter was late in arriving.

He was due at 9:15 in front of Massachusetts Hall, the fount from which much of Harvard's wisdom flows as the headquarters of Pres. Pusey and the Corporation. But he did not arrive there until 9:38, 23 minutes late.

By then the procession had started. The Governor, with other officials, took a shortcut across the Quadrangle and joined the procession at the John Harvard statue.

The two Cabinet members honored were Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey. Awarded an honorary doctorate of music was Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

...ill over forget!

...or Curb on Dulles

...than the House had in its bill."

...ATHER'S DAY!
...N TIME FOR MEN'S
...cement Store
...SH COMPANY

"Congratulations! Your outshining the others reminds me of the way that 'Beacon Wax' outshines other waxes!"

...ven Honorary Degrees

...1956

...ils Kennedy

...reet, Master of Education; Ar-
...ur E. McCarthy, Jr., 18 Mar-
...n street. Bachelor ...

...ree To Kennedy

...y Harvard

JOHN SLOAN DICKEY — CHARLES MUNCH

...e Degree Citations

George M. Humphrey, Secretary of the Treasury, industrialist:

"Industrialist turned to the service of government; a statesman who holds a firm rein on the nation's fiscal policy."

John F. Kennedy (D), United States Senator from Massachusetts:

"Brave officer, able senator, son of Harvard; loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

Edward S. Mason, economist, ...n of the Harvard School of Public Administration:

...azine Inc. (Look), and Cowl-... Broadcasting Co.—"His alma ...ter honors a servant of edu-...ion and a journalist with a pub-... conscience."

Justice Frankfurter — "A bril-...ant and exciting teacher, he has ...ought to the highest court of ...land the stimulus of an in-...sive mind."

...lickey—"...insistent advocate of ...education who seeks a bridge be-...tween life and learning."

Exploring the strengths and frailties of history, he evokes a sense of liberty through belief."

Harry A. Wolfson, Hebraic scholar, Nathan Littauer professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard:

"From enormous knowledge, he graciously illumines the major problems of religious philosophy and their relation to revealed truth."

Doctor of Music degree:

Charles Munch, conductor, Boston Symphony Orchestra:

"Under his imaginative direction, a great orchestra infuses our lives with both beauty and meaning."

Doctor of Science degree:

John F. Enders, professor of bacteriology and immunology, Harvard Medical School, at the Children's Hospital:

"A calm and imaginative scholar whose patient researches are an inspiration to his profession."

Doctor of Humane Letters degree:

David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council since 1925:

"Artist and poet who personifies in his friendly stewardship Harvard's deep concern for people."

...th College.
...les, newspaper and ...blisher.
...F. Enders, Nobel ... bacteriologist of ...Medical School and ...ital.
...tterfield, Eng...
...Mason, economist ...e Harvard Busi-...
...y A. Wolfson of ...ic scholar.
... McCord, poet
...orates of Laws ...dy, Humphrey, ... Frankfurter, ...nd Mason.
...orates of Let-...utterfield and ... received an ...te of Science, ...te of Music.

...ge Among ...Recipients

...ce Felix Frankfurt-... the United States ...me Court, Senator ...r. Kennedy of Massa-...tts and two members ...resident Eisenhower's ...net received honorary ...ees at Harvard today. ...ey were among 12 na-...ally prominent figures ...whom Pres. Nathan M. ...ey conferred honorary ...grees at Harvard's 305th ...mmencement, amid pomp, circumstance and all the panoply of stately ritual.

The morning ceremonies got under way shortly after 9:15, but not without worry. Escorted by the scarlet-coated National Lancers of Massachusetts, who looked warm indeed astride their heated mounts, Gov. Herter was late in arriving.

He was due at 9:15 in front of Massachusetts Hall, the fount from which much of Harvard's wisdom flows as the headquarters of Pres. Pusey and the Corporation. But he did not arrive there until 9:38, 23 minutes late.

By then the procession had started. The Governor, with other officials, took a shortcut across the Quadrangle and joined the procession at the John Harvard statue.

The two Cabinet members honored were Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey. Awarded an honorary ...ate of music was Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Continued from Page 5

...mayors of Boston and Cambridge ...n top hats and tail-coats.

Once in formal array, the University Marshal Pawell M. Cabot, called on Sheriff Fitzpatrick.

"Mr. Sheriff," said Cabot, "pray give us order."

Fitzpatrick ~truck the stage three times with his scabbard and said:

"The meeting will be in order."

A Latin and two English dissertations were delivered respectively by David H. Alpers and Robert M. O'Neil, both seniors, and by Robert A. Girard, LL. B., '56.

The degrees were conferred, the commencement hymn was sung and a benediction was invoked.

Luncheons and receptions were held in the eight Harvard Houses for Seniors and elsewhere for students of the 10 graduate schools. For the alumni luncheon was served under tents in the Yard. The Chief Marshal's Spread for recipients of honorary degrees, members of the governing boards and official guests was set up in the courtyard of Fogg Museum.

The Chief Marshal this year was C. Douglas Dillon, '31, U. S. Ambassador to France. Under the direction of Dillon and his aides, the alumni, headed by the eldest, formed in the Yard at 1:45 p. m. for a second procession to the Tercentenary Theater for the annual meeting of the Alumni Ass'n.

The association president, Francis W. Hatch, presided. Addresses were delivered by Gov. Herter, President Pusey and Hatch, who also announced the results of the election of directors of the Alumni Ass'n, members of the board of overseers and of the Harvard Fund Council.

...were conferred on Kennedy, Humphrey, Weeks, Justice Frankfurter, Cowles, Dickey and Mason.

Honorary doctorates of letters were awarded Butterfield, and Wolfson. Munch received an honorary doctorate of music. Enders a doctorate of science, and Mc-

...ual meeting of ...umni Associa-...ternoon exer-

...rs were: ...Gov. Herter, ...of Boston, ...Association; ...of honorary

...d into the ..., where ...was held. ...afternoon

...5th Re-...ard by

...ns of ...Over-...ces.

...minister at Essex ...Church during the past ...years. He is married to the former Cynthia Nye of Watertown and they have a daughter, Clarissa, 11 months old. Mr. Sawyer's sister, Mrs. Charlotte Sawyer Bonfanti, will receive a degree at Godard College, Plainfield, Vt., on Monday

Three residents of Lynn proper were among the graduates. They include Zelman Berdichevsky, 23 Wolcott road, Master of Arts; Miss Irene D. Giantonio, 96 South Common street, Master of Education and John G. McManus,

(Continued on Page Two)

FELIX FRANKFURTER

JOHN COWLES

(Continued on Page Sixteen)

...Har...
To ...
Busin...

CAMBR... University ... degrees to ... officials and ... in the fields ... and science.

Honored wi... Felix Frankfu... Court of the ... John F. Kenne... sachusetts, and two cab... Sec. of Commerce Sin... and Sec. of Treasury ... Humphrey.

The others were Pr... Sloan Dickey of Dartm... John Cowles, publish... Minneapolis Star an... Charles Munch, cond... Boston Symphony Orc...

...space," said the class ... graduate.

The second and third oldest ... graduates marching were Clar... ence A. Bunker, class of '89, a ...

...temp... tion s... custo... cerem...

George A. Buttrick, ...Plimmer Professor of Christian Morals and Preacher to the University, officiated at the morning chapel service.

Later, the officials paraded through the ranks of seniors. Preceding them in ceremonial dress were Sheriff Fitzpatrick and the Sheriff of Suffolk County Frederick R. Sullivan.

Pusey conferred the degrees to the students by voice as each group was called upon to "draw near" for the awards.

The degrees were later distributed in the eight houses of Harvard College and the eight graduate schools.

Harvard College students received 988 Bachelor Arts degrees, 405 of them with honors.

Degrees awarded in the graduate schools: Arts and Sciences, 416; Education, 114; Design, 55; Business Administration, 587; Public Administration, 42; Medicine, 150; Dental Medicine, 13; Public Health, 68; Law, 503; Divinity, 31.

Exercises closed with the singing of the Commencement Hymn and a benediction.

...ge Humphrey.

...son of Harvard, loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

The graduation ceremonies were in the Harvard yard where more than 10,000 chairs were set out for the graduates, alumni and their guests.

The ceremonies were opened with the traditional "call to order" by the Sheriff of Middlesex county, Howard W. Fitzpatrick.

Given Honorary Degrees

...ils Kennedy

...ree To Kennedy

...rvard Issue Degree Citations

...y Harvard

...Degrees

JUN 14 1956

Four High Gov't Officials Get Honorary Degrees At Harvard

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UP) — Harvard University today conferred honorary degrees on Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) and two members of President Eisenhower's cabinet, Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks and Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey.

Honorary degrees also were awarded U. S. Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, newspaper publisher John Cowles, Boston Symphony Orchestra conductor Charles Munch and Dartmouth College President John Sloan Dickey.

Others among the 12 honorary degree recipients at Harvard's 305th commencement included:

Dr. John F. Enders, Nobelprize-winning bacteriologist of Harvard Medical School and Children's Hospital whose study of viruses was a major step in development of polio vaccine.

English historian Herbert Butterfield.

Edward S. Mason, economist and dean of Harvard Graduate School of Public Administration.

Harvard Professor Harry A. Wolfson, Hebraic scholar.

David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist.

Honorary doctorates of laws were conferred on Kennedy, Humphrey, Weeks, Justice Frankfurter, Cowles, Dickey and Mason.

Honorary doctorates of letters were awarded Butterfield, and Wolfson. Munch received an honary doctorate of music. Enders a doctorate of science, and McCord a doctorate of humane letters.

Degree citations included:

Kennedy, a Navy PT boat captain during World War II—"brave officer, able senator, son of Harvard; loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

Weeks—"Harvard son, at home alike in politics and business, he finds scope for his abilities in the service of university, state and nation."

Humphrey— "Industrialist turned to the service of government; a statesman who holds firm rein on the nation's fiscal policy."

Cowles, publisher of Minneapolis Star and Tribune; chairman of the board, Des Moines (Ia.) Register and Tribune Co.—"His alma mater honors a servant of education and a journalist with a public conscience."

Justice Frankfurter — "A brilliant and exciting teacher, he has brought to the highest court of the land the stimulus of an incisive mind."

Dickey—"..insistent advocate of education who seeks a bridge between life and learning."

George M. Humphrey, Secretary of the Treasury, industrialist:

"Industrialist turned to the service of government; a statesman who holds a firm rein on the nation's fiscal policy."

John F. Kennedy (D), United States Senator from Massachusetts:

"Brave officer, able senator, son of Harvard; loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

Edward S. Mason, economist, dean of the Harvard School of Public Administration:

"Economist and dean: his ... Magazine Inc. (Look), and Cowles Broadcasting Co.—"His alma mater honors a servant of education and a journalist with a public conscience."

Justice Frankfurter — "A brilliant and exciting teacher, he has brought to the highest court of the land the stimulus of an incisive mind."

Dickey—"..insistent advocate of education who seeks a bridge between life and learning."

Exploring the strengths and frailties of history, he evokes a sense of liberty through belief."

Harry A. Wolfson, Hebraic scholar, Nathan Littauer professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard:

"From enormous knowledge, he graciously illumines the major problems of religious philosophy and their relation to revealed truth."

Doctor of Music degree:

Charles Munch, conductor, Boston Symphony Orchestra:

"Under his imaginative direction, a great orchestra infuses our lives with both beauty and meaning."

Doctor of Science degree:

John F. Enders, professor of bacteriology and immunology, Harvard Medical School, at the Children's Hospital:

"A calm and imaginative scholar whose patient researches are an inspiration to his profession."

Doctor of Humane Letters degree:

David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council since 1925:

"Artist and poet who personifies in his friendly stewardship Harvard's deep concern for people."

JOHN SLOAN DICKEY

CHARLES MUNCH

EDWARD S.

FELIX FRANKFURTER

JOHN COWLES

...Among ...ecipients

...e Felix Frankfurt- ...the United States ...ge Court, Senator ...Kennedy of Massa- ...ts and two members ...esident Eisenhower's ...et received honorary ...es at Harvard today. ...ey were among 12 na- ...ally prominent figures ...whom Pres. Nathan M. ...ey conferred honorary ...rees at Harvard's 305th ...mmencement, amid ...pomp, circumstance and all the panoply of stately ritual.

The morning ceremonies got under way shortly after 9:15, but not without worry. Escorted by the scarlet-coated National Lancers of Massachusetts, who looked warm indeed astride their heated mounts, Gov. Herter was late in arriving.

He was due at 9:15 in front of Massachusetts Hall, the fount from which much of Harvard's wisdom flows as the headquarters of Pres. Pusey and the Corporation. But he did not arrive there until 9:38, 23 minutes late.

By then the procession had started. The Governor, with other officials, took a shortcut across the Quadrangle and joined the procession at the John Harvard statue.

The two Cabinet members honored were Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey. Awarded an honorary doctorate of music was Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

...ge Humphrey.

...John Sloan Dickey ...College.

...newspaper and ...isher.

...Enders, Nobel ...bacteriologist of ...ical School and ...al.

...rfield, Eng ...on, economist ...Harvard Busi- ...Wolfson of ...cholar.

...cCord, poet ...tes of Laws ...Humphrey, ...rankfurter, ...Mason. ...es of Let- ...rfield and ...eived an ...Science, ...Doctorate of Music.

...ent with ...awarded ...tion who seeks a bridge ...life and learning.

...reet, Master of Education; Ar- ...hur E. McCarthy, Jr., 18 Mar- ...in street ...

...REES AT HARVARD

...URSDAY, JUNE 14, 1956

...MEETING ...while later the Board ...rs held its final meet- ...year in the faculty ...niversity Hall. ...rshal for the alumni ...glas Dillon, ambas- ...ance and a member ...of 1931. ...duating seniors de- ...esses to the huge ...O'Neil of Cam- ...obert Girard of ...h., delivered Eng- ...ns. ...pers of Merion, ...tin dissertation. ...ual meeting of ...umni Associa- ...ternoon exer- ...rs were: ...Gov. Herter, ...of Boston, ...Association; ...f honorary ...d into the ...r, where ...was held. ...fternoon ...5th Re- ...ard by ...ons of ...Over- ...ces.

...paper pu... Boston ... conductor ... Dartmouth ... John Sloa...

...minister at Essex ...Church during the past two ...years. He is married to the ...former Cynthia Nye of Water- ...town and they have a daughter, ...Clarissa, 11 months old. Mr. ...Sawyer's sister, Mrs. Charlotte ...Sawyer Bonfanti, will receive a ...degree at Godard College, Plain- ...field, Vt., on Monday

Three residents of Lynn proper were among the graduates. They include Zelman Berdichevsky, 23 Wolcott road, Master of Arts; Miss Irene D. Giantonio, 96 South Common street, Master of Education and John G. McManus,

(Continued on Page Two)

...George A. Buttrick, ...summer Professor of Christian ...Morals and Preacher to the Uni- ...versity, officiated at the morning ...chapel service.

Later, the officials paraded through the ranks of seniors.

Preceding them in ceremonial dress were Sheriff Fitzpatrick, and the Sheriff of Suffolk County Frederick R. Sullivan.

Pusey conferred the degrees on the students by voice as each group was called upon to "draw near" for the awards.

The degrees were later distributed in the eight houses of Harvard College and the eight graduate schools.

Harvard College students received 988 Bachelor Arts degrees, 405 of them with honors.

Degrees awarded in the graduate schools: Arts and Sciences, 416; Education, 114; Design, 55; Business Administration, 587; Public Administration, 42; Medicine, 150; Dental Medicine, 13; Public Health, 68; Law, 503; Divinity, 31.

Exercises closed with the singing of the Commencement Hymn and a benediction.

...temp- ...tion s ...custo ...cerem

...Ha... To ...Busi...

...CAMBR... University ... degrees t... officials ar... in the field... and science. Honored ... Felix Frank... Court of th... John F. Ken...uy, d... sachusetts, and two ... Sec. of Commerce ... and Sec. of Treasu... Humphrey. The others were ... Sloan Dickey of Dart... John Cowles, pub... Minneapolis Star ... Charles Munch, co... Boston Symphony C... ...space," said the clas... graduate.

The second and third oldest graduates marching were Clarence A. Bunker, class of '80, a...

Sen. Kennedy's citation called him: "Brave officer, able senator, son of Harvard, loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

The graduation ceremonies were in the Harvard yard where more than 10,000 chairs were set out for the graduates, alumni and their guests.

The ceremonies were opened with the traditional "call to order" by the Sheriff of Middlesex county, Howard W. Fitzpatrick.

6 HARVARD (Continued on Page Sixteen)

OPEN EVENINGS

PARTRIDGE FORD

THRIFTY SPECIALS

'54 PLYMOUTH CLUB COUPE

NO MONEY DOWN

RUSSELL'S

Call Kirkland 7-4640

24-Hour Telephone Service

INSTALLED EXCHANGED

$1095

$95

NO SALES

HI 5-0170

Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 14 1956

Harvard Issues Degree Citations

The citations that went with 12 honorary degrees awarded by Harvard University this morning follow:

Doctor of Laws degrees:

John Cowles, publisher, Minneapolis Star and Tribune; and chairman of the board, Des Moines Register and Tribune Company, Cowles Magazine, Inc. (Look), Cowles Broadcasting Company:

"His alma mater honors a servant of education and a journalist with a public conscience."

John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College:

"Again we acclaim as our own this insistent advocate of education who seeks a bridge between life and learning."

Felix Frankfurter, Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court:

"A brilliant and exciting teacher, he has brought to the highest court of the land the stimulus of an incisive mind."

George M. Humphrey, Secretary of the Treasury, industrialist:

"Industrialist turned to the service of government; a statesman who holds a firm rein on the nation's fiscal policy."

John F. Kennedy (D), United States Senator from Massachusetts:

"Brave officer, able senator, son of Harvard; loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

Edward S. Mason, economist, dean of the Harvard School of Public Administration:

"Economist and dean; his expert knowledge and sound counsel guide students in the ways of government and governments in the ways of peace."

Sinclair Weeks, Secretary of Commerce, industrialist:

"Harvard son, at home alike in politics and business, he finds scope for his abilities in the service of university, state, and nation."

Doctor of Letters degrees:

Herbert Butterfield, historian, master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge:

"Exploring the strengths and frailties of history, he evokes a sense of liberty through belief."

Harry A. Wolfson, Hebraic scholar, Nathan Littauer professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard:

"From enormous knowledge, he graciously illumines the major problems of religious philosophy and their relation to revealed truth."

Doctor of Music degree:

Charles Munch, conductor, Boston Symphony Orchestra:

"Under his imaginative direction, a great orchestra infuses our lives with both beauty and meaning."

Doctor of Science degree:

John F. Enders, professor of bacteriology and immunology, Harvard Medical School, at the Children's Hospital:

"A calm and imaginative scholar whose patient researches are an inspiration to his profession."

Doctor of Humane Letters degree:

David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council since 1925:

"Artist and poet who personifies in his friendly stewardship Harvard's deep concern for people."

the Harvard Medical School, at the Children's Hospital.

Herbert Butterfield, Eng[illegible] historian.

Edward S. Mason, economist and dean of the Harvard Business school.

Professor Harry A. Wolfson of Harvard, Hebraic scholar.

David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist.

Honorary Doctorates of Laws went to Kennedy, Humphrey, Weeks, Justice Frankfurter, Cowles, Dickey and Mason.

Honorary Doctorates of Letters went to Butterfield and Wolfson. Enders received an Honorary Doctorate of Science, Munch a Doctorate of Music.

HARVARD

(Continued on Page Sixteen)

S IRENE D. GIANTONIO

26 From Lynn Area Get Harvard Degrees

Degrees were awarded to 26 Greater Lynners, three cum laude, at Harvard University's traditional commencement exercises this morning. Fourteen of the group received advanced degrees.

Arthur E. McCarthy, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. McCarthy, 18 Margin street, Peabody, was the recipient of a Bachelor of Arts degree, Cum Laude. He graduated from Peabody High school in 1952 where he was an honor student.

Alan F. Sawyer, Jr., son of Atty. and Mrs. Alan F. Sawyer, 4 Newhall avenue, Saugus, was awarded the degree of Bachelor of Divinity. Academy, Andover, class of 1948 and Harvard University, class of 1952 where he received his Bachelor of Arts degree. He has been a student minister at Essex Universalist Church during the past two years. He is married to the former Cynthia Nye of Watertown and they have a daughter, Clarissa, 11 months old. Mr. Sawyer's sister, Mrs. Charlotte Sawyer Bonfanti, will receive a degree at Godard College, Plainfield, Vt., on Monday.

Three residents of Lynn proper were among the graduates. They include Zelman Berdichevsky, 23 Wolcott road, Master of Arts; Miss Irene D. Giantonio, 96 South Common street, Master of Education and John G. McManus,

(Continued on Page Two)

FINAL MEETI[illegible]

A short while [illegible] of Overseers he[illegible] ing of the yea[illegible] room of Unive[illegible]

Chief marsh[illegible] was C. Dougla[illegible] sador to Franc[illegible] of the class of [illegible]

Three graduating seni[illegible] livered addresses to th[illegible] throng.

Robert M. O'Neil of [illegible] bridge and Robert Gir[illegible] Winthrop, Wash., deliver[illegible] lish dissertations.

David H. Alpers of [illegible] Pa., gave a Latin disse[illegible]

ALUMNI MEET IN AFTERNOON

The 116th annual me[illegible] the Harvard Alumni [illegible] tion featured afternoon [illegible] cises.

Principal speakers were: President Pusey, Gov. Herter, Francis W. Hatch of Boston, president, Alumni Association; and two recipients of honorary degrees.

The alumni paraded into the Tercentenary Theater, where their annual meeting was held. Highlights of the afternoon meeting included:

Presentation of the 25th Reunion Class Gift to Harvard by Chief Marshall Dillon.

Announcement of elections of members of the Board of Overseers and other alumni offices.

LATER PARADE THROUGH YARD

Rev. George A. Buttrick, Plummer Professor of Christian Morals and Preacher to the University, officiated at the morning chapel service.

Later, the officials paraded through the ranks of seniors.

Preceding them in ceremonial dress were Sheriff Fitzpatrick and the Sheriff of Suffolk County Frederick R. Sullivan.

Pusey conferred the degrees on the students by voice as each group was called upon to "draw near" for the awards.

The degrees were later distributed in the eight houses of Harvard College and the eight graduate schools.

Harvard College students received 988 Bachelor Arts degrees, 405 of them with honors.

Degrees awarded in the graduate schools: Arts and Sciences, 416; Education, 114; Design, 55; Business Administration, 587; Public Administration, 42; Medicine, 150; Dental Medicine, 13; Public Health, 68; Law, 503; Divinity, 31.

Exercises closed with the singing of the Commencement Hymn and a benediction.

FELIX FRANKFURTER

JOHN COWLES

Harvard To A[illegible] Busin[illegible]

CAMBRI[illegible] University [illegible] degrees to [illegible] officials and [illegible] in the fields [illegible] and science.

Honored w[illegible] Felix Frankfu[illegible] Court of the United States, Sen. John F. Kennedy, democrat, Massachusetts, and two cabinet officers, Sec. of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Sec. of Treasury George M. Humphrey.

The others were President John Sloan Dickey of Dartmouth College, John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Her-

[illegible] the Supreme [illegible] sented in traditio[illegible] Harvard's 305th [illegible] Degrees were awa[illegible] graduates of the c[illegible] ate schools, includ[illegible] medical school an[illegible] law degrees.

The citation to [illegible] furter, a Harvard [illegible] fessor for 25 years [illegible] pointment to the S[illegible] 1939, said: "A brilli[illegible] teacher, he has [illegible] the highest court of the land the stimulus of an incisive man."

Sen. Kennedy's citation called him: "Brave officer, able senator, son of Harvard, loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

The graduation ceremonies were in the Harvard yard where more than 10,000 chairs were set out for the graduates, alumni and their guests.

The ceremonies were opened with the traditional "call to order" by the Sheriff of Middlesex county, Howard W. Fitzpatrick.

space," said the class of 19[illegible] graduate.

The second and third oldest graduates marching were Clarence A. Bunker, class of '89, a [illegible] awarded [illegible] Justice F[illegible] paper p[illegible] Boston [illegible] conducto[illegible] Dartmou[illegible] John Slo[illegible]

Humphrey Given Honorary Degrees

Harvard Hails Kennedy

Harvard University today conferred honorary degrees on Sen. John F. Kennedy and two mem[illegible] of President Eisen-

URSDAY, JUNE 14, 1956

REES AT HARVARD

[illegible] reet, Master of Education; Ar[illegible] ur E. McCarthy, Jr., 18 Mar[illegible] n street, Bachelor of Arts.

[illegible]ee To Kennedy

[illegible]y Harvard

JOHN SLOAN DICKEY

CHARLES MUNCH

They were among 12 nationally prominent figures on whom Pres. Nathan M. Pusey conferred honorary degrees at Harvard's 305th Commencement, amid pomp, circumstance and all the panoply of stately ritual.

The morning ceremonies got under way shortly after 9:15, but not without worry. Escorted by the scarlet-coated National Lancers of Massachusetts, who looked warm indeed astride their heated mounts, Gov. Herter was late in arriving.

He was due at 9:15 in front of Massachusetts Hall, the fount from which much of Harvard's wisdom flows as the headquarters of Pres. Pusey and the Corporation. But he did not arrive there until 9:38, 23 minutes late.

By then the procession had started. The Governor, with other officials, took a shortcut across the Quadrangle and joined the procession at the John Harvard statue.

The two Cabinet members honored were Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey. Awarded an honorary [illegible] ate of music was Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

JUN 14 1956

LYNN, MASS., THURSDAY, JUNE 14, 1956

AWARDED DEGREES AT HARVARD

ARTHUR E. McCARTHY, JR.

MISS IRENE D. GIANTONIO

Three Receive High Honors

26 From Lynn Area Get Harvard Degrees

Degrees were awarded to 26 Greater Lynners, three cum laude, at Harvard University's traditional commencement exercises this morning. Fourteen of the group received advanced degrees.

Arthur E. McCarthy, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. McCarthy, 18 Margin street, Peabody, was the recipient of a Bachelor of Arts degree, Cum Laude. He graduated from Peabody High school in 1952 where he was an honor student.

Alan F. Sawyer, Jr., son of Atty. and Mrs. Alan F. Sawyer, 4 Newhall avenue, Saugus, was awarded the degree of Bachelor of Divinity. He is a graduate of Phillips Academy, Andover, class of 1948 and Harvard University, class of 1952 where he received his Bachelor of Arts degree. He has been a student minister at Essex Universalist Church during the past two years. He is married to the former Cynthia Nye of Watertown and they have a daughter, Clarissa, 11 months old. Mr. Sawyer's sister, Mrs. Charlotte Sawyer Bonfanti, will receive a degree at Godard College, Plainfield, Vt., on Monday

Three residents of Lynn proper were among the graduates. They include Zelman Berdichevsky, 23 Wolcott road, Master of Arts; Miss Irene D. Giantonio, 96 South Common street, Master of Education and John G. McManus, treet, Master of Education; Arhur E. McCarthy, Jr., 18 Marin street, Bachelor of Arts, um Laude and James E. Wats, 5 Stevens street, Master in usiness Administration.

(Continued on Page Two)

Three Revere young people ere among the graduates. They clude Harlan E. Fretheim, 94 ancaster avenue, Master of ience; Evelyn R. Rosen, 20 alden street, Master of Public ealth and Elliot H. Tokson, 67 ancaster avenue, Master of Ed-ation.

Seven Salemites who received grees are: Ronald C. Ablow, Summit avenue, Master of siness Administration; Tim-y D. Ellard, 2½ Mt. Vernon net, Bachelor of Arts, Cum ude; Paul W. Jameson, 15
lles street, Bachelor of Arts,
Laude; John J. Jennings,
Briggs street, Bachelor of ns; Norman L. Rapkin, 6 Sal-all parkway, Bachelor of re; Donald S. Marshall, Pea-Museum, Doctor of Phil-ophy; and William B. Volmer, earborn street, Bachelor of Harvard conferred honorary

Ees on Sen. John F. Ken-(D-Mass.) and two mem-of President Eisenhower's
net, Commerce Secretary Fair Weeks and Treasury
retary George M. Humphrey. honorary degrees also were rded U. S. Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, newspaper publisher John Cowles, Boston Symphony Orchestra conductor Charles Munch and Dartmouth College president,
John Sloan Dickey.

FINAL MEETING

A short while later of Overseers held its ing of the year in t room of University H
Chief marshal for was C. Douglas Dillo sador to France and of the class of 1931.

Three graduating seniors delivered addresses to the huge throng.

Robert M. O'Neil of Cambridge and Robert Girard of Winthrop, Wash., delivered English dissertations.

David H. Alpers of Merion,
Pa., gave a Latin dissertation.

ALUMNI MEET IN AFTERNOON

The 116th annual meeting of the Harvard Alumni Association featured afternoon exercises.

Principal speakers were:
President Pusey, Gov. Herter,
Francis W. Hatch of Boston, president, Alumni Association; and two recipients of honorary
degrees.

The alumni paraded into the Tercentenary Theater, where their annual meeting was held.
Highlights of the afternoon meeting included:
Presentation of the 25th Reunion Class Gift to Harvard by Chief Marshall Dillon.
Announcement of elections of members of the Board of Overseers and other alumni offices.

LATER PARADE THROUGH YARD

Rev. George A. Buttrick,
Plummer Professor of Christian Morals and Preacher to the University, officiated at the morning chapel service.

Later, the officials paraded through the ranks of seniors.
Preceding them in ceremonial dress were Sheriff Fitzpatrick, and the Sheriff of Suffolk County
Frederick R. Sullivan.

Pusey conferred the degrees to the students by voice as each group was called upon to "draw near" for the awards.

The degrees were later distributed in the eight houses of Harvard College and the eight graduate schools.

Harvard College students received 988 Bachelor Arts degrees, 405 of them with honors.
Degrees awarded in the graduate schools: Arts and Sciences,
416; Education, 114; Design, 55;
Business Administration, 587;
Public Administration, 42; Medicine, 150; Dental Medicine, 13;
Public Health, 68; Law, 503; Divinity, 31.

Exercises closed with the singing of the Commencement Hymn and a benediction.

Humphrey Given Honorary Degrees

...ard Hails Kennedy

Harvard University today conferred honorary degrees on Sen. John F. Kennedy and two members of President Eisenhower's cabinet.

Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks and Treasury George M. Humphrey are the cabinet members.

OTHERS AWARDED HONORARY DEGREES

Others awarded honorary degrees by President Nathan M. Pusey at the University's 305th Commencement exercises were:

Justice Felix Frankfurter of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

President John Sloan Dickey of Dartmouth College.

John Cowles, newspaper and magazine publisher.

Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize-winning bacteriologist of the Harvard Medical School and Children's Hospital.

Herbert Butterfield, Eng... historian.

Edward S. Mason, economist and dean of the Harvard Business school.

Professor Harry A. Wolfson of Harvard, Hebraic scholar.

David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist.

Honorary Doctorates of Laws went to Kennedy, Humphrey, Weeks, Justice Frankfurter, Cowles, Dickey and Mason.

Honorary Doctorates of Letters went to Butterfield and Wolfson. Enders received an Honorary Doctorate of Science, Munch a Doctorate of Music.

HARVARD

(Continued on Page Sixteen)

EDWARD S. MASON

FELIX FRANKFURTER

JOHN COWLES

...ee To Kennedy ...y Harvard

JOHN SLOAN DICKEY

CHARLES MUNCH

degrees at Harvard today.

They were among 12 nationally prominent figures on whom Pres. Nathan M. Pusey conferred honorary degrees at Harvard's 305th Commencement, amid pomp, circumstance and all the panoply of stately ritual.

The morning ceremonies got under way shortly after 9:15, but not without worry. Escorted by the scarlet-coated National Lancers of Massachusetts, who looked warm indeed astride their heated mounts, Gov. Herter was late in arriving.

He was due at 9:15 in front of Massachusetts Hall, the fount from which much of Harvard's wisdom flows as the headquarters of Pres. Pusey and the Corporation. But he did not arrive there until 9:38, 23 minutes late.

By then the procession had started. The Governor, with other officials, took a shortcut across the Quadrangle and joined the procession at the John Harvard statue.

The two Cabinet members honored were Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey. Awarded an honorary doctorate of music was Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Honored ... Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the Supreme Court of the United States, Sen. John F. Kennedy, democrat, Massachusetts, and two cabinet officers, Sec. of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Sec. of Treasury George M. Humphrey.

The others were President John Sloan Dickey of Dartmouth College, John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Herspace," said the class of 1956 ... M. ... graduate.

The second and third oldest graduates marching were Clarence A. Bunker, class of '89, a ...

sented in traditi... Harvard's 305th ... Degrees were av... graduates of the ... ate schools, inclu... medical school a... law degrees.

The citation t... furter, a Harvard ... fessor for 25 yea... pointment to the ... 1939, said: "A brilliant and exciting teacher, he has brought to the highest court of the land the stimulus of an incisive man."

Sen. Kennedy's citation called him: "Brave officer, able senator, son of Harvard, loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

The graduation ceremonies were in the Harvard yard where more than 10,000 chairs were set out for the graduates, alumni and their guests.

The ceremonies were opened with the traditional "call to order" by the Sheriff of Middlesex county, Howard W. Fitzpatrick.

Bench Grinder $19.99
FAMOUS MAKERS $29.95
SANDING KIT $14.95
FAMOUS WELLER
HARDWARE
TOOL & HARDWARE

Humphrey Given Honorary Degrees

Harvard Hails Kennedy

Harvard University today conferred honorary degrees on Sen. John F. Kennedy and two members of President Eisenhower's cabinet.

Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks and Treasury George M. Humphrey are the cabinet members.

OTHERS AWARDED HONORARY DEGREES

Others awarded honorary degrees by President Nathan M. Pusey at the University's 305th Commencement exercises were:

Justice Felix Frankfurter of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

President John Sloan Dickey of Dartmouth College.

John Cowles, newspaper and magazine publisher.

Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize-winning bacteriologist of the Harvard Medical School and Children's Hospital.

Herbert Butterfield, Eng[illegible] historian.

Edward S. Mason, economist and dean of the Harvard Business school.

Professor Harry A. Wolfson of Harvard, Hebraic scholar.

David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist.

Honorary Doctorates of Laws went to Kennedy, Humphrey, Weeks, Justice Frankfurter, Cowles, Dickey and Mason.

Honorary Doctorates of Letters went to Butterfield and Wolfson. Enders received an Honorary Doctorate of Science, Munch a Doctorate of Music.

HARVARD
(Continued on Page Sixteen)

EDWARD S. MASON

FELIX FRANKFURTER

JOHN COWLES

Harvard Degrees

Continued From Page One

211 Lynn Shore Drive, Bachelor of Arts.

Miss Giantonio is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Giantonio. She graduated from Classical High school where she was an outstanding student and the recipient of the Hood Foundation Award. She attended Simmons College and graduated from that institution in 1955. She was awarded a scholarship to the Harvard Graduate School of Education. At Simmons, she majored in Spanish Literature and minored in Art History. She was a member of the Academy, Simmons' Honor Society, and also served as secretary; president of the United Nations Club-Forum and a member of the Sock and Buskin club.

Six residents of Marblehead will receive degrees, three from the graduate schools. They are: Norman D. Levine, 63 Glendale road, Doctor of Medicine; Davenport Plumer, III, 5 Longfellow road, Master of Arts in Teaching; Allan R. Robinson, 58 Seaview avenue, Master of Arts; Noble Smith, 187 Washington street, Bachelor of Arts; Nathaniel Chaffin, 121 Rockaway avenue, Bachelor of Arts and Philip Tierney, 277 Ocean avenue, Bachelor of Arts.

Richard D. Luff, 1219 Main street, Lynnfield Center, was the only resident of that town among the graduates. He received a Bachelor of Arts degree as of 1955.

Two Saugus graduates are: Helen S. Kaufmann, 321 Walnut street, who received an Adjunct in Arts and Anthony J. Provenzano, Jr., 11 Morton avenue, Bachelor of Arts.

Peabody residents include Ann Peters Crowley, 220 Lowell street, Master of Education; Arthur E. McCarthy, Jr., 18 Margin street, Bachelor of Arts, Cum Laude and James E. Waters, 5 Stevens street, Master in Business Administration.

Three Revere young people were among the graduates. They include Harlan E. Fretheim, 94 Lancaster avenue, Master of Science; Evelyn R. Rosen, 20 Walden street, Master of Public Health and Elliot H. Tokson, 67 Lancaster avenue, Master of Education.

Seven Salemites who received degrees are: Ronald C. Ablow, 37 Summit avenue, Master of Business Administration; Timothy D. Ellard, 2½ Mt. Vernon street, Bachelor of Arts, Cum Laude; Paul W. Jameson, 15 Naples street, Bachelor of Arts, Cum Laude; John J. Jennings, 18 Briggs street, Bachelor of Laws; Norman L. Rapkin, 6 Saltonstall parkway, Bachelor of Laws; Donald S. Marshall, Peabody Museum, Doctor of Philosophy; and William B. Volmer, 24 Dearborn street, Bachelor of Arts.

Harvard conferred honorary degrees on Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and two members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet, Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks and Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey.

Honorary degrees also were awarded U. S. Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, newspaper publisher John Cowles, Boston Symphony Orchestra conductor Charles Munch and Dartmouth College president, John Sloan Dickey.

SEN. JOHN F. KE[illegible]

HERTER ESCORT BY LANCERS

In conformance [illegible] custom, Gov. Her[illegible] corted to the Yar[illegible] troop of mounted [illegible] Lancers.

The Academic P[illegible] gan at 9:30 and [illegible] monously from the [illegible] the same church opene[illegible] program.

OVERSEAS HOLD FINAL MEETING

A short while later [illegible] of Overseers held its f[illegible] ing of the year in t[illegible] room of University H[illegible]

Chief marshal for t[illegible] was C. Douglas Dillo[illegible] sador to France and [illegible] of the class of 1931.

Three graduating seniors delivered addresses to the huge throng.

Robert M. O'Neil of Cambridge and Robert Girard of Winthrop, Wash., delivered English dissertations.

David H. Alpers of Merion, Pa., gave a Latin dissertation.

ALUMNI MEET IN AFTERNOON

The 116th annual meeting of the Harvard Alumni Association featured afternoon exercises.

Principal speakers were: President Pusey, Gov. Herter, Francis W. Hatch of Boston, president, Alumni Association; and two recipients of honorary degrees.

The alumni paraded into the Tercentenary Theater, where their annual meeting was held.

Highlights of the afternoon meeting included:

Presentation of the 25th Reunion Class Gift to Harvard by Chief Marshall Dillon.

Announcement of elections of members of the Board of Overseers and other alumni offices.

LATER PARADE THROUGH YARD

Rev. George A. Buttrick, Plummer Professor of Christian Morals and Preacher to the University, officiated at the morning chapel service.

Later, the officials paraded through the ranks of seniors.

Preceding them in ceremonial dress were Sheriff Fitzpatrick, and the Sheriff of Suffolk County Frederick R. Sullivan.

Pusey conferred the degrees [illegible] the students by voice as each group was called upon to "draw near" for the awards.

The degrees were later distributed in the eight houses of Harvard College and the eight graduate schools.

Harvard College students received 988 Bachelor Arts degrees, 405 of them with honors.

Degrees awarded in the graduate schools: Arts and Sciences, 416; Education, 114; Design, 55; Business Administration, 587; Public Administration, 42; Medicine, 150; Dental Medicine, 13; Public Health, 68; Law, 503; Divinity, 31.

Exercises closed with the singing of the Commencement Hymn and a benediction.

New England Newspaper Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200
Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 188,749

New England Newspaper Agency,
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-42[illegible]
Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 40,923
JUN 14 1956

Harvard Degrees To Men in Gov't, Business, Teaching

CAMBRIDGE —(AP)— Harvard University today awarded honorary degrees to four high government officials and eight others prominent in the fields of business, education and science.

Honored were Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the Supreme Court of the United States, Sen. John F. Kennedy, democrat, Massachusetts, and two cabinet officers, Sec. of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Sec. of Treasury George M. Humphrey.

The others were President John Sloan Dickey of Dartmouth College, John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Her-

[illegible] space," said the class of 1886 graduate.

The second and third oldest graduates marching were Clarence A. Bunker, class of '89, a [illegible] law school professor for 25 years before his appointment to the Supreme court in 1939, said: "A brilliant and exciting teacher, he has brought to the highest court of the land the stimulus of an incisive man."

Sen. Kennedy's citation called him: "Brave officer, able senator, son of Harvard, loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

The graduation ceremonies were in the Harvard yard where more than 10,000 chairs were set out for the graduates, alumni and their guests.

The ceremonies were opened with the traditional "call to order" by the Sheriff of Middlesex county, Howard W. Fitzpatrick.

ree To Kennedy

y Harvard

JOHN SLOAN DICKEY

CHARLES MUNCH

[illegible] (Associated Press photo) are left [illegible] Supreme [illegible] Humphrey.

Cabinet received [illegible] honorary degrees at Harvard today.

They were among 12 nationally prominent figures on whom Pres. Nathan M. Pusey conferred honorary degrees at Harvard's 305th Commencement, amid pomp, circumstance and all the panoply of stately ritual.

The morning ceremonies got under way shortly after 9:15, but not without worry. Escorted by the scarlet-coated National Lancers of Massachusetts, who looked warm indeed astride their heated mounts, Gov. Herter was late in arriving.

He was due at 9:15 in front of Massachusetts Hall, the fount from which much of Harvard's wisdom flows as the headquarters of Pres. Pusey and the Corporation. But he did not arrive there until 9:38, 23 minutes late.

By then the procession had started. The Governor, with other officials, took a shortcut across the Quadrangle and joined the procession at the John Harvard statue.

The two Cabinet members honored were Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey. Awarded an honorary doctorate of music was Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

New England Newspaper Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200
Evening (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 154,749
JUN 14 1956

Boston (e) Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 193,749
JUN 14 1956

Harvard Hails Kennedy

Weeks, Humphrey Given Honorary Degrees

SEN. JOHN F. KENNEDY

SINCLAIR WEEKS

GEORGE M. HUMPHREY

Harvard University today conferred honorary degrees on Sen. John F. Kennedy and two members of President Eisenhower's cabinet.

Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks and Treasury George M. Humphrey are the cabinet members.

OTHERS AWARDED HONORARY DEGREES

Others awarded honorary degrees by President Nathan M. Pusey at the University's 305th Commencement exercises were:

Justice Felix Frankfurter of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

President John Sloan Dickey of Dartmouth College.

John Cowles, newspaper and magazine publisher.

Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize-winning bacteriologist of the Harvard Medical School and Children's Hospital.

Herbert Butterfield, Eng[illegible] historian.

Edward S. Mason, economist and dean of the Harvard Business school.

Professor Harry A. Wolfson of Harvard, Hebraic scholar.

David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist.

Honorary Doctorates of Laws went to Kennedy, Humphrey, Weeks, Justice Frankfurter, Cowles, Dickey and Mason.

Honorary Doctorates of Letters went to Butterfield and Wolfson. Enders received an Honorary Doctorate of Science, Munch a Doctorate of Music.

HARVARD
(Continued on Page Sixteen)

DR. JOHN F. ENDERS

EDWARD S. MASON

FELIX FRANKFURTER

JOHN COWLES

HERTER ESCORTED BY LANCERS

In conformance with ancient custom, Gov. Herter was escorted to the Yard gate by a troop of mounted scarlet-coated Lancers.

The Academic Procession began at 9:30 and moved ceremoniously from the Old Yard to [illegible]

Middlesex County Sheriff Howard W. Fitzpatrick struck the stage three times with the scabbord of his sword and declared the meeting "will be in order."

The exercises highlighted Commencement Week ceremonies which started Sunday with a Baccalaureate sermon in Memorial Church.

Senior class chapel services in the same church opened today's program.

OVERSEAS HOLD FINAL MEETING

A short while later the Board of Overseers held its final meeting of the year in the faculty room of University Hall.

Chief marshal for the alumni was C. Douglas Dillon, ambassador to France and a member of the class of 1931.

Three graduating seniors delivered addresses to the huge throng.

Robert M. O'Neil of Cambridge and Robert Girard of Winthrop, Wash., delivered English dissertations.

David H. Alpers of Merion, Pa., gave a Latin dissertation.

ALUMNI MEET IN AFTERNOON

The 116th annual meeting of the Harvard Alumni Association featured afternoon exercises.

Principal speakers were:

President Pusey, Gov. Herter, Francis W. Hatch of Boston, president, Alumni Association; and two recipients of honorary degrees.

The alumni paraded into the Tercentenary Theater, where their annual meeting was held.

Highlights of the afternoon meeting included:

Presentation of the 25th Reunion Class Gift to Harvard by Chief Marshall Dillon.

Announcement of elections of members of the Board of Overseers and other alumni offices.

LATER PARADE THROUGH YARD

Rev. George A. Buttrick, Plummer Professor of Christian Morals and Preacher to the University, officiated at the morning chapel service.

Later, the officials paraded through the ranks of seniors.

Preceding them in ceremonial dress were Sheriff Fitzpatrick, and the Sheriff of Suffolk County Frederick R. Sullivan.

Pusey conferred the degrees on the students by voice as each group was called upon to "draw near" for the awards.

The degrees were later distributed in the eight houses of Harvard College and the eight graduate schools.

Harvard College students received 988 Bachelor Arts degrees, 405 of them with honors.

Degrees awarded in the graduate schools: Arts and Sciences, 416; Education, 114; Design, 55; Business Administration, 587; Public Administration, 42; Medicine, 150; Dental Medicine, 13; Public Health, 68; Law, 503; Divinity, 31.

Exercises closed with the singing of the Commencement Hymn and a benediction.

New England Newspaper Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200
Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 193,749
JUN 14 1956

New England Newspaper Agency,
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-42[illegible]
Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 40,923
JUN 14 1956

Harvard Degrees To Men in Gov't, Business, Teaching

CAMBRIDGE. —(AP)— Harvard University today awarded honorary degrees to four high government officials and eight others prominent in the fields of business, education and science.

Honored were Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the Supreme Court of the United States, Sen. John F. Kennedy, democrat, Massachusetts, and two cabinet officers, Sec. of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Sec. of Treasury George M. Humphrey.

The others were President John Sloan Dickey of Dartmouth College, John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune, Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Her[illegible] M. [illegible] space," said the class of 1926 graduate.

The second and third oldest graduates marching were Clarence A. Bunker, class of '89, a [illegible]

De[illegible] temp[illegible] tion s[illegible] custo[illegible] cerem[illegible]

ulus of an incisive man."

Sen. Kennedy's citation called him: "Brave officer, able senator, son of Harvard, loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

The graduation ceremonies were in the Harvard yard where more than 10,000 chairs were set out for the graduates, alumni and their guests.

The ceremonies were opened with the traditional "call to order" by the Sheriff of Middlesex county, Howard W. Fitzpatrick.

...ree To Kennedy

...y Harvard

JOHN SLOAN DICKEY

CHARLES MUNCH

[illegible] (second right) are left [illegible] Supreme [illegible] Humphrey.

[illegible] Pusey conferred [illegible] honorary degrees at Harvard's 305th Commencement, amid pomp, circumstance and all the panoply of stately ritual.

The morning ceremonies got under way shortly after 9:15, but not without worry. Escorted by the scarlet-coated National Lancers of Massachusetts, who looked warm indeed astride their heated mounts, Gov. Herter was late in arriving.

He was due at 9:15 in front of Massachusetts Hall, the fount from which much of Harvard's wisdom flows as the headquarters of Pres. Pusey and the Corporation. But he did not arrive there until 9:38, 23 minutes late.

By then the procession had started. The Governor, with other officials, took a shortcut across the Quadrangle and joined the procession at the John Harvard statue.

The two Cabinet members honored were Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey. Awarded an honorary doctorate of music was Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

filene's

Probed

efore his death—to also of Charlotte. s said the couple oming.
ewell, Piedmont's id Pruitt apparent- t out of the plane n door opened un- hat was while he toward the men's rear.

CHAN
N°5

ard Honorary Degree To Kennedy

from First Page)

rd a Doctorate of Hu- etters.

N. ENNEDY'S CITA N

Kennedy, a Navy PT boat captain during World War II, was cited as a "brave officer, able senator, son of Harvard; loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

Weeks was described as a "Harvard son, at home alike in politics and business, he finds scope for his abilities in the service of university, state and nation."

Pusey also awarded 2,977 academic degrees to students graduating from the College and graduate schools.

The colorful ceremonies were witnessed by 15,000 persons who crowded into the Tercentenary Theater.

Members of 12 Harvard classes holding reunions were among hundreds of alumni in attendance.

HERTER ESCORTED BY LANCERS

In conformance with ancient custom, Gov. Herter was escorted to the Yard gate by a troop of mounted scarlet-coated Lancers.

The Academic Procession began at 9:30 and moved ceremoniously from the Old Yard to Tercentenary Theater. Harvard's famed band led the way.

University officers and faculty members wore robes signifying degrees of many institutions.

The governor, mayors of Boston and Cambridge, and other high state and city officials were attire din top hats and tail coats.

Degree candidates, alumni and guests followed, all under the direction of the University Marshal, Powell M. Cabot.

SEATED ON STAGE NEXT TO CHURCH

The dignitaries were seated on a stage before Memorial Church. They were under an awning of red and white.

Graduating students, alumni and guests occupied chairs under trees. Hundreds of onlookers stood on the Widner Library steps.

Upon completion of the procession, Marshal Cabot said, "Mr. Sheriff, pray give us order."

Middlesex County Sheriff Howard W. Fitzpatrick struck the stage three times with the scabbord of his sword and declared the meeting "will be in order."

The exercises highlighted Commencement Week ceremonies which started Sunday with a Baccalaureate sermon in Memorial Church.

Senior class chapel services in the same church opened today's program.

OVERSEAS HOLD FINAL MEETING

A short while later the Board of Overseers held its final meeting of the year in the faculty room of University Hall.

Chief marshal for the alumni was C. Douglas Dillon, ambassador to France and a member of the class of 1931.

Three graduating seniors delivered addresses to the huge throng.

Robert M. O'Neil of Cambridge and Robert Girard of Winthrop, Wash., delivered English dissertations.

David H. Alpers of Merion, Pa., gave a Latin dissertation.

ALUMNI MEET IN AFTERNOON

The 116th annual meeting of the Harvard Alumni Association featured afternoon exercises.

Principal speakers were: President Pusey, Gov. Herter, Francis W. Hatch of Boston, president, Alumni Association; and two recipients of honorary degrees.

The alumni paraded into the Tercentenary Theater, where their annual meeting was held.

Highlights of the afternoon meeting included:

Presentation of the 25th Reunion Class Gift to Harvard by Chief Marshall Dillon.

Announcement of elections of members of the Board of Overseers and other alumni offices.

LATER PARADE THROUGH YARD

Rev. George A. Buttrick, Plummer Professor of Christian Morals and Preacher to the University, officiated at the morning chapel service.

Later, the officials paraded through the ranks of seniors.

Preceding them in ceremonial dress were Sheriff Fitzpatrick, and the Sheriff of Suffolk County Frederick R. Sullivan.

Pusey conferred the degrees on the students by voice as each group was called upon to "draw near" for the awards.

The degrees were later distributed in the eight houses of Harvard College and the eight graduate schools.

Harvard College students received 988 Bachelor Arts degrees, 405 of them with honors.

Degrees awarded in the graduate schools: Arts and Sciences, 416; Education, 114; Design, 55; Business Administration, 587; Public Administration, 42; Medicine, 150; Dental Medicine, 13; Public Health, 68; Law, 503; Divinity, 31.

Exercises closed with the singing of the Commencement Hymn and a benediction.

Honored By Harvard

DR. JOHN F. ENDERS

HARRY A. WOLFSON

JOHN SLOAN DICKEY

CHARLES MUNCH

EDWARD S. MASON

DAVID T. W. McCORD

FELIX FRANKFURTER

JOHN COWLES

...ormick)
...ing with Pres. Pusey (seated, right) are left to ... Supreme Treasury George Humphrey.

egrees

Sen. Kennedy, Judge Among 12 Recipients

Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court, Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and two members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet received honorary degrees at Harvard today.

They were among 12 nationally prominent figures on whom Pres. Nathan M. Pusey conferred honorary degrees at Harvard's 305th Commencement, amid pomp, circumstance and all the panoply of stately ritual.

The morning ceremonies got under way shortly after 9:15, but not without worry. Escorted by the scarlet-coated National Lancers of Massachusetts, who looked warm indeed astride their heated mounts, Gov. Herter was late in arriving.

He was due at 9:15 in front of Massachusetts Hall, the fount from which much of Harvard's wisdom flows as the headquarters of Pres. Pusey and the Corporation. But he did not arrive there until 9:38, 23 minutes late.

By then the procession had started. The Governor, with other officials, took a shortcut across the Quadrangle and joined the procession at the John Harvard statue.

The two Cabinet members honored were Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey. Awarded an honorary doctorate of music was Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

New En... Box 207...

Indep...

New Engl... Box 2078...

Enterd... BROC... Nom... Cir...

JUN...

Harvard... To Mei... Business...

CAMBRIDG... University tod... degrees to fo... officials and e... in the fields o... and science.

Honored wer... Felix Frankfur... Court of the... John F. Kenne... sachusetts, and... Sec. of Comme... and Sec. of Tr... Humphrey.

The others w... Sloan Dickey of... John Cowles, ... Minneapolis St... Charles Munch, ... Boston Symphony Orchestra; Her... M. H...

...space," said the class of 1896 ... graduate.

The second and third oldest graduates marching were Clarence A. Bunker, class of '89, a ...

De... temp... tion s... custo... cerem...

... A brilliant and exciting teacher, he has brought to the highest court of the land the stimulus of an incisive man."

Sen. Kennedy's citation called him: "Brave officer, able senator son of Harvard, loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

The graduation ceremonies were in the Harvard yard where more than 10,000 chairs were set out for the graduates, alumni and their guests.

The ceremonies were opened with the traditional "call to order" by the Sheriff of Middlesex county, Howard W. Fitzpatrick.

TIGHT BINDING

104

New England Newscup Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241
JUN 14 1956

Harvard Confers 12 Honorary, 2977 [illegible]er Degrees

DIGNITARIES HONORED BY HARVARD—Chatting with Pres. Pusey (second right) are left to right, Senator [illegible] Kennedy, Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter and Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey. (Globe St[illegible] by Charles McCormick)

Sen. Kennedy, Judge Among 12 Recipients

Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court, Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and two members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet received honorary degrees at Harvard today.

They were among 12 nationally prominent figures on whom Pres. Nathan M. Pusey conferred honorary degrees at Harvard's 305th Commencement, amid pomp, circumstance and all the panoply of stately ritual.

The morning ceremonies got under way shortly after 9:15, but not without worry. Escorted by the scarlet-coated National Lancers of Massachusetts, who looked warm indeed astride their heated mounts, Gov. Herter was late in arriving.

He was due at 9:15 in front of Massachusetts Hall, the fount from which much of Harvard's wisdom flows as the headquarters of Pres. Pusey and the Corporation. But he did not arrive there until 9:38, 23 minutes late.

By then the procession had started. The Governor, with other officials, took a shortcut across the Quadrangle and joined the procession at the John Harvard statue.

The two Cabinet members honored were Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey. Awarded an honorary doctorate of music was Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

New England Newscup Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 190,749

New England Newscup Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 40,923
JUN 14 1956

[illegible]hlights

[illegible] Wellesley Hills resident, and Myron F. Hill, class of '90, of Westport, Conn.

Hill, who is 88, extended congratulations to Bunker, who [illegible] birthday today.

Harvard Degrees To Men in Gov't, Business, Teaching

CAMBRIDGE. —(AP)— Harvard University today awarded honorary degrees to four high government officials and eight others prominent in the fields of business, education and science.

Honored were Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the Supreme Court of the United States, Sen. John F. Kennedy, democrat, Massachusetts, and two cabinet officers, Sec. of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Sec. of Treasury George M. Humphrey.

The others were President John Sloan Dickey of Dartmouth College, John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peterhouse College at Cambridge, England; Dean Edward S. Mason of the Harvard School of Public Administration; Dr. John F. Enders Nobel Prize bacteriologist of the Harvard Medical school; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in the history of philosophy; and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, and for 30 years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

The honorary degrees were presented in traditional ceremonies in Harvard's 305th commencement. Degrees were awarded nearly 3000 graduates of the college and graduate schools, including 150 from the medical school and more than 500 law degrees.

The citation to Justice Frankfurter, a Harvard Law school professor for 25 years before his appointment to the Supreme court in 1939, said: "A brilliant and exciting teacher, he has brought to the highest court of the land the stimulus of an incisive man."

Sen. Kennedy's citation called him: "Brave officer, able senator son of Harvard, loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

The graduation ceremonies were in the Harvard yard where more than 10,000 chairs were set out for the graduates, alumni and their guests.

The ceremonies were opened with the traditional "call to order" by the Sheriff of Middlesex county, Howard W. Fitzpatrick.

[illegible] space," said the class of 1896 graduate.

The second and third oldest graduates marching were Clarence A. Bunker, class of '89, a [illegible] M. H[illegible] De[illegible] temp[illegible] tion s[illegible] custo[illegible] cerem[illegible]

TIGHT BINDING

104

New England Newscup Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

JUN 14 1956

Harvard Confers 12 Honorary, 2977 er Degrees

(Globe S by Charles McCormick)

DIGNITARIES HONORED BY HARVARD—Chatting with Pres. Pusey (second right) are left to right, Senator Kennedy, Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter and Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey.

Sen. Kennedy, Judge Among 12 Recipients

Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court, Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and two members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet received honorary degrees at Harvard today.

They were among 12 nationally prominent figures on whom Pres. Nathan M. Pusey conferred honorary degrees at Harvard's 305th Commencement, amid pomp, circumstance and all the panoply of stately ritual.

The morning ceremonies got under way shortly after 9:15, but not without worry. Escorted by the scarlet-coated National Lancers of Massachusetts, who looked warm indeed astride their heated mounts, Gov. Herter was late in arriving.

He was due at 9:15 in front of Massachusetts Hall, the fount from which much of Harvard's wisdom flows as the headquarters of Pres. Pusey and the Corporation. But he did not arrive there until 9:38, 23 minutes late.

By then the procession had started. The Governor, with other officials, took a shortcut across the Quadrangle and joined the procession at the John Harvard statue.

The two Cabinet members honored were Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey. Awarded an honorary doctorate of music was Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Harvard Highlights

This was the 25th anniversary of covering Harvard commencement exercises for Boston Police Det. Benny Goodman. His partner Det. John Tobin, has covered eight.

Both officers were on duty today, mingling with the crowd and keeping a lookout for suspicious persons. Both are experts at detecting pickpockets.

The pair are usually assigned to work as a team upon the arrival in the city of important persons.

One of the most spectacular gowns worn today was by Dr. Baird Hastings of the Harvard Medical School. His Oxford gown is red with gray sleeves.

This year, for the second consecutive time, doctors of philosophy wore new type gowns, crimson with three black stripes on each sleeve.

Radcliffe graduates wore this type yesterday for the first time.

The oldest alumnus in the procession, 92-year-old Henry E. Oxnard of Boxboro, drove 31 miles alone to the commencement.

"I didn't have any trouble and I even found a good parking space," said the class of 1886 graduate.

The second and third oldest graduates marching were Clarence A. Bunker, class of '89, a Wellesley Hills resident, and Myron F. Hill, class of '90, of Westport, Conn.

Hill, who is 88, extended congratulations to Bunker, who marked his 90th birthday today.

It was a big day at Harvard for the Kennedy brothers. Sen. John F. of class of '40, received an honorary degree. He is one of the youngest ever so honored.

Robert Kennedy, class of '48, was a class marshal. Edward (Ted) Kennedy, Harvard football player, was a member of today's graduating class.

Judging by the applause given, the most popular man awarded an honorary degree at Harvard today was Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Rated second by unofficial applause measurement was Justice Felix Frankfurter of the U.S. Supreme Court. He was followed closely in spectator appeal by Sen. John F. Kennedy, Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks and Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey.

Despite high humidity and temperatures, the first aid station set up at Sever Hall had no customers during the morning ceremonies.

TIGHT BINDING

105

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000
JUN 14 1956

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 134,[illegible]56

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Courant
HARTFORD
Republican
Circ. 9[illegible]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Telegram (m)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 56,950

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,628

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000
JUN 15 1956

Harvard

For a red-and-[illegible]y, meant to protect them from the sun, had been blown down and ripped by Wednesday's thunderstorm, and could not be replaced. So the dignitaries, too, mopped their brows on the wooden platform fronting Memorial Church.

It was Harvard's 30th Commencement without rain, and not even a promised east wind arrived to cool them off.

Both Senator Kennedy and Prof. Butterfield expressed doubts in their afternoon addresses that the policies of the West toward the Iron Curtain countries are still adequate, and called on the academic world to furnish needed originality and imagination to remedy this.

In asking for a closing of the growing "gap between the intellectual and politician," the Senator spoke, in a sense, as a representative of both groups.

Himself a noted author, he said that the "authors, scholars and intellectuals can praise every aspect of American society but the political." Politicians, too, tended to criticize the "egghead," he said.

Speaking of politicians or, perhaps, businessmen in politics,, two members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet — Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey —received honorary doctorates of laws from Harvard yesterday.

So did Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court. Warmly applauded, too, an honorary doctorate of music went to Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Other honorary degrees were awarded by Pres. Pusey to Pres. John Sloan Dickey of e Politicians, duates Urged

ons

onors Weeks, d Humphrey

d Citations

n government, education, rded honorary degrees at th yesterday.

nors Enders, Graduation

Kennedy, speaking at the mni meeting, said that poli-

y Honored by Harvard

r 30 years executive secre-ary of the Harvard Fund Council.

Degrees were awarded near-y 3,000 graduates of the col-ege, including 150 from the edical school and more than 00 from the law school.

aside the "horrible weapons of modern internecine warfare—the barbed thrust, the acid pen, and most sinister of all, the rhetorical blast."

Nathan M. Pusey, Harvard's president, told the alumni that Harvard can admit only about 1,100 freshmen, but that it had 2,500 qualified applicants.

Worcester Daily Telegram

also "neither of them can afford to say that power does not matter."

Despite this, he said, a relaxation of tension is bound to occur.

"It takes place because people come to take even their armaments in their stride. Even in a country like Russia it turns out that you can't keep [illegible] stretch all the

Harvard Told Eggheads, Pols Should Unite

The intellectual "egg-head" and the practical politician should end their word warfare and work "more closely together for the common cause, against the common enemy," U. S. Sen. John F. Kennedy told the annual meeting of the Harvard Alumni Ass'n yesterday.

Sen. Kennedy, one of 12 recipients of honorary degrees at traditional ceremonies marking Harvard's 305th commencement, declared, "Both sides in this battle . . . are motivated by largely unfounded feelings of distrust."

"It seems to me that the time has come for intellectuals and politicians to put aside those horrible weapons of modern internecine warfare, the barbed thrust, the acid pen, and—most sinister of all—the rhetorical blast," he said.

FRANKFURTER HONORED

In addition to Sen. Kennedy, a 1940 Harvard graduate, honorary degrees were conferred on U. S. Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, Commerce Sec. Sinclair Weeks, Treasury Sec. George M. Humphrey and Dartmouth College President John Sloan Dickey.

Also, Publisher John Cowles of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Dean Edward S. Mason of the Harvard School of Public Administration; Harvard Prof. Harry A. Wolfson; Cambridge University Prof. Herbert Butterfield; Harvard Prof. John F. Enders, a 1954 Nobel Prize winner; Poet David T. W. McCord, and Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

All but four of the 12 recipients are Harvard alumni.

He declared there is a great "potential gain" for both the intellectuals and the politicians, who he said operate within a common framework of liberty, if they would lay bel prize winning bacteriolo-l School and the Children's nd imaginative scholar whose nspiration to his profession."

Science

umane Letters

D, poet and essayist: "Artist n his family stewardship Har-eople."

Receive Commissions

Degrees in course were conferred by Very Rev. Joseph R. Maxwell, S. J., president of the College, who also awarded the honorary degrees.

Earlier, some 90 senior ROTC members were awarded commissions at a ceremony in Bapst Library Auditorium.

Army commissions were awarded by Col Edwin M. Van Bibber, infantry chief, Massachusetts Military District. Lt Col Earl R. McLaughlin presented the Marine commissions and Lt Weston M. Jenks the Navy commissions.

Among the graduates was Benjamin Lopez Jr., whose father is a senator and former vice president of the Philippine Government. Six members of the family traveled here for the commencement.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000
JUN 14 1956

Annual "Israel Night" Pops Program June 21

The program for the 28th Annual Israel Night at "Pops" was announced by Samuel D. Shapiro, chairman of the Israel Histadrut Pops Concert Committee. The Israel Night at "Pops" Concert will be held Thursday evening, June 21, at 8:30 p. m. at Symphony Hall, with Richard Tucker, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera as guest soloist. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra in a concert including works by Meyerbeer, Enesco and Tchaikovsky. The Israel Night at "Pops" Concert will benefit Kupat Holim, the medical service of the Histadrut (Israel's [illegible]ganization).

[illegible]piro announced that [illegible]lcony tickets were [illegible]ble for the concert [illegible]be obtained by con-[illegible] Israel Histadrut Of-[illegible]410, 185 Devonshire [illegible]on.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Beacon
[illegible]RD, Mass.
Independen
1,021

1956

s You Feel

Everett Maynes, 40 North Acton, going Tuesday night go-town" three nights k. He started by

JUN 15

Munch

Charles Munch, [illegible]tor of the Bos[illegible] Orchestra, yeste[illegible] a busy five-day [illegible] Boston from his [illegible] Since last Sunda[illegible] the recipient of [illegible] degrees from [illegible] Boston institution[illegible]

On Sunday, Tu[illegible] a Doctor of Hu[illegible] Wednesday, Bos[illegible] granted him the d[illegible]tor of Music and [illegible]mencement exerc[illegible]vard yesterday th[illegible] Doctor of Music [illegible] conferred upon hi[illegible] Boston University [illegible] him a Doctor of Mu[illegible]

Dr. Munch retur[illegible] tonight, but he wil[illegible] the United States i[illegible] to open the fourte[illegible] of the Berkshire M[illegible] at Tanglewood in L[illegible] of which he is the [illegible] Sunday afternoon, [illegible]ing the six weeks o[illegible] Symphony Orches[illegible]shire Festival at [illegible] he will conduct the [illegible] the festival concert [illegible]ately after the conclusion [illegible] festival on Aug. 12, he [illegible] again return to Europe, [illegible] time accompanied by the 104 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who will begin their five-week tour of Europe with a concert in Cork, Ireland, on Aug. 24.

Free Press
MELROSE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,490
JUN 14 1956

—Miss Dolores LeSaffre of 186 Vinton Street participated in the weekend festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening the entire group attended the Boston Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories and breakfast was served to all early risers. The annual luncheon for all classes was held at the Carousel Room of the Hotel Bradford.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,384
JUN 14 1956

The Record Hears --

That the city of Malden may establish a central purchasing agency.

That the state will get a large sum of money to aid the airports.

That local graduation exercises have been well attended.

That the Chelsea Kiwanis club is one of the top clubs in the district in attendance.

That Everett expects only a minor increase in its tax rate.

That Mrs. Bella Feldman of Lynn st. who was recently named "Mother of the Year" by Lourie Chapter, B'nai B'rith, had a story of her achievement in the periodical published by Filene's where she is employed.

[illegible]gh bridge draw in [illegible] to be re-built.

[illegible]ers' guide, listing [illegible]00 Massachusetts [illegible] and their prod-[illegible] by the Massachu-[illegible]nt of Commerce, [illegible] many in Chelsea.

[illegible] annual Israel [illegible]oncert will be [illegible] Symphony Hall.

[illegible]e two bachelor [illegible] Board of Alder-[illegible]ating the bliss-[illegible] the marital [illegible]nd St. sewer [illegible]mpleted within

[illegible]grees

[illegible] sale of [illegible] Pops con-[illegible]cert tonight. The hall has been taken over by the National Confectioners Association.

[illegible] Agency, Inc.
[illegible]hmond 2-4200
(e)
[illegible] Mass.
[illegible]publican
[illegible]749
[illegible]56

TIGHT BINDING

105

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000
JUN 14 1956

e Politicians, duates Urged

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 13,[illegible]66

ons

onors Weeks, d Humphrey

d Citations

n government, education, rded honorary degrees at th yesterday.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Courant
HARTFORD
Republ
Circ. 9,[illegible]

nors Enders, Graduation

Kennedy, speaking at the umni meeting said that poli-

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Telegram (m)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 56,950

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,628

y Honored by Harvard

or 30 years executive secre-ary of the Harvard Fund Council.

Degrees were awarded near-y 3,000 graduates of the col-ege, including 150 from the medical school and more than 500 from the law school.

aside the "horrible weapons of modern internecine warfare—the barbed thrust, the acid pen, and most sinister of all, the rhetorical blast."

Nathan M. Pusey, Harvard's president, told the alumni that Harvard can admit only about 1,100 freshmen, but that it had 2,500 qualified applicants.

Worcester Daily Telegra

also "neither of them can afford to say that power does not matter."

Despite this, he said, a relaxation of tension is bound to occur.

"It takes place because people come to take even their armaments in their stride. Even in a country like Russia it turns out that you can't keep the elastic at stretch all the

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000
5 1956

Harvard Told Eggheads, Pols Should Unite

The intellectual "egg-head" and the practical politician should end their word warfare and work "more closely together for the common cause, against the common enemy," U. S. Sen. John F. Kennedy told the annual meeting of the Harvard Alumni Ass'n yesterday.

Sen. Kennedy, one of 12 recipients of honorary degrees at traditional ceremonies marking Harvard's 305th commencement, declared, "Both sides in this battle . . . are motivated by largely unfounded feelings of distrust."

"It seems to me that the time has come for intellectuals and politicians to put aside those horrible weapons of modern internecine warfare, the barbed thrust, the acid pen, and—most sinister of all—the rhetorical blast," he said.

FRANKFURTER HONORED

In addition to Sen. Kennedy, a 1940 Harvard graduate, honorary degrees were conferred on U. S. Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, Commerce Sec. Sinclair Weeks, Treasury Sec. George M. Humphrey and Dartmouth College President John Sloan Dickey.

Also, Publisher John Cowles of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Dean Edward S. Mason of the Harvard School of Public Administration; Harvard Prof. Harry A. Wolfson; Cambridge University Prof. Herbert Butterfield; Harvard Prof. John F. Enders, a 1954 Nobel Prize winner; Poet David T. W. McCord, and Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

All but four of the 12 recipients are Harvard alumni.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000
JUN 14 1956

Annual "Israel Night" Pops Program June 21

The program for the 28th Annual Israel Night at "Pops" was announced by Samuel D. Shapiro, chairman of the Israel Histadrut Pops Concert Committee. The Israel Night at "Pops" Concert will be held Thursday evening, June 21, at 8:30 p. m. at Symphony Hall, with Richard Tucker, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera as guest soloist. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra in a concert including works by Meyerbeer, Enesco and Tchaikovsky. The Israel Night at "Pops" Concert will benefit Kupat Holim, the medical service of the Histadrut (Israel's organization).

Shapiro announced that balcony tickets were available for the concert and can be obtained by contacting Israel Histadrut Office, 410, 185 Devonshire St.

Free Press
MELROSE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,490
JUN 14 1956

—Miss Dolores LeSaffre of 188 Vinton Street participated in the weekend festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening the entire group attended the Boston Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories and breakfast was served to all early risers. The annual luncheon for all classes was held at the Carousel Room of the Hotel Bradford.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,384
JUN 14 1956

The Record Hears --

That the city of Malden may establish a central purchasing agency.

That the state will get a large sum of money to aid the airports.

That local graduation exercises have been well attended.

That the Chelsea Kiwanis club is one of the top clubs in the district in attendance.

That Everett expects only a minor increase in its tax rate.

That Mrs. Bella Feldman of Lynn st. who was recently named "Mother of the Year" by Lourie Chapter, B'nai B'rith, had a story of her achievement in the periodical published by Filene's where she is employed.

That the high bridge draw in [illegible] to be re-built.

[illegible] listing [illegible] Massachusetts [illegible] and their prod[illegible] by the Massachu[illegible]nt of Commerce, [illegible]many in Chelsea.

[illegible] annual "Israel [illegible]oncert will be [illegible] Symphony Hall.

[illegible] two bachelor [illegible] Board of Alder[illegible]tting the bliss[illegible] the marital [illegible]

[illegible]d St. sewer [illegible]mpleted within

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,628

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

Beacon
BOSTON, Mass.
Independen
Circ. 1,021
1956

s You Feel

Everett Maynes, 40 North Acton, going Tuesday night go-town" three nights [illegible]. He started by

RD
from the First Page

For a red-and-white canopy, meant to protect them from the sun, had been blown down and ripped by Wednesday's thunderstorm, and could not be replaced. So the dignitaries, too, mopped their brows on the wooden platform fronting Memorial Church.

It was Harvard's 30th Commencement without rain, and not even a promised east wind arrived to cool them off.

Both Senator Kennedy and Prof. Butterfield expressed doubts in their afternoon addresses that the policies of the West toward the Iron Curtain countries are still adequate, and called on the academic world to furnish needed originality and imagination to remedy this.

In asking for a closing of the growing "gap between the intellectual and politician," the Senator spoke, in a sense, as a representative of both groups.

Himself a noted author, he said that the "authors, scholars and intellectuals can praise every aspect of American society but the political." Politicians, too, tended to criticize the "egghead," he said.

Speaking of politicians or, perhaps, businessmen in politics,, two members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet — Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey —received honorary doctorates of laws from Harvard yesterday.

So did Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court. Warmly applauded, too, an honorary doctorate of music went to Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Other honorary degrees were awarded by Pres. Pusey to Pres. John Sloan Dickey of

He declared there is a great "potential gain" for both the intellectuals and the politicians, who he said operate within a common framework of liberty, if they would lay el prize winning bacteriolo-School and the Children's nd imaginative scholar whose nspiration to his profession."

Science

umane Letters

D, poet and essayist: "Artist n his family stewardship Har-eople."

Receive Commissions

Degrees in course were conferred by Very Rev. Joseph R. McMaxwell, S. J., president of the college, who also awarded the honorary degrees.

Earlier, some 90 senior ROTC members were awarded commissions at a ceremony in Bapst Library Auditorium.

Army commissions were awarded by Col Edwin M. Van Bibber, infantry chief, Massachusetts Military District. Lt Col Earl R. McLaughlin presented the Marine commissions and Lt Weston M. Jenks the Navy commissions.

Among the graduates was Benjamin Lopez Jr., whose father is a senator and former vice president of the Philippine Government. Six members of the family traveled here for the commencement.

JUN 15

Munch

Charles Munc[illegible] tor of the Bo[illegible] Orchestra, yeste[illegible] a busy five-day [illegible] Boston from hi[illegible] Since last Sunda[illegible] the recipient of [illegible] degrees from [illegible] Boston institutio[illegible]

On Sunday, T[illegible] a Doctor of Hu[illegible] Wednesday, B[illegible] granted him the [illegible]tor of Music an[illegible] mencement exer[illegible] vard yesterday [illegible] Doctor of Musi[illegible] conferred upon [illegible] Boston University [illegible] him a Doctor of M[illegible]

Dr. Munch ret[illegible] tonight, but he w[illegible] the United States [illegible] to open the four[illegible] of the Berkshire [illegible] at Tanglewood in [illegible] of which he is th[illegible] Sunday afternoon [illegible]ing the six-weeks [illegible] Symphony Orche[illegible]shire Festival at [illegible] he will conduct th[illegible] the festival conc[illegible]ately after the con[illegible] festival on Aug. 12, he [illegible] again return to Europe, [illegible] time accompanied by the 104 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who will begin their five-week tour of Europe with a concert in Cork, Ireland, on Aug. 24.

[illegible]grees

[illegible]lip Agency, Inc.
[illegible]chmond 2-4200
[illegible] (e)
[illegible] Mass.
[illegible]epublican
[illegible],749
[illegible]956

[illegible]c sale of [illegible] Pops con[illegible]cert tonight. The hall has been taken over by the National Confectioners Association.

TIGHT BINDING

105

New England Newsclip Agency, Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2
Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass
Independent
Circ. 122,000
JUN 14

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000
JUN 14 1956

Annual "Israel Night" Pops Program June 21

The program for the 28th Annual Israel Night at "Pops" was announced by Samuel D. Shapiro, chairman of the Israel Histadrut Pops Concert Committee. The Israel Night at "Pops" Concert will be held Thursday evening, June 21, at 8:30 p. m. at Symphony Hall, with Richard Tucker, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera as guest soloist. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra in a concert including works by Meyerbeer, Enesco and Tchaikovsky. The Israel Night at "Pops" Concert will benefit Kupat Holim, the medical service of the Histadrut (Israel's Labor organization).

Shapiro announced that balcony tickets were available for the concert may be obtained by contacting Israel Histadrut Office, 410, 185 Devonshire St.

Free Press
MELROSE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,490
JUN 14 1956

—Miss Dolores LeSaffre of 188 Vinton Street participated in the weekend festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening the entire group attended the Boston Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories and breakfast was served to all early risers. The annual luncheon for all classes was held at the Carousel Room of the Hotel Bradford.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,384
JUN 14 1956

The Record Hears—

That the city of Malden may establish a central purchasing agency.

That the state will get a large sum of money to aid the airports.

That local graduation exercises have been well attended.

That the Chelsea Kiwanis club is one of the top clubs in the district in attendance.

That Everett expects only a minor increase in its tax rate.

That Mrs. Bella Feldman of Lynn st. who was recently named "Mother of the Year" by Lourie Chapter, B'nai B'rith, had a story of her achievement in the periodical published by Filene's where she is employed.

[illegible] the high bridge draw in [illegible] to be re-built.

[illegible] Police, listing [illegible] Massachusetts [illegible] and their prod[illegible] the Massachu[illegible] of Commerce, [illegible] many in Chelsea.

[illegible] annual "Israel [illegible] concert will be [illegible] Symphony Hall.

[illegible] two bachelor [illegible] board of Alder[illegible] ing the bliss[illegible] the marital [illegible]

[illegible] St. sewer [illegible] pleted within [illegible]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass
Independent
Circ. 122,000
JUN 14

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Herald
BOSTON
Independent
Circ

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Co
HART

[illegible] ians,
[illegible] Urged

[illegible] eeks,
[illegible] ohrey

[illegible] ation

[illegible] education,
[illegible] degrees at th

[illegible] nders,
[illegible] uation

[illegible] speaking at the [illegible] said that poli-

[illegible] er for Tol

[illegible] Sub

[illegible] EVENING, JUNE 15, 1956

Worcester Daily Telegram
JUN 15 1956

Honored by Harvard

[illegible] years executive secre[illegible] of the Harvard Fund [illegible]cil.

[illegible] degrees were awarded near[illegible] 3,000 graduates of the col[illegible]ege, including 150 from the medical school and more than 500 from the law school.

[illegible] Speech

aside the "horrible weapons of modern internecine warfare—the barbed thrust, the acid pen, and most sinister of all, the rhetorical blast."

Nathan M. Pusey, Harvard's president, told the alumni that Harvard can admit only about 1,100 freshmen, but that it had 2,500 qualified applicants.

also "neither of them can afford to say that power does not matter."

Despite this, he said, a relaxation of tension is bound to occur.

"It takes place because people come to take even their armaments in their stride. Even in a country like Russia it turns out that you can't keep the elastic at stretch all the

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 1,021
1956

[illegible] You Feel

[illegible] Everett Maynes, 40 [illegible] North Acton, going [illegible] Tuesday night go[illegible]own" three nights [illegible]. He started by Pres. Pusey poses with recipients of honorary Harvard degrees. Front (l. to r.) Charles Munch, Sinclair Weeks, Justice Frankfurter, Pusey, George Humphrey, Sen. Kennedy, Prof. Butterfield. Rear (l. to r.) Prof. Enders, Prof. Wolfson, John Cowles, Dartmouth Pres. Dickey, Dean Edward Mason, David McCord.

(Record-American Photo by Lou Teton)

Harvard Told Eggheads, Pols Should Unite

The intellectual "egg-head" and the practical politician should end their word warfare and work "more closely together for the common cause, against the common enemy," U. S. Sen. John F. Kennedy told the annual meeting of the Harvard Alumni Ass'n yesterday.

Sen. Kennedy, one of 12 recipients of honorary degrees at traditional ceremonies marking Harvard's 305th commencement, declared, "Both sides in this battle . . . are motivated by largely unfounded feelings of distrust."

"It seems to me that the time has come for intellectuals and politicians to put aside those horrible weapons of modern internecine warfare, the barbed thrust, the acid pen, and—most sinister of all—the rhetorical blast," he said.

FRANKFURTER HONORED

In addition to Sen. Kennedy, a 1940 Harvard graduate, honorary degrees were conferred on U. S. Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, Commerce Sec. Sinclair Weeks, Treasury Sec. George M. Humphrey and Dartmouth College President John Sloan Dickey.

Also, Publisher John Cowles of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Dean Edward S. Mason of the Harvard School of Public Administration; Harvard Prof. Harry A. Wolfson; Cambridge University Prof. Herbert Butterfield; Harvard Prof. John F. Enders, a 1954 Nobel Prize winner; Poet David T. W. McCord, and Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

All but four of the 12 recipients are Harvard alumni.

He declared there is a great "potential gain" for both the intellectuals and the politicians, who he said operate within a common framework of liberty, if they would lay

Doctor of Humane Letters

DAVID T. W. McCORD, poet and essayist: "Artist and poet who personifies in his family stewardship Harvard's deep concern for people."

Science

[illegible] prize winning bacteriolo[illegible] School and the Children's [illegible] imaginative scholar whose [illegible] spiration to his profession."

[illegible] bishop of Wuchow, [illegible] who was released from a [illegible] prison camp; attorney [illegible] Solomon A. Brickley of Bo[illegible] Charles Munch, conductor of [illegible] Boston Symphony Orchestra; [illegible] Boston Terminal Company; [illegible] Peter J. W. Doyle, prof[illegible]

[illegible] Receive Commissions

Degrees in course were conferred by Very Rev. Joseph R. [illegible] Maxwell, S. J., president of the college, who also awarded the honorary degrees.

Earlier, some 90 senior ROTC members were awarded commissions at a ceremony in Bapst Library Auditorium.

Army commissions were awarded by Col Edwin M. Van Bibber, infantry chief, Massachusetts Military District. Lt Col Earl R. McLaughlin presented the Marine commissions and Lt Weston M. Jenks the Navy commissions.

Among the graduates was Benjamin Lopez Jr., whose father is a senator and former vice president of the Philippine Government. Six members of the family traveled here for the commencement.

BOSTON DAILY RECORD, FRIDAY, JUNE 15, 1956

JUN 15

Munch

Charles Munch [illegible] tor of the Bos[illegible] Orchestra, yester[illegible] a busy five-day [illegible] Boston from his [illegible] Since last Sunday [illegible] the recipient of [illegible] degrees from [illegible] Boston institution[illegible]

On Sunday, Tu[illegible] a Doctor of Hum[illegible] Wednesday, Bos[illegible] granted him the d[illegible] tor of Music and [illegible] mencement exerc[illegible] vard yesterday th[illegible] Doctor of Music [illegible] conferred upon h[illegible] Boston University [illegible] him a Doctor of Mu[illegible]

Dr. Munch retu[illegible] tonight, but he wil[illegible] the United States [illegible] to open the fourt[illegible] of the Berkshire [illegible] at Tanglewood in [illegible] of which he is the [illegible] Sunday afternoon, [illegible] ing the six weeks [illegible] Symphony Orches[illegible] shire Festival at [illegible] he will conduct the [illegible] the festival concer[illegible] ately after the conclusion [illegible] festival on Aug. 12, he [illegible] again return to Europe, [illegible] time accompanied by the 104 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who will begin their five-week tour of Europe with a concert in Cork, Ireland, on Aug. 24.

[illegible] grees

[illegible] sale of [illegible] Pops con[illegible]cert tonight. The hall has been taken over by the National Confectioners Association.

TIGHT BINDING

105

BOSTON DAILY RECORD FRIDAY, JUNE 15, 1956

Rich Beauty, Man Sought

PIERMONT, N. H.—This Vermont-border town was agog yesterday over the mysterious disappearance of a wealthy blonde beauty, her mentally retarded son, and a well-to-do dairy farmer who is also a town selectman. More than 60 volunteers and State Police were searching the dense woods

Meg Martos, enjoying her bottle at City

...ration

...vernment, education, ...honorary degrees at th... ...rday.

...rs Enders, ...raduation

Kennedy, speaking at the ... said that poli-

JUN 15 1956

Sen. Kennedy Honored by Harvard

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) yesterday received an honorary degree from Harvard, his alma mater, and told the alumni later that greater understanding is needed between politicians and intellectuals.

Senator Kennedy said that "most intellectuals consider their chief function that of critics — and politicians are sensitive to critics, possibly because we have so many of them."

Senator Kennedy was one of a dozen awarded honorary degrees at Harvard's 305th commencement.

Others Honored

The others included Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter, two Cabinet officers, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey; President John Sloan Dickey of Dartmouth College and John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune.

Honorary degrees also went to Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peterhouse College at Cambridge, England, Dean Edward E. Mason of the Harvard School of Public Administration; Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel prize bacteriologist at the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy, and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist and for 30 years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

Degrees were awarded nearly 3,000 graduates of the college, including 150 from the medical school and more than 500 from the law school.

Kennedy's Speech

Senator Kennedy, speaking at the alumni meeting, said that politicians need "both the technical judgment and the disinterested viewpoint of the scholar to prevent us from becoming imprisoned by our own slogans."

He said specifically that Republicans and Democrats have long regated whether flexible or rigid price supports should be in effect in the U. S. agricultural program.

"But this may not be the real issue at all," he said, "and in fact I am convinced that it is not, that neither program offers any long range solution to our many real farm problems."

Senator Kennedy suggested that the scholars and the universities should "re-examine this whole area and come up with some real answers—the political parties and the conventions never will."

'Potential Gain'

He declared there is a great "potential gain" for both the intellectuals and the politicians, who he said operate within a common framework of liberty, if they would lay aside the "horrible weapons of modern internecine warfare—the barbed thrust, the acid pen, and most sinister of all, the rhetorical blast."

Nathan M. Pusey, Harvard's president, told the alumni that Harvard can admit only about 1,100 freshmen, but that it had 3,500 qualified applicants.

He added, however, that "seven out of 10 of the sons of Harvard parents who applied this year were accepted."

Other Speaker

Another alumni speaker, Professor Butterfield, said that great issues between civilizations like those on the two sides of the Iron Curtain are not always settled by economic superiority or sheer weight of guns.

"In a conflict of civilizations it is true above all that that one is likely to prevail which has the greater imaginative power at its disposal."

Professor Butterfield said that while neither side in the present conflict can relax, so ... Sinclair Weeks, secretary ... (D-Mass.), Prof. Herbert Butterfield ... sity, England, (partly obscured) and President John Sloan Dickey of Dartmouth College. Some of nearly 3,000 graduates of the college and 10 graduate schools line walk (AP Wirephoto).

Worcester Daily Telegra...

also "neither of them can afford to say that power does not matter."

Despite this, he said, a relaxation of tension is bound to occur.

"It takes place because people come to take even their armaments in their stride. Even in a country like Russia it turns out that you can't keep the elastic at stretch all the time, you can't hold men's minds forever to a single objective."

GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS: Associate Justice of the Supreme Court (foreground) Prof. Paul H. Buck (in robes) as ... session of honorary degree recipients ... commencement ceremonies in the Yard ... Frankfurter is George M. Humphrey, escorted by Prof. George Pierce ... honorary degrees at left are, in order, ... of commerce; Sen. John F. Kennedy ...

Science

...el prize winning bacteriologist of the Harvard Medical School and the Children's Medical Center: "A calm and imaginative scholar whose patient researches are an inspiration to his profession."

Doctor of Humane Letters

DAVID T. W. McCORD, poet and essayist: "Artist and poet who personifies in his family stewardship Harvard's deep concern for people."

...s at a ceremony in Bapst ...rary Auditorium.

...my commissions were awarded ... Col Edwin M. Van Bibber, infantry chief, Massachusetts Military District. Lt Col Earl R. McLaughlin presented the Marine commissions and Lt Weston M. Jenks the Navy commissions.

Among the graduates was Benjamin Lopez Jr., whose father is a senator and former vice president of the Philippine Government. Six members of the family traveled here for the commencement.

...ts Receive Commissions

Degrees in course were conferred by Very Rev. Joseph R. ...Maxwell, S. J., president of the College, who also awarded the honorary degrees.

Earlier, some 90 senior ROTC members were awarded commis...

...bishop of Wuchow ..., who was released from a ...mmunist prison camp; attorney ...holomew A. Brickley of Bo... Charles Munch, conductor ... Boston Symphony Orchestra; ...ard T. Williams, president ... Boston Terminal Company; Peter J. W. Boyle, pres...

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 14 1956

...nnual "Israel Night" ...ops Program June 21

The program for the 28th ...nnual Israel Night at "Pops" ...s announced by Samuel D. ...piro, chairman of the Israel ...adrut Pops Concert Com...ee. The Israel Night at ...s" Concert will be held ...sday evening, June 21, at ...p. m. at Symphony Hall, ... Richard Tucker, leading ... of the Metropolitan Op... guest soloist. Arthur ... will conduct the Bos...on Pops Orchestra in a concert including works by Meyerbeer, Enesco and Tchaikovsky. The Israel Night at ...ncert will benefit ...m, the medical ser... Histadrut (Israel's ...ization).

...ro announced that ...ony tickets were ...e for the concert ... obtained by con...ael Histadrut Of..., 185 Devonshire

...scip Agency, In... Richmond 2-420...

...on ...D. Mass. ...dependen... ...021

...56

...ou Feel

...ett Maynes, 40 ...n Acton, going ...day night go... ..." three nights ...e started by ... Russell Hay... Pops Concert ... Then Friday ... Strawberry ...nics Hall by ...p the week ...dens Satur... ...he Knight ...ynes, said, ...de which ... week he ...up, reliv... ...t week.

...gency, Inc. ...ond 2-4200

...ce

...n. ...partisan Circ. 165,872

JUN 15 1956

Free Press
MELROSE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,490

JUN 14 1956

—Miss Dolores LeSaffre of 186 Vinton Street participated in the weekend festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening the entire group attended the Boston Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories and breakfast was served to all early risers. The annual luncheon for all classes was held at the Carousel Room of the Hotel Bradford.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,384

JUN 14 1956

The Record Hears --

That the city of Malden may establish a central purchasing agency.

That the state will get a large sum of money to aid the airports.

That local graduation exercises have been well attended.

That the Chelsea Kiwanis club is one of the top clubs in the district in attendance.

That Everett expects only a minor increase in its tax rate.

That Mrs. Bella Feldman of Lynn st. who was recently named "Mother of the Year" by Lourie Chapter, B'nai B'rith, had a story of her achievement in the periodical published by Filene's where she is employed.

That the high bridge draw in Charlestown is to be re-built.

That a buyers' guide, listing more than 1,700 Massachusetts manufacturers and their products, put out by the Massachusetts Department of Commerce, includes a great many in Chelsea.

That the 28th annual "Israel Night" Pops Concert will be given June 21 at Symphony Hall.

That one of the two bachelor members of the Board of Aldermen is contemplating the blissful venture into the marital ranks.

That the Second St. sewer project may be completed within five weeks.

JUN 15 1956

Munch Awarded 3 Degrees

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, yesterday concluded a busy five-day return visit to Boston from his Paris home. Since last Sunday he has been the recipient of three honorary degrees from three Greater Boston institutions.

On Sunday, Tufts made him a Doctor of Humane Letters. Wednesday, Boston College granted him the degree of Doctor of Music, and at the Commencement exercises at Harvard yesterday the degree of Doctor of Music was again conferred upon him. In 1955 Boston University also awarded him a Doctor of Music degree.

Dr. Munch returns to Paris tonight, but he will fly back to the United States in two weeks to open the fourteenth season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., of which he is the director, on Sunday afternoon, July 1. During the six weeks of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood he will conduct the majority of the festival concerts. Immediately after the conclusion of the festival on Aug. 12, he will again return to Europe, this time accompanied by the 104 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who will begin their five-week tour of Europe with a concert in Cork, Ireland, on Aug. 24.

Herbert von Karajan

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

JUN 14 1956

POPS TONIGHT

There is no public sale of tickets to the Boston Pops concert tonight. The hall has been taken over by the National Confectioners Association.

TIGHT BINDING

105

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 14 1956

ual "Israel Night" Program June 21

The program for the 28th Annual Israel Night at "Pops" was announced by Samuel D. Shapiro, chairman of the Israel Histadrut Pops Concert Committee. The Israel Night at "Pops" Concert will be held Thursday evening, June 21, at 8:30 p. m. at Symphony Hall, with Richard Tucker, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera as guest soloist. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra in a concert including works by Meyerbeer, Enesco and Tchaikovsky. The Israel Night at "Pops" Concert will benefit ...m, the medical ser- ... Histadrut (Israel's ...nization).

...ro announced that ...tony tickets were ...le for the concert ... obtained by con- ...rael Histadrut Of- ...0, 185 Devonshire

Free Press
MELROSE, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,490

JUN 14 1956

—Miss Dolores LeSaffre of 188 Vinton Street participated in the weekend festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening the entire group attended the Boston Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories and breakfast was served to all early risers. The annual luncheon for all classes was held at the Carousel Room of the Hotel Bradford.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,384

JUN 14 1956

The Record Hears—

That the city of Malden may establish a central purchasing agency.

That the state will get a large sum of money to aid the airports.

That local graduation exercises have been well attended.

That the Chelsea Kiwanis club is one of the top clubs in the district in attendance.

That Everett expects only a minor increase in its tax rate.

That Mrs. Bella Feldman of Lynn st. who was recently named "Mother of the Year" by Lourie Chapter, B'nai B'rith, had a story of her achievement in the periodical published by Filene's where she is employed.

That the high bridge draw in Charlestown is to be re-built.

That a buyers' guide, listing more than 3,700 Massachusetts manufacturers and their products, put out by the Massachusetts Department of Commerce, includes a great many in Chelsea.

That the 28th annual "Israel Night" Pops Concert will be given June 21 at Symphony Hall.

That one of the two bachelor members of the Board of Aldermen is contemplating the blissful venture into the marital ranks.

That the Second St. sewer project may be completed within five weeks.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 20,021

JUN 14 1956

You Feel

...ett Maynes, 40 ...th Acton, going ...aday night go- ...n" three nights ...He started by ...Russell Hay- ...Pops Concert ...Then Friday ...a Strawberry ...anics Hall by ...up the week ...dens Satur- ...the Knight ...aynes, said, ...rade which ...is week he ...t up, reliv- ...last week.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

JUN 14 1956

POPS TONIGHT

There is no public sale of tickets to the Boston Pops concert tonight. The hall has been taken over by the National Confectioners Association.

...nors Weeks, ...d Humphrey ...d Citation

...n government, education, ...rded honorary degrees at th... yesterday.

JUN 15 1956

Harvard Honors Enders, 11 Others At Graduation

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 14 (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) today received an honorary degree from Harvard, his alma mater, and told the alumni later that greater understanding is needed between politicians and intellectuals.

Kennedy said that "most intellectuals consider their chief function that of critics—and politicians are sensitive to critics, possibly because we have so many of them."

Kennedy was one of a dozen awarded honorary degrees at Harvard's 305th commencement.

The others included Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter, two cabinet officers, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey; President John Sloan Dickey of Dartmouth College and John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune.

Kennedy Speaks

Honorary degrees also went to Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peterhouse College at Cambridge, England; Dean Edward S. Mason of the Harvard School of Public Administration; Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel prize bacteriologist at the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy, and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist and for 30 years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

Kennedy, speaking at the alumni meeting, said that politicians need "both the technical judgment and the disinterested viewpoint of the scholar to prevent us from becoming imprisoned by our own slogans."

Kennedy said specifically that Republicans and Democrats have long debated whether flexible or rigid price supports should be in effect in the U.S. agricultural program.

"But this may not be the real issue at all," he said, "and in fact I am convinced that it is not, that neither program offers any long range solution to our many real farm problems."

Kennedy suggested that the scholars and the universities should "reexamine this whole area and come up with some real answers—the political parties and the conventions never will."

Kennedy declared there is a great "potential gain" for both the intellectuals and the politicians who he said operate within a common framework of liberty, if they would lay aside the "horrible weapons of modern internecine warfare—the barbed thrust, the acid pen, and most sinister of all, the rhetorical blast."

Harvard's President Nathan M. Pusey told the alumni that Harvard can admit only about 1,100 freshmen, but that it had 3,500 qualified applicants.

He added, however, that "seven out of 10 of the sons of Harvard parents who applied this year were accepted."

Doctor of Music

CHARLES MUNCH, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra: "Under his imaginative direction a great orchestra infuses our lives with both beauty and meaning."

Doctor of Science

JOHN F. ENDERS, Nobel prize winning bacteriologist of the Harvard Medical School and the Children's Medical Center: "A calm and imaginative scholar whose patient researches are an inspiration to his profession."

Doctor of Humane Letters

DAVID T. W. McCORD, poet and essayist: "Artist and poet who personifies in his family stewardship Harvard's deep concern for people."

HARVARD HONORS: GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS: Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the Supreme Court (foreground) is accompanied by Prof. Paul H. Buck (in robes) as they lead the academic procession of honorary degree recipients at the 305th Harvard Commencement ceremonies in the Yard Thursday. Behind Justice Frankfurter is George M. Humphrey, secretary of the treasury, escorted by Prof. George Pierce Baker. Others getting honorary degrees at left are, in order, Sinclair Weeks, secretary of commerce; Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.), Prof. Herbert Butterfield of Cambridge University, England, (partly obscured) and President John Sloan Dickey of Dartmouth College. Some of nearly 3,000 graduates of the college and 10 graduate schools line walk (AP Wirephoto).

...ons at a ceremony in Bapst ...hragy Auditorium.

Army commissions were awarded by Col Edwin M. Van Bibber, infantry chief, Massachusetts Military District. Lt Col Earl R. McLaughlin presented the Marine commissions and Lt Weston M. Jenks the Navy commissions.

Among the graduates was Benjamin Lopez Jr., whose father is a senator and former vice president of the Philippine Government. Six members of the family traveled here for the commencement.

...M., bishop of Wuchow ...ina, who was released from a ...mmunist prison camp; attorney ...rtholomew A. Brickley of Bo... ..., Charles Munch, conductor of ... Boston Symphony Orchestra; ...ward T. Williams, president of ...e Boston Terminal Company; ...r. Peter J. W. Doyle, president ...

...Receive Commissions

Degrees in course were conferred by Very Rev. Joseph R. ...Mitchell, S. J., president of the ...ge, who also awarded the ...honorary degrees.

Earlier, some 90 senior ROTC members were awarded commis...

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

...nce
...)
...ass.
...ssen
Circ. 165,872

JUN 15 1956

Munch Awarded 3 Degrees

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, yesterday concluded a busy five-day return visit to Boston from his Paris home. Since last Sunday he has been the recipient of three honorary degrees from three Greater Boston institutions.

On Sunday, Tufts made him a Doctor of Humane Letters. Wednesday, Boston College granted him the degree of Doctor of Music and at the Commencement exercises at Harvard yesterday the degree of Doctor of Music was again conferred upon him. In 1955 Boston University also awarded him a Doctor of Music degree.

Dr. Munch returns to Paris tonight, but he will fly back to the United States in two weeks to open the fourteenth season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., of which he is the director, on Sunday afternoon, July 1. During the six weeks of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood he will conduct the majority of the festival concerts. Immediately after the conclusion of the festival on Aug. 12, he will again return to Europe, this time accompanied by the 104 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who will begin their five-week tour of Europe with a concert in Cork, Ireland, on Aug. 24.

"Wisk-fits wonderful!"*
*6 DAYS TO WISK DAY!

What is a CO-OP?
"By patronizing and joining co-operatives, workers can obtain high quality goods and services at the lowest cost. At the same time, they are participating in and building consumer-owned, democratically-operated enterprises."
GEORGE MEANY,
President, AFL-CIO.
If you want to learn more about co-operatives and ...

Raymond Swenson
...put you behind the ... own new PLY-... of a ...

TIGHT BINDING

105

Foreign Exchange

NEW YORK, June 14 (AP)—Closing foreign Exchange rates follow (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents):

Canadian dollar in New York open market 1¼ per cent premium or 101.50 U. S. cents, unchanged.

Europe: Great Britain (pound) $2.80 9-16, off 1-16 of a cent; Great Britain 30 day futures 2.80 11-16, off 1-16 of a cent; Great Britain 60 day futures 2.79 9-16, off 1-16 of a cent; Great Britain 90 day futures 2.79 1-16, off 1-16 of a cent; Belgium (franc) .28⅝ of a cent, unchanged; France (franc) 2.00¼, unchanged; Germany (western) (deutsche mark) 23.80, unchanged; Italy (lira) .16¼ of a cent, unchanged; Sweden (krona) 19.34, unchanged; Switzerland (franc) (free) 23.34, unchanged; Denmark (krone) 14.50, unchanged; 2.98, unchanged; Brazil (free) 1.20, off .02 of a cent; Mexico 8.01, unchanged.

Latin America: Argentina (free) .02 of a cent; Mexico 8.01, unchanged.

Massachusetts Stocks

SHEARSON, HAMMILL & CO.

Bates Mfg. Co.	9¼
Berkshire Fine Spinning	10¼
Boston Wover Hose	12
Central Maine Power	14
Eastern Gas & Fuel	22¾
Eastern Falls Co.	34¼
Miller Falls Co.	29
Monarch Life Ins. Assoc.	19¾
Moore Drop Forge	11
Mt. Hope Finishing	13
Nashua Corp.	18¼
Nonotuck Silk	16¼
Pacific Mills	32
Reed Prentice	11
Stevens (J. P.) & Co.	18¼
Torrington Co.	11
Turners Falls Power & Electric	34¼
Union Twist Drill	21¾
Warren (S. D.) Co.	13
Webster & Bennett	32
Westfield River Paper	11
Wickwire Spencer Steel	24¾
Wolverine Tube	17¼
Worcester Pressed Metals	9¼
Xshi Kaseki	11

Stocks in Spotlight

NEW YORK, June 14 (AP)—Sales, closing price and net change of five listed issues:

Cosden Petrol	102,700	56,100	15¼	+2
Pantepec Oil	45¾	24¼	—¼
Sperry Rand	45¾	24¼	—¼
Texas Co.	45¾	24¼	—¼
Texas Pacific Coal & Oil	45¾	24¼	—¼

Livestock Market

CHICAGO, June 14 (AP)—Butcher hogs and sows sold steady to 25 cents lower today. Demand was slow despite the fact supply was small. Several loads of choice 190 to 270 pound butchers brought $17.75 to $17.50 with a few butchers weighing 280 to 330 pounds sold at $15.50 to $16.25. Sows moved from $12.50 to $15.50.

Only 2,000 head were on sale in the cattle market. Trade was slow and prices were lower on strictly good and choice steers and heifers. Cows were steady. Bulls and vealers were steady to 25 cents higher. Stocks were steady.

Buyers paid $16.25 to $17.00 for most of the hogs. Sows brought $15.50 to $16.25.

Cattle receipts at 7,500 head were 1,500 short of expectations.

Buyers paid $17.00 for most of the cattle. Several loads of good and choice steers and heifers sold at $16.50 to $17.00. Cows brought $13.50 to $15.50. Bulls were steady to 25 cents higher. Vealers were steady to 50 cents higher.

Sheep receipts at 1,500 head were 1,500 short of expectations.

Buyers paid $18.25 to $19.00 for most of the lots of wooled lambs. Shorn lambs were steady to 25 cents lower. Ewes were steady to 25 cents higher.

Feeder lambs were steady to 25 cents higher. Slaughter ewes were steady to 25 cents higher.

Honors Weeks, and Humphrey

JUN 15 1956

Harvard Citations

Twelve leaders in government, education, science and the arts were awarded honorary degrees at the Harvard commencement yesterday.

The men and their citations:

Doctor of Laws

JOHN COWLES, publisher of Minneapolis Star and Tribune: "His Alma Mater honors a servant of education and a journalist with a public conscience."

JOHN SLOAN DICKEY, president of Dartmouth College: "Again we acclaim as our own this insistent advocate of education who seeks a bridge between life and learning."

FELIX FRANKFURTER, associate justice of the U. S. Supreme Court: "A brilliant and exciting teacher he has brought to the highest court of the land the stimulus of an incisive mind."

GEORGE. M. HUMPHREY, Secretary of the Treasury: "Industrialist turned to the service of government; a statesman who holds a firm rein on the nation's fiscal policy."

JOHN F. KENNEDY, U. S. senator from Massachusetts: "Brave officer, able Senator, son of Harvard; loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

EDWARD S. MASON, economist, dean of the Harvard School of Public Administration: "Economist and dean; his expert knowledge and sound counsel guide students in the ways of government and governments in the ways of peace."

SINCLAIR WEEKS, secretary of commerce: "Harvard son, at home alike in politics and business, he finds scope for his abilities in the service of university, state, and nation."

Doctor of Letters

HERBERT BUTTERFIELD, historian and Master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge: "Exploring the strengths and frailties of history, he evokes a sense of liberty through belief."

HARRY A. WOLFSON, Hebraic scholar, Nathan Littauer Professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard: "From enormous knowledge he graciously illumines the major problems of religious philosophy and their relation to revealed truth."

Doctor of Music

CHARLES MUNCH, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra: "Under his imaginative direction a great orchestra infuses our lives with both beauty and meaning."

Doctor of Science

JOHN F. ENDERS, Nobel prize winning bacteriologist of the Harvard Medical School and the Children's Medical Center: "A calm and imaginative scholar whose patient researches are an inspiration to his profession."

Doctor of Humane Letters

DAVID T. W. McCORD, poet and essayist: "Artist and poet who personifies in his family stewardship Harvard's deep concern for people."

...M.M., bishop of Wuchow ...na, who was released from a ...mmunist prison camp; attorney ...rtholomew A. Brickley of Bo... Charles Munch, conductor of ...e Boston Symphony Orchestra; ...ward T. Williams, president of ...e Boston Terminal Company; ...r. Peter J. W. Doyle, president ...

To Receive Commissions

Degrees in course were conferred by Very Rev. Joseph R. ...Maxwell, S. J., president of the College, who also awarded the honorary degrees.

Earlier, some 90 senior ROTC members were awarded commissions at a ceremony in Bapst Library Auditorium.

Army commissions were awarded by Col. Edwin M. Van Bibber, military chief, Massachusetts Military District. Lt Col Earl R. McLaughlin presented the Marine commissions and Lt Weston M. Jenks the Navy commissions.

Among the graduates was Benjamin Lopez Jr., whose father is a senator and former vice president of the Philippine Government. Six members of the family traveled here for the commencement.

...e Photo by William O'Connor)

...: Senator John F. Kenne... Bishop Frederick A. Dona... Williams, Peter J. W. De...

...Cushing and Pres. Joseph ...ate Mrs. Ellen Harney as ...ated from Boston College ...ber of Harney family to ...ge in 142 years.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 14 1956

...al "Israel Night" Program June 21

...program for the 28th ...Israel Night at "Pops" ...nounced by Samuel D. ..., chairman of the Israel Histadrut Pops Concert Committee. The Israel Night at "Pops" Concert will be held Thursday evening, June 21, at 8:30 p. m. at Symphony Hall, with Richard Tucker, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera as guest soloist. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra in a concert including works by Meyerbeer, Enesco and Tchaikovsky. The Israel Night at "Pops" Concert will benefit Kupat Holim, the medical service of the Histadrut (Israel's Labor Organization).

Mr. Shapiro announced that limited balcony tickets were still available for the concert and could be obtained by contacting the Israel Histadrut Office, Room 410, 185 Devonshire street, Boston.

Free Press
MELROSE, Mass.
...kly Independent We...
Circ. 5,490

JUN 14 1956

—Miss Dolores LeSaffre of 186 Vinton Street participated in the weekend festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening the entire group attended the Boston Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories and breakfast was served to all early risers. The annual luncheon for all classes was held at the Carousel Room of the Hotel Bradford.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,384

JUN 14 1956

The Record Hears—

That the city of Malden may establish a central purchasing agency.

That the state will get a large sum of money to aid the airports.

That local graduation exercises have been well attended.

That the Chelsea Kiwanis club is one of the top clubs in the district in attendance.

That Everett expects only a minor increase in its tax rate.

That Mrs. Bella Feldman of Lynn st. who was recently named "Mother of the Year" by Lduric Chapter, B'nai B'rith, had a story of her achievement in the periodical published by Filene's where she is employed.

That the high bridge draw in Charlestown is to be re-built.

That a buyers' guide, listing more than 3,700 Massachusetts manufacturers and their products, put out by the Massachusetts Department of Commerce, includes a great many in Chelsea.

That the 28th annual "Israel Night" Pops Concert will be given June 21 at Symphony Hall.

That one of the two bachelor members of the Board of Aldermen is contemplating the blissful venture into the marital ranks.

That the Second St. sewer project may be completed within five weeks.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Beacon
MAYNARD, Mass.
Weekly Independen
Circ. 1,021

JUN 14 1956

As Young As You Feel

ACTON — Everett Maynes, 40 Harris Street, North Acton, going on 78, started Tuesday night going "out on the town" three nights during the week. He started by taking his niece Mrs. Russell Hayward with him to the Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. Then Friday evening he attended a Strawberry Festival held in Mechanics Hall by the Shriners. Winding up the week he went to Boston Gardens Saturday night to attend the Knight Templers meeting. Maynes, said, they had a dress parade which was most effective. This week he is at home with his feet up, reliving the happy hours of last week.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 15 1956

Munch Awarded 3 Degrees

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, yesterday concluded a busy five-day return visit to Boston from his Paris home. Since last Sunday he has been the recipient of three honorary degrees from three Greater Boston institutions.

On Sunday, Tufts made him a Doctor of Humane Letters. Wednesday, Boston College granted him the degree of Doctor of Music and at the Commencement exercises at Harvard yesterday the degree of Doctor of Music was again conferred upon him. In 1955 Boston University also awarded him a Doctor of Music degree.

Dr. Munch returns to Paris tonight, but he will fly back to the United States in two weeks to open the fourteenth season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., of which he is the director, on Sunday afternoon, July 1. During the six weeks of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood he will conduct the major part of the festival concerts. Immediately after the conclusion of the festival on Aug. 12, he will again return to Europe, this time accompanied by the 104 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who will begin their five-week tour of Europe with a concert in Cork, Ireland, on Aug. 24.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

JUN 14 1956

POPS TONIGHT

There is no public sale of tickets to the Boston Pops concert tonight. The hall has been taken over by the National Confectioners Association.

TIGHT BINDING

105

Wellesley Crash
Who were Hilary, Anne Hoyt, Sd... Meredith Leach, 23, relatives and mother Mrs. Nancy Leach, 23, relatives a tree on Rte. 16 at Washington and Weston streets, Wellesley.

JUN 15 1956

Politicians, ...uates Urged

Twelve Win Citations

Harvard Honors Weeks, Kennedy and Humphrey

Doctor of Laws

JOHN COWLES, publisher, Minneapolis Star and Tribune and chairman of the board, Des Moines Register and Tribune Company; Cowles Magazine, Inc. (Look), Cowles Broadcasting Company:

"His alma mater honors a servant of education and a journalist with a public conscience."

JOHN SLOAN DICKEY, president of Dartmouth College:

"Again we acclaim as our own this insistent advocate of education who seeks a bridge between life and learning."

FELIX FRANKFURTER, associate justice of the United States Supreme Court:

"A brilliant and exciting teacher, he has brought to the highest court of the land the stimulus of an incisive mind."

GEORGE M. HUMPHREY, Secretary of the Treasury:

"Industrialist turned to the service of government; statesman who holds a firm rein on the nation's fiscal policy."

JOHN F. KENNEDY, United States Senator from Massachusetts:

"Brave officer, able Senator, son of Harvard; loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

EDWARD S. MASON, economist, dean of the Harvard School of Public Administration:

"Economist and dean; his expert knowledge and sound counsel guide students in the ways of government and governments in the ways of peace."

SINCLAIR WEEKS, Secretary of Commerce:

"Harvard son, at home alike in politics and business, he finds scope for his abilities in the service of university, state and nation."

Doctor of Letters

HERBERT BUTTERFIELD, historian, master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge, Eng.:

"Exploring the strengths and frailties of history, he evokes a sense of liberty through belief."

HARRY A. WOLFSON, professor of Hebrew literature and philosphy at Harvard:

"From enormous knowledge he graciously illumines the major problems of religious philosophy and their relation to revealed truth."

Doctor of Music

CHARLES MUNCH, conductor, Boston Symphony Orchestra:

"Under his imaginative direction a great orchestra infuses our lives with both beauty and meaning."

Doctor of Science

JOHN F. ENDERS, professor of bacteriology and immunology, Harvard Medical School:

"A calm and imaginative scholar whose patient researches are an inspiration to his profession."

Doctor of Humane Letters

DAVID T. W. McCORD, poet and essayist:

"Artist and poet who personifies in his friendly stewardship Harvard's deep concern for people."

(Robe Photo by William O'Connor)

...nt: Senator John F. Kenne... ...l Bishop Frederick A. Dona... ...Williams, Peter J. W. De...

...hp Cushing and Pres. Joseph ...tulate Mrs. Ellen Harney as ...aduated from Boston College ...member of Harney family to ...ollege in 142 years.

...relatives and ...nds, ... prelate warned that Republic is threatened "not ...ely by the machinations of ...less Russia but also by the ...essness of a growing paganism ...in our national institutions.

...oday, he continued, "adds to citizenry a group of men who ...add to the foundations of rep...ntative government the very ...ngth of which it stands in ...atest need.

...By your fiedlity to the sacred ...ure and purposes of marriage, ...will help arrest divorce that ...apping American strength by ...kening our homes.

...By your respect for justice, ...will have no sympathy or ...nership with unfair prac...s of capital, labor or govern...nt.

...By your devotion to charity ...u will have no traffic with bigot..., prejudice or discrimination.

...By your intelligent recognition ...authority and its laws, you will ...ep free from the contagion ...hich confuses liberty ... licentiousness and license.

...And you will help stem the ... lawlessness that is sending ... time rate up and the crime ... down."

Other degree recipients:

Most Rev. Frederick A. ...hy, M.M., bishop of Wuchow, ...ina, who was released from a Communist prison camp; attorney Bartholomew A. Brickley of Bo...on, Charles Munch, conductor ... the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Edward T. Williams, ... the Boston Terminal Company; Dr. Peter J. W. Doyle, pa...

...University, ... John W. ... board chair... ...n of the John Bowen Construc... Company.

...Receive Commissions

Degrees in course were con... by Very Rev. Joseph R. ... Maxwell, S. J., president of the College, who also awarded the ... degrees.

Earlier, some 90 senior ROTC members were awarded ... sions at a ceremony in Bapst Library Auditorium.

Army commissions were awarded by Col Edwin M. Van Bibber, infantry chief, Massachusetts Military District. Lt Col Earl R. McLaughlin presented the Marine commissions and Lt Weston M. Jenks the Navy commissions.

Among the graduates was Benjamin Lopez Jr., whose father is a senator and former vice president of the Philippine Government. Six members of the family traveled here for the commencement.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 14 1956

Annual "Israel Night" Pops Program June 21

The program for the 28th Annual Israel Night at "Pops" was announced by Samuel D. Shapiro, chairman of the Israel Histadrut Pops Concert Committee. The Israel Night at "Pops" Concert will be held Thursday evening, June 21, at 8:30 p. m. at Symphony Hall, with Richard Tucker, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera as guest soloist. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra in a concert including works by Meyerbeer, Enesco and Tchaikovsky. The Israel Night at "Pops" Concert will benefit Kupat Holim, the medical service of the Histadrut (Israel's Labor Organization).

Mr. Shapiro announced that limited balcony tickets were still available for the concert and could be obtained by contacting the Israel Histadrut Office, Room 410, 185 Devonshire street, Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Beacon
MAYNARD, Mass.
Weekly Independen
Circ. 1,021

JUN 14 1956

As Young As You Feel

ACTON — Everett Maynes, 40 Harris Street, North Acton, going on 73, started Tuesday night going "out on the town" three nights during the week. He started by taking his niece Mrs. Russell Hayward with him to the Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. Then Friday evening he attended a Strawberry Festival held in Mechanics Hall by the Shriners. Winding up the week he went to Boston Gardens Saturday night to attend the Knight Templers meeting. Maynes, said, they had a dress parade which was most effective. This week he is at home with his feet up, reliving the happy hours of last week.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 15 1956

Munch Awarded 3 Degrees

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, yesterday concluded a busy five-day return visit to Boston from his Paris home. Since last Sunday he has been the recipient of three honorary degrees from three Greater Boston institutions.

On Sunday, Tufts made him a Doctor of Humane Letters. Wednesday, Boston College granted him the degree of Doctor of Music, and at the Commencement exercises at Harvard yesterday the degree of Doctor of Music was again conferred upon him. In 1955 Boston University also awarded him a Doctor of Music degree.

Dr. Munch returns to Paris tonight, but he will fly back to the United States in two weeks to open the fourteenth season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., of which he is the director, on Sunday afternoon, July 1. During the six weeks of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood he will conduct the majority of the festival concerts. Immediately after the conclusion of the festival on Aug. 12, he will again return to Europe, this time accompanied by the 104 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who will begin their five-week tour of Europe with a concert in Cork, Ireland, on Aug. 24.

Free Press
MELROSE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,490

JUN 14 1956

—Miss Dolores LeSaffre of 188 Vinton Street participated in the weekend festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening the entire group attended the Boston Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories and breakfast was served to all early risers. The annual luncheon for all classes was held at the Carousel Room of the Hotel Bradford.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,384

JUN 14 1956

The Record Hears—

That the city of Malden may establish a central purchasing agency.

That the state will get a large sum of money to aid the airports.

That local graduation exercises have been well attended.

That the Chelsea Kiwanis club is one of the top clubs in the district in attendance.

That Everett expects only a minor increase in its tax rate.

That Mrs. Bella Feldman of Lynn st. who we recently named "Mother of the Year" by Lodrie Chapter, B'nai B'rith, had a story of her achievement in the periodical published by Filene's where she is employed.

That the high bridge draw in Charlestown is to be re-built.

That a buyers' guide, listing more than 3700 Massachusetts manufacturers and their products, put out by the Massachusetts Department of Commerce, includes a great many in Chelsea.

That the 28th annual "Israel Night" Pops Concert will be given June 21 at Symphony Hall.

That one of the two bachelor members of the Board of Aldermen is contemplating the blissful venture into the marital ranks.

That the Second St. sewer project may be completed within five weeks.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

JUN 14 1956

POPS TONIGHT

There is no public sale of tickets to the Boston Pops concert tonight. The hall has been taken over by the National Confectioners Association.

TIGHT BINDING

105

Aid Brave Politicians, B. C. Graduates Urged

Senator John F. Kennedy warned yesterday that there is a greater need now than ever before for men of integrity and courage in politics and public service.

Addressing some 1258 graduates at Boston College Commencement ceremonies on Alumni Field, Kennedy said that "enever before in our history has there been a greater need for the people to take up willingly the responsibility of free government."

With the issues of war and peace, with the fate of Western civilization hanging in the balance, indeed, with the survival of our faith and country at stake, "each man among you can afford in some degree, at least, to answer the call to service," the Senator declared.

BOSTON COLLEGE

Page Nine 7 Page

Most of us, he continued, tend to regard ourselves as the objects of governmental policy and not the makers, and this state of mind has resulted in the feeling of great uninterest and faint distaste with which so many Americans view governmental process.

Kennedy, who was awarded an honorary doctorate of laws, told the graduates that the people actually get, by and large, "the kind of political representation they desire and deserve.

"If the people will support politicians of courage, will recognize and reward political courage, even when it may be employed against what they conceive to be their own immediate interest, then the quality of our public service will be correspondingly increased," he explained.

Termed Day of Hope

Archbishop Cushing hailed the Commencement ceremony as a "day of hope" for the United States of America.

In his brief remarks to the graduates and 12,000 relatives and friends, the prelate warned that our Republic is threatened "not merely by the machinations of godless Russia but also by the godlessness of a growing paganism within our national institutions.

Today, he continued, "adds to our citizenry a group of men who can add to the foundations of representative government the very strength of which it stands in greatest need.

"By your fiedlity to the sacred nature and purposes of marriage, you will help arrest divorce that is sapping American strength by weakening our homes.

"By your respect for justice, you will have no sympathy or partnership with unfair practices of capital, labor or government.

"By your devotion to charity you will have no traffic with bigotry, prejudice or discrimination.

"By your intelligent recognition of authority and its laws, you will keep free from the contagion which confuses liberty with anarchy and license.

"And you will help stem the tide of lawlessness that is sending our crime rate up and our crime rate down."

Other degree recipients:

Most Rev. Frederick A. Donaghy, M.M., bishop of Wuchow, China, who was released from a Communist prison camp; attorney Bartholomew A. Brickley of Boston, Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Edward F. Williams, president of the Boston Terminal Company; Dr. Peter J. W. Doyle, president of Cornell University, John W. Ward, chairman of the John Bowen Construction Company.

To Receive Commissions

Degrees in course were conferred by Very Rev. Joseph R. N. Maxwell, S. J., president of the college, who also awarded the honorary degrees.

Earlier, some 90 senior ROTC members were awarded commissions at a ceremony in Bapst Library Auditorium.

Army commissions were awarded by Col Edwin M. Van Bibber, infantry chief, Massachusetts Military District. Lt Col Earl R. McLaughlin presented the Marine commissions and Lt Weston M. Jenks the Navy commissions.

Among the graduates was Benjamin Lopez Jr., whose father is a senator and former vice president of the Philippine Government. Six members of the family traveled here for the commencement.

(Globe Photo by William O'Connor)

OLLEGE—Left to right, front: Senator John F. Kennedy, Archbishop Cushing, and Bishop Frederick A. Donaghy, S.J.; Back: Charles Munch, Edward F. Williams, Peter J. W. Doyle, Bartholomew A. Brickley.

LONG TRADITION—Abshp Cushing and Pres. Joseph R. N. Haxwell, S.J., congratulate Mrs. Ellen Harney as her son, Joseph M. (left) graduated from Boston College yesterday. He is eighth member of Harney family to graduate from a Catholic college in 142 years.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 14 1956

Annual "Israel Night" Pops Program June 21

The program for the 28th Annual Israel Night at "Pops" was announced by Samuel D. Shapiro, chairman of the Israel Histadrut Pops Concert Committee. The Israel Night at "Pops" Concert will be held Thursday evening, June 21, at 8:30 p. m. at Symphony Hall, with Richard Tucker, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera as guest soloist. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra in a concert including works by Meyerbeer, Enesco and Tchaikovsky. The Israel Night at "Pops" Concert will benefit Kupat Holim, the medical service of the Histadrut (Israel's Labor Organization).

Mr. Shapiro announced that limited balcony tickets were still available for the concert and could be obtained by contacting the Israel Histadrut Office, Room 410, 185 Devonshire street, Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Beacon
MAYNARD, Mass.
Weekly Independen
Circ. 1,021

JUN 14 1956

As Young As You Feel

ACTON — Everett Maynes, 40 Harris Street, North Acton, going on 73, started Tuesday night going "out on the town" three nights during the week. He started by taking his niece Mrs. Russell Hayward with him to the Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. Then Friday evening he attended a Strawberry Festival held in Mechanics Hall by the Shriners. Winding up the week he went to Boston Gardens Saturday night to attend the Knight Templers meeting. Maynes, said, they had a dress parade which was most effective. This week he is at home with his feet up, reliving the happy hours of last week.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 15 1956

Munch Awarded 3 Degrees

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, yesterday concluded a busy five-day return visit to Boston from his Paris home. Since last Sunday he has been the recipient of three honorary degrees from three Greater Boston institutions.

On Sunday, Tufts made him a Doctor of Humane Letters. Wednesday, Boston College granted him the degree of Doctor of Music and at the Commencement exercises at Harvard yesterday the degree of Doctor of Music was again conferred upon him. In 1955 Boston University also awarded him a Doctor of Music degree.

Dr. Munch returns to Paris tonight, but he will fly back to the United States in two weeks to open the fourteenth season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., of which he is the director, on Sunday afternoon, July 1. During the six weeks of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood he will conduct the major part of the festival concerts. Immediately after the conclusion of the festival on Aug. 12, he will again return to Europe, this time accompanied by the 104 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who will begin their five-week tour of Europe with a concert in Cork, Ireland, on Aug. 24.

Free Press
MELROSE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,490

JUN 14 1956

—Miss Dolores LeSaffre of 188 Vinton Street participated in the weekend festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening the entire group attended the Boston Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories and breakfast was served to all early risers. The annual luncheon for all classes was held at the Carousel Room of the Hotel Bradford.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,384

JUN 14 1956

The Record Hears --

That the city of Malden may establish a central purchasing agency.

That the state will get a large sum of money to aid the airports.

That local graduation exercises have been well attended.

That the Chelsea Kiwanis club is one of the top clubs in the district in attendance.

That Everett expects only a minor increase in its tax rate.

That Mrs. Bella Feldman of Lynn st. who we recently named "Mother of the Year" by Lourie Chapter, B'nai B'rith, had a story of her achievement in the periodical published by Filene's where she is employed.

That the high bridge draw in Charlestown is to be re-built.

That a buyers' guide, listing more than 3,700 Massachusetts manufacturers and their products, put out by the Massachusetts Department of Commerce, includes a great many in Chelsea.

That the 28th annual "Israel Night" Pops Concert will be given June 21 at Symphony Hall.

That one of the two bachelor members of the Board of Aldermen is contemplating the blissful venture into the marital ranks.

That the Second St. sewer project may be completed within five weeks.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

JUN 14 1956

POPS TONIGHT

There is no public sale of tickets to the Boston Pops concert tonight. The hall has been taken over by the National Confectioners Association.

TIGHT BINDING

(Globe Photo by William O'Connor)

HONORED BY BOSTON COLLEGE—Left to right, front: Senator John F. Kennedy, Pres. Joseph R. N. Maxwell, S.J., Abshp Cushing, and Bishop Frederick A. Donaghy, M.M.; rear, John W. King, Charles Munch, Edward F. Williams, Peter J. W. Doyle and Atty. Bartholomew A. Brickley.

B. C.

Continued from the First Page

Most of us, he continued, tend to regard ourselves as the objects of governmental policy and not the makers, and this state of mind has resulted in the feeling of great uninterest and faint distaste with which so many Americans view governmental process.

Kennedy, who was awarded an honorary doctorate of laws, told the graduates that the people actually get, by and large, "the kind of political representation they desire and deserve.

"If the people will support politicians of courage, will recognize and reward political courage, even when it may be employed against what they conceive to be their own immediate interest, then the quality of our public service will be correspondingly increased," he explained.

Termed Day of Hope

Archbishop Cushing hailed the Commencement ceremony as a "day of hope" for the United States of America.

In his brief remarks to the graduates and 12,000 relatives and friends, the prelate warned that our Republic is threatened "not merely by the machinations of godless Russia but also by the godlessness of a growing paganism within our national institutions.

Today, he continued, "adds to our citizenry a group of men who can add to the foundations of representative government the very strength of which it stands in greatest need.

"By your fiedlity to the sacred nature and purposes of marriage, you will help arrest divorce that is sapping American strength by weakening our homes.

"By your respect for justice, you will have no sympathy or partnership with unfair practices of capital, labor or government.

"By your devotion to charity you will have no traffic with bigotry, prejudice or discrimination.

"By your intelligent recognition of authority and its laws, you will keep free from the contagion which confuses liberty with anarchy and license.

"And you will help stem the tide of lawlessness that is sending our crime rate up and our crime down."

Other degree recipients:

Most Rev. Frederick A. Donaghy, M.M., bishop of Wuchow, China, who was released from a Communist prison camp; attorney Bartholomew A. Brickley of Boston, Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Edward F. Williams, president of the Boston Terminal Company; Dr. Peter J. W. Doyle, president of John W. King, board chairman of the John Bowen Construction Company.

Receive Commissions

Degrees in course were conferred by Very Rev. Joseph R. N. Maxwell, S. J., president of the college, who also awarded the honorary degrees.

Earlier, some 90 senior ROTC members were awarded commissions at a ceremony in Bapst Library Auditorium.

Army commissions were awarded by Col Edwin M. Van Bibber, infantry chief, Massachusetts Military District. Lt Col Earl R. McLaughlin presented the Marine commissions and Lt Weston M. Jenks the Navy commissions.

Among the graduates was Benjamin Lopez Jr., whose father is a senator and former vice president of the Philippine Government. Six members of the family traveled here for the commencement.

LONG TRADITION—Abshp Cushing and Pres. Joseph R. N. Haxwell, S.J., congratulate Mrs. Ellen Harney as her son, Joseph M. (left) graduated from Boston College yesterday. He is eighth member of Harney family to graduate from a Catholic college in 142 years.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000
JUN 14 1956

Annual "Israel Night" Pops Program June 21

The program for the 28th Annual Israel Night at "Pops" was announced by Samuel D. Shapiro, chairman of the Israel Histadrut Pops Concert Committee. The Israel Night at "Pops" Concert will be held Thursday evening, June 21, at 8:30 p. m. at Symphony Hall, with Richard Tucker, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera as guest soloist. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra in a concert including works by Meyerbeer, Enesco and Tchaikovsky. The Israel Night at "Pops" Concert will benefit Kupat Holim, the medical service of the Histadrut (Israel's Labor Organization).

Mr. Shapiro announced that limited balcony tickets were still available for the concert and could be obtained by contacting the Israel Histadrut Office, Room 410, 185 Devonshire street, Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Beacon
MAYNARD, Mass.
Weekly Independen
Circ. 1,021
JUN 14 1956

As Young As You Feel

ACTON — Everett Maynes, 40 Harris Street, North Acton, going on 73, started Tuesday night going "out on the town" three nights during the week. He started by taking his niece Mrs. Russell Hayward with him to the Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. Then Friday evening he attended a Strawberry Festival held in Mechanics Hall by the Shriners. Winding up the week he went to Boston Gardens Saturday night to attend the Knight Templers meeting. Maynes, said, they had a dress parade which was most effective. This week he is at home with his feet up, reliving the happy hours of last week.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
JUN 15 1956

Munch Awarded 3 Degrees

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, yesterday concluded a busy five-day return visit to Boston from his Paris home. Since last Sunday he has been the recipient of three honorary degrees from three Greater Boston institutions.

On Sunday, Tufts made him a Doctor of Humane Letters. Wednesday, Boston College granted him the degree of Doctor of Music and at the Commencement exercises at Harvard yesterday the degree of Doctor of Music was again conferred upon him. In 1955 Boston University also awarded him a Doctor of Music degree.

Dr. Munch returns to Paris tonight, but he will fly back to the United States in two weeks to open the fourteenth season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., of which he is the director, on Sunday afternoon, July 1. During the six weeks of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood he will conduct the major[illegible] the festival concerts. Immediately after the conclusion of the festival on Aug. 12, he will again return to Europe, this time accompanied by the 104 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who will begin their five-week tour of Europe with a concert in Cork, Ireland, on Aug. 24.

Free Press
MELROSE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,490
JUN 14 1956

—Miss Dolores LeSaffre of 188 Vinton Street participated in the weekend festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening the entire group attended the Boston Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories and breakfast was served to all early risers. The annual luncheon for all classes was held at the Carousel Room of the Hotel Bradford.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,384
JUN 14 1956

The Record Hears --

That the city of Malden may establish a central purchasing agency.

That the state will get a large sum of money to aid the airports.

That local graduation exercises have been well attended.

That the Chelsea Kiwanis club is one of the top clubs in the district in attendance.

That Everett expects only a minor increase in its tax rate.

That Mrs. Bella Feldman of Lynn st. who was recently named "Mother of the Year" by Lauriel Chapter, B'nai B'rith, had a story of her achievement in the periodical published by Filene's where she is employed.

That the high bridge draw in Charlestown is to be re-built.

That a buyers' guide, listing more than 3,700 Massachusetts manufacturers and their products, put out by the Massachusetts Department of Commerce, includes a great many in Chelsea.

That the 28th annual "Israel Night" Pops Concert will be given June 21 at Symphony Hall.

That one of the two bachelor members of the Board of Aldermen is contemplating the blissful venture into the marital ranks.

That the Second St. sewer project may be completed within five weeks.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749
JUN 14 1956

POPS TONIGHT

There is no public sale of tickets to the Boston Pops concert tonight. The hall has been taken over by the National Confectioners Association.

Frankf
progress an elaborate pageant of t it—come and spend the day in hi through and you'll become a custo the family as a result of our unique institutions, but very little remai matic reductions of 25 %, 50 %, 75 price protection. DON'T EXPECT FAN
aries, no fancy wrappings, no elevato heavy traffic means the subway is carfare a minor matter. Cook as Automatic Bar
AIR CON
FRIDAY at 9:15 A.
rgain sensati
JUNIORS, SHORT
OUS MA
RED M
DS. SURPLUSES, CLOSEO
lot WASHAB
FEW of a KI
ACKETS
TRUNKS
AGE·MAKERS
THER'S DAY
Automatic Bargain BA
AIR CONDITIONE
A SOAR SPO
FRIDAY — Humid
mid-90's. Likely.
TURDAY — F
on pa
Plus 10% Federal Tax
WARDROBE CA
WEEKEND CASES
OVERNIGHT CASES
AIN CASES

(Globe Photo by William O'Connor)

HONORED BY BOSTON COLLEGE—Left to right, front: Senator John F. Kennedy, Pres. Joseph R. N. Maxwell, S.J.; Abshp Cushing, and Bishop Frederick A. Donaghy, M.M.; rear, John W. King, Charles Munch, Edward F. Williams, Peter J. W. Debye and Atty. Bartholomew A. Brickley.

B. C.

Continued from the First Page

Most of us, he continued, tend to regard ourselves as the objects of governmental policy and not the makers, and this state of mind has resulted in the feeling of great uninterest and faint distaste with which so many Americans view governmental process.

Kennedy, who was awarded an honorary doctorate of laws, told the graduates that the people actually get, by and large, "the kind of political representation they desire and deserve.

"If the people will support politicians of courage, will recognize and reward political courage, even when it may be employed against what they conceive to be their own immediate interest, then the quality of our public service will be correspondingly increased," he explained.

Termed Day of Hope

Archbishop Cushing hailed the Commencement ceremony as a "day of hope" for the United States of America.

In his brief remarks to the graduates and 12,000 relatives and friends, the prelate warned that our Republic is threatened "not merely by the machinations of godless Russia but also by the godlessness of a growing paganism within our national institutions.

Today, he continued, "adds to our citizenry a group of men who can add to the foundations of representative government the very strength of which it stands in greatest need.

"By your fiedlity to the sacred nature and purposes of marriage, you will help arrest divorce that is sapping American strength by weakening our homes.

"By your respect for justice, you will have no sympathy or partnership with unfair practices of capital, labor or government.

"By your devotion to charity you will have no traffic with bigotry, prejudice or discrimination.

"By your intelligent recognition of authority and its laws, you will keep free from the contagion which confuses liberty with anarchy and license.

"And you will help stem the tide of lawlessness that is sending our crime rate up and our crime rate down."

Other degree recipients:

Most Rev. Frederick A. Donaghy, M.M., bishop of Wuchow, China, who was released from a Communist prison camp; attorney Bartholomew A. Brickley of Boston, Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Edward F. Williams, president of the Boston Terminal Company; Dr. Peter J. W. Doyle, professor emeritus of Cornell University, and John W. King, board chairman of the John Bowen Construction Company.

90 Recieve Commissions

Degrees in course were conferred by Very Rev. Joseph R. N. Maxwell, S. J., president of the college, who also awarded the honorary degrees.

Earlier, some 90 senior ROTC members were awarded commissions at a ceremony in Bapst Library Auditorium.

Army commissions were awarded by Col Edwin M. Van Bibber, infantry chief, Massachusetts Military District. Lt Col Earl R. McLaughlin presented the Marine commissions and Lt Weston M. Jenks the Navy commissions.

Among the graduates was Benjamin Lopez Jr., whose father is a senator and former vice president of the Philippine Government. Six members of the family traveled here for the commencement.

LONG TRADITION—Abshp Cushing and Pres. Joseph R. N. Haxwell, S.J., congratulate Mrs. Ellen Harney as her son, Joseph M. (left) graduated from Boston College yesterday. He is eighth member of Harney family to graduate from a Catholic college in 142 years.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 14 1956

Annual "Israel Night" Pops Program June 21

The program for the 28th Annual Israel Night at "Pops" was announced by Samuel D. Shapiro, chairman of the Israel Histadrut Pops Concert Committee. The Israel Night at "Pops" Concert will be held Thursday evening, June 21, at 8:30 p. m. at Symphony Hall, with Richard Tucker, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera as guest soloist. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra in a concert including works by Meyerbeer, Enesco and Tchaikovsky. The Israel Night at "Pops" Concert will benefit Kupat Holim, the medical service of the Histadrut (Israel's Labor Organization).

Mr. Shapiro announced that limited balcony tickets were still available for the concert and could be obtained by contacting the Israel Histadrut Office, Room 410, 185 Devonshire street, Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, In
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-420

Beacon
MAYNARD, Mass.
Weekly Independen
Circ. 1,021

JUN 14 1956

As Young As You Feel

ACTON — Everett Maynes, 40 Harris Street, North Acton, going on 73, started Tuesday night going "out on the town" three nights during the week. He started by taking his niece Mrs. Russell Hayward with him to the Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. Then Friday evening he attended a Strawberry Festival held in Mechanics Hall by the Shriners. Winding up the week he went to Boston Gardens Saturday night to attend the Knight Templers meeting. Maynes, said, they had a dress parade which was most effective. This week he is at home with his feet up, reliving the happy hours of last week.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 15 1956

Munch Awarded 3 Degrees

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, yesterday concluded a busy five-day return visit to Boston from his Paris home. Since last Sunday he has been the recipient of three honorary degrees from three Greater Boston institutions.

On Sunday, Tufts made him a Doctor of Humane Letters; Wednesday, Boston College granted him the degree of Doctor of Music; and at the Commencement exercises at Harvard yesterday the degree of Doctor of Music was again conferred upon him. In 1955 Boston University also awarded him a Docfor of Music degree.

Dr. Munch returns to Paris tonight, but he will fly back to the United States in two weeks to open the fourteenth season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., of which he is the director, on Sunday afternoon, July 1. During the six weeks of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, he will conduct the majority of the festival concerts. Immediately after the conclusion of the festival on Aug. 12, he will again return to Europe, this time accompanied by the 104 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who will begin their five-week tour of Europe with a concert in Cork, Ireland, on Aug. 24.

Herbert von Karajan

TIGHT BINDING

Free Press
MELROSE, Mass. B
kly Independent We
Circ. 5,490

105

JUN 14 1956

—Miss Dolores LeSaffre of 188 Vinton Street participated in the weekend festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening the entire group attended the Boston Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories and breakfast was served to all early risers. The annual luncheon for all classes was held at the Carousel Room of the Hotel Bradford.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,384

JUN 14 1956

The Record Hears --

That the city of Malden may establish a central purchasing agency.

That the state will get a large sum of money to aid the airports.

That local graduation exercises have been well attended.

That the Chelsea Kiwanis club is one of the top clubs in the district in attendance.

That Everett expects only a minor increase in its tax rate.

That Mrs. Bella Feldman of Lynn st. who wa srecently named "Mother of the Year" by Lourie Chapter, B'nai B'rith, had a story of her achievement in the periodical published by Filene's where she is employed.

That the high bridge draw in Charlestown is to be re-built.

That a buyers' guide, listing more than 8,700 Massachusetts manufacturers and their products, put out by the Massachusetts Department of Commerce, includes a great many in Chelsea.

That the 28th annual "Israel Night" Pops Concert will be given June 21 at Symphony Hall.

That one of the two bachelor members of the Board of Aldermen is contemplating the blissful venture into the marital ranks.

That the Second St. sewer project may be completed within five weeks.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

JUN 14 1956

POPS TONIGHT

There is no public sale of tickets to the Boston Pops concert tonight. The hall has been taken over by the National Confectioners Association.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200
Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 264,000

106

Herald June 15

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE, FRIDAY, JUNE 15, 1956

June 15

THE NEW YORK TIMES

Globe June 15

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200
Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 128,000
JUN 15 1956

onors Weeks, d Humphrey

SINCLAIR WEEKS, Secretary of Commerce:

"Harvard son, at home alike in politics and business, he finds scope for his abilities in the servcourt of the land the stimulus of an incisive mind.

GEORGE M. HUMPHREY, Secretary of the Treasury—Industrialist turned to the service of government; a stateman who holds a firm rein on the nation's fiscal policy.

JOHN F. KENNEDY, Senator from Massachusetts—Brave officer, able Senator, son of Harvard; loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle.

MEDWARD S. MASON, dean of the Harvard School of Public Administration — Economist and dean; his expert knowledge and sound counsel guide students in the ways of government and governments in the ways of peace.

SINCLAIR WEEKS, Secretary of Commerce—Harvard son, at home alike in politics and business, he finds scope for his abilities in the service of university, state and nation.

DOCTOR OF LETTERS

HERBERT BUTTERFIELD, historian, master of Peterhouse Col-

Historian Herbert Butterfield. Back row, Prof. John Wolfson, Publisher John Cowles, Dartmouth President Edward S. Mason and Poet David T. W. McCord.

of Ha

ute to Wit of L

(Boston Globe-United Press Photo)

SYMPHONY LEADER HONORED—Conductor Charles Munch of the Boston Symphony is congratulated by Barry Bingham, left, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, and John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune. Munch received honorary Doctor of Music degree while Cowles was honored with Doctor of Laws award.

HONORARY DEGREE RECIPIENTS AT HARVARD—Left to right, seated: Charles Munch, Sinclair Weeks, Justice Felix Frankfurter, Nathan M. Pusey, Harvard president; George M. Humphrey, Senator John Kennedy, Prof. Herbert Butterfield. Standing: Dr. John F. Enders, Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, John Cowles, John Sloan Dickey, Dean Edward S. Mason and David T. W. McCord.

scholar—particularly in a republic such as ours—is to contribute his objective views and his sense of liberty to the affairs of his state and nation.

Butterfield Speaks

"The American intellectual and scholar today must decide, as Goethe put it, whether he is to be an anvil—or a hammer. Today, for many, the stage of the anvil, at least in its formal phases, is complete.

"The question he faces is whether he is to be a hammer — whether he is to give the world in which he was reared and educated the broadest possible benefits of his learning. As one who is familiar with the political world, I can testify that we need it."

Also speaking at the Alumni Association gathering, Professor Butterfield called for education that will nurture more imagination and creative ability.

"In a conflict of civilizations, it is true above all that that one is likely to prevail which has the greater imaginative power at its disposal," he said.

He warned that the face of world balance of power could be materially changed by creative, imaginative shifts by one side or the other. He commented that the Soviet Union could conceive of some imaginative plan "that might even make our hydrogen bombs useless to us."

of the Harvard Fund Council.

The honorary degrees were presented in traditional ceremonies at Harvard's 305th commencement exercises. Degrees were awarded to nearly 3,000 in the college and graduate schools, including 150 from the Medical School and more than 500 law degrees.

The citation to Justice Frankfurter, a Harvard Law School professor for twenty-five years before his appointment to the

Edward Morgan, Mrs. Raymond Klinger, Jr., Mrs. Sylvanus Hildbrook, Robert Burns, Richard Johnson, Diane Peterson, Susan Stone, Betty Higgins, Paul Carr, and Jean Weagle will be in the Ipswich group at the Boston Symphony Pops Concert in Symphony Hall, Friday evening, June 15. Johnstone Giekie, of Hamilton, is to be the guest pianist. This project is sponsored by the Young Adult Fellowship of the Methodist Church in the Lynn District.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Star
WINCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,200
JUN 15 1956

Mrs. Dorothy Monson of 15 Perkins road, participated in the weekend festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening, the entire group attended the Boston Pops concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories and breakfast was served to all early risers. The annual luncheon was held at the Carousel Room of the Hotel Bradford for all classes.

politician seems to be growing," Senator Kennedy told some 15,000 alumni, faculty, and friends gathered under the elms of Harvard Yard. He added:

"Instead of synthesis, clash and discord now characterize the relations between the two groups much of the time. . . . Both sides in this battle, it seems to me, are motivated by largely unfounded feelings of distrust.

"The politician, whose authority rests upon the mandate of the popular will, is resentful of the scholar who can, with dexterity, slip from position to position without dragging the anchor of public opinion.

'What We Share'

"The intellectual, on the other hand, finds it difficult to accept the differences between the laboratory and the legislature. In the former, the goal is truth, pure and simple, without regard to changing currents of public opinion; in the latter, compromises and majorities and procedural customs and rights affect the ultimate decision as to what is right or just or good. . . .

"It seems to me that the time has come for intellectuals and

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 25,000

106

Giants, C Dark for

Two of the slickest infield the National League swapped forms yesterday in an eight deal that sent Red Schoend of the St. Louis Cardinals to York Giants for Alvin Dark.

Lesser lights in the transa were the Cards' catcher Bill S rookie outfielder Jackie B and pitcher Dick Littlefield the Giants' first baseman Reiser Whitey Lockman, ca Ray Katt and pitcher Don L

The deal, strictly a player-player trade, was the 12th Frank Lane since he became eral manager of the Cardinals Fall. A total of 32 players involved in deals engineered

Catholic Stars Trounce Boston Conference, 10-2

A pair of well-stroked doubles and a triple accounted for five runs last night as the Catholic League All-Stars defeated the Boston Conference Stars, 10 to 2, before 3142 at Fenway Park.

In the nine-year rivalry the Catholic League now has won three and Boston six.

Longest hit of the night was a 370-foot double in the third inning by Central's Jack Moynihan to score John Silvonic of St. Mary's of Lynn. The drive hit the base of the center field wall.

Joe Mahoney of Malden Catholic blasted a double off the left field wall, 10 feet up, in the sixth to drive home two runs. Joe Corbin of Williams started the Catholic League's 10-hit splurge in the second when he tripled to straight away center scoring two runners.

Coetlin Gets Win

Orval Grove, 3-4, "That isn't the guy we traded," said Manager Ted Lyons.

Herald June 15

JUNE 15, 1956

June 15

THE NEW YORK TIMES

court of the land the stimulus of an incisive mind.

GEORGE M. HUMPHREY, Secretary of the Treasury—Industrialist turned to the service of government; a stateman who holds a firm rein on the nation's fiscal policy.

JOHN F. KENNEDY, Senator from Massachusetts—Brave officer, able Senator, son of Harvard; loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle.

EDWARD S. MASON, dean of the Harvard School of Public Administration — Economist and sound counsel guide students in the ways of government and governments in the ways of peace.

SINCLAIR WEEKS, Secretary of Commerce—Harvard son, at home alike in politics and business, he finds scope for his abilities in the service of university, state and nation.

DOCTOR OF LETTERS

HERBERT BUTTERFIELD, historian, master of Peterhouse Col-

Historian Herbert Butterfield. Back row, Prof. John Wolfson, Publisher John Cowles, Dartmouth President Edward S. Mason and Poet David T. W. McCord.

That Happy Breed of Ha

(In Which Alumni Head Pays Tribute to Wit of I

HONORARY DEGREE RECIPIENTS AT HARVARD—Left to right, seated: Charles Munch, Sinclair Weeks Justice Felix Frankfurter, Nathan M. Pusey, Harvard president; George M. Humphrey, Senator John Kennedy, Prof Herbert Butterfield. Standing: Dr. John F. Enders, Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, John Cowles, John Sloan Dickey, Dea Edward S. Mason and David T. W. McCord.

of the Harvard Fund Council.

The honorary degrees were presented in traditional ceremonies at Harvard's 305th commencement exercises. Degrees were awarded to nearly 3,000 in the college and graduate schools, including 150 from the Medical School and more than 500 law degrees.

The citation to Justice Frankfurter, a Harvard Law School professor for twenty-five years before his appointment to the scholar—particularly in a republic such as ours—is to contribute his objective views and his sense of liberty to the affairs of his state and nation.

Butterfield Speaks

"The American intellectual and scholar today must decide, as Goethe put it, whether he is to be an anvil—or a hammer. Today, for many, the stage of the anvil, at least in its formal phases, is complete.

"The question he faces is whether he is to be a hammer — whether he is to give the world in which he was reared and educated the broadest possible benefits of his learning. As one who is familiar with the political world, I can testify that we need it."

Also speaking at the Alumni Association gathering, Professor Butterfield called for education that will nurture more imagination and creative ability.

"In a conflict of civilizations, it is true above all that that one is likely to prevail which has the greater imaginative power at its disposal," he said.

He warned that the face of world balance of power could be materially changed by creative, imaginative shifts by one side or the other. He commented that the Soviet Union may conceive of some imaginative plan "that might even make our hydrogen bombs practically useless to us."

politician seems to be growing," Senator Kennedy told some 15,000 alumni, faculty, and friends gathered under the elms of Harvard Yard. He added:

"Instead of synthesis, clash and discord now characterize the relations between the two groups much of the time. . . . Both sides in this battle, it seems to me, are motivated by largely unfounded feelings of distrust.

"The politician, whose authority rests upon the mandate of the popular will, is resentful of the scholar who can, with dexterity, slip from position to position without dragging the anchor of public opinion.

'What We Share'

"The intellectual, on the other hand, finds it difficult to accept the differences between the laboratory and the legislature. In the former, the goal is truth, pure and simple, without regard to changing currents of public opinion; in the latter, compromises and majorities and procedural customs and rights affect the ultimate decision as to what is right or just or good. . . .

"It seems to me that the time has come for intellectuals and

Edward Morgan, Mrs. Raymond Klinger, Jr., Mrs. Sylvanus Hildbrook, Robert Burns, Richard Johnson, Diane Peterson, Susan Stone, Betty Higgins, Paul Carr, and Jean Weagle will be in the Ipswich group at the Boston Symphony Pops Concert in Symphony Hall, Friday evening, June 15. Johnstone Giekie, of Hamilton, is to be the guest pianist. This project is sponsored by the Young Adult Fellowship of the Methodist Church in the Lynn District.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Star
WINCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,200
JUN 15 1956

Mrs. Dorothy Monson of 15 Perkins road, participated in the weekend festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening, the entire group attended the Boston Pops concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories and breakfast was served to all early risers. The annual luncheon was held at the Carousel Room of the Hotel Bradford for all classes.

American League

Yesterday's Results

	R	H	E
At BOSTON (Delock)	10	17	2
Cleveland (Lemon)	9	13	2
At New York (Grim)	5	10	1
Chicago (Wilson)	1	4	1

(Only games scheduled.)

National League

	R	H	E
At Milwaukee (Spahn)	N.
New York (Gomez)	2	7

(Only game scheduled.)

Standing of the Clubs

	Won	Lost	Pct	GB
New York	34	20	.630	...
Chicago	28	21	.543	5
Cleveland	25	24	.538	5
BOSTON	27	25	.519	6
Detroit	26	26	.500	7
Baltimore	25	29	.463	9
Kansas City	22	31	.415	11½
Washington	23	34	.404	12½

	Won	Lost	Pct	GB
Pittsburgh	28	20	.583	...
Cincinnati	27	21	.563	1
Brooklyn	29	23	.545	2
St. Louis	24	20	.426	7½
Milwaukee	20	27	.388	9½
Chicago	19	30	.387	10½
New York	18	31	.367	11
Philadelphia

...d Probable Pitchers

...ues 10-9 Victory fo...

FRIDAY, JUNE 15, 1956

June 15

June 15

THE NEW YORK TIMES

Twelve Win Citations

Harvard Honors Weeks, Kennedy and Humphrey

Doctor of Laws

JOHN COWLES, publisher, Minneapolis Star and Tribune and chairman of the board, Des Moines Register and Tribune Company; Cowles Magazine, Inc. (Look), Cowles Broadcasting Company:

"His alma mater honors a servant of education and a journalist with a public conscience."

JOHN SLOAN DICKEY, president of Dartmouth College:

"Again we acclaim as our own this insistent advocate of education who seeks a bridge between life and learning."

FELIX FRANKFURTER, associate justice of the United States Supreme Court:

"A brilliant and exciting teacher, he has brought to the highest court of the land the stimulus of an incisive mind."

GEORGE M. HUMPHREY, Secretary of the Treasury:

"Industrialist turned to the service of government; statesman who holds a firm rein on the nation's fiscal policy."

JOHN F. KENNEDY, United States Senator from Massachusetts:

"Brave officer, able Senator, son of Harvard; loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

EDWARD S. MASON, economist, dean of the Harvard School of Public Administration:

"Economist and dean; his expert knowledge and sound counsel guide students in the ways of government and governments in the ways of peace."

SINCLAIR WEEKS, Secretary of Commerce:

"Harvard son, at home alike in politics and business, he finds scope for his abilities in the service of university, state and nation."

Doctor of Letters

HERBERT BUTTERFIELD, historian, master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge, Eng.:

"Exploring the strengths and frailties of history, he evokes a sense of liberty through belief."

HARRY A. WOLFSON, professor of Hebrew literature and philosphy at Harvard:

"From enormous knowledge he graciously illumines the major problems of religious philosophy and their relation to revealed truth."

Doctor of Music

CHARLES MUNCH, conductor, Boston Symphony Orchestra:

"Under his imaginative direction a great orchestra infuses our lives with both beauty and meaning."

Doctor of Science

JOHN F. ENDERS, professor of bacteriology and immunology, Harvard Medical School:

"A calm and imaginative scholar whose patient researches are an inspiration to his profession."

Doctor of Humane Letters

DAVID T. W. McCORD, poet and essayist:

"Artist and poet who personifies in his friendly stewardship Harvard's deep concern for people."

Associated Press Wirephoto

...AT HARVARD: ...oreground, of Su... Paul H. Buck, in ...5th Harvard com... ...is George M. Hum... ...ed by Prof. George ...legrees at left are, ...ommerce; Senator ...ld (partly hidden) ...ohn Sloan Dickey, ...tes line the walk.

...nd a journalist with a ...cience.

...N DICKEY, president ...th College—Again we ...our own this insistent ...education who seeks ...tween life and learn-

...NKFURTER, Associ... ...of the Supreme Court ...and exciting teacher, ...ught to the highest court of the land the stimulus of an incisive mind.

GEORGE M. HUMPHREY, Secretary of the Treasury—Industrialist turned to the service of government; a stateman who holds a firm rein on the nation's fiscal policy.

JOHN F. KENNEDY, Senator from Massachusetts—Brave officer, able Senator, son of Harvard; loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle.

MEDWARD S. MASON, dean of the Harvard School of Public Administration — Economist and dean; his expert knowledge and sound counsel guide students in the ways of government and governments in the ways of peace.

SINCLAIR WEEKS, Secretary of Commerce—Harvard son, at home alike in politics and business, he finds scope for his abilities in the service of university, state and nation.

DOCTOR OF LETTERS

HERBERT BUTTERFIELD, historian, master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge University—Exploring the strengths and frailties of history, he evokes a sense of liberty through belief.

HARRY A. WOLFSON, Nathan Littauer Professor of Hebrew Literature and Philosophy at Harvard—From enormous knowledge he graciously illumines the major problems of religious philosophy and their relation to revealed truth.

DOCTOR OF MUSIC

CHARLES MUNCH, conductor, Boston Symphony—Under his imaginative direction a great orchestra infuses our lives with both beauty and meaning.

DOCTOR OF SCIENCE

JOHN F. ENDERS, Professor of Bacteriology and Immunology, Harvard Medical School, at the Children's Hospital—A calm and imaginative scholar whose patient researches are an inspiration to his profession.

DOCTOR OF HUMANE LETTERS

DAVID T. W. McCORD, executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council since 1925—Artist and poet who personifies in his friendly stewardship Harvard's deep concern for people.

...John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College; Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge, England; Edward S. Mason, an economist and dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Public Administration; Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize bacteriologist and professor of bacteriology and immunology of the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy and Nathan Littauer professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard; and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, and for 30 years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

'Growing Gap'

"It is regrettable that the gap between the intellectual and politician seems to be growing," Senator Kennedy told some 15,000 alumni, faculty, and friends gathered under the elms of Harvard Yard. He added:

"Instead of synthesis, clash and discord now characterize the relations between the two groups much of the time. . . . Both sides in this battle, it seems to me, are motivated by largely unfounded feelings of distrust.

"The politician, whose authority rests upon the mandate of the popular will, is resentful of the scholar who can, with dexterity, slip from position to position without dragging the anchor of public opinion.

'What We Share'

"The intellectual, on the other hand, finds it difficult to accept the differences between the laboratory and the legislature. In the former, the goal is truth, pure and simple, without regard to changing currents of public opinion; in the latter, compromises and majorities and procedural customs and rights affect the ultimate decision as to what is right or just or good. . . .

"It seems to me that the time has come for intellectuals and scholar—particularly in a republic such as ours—is to contribute his objective views and his sense of liberty to the affairs of his state and nation.

Butterfield Speaks

"The American intellectual and scholar today must decide, as Goethe put it, whether he is to be an anvil—or a hammer. Today, for many, the stage of the anvil, at least in its formal phases, is complete.

"The question he faces is whether he is to be a hammer — whether he is to give the world in which he was reared and educated the broadest possible benefits of his learning. As one who is familiar with the political world, I can testify that we need it."

Also speaking at the Alumni Association gathering, Professor Butterfield called for education that will nurture more imagination and creative ability.

"In a conflict of civilizations, it is true above all that that one is likely to prevail which has the greater imaginative power at its disposal," he said.

He warned that the face of world balance of power could be materially changed by creative, imaginative shifts by one side or the other. He commented that the Soviet Union might conceive of some image our plan "that might even make useless hydrogen bombs problems to us."

Historian Herbert Butterfield. Back row, Prof. John ...Wolfson, Publisher John Cowles, Dartmouth President ...dward S. Mason and Poet David T. W. McCord.

...of Public Administration: Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize bacteriologist, of the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philisophy, and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, and for thirty years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

The honorary degrees were presented in traditional ceremonies at Harvard's 305th commencement exercises. Degrees were awarded to nearly 3,000 in the college and graduate schools, including 150 from the Medical School and more than 500 law degrees.

The citation to Justice Frankfurter, a Harvard Law School professor for twenty-five years before his appointment to the

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Star
WINCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,200
JUN 15 1956

Edward Morgan, Mrs. Raymond Klinger, Jr., Mrs. Sylvanus Hildbrook, Robert Burns, Richard Johnson, Diane Peterson, Susan Stone, Betty Higgins, Paul Carr, and Jean Weagle will be in the Ipswich group at the Boston Symphony Pops Concert in Symphony Hall, Friday evening, June 15. Johnstone Giekie, of Hamilton, is to be the guest pianist. This project is sponsored by the Young Adult Fellowship of the Methodist Church in the Lynn District.

Mrs. Dorothy Monson of 15 Perkins road, participated in the weekend festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening, the entire group attended the Boston Pops concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories and breakfast was served to all early risers. The annual luncheon was held at the Carousel Room of the Hotel Bradford for all classes.

Herald June 15

FRIDAY, JUNE 15, 1956

June 15

THE NEW YORK TIMES

POLITICIANS' NEED OF SCHOLARS CITED

Senator Kennedy, at Harvard Commencement, Urges Ties Between Two Professions

By JOHN H. FENTON

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 14 — Senator John F. Kennedy, Democrat of Massachusetts, returned today to Harvard University, his alma mater, with a plea for increased cooperation between scholars and politicians.

Mr. Kennedy told more than 15,000 men of Harvard and their families that the political profession needed to "have its temperature lowered in the cooling waters of the scholastic pool."

The Senator was one of twelve men who received honorary degrees at the 305th commencement exercises this morning at the outdoor Tercentenary Theatre. He spoke there this afternoon. The theatre's ancient elms only partly shielded the crowd from a blazing sun.

Politicians, said Mr. Kennedy, "need both the technical judgment and the disinterested viewpoint of the scholar, to prevent us from becoming imprisoned by our own slogans."

At an afternoon meeting of the alumni Prof. Herbert Butterfield, master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge University, gave an address that agreed with Senator Kennedy's view. There appears to be a danger, particularly in politics, he said, "that our minds will not be sufficiently mobile."

The English scholar also contended that in a clash between civilizations the one with the greater imaginative power at its disposal was likely to prevail.

Dr. Nathan M. Pusey, president of Harvard, said there was a "very great need" within the university for more endowed professorships to keep up with the need for more scholasticism.

Professors in Politics

Senator Kennedy noted that John Quincy Adams "after being summarily dismissed from the Senate for a notable display of independence," could become a professor of Harvard and later a Secretary of State.

"Those were the happy days when Harvard professors had no difficulty getting Senate confirmation," he added.

Honorary degrees and citations:

DOCTOR OF LAWS

JOHN COWLES, publisher—His alma mater honors a servant of education and a journalist with a public conscience.

JOHN SLOAN DICKEY, president of Dartmouth College—Again we acclaim as our own this insistent advocate of education who seeks a bridge between life and learning.

FELIX FRANKFURTER, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court—A brilliant and exciting teacher, he has brought to the highest court of the land the stimulus of an incisive mind.

GEORGE M. HUMPHREY, Secretary of the Treasury—Industrialist turned to the service of government; a stateman who holds a firm rein on the nation's fiscal policy.

JOHN F. KENNEDY, Senator from Massachusetts—Brave officer, able Senator, son of Harvard; loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle.

MEDWARD S. MASON, dean of the Harvard School of Public Administration — Economist and dean; his expert knowledge and sound counsel guide students in the ways of government and governments in the ways of peace.

SINCLAIR WEEKS, Secretary of Commerce—Harvard son, at home alike in politics and business, he finds scope for his abilities in the service of university, state and nation.

DOCTOR OF LETTERS

HERBERT BUTTERFIELD, historian, master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge University—Exploring the strengths and frailties of history, he evokes a sense of liberty through belief.

HARRY A. WOLFSON, Nathan Littauer Professor of Hebrew Literature and Philosophy at Harvard—From enormous knowledge he graciously illumines the major problems of religious philosophy and their relation to revealed truth.

DOCTOR OF MUSIC

CHARLES MUNCH, conductor, Boston Symphony—Under his imaginative direction a great orchestra infuses our lives with both beauty and meaning.

DOCTOR OF SCIENCE

JOHN F. ENDERS, Professor of Bacteriology and Immunology, Harvard Medical School, at the Children's Hospital—A calm and imaginative scholar whose patient researches are an inspiration to his profession.

DOCTOR OF HUMANE LETTERS

DAVID T. W. McCORD, executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council since 1925—Artist and poet who personifies in his friendly stewardship Harvard's deep concern for people.

Associated Press Wirephoto

GOVERNMENT LEADERS HONORED AT HARVARD: Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter, foreground, of Supreme Court is accompanied by Prof. Paul H. Buck, in robes, in the lead of procession at 305th Harvard commencement. Behind Justice Frankfurter is George M. Humphrey, Secretary of the Treasury, escorted by Prof. George Pierce Baker. Others getting honorary degrees at left are, in order, Sinclair Weeks, Secretary of Commerce; Senator John F. Kennedy, Prof. Herbert Butterfield (partly hidden) of Cambridge University, England, and John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College. Graduates line the walk.

Historian Herbert Butterfield. Back row, Prof. John Wolfson, Publisher John Cowles, Dartmouth President Edward S. Mason and Poet David T. W. McCord.

John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College; Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge, England; Edward S. Mason, an economist and dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Public Administration; Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize bacteriologist and professor of bacteriology and immunology of the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy, and Nathan Littauer, professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard; and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist and for 30 years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

'Growing Gap'

"It is regrettable that the gap between the intellectual and politician seems to be growing," Senator Kennedy told some 15,000 alumni, faculty, and friends gathered under the elms of Harvard Yard. He added:

"Instead of synthesis, clash and discord now characterize the relations between the two groups much of the time. . . . Both sides in this battle, it seems to me, are motivated by largely unfounded feelings of distrust.

"The politician, whose authority rests upon the mandate of the popular will, is resentful of the scholar who can, with dexterity, slip from position to position without dragging the anchor of public opinion.

'What We Share'

"The intellectual, on the other hand, finds it difficult to accept the differences between the laboratory and the legislature. In the former, the goal is truth, pure and simple, without regard to changing currents of public opinion; in the latter, compromises and majorities and procedural customs and rights affect the ultimate decision as to what is right or just or good. . . .

"It seems to me that the time has come for intellectuals and scholar—particularly in a republic such as ours—is to contribute his objective views and his sense of liberty to the affairs of his state and nation.

Butterfield Speaks

"The American intellectual and scholar today must decide, as Goethe put it, whether he is to be an anvil—or a hammer. Today, for many, the stage of the anvil, at least in its formal phases, is complete.

"The question he faces is whether he is to be a hammer — whether he is to give the world in which he was reared and educated the broadest possible benefits of his learning. . . s one who is familiar with the political world, I can testify that we need it."

Also speaking at the Alumni Association gathering, Professor Butterfield called for education that will nurture more imagination and creative ability.

"In a conflict of civilizations, it is true above all that that one is likely to prevail which has the greater imaginative power at its disposal," he said.

He warned that the face of world balance of power could be materially changed by creative, imaginative shifts by one side or the other. He commented that the Soviet Union might conceive of some imaginative plan "that might even make our hydrogen bombs pretty useless to us."

Wildcat Strin

Million Stranded N.E.

VOL. CLXIX NO. 167

By GLOBE NEWSPAPER CO.

• Copyright 1956 •

A SOAR SPOT

FRIDAY — Humid, in mid-90's, late thundershowers likely.

SATURDAY — Fair, cooler.

Full report on page 13

---

of Public Administration: Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize bacteriologist, of the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy, and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, and for thirty years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

The honorary degrees were presented in traditional ceremonies at Harvard's 305th commencement exercises. Degrees were awarded to nearly 3,000 in the college and graduate schools, including 150 from the Medical School and more than 500 law degrees.

The citation to Justice Frankfurter, a Harvard Law School professor for twenty-five years before his appointment to the

---

Edward Morgan, Mrs. Raymond Klinger, Jr., Mrs. Sylvanus Hildbrook, Robert Burns, Richard Johnson, Diane Peterson, Susan Stone, Betty Higgins, Paul Carr, and Jean Weagle will be in the Ipswich group at the Boston Symphony Pops Concert in Symphony Hall, Friday evening, June 15. Johnstone Giekie, of Hamilton, is to be the guest pianist. This project is sponsored by the Young Adult Fellowship of the Methodist Church in the Lynn District.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2074, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Star
WINCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,200

JUN 15 1956

Mrs. Dorothy Monson of 15 Perkins road, participated in the weekend festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening, the entire group attended the Boston Pops concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories and breakfast was served to all early risers. The annual luncheon was held at the Carousel Room of the Hotel Bradford for all classes.

YORK HERALD TRIBUNE, FRIDAY, JUNE 15, 1956

Herald Tribune—United Press telephoto

AT HARVARD COMMENCEMENT—Dr. Nathan M. Pusey (second from right), president of the university, with three of the recipients of honorary degrees at Harvard's 305th exercises. (Left to right) Sen. John F. Kennedy, D., Mass.; Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, Dr. Pusey, and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey.

12 Receive Honorary Degrees

Harvard Graduates 3,000 at 305th Exercises

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 14 (AP).—Harvard University today awarded honorary degrees to four government officials and eight others prominent in business, education and science.

Those honored were Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the Supreme Court; Sen. John F. Kennedy, D., Mass.; two cabinet officers, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey; Dr. John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College; John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune, and Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Also Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peterhouse College of Cambridge, England; Dean Edward S. Mason of the Harvard School of Public Administration: Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize bacteriologist, of the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philisophy, and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist, and for thirty years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

The honorary degrees were presented in traditional ceremonies at Harvard's 305th commencement exercises. Degrees were awarded to nearly 3,000 in the college and graduate schools, including 150 from the Medical School and more than 500 law degrees.

The citation to Justice Frankfurter, a Harvard Law School professor for twenty-five years before his appointment to the Supreme Court in 1939, said: "A brilliant and exciting teacher, he has brought to the highest court of the land the stimulus of an incisive man."

Sen. Kennedy's citation called him: "Brave officer, able Senator, son of Harvard, loyal to party, he remains steadfast to principle."

Mr. Cowles, who was graduated from Harvard, was described as ". . . A servant of education and a journalist with a public conscience."

John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College; Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peternouse College, Cambridge, England; Edward S. Mason, an economist and dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Public Administration; Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize bacteriologist and professor of bacteriology and immunology of the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy and Nathan Littauer, professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard; and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist and for 30 years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

'Growing Gap'

"It is regrettable that the gap between the intellectual and politician seems to be growing," Senator Kennedy told some 15,000 alumni, faculty, and friends gathered under the elms of Harvard Yard. He added:

"Instead of synthesis, clash and discord now characterize the relations between the two groups much of the time. . . . Both sides in this battle, it seems to me, are motivated by largely unfounded feelings of distrust.

"The politician, whose authority rests upon the mandate of the popular will, is resentful of the scholar who can, with dexterity, slip from position to position without dragging the anchor of public opinion.

'What We Share'

"The intellectual, on the other hand, finds it difficult to accept the differences between the laboratory and the legislature. In the former, the goal is truth, pure and simple, without regard to changing currents of public opinion; in the latter, compromises and majorities and procedural customs and rights affect the ultimate decision as to what is right or just or good. . . .

"It seems to me that the time has come for intellectuals and public such as ours—is to contribute his objective views and his sense of liberty to the affairs of his state and nation.

Historian Herbert Butterfield. Back row, Prof. John Wolfson, Publisher John Cowles, Dartmouth President Edward S. Mason and Poet David T. W. McCord.

Butterfield Speaks

"The American intellectual and scholar today must decide, as Goethe put it, whether he is to be an anvil—or a hammer. Today, for many, the stage of the anvil, at least in its formal phases, is complete.

"The question he faces is whether he is to be a hammer — whether he is to give the world in which he was reared and educated the broadest possible benefits of his learning. As one who is familiar with the political world, I can testify that we need it."

Also speaking at the Alumni Association gathering, Professor Butterfield called for education that will nurture more imagination and creative ability.

"In a conflict of civilizations, it is true above all that that one is likely to prevail which has the greater imaginative power at its disposal," he said.

He warned that the face of world balance of power could be materially changed by creative, imaginative shifts by one side or the other. He commented that the Soviet Union could conceive of some imaginative plan "that might even make disclesses hydrogen bombs pri[illegible] to us."

y, Inc.
2-4200

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2072, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Star
WINCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,200

JUN 15 1956

Edward Morgan, Mrs. Raymond Klinger, Jr., Mrs. Sylvanus Hildbrook, Robert Burns, Richard Johnson, Diane Peterson, Susan Stone, Betty Higgins, Paul Carr, and Jean Weagle will be in the Ipswich group at the Boston Symphony Pops Concert in Symphony Hall, Friday evening, June 15. Johnstone Giekie, of Hamilton, is to be the guest pianist. This project is sponsored by the Young Adult Fellowship of the Methodist Church in the Lynn District.

Mrs. Dorothy Monson of 15 Perkins road, participated in the weekend festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening, the entire group attended the Boston Pops concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories and breakfast was served to all early risers. The annual luncheon was held at the Carousel Room of the Hotel Bradford for all classes.

HERALD TRIBUNE, FRIDAY, JUNE 15, 1956
Both stores open all day Saturday

Herald June 15

HARVARD'S HONORARY DEGREE WINNERS pose with President Nathan Pusey, wearing cap and gown. Front row, from left, Charles Munch, Secretary Sinclair Weeks, Justice Felix Frankfurter, Pusey, Secretary George M. Humphrey, Sen. John F. Kennedy and Historian Herbert Butterfield. Back row, Prof. John F. Enders, Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, Publisher John Cowles, Dartmouth President John Sloan Dickey, Dean Edward S. Mason and Poet David T. W. McCord.

...uents Get ...d Degrees

...ate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the U.S. Supreme Court, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks, Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College.

John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the

Continued on Page 19

...ogist at Harvard Medical School; Professor Harry A. Wolfson, a leader of Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy, and David T. W. McCord, poet and executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

Degrees Awarded

"Both the American intellectual and politician operate within a common framework—a framework we call liberty," he asid. "Finally, I would stress the great potential gain for both groups resulting from increased political cooperation."

Harvard awarded honorary degrees to 11 others at its 305th commencement ceremonies. Included were two members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, and Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court.

The other honorary degrees were given to:

John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College; Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peternouse College, Cambridge, England; Edward S. Mason, an economist and dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Public Administration; Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize bacteriologist and professor of bacteriology and immunology of the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy, and Nathan Littauer, professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard; and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist and for 30 years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

'Growing Gap'

"It is regrettable that the gap between the intellectual and politician seems to be growing," Senator Kennedy told some 15,000 alumni, faculty, and friends gathered under the elms of Harvard Yard. He added:

"Instead of synthesis, clash and discord now characterize the relations between the two groups much of the time. . . . Both sides in this battle, it seems to me, are motivated by largely unfounded feelings of distrust.

"The politician, whose authority rests upon the mandate of the popular will, is resentful of the scholar who can, with dexterity, slip from position to position without dragging the anchor of public opinion.

'What We Share'

"The intellectual, on the other hand, finds it difficult to accept the differences between the laboratory and the legislature. In the former, the goal is truth, pure and simple, without regard to changing currents of public opinion; in the latter, compromises and majorities and procedural customs and rights affect the ultimate decision as to what is right or just or good. . . .

"It seems to me that the time has come for intellectuals and public such as ours—is to contribute his objective views and his sense of liberty to the affairs of his state and nation.

Butterfield Speaks

"The American intellectual and scholar today must decide, as Goethe put it, whether he is to be an anvil—or a hammer. Today, for many, the stage of the anvil, at least in its formal phases, is complete.

"The question he faces is whether he is to be a hammer — whether he is to give the world in which he was reared and educated the broadest possible benefits of his learning. As one who is familiar with the political world, I can testify that we need it."

Also speaking at the Alumni Association gathering, Professor Butterfield called for education that will nurture more imagination and creative ability.

"In a conflict of civilizations, it is true above all that that one is likely to prevail which has the greater imaginative power at its disposal," he said.

He warned that the face of world balance of power could be materially changed by creative, imaginative shifts by one side or the other. He commented that the Soviet Union may conceive of some imaginative plan "that might even make our hydrogen bombs prove useless to us."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Times (e)
BEVERLY, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 6,892
JUN 15 1956

Edward Morgan, Mrs. Raymond Klinger, Jr., Mrs. Sylvanus Hildbrook, Robert Burns, Richard Johnson, Diane Peterson, Susan Stone, Betty Higgins, Paul Carr, and Jean Weagle will be in the Ipswich group at the Boston Symphony Pops Concert in Symphony Hall, Friday evening, June 15. Johnstone Giekie, of Hamilton, is to be the guest pianist. This project is sponsored by the Young Adult Fellowship of the Methodist Church in the Lynn District.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Star
WINCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,200
JUN 15 1956

Mrs. Dorothy Monson of 15 Perkins road, participated in the weekend festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening, the entire group attended the Boston Pops concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories and breakfast was served to all early risers. The annual luncheon was held at the Carousel Room of the Hotel Bradford for all classes.

Scene and Heard at the State House

Sen. Keith, West Bridgewater, Election to Congress

2977 Get Harvard Degrees

A need for better understanding among intellectuals and politicians, and the growing demand for new facilities, including housing for single and married students, were highlighted in speeches yesterday at Harvard University's colorful 305th commencement exercises.

Senator John F. Kennedy, one of 12 awarded honorary degrees, told a meeting of the Alumni Association that "most intellectuals consider their chief function that of critics—and politicians are sensitive to critics, possibly because we have so many of them."

Honored

Others awarded honorary degrees were Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the U. S. Supreme Court, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks, Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College.

John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the

Continued on Page 19

EXERCISES—Attending the traditional parade and exercises of the commencement week at Harvard University are, front, left to right: the chief marshal; University President Nathan M. Pusey, Francis Burnett, alumni association, and Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Sym-

dents Get d Degrees

ogist at Harvard Medical School; Professor Harry A. Wolfson, a leader of Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy, and David T. W. McCord, poet and executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
JUN 15 1956

Scholarly Links To Politics Urged

By Mary Handy
Staff Writer of The Christian Science Monitor

Cambridge, Mass.

Senator John F. Kennedy called for a dynamic partnership between the American intellectual and the American politician at Harvard University commencement festivities here yesterday.

"I would ask both groups to recall that the American politician of today and the American intellectual of today are descended from a common ancestry," said the Massachusetts Democratic senator, who was honored by Harvard yesterday morning with an honorary degree.

Degrees Awarded

"Both the American intellectual and politician operate within a common framework—a framework we call liberty," he asid. "Finally, I would stress the great potential gain for both groups resulting from increased political cooperation."

Harvard awarded honorary degrees to 11 others at its 305th commencement ceremonies. Included were two members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, and Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court.

The other honorary degrees were given to:

John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College; Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge, England; Edward S. Mason, an economist and dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Public Administration; Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize bacteriologist and professor of bacteriology and immunology of the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy, and Nathan Littauer, professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard; and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist and for 30 years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

'Growing Gap'

"It is regrettable that the gap between the intellectual and politician seems to be growing," Senator Kennedy told some 15,000 alumni, faculty, and friends gathered under the elms of Harvard Yard. He added:

"Instead of synthesis, clash and discord now characterize the relations between the two groups much of the time. . . . Both sides in this battle, it seems to me, are motivated by largely unfounded feelings of distrust.

"The politician, whose authority rests upon the mandate of the popular will, is resentful of the scholar who can, with dexterity, slip from position to position without dragging the anchor of public opinion.

'What We Share'

"The intellectual, on the other hand, finds it difficult to accept the differences between the laboratory and the legislature. In the former, the goal is truth, pure and simple, without regard to changing currents of public opinion; in the latter, compromises and majorities and procedural customs and rights affect the ultimate decision as to what is right or just or good. . . .

"It seems to me that the time has come for intellectuals and politicians to put aside those horrible weapons of modern internecine warfare, the barbed thrust, the acid pen, and—most sinister of all—the rhetorical blast.

"Let us not emphasize all on which we differ, but all we have in common. Let us consider not what we fear separately but what we share together.

"Was John Milton to conjugate Greek verbs in his library or talk of the liberty of the ancient Shunamites when the liberty of Englishmen was imperiled? No, the duty of the scholar—particularly in a republic such as ours—is to contribute his objective views and his sense of liberty to the affairs of his state and nation.

Butterfield Speaks

"The American intellectual and scholar today must decide, as Goethe put it, whether he is to be an anvil—or a hammer. Today, for many, the stage of the anvil, at least in its formal phases, is complete.

"The question he faces is whether he is to be a hammer — whether he is to give the world in which he was reared and educated the broadest possible benefits of his learning. As one who is familiar with the political world, I can testify that we need it."

Also speaking at the Alumni Association gathering, Professor Butterfield called for education that will nurture more imagination and creative ability.

"In a conflict of civilizations, it is true above all that that one is likely to prevail which has the greater imaginative power at its disposal," he said.

He warned that the face of world balance of power could be materially changed by creative, imaginative shifts by one side or the other. He commented that the Soviet Union might conceive of some imaginative plan "that might even make our hydrogen bombs pretty useless to us."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Times (e)
BEVERLY, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 6,892
JUN 15 1956

Edward Morgan, Mrs. Raymond Klinger, Jr., Mrs. Sylvanus Hildbrook, Robert Burns, Richard Johnson, Diane Peterson, Susan Stone, Betty Higgins, Paul Carr, and Jean Weagle will be in the Ipswich group at the Boston Symphony Pops Concert in Symphony Hall, Friday evening, June 15. Johnstone Giekie, of Hamilton, is to be the guest pianist. This project is sponsored by the Young Adult Fellowship of the Methodist Church in the Lynn District.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Star
WINCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,200
JUN 15 1956

Mrs. Dorothy Monson of 15 Perkins road, participated in the weekend festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening, the entire group attended the Boston Pops concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories and breakfast was served to all early risers. The annual luncheon was held at the Carousel Room of the Hotel Bradford for all classes.

2977 Get Harvard Degrees

A need for better understanding among intellectuals and politicians, and the growing demand for new facilities, including housing for single and married students, were highlighted in speeches yesterday at Harvard University's colorful 305th commencement exercises.

Senator John F. Kennedy, one of 12 awarded honorary degrees, told a meeting of the Alumni Association that "most intellectuals consider their chief function that of critics—and politicians are sensitive to critics, possibly because we have so many of them."

Honored

Others awarded honorary degrees were Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the U.S. Supreme Court, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks, Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College.

John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the

Continued on Page 19

EXERCISES—Attending the traditional parade and exercises of the mmencement week at Harvard University are, front, left to right: e chief marshal; University President Nathan M. Pusey, Francis lumni association, and Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Sym-

dents Get d Degrees

ogist at Harvard Medical School; Professor Harry A. Wolfson, a leader of Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy, and David T. W. McCord, poet and executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 15 1956

Scholarly Links To Politics Urged

By Mary Handy
Staff Writer of The Christian Science Monitor

Cambridge, Mass.

Senator John F. Kennedy called for a dynamic partnership between the American intellectual and the American politician at Harvard University commencement festivities here yesterday.

"I would ask both groups to recall that the American politician of today and the American intellectual of today are descended from a common ancestry," said the Massachusetts Democratic senator, who was honored by Harvard yesterday morning with an honorary degree.

Degrees Awarded

"Both the American intellectual and politician operate within a common framework—a framework we call liberty," he asid. "Finally, I would stress the great potential gain for both groups resulting from increased political cooperation."

Harvard awarded honorary degrees to 11 others at its 305th commencement ceremonies. Included were two members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, and Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court.

The other honorary degrees were given to:

John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College; Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peternouse College, Cambridge, England; Edward S. Mason, an economist and dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Public Administration; Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize bacteriologist and professor of bacteriology and immunology of the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy and Nathan Littauer, professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard; and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist and for 30 years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

'Growing Gap'

"It is regrettable that the gap between the intellectual and politician seems to be growing," Senator Kennedy told some 15,000 alumni, faculty, and friends gathered under the elms of Harvard Yard. He added:

"Instead of synthesis, clash and discord now characterize the relations between the two groups much of the time. . . . Both sides in this battle, it seems to me, are motivated by largely unfounded feelings of distrust.

"The politician, whose authority rests upon the mandate of the popular will, is resentful of the scholar who can, with dexterity, slip from position to position without dragging the anchor of public opinion.

'What We Share'

"The intellectual, on the other hand, finds it difficult to accept the differences between the laboratory and the legislature. In the former, the goal is truth, pure and simple, without regard to changing currents of public opinion; in the latter, compromises and majorities and procedural customs and rights affect the ultimate decision as to what is right or just or good. . . .

"It seems to me that the time has come for intellectuals and politicians to put aside those horrible weapons of modern internecine warfare, the barbed thrust, the acid pen, and—most sinister of all—the rhetorical blast.

"Let us not emphasize all on which we differ, but all we have in common. Let us consider not what we fear separately but what we share together.

"Was John Milton to conjugate Greek verbs in his library or talk of the liberty of the ancient Shunamites when the liberty of Englishmen was imperiled? No, the duty of the scholar—particularly in a republic such as ours—is to contribute his objective views and his sense of liberty to the affairs of his state and nation.

Butterfield Speaks

"The American intellectual and scholar today must decide, as Goethe put it, whether he is to be an anvil—or a hammer. Today, for many, the stage of the anvil, at least in its formal phases, is complete.

"The question he faces is whether he is to be a hammer — whether he is to give the world in which he was reared and educated the broadest possible benefits of his learning. As one who is familiar with the political world, I can testify that we need it."

Also speaking at the Alumni Association gathering, Professor Butterfield called for education that will nurture more imagination and creative ability.

"In a conflict of civilizations, it is true above all that that one is likely to prevail which has the greater imaginative power at its disposal," he said.

He warned that the face of world balance of power could be materially changed by creative, imaginative shifts by one side or the other. He commented that the Soviet Union might conceive of some imaginative plan "that might even make our hydrogen bombs pretty useless to us."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
BEVERLY, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 6,892

JUN 15 1956

Edward Morgan, Mrs. Raymond Klinger, Jr., Mrs. Sylvanus Hildbrook, Robert Burns, Richard Johnson, Diane Peterson, Susan Stone, Betty Higgins, Paul Carr, and Jean Weagle will be in the Ipswich group at the Boston Symphony Pops Concert in Symphony Hall, Friday evening, June 15. Johnstone Giekie, of Hamilton, is to be the guest pianist. This project is sponsored by the Young Adult Fellowship of the Methodist Church in the Lynn District.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Star
WINCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,200

JUN 15 1956

Mrs. Dorothy Monson of 15 Perkins road, participated in the weekend festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening, the entire group attended the Boston Pops concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories and breakfast was served to all early risers. The annual luncheon was held at the Carousel Room of the Hotel Bradford for all classes.

AT HARVARD ALUMNI EXERCISES—Attending the traditional parade and exercises of the Harvard alumni during commencement week at Harvard University are, front, left to right: C. Douglas Dillon, parade chief marshal; University President Nathan M. Pusey, Francis Hatch, president of the alumni association, and Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

2977 Students Get Harvard Degrees

Continued from First Page

Boston Symphony Orchestra; Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peterhouse College, Cambridge University, England.

Dean Edward S. Mason of the Harvard School of Public Administration, Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel prize bacteriologist at Harvard Medical School; Professor Harry A. Wolfson, a leader of Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy, and David T. W. McCord, poet and executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
BEVERLY, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 6,892

JUN 15 1956

Edward Morgan, Mrs. Raymond Klinger, Jr., Mrs. Sylvanus Hildbrook, Robert Burns, Richard Johnson, Diane Peterson, Susan Stone, Betty Higgins, Paul Carr, and Jean Weagle will be in the Ipswich group at the Boston Symphony Pops Concert in Symphony Hall, Friday evening, June 15. Johnstone Giekie, of Hamilton, is to be the guest pianist. This project is sponsored by the Young Adult Fellowship of the Methodist Church in the Lynn District.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Star
WINCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,200

JUN 15 1956

Mrs. Dorothy Monson of 15 Perkins road, participated in the weekend festivities planned for Fisher Junior College Alumnae in Boston. Friday evening, the entire group attended the Boston Pops concert at Symphony Hall. Saturday morning was open house at the college's four dormitories and breakfast was served to all early risers. The annual luncheon was held at the Carousel Room of the Hotel Bradford for all classes.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 15 1956

Scholarly Links To Politics Urged

By Mary Handy
Staff Writer of The Christian Science Monitor

Cambridge, Mass.

Senator John F. Kennedy called for a dynamic partnership between the American intellectual and the American politician at Harvard University commencement festivities here yesterday.

"I would ask both groups to recall that the American politician of today and the American intellectual of today are descended from a common ancestry," said the Massachusetts Democratic senator, who was honored by Harvard yesterday morning with an honorary degree.

Degrees Awarded

"Both the American intellectual and politician operate within a common framework—a framework we call liberty," he asid. "Finally, I would stress the great potential gain for both groups resulting from increased political cooperation."

Harvard awarded honorary degrees to 11 others at its 305th commencement ceremonies. Included were two members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, and Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court.

The other honorary degrees were given to:

John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth College; Herbert Butterfield, English historian and master of Peternouse College, Cambridge, England; Edward S. Mason, an economist and dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Public Administration; Dr. John F. Enders, Nobel Prize bacteriologist and professor of bacteriology and immunology of the Harvard Medical School; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, a leader in Judaic studies and in the history of philosophy and Nathan Littauer, professor of Hebrew literature and philosophy at Harvard; and David T. W. McCord, poet and essayist and for 30 years executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council.

'Growing Gap'

"It is regrettable that the gap between the intellectual and politician seems to be growing," Senator Kennedy told some 15,000 alumni, faculty, and friends gathered under the elms of Harvard Yard. He added:

"Instead of synthesis, clash and discord now characterize the relations between the two groups much of the time. . . . Both sides in this battle, it seems to me, are motivated by largely unfounded feelings of distrust.

"The politician, whose authority rests upon the mandate of the popular will, is resentful of the scholar who can, with dexterity, slip from position to position without dragging the anchor of public opinion.

'What We Share'

"The intellectual, on the other hand, finds it difficult to accept the differences between the laboratory and the legislature. In the former, the goal is truth, pure and simple, without regard to changing currents of public opinion; in the latter, compromises and majorities and procedural customs and rights affect the ultimate decision as to what is right or just or good. . . .

"It seems to me that the time has come for intellectuals and politicians to put aside those horrible weapons of modern internecine warfare, the barbed thrust, the acid pen, and—most sinister of all—the rhetorical blast.

"Let us not emphasize all on which we differ, but all we have in common. Let us consider not what we fear separately but what we share together.

"Was John Milton to conjugate Greek verbs in his library or talk of the liberty of the ancient Shunamites when the liberty of Englishmen was imperiled? No, the duty of the scholar—particularly in a republic such as ours—is to contribute his objective views and his sense of liberty to the affairs of his state and nation.

Butterfield Speaks

"The American intellectual and scholar today must decide, as Goethe put it, whether he is to be an anvil—or a hammer. Today, for many, the stage of the anvil, at least in its formal phases, is complete.

"The question he faces is whether he is to be a hammer — whether he is to give the world in which he was reared and educated the broadest possible benefits of his learning. As one who is familiar with the political world, I can testify that we need it."

Also speaking at the Alumni Association gathering, Professor Butterfield called for education that will nurture more imagination and creative ability.

"In a conflict of civilizations, it is true above all that that one is likely to prevail which has the greater imaginative power at its disposal," he said.

He warned that the face of world balance of power could be materially changed by creative, imaginative shifts by one side or the other. He commented that the Soviet Union might conceive of some imaginative plan "that might even make our hydrogen bombs pretty useless to us."

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD-TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 336,443 - S. 528,253
JUL 15 1956

Records: Berlioz by Toscanini

'Harold in Italy' Tops New Symphonic Releases

By HERBERT KUPFERBERG

Perhaps the two composers who, considering their importance, have been the least played by Arturo Toscanini in his almost countless years of conducting are Berlioz and Mozart. His most substantial Berlioz recording until now has been the excerpts from "Romeo et Juliette"; his recorded Mozart has been limited to a few symphonies, the "Magic Flute" Overture, the Bassoon Concerto and the Divertimento No.15. So the issuance by R. C. A.-Victor of the Maestro's performances, with the N. B. C. Orchestra of Berlioz' "Harold in Italy" and Mozart's Symphony No. 39 in E-flat is of an interest even greater than that which ordinarily surrounds a new Toscanini recording.

H. Kupferberg

Bernard Shaw, whose seventy-year-old music criticism seems to grow more penetrating and readable with age, once remarked that Mozart and Berlioz were the ultimate tests of an orchestra, and presumably he meant of a conductor, too. If Toscanini still needed to pass tests, this recording of "Harold in Italy," which was made in 1953, would see him through with flying colors. Not only is it one of the finest entries in the Toscanini library, it is one of the finest performances ever committed to records—or are the two synonymous?

Fire and Fury

"Harold in Italy" is hardly a work that plays itself; Berlioz writes at length in his memoirs of the trouble it had at its first performances—the conductor dragged the first movement, the harpist came in at the wrong place at one point, and the orchestra skipped fifty bars at another—"a complete slaughter," the composer called it.

Toscanini's performance of this Byronic symphony is thrilling from start to finish, full of fire and fury and, incidentally, some lovely playing by the solo violist, Carlton Cooley. The recording was made from a radio broadcast, and the sound occasionally betrays its origins, but the deficiencies certainly are minor ones in view of the overwhelming over-all effect (Victor, $3.98).

Toscanini's recording of Mozart's E-flat Symphony, taken from an N. B. C. broadcast of March 6, 1948 is, by contrast, a perplexing affair It too is thrilling, being played with tremendous dash and vigor, but thrilling in an un-Mozartean manner. Its power often seems rushed and raw (the opening of the third movement, for instance) and although its sheer precision at times is electrifying, the total impression is that of a Rossini overture rather than a Mozart symphony. The E-flat Symphony is coupled with a previously issued recording of the Divertimento No. 15 in B-flat, which is one of the sleekest of Toscanini's Mozart performances even though, for reasons known best to himself, he skips the second minuet movement.

Last Word on Strauss

A third recently issued Toscanini record couples two Richard Strauss works, "Till Eulenspiegel" and "Death and Transfiguration" (Victor, $3.98). This, like the Berlioz, is another supreme achievement by the Maestro, for both are played with a crisp, clean brilliance. The sparkling fun of "Till" and even the somewhat tawdry grandeur of "Death and Transfiguration" have never been more tellingly presented. For all reasonable intents and purposes Toscanini seemingly has spoken the last word on both these scores—or at least one would like to think so.

Three new Brahms recordings are devoted to his first three symphonies. No. 1 is played by Willem van Otterloo and the Hague Philharmonic Orchestra (Epic, $3.98); No. 2 by Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony (Victor, $3.98); No. 3 by Antal Dorati and the Minneapolis Symphony (Mercury, $3.98). Each of these has a substantial contribution to make; the Dorati is a vivid adventure in sound, the Munch is a brightly summery presentation of a work that benefits from such an approach, the Van Otterloo brings a sense of cool proportion to the symphony which is sometimes hammered to death. Yet none of these performances matches either the Toscanini or the Bruno Walter Brahms symphonies, which are available in complete sets. For a bonus you get the Tragic Overture on the Munch record and both the Tragic and Academic Festival Overtures on the Dorati.

Herbert von Karajan and the Philharmonia Orchestra of London are in the process of recording the complete symphonies of Sibelius for Angel. Their two latest entries combine Nos. 6 and 7 on one disk ($4.98), with No. 2 amply filling both sides of another record ($4.98). Von Karajan has a remarkable affinity for Sibelius' music, and as a result, this is quite an outstanding series. The Second Symphony, which probably still is the most popular of Sibelius' big works, gets a fervent, glowing and eloquent presentation which is not in the least overblown or sentimental. Sibelius devotees need look no further.

Something of an unexpected delight is provided by a new London-Ducretet Thomson recording ($4.98) of Saint-Saens' Symphony No. 3 in C minor. The pleasure is unexpected because Ernest Bour, who directs the Orchestre du Theatre des Champs-Elysées of Paris, is not a conductor of particular renown on this side of the Atlantic. But this is a spacious and rich performance of a work which contains much fine music. Bour brings a thoroughly French spirit to the symphony. Toscanini's older performance for Victor is more exciting but Bour reveals the music's contours and contents in a deeply convincing fashion. Maurice Duruflé plays the solo organ passages extremely well.

Meet Mr. Nielsen

Carl Nielsen, a Danish composer, lived from 1865 to 1931. His music was virtually unknown in this country until recordings brought it over here, and the more it is heard, the more important it seems. His Symphony No. 3, the "Sinfonia Espansiva," has been newly recorded for Epic ($3.98) by the Danish National Orchestra conducted by John Frandsen, with Ruth Guldbaek, soprano, and Erik Sjoberg, baritone. This recording discloses Nielsen to be a highly accomplished composer, with something to say and the mastery of the means to say it. The full-bodied, richly scored music bears repeated listening with steady power, and this fine recording of it can serve as a rewarding introduction to a composer who should be better known and more frequently played.

Willem van Otterloo, conductor of Brahms' Symphony No. 1 with the Hague Philharmonic Orchestra.

Arturo Toscanini, who conducts Berlioz' "Harold in Italy" for Victor in recording made from an N. B. C. Orchestra broadcast in 1953.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078. Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Village & Transcript
NEWTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,087

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078. Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200
Graphic
NEWTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 8625

JUN 14 1956

45th Season of All Newton Music School Closes Saturday

The Forty-fifth season of the All Newton Music School will come to a close this Saturday, after a full and eventful year. This special birthday anniversary was celebrated on Monday, June 4, with an evening at the "Pops" in Symphony Hall. The event proved to be successful from every point of view, giving hundreds of Music School friends a pleasant program of music, with Constance Cover Wurster of the faculty as soloist in the Cesar Franck Symphonic Variations for piano and orchestra, as well as adding several hundred dollars to the scholarship and mortgage funds. The overwhelming cooperation and support of its many friends are gratefully appreciated by trustees and staff members of the School.

During the past few weeks, the following advanced students gave Student Diploma Recitals: Elaine Holmes, Carol Scipione and Carole Weeden of the piano department and Richard Minear of the cello department. The recitals were well attended by faculty and friends of the candidates, each of whom gave an outstanding performance demonstrating the careful and high-grade instruction and training received at the school, and the readiness to go on with more advanced work in music. They represented 67 school years of teaching — several of them having studied for more than ten years.

The Music School has a well integrated and progressive program offering many advantages and opportunities to provide children with a richer life, greater happiness and possibly a career. It accepts students of all ages from beginners to the most advanced, each having the advantage of careful supervision and coaching by the supervisors of music.

Next fall at the opening of the new school season, a limited number of scholarships will be awarded to students recommended by the music supervisors, approved by the music committee of the board of trustees and the director. Such scholarships are given to those students who have shown outstanding talent, school spirit, and cooperation.

The Music School is also fortunate in having a fine Parents' Association, an active and interested group which promotes understanding and cooperation between the home and the school and through special activities, support the work of the school and awards two scholarships each year to outstanding students.

Music School students are re-registering now before the fall season which will open for lessons on September 10. Registration will be held during the preceding week and new applicants will be accepted as far as vacancies permit.

The All Newton Music School, a worthy community enterprise of many years standing, is a member of the Newton Community Chest, the Newton Community Council, National Guild of Community Music Schools.

the supervisor of music.
Next fall at the openi the new school season, a li number of scholarships w awarded to students re mended by the music sup sors, approved by the committee of the boar trustees and the director, scholarships are given to students who have showi standing talent, school and cooperation.
The Music School P Association is an active a terested group which pr understanding and coope between the home an school and through activities, support the w the school and awards two arships each year to ou ing students.
Music School students registering now before t season which will open f ons on September 10. R tion will be held during t vious week and new ap will be accepted as far as vacancies permit.
The All Newton Music School is a membe rof the Newton Community Chest, the Newton Community Council, National Guild of Community Music Schools.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD-TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 336,443 - S. 528,253
JUL 1 5 1956

Records: Berlioz by Toscanini

'Harold in Italy' Tops New Symphonic Releases

By HERBERT KUPFERBERG

Perhaps the two composers who, considering their importance, have been the least played by Arturo Toscanini in his almost countless years of conducting are Berlioz and Mozart. His most substantial Berlioz recording until now has been the excerpts from "Romeo et Juliette"; his recorded Mozart has been limited to a few symphonies, the "Magic Flute" Overture, the Bassoon Concerto and the Divertimento No.15. So the issuance of the Maestro's performances, with the N. B. C. Orchestra of Berlioz' "Harold in Italy" and Mozart's Symphony No. 39 in E-flat is of an interest even greater than that which ordinarily surrounds a new Toscanini recording.

H. Kupferberg

Bernard Shaw, whose seventy-year-old music criticism seems to grow more penetrating and readable with age, once remarked that Mozart and Berlioz were the ultimate tests of an orchestra, and presumably he meant of a conductor, too. If Toscanini still needed to pass tests, this recording of "Harold in Italy," which was made in 1953, would see him through with flying colors. Not only is it one of the finest entries in the Toscanini library, it is one of the finest performances ever committed to records—or are the two synonymous?

Fire and Fury

"Harold in Italy" is hardly a work that plays itself; Berlioz writes at length in his memoirs of the trouble it had at its first performances—the conductor dragged the first movement, the harpist came in at the wrong place at one point, and the orchestra skipped fifty bars at another—"a complete slaughter," the composer called it.

Toscanini's performance of this Byronic symphony is thrilling from start to finish, full of fire and fury and, incidentally, some lovely playing by the solo violist, Carlton Cooley. The recording was made from a radio broadcast, and the sound occasionally betrays its origins, but the deficiencies certainly are minor ones in view of the overwhelming over-all effect (Victor, $3.98).

Toscanini's recording of Mozart's E-flat Symphony, taken from an N. B. C. broadcast of March 6, 1948 is, by contrast, a perplexing affair It too is thrilling, being played with tremendous dash and vigor, but thrilling in an un-Mozartean manner. Its power often seems rushed and raw (the opening of the third movement, for instance) and although its sheer precision at times is electrifying, the total impression is that of a Rossini overture rather than a Mozart symphony. The E-flat Symphony is coupled with a previously issued recording of the Divertimento No. 15 in B-flat, which is one of the sleekest of Toscanini's Mozart performances even though, for reasons known best to himself, he skips the second minuet movement.

Last Word on Strauss

A third recently issued Toscanini record couples two Richard Strauss works, "Till Eulenspiegel" and "Death and Transfiguration" (Victor, $3.98). This, like the Berlioz, is another supreme achievement by the Maestro, for both are played with a crisp, clean brilliance. The sparkling fun of "Till" and even the somewhat tawdry grandeur of "Death and Transfiguration" have never been more tellingly presented. For all reasonable intents and purposes Toscanini seemingly has spoken the last word on both these scores—or at least one would like to think so.

Three new Brahms recordings are devoted to his first three symphonies. No. 1 is played by Willem van Otterloo and the Hague Philharmonic Orchestra (Epic, $3.98); No. 2 by Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony (Victor, $3.98); No. 3 by Antal Dorati and the Minneapolis Symphony (Mercury, $3.98). Each of these has a substantial contribution to make; the Dorati is a vivid adventure in sound, the Munch is a brightly summery presentation of a work that benefits from such an approach, the Van Otterloo brings a sense of cool proportion to the symphony which is sometimes hammered to death. Yet none of these performances matches either the Toscanini or the Bruno Walter Brahms symphonies, which are available in complete sets. For a bonus you get the Tragic Overture on the Munch record and both the Tragic and Academic Festival Overtures on the Dorati.

Herbert von Karajan and the Philharmonia Orchestra of London are in the process of recording the complete symphonies of Sibelius for Angel. Their two latest entries combine Nos. 6 and 7 on one disk ($4.98), with No. 2 amply filling both sides of another record ($4.98). Von Karajan has a remarkable affinity for Sibelius' music, and as a result, this is quite an outstanding series. The Second Symphony, which probably still is the most popular of Sibelius' big works, gets a fervent, glowing and eloquent presentation which is not in the least overblown or sentimental. Sibelius devotees need look no further.

Something of an unexpected delight is provided by a new London-Ducretet Thomson recording ($4.98) or Saint-Saens' Symphony No. 3 in C minor The pleasure is unexpected because Ernest Bour, who directs the Orchestre du Theatre des Champs-Elysées of Paris, is not a conductor of particular renown on this side of the Atlantic. But this is a spacious and rich performance of a work which contains much fine music. Bour brings a thoroughly French spirit to the symphony. Toscanini's older performance for Victor is more exciting but Bour reveals the music's contours and contents in a deeply convincing fashion. Maurice Duruflé plays the solo organ passages extremely well.

Meet Mr. Nielsen

Carl Nielsen, a Danish composer, lived from 1865 to 1931. His music was virtually unknown in this country until recordings brought it over here, and the more it is heard, the more important it seems. His Symphony No. 3, the "Sinfonia Espansiva," has been newly recorded for Epic ($3.98) by the Danish National Orchestra conducted by John Frandsen, with Ruth Guldbaek, soprano, and Erik Sjoberg, baritone. This recording discloses Nielsen to be a highly accomplished composer, with something to say and the mastery of the means to say it. The full-bodied, richly scored music bears repeated listening with steady power, and this fine recording of it can serve as a rewarding introduction to a composer who should be better known and more frequently played.

Arturo Toscanini, who conducts Berlioz' "Harold in Italy" for Victor in recording made from an N. B. C. Orchestra broadcast in 1953.

Willem van Otterloo, conductor of Brahms' Symphony No. 1 with the Hague Philharmonic Orchestra.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Village & Transcript
NEWTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,087

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Graphic
NEWTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 8625

JUN 1 4 1956

45th Season of All Newton Music School Closes Saturday

The Forty-fifth season of the All Newton Music School will come to a close this Saturday, after a full and eventful year. This special birthday anniversary was celebrated on Monday, June 4, with an evening at the "Pops" in Symphony Hall. The event proved to be successful from every point of view, giving hundreds of Music School friends a pleasant program of music, with Constance Cover Wurster of the faculty as soloist in the Cesar Franck Symphonic Variations for piano and orchestra, as well as adding several hundred dollars to the scholarship and mortgage funds. The overwhelming cooperation and support of its many friends are gratefully appreciated by trustees and staff members of the School.

During the past few weeks, the following advanced students gave Student Diploma Recitals: Elaine Holmes, Carol Scipione and Carole Weeden of the piano department and Richard Minear of the cello department. The recitals were well attended by faculty and friends of the candidates, each of whom gave an outstanding performance demonstrating the careful and high-grade instruction and training received at the school, and the readiness to go on with more advanced work in music. They represented 67 school years of teaching — several of them having studied for more than ten years.

The Music School has a well integrated and progressive program offering many advantages and opportunities to provide children with a richer life, greater happiness and possibly a career. It accepts students of all ages from beginners to the most advanced, each having the advantage of careful supervision and coaching by the supervisors of music.

Next fall at the opening of the new school season, a limited number of scholarships will be awarded to students recommended by the music supervisors, approved by the music committee of the board of trustees and the director. Such scholarships are given to those students who have shown outstanding talent, school spirit, and cooperation.

The Music School is most fortunate in having a fine Parents' Association, an active and interested group which promotes understanding and cooperation between the home and the school and through special activities, support the work of the school and awards two scholarships each year to outstanding students.

Music School students are reregistering now before the fall season which will open for lessons on September 10. Registration will be held during the preceding week and new applicants will be accepted as far as vacancies permit.

The All Newton Music School, a worthy community enterprise of many years standing, is a member of the Newton Community Chest, the Newton Community Council, National Guild of Community Music Schools.

the supervisor of music.
Next fall at the openi the new school season, a li number of scholarships w awarded to students re mended by the music sup sors, approved by the committee of the boar trustees and the director. scholarships are given to students who have show standing talent, school and cooperation.
The Music School Pa Association is an active a terested group which pr understanding and coope between the home an school and through activities, support the w the school and awards two arships each year to ou ing students.
Music School students registering now before t season which will open f ons on September 10. R tion will be held during t vious week and new ap will be accepted as far as vacancies permit.
The All Newton Music School is a membe rof the Newton Community Chest, the Newton Community Council, National Guild of Community Music Schools.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD-TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 336 443 · S. 528,253
JUL 1 5 1956

Records: Berlioz by Toscanini

'Harold in Italy' Tops New Symphonic Releases

By HERBERT KUPFERBERG

Perhaps the two composers who, considering their importance, have been the least played by Arturo Toscanini in his almost countless years of conducting are Berlioz and Mozart. His most substantial Berlioz recording until now has been the excerpts from "Romeo et Juliette"; his recorded Mozart has been limited to a few symphonies, the "Magic Flute" Overture, the Bassoon Concerto and the Divertimento No.15. So the issuance by R. C. A.-Victor of the Maestro's performances, with the N. B. C. Orchestra of Berlioz' "Harold in Italy" and Mozart's Symphony No. 39 in E-flat is of an interest even greater than that which ordinarily surrounds a new Toscanini recording.

H. Kupferberg

Bernard Shaw, whose seventy-year-old music criticism seems to grow more penetrating and readable with age, once remarked that Mozart and Berlioz were the ultimate tests of an orchestra, and presumably he meant of a conductor, too. If Toscanini still needed to pass tests, this recording of "Harold in Italy," which was made in 1953, would see him through with flying colors. Not only is it one of the finest entries in the Toscanini library, it is one of the finest performances ever committed to records—or are the two synonymous?

Fire and Fury

"Harold in Italy" is hardly a work that plays itself; Berlioz writes at length in his memoirs of the trouble it had at its first performances—the conductor dragged the first movement, the harpist came in at the wrong place at one point, and the orchestra skipped fifty bars at another—"a complete slaughter," the composer called it.

Toscanini's performance of this Byronic symphony is thrilling from start to finish, full of fire and fury and, incidentally, some lovely playing by the solo violist, Carlton Cooley. The recording was made from a radio broadcast, and the sound occasionally betrays its origins, but the deficiencies certainly are minor ones in view of the overwhelming over-all effect (Victor, $3.98).

Toscanini's recording of Mozart's E-flat Symphony, taken from an N. B. C. broadcast of March 6, 1948 is, by contrast, a perplexing affair It too is thrilling, being played with tremendous dash and vigor, but thrilling in an un-Mozartean manner. Its power often seems rushed and raw (the opening of the third movement, for instance) and although its sheer precision at times is electrifying, the total impression is that of a Rossini overture rather than a Mozart symphony. The E-flat Symphony is coupled with a previously issued recording of the Divertimento No. 15 in B-flat, which is one of the sleekest of Toscanini's Mozart performances even though, for reasons known best to himself, he skips the second minuet movement.

Last Word on Strauss

A third recently issued Toscanini record couples two Richard Strauss works, "Till Eulenspiegel" and "Death and Transfiguration" (Victor, $3.98). This, like the Berlioz, is another supreme achievement by the Maestro, for both are played with a crisp, clean brilliance. The sparkling fun of "Till" and even the somewhat tawdry grandeur of "Death and Transfiguration" have never been more tellingly presented. For all reasonable intents and purposes Toscanini seemingly has spoken the last word on both these scores—or at least one would like to think so.

Three new Brahms recordings are devoted to his first three symphonies. No. 1 is played by Willem van Otterloo and the Hague Philharmonic Orchestra (Epic, $3.98); No. 2 by Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony (Victor, $3.98); No. 3 by Antal Dorati and the Minneapolis Symphony (Mercury, $3.98). Each of these has a substantial contribution to make; the Dorati is a vivid adventure in sound, the Munch is a brightly summery presentation of a work that benefits from such an approach, the Van Otterloo brings a sense of cool proportion to the symphony which is sometimes hammered to death. Yet none of these performances matches either the Toscanini or the Bruno Walter Brahms symphonies, which are available in complete sets. For a bonus you get the Tragic Overture on the Munch record and both the Tragic and Academic Festival Overtures on the Dorati.

Herbert von Karajan and the Philharmonia Orchestra of London are in the process of recording the complete symphonies of Sibelius for Angel. Their two latest entries combine Nos. 6 and 7 on one disk ($4.98), with No. 2 amply filling both sides of another record ($4.98). Von Karajan has a remarkable affinity for Sibelius' music, and as a result, this is quite an outstanding series. The Second Symphony, which probably still is the most popular of Sibelius' big works, gets a fervent, glowing and eloquent presentation which is not in the least overblown or sentimental. Sibelius devotees need look no further.

Something of an unexpected delight is provided by a new London-Ducretet Thomson recording ($4.98) or Saint-Saens' Symphony No. 3 in C minor. The pleasure is unexpected because Ernest Bour, who directs the Orchestre du Theatre des Champs-Elysées of Paris, is not a conductor of particular renown on this side of the Atlantic. But this is a spacious and rich performance of a work which contains much fine music. Bour brings a thoroughly French spirit to the symphony. Toscanini's older performance for Victor is more exciting but Bour reveals the music's contours and contents in a deeply convincing fashion. Maurice Duruflé plays the solo organ passages extremely well.

Meet Mr. Nielsen

Carl Nielsen, a Danish composer, lived from 1865 to 1931. His music was virtually unknown in this country until recordings brought it over here, and the more it is heard, the more important it seems. His Symphony No. 3, the "Sinfonia Espansiva," has been newly recorded for Epic ($3.98) by the Danish National Orchestra conducted by John Frandsen, with Ruth Guldbaek, soprano, and Erik Sjoberg, baritone. This recording discloses Nielsen to be a highly accomplished composer, with something to say and the mastery of the means to say it. The full-bodied, richly scored music bears repeated listening with steady power, and this fine recording of it can serve as a rewarding introduction to a composer who should be better known and more frequently played.

Willem van Otterloo, conductor of Brahms' Symphony No. 1 with the Hague Philharmonic Orchestra.

Congratulations

...ARD W. FITZPATRICK

Lillian Anne Ebel
Muriel Estelle Ellenson
Theresa Phillis English
Ann Roberta Factor
Ann Marie Fallon
Nancy Barbara Fane
*Alfreda Farina
Aloha Roberta Favor
Nancy Joan Fay
*Sally Lea Feinberg
Alyce Joan Feldman
Judith Ann Finn
Joyce Spencer Firestine
*Nancy Jean Foley
Sara Evelyn Foran
Constance Judith Forbes
Judith Anne Forbes
Nancy Stowe Frail
Arlene Elizabeth Freeman
*Ellen Judith Freeman
Patricia Lee Freeman
Sandra Toby Freshman

(Continued on Page 8)

—GRADUATES—

Nancy June Heaton
*Susanne Gail Hirsh
Margaret Ann Hobbs
*Toby Arlene Hoffenberg
Elaine Merrill Holmes
Muriel Elizabeth Holt
Winifred May Hoskins
Virginia Gayle Huberman
Patricia Joan Hudson
*Elizabeth Alden Hulsman

JUN 14 1956

All-Newton Music School To Complete 45th Season June 16

The Forty-fifth season of the All Newton Music School will close Saturday, June 16. This special birthday anniversary was celebrated on Monday, June 4, with an evening at the "Pops" in Symphony Hall. The event proved to be successful from every point of view, giving hundreds of Music School friends a pleasant program of music, with Constance Cover Wurster of the faculty as soloist in the Cesar Franck Symphonic Variations for piano and orchestra, as well as adding several hundred dollars to the scholarship and mortgage funds.

During the past few weeks, the following advanced students gave Student Diploma Recitals: Elaine Holmes, Carol Scipione and Carole Weeden of the piano department and Richard Minear of the cello department. They represented 67 schools years of teaching, several of them having studied for more than ten years.

The Music School accepts students of all ages from beginners to the most advanced, each having the advantage of careful supervision and coaching by the supervisor of music.

Next fall at the opening of the new school season, a limited number of scholarships will be awarded to students recommended by the music supervisors, approved by the music committee of the board of trustees and the director. Such scholarships are given to those students who have shown outstanding talent, school spirit, and cooperation.

The Music School Parents' Association is an active and interested group which promotes understanding and cooperation between the home and the school and through special activities, support the work of the school and awards two scholarships each year to outstanding students.

Music School students are re-registering now before the fall season which will open for lessons on September 10. Registration will be held during the previous week and new applicants will be accepted as far as vacancies permit.

The All Newton Music School is a member of the Newton Community Chest, the Newton Community Council, National Guild of Community Music Schools.

109

102

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

The Pilot
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 184,973

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

JUN 16 1956

...ts Three Degrees in 5 Days

...ve days is the record rung up by Dr. Charles Munch, who ...honored men in musical and academic circles in the past five ...ce from his Paris home.

...letters; Wed- ...ted ...of Music and at Harvard's impressive commencement exercises Thursday the degree of Doctor of Music was again conferred upon him. In 1955 Boston University also awarded him with the degree of Doctor of Music.

Dr. Munch returned to Paris last night but he will return within two weeks to open the 14th season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood in Lenox, of which he is the director, on Sunday afternoon, July 1.

Immediately after the conclusion of the Symphony Orchestra's six-week Berkshire Festival, Dr. Munch will go back to Europe, this time accompanied by all 104 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

...left, WNAC ...n, checks ar... ...or Tuesday's ...ductor Arthur ...e conducts, at ...st, part of pro... ...t for WNAC- ...taffers and ...ience.

...ng ...ed ...p

Brickley of Boston; financier Edward Williams; Charles Munch of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Dr. Peter Debye, Nobel prize-winning chemist; and John W. King, general manager of the Bowen Construction Co.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,628

JUN 16 1956

Three Honorary Degrees Conferred on Symphony Conductor Charles Munch

Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has concluded a five-day return visit to Boston from his Paris home during which time he became one of the most honored men in musical and academic circles. Between Sunday and Thursday Dr. Munch was the recipient of honorary degrees from three Greater Boston institutions of higher learning.

On Sunday, Tufts University made him a Doctor of Humane Letters; on Wednesday Boston College granted him the degree of Doctor of Music; and at the Commencement at Harvard University Thursday the degree of Doctor of Music was again conferred upon him. In 1955 Boston University also awarded him the degree of Doctor of Music.

Last night Dr. Munch returned to Paris, but he will fly back to the United States in two weeks to open the 14th season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood in Lenox, on Sunday afternoon, July 1. During the six weeks of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Dr. Munch will conduct the majority of the Festival concerts.

Immediately after the Festival, on Aug. 12, Dr. Munch will again return to Europe, this time accompanied by all 104 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra who will begin their five-week tour of Europe with a concert in Cork, Ireland on Aug. 24.

Highlights of the European tour, in which Pierre Monteux will share some of the conducting burden with Dr. Munch, will be five performances climaxing the 1956 Edinburgh Festival, and a six-day concert tour of the Soviet Union, marking the first time an American symphony orchestra will have played in Russia.

Dr. Munch and the orchestra will return to Boston in time to start rehearsals on Oct. 1 for the orchestra's 76th season, which will begin on Oct. 5.

...degrees ... God and religion a pro... "Your education has ... perfected," the Archb... "because without neg... ficiency in human lea... revealed to you the ... Deity, the Alpha an... all."

Scoring educative ... "too many institutio... pedagogy," the Arc... out at systems ... naturalistic or ma... sumption that the ... organism and wi... and immortal sou...

He marked a... any educational ... set up that wou... off from the di... factor in huma... soul. "You hav... keeps faith w... education to ... person ph... spiritually, mo... to its duties ... and to God."

NATI...

The countr... the type g... College, the ... because chu... learn "fidelit... devotion to ... the sanctity ... son, recogni... authority ... sound Am... liberty to ... kept under... the knowledge ... courage to be different from ... millions who have divided themselves from the Americanism of our Founding Fathers by their failure to believe, to worship, and to obey. All of these contributions to the strength and grandeur of our country you are eminently fitted to make."

Commencement exercises for 1258 graduates took place at Alumni Field, Chestnut Hill, June 13. The principal speaker was Senator Kennedy, who was also awarded an honorary doctorate of laws. Others receiving the honorary degrees were Bishop Frederick Donaghy of Wuchow, China; attorney Bartholomew

...England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
...78, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Enterprise (e)
MARLBORO, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 5,165

...England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
...2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Sun (e)
HUDSON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 2,085

JUN 18 1956

SANG AT POPS

Maynard—Edward D. D'Amico son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. D'Amico of 16 Crane street, was a member of the New England Conservatory Chorus when it sang at the Boston Pops Concert Saturday, June 9. The second Saturday night in June has been New England Conservatory night at Pops since 1930 when Mr. Feidler became Pops conductor

Mr. D'Amico is a Bass. He has just completed his Freshman year at the New England Conservatory, where he is majoring in Music Education.

...Amico ...rd D. ... was ...gland ...n it ...pert

Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 374,544

JUN 17 1956

Histadrut Pops Night

The Mattapan-Dorchester-Roxbury Zionist district is planning to conclude its current year's activities with a banquet Wednesday evening at the Chateau Garod, Brookline.

A reward luncheon will be held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Joseph Grossman, 86 Monroe st., Quincy, for members of the Jewish Women's Health Association who have met the "$50 challenge," the sum required in new solicitations for the program book to be distributed at the luncheon in November.

The 28th annual "Israel Night at Pops" sponsored by the Israel Histadrut Campaign will be held Thursday evening, at Symphony Hall.

Richard Tucker, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will sing a special program of operatic arias and Hebrew and Yiddish folk songs. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra in a special musical salute to the state of Israel on its eighth year of independence.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Sunday Journal
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 181,704

JUN 17 1956

Two Top Orchestras To Swap Conductors

New York — (UP) — Next season, the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Boston Symphony will swap conductors for two concerts.

Eugene Ormandy, music director of the Philadelphians, will conduct the Bostonians twice in Boston, while Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, will be in Philadelphia conducting the Philadelphians.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

JUN 17 1956

YANKS IN MOSCOW

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, one of the world's greatest musical organizations, has accepted an offer to go to Russia to display its wares.

The orchestra, under the direction of Charles Munch, is scheduled to give concerts in both Leningrad and Moscow.

Herb Fickien in the Dallas News

RECORD HEAT. The ...

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 111,372

JUN 17 1956

...illiams will be played.

BOSTON POPS WILL PLAY '1812 OVERTURE'

Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture" will be a highlight of the Boston Pops Orchestra concert directed by Arthur Fiedler tomorrow (NBC Radio, 8.15-9 p. m., EDT). Other selections are the "Triumphal March" from Verdi's "Aida," the overture to "La Belle Helene" by Offenbach, and Anderson's "Serenata."

WICHITA FALLS TEX.
DAILY TIMES

JUN 17 1956

Spinning The Disks

With Bob Herdien

Turning away from jazz for a week, let's look at Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Scheherazade" as presented by Morton Gould on RCA Victor's LM-1956. Inspired by the classic Arabian Nights, most readers need little introduction to this masterpiece of Rimsky-Korsakoff.

Like Scheherzade herself, he loves to tell a story, and paints this one with this rich, sensuous music. It's an exciting symphonic journey into the mysterious East with all the vivid color and dynamics of Rimsky-Korsakoff's work done by Gould.

RCA has used the latest in recording techniques to capture the magic of this familiar theme, and it's something you'll enjoy hearing.

RCA's LPM-1248 features the brilliant Harry Belafonte on a 10-tune calypso offering that offers moods ranging from brassy gaiety to wistful sadness.

"Man Smart, Woman Smarter" is one of the West Indian tunes familiar to many, and the versatile Belafonte turns in an excellent job on it. Another favorite is "Day O," based on the traditional work songs of the gangs who load the banana boats in Trinidad harbor.

Backing up Belafonte is Tony Scott and his band, along with Millard Thomas on guitar.

Frankie Laine does something different on Columbia's CL 861, when he moves in with the Four Lads for an album of new and fascinating spirituals derived from the fine, old field songs of a century past.

"Didn't He Moan" and "Ain't It A Pity and A Shame" are two of the best, and Laine's easy grasp of any type song is superb.

The Four Lads are a Toronto group who began singing together when they met during rehearsals for their cathedral choir. Discovered by Orlando Wilson of the Golden Gate quartet, they came to New York and were an immediate smash. They backed Johnnie Ray on "Cry" and "Little White Cloud" and toured with him for months.

Arthur Fiedler and that splendid Boston Pops orchestra do an engaging job on RCA's LM 1985 "Picnic," a collection of tunes that range from the familiar "Malaguena" and "Jalousie" to "The Waltzing Cat."

Fiedler dresses up some of his old favorites with a new harmonic setting, providing some subtlty, delightful music that will provide hours of enjoyment.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,628

JUN 18 195...

MUNCH HONORED BY 4 COLLEGES

Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestr... is amo... most honored men in music. He is the recipient of honorary degrees from Tufts University, Boston College, Harvard and B. U.

Dr. Munch is back in Paris, but will return in two weeks to open the 14th season of the Berkshire Music Center.

JUN 16 1956

Munch Gets Three Degrees in 5 Days

Three degrees in five days is the record rung up by Dr. Charles Munch, who became one of the most honored men in musical and academic circles in the past five days since his return here from his Paris home.

On Sunday Tufts University made the music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra a Doctor of Human Letters; Wednesday Boston College granted him the degree of Doctor of Music and at Harvard's impressive commencement exercises Thursday the degree of Doctor of Music was again conferred upon him. In 1955 Boston University also awarded him with the degree of Doctor of Music.

Dr. Munch returned to Paris last night but he will return within two weeks to open the 14th season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood in Lenox, of which he is the director, on Sunday afternoon, July 1.

Immediately after the conclusion of the Symphony Orchestra's six-week Berkshire Festival, Dr. Munch will go back to Europe, this time accompanied by all 104 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

graduation event and shared the speakers' platform with Senator John Kennedy, told the graduates that theirs was a "really integrated" education that gave God and religion a proper place.

"Your education has been really perfected," the Archbishop said, "because without neglect of proficiency in human learning, it has revealed to you the glory of the Deity, the Alpha and Omega of all."

Scoring educative processes in "too many institutions of pseudo-pedagogy," the Archbishop lashed out at systems "based on a naturalistic or materialistic presumption that the student is all organism and without a spiritual and immortal soul."

He marked as "disastrous to any educational program" blocs set up that would "shut students off from the distinctively human factor in human personality—the soul. You have a training that keeps faith with the rights of education to develop the entire person physically, mentally, spiritually, morally, in references to its duties to self, to society, and to God."

NATIONAL NEED

The country needs citizens of the type graduated by Boston College, the Archbishop continued, because church-educated students learn "fidelity, respect for justice, devotion to charity, knowledge of the sanctity of every human person, recognition of the function of authority and its laws, and the sound American principle that liberty to be kept free must be kept under control . . . You have the knowledge and, we pray, the courage to be different from the millions who have divided themselves from the Americanism of our Founding Fathers by their failure to believe, to worship, and to obey. All of these contributions to the strength and grandeur of our country you are eminently fitted to make."

Commencement exercises for 1258 graduates took place at Alumni Field, Chestnut Hill, June 13. The principal speaker was Senator Kennedy, who was also awarded an honorary doctorate of laws. Others receiving the honorary degrees were Bishop Frederick Donaghy of Wuchow, China; attorney Bartholomew Brickley of Boston; financier Edward Williams; Charles Munch of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Dr. Peter Debye, Nobel prize-winning chemist; and John W. King, general manager of the Bowen Construction Co.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,628

JUN 16 1956

left, WNAC n, checks ar-or Tuesday's ductor Arthur e conducts, at st, part of pro-it for WNACtaffers and ence.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Enterprise (e)
MARLBORO, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 5,165

JUN 18 1956

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sun (e)
HUDSON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 2,085

JUN 18 1956

SANG AT POPS

Maynard—Edward D. D'Amico son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. D'Amico of 16 Crane street, was a member of the New England Conservatory Chorus when it sang at the Boston Pops Concert Saturday, June 9. The second Saturday night in June has been New England Conservatory night at Pops since 1930 when Mr. Feidler became Pops conductor

Mr. D'Amico is a Bass. He has just completed his Freshman year at the New England Conservatory, where he is majoring in Music Education.

Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 374,544

JUN 17 1956

Histadrut Pops Night

The Mattapan-Dorchester-Roxbury Zionist district is planning to conclude its current year's activities with a banquet Wednesday evening at the Chateau Garod, Brookline.

A reward luncheon will be held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Joseph Grossman, 86 Monroe st., Quincy, for members of the Jewish Women's Health Association who have met the "$50 challenge," the sum required in new solicitations for the program book to be distributed at the luncheon in November.

The 28th annual "Israel Night at Pops" sponsored by the Israel Histadrut Campaign will be held Thursday evening, at Symphony Hall.

Richard Tucker, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will sing a special program of operatic arias and Hebrew and Yiddish folk songs. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra in a special musical salute to the state of Israel on its eighth year of independence.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Journal
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 181,704

JUN 17 1956

Two Top Orchestras To Swap Conductors

New York — (UP) — Next season, the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Boston Symphony will swap conductors for two concerts.

Eugene Ormandy, music director of the Philadelphians, will conduct the Bostonians wice in Boston, while Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, will be in Philadelphia conducting the Philadelphians.

New England Newsclip Agency
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democra
Circ. 230,930

JUN 17 1956

YANKS IN MOSCOW

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, one of the world's greatest musical organizations, has accepted an offer to go to Russia to display its wares.

The orchestra, under the direction of Charles Munch, is scheduled to give concerts in both Leningrad and Moscow.

Herb Fickien in the Dallas News

RECORD HEAT—The man

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 111,372

JUN 17 1956

illiams will be played.

BOSTON POPS WILL PLAY '1812 OVERTURE'

Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture" will be a highlight of the Boston Pops Orchestra concert directed by Arthur Fiedler tomorrow (NBC Radio, 8.15-9 p. m., EDT). Other selections are the "Triumphal March" from Verdi's "Aida," the overture to "La Belle Helene" by Offenbach, and Anderson's "Serenata."

WICHITA FALLS TEX.
DAILY TIMES
JUN 17 1956

Spinning The Disks

With Bob Herdien

Turning away from jazz for a week, let's look at Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Scheherazade" as presented by Morton Gould on RCA Victor's LM-1956. Inspired by the classic Arabian Nights, most readers need little introduction to this masterpiece of Rimsky-Korsakoff.

Like Scheherzade herself, he loves to tell a story, and paints this one with this rich, sensuous music. It's an exciting symphonic journey into the mysterious East with all the vivid color and dynamics of Rimsky-Korsakoff's work done by Gould.

RCA has used the latest in recording techniques to capture the magic of this familiar theme, and it's something you'll enjoy hearing.

RCA's LPM-1248 features the brilliant Harry Belafonte on a 10-tune calypso offering that offers moods ranging from brassy gaiety to wistful sadness.

"Man Smart, Woman Smarter" is one of the West Indian tunes familiar to many, and the versatile Belafonte turns in an excellent job on it. Another favorite is "Day O," based on the traditional work songs of the gangs who load the banana boats in Trinidad harbor.

Backing up Belafonte is Tony Scott and his band, along with Millard Thomas on guitar.

Frankie Laine does something different on Columbia's CL 861, when he moves in with the Four Lads for an album of new and fascinating spirituals derived from the fine, old field songs of a century past.

"Didn't He Moan" and "Ain't It A Pity and A Shame" are two of the best, and Laine's easy grasp of any type song is superb.

The Four Lads are a Toronto group who began singing together when they met during rehearsals for their cathedral choir. Discovered by Orlando Wilson of the Golden Gate quartet, they came to New York and were an immediate smash. They backed Johnnie Ray on "Cry" and "Little White Cloud" and toured with him for months.

Arthur Fiedler and that splendid Boston Pops orchestra do an engaging job on RCA's LM 1985 "Picnic," a collection of tunes that range from the familiar "Malaguena" and "Jalousie" to "The Waltzing Cat."

Fiedler dresses up some of his old favorites with a new harmonic setting, providing some subtlty, delightful music that will provide hours of enjoyment.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,628

JUN 1

MUNCH HONORED BY 4 COLLEGES

Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestr, is amo most honored men in music. He is the recipient of honorary degrees from Tufts University, Boston College, Harvard and B. U.

Dr. Munch is back in Paris, but will return in two weeks to open the 14th season of the Berkshire Music Center.

BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613
JUN 16 1956

False Teaching Methods Scored By Archbishop

Prelate Speaks At B.C. Commencement Exercises

Nearly 1300 graduates of the various schools of Boston College were congratulated last Wednesday by Archbishop Cushing during the 80th commencement exercises at the Heights. The Archbishop who presided over the 80th graduation event and shared the speakers' platform with Senator John Kennedy, told the graduates that theirs was a "really integrated" education that gave God and religion a proper place.

"Your education has been really perfected," the Archbishop said, "because without neglect of proficiency in human learning, it has revealed to you the glory of the Deity, the Alpha and Omega of all."

Scoring educative processes in "too many institutions of pseudo-pedagogy," the Archbishop lashed out at systems "based on a naturalistic or materialistic presumption that the student is all organism and without a spiritual and immortal soul."

He marked as "disastrous to any educational program" blocs set up that would "shut students off from the distinctively human factor in human personality—the soul. You have a training that keeps faith with the rights of education to develop the entire person physically, mentally, spiritually, morally, in references to its duties to self, to society, and to God."

NATIONAL NEED

The country needs citizens of the type graduated by Boston College, the Archbishop continued, because church-educated students learn "fidelity, respect for justice, devotion to charity, knowledge of the sanctity of every human person, recognition of the function of authority and its laws, and the sound American principle that liberty to be kept free must be kept under control . . . You have the knowledge and, we pray, the courage to be different from the millions who have divided themselves from the Americanism of our Founding Fathers by their failure to believe, to worship, and to obey. All of these contributions to the strength and grandeur of our country you are eminently fitted to make."

Commencement exercises for 1258 graduates took place at Alumni Field, Chestnut Hill, June 13. The principal speaker was Senator Kennedy, who was also awarded an honorary doctorate of laws. Others receiving the honorary degrees were Bishop Frederick Donaghy of Wuchow, China; attorney Bartholomew Brickley of Boston; financier Edward Williams; Charles Munch of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Dr. Peter Debye, Nobel prize-winning chemist; and John W. King, general manager of the Bowen Construction Co.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,628
JUN 16 1956

Peter Bodge, left, WNAC music librarian, checks arrangements for Tuesday's Pops with conductor Arthur Fiedler. Bodge conducts, at Fiedler's request, part of program that night for WNAC-WNAC-TV staffers and friends in audience.

WICHITA FALLS, TEX.
DAILY TIMES
JUN 17 1956

Spinning The Disks

With Bob Herdien

Turning away from jazz for a week, let's look at Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Scheherazade" as presented by Morton Gould on RCA Victor's LM-1956. Inspired by the classic Arabian Nights, most readers need little introduction to this masterpiece of Rimsky-Korsakoff.

Like Scheherzade herself, he loves to tell a story, and paints this one with this rich, sensuous music. It's an exciting symphonic journey into the mysterious East with all the vivid color and dynamics of Rimsky-Korsakoff's work done by Gould.

RCA has used the latest in recording techniques to capture the magic of this familiar theme, and it's something you'll enjoy hearing.

RCA's LPM-1248 features the brilliant Harry Belafonte on a 10-tune calypso offering that offers moods ranging from brassy gaiety to wistful sadness.

"Man Smart, Woman Smarter" is one of the West Indian tunes familiar to many, and the versatile Belafonte turns in an excellent job on it. Another favorite is "Day O," based on the traditional work songs of the gangs who load the banana boats in Trinidad harbor.

Backing up Belafonte is Tony Scott and his band, along with Millard Thomas on guitar.

Frankie Laine does something different on Columbia's CL 861, when he moves in with the Four Lads for an album of new and fascinating spirituals derived from the fine, old field songs of a century past.

"Didn't He Moan" and "Ain't It A Pity and A Shame" are two of the best, and Laine's easy grasp of any type song is superb.

The Four Lads are a Toronto group who began singing together when they met during rehearsals for their cathedral choir. Discovered by Orlando Wilson of the Golden Gate quartet, they came to New York and were an immediate smash. They backed Johnnie Ray on "Cry" and "Little White Cloud" and toured with him for months.

Arthur Fiedler and that splendid Boston Pops orchestra do an engaging job on RCA's LM 1985 "Picnic," a collection of tunes that range from the familiar "Malaguena" and "Jalousie" to "The Waltzing Cat."

Fiedler dresses up some of his old favorites with a new harmonic setting, providing some subtlty, delightful music that will provide hours of enjoyment.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Enterprise (e)
MARLBORO, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 5.165

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sun (e)
HUDSON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 2,085
JUN 18 1956

SANG AT POPS

Maynard—Edward D. D'Amico son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. D'Amico of 16 Crane street, was a member of the New England Conservatory Chorus when it sang at the Boston Pops Concert Saturday, June 9. The second Saturday night in June has been New England Conservatory night at Pops since 1930 when Mr. Feidler became Pops conductor

Mr. D'Amico is a Bass. He has just completed his Freshman year at the New England Conservatory, where he is majoring in Music Education.

Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 374,544
JUN 17 1956

Histadrut Pops Night

The Mattapan-Dorchester-Roxbury Zionist district is planning to conclude its current year's activities with a banquet Wednesday evening at the Chateau Garod, Brookline.

A reward luncheon will be held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Joseph Grossman, 86 Monroe st., Quincy, for members of the Jewish Women's Health Association who have met the "$50 challenge," the sum required in new solicitations for the program book to be distributed at the luncheon in November.

The 28th annual "Israel Night at Pops" sponsored by the Israel Histadrut Campaign will be held Thursday evening, at Symphony Hall.

Richard Tucker, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will sing a special program of operatic arias and Hebrew and Yiddish folk songs. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra in a special musical salute to the state of Israel on its eighth year of independence.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Journal
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 181,704
JUN 17 1956

Two Top Orchestras To Swap Conductors

New York — (UP) — Next season, the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Boston Symphony will swap conductors for two concerts.

Eugene Ormandy, music director of the Philadelphians, will conduct the Bostonians twice in Boston, while Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, will be in Philadelphia conducting the Philadelp

New England Newsclip Ag
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmo
Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democr
Circ. 230,930
JUN 17 1956

YANKS IN MOSCOW

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, one of the world's greatest musical organizations, has accepted an offer to go to Russia to display its wares.

The orchestra, under the direction of Charles Munch, is scheduled to give concerts in both Leningrad and Moscow.

Herb Ficklen in the Dallas News

RECORD HEAT—The mer

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 111,372
JUN 17 1956

Williams will be played.

BOSTON POPS WILL PLAY '1812 OVERTURE'

Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture" will be a highlight of the Boston Pops Orchestra concert directed by Arthur Fiedler tomorrow (NBC Radio, 8.15-9 p. m., EDT). Other selections are the "Triumphal March" from Verdi's "Aida," the overture to "La Belle Helene" by Offenbach, and Anderson's "Serenata."

FEW FAMILIES MUSIC

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,628
JUN

MUNCH HONORED BY 4 COLLEGES

Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is among the most honored men in music. He is the recipient of honorary degrees from Tufts University, Boston College, Harvard and B. U.

Dr. Munch is back in Paris, but will return in two weeks to open the 14th season of the Berkshire Music Center.

Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613

JUN 16 1956

False Teaching Methods Scored By Archbishop

Prelate Speaks At B.C. Commencement Exercises

Nearly 1300 graduates of the various schools of Boston College were congratulated last Wednesday by Archbishop Cushing during the 80th commencement exercises at the Heights. The Archbishop who presided over the 80th graduation event and shared the speakers' platform with Senator John Kennedy, told the graduates that theirs was a "really integrated" education that gave God and religion a proper place.

"Your education has been really perfected," the Archbishop said, "because without neglect of proficiency in human learning, it has revealed to you the glory of the Deity, the Alpha and Omega of all."

Scoring educative processes in "too many institutions of pseudo-pedagogy," the Archbishop lashed out at systems "based on a naturalistic or materialistic presumption that the student is all organism and without a spiritual and immortal soul."

He marked as "disastrous to any educational program" blocs set up that would "shut students off from the distinctively human factor in human personality—the soul. You have a training that keeps faith with the rights of education to develop the entire person physically, mentally, spiritually, morally, in references to its duties to self, to society, and to God."

NATIONAL NEED

The country needs citizens of the type graduated by Boston College, the Archbishop continued, because church-educated students learn "fidelity, respect for justice, devotion to charity, knowledge of the sanctity of every human person, recognition of the function of authority and its laws, and the sound American principle that liberty to be kept free must be kept under control . . . You have the knowledge and, we pray, the courage to be different from the millions who have divided themselves from the Americanism of our Founding Fathers by their failure to believe, to worship, and to obey. All of these contributions to the strength and grandeur of our country you are eminently fitted to make."

Commencement exercises for 1258 graduates took place at Alumni Field, Chestnut Hill, June 13. The principal speaker was Senator Kennedy, who was also awarded an honorary doctorate of laws. Others receiving the honorary degrees were Bishop Frederick Donaghy of Wuchow, China; attorney Bartholomew Brickley of Boston; financier Edward Williams; Charles Munch of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Dr. Peter Debye, Nobel prize-winning chemist; and John W. King, general manager of the Bowen Construction Co.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,628

JUN 16 1956

...er Bodge, left, WNAC ...sic librarian, checks ar... ...gements for Tuesday's ...s with conductor Arthur ...dler. Bodge conducts, at ...dler's request, part of pro... ...n that night for WNAC-...AC-TV staffers and ...nds in audience.

WICHITA FALLS TEX.
DAILY TIMES

JUN 17 1956

Spinning The Disks

With Bob Herdien

Turning away from jazz for a week, let's look at Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Scheherazade" as presented by Morton Gould on RCA Victor's LM-1956. Inspired by the classic Arabian Nights, most readers need little introduction to this masterpiece of Rimsky-Korsakoff.

Like Scheherzade herself, he loves to tell a story, and paints this one with this rich, sensuous music. It's an exciting symphonic journey into the mysterious East with all the vivid color and dynamics of Rimsky-Korsakoff's work done by Gould.

RCA has used the latest in recording techniques to capture the magic of this familiar theme, and it's something you'll enjoy hearing.

RCA's LPM-1248 features the brilliant Harry Belafonte on a 10-tune calypso offering that offers moods ranging from brassy gaiety to wistful sadness.

"Man Smart, Woman Smarter" is one of the West Indian tunes familiar to many, and the versatile Belafonte turns in an excellent job on it. Another favorite is "Day O," based on the traditional work songs of the gangs who load the banana boats in Trinidad harbor.

Backing up Belafonte is Tony Scott and his band, along with Millard Thomas on guitar.

Frankie Laine does something different on Columbia's CL 861, when he moves in with the Four Lads for an album of new and fascinating spirituals derived from the fine, old field songs of a century past.

"Didn't He Moan" and "Ain't It A Pity and A Shame" are two of the best, and Laine's easy grasp of any type song is superb.

The Four Lads are a Toronto group who began singing together when they met during rehearsals for their cathedral choir. Discovered by Orlando Wilson of the Golden Gate quartet, they came to New York and were an immediate smash. They backed Johnnie Ray on "Cry" and "Little White Cloud" and toured with him for months.

Arthur Fiedler and that splendid Boston Pops orchestra do an engaging job on RCA's LM 1985 "Picnic," a collection of tunes that range from the familiar "Malaguena" and "Jalousie" to "The Waltzing Cat."

Fiedler dresses up some of his old favorites with a new harmonic setting, providing some subtlty, delightful music that will provide hours of enjoyment.

HELP WANTED
MALE
Experienced mechanical design draftsman to work for

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Journal
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 181,704

JUN 17 1956

Two Top Orchestras To Swap Conductors

New York — (UP) — Next season, the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Boston Symphony will swap conductors for two concerts.

Eugene Ormandy, music director of the Philadelphians, will conduct the Bostonians twice in Boston, while Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, will be in Philadelphia conducting the Philadelphians.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

JUN 17 1956

SANG AT POPS

Maynard—Edward D. D'Amico son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. D'Amico of 16 Crane street, was a member of the New England Conservatory Chorus when it sang at the Boston Pops Concert Saturday, June 9. The second Saturday night in June has been New England Conservatory night at Pops since 1930 when Mr. Feidler became Pops conductor

Mr. D'Amico is a Bass. He has just completed his Freshman year at the New England Conservatory, where he is majoring in Music Education.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 374,544

JUN 17 1956

YANKS IN MOSCOW

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, one of the world's greatest musical organizations, has accepted an offer to go to Russia to display its wares.

The orchestra, under the direction of Charles Munch, is scheduled to give concerts in both Leningrad and Moscow.

RECORD HEAT—The man...

Herb Ficklen in the Dallas News

Histadrut Pops Night

The Mattapan-Dorchester-Roxbury Zionist district is planning to conclude its current year's activities with a banquet Wednesday evening at the Chateau Garod, Brookline.

A reward luncheon will be held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Joseph Grossman, 86 Monroe st., Quincy, for members of the Jewish Women's Health Association who have met the "$50 challenge," the sum required in new solicitations for the program book to be distributed at the luncheon in November.

The 28th annual "Israel Night at Pops" sponsored by the Israel Histadrut Campaign will be held Thursday evening, at Symphony Hall.

Richard Tucker, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will sing a special program of operatic arias and Hebrew and Yiddish folk songs. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra in a special musical salute to the state of Israel on its eighth year of independence.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 111,372

JUN 17 1956

...illiams will be played.

BOSTON POPS WILL PLAY '1812 OVERTURE'

Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture" will be a highlight of the Boston Pops Orchestra concert directed by Arthur Fiedler tomorrow (NBC Radio, 8.15-9 p. m., EDT). Other selections are the "Triumphal March" from Verdi's "Aida," the overture to "La Belle Helene" by Offenbach, and Anderson's "Serenata."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,628

JUN 1...

MUNCH HONORED BY 4 COLLEGES

Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestr... is amo... most honored men in music. He is the recipient of honorary degrees from Tufts University, Boston College, Harvard and B. U.

Dr. Munch is back in Paris, but will return in two weeks to open the 14th season of the Berkshire Music Center.

BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613

JUN 16 1956

False Teaching Methods Scored By Archbishop

Prelate Speaks At B.C. Commencement Exercises

Nearly 1300 graduates of the various schools of Boston College were congratulated last Wednesday by Archbishop Cushing during the 80th commencement exercises at the Heights. The Archbishop who presided over the 80th graduation event and shared the speakers' platform with Senator John Kennedy, told the graduates that theirs was a "really integrated" education that gave God and religion a proper place.

"Your education has been really perfected," the Archbishop said, "because without neglect of proficiency in human learning, it has revealed to you the glory of the Deity, the Alpha and Omega of all."

Scoring educative processes in "too many institutions of pseudo-pedagogy," the Archbishop lashed out at systems "based on a naturalistic or materialistic presumption that the student is all organism and without a spiritual and immortal soul."

He marked as "disastrous to any educational program" blocs set up that would "shut students off from the distinctively human factor in human personality—the soul. You have a training that keeps faith with the rights of education to develop the entire person physically, mentally, spiritually, morally, in references to its duties to self, to society, and to God."

NATIONAL NEED

The country needs citizens of the type graduated by Boston College, the Archbishop continued, because church-educated students learn "fidelity, respect for justice, devotion to charity, knowledge of the sanctity of every human person, recognition of the function of authority and its laws, and the sound American principle that liberty to be kept free must be kept under control . . . You have the knowledge and, we pray, the courage to be different from the millions who have divided themselves from the Americanism of our Founding Fathers by their failure to believe, to worship, and to obey. All of these contributions to the strength and grandeur of our country you are eminently fitted to make."

Commencement exercises for 1258 graduates took place at Alumni Field, Chestnut Hill, June 13. The principal speaker was Senator Kennedy, who was also awarded an honorary doctorate of laws. Others receiving the honorary degrees were Bishop Frederick Donaghy of Wuchow, China; attorney Bartholomew Brickley of Boston; financier Edward Williams; Charles Munch of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Dr. Peter Debye, Nobel prize-winning chemist; and John W. King, general manager of the Bowen Construction Co.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,628

JUN 16 1956

...er Bodge, left, WNAC ...sic librarian, checks ar... ...gements for Tuesday's ...s with conductor Arthur ...dler. Bodge conducts, at ...dler's request, part of pro... ...m that night for WNAC-...AC-TV staffers and ...nds in audience.

HELP WANTED
MALE
Experienced mechanical design draftsman to work for

WICHITA FALLS
DAILY TIMES
JUN 17 1956

Spinning The Disks

With Bob Herdien

Turning away from jazz for a week, let's look at Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Scheherazade" as presented by Morton Gould on RCA Victor's LM-1956. Inspired by the classic Arabian Nights, most readers need little introduction to this masterpiece of Rimsky-Korsakoff.

Like Scheherzade herself, he loves to tell a story, and paints this one with this rich, sensuous music. It's an exciting symphonic journey into the mysterious East with all the vivid color and dynamics of Rimsky-Korsakoff's work done by Gould.

RCA has used the latest in recording techniques to capture the magic of this familiar theme, and it's something you'll enjoy hearing.

RCA's LPM-1248 features the brilliant Harry Belafonte on a 10-tune calypso offering that offers moods ranging from brassy gaiety to wistful sadness.

"Man Smart, Woman Smarter" is one of the West Indian tunes familiar to many, and the versatile Belafonte turns in an excellent job on it. Another favorite is "Day O," based on the traditional work songs of the gangs who load the banana boats in Trinidad harbor.

Backing up Belafonte is Tony Scott and his band, along with Millard Thomas on guitar.

Frankie Laine does something different on Columbia's CL 861, when he moves in with the Four Lads for an album of new and fascinating spirituals derived from the fine, old field songs of a century past.

"Didn't He Moan" and "Ain't It A Pity and A Shame" are two of the best, and Laine's easy grasp of any type song is superb.

The Four Lads are a Toronto group who began singing together when they met during rehearsals for their cathedral choir. Discovered by Orlando Wilson of the Golden Gate quartet, they came to New York and were an immediate smash. They backed Johnnie Ray on "Cry" and "Little White Cloud" and toured with him for months.

Arthur Fiedler and that splendid Boston Pops orchestra do an engaging job on RCA's LM 1985 "Picnic," a collection of tunes that range from the familiar "Malaguena" and "Jalousie" to "The Waltzing Cat."

Fiedler dresses up some of his old favorites with a new harmonic setting, providing some subtlty, delightful music that will provide hours of enjoyment.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Journal
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 181,704

JUN 17 1956

Two Top Orchestras To Swap Conductors

New York — (UP) — Next season, the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Boston Symphony will swap conductors for two concerts.

Eugene Ormandy, music director of the Philadelphians, will conduct the Bostonians twice in Boston, while Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, will be in Philadelphia conducting the Philadelphians.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

JUN 17 1956

SANG AT POPS

Maynard—Edward D. D'Amico son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. D'Amico of 16 Crane street, was a member of the New England Conservatory Chorus when it sang at the Boston Pops Concert Saturday, June 9. The second Saturday night in June has been New England Conservatory night at Pops since 1930 when Mr. Feidler became Pops conductor

Mr. D'Amico is a Bass. He has just completed his Freshman year at the New England Conservatory, where he is majoring in Music Education.

JUN 18 1956

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 374,544

JUN 17 1956

YANKS IN MOSCOW

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, one of the world's greatest musical organizations, has accepted an offer to go to Russia to display its wares.

The orchestra, under the direction of Charles Munch, is scheduled to give concerts in both Leningrad and Moscow.

Herb Ficklen in the Dallas News

Histadrut Pops Night

The Mattapan-Dorchester-Roxbury Zionist district is planning to conclude its current year's activities with a banquet Wednesday evening at the Chateau Garod, Brookline.

A reward luncheon will be held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Joseph Grossman, 86 Monroe st., Quincy, for members of the Jewish Women's Health Association who have met the "$50 challenge," the sum required in new solicitations for the program book to be distributed at the luncheon in November.

The 28th annual "Israel Night at Pops" sponsored by the Israel Histadrut Campaign will be held Thursday evening, at Symphony Hall.

Richard Tucker, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will sing a special program of operatic arias and Hebrew and Yiddish folk songs. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra in a special musical salute to the state of Israel on its eighth year of independence.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,628

JU

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 111,372

JUN 17 1956

BOSTON POPS WILL PLAY '1812 OVERTURE'

Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture" will be a highlight of the Boston Pops Orchestra concert directed by Arthur Fiedler tomorrow (NBC Radio, 8.15-9 p. m., EDT). Other selections are the "Triumphal March" from Verdi's "Aida," the overture to "La Belle Helene" by Offenbach, and Anderson's "Serenata."

MUNCH HONORED BY 4 COLLEGES

Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is among the most honored men in music. He is the recipient of honorary degrees from Tufts University, Boston College, Harvard and B. U.

Dr. Munch is back in Paris, but will return in two weeks to open the 14th season of the Berkshire Music Center.

Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,613

JUN 16 1956

False Teaching Methods Scored By Archbishop

Prelate Speaks At B.C. Commencement Exercises

Nearly 1300 graduates of the various schools of Boston College were congratulated last Wednesday by Archbishop Cushing during the 80th commencement exercises at the Heights. The Archbishop who presided over the 80th graduation event and shared the speakers' platform with Senator John Kennedy, told the graduates that theirs was a "really integrated" education that gave God and religion a proper place.

"Your education has been really perfected," the Archbishop said, "because without neglect of proficiency in human learning, it has revealed to you the glory of the Deity, the Alpha and Omega of all."

Scoring educative processes in "too many institutions of pseudo-pedagogy," the Archbishop lashed out at systems "based on a naturalistic or materialistic presumption that the student is all organism and without a spiritual and immortal soul."

He marked as "disastrous to any educational program" blocs set up that would "shut students off from the distinctively human factor in human personality—the soul. You have a training that keeps faith with the rights of education to develop the entire person physically, mentally, spiritually, morally, in references to its duties to self, to society, and to God."

NATIONAL NEED

The country needs citizens of the type graduated by Boston College, the Archbishop continued, because church-educated students learn "fidelity, respect for justice, devotion to charity, knowledge of the sanctity of every human person, recognition of the function of authority and its laws, and the sound American principle that liberty to be kept free must be kept under control . . . You have the knowledge and, we pray, the courage to be different from the millions who have divided themselves from the Americanism of our Founding Fathers by their failure to believe, to worship, and to obey. All of these contributions to the strength and grandeur of our country you are eminently fitted to make."

Commencement exercises for 1258 graduates took place at Alumni Field, Chestnut Hill, June 13. The principal speaker was Senator Kennedy, who was also awarded an honorary doctorate of laws. Others receiving the honorary degrees were Bishop Frederick Donaghy of Wuchow, China; attorney Bartholomew Brickley of Boston; financier Edward Williams; Charles Munch of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Dr. Peter Debye, Nobel prize-winning chemist; and John W. King, general manager of the Bowen Construction Co.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,628

JUN 16 1956

Peter Bodge, left, WNAC music librarian, checks arrangements for Tuesday's Pops with conductor Arthur Fiedler. Bodge conducts, at Fiedler's request, part of program that night for WNAC-WNAC-TV staffers and friends in audience.

WICHITA FALLS TEX.
DAILY TIMES

JUN 17 1956

Spinning The Disks

With Bob Herdien

Turning away from jazz for a week, let's look at Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Scheherazade" as presented by Morton Gould on RCA Victor's LM-1956. Inspired by the classic Arabian Nights, most readers need little introduction to this masterpiece of Rimsky-Korsakoff.

Like Scheherzade herself, he loves to tell a story, and paints this one with this rich, sensuous music. It's an exciting symphonic journey into the mysterious East with all the vivid color and dynamics of Rimsky-Korsakoff's work done by Gould.

RCA has used the latest in recording techniques to capture the magic of this familiar theme, and it's something you'll enjoy hearing.

RCA's LPM-1248 features the brilliant Harry Belafonte on a 10-tune calypso offering that offers moods ranging from brassy gaiety to wistful sadness.

"Man Smart, Woman Smarter" is one of the West Indian tunes familiar to many, and the versatile Belafonte turns in an excellent job on it. Another favorite is "Day O," based on the traditional work songs of the gangs who load the banana boats in Trinidad harbor.

Backing up Belafonte is Tony Scott and his band, along with Millard Thomas on guitar.

Frankie Laine does something different on Columbia's CL 861, when he moves in with the Four Lads for an album of new and fascinating spirituals derived from the fine, old field songs of a century past.

"Didn't He Moan" and "Ain't It A Pity and A Shame" are two of the best, and Laine's easy grasp of any type song is superb.

The Four Lads are a Toronto group who began singing together when they met during rehearsals for their cathedral choir. Discovered by Orlando Wilson of the Golden Gate quartet, they came to New York and were an immediate smash. They backed Johnnie Ray on "Cry" and "Little White Cloud" and toured with him for months.

Arthur Fiedler and that splendid Boston Pops orchestra do an engaging job on RCA's LM 1985 "Picnic," a collection of tunes that range from the familiar "Malaguena" and "Jalousie" to "The Waltzing Cat."

Fiedler dresses up some of his old favorites with a new harmonic setting, providing some subtlty, delightful music that will provide hours of enjoyment.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Enterprise (e)
MARLBORO, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 5.165

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Sun (e)
HUDSON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 2,085

JUN 18 1956

SANG AT POPS

Maynard—Edward D. D'Amico son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. D'Amico of 16 Crane street, was a member of the New England Conservatory Chorus when it sang at the Boston Pops Concert Saturday, June 9. The second Saturday night in June has been New England Conservatory night at Pops since 1930 when Mr. Feidler became Pops conductor

Mr. D'Amico is a Bass. He has just completed his Freshman year at the New England Conservatory, where he is majoring in Music Education.

Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 374,544

JUN 17 1956

Histadrut Pops Night

The Mattapan-Dorchester-Roxbury Zionist district is planning to conclude its current year's activities with a banquet Wednesday evening at the Chateau Garod, Brookline.

A reward luncheon will be held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Joseph Grossman, 86 Monroe st., Quincy, for members of the Jewish Women's Health Association who have met the "$50 challenge," the sum required in new solicitations for the program book to be distributed at the luncheon in November.

The 28th annual "Israel Night at Pops" sponsored by the Israel Histadrut Campaign will be held Thursday evening, at Symphony Hall.

Richard Tucker, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will sing a special program of operatic arias and Hebrew and Yiddish folk songs. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra in a special musical salute to the state of Israel on its eighth year of independence.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Journal
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 181,704

JUN 17 1956

Two Top Orchestras To Swap Conductors

New York — (UP) — Next season, the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Boston Symphony will swap conductors for two concerts.

Eugene Ormandy, music director of the Philadelphians, will conduct the Bostonians wice in Boston, while Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, will be in Philadelphia conducting the Philadelphians.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

JUN 17 1956

YANKS IN MOSCOW—The Boston Symphony Orchestra, one of the world's greatest musical organizations, has accepted an offer to go to Russia to display its wares.

The orchestra, under the direction of Charles Munch, is scheduled to give concerts in both Leningrad and Moscow.

Herb Fickien in the Dallas News

RECORD HEAT—The may

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 111,372

JUN 17 1956

Williams will be played.

BOSTON POPS WILL PLAY '1812 OVERTURE'

Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture" will be a highlight of the Boston Pops Orchestra concert directed by Arthur Fiedler tomorrow (NBC Radio, 8.15-9 p. m., EDT). Other selections are the "Triumphal March" from Verdi's "Aida," the overture to "La Belle Helene" by Offenbach, and Anderson's "Serenata."

LET-EMPHILE'S MUSIC

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,628

JUN 1

MUNCH HONORED BY 4 COLLEGES

Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is among the most honored men in music. He is the recipient of honorary degrees from Tufts University, Boston College, Harvard and B. U.

Dr. Munch is back in Paris, but will return in two weeks to open the 14th season of the Berkshire Music Center.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749
JUN 18 1956

RALEIGH, N. C.
TIMES
Circ. D. 15,179
JUN 18 1956
BEAUMONT, TEX.
JOURNAL
Circ. D. 25,079
JUN 18 1956
RALEIGH, N. C.
NEWS & OBSERVER
Circ. D. 129,607

Aircast

Pops Soloist

BERNARD KRITZMAN will be soloist tonight at the Boston Pops in Tchaikovsky's Piano Concerto in B-flat Minor.

What's To Farce

TELEVISION

AN amusing farce about a beautiful young sorceress, a vain ex-suitor turned into a peacock, and a nice young man from Boston, is refreshing light entertainment to be offered on Studio One tonight. —8 p. m., Channels 11, 10.

Other program highlights:

ELAINE MALBIN, soprano, will be soloist on Voice of Firestone.—6:30 p. m., Channel 13. (Also Radio KFDM, 7:30 p. m.)

"The Soldier Room," the drama of a man who is a borderline psychotic, will be seen on Robert Montgomery Presents.—7:30 p. m., Channels 2, 9.

The story of a Brooklyn tenement boy who wins a horse in a contest and is determined to keep it in spite of obvious handicaps is "Lone Rider of Brooklyn," on Your Star Showcase.—7:30 p. m., Channel 7.

TENNESSEE ERNIE, talkative character from Hoehandle, Tenn., arrives to visit his "cousins," the Ricardos, on I Love Lucy.—8 p. m., Channel 6. (Also Channel 11, 7 p. m.)

Lily Ruskin (Spring Byington) has to elude an elderly wolf (Charles Coburn) when she takes a job as his secretary, on December Bride.—8:30 p. m., Channel 6.

Ronnie, Grace and George's son, in pursuit of the proper atmosphere to further his acting career, moves from their hotel suite to a Greenwich Village apartment, and Gracie, concerned, disguises herself in a wig to check on her offspring, on the Burns and Allen Show.—9 p. m., Channels 11, 25.

The "Music Publishers' Racket" will be revealed by Paul Coates on Confidential File.—10 p. m., Channel 11.

PETER LORRE stars as a police inspector who clears up a murder and the theft of a fabulous oil painting, in "The Blue Landscape," on The Star and the Story.—10 p. m., Channels 2, 9.

Behind-the-scenes action at the State Fair Musicals in Dallas will be featured on Texas in Review. Viewers also will see scenes of the rifle shooting match at San Angelo.—10 p. m., Channel 6.

RADIO

Tchaikowsky's "1812 Overture" will be played by the Boston Pops Orchestra tonight.—7:15 p. m., KPRC.

Michael Rabin, violinist, guest soloist this season with the Beaumont Symphony, will be heard on the Telephone Hour.—8 p. m., KPRC.

Dr. Howard Hanson will conduct the Eastman-Rochester Symphony in a performance of his own "Fantasy Variations on a Theme of Youth," on Contrasts in Music.—8:30 p. m., KPRC.

MALBIN

Deidre Owens. A man feel- ld retreats to playing with f the respect and attention s deserved. (WTVD-WITN).

STUDIO ONE is a farce ut very unhappy sorceress. aking men miserable (as she wants to fall in' love.

10:00 p.m.—Sid Caesar and his Commuters present their last show of the season. (WTVD-WITN-WFLB).

CHAMPAIGN, ILL.
NEWS-GAZETTE
Circ. D. 28,381 - S. 28,934
JUN 19 1956

Local Women To Attend Kappa Kappa Gamma's 41st Convention; Mrs. Carl Dohme Is Alumnae Delegate

Mrs. Carl G. Dohme, 31 Greencroft, who is the delegate of the Champaign-Urbana Alumnae Assn., will leave Wednesday to attend the 41st biennial convention of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority to be held in the New Ocean House, Swampscott, Mass., June 21-29.

Attending the convention with Mrs. Dohme are Mrs. L. T. Gregory, 1312 S. Race, Urbana, visitor, and Mrs. Grace Welsh, 405 E. John, visitor. These women are also representing the alumnae group. Mrs. Dohme, Mrs. Gregory, and Mrs. Welsh will be among the representatives from 316 alumnae groups in the United States, Canada, Hawaii, and the British Isles, who will attend the convention in addition to delegates from the 85 chapters of the sorority in colleges throughout the United States and Canada. Representing the active chapter at the University of Illinois are: Miss Barbara Dixon, Western Springs, junior delegate; Miss Eleanor Pelm, Oak Park, senior delegate; and Miss Adlon Dohme, Champaign, sophomore visitor.

Many outstanding speakers will be featured on the program including Dr. Howard Rusk of the New York University-Bellevue Medical Center; Judge Frank Myers, associate judge of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia; Dr. E. Merrill Root, poet, author, and professor of English at Earlham University, Richmond, Ind.; Nora Waln, author and a member of the sorority; and Dr. Chung-Hi Oh, a Korean physician who is studying in New York on a two year fellowship given by Kappa Kappa Gamma through the American-Korean Foundation. Dr. Oh's award is one of 50 scholarships and fellowships given annually by the sorority.

Saturday, June 23, the entire convention will attend the Boston Pops Symphony concert. Sunday afternoon, June 24, a boat trip to Gloucester has been planned by Bay area Alumnae.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
JUN 20 1956

Music and Musicians

New 'Salute' To Air Force For the Pops

Air Force Reserve Night at the Pops will be held Monday evening in Symphony Hall. A special feature of the program will be the première of "Salute to the Air Force Reserve," composed by Lt. Col. Malloy Miller, who will conduct.

Maj. Gen. [illegible] Browne, Commander of First Air Force, and Col. [illegible] Jr., Commandant of the [illegible] Air Reserve Center will be among the guests. Air reservists who wish to attend may obtain tickets by calling Capt. Stuart C. Taylor at the Boston Air Reserve Center.

Gieseking's Return

The latest booking in the series of concerts, to be sponsored by Boston University next season, is the Symphony Hall recital by Walter Gieseking. This recital is scheduled for Friday evening, Feb. 8. The pianist, who will return to the United States for his third consecutive tour in mid-January, will again play with many leading orchestras, including the New York Philharmonic - Symphony and the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,628
JUN 19 1956

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 184,973
JUN 20 1956

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
News (e)
ATHOL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 4,556
JUN 19 1956

Tucker Sings for the Pops

This is the last fortnight of the 1956 season of Boston Pops concerts conducted by Arthur Fiedler in Symphony Hall. On Thursday the entire house has been taken by the Israel Histadrut Committee, and the soloist will be the distinguished tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, Richard Tucker.

Leo Litwin will play Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" tonight. E. Power Biggs will play Handel's Organ Concerto in D Minor on Wednesday; Berj Zamkochian will play Dupre's "Poeme Heroique" for Organ, Brass and Drums on Friday; and Shirley Merrill will play the first movement from the Grieg Piano Concerto in A Minor on Saturday.

Harry Ellis Dickson will conduct Saturday evening. Rouben Gregorian will conduct Friday.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 185,401
JUN 19 1956

Pops in Final Fortnight

Only next week and the rest of this week remain in the 1956 season of Boston Pops concerts, conducted by Arthur Fiedler in Symphony Hall.

The entire house has been taken by the Israel Histadrut Committee for tomorrow night when the soloist will be the Metropolitan Opera's distinguished tenor Richard Tucker.

E. Power Biggs will play Handel's Organ Concerto in D Minor tonight. On Friday night Berj Zamkochian will play Dupre's "Poeme Heroique" for Organ, Brass and Drums.

Shirley Merrill will be the soloist Saturday night, playing the first movement from the Grieg Piano Concerto in A Minor. Harry Ellis Dickson will conduct Saturday night and Rouben Gregorian will conduct on Friday evening.

OHS Band On Trip To Nantasket

One hundred-one Orange High School band members and Malcolm Hall, director of music in Orange schools left in three buses for Boston this morning. At 10:30 a.m. they will go, by boat, to Nantasket Beach to spend most of the day and at 4:30 they will have a banquet in the American House at Nantasket.

The group will leave Nantasket at 6:30 to return to Boston where they will attend the Boston Pops Concert in Symphony Hall. They will be joined at the Concert by the Medford High School Band and Ralph Schoonmaher. The two bands have reserved an entire section of the balcony Horseshoe.

Chaperones for the event are: Miss Ellyan Musgrove, Miss Barbara Crosby, Miss Patricia Ryan, and Frank Dodge.

On The Air

The Boston Pops Orchestra, conducted by Arthur Fiedler, will play the following compositions over Radio WPTF tonight at 8:15 o'clock: Triumphal March from "Aida," by Verdi; Overture to "La Bella Helene," Offenbach; Serenata, Anderson; and 1812 Overture, Tchaikovsky.

SELMA, ALA.
TIMES-JOURNAL
Circ. D. 10,033 - S. 10,033
JUN 20 1956

Boston Pops Picnic — Full-blown sound, immaculate [illegible] playing, and variety [illegible] make this collection [illegible] overtures, and [illegible] waltzes, one of the most attractive sets to come from the Boston Pops Orchestra under Arthur Fiedler (RCA-Victor LM-1995, one 12" LP record). Hi-fi enthusiasts will discover many delights in the superior engineering that RCA-Victor demonstrates in this Boston Pops release. Contents: "Pops Polka" and "Enchanted Sea" (Mason), "The Waltzing Cat" (Anderson), "Jalousie" (Gade), "Danube Waves" (Ivanovici), "Malaguena" (Lecuona), "Village Swallows Waltz" (Strauss), "In a Persian Market" (Katelby), and "Poet and Peasant Overture" (von Suppe).

Air Reservists at Pops

Air Force Reserve Night at Boston Pops will be celebrated on Monday, June 25.

A special feature will be a musical number, "Salute to the Air Force Reserve," composed by Lt. Col. Malloy Miller. This piece will be played for the first time that tevening and Lt. Col. Miller will conduct.

Maj. Gen. Roger J. Browne, commander of First Air Force, and Col. Thomas Badger, Jr., commandant of the Boston Air Reserve Center, will be among the guests.

Air Reservists who wish to attend may obtain tickets by calling Capt. Stuart C. Taylor at the Boston Air Reserve Center.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

JUN 18 1956

RALEIGH, N. C.
TIMES
Circ. D. 15,179

JUN

BEAUMONT, TEX.
JOURNAL
Circ. D. 25,079
JUN 18 1956

RALEIGH, N. C.
NEWS & OBSERVER
Circ. D. 129,607

Aircast

What's e To Farce

Pops Soloist

BERNARD KRITZMAN will be soloist tonight at the Boston Pops in Tchaikovsky's Piano Concerto in B-flat Minor.

TELEVISION

AN amusing farce about a beautiful young sorceress, a vain ex-suitor turned into a peacock, and a nice young man from Boston, is refreshing light entertainment to be offered on Studio One tonight. —8 p. m., Channels 11, 10.

Other program highlights:

ELAINE MALBIN, soprano, will be soloist on Voice of Firestone.—6:30 p. m., Channel 13. (Also Radio KFDM, 7:30 p. m.)

"The Soldier Room," the drama of a man who is a borderline psychotic, will be seen on Robert Montgomery Presents.—7:30 p. m., Channels 2, 9.

The story of a Brooklyn tenement boy who wins a horse in a contest and is determined to keep it in spite of obvious handicaps is "Lone Rider of Brooklyn," on Your Star Showcase.—7:30 p. m., Channel 7.

TENNESSEE ERNIE, talkative character from Hoehandle, Tenn., arrives to visit his "cousins," the Ricardos, on I Love Lucy.—8 p. m., Channel 6. (Also Channel 11, 7 p. m.)

Lily Ruskin (Spring Byington) has to elude an elderly wolf (Charles Coburn) when she takes a job as his secretary, on December Bride.—8:30 p. m., Channel 6.

Ronnie, Grace and George's son, in pursuit of the proper atmosphere to further his acting career, moves from their hotel suite to a Greenwich Village apartment, and Gracie, concerned, disguises herself in a wig to check on her offspring, on the Burns and Allen Show.—9 p. m., Channels 11, 25.

The "Music Publishers' Racket" will be revealed by Paul Coates on Confidential File.—10 p. m., Channel 11.

PETER LORRE stars as a police inspector who clears up a murder and the theft of a fabulous oil painting, in "The Blue Landscape," on The Star and the Story.—10 p. m., Channels 2, 9.

Behind-the-scenes action at the State Fair Musicals in Dallas will be featured on Texas in Review. Viewers also will see scenes of the rifle shooting match at San Angelo.—10 p. m., Channel 6.

RADIO

Tchaikowsky's "1812 Overture" will be played by the Boston Pops Orchestra tonight.—7:15 p. m., KPRC.

Michael Rabin, violinist, guest soloist this season with the Beaumont Symphony, will be heard on the Telephone Hour.—8 p. m., KPRC.

Dr. Howard Hanson will conduct the Eastman-Rochester Symphony in a performance of his own "Fantasy Variations on a Theme of Youth," on Contrasts in Music.—8:30 p. m., KPRC.

MALBIN

Deidre Owens. A man feel- ld retreats to playing with f the respect and attention s deserved. (WTVD-WITN).

STUDIO ONE is a farce ut very unhappy sorceress. aking men miserable (as she wants to fall in love.

10:00 p.m.—Sid Caesar and his Commuters present their last show of the season. (WTVD-WITN-WFLB).

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,628

JUN 19 1956

CHAMPAIGN, ILL.
NEWS-GAZETTE
Circ. D. 28,381 - S. 28,934

JUN 19 1956

109

Local Women To Attend Kappa Kappa Gamma's 41st Convention; Mrs. Carl Dohme Is Alumnae Delegate

Mrs. Carl G. Dohme, 31 Greencroft, who is the delegate of the Champaign-Urbana Alumnae Assn., will leave Wednesday to attend the 41st biennial convention of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority to be held in the New Ocean House, Swampscott, Mass., June 21-29.

Attending the convention with Mrs. Dohme are Mrs. L. T. Gregory, 1312 S. Race, Urbana, visitor, and Mrs. Grace Welsh, 405 E. John, visitor. These women are also representing the alumnae group. Mrs. Dohme, Mrs. Gregory, and Mrs. Welsh will be among the representatives from 316 alumnae groups in the United States, Canada, Hawaii, and the British Isles, who will attend the convention in addition to delegates from the 85 chapters of the sorority in colleges throughout the United States and Canada. Representing the active chapter at the University of Illinois are: Miss Barbara Dixon, Western Springs, junior delegate; Miss Eleanor Pelm, Oak Park, senior delegate; and Miss Adlon Dohme, Champaign, sophomore visitor.

Many outstanding speakers will be featured on the program including Dr. Howard Rusk of the New York University-Bellevue Medical Center; Judge Frank Myers, associate judge of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia; Dr. E. Merrill Root, poet, author, and professor of English at Earlham University, Richmond, Ind.; Nora Waln, author and a member of the sorority; and Dr. Chung-Hi Oh, a Korean physician who is studying in New York on a two year fellowship given by Kappa Kappa Gamma through the American-Korean Foundation. Dr. Oh's award is one of 50 scholarships and fellowships given annually by the sorority.

Saturday, June 23, the entire convention will attend the Boston Pops Symphony concert. Sunday afternoon, June 24, a boat trip to Gloucester has been planned by Bay area Alumnae.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 20 1956

Music and Musicians

New 'Salute' To Air Force For the Pops

Air Force Reserve Night at the Pops will be held Monday evening in Symphony Hall. A special feature of the program will be the première of "Salute to the Air Force Reserve," composed by Lt. Col. Mallory Miller, who will conduct.

Maj. Gen. Roger J. Browne, Commander of First Air Force, and Col. Thomas Badger, Jr., Commandant of the Boston Air Reserve Center, will be among the guests. Air reservists who wish to attend may obtain tickets by calling Capt. Stuart C. Taylor at the Boston Air Reserve Center.

Gieseking's Return

The latest booking in the series of concerts, to be sponsored by Boston University next season, is the Symphony Hall recital by Walter Gieseking. This recital is scheduled for Friday evening, Feb. 8. The pianist, who will return to the United States for his third consecutive tour in mid-January, will again play with many leading orchestras, including the New York Philharmonic - Symphony and the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 184,973

JUN 20 1956

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
ATHOL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 4,556

JUN 19 1956

Tucker Sings for the Pops

This is the last fortnight of the 1956 season of Boston Pops concerts conducted by Arthur Fiedler in Symphony Hall. On Thursday the entire house has been taken by the Israel Histadrut Committee, and the soloist will be the distinguished tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, Richard Tucker.

Leo Litwin will play Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" tonight. E. Power Biggs will play Handel's Organ Concerto in D Minor on Wednesday; Berj Zamkochian will play Dupre's "Poeme Heroique" for Organ, Brass and Drums on Friday; and Shirley Merrill will play the first movement from the Grieg Piano Concerto in A Minor on Saturday.

Harry Ellis Dickson will conduct Saturday evening. Rouben Gregorian will conduct Friday.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 185,401

JUN 19 1956

Air Reservists at Pops

Air Force Reservists at Boston Pops will be celebrated on Monday, June 25.

A special feature will be a premiere number, "Salute to the Air Force Reserve," composed by Lt. Col. Mallory Miller. This piece will be played for the first time that evening and Lt. Col. Miller will conduct.

Maj. Gen. Roger J. Browne, commander of First Air Force, and Col. Thomas Badger, Jr., commandant of the Boston Air Reserve Center, will be among the guests.

Air Reservists who wish to attend may obtain tickets by calling Capt. Stuart C. Taylor at the Boston Air Reserve Center.

OHS Band On Trip To Nantasket

One hundred-one Orange High School band members and Malcolm Hall, director of music in Orange schools left in three buses for Boston this morning. At 10:30 a.m. they will go, by boat, to Nantasket Beach to spend most of the day and at 4:30 they will have a banquet in the American House at Nantasket.

The group will leave Nantasket at 6:30 to return to Boston where they will attend the Boston Pops Concert in Symphony Hall. They will be joined at the Concert by the Medford High School Band and Ralph Schoonmaher. The two bands have reserved an entire section of the balcony Horseshoe.

Chaperones for the event are: Miss Ellyan Musgrove, Miss Barbara Crosby, Miss Patricia Ryan, and Frank Dodge.

Pops in Final Fortnight

Only next week and the rest of this week remain in the 1956 season of Boston Pops concerts, conducted by Arthur Fiedler in Symphony Hall.

The entire house has been taken by the Israel Histadrut Committee for tomorrow night when the soloist will be the Metropolitan Opera's distinguished tenor Richard Tucker.

E. Power Biggs will play Handel's Organ Concerto in D Minor tonight. On Friday night, Berj Zamkochian will play Dupre's "Poeme Heroique" for Organ, Brass and Drums.

Shirley Merrill will be the soloist Saturday Night, playing the first movement from the Grieg Piano Concerto in A Minor. Harry Ellis Dickson will conduct Saturday night and Rouben Gregorian will conduct on Friday evening.

On The Air.

The Boston Pops Orchestra, conducted by Arthur Fiedler, will play the following compositions over Radio WPTF tonight at 8:15 o'clock: Triumphal March from "Aida," by Verdi; Overture to "La Bella Helene," Offenbach; Serenata, Anderson; and 1812 Overture, Tchaikovsky.

SELMA, ALA.
TIMES-JOURNAL
Circ. D. 10,033 - S. 10,033

JUN 20 1956

Boston Pops Picini - Full-blown sound, immaculate orchestral playing, and variety of repertoire make this collection of marches, waltzes, overtures, and concert favorites one of the most attractive sets to come from the Boston Pops Orchestra under Arthur Fiedler (RCA-Victor LM-1935, one 12" LP record). Hi-fi enthusiasts will discover many delights in the superior engineering that RCA-Victor demonstrates in this Boston Pops release. Contents: "Pops Polka" and "Enchanted Sea" (Mason), "The Waltzing Cat" (Anderson), "Jalousie" (Gade), "Danube Waves" (Ivanovici), "Malaguena" (Lecuona), "Village Swallows Waltz" (Strauss), "In a Persian Market" (Katelby), and "Poet and Peasant Overture" (von Suppe).

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749
JUN 18 1956

Pops Soloist

BERNARD KRITZMAN will be soloist tonight at the Boston Pops in Tchaikovsky's Piano Concerto in B-flat Minor.

...ircast

ANTENNA TIME

Studio One To Present Farce

TELEVISION

AN amusing farce about a beautiful young sorceress, a vain ex-suitor turned into a peacock, and a nice young man from Boston, is refreshing light entertainment to be offered on Studio One tonight. —8 p. m., Channels 11, 10.

Other program highlights:

ELAINE MALBIN, soprano, will be soloist on Voice of Firestone.—6:30 p. m., Channel 13. (Also Radio KFDM, 7:30 p. m.)

"The Soldier Room," the drama of a man who is a borderline psychotic, will be seen on Robert Montgomery Presents.—7:30 p. m., Channels 2, 9.

The story of a Brooklyn tenement boy who wins a horse in a contest and is determined to keep it in spite of obvious handicaps is "Lone Rider of Brooklyn," on Your Star Showcase.—7:30 p. m., Channel 7.

TENNESSEE ERNIE, talkative character from Hoehandle, Tenn., arrives to visit his "cousins," the Ricardos, on I Love Lucy.—8 p. m., Channel 6. (Also Channel 11, 7 p. m.)

Lily Ruskin (Spring Byington) has to elude an elderly wolf (Charles Coburn) when she takes a job as his secretary, on December Bride.—8:30 p. m., Channel 6.

Ronnie, Grace and George's son, in pursuit of the proper atmosphere to further his acting career, moves from their hotel suite to a Greenwich Village apartment, and Gracie, concerned, disguises herself in a wig to check on her offspring, on the Burns and Allen Show.—9 p. m., Channels 11, 25.

The "Music Publishers' Racket" will be revealed by Paul Coates on Confidential File.—10 p. m., Channel 11.

PETER LORRE stars as a police inspector who clears up a murder and the theft of a fabulous oil painting, in "The Blue Landscape," on The Star and the Story.—10 p. m., Channels 2, 9.

Behind-the-scenes action at the State Fair Musicals in Dallas will be featured on Texas in Review. Viewers also will see scenes of the rifle shooting match at San Angelo.—10 p. m., Channel 6.

RADIO

Tchaikowsky's "1812 Overture" will be played by the Boston Pops Orchestra tonight.—7:15 p. m., KPRC.

Michael Rabin, violinist, guest soloist this season with the Beaumont Symphony, will be heard on the Telephone Hour.—8 p. m., KPRC.

Dr. Howard Hanson will conduct the Eastman-Rochester Symphony in a performance of his own "Fantasy Variations on a Theme of Youth," on Contrasts in Music.—8:30 p. m., KPRC.

MALBIN

...Deidre Owens. A man feel... ...d retreats to playing with ... the respect and attention ... deserved. (WTVD-WITN).

STUDIO ONE is a farce ...ut very unhappy sorceress. ...king men miserable (as ... she wants to fall in love.

10:00 p.m.—Sid Caesar and his Commuters present their last show of the season. (WTVD-WITN-WFLB).

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,628
JUN 19 1956

CHAMPAIGN, ILL.
NEWS-GAZETTE
Circ. D. 28,381 - S. 28,934
JUN 19 1956

109

Local Women To Attend Kappa Kappa Gamma's 41st Convention; Mrs. Carl Dohme Is Alumnae Delegate

Mrs. Carl G. Dohme, 31 Greencroft, who is the delegate of the Champaign-Urbana Alumnae Assn., will leave Wednesday to attend the 41st biennial convention of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority to be held in the New Ocean House, Swampscott, Mass., June 21-29.

Attending the convention with Mrs. Dohme are Mrs. L. T. Gregory, 1312 S. Race, Urbana, visitor, and Mrs. Grace Welsh, 405 E. John, visitor. These women are also representing the alumnae group. Mrs. Dohme, Mrs. Gregory, and Mrs. Welsh will be among the representatives from 316 alumnae groups in the United States, Canada, Hawaii, and the British Isles, who will attend the convention in addition to delegates from the 85 chapters of the sorority in colleges throughout the United States and Canada. Representing the active chapter at the University of Illinois are: Miss Barbara Dixon, Western Springs, junior delegate; Miss Eleanor Pelm, Oak Park, senior delegate; and Miss Adlon Dohme, Champaign, sophomore visitor.

Many outstanding speakers will be featured on the program including Dr. Howard Rusk of the New York University-Bellevue Medical Center; Judge Frank Myers, associate judge of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia; Dr. E. Merrill Root, poet, author, and professor of English at Earlham University, Richmond, Ind.; Nora Waln, author and a member of the sorority; and Dr. Chung-Hi Oh, a Korean physician who is studying in New York on a two year fellowship given by Kappa Kappa Gamma through the American-Korean Foundation. Dr. Oh's award is one of 50 scholarships and fellowships given annually by the sorority.

Saturday, June 23, the entire convention will attend the Boston Pops Symphony concert. Sunday afternoon, June 24, a boat trip to Gloucester has been planned by Bay area Alumnae.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
JUN 20 1956

Music and Musicians

New 'Salute' To Air Force For the Pops

Air Force Reserve Night at the Pops will be held Monday evening in Symphony Hall. A special feature of the program will be the première of "Salute to the Air Force Reserve," composed by Lt. Col. Malloy Miller, who will conduct.

Maj. Gen. Roger J. Browne, Commander of First Air Force, and Col. Thomas Badger, Jr., Commandant of the Boston Air Reserve Center, will be among the guests. Air reservists who wish to attend may obtain tickets by calling Capt. Stuart C. Taylor at the Boston Air Reserve Center.

Gieseking's Return

The latest booking in the series of concerts, to be sponsored by Boston University next season, is the Symphony Hall recital by Walter Gieseking. This recital is scheduled for Friday evening, Feb. 8. The pianist, who will return to the United States for his third consecutive tour in mid-January, will again play with many leading orchestras, including the New York Philharmonic - Symphony and the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 184,973
JUN 20 1956

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
News (e)
ATHOL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 4,556
JUN 19 1956

Tucker Sings for the Pops

This is the last fortnight of the 1956 season of Boston Pops concerts conducted by Arthur Fiedler in Symphony Hall. On Thursday the entire house has been taken by the Israel Histadrut Committee, and the soloist will be the distinguished tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, Richard Tucker.

Leo Litwin will play Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" tonight. E. Power Biggs will play Handel's Organ Concerto in D Minor on Wednesday; Berj Zamkochian will play Dupre's "Poeme Heroique" for Organ, Brass and Drums on Friday; and Shirley Merrill will play the first movement from the Grieg Piano Concerto in A Minor on Saturday.

Harry Ellis Dickson will conduct Saturday evening. Rouben Gregorian will conduct Friday.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 185,401
JUN 19 1956

Pops in Final Fortnight

Only next week and the rest of this week remain in the 1956 season of Boston Pops concerts, conducted by Arthur Fiedler in Symphony Hall.

The entire house has been taken by the Israel Histadrut Committee for tomorrow night when the soloist will be the Metropolitan Opera's distinguished tenor Richard Tucker.

E. Power Biggs will play Handel's Organ Concerto in D Minor tonight. On Friday night Berj Zamkochian will play Dupre's "Poeme Heroique" for Organ, Brass and Drums.

Shirley Merrill will be the soloist Saturday night, playing the first movement from the Grieg Piano Concerto in A Minor. Harry Ellis Dickson will conduct Saturday night and Rouben Gregorian will conduct on Friday evening.

OHS Band On Trip To Nantasket

One hundred-one Orange High School band members and Malcolm Hall, director of music in Orange schools left in three buses for Boston this morning. At 10:30 a.m. they will go, by boat, to Nantasket Beach to spend most of the day and at 4:30 they will have a banquet in the American House at Nantasket.

The group will leave Nantasket at 6:30 to return to Boston where they will attend the Boston Pops Concert in Symphony Hall. They will be joined at the Concert by the Medford High School Band and Ralph Schocamaher. The two bands have reserved an entire section of the balcony Horseshoe.

Chaperones for the event are: Miss Ellyan Musgrove, Miss Barbara Crosby, Miss Patricia Ryan, and Frank Dodge.

Air Reservists at Pops

Air Force Reserve Night at Boston Pops will be celebrated on Monday, June 25.

A special feature will be a musical number, "Salute to the Air Force Reserve," composed by Lt. Col. Malloy Miller. This piece will be played for the first time that tevening and Lt. Col. Miller will conduct.

Maj. Gen. Roger J. Browne, commander of First Air Force, and Col. Thomas Badger, Jr., commandant of the Boston Air Reserve Center, will be among the guests.

Air Reservists who wish to attend may obtain tickets by calling Capt. Stuart C. Taylor at the Boston Air Reserve Center.

On The Air

The Boston Pops Orchestra, conducted by Arthur Fiedler, will play the following compositions over Radio WPTF tonight at 8:15 o'clock: Triumphal March from "Aida," by Verdi; Overture to "La Bella Helene," Offenbach; Serenata, Anderson; and 1812 Overture, Tchaikovsky.

SELMA, ALA.
TIMES-JOURNAL
Circ. D. 10,033 - S. 10,033
JUN 20 1956

Boston Pops Picnic - Full-blown sound, immaculate orchestral playing, and various [illegible] make this collection [illegible], waltzes, overtures, and [illegible] favorites one of the most attractive sets to come from the Boston Pops Orchestra under Arthur Fiedler (RCA-Victor LM-1995, one 12" LP record). Hi-fi enthusiasts will discover many delights in the superior engineering that RCA-Victor demonstrates in this Boston Pops release. Contents: "Pops Polka" and "Enchanted Sea" (Mason), "The Waltzing Cat" (Anderson), "Jalousie" (Gade), "Danube Waves" (Ivanovici), "Maguena" (Lecuona), "Village Swallows Waltz" (Strauss), "In a Persian Market" (Katelby), and "Poet and Peasant Overture" (von Suppe).

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749
JUN 18 1956

Pops Soloist

BERNARD KRITZMAN will be soloist tonight at the Boston Pops in Tchaikovsky's Piano Concerto in B-flat Minor.

JUN 18 1956

Today's Aircast

By Lucy Daniels

Radio

8:15 p.m.—The Boston Pops Orchestra under the direction of Arthur Fiedler presents a concert of familiar classical music. One highlight will be Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture." (WPTF).

9:00 p.m.—Michael Rabin, 20-year-old violinist, is guest performer on the TELEPHONE HOUR. His selections will include "Sea Shells" by Carl Engel, "Sweet Remembrance" by Mendelssohn, and Prokofiev's march from "Love of Three Oranges." (WPTF).

Television

7:00 p.m.—Barry Nelson and Janet Blair star in "Every Man Has Two Wives" on DIRECTOR'S PLAYHOUSE. A wife takes drastic action when her husband's spring fever leads him to memories of another love. (WFMY).

7:30 p.m.—Soprano Elaine Malbin appears as guest soloist on VOICE OF FIRESTONE. Her program will feature "La Violetera" by Padilla, Youmans' "Orchids in the Moonlight" and "Gavotte" from Massenet's "Manon." (WNAO).

MALBIN

8:00 p.m.—When Tennessee Ernie arrives for a visit on I LOVE LUCY, Lucy and Ricky find the hillbilly and his guitar more than they can take. (WNAO-WFMY-WNCT).

8:30 p.m.—ROBERT MONTGOMERY PRESENTS "The Soldier Room" starring John Newland and Deidre Owens. A man feeling rejected by the world retreats to playing with toy soldiers in search of the respect and attention he believes he has always deserved. (WTVD-WITN).

9:00 p.m.—"Snap Your Finger" on STUDIO ONE is a farce about a very beautiful but very unhappy sorceress. Instead of enjoying making men miserable (as any good witch should), she wants to fall in love. (WFMY-WNCT).

10:00 p.m.—Sid Caesar and his Commuters present their last show of the season. (WTVD-WITN-WFLB).

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,628
JUN 19 1956

CHAMPAIGN, ILL.
NEWS-GAZETTE
Circ. D. 28,381 - S. 28,934
JUN 19 1956

109

Local Women To Attend Kappa Kappa Gamma's 41st Convention; Mrs. Carl Dohme Is Alumnae Delegate

Mrs. Carl G. Dohme, 31 Greencroft, who is the delegate of the Champaign-Urbana Alumnae Assn., will leave Wednesday to attend the 41st biennial convention of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority to be held in the New Ocean House, Swampscott, Mass., June 21-29.

Attending the convention with Mrs. Dohme are Mrs. L. T. Gregory, 1312 S. Race, Urbana, visitor, and Mrs. Grace Welsh, 405 E. John, visitor. These women are also representing the alumnae group. Mrs. Dohme, Mrs. Gregory, and Mrs. Welsh will be among the representatives from 316 alumnae groups in the United States, Canada, Hawaii, and the British Isles, who will attend the convention in addition to delegates from the 85 chapters of the sorority in colleges throughout the United States and Canada. Representing the active chapter at the University of Illinois are: Miss Barbara Dixon, Western Springs, junior delegate; Miss Eleanor Pelm, Oak Park, senior delegate; and Miss Adlon Dohme, Champaign, sophomore visitor.

Many outstanding speakers will be featured on the program including Dr. Howard Rusk of the New York University-Bellevue Medical Center; Judge Frank Myers, associate judge of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia; Dr. E. Merrill Root, poet, author, and professor of English at Earlham University, Richmond, Ind.; Nora Waln, author and a member of the sorority; and Dr. Chung-Hi Oh, a Korean physician who is studying in New York on a two year fellowship given by Kappa Kappa Gamma through the American-Korean Foundation. Dr. Oh's award is one of 50 scholarships and fellowships given annually by the sorority.

Saturday, June 23, the entire convention will attend the Boston Pops Symphony concert. Sunday afternoon, June 24, a boat trip to Gloucester has been planned by Bay area Alumnae.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
JUN 20 1956

Music and Musicians

New 'Salute' To Air Force For the Pops

Air Force Reserve Night at the Pops will be held Monday evening in Symphony Hall. A special feature of the program will be the première of "Salute to the Air Force Reserve," composed by Lt. Col. Malloy Miller, who will conduct.

Maj. Gen. Roger J. Browne, Commander of First Air Force, and Col. Thomas Badger, Jr., Commandant of the Boston Air Reserve Center, will be among the guests. Air reservists who wish to attend may obtain tickets by calling Capt. Stuart C. Taylor at the Boston Air Reserve Center.

Gieseking's Return

The latest booking in the series of concerts, to be sponsored by Boston University next season, is the Symphony Hall recital by Walter Gieseking. This recital is scheduled for Friday evening, Feb. 8. The pianist, who will return to the United States for his third consecutive tour in mid-January, will again play with many leading orchestras, including the New York Philharmonic - Symphony and the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 184,973
JUN 20 1956

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
News (e)
ATHOL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 4,556
JUN 19 1956

Tucker Sings for the Pops

This is the last fortnight of the 1956 season of Boston Pops concerts conducted by Arthur Fiedler in Symphony Hall. On Thursday the entire house has been taken by the Israel Histadrut Committee, and the soloist will be the distinguished tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, Richard Tucker.

Leo Litwin will play Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" tonight. E. Power Biggs will play Handel's Organ Concerto in D Minor on Wednesday; Berj Zamkochian will play Dupre's "Poeme Heroique" for Organ, Brass and Drums on Friday; and Shirley Merrill will play the first movement from the Grieg Piano Concerto in A Minor on Saturday.

Harry Ellis Dickson will conduct Saturday evening. Rouben Gregorian will conduct Friday.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 185,401
JUN 19 1956

Pops in Final Fortnight

Only next week and the rest of this week remain in the 1956 season of Boston Pops concerts, conducted by Arthur Fiedler in Symphony Hall.

The entire house has been taken by the Israel Histadrut Committee for tomorrow night when the soloist will be the Metropolitan Opera's distinguished tenor, Richard Tucker.

E. Power Biggs will play Handel's Organ Concerto in D Minor tonight. On Friday night, Berj Zamkochian will play Dupre's "Poeme Heroique" for Organ, Brass and Drums.

Shirley Merrill will be the soloist Saturday night, playing the first movement from the Grieg Piano Concerto in A Minor. Harry Ellis Dickson will conduct Saturday night and Rouben Gregorian will conduct on Friday evening.

OHS Band On Trip To Nantasket

One hundred-one Orange High School band members and Malcolm Hall, director of music in Orange schools left in three buses for Boston this morning. At 10:30 a.m. they will go, by boat, to Nantasket Beach to spend most of the day and at 4:30 they will have a banquet in the American House at Nantasket.

The group will leave Nantasket at 6:30 to return to Boston where they will attend the Boston Pops Concert in Symphony Hall. They will be joined at the Concert by the Medford High School Band and Ralph Schoonmaher. The two bands have reserved an entire section of the balcony Horseshoe.

Chaperones for the event are: Miss Ellyan Musgrove, Miss Barbara Crosby, Miss Patricia Ryan, and Frank Dodge.

On The Air.

The Boston Pops Orchestra, conducted by Arthur Fiedler, will play the following compositions over Radio WPTF tonight at 8:15 o'clock: Triumphal March from "Aida," by Verdi; Overture to "La Bella Helene," Offenbach; Serenata, Anderson; and 1812 Overture, Tchaikovsky.

SELMA, ALA.
TIMES-JOURNAL
Circ. D. 10,033 - S. 10,033
JUN 20 1956

Boston Pops Picnic - Full-blown sound, immaculate orchestral playing, and variety are make this collection of marches, waltzes, overtures, and concert favorites one of the most attractive sets to come from the Boston Pops Orchestra under Arthur Fiedler (RCA-Victor LM-1995, one 12" LP record). Hi-fi enthusiasts will discover many delights in the superior engineering that RCA-Victor demonstrates in this Boston Pops release. Contents: "Pops Polka" and "Enchanted Sea" (Mason), "The Waltzing Cat" (Anderson), "Jalousie" (Gade), "Danube Waves" (Ivanovici), "Malaguena" (Lecuona), "Village Swallows Waltz" (Strauss), "In a Persian Market" (Katelby), and "Poet and Peasant Overture" (von Suppe).

Air Reservists at Pops

Air Force Reserve Night at Boston Pops will be celebrated on Monday, June 25.

A special feature will be a musical number, "Salute to the Air Force Reserve," composed by Lt. Col. Malloy Miller. This piece will be played for the first time that evening and Lt. Col. Miller will conduct.

Maj. Gen. Roger J. Browne, commander of First Air Force, and Col. Thomas Badger, Jr., commandant of the Boston Air Reserve Center, will be among the guests.

Air Reservists who wish to attend may obtain tickets by calling Capt. Stuart C. Taylor at the Boston Air Reserve Center.

110d

102

NORFOLK, VA.
VIRGINIAN PILOT
Circ. D. 101,440 - S. 113,201

JUN 20 1956

Out of Thin Air — By Warner Twyford

THE BOSTON POPS Orchestra is with us again on the radio, one of the summer's pleasanter listening aspects, and the name of the Pops is synonymous with that of Arthur Fiedler. Well it might be, because this urbane and ingratiating conductor has been the guiding genius for these delightful concerts since 1930.

Fiedler is a man who combines musical ability with perfectionism. He is also a man of astonishingly varied interests outside the realm of music, and a cosmopolite of rare personal charm.

He is a native of Boston, where he was born December 17, 1894. He was educated at the Boston Latin School and studied conducting at the Royal Academy in Berlin under Arno Kleffel and Rudolph Krasselt, violin under Willy Hess, piano under Carl Lamson and chamber music under Dohnanyi. He has been married since 1942, and has two daughters, Johanna, 10, and Deborah, eight.

Twyford

FIEDLER MADE his concert debut in Berlin at the age of 17. He joined the Boston Symphony Orchestra as a violinist in 1915, and nine years later he organized the Boston Sinfonietta, a chamber orchestra composed of members of the symphony.

He organized, founded and has been conducting the Esplanade Concerts since 1929 (we shall be hearing them again soon on radio). He has been a faculty member of Boston University and conductor of the Cecilia Choral Society of Boston, the University Glee Club of Providence, and the MacDowell Club Orchestra of Boston.

He has been director of the Massachusetts National Youth Administration Music Projects. His guest appearance as conductor of famous symphony orchestras have been legion, including the Boston Symphony, the Montreal, the Minneapolis, Toronto Orchestras, the Louisville Philharmonic, the Grant Park Concerts in Chicago, the New Haven Pops, the Federal Orchestras of New York and Philadelphia and the Guatemala Orchestra.

HIS INTEREST in music has been extended into active participation in music projects in the public schools. He has been a guest conductor at a Maury High School concert.

He has toured with the Boston Pops Tour Orchestra—also visiting Norfolk on one occasion—and makes recordings for RCA Victor with the Boston Pops.

His extra-curricular activities include the job of auxiliary policeman in Boston. He is a colonel on the staff of the governor of Kentucky, and his hobbies are ship models, travel and collecting music scores.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Chronicle & Sun
CAMBRIDGE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 25,470 Free

JUN 21 1956

Prepare for Pops—Mrs. James Moran of 146 Oxford st. and Mrs. James Lake of 1105 Mass. ave. will be telephone chairmen in Cambridge for Kappa Night at Boston Pops to be held Saturday, June 23, at Symphony Hall. Proceeds will go to scholarships given by Kappa Kappa Gamma.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 185,401

JUN 22 1956

Armenian Night at Pops

The fourth annual Armenian Night at the Pops will be observed tonight in Symphony Hall, with Rouben Gregorian, founder of the Teheran Symphony Orchestra and Boston Conservatory faculty member and orchestra conductor, as guest conductor. Selections by celebrated Armenian composers, including "Hayre Mer" (the Lord's Prayer), which is to be sung by the entire audience, will supplement the regular repertoire.

Excerpts of the Bardar, from "Caucasian Sketches" Ippolitov-Ivanov
Overture to "Oberon" Weber
Two American Songs with Orchestra
Lovely Rose Spendiarian
Song for Wine Satian
Baritone Solo: Robert Mesrobian
Briar Rose Waltz, from "The Sleeping Beauty" Tchaikovsky
Hayre Mer (The Lord's Prayer) (To be sung by the audience) Tchitchanel
Poeme Heroique, for Organ, Brass and Drum Dupre
Soloist: BERJ SAMKOCHIAN
Suite from "Gayne" Khachaturian
March, from the Opera, "Sedo" Der Ghevondian
Hidjaz, from "Erivan Studies" Spendiarian
Tylana Arr. by Hayman
The Rakes of Mallow, from "Irish Suite" Anderson

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
POST-HERALD
Circ. D. 90,611

JUN 21 1956

Boston 'Pops' Scheduled With Fiedler On Podium

Birmingham will get its first look-hear at the lighthearted Boston "Pops" orchestra this Winter, with Arthur Fiedler at the baton.

The orchestra, which specializes in light classics while waiters spread good cheer among the audience, will play here concert style.

Waltzes, polkas, Leroy Anderson specialties, and many "surprise" numbers feature the orchestra's programs.

In Boston, the theater seats are cleared out to make way for ice cream chairs, beach tables and umbrellas during the pops season.

Light refreshments are served while numbers are announced on placards from the stage.

The orchestra will play here as the third presentation of the Birmingham Music Club's Artist Concert Series.

The others will include the National Swedish Chorus, Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, Artur Rubinstein, Jose Greco and the Pittsburgh Symphony.

Tickets for next season's concerts now [illegible] sale at the Music [illegible] at E. B. Forbes.

POPS LEADER — Arthur Fiedler, leader of the famed Boston Pops Orchestra to be here this Winter.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Minute Man
LEXINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4669

JUN 21 1956

Personals

Mrs. David Sampson of 5 Hawthorn Rd., will be telephone chairman in Lexington for Kappa Night at Boston Pops to be held Saturday, June 23, at Symphony Hall. Proceeds will go to scholarships given by Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Richard Warren Leavitt, son

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 21 1956

Henry.

Robert Mesrobian will be baritone soloist at the Pops Friday evening.

RICHMOND, VA.
NEWS-LEADER
Circ. D. 99,100

JUN 23 1956

Ojai Music Festival Set For Broadcast

The Ojai Music Festival in California, featuring Igor Stravinsky conducting one of his own works, will be heard in its first network broadcast on CBS Radio's World Music Festival tomorrow at 2:05 p.m., WRVA.

The Italo-Hungarian soprano Magda Lazzlo makes this her first American broadcast, singing arias by Bach and Stravinsky.

Jerome Hines, Metropolitan Opera basso, will be the guest soloist on The Voice of Firestone Monday on ABC-TV (7:30-8 p.m. WTVR) in a program featuring selections from "Oklahoma," as well as operatic and semi-classical numbers.

The Boston Pops Orchestra, conducted by Arthur Fiedler, will offer the Suite from "La Boutique Fantasque," by Rossini-Respighi as its major selection Monday (NBC radio, 8:15 p.m., WLEE). Eric Coates' "Knightsbridge March," Johann Strauss' waltz "1001 Nights," and Vaughan Williams' Fantasia on "Greensleeves" will complete the concert.

Soprano Eileen Farrell will sing the "Liebestod" from Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde" as guest on the Telephone Hour Monday (NBC radio, 9 p.m., WLEE).

Donald Voorhees and the orchestra will offer Lukas' "Sorcerer's Apprentice" and Phil Wall's arrangement of "Chopsticks."

Eight Orchestras On Ann Arbor List

Ann Arbor, Mich.—The University Musical Society of the University of Michigan announces 26 concerts in several series, for the 1956-57 season. Soloists and group attractions will include: Robert Casadesus, Solomon, and Artur Rubinstein, pianists; Elisabeth Schwarzkopf, soprano; Herva Nelli, soprano, and Kurt Baum, tenor, in joint recital; Boston Symphony, Charles Munch, conductor; Berlin Philharmonic, Herbert von Karajan, conductor; Vienna Philharmonic, Carl Schuricht, conductor; Cincinnati Symphony, Thor Johnson, conductor; Cleveland Orchestra, George Szell conductor; Boston Pops Tours Orchestra, Arthur Fiedler, conductor; Mantovani and his Orchestra; the DePaur Opera Gala; Vienna Choir Boys; Quartetto Italiano; Handel's "Messiah" with University Choral Union, Musical Society Orchestra conducted by Lester McCoy, and the following soloists; Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Howard Jarratt, tenor; and Kenneth Smith, bass.

Participating in the six-concert 1957 May Festival will be the Philadelphia Orchestra, conducted by Eugene Ormandy; the University Choral Union, Thor Johnson, guest conductor, and Lester McCoy, associate conductor; and the Festival Youth Chorus, Marguerite Hood, conductor.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

Herald
CHICOPEE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,675

JUN 21 1956

Boston Symphony Plans Russia Trip

The Boston Symphony Orchestra has accepted a formal invitation from the USSR to include Soviet Russia in the tour of Europe the symphony will make during August and September. The invitation from the Ministry of Culture in Moscow was transmitted by Yuri Gouk, Cultural Attache of the Soviet Embassy in Washington, to the Orchestra's manager, Thomas D. Perry, Jr.

The Boston Symphony under the direction of Charles Munch will be the first American symphony orchestra to perform in Russia. Last August during the Geneva Conference the orchestra, through the president of its board of trustees Henry B. Cabot, made known its willingness to include a visit to the Soviet Republic during its projected tour of Europe in the autumn of 1956.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Advocate
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,516

JUN 21 1956

—Mrs. A. Hunter Dupree of 30 Mott st. is telephone chairman in Arlington for Kappa Night at Boston Pops, to be held Saturday, June 23, at Symphony Hall. Proceeds will go to scholarships given by Kappa Kappa Gamma.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

Enterprise & Journal
ORANGE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,000

JUN 21 1956

Orange High school's band made its annual pilgrimage to Nantasket Beach and Boston on Tuesday, a total of 101, all relaxed and out for fun. It was the climax of a busy and successful year . . . a reward in a way for a job well done. Three buses conveyed the group under the chaperonage of Director Malcolm Hall, Frank Dodge, Richard Sine, and Misses Ellen Musgrove, Barbara Crosby and Patricia Ryan, the latter four of the faculty. There was swimming and various forms of recreation for the members at the beach with a banquet at the American House. In the evening all attended the Pops concert in Boston. It was nearly "two o'clock in the morning" when the 101 reached Orange.

Edith Hunt Hill of Hollywood,

NORFOLK, VA.
VIRGINIAN PILOT
Circ. D. 101,440 - S. 113,201

JUN 20 1956

Out of Thin Air — By Warner Twyford

THE BOSTON POPS Orchestra is with us again on the radio, one of the summer's pleasanter listening aspects, and the name of the Pops is synonymous with that of Arthur Fiedler. Well it might be, because this urbane and ingratiating conductor has been the guiding genius for these delightful concerts since 1930.

Fiedler is a man who combines musical ability with perfectionism. He is also a man of astonishingly varied interests outside the realm of music, and a cosmopolite of rare personal charm.

He is a native of Boston, where he was born December 17, 1894. He was educated at the Boston Latin School and studied conducting at the Royal Academy in Berlin under Arno Kleffel and Rudolph Krasselt, violin under Willy Hess, piano under Carl Lamson and chamber music under Dohnanyi. He has been married since 1942, and has two daughters, Johanna, 10, and Deborah, eight.

Twyford

FIEDLER MADE his concert debut in Berlin at the age of 17. He joined the Boston Symphony Orchestra as a violinist in 1915, and nine years later he organized the Boston Sinfonietta, a chamber orchestra composed of members of the symphony.

He organized, founded and has been conducting the Esplanade Concerts since 1929 (we shall be hearing them again soon on radio). He has been a faculty member of Boston University and conductor of the Cecilia Choral Society of Boston, the University Glee Club of Providence, and the MacDowell Club Orchestra of Boston.

He has been director of the Massachusetts National Youth Administration Music Projects. His guest appearance as conductor of famous symphony orchestras have been legion, including the Boston Symphony, the Montreal, the Minneapolis, Toronto Orchestras, the Louisville Philharmonic, the Grant Park Concerts in Chicago, the New Haven Pops, the Federal Orchestras of New York and Philadelphia and the Guatemala Orchestra.

HIS INTEREST in music has been extended into active participation in music projects in the public schools. He has been a guest conductor at a Maury High School concert.

He has toured with the Boston Pops Tour Orchestra—also visiting Norfolk on one occasion—and makes recordings for RCA-Victor with the Boston Pops.

His extra-curricular activities include the job of auxiliary policeman in Boston. He is a colonel on the staff of the governor of Kentucky, and his hobbies are ship models, travel and collecting music scores.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
POST-HERALD
Circ. D. 90,611

JUN 21 1956

Boston 'Pops' Scheduled With Fiedler On Podium

Birmingham will get its first look-hear at the lighthearted Boston "Pops" orchestra this Winter, with Arthur Fiedler at the baton.

The orchestra, which specializes in light classics while waitters spread good cheer among the audience, will play here concert style.

Waltzes, polkas, Leroy Anderson specialties, and many "surprise" numbers feature the orchestra's programs.

In Boston, the theater seats are cleared out to make way for ice cream chairs, beach tables and umbrellas during the pops season.

Light refreshments are served while numbers are announced on placards from the stage.

The orchestra will play here as the third presentation of the Birmingham Music Club's Artist Concert Series.

The others will include the National Swedish Chorus, Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, Artur Rubinstein, Jose Greco, and the Pittsburgh Symphony.

POPS LEADER — Arthur Fiedler, leader of the famed Boston Pops Orchestra to be here this Winter.

Tickets for next season's concerts now are on sale at the Music Club boxoffice at E. E Forbes.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

Herald
CHICOPEE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,675

JUN 21 1956

Boston Symphony Plans Russia Trip

The Boston Symphony Orchestra has accepted a formal invitation from the USSR to include Soviet Russia in the tour of Europe the symphony will make during August and September. The invitation from the Ministry of Culture in Moscow was transmitted by Yuri Gouk, Cultural Attache of the Soviet Embassy in Washington, to the Orchestra's manager, Thomas D. Perry, Jr.

The Boston Symphony under the direction of Charles Munch will be the first American symphony orchestra to perform in Russia. Last August during the Geneva Conference the orchestra, through the president of its board of trustees Henry B. Cabot, made known its willingness to include a visit to the Soviet Republic during its projected tour of Europe in the autumn of 1956.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Chronicle & Sun
CAMBRIDGE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 25,470 Free

JUN 21 1956

Prepare for Pops—Mrs. James Moran of 146 Oxford st. and Mrs. James Lake of 1105 Mass. ave. will be telephone chairmen in Cambridge for Kappa Night at Boston Pops to be held Saturday, June 23, at Symphony Hall. Proceeds will go to scholarships given by Kappa Kappa Gamma.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Minute Man
LEXINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4669

JUN 21 1956

Personals

Mrs. David Sampson of 5 Hawthorn Rd., will be telephone chairman in Lexington for Kappa Night at Boston Pops to be held Saturday, June 23, at Symphony Hall. Proceeds will go to scholarships given by Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Richard Warren Leavitt, son [illegible] (Lock-

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 21 1956

Henry

Robert Mesrobian will be baritone soloist at the Pops Friday evening.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Advocate
ARLINGTON, Mass
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,516

JUN 21 1956

—Mrs. A. Hunter Dupree of 30 Mott st. is telephone chairman in Arlington for Kappa Night at Boston Pops, to be held Saturday, June 23, at Symphony Hall. Proceeds will go to scholarships given by Kappa Kappa Gamma.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

Enterprise & Journal
ORANGE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,000

JUN 21 1956

Orange High school's band made its annual pilgrimage to Nantasket Beach and Boston on Tuesday, a total of 101, all relaxed and out for fun. It was the climax of a busy and successful year . . . a reward in a way for a job well done. Three buses conveyed the group under the chaperonage of Director Malcolm Hall, Frank Dodge, Richard Sine, and Misses Ellen Musgrove, Barbara Crosby and Patricia Ryan, the latter four of the faculty. There was swimming and various forms of recreation for the members at the beach with a banquet at the American House. In the evening all attended the Pops concert in Boston. It was nearly "two o'clock in the morning" when the 101 reached Orange.

Edith Hunt Hill of Hollywood,

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 185,401

JUN 22 1956

Armenian Night at Pops

The fourth annual Armenian Night at the Pops will be observed tonight in Symphony Hall, with Rouben Gregorian, founder of the Teheran Symphony Orchestra and Boston Conservatory faculty member and orchestra conductor, as guest conductor. Selections by celebrated Armenian composers, including "Hayre Mer" (the Lord's Prayer), which is to be sung by the entire audience, will supplement the regular repertoire.

Procession of the Sardar, from "Caucasian Sketches" — Ippolitov-Ivanov
Overture to "Oberon" — Weber
Two American Songs with Orchestra
Lovely Rose — Spendiarian
Song for Wine — Satian
Baritone Solo: — Robert Mearobian
Briar Rose Waltz, from "The Sleeping Beauty" — Tchaikovsky
Hayre Mer (The Lord's Prayer) — Traditional (To be sung by the audience)
Poeme Heroique, for Organ, Brass and Drum — Dupre
Soloist: BERJ ZAMKOCHIAN
Suite from "Gayne" — Khachaturian
March, from the Opera, "Seda" — Der Ghevondian
Hidjaz, from "Erivan Studies" — Spendiarian
Triana — Arr. by Hayman
The Rakes of Mallow, from "Irish Suite" — Anderson

RICHMOND, VA.
NEWS-LEADER
Circ. D. 99,100

JUN 23 1956

Ojai Music Festival Set For Broadcast

The Ojai Music Festival in California, featuring Igor Stravinsky conducting one of his own works, will be heard in its first network broadcast on CBS Radio's World Music Festivals tomorrow at 2:05 p.m., WRVA. The Italo-Hungarian soprano Magda Lazzlo makes this her first American broadcast, singing arias by Bach and Stravinsky.

Jerome Hines, Metropolitan Opera basso, will be the guest soloist on The Voice of Firestone Monday on ABC-TV (7:30-8 p.m. WTVR) in a program featuring selections from "Oklahoma," as well as operatic and semi-classical numbers.

The Boston Pops Orchestra, conducted by Arthur Fielder, will offer the Suite from "La Boutique Fantasque," by Rossini-Respighi as its major selection Monday (NBC radio, 8:15 p.m., WLEE). Eric Coates' "Knightsbridge March," Johann Strauss' waltz "1001 Nights," and Vaughan Williams' Fantasia on "Greensleeves" will complete the concert.

Soprano Eileen Farrell will sing the "Liebestod" from Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde" as guest on the Telephone Hour Monday (NBC radio, 9 p.m., WLEE).

Donald Voorhees and the orchestra will offer Lukas' "Sorcerer's Apprentice" and Phil Wall's arrangement of "Chopsticks."

* * *

MUSICAL AMERICA
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUN 1956

Eight Orchestras On Ann Arbor List

Ann Arbor, Mich.—The University Musical Society of the University of Michigan announces 26 concerts in several series, for the 1956-57 season. Soloists and group attractions will include: Robert Casadesus, Solomon, and Artur Rubinstein, pianists; Elisabeth Schwarzkopf, soprano; Herva Nelli, soprano, and Kurt Baum, tenor, in joint recital; Boston Symphony, Charles Munch, conductor; Berlin Philharmonic, Herbert von Karajan, conductor; Vienna Philharmonic, Carl Schuricht, conductor; Cincinnati Symphony, Thor Johnson, conductor; Cleveland Orchestra, George Szell conductor; Boston Pops Tours Orchestra, Arthur Fiedler, conductor; Mantovani and his Orchestra; the DePaur Opera Gala; Vienna Choir Boys; Quartetto Italiano; Handel's "Messiah" with University Choral Union, Musical Society Orchestra conducted by Lester McCoy, and the following soloists; Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Howard Jarratt, tenor; and Kenneth Smith, bass.

Participating in the six-concert 1957 May Festival will be the Philadelphia Orchestra, conducted by Eugene Ormandy; the University Choral Union, Thor Johnson, guest conductor, and Lester McCoy, associate conductor; and the Festival Youth Chorus, Marguerite Hood, conductor.

Colorado Springs, Colo.
Gazette-Telegraph
Circ. D. 24,187 - S. 24,587
JUN 22 1956

Two Springs Singers Will Appear at Pops Concert

Sparkling refrains from a Strauss waltz will set the mood of the free Starlight Pops concert this Saturday night in the Garden of the Gods.

The overture to the gay operetta "Die Fledermaus" will be the first selection of the Colorado Springs Symphony orchestra, Walter Eisenberg, conductor.

Preceding the 8:15 p.m. concert will be a Chuck Wagon Bar-B-Q at 6:30 p.m. at the J. C. chuck wagon site in the Garden of the Gods.

Soloists for the concert will be George Garriques, tenor, and Margot Rumsey, soprano.

Garriques, who is equally at home singing Bach's religious work, grand opera, and musical comedy has chosen solos which strike a romantic note.

While this is Garriques' first appearance with the Colorado Sorings Symphony, he has sung leading roles in operatic productions of the Theatre Singers, and is soloist with the First Methodist and Grace Episcopal churches. He is well known for his portrayal of King Caspar in the annual Christmas production of "Amahl and the Night Singers" by Menotti.

Miss Rumsey, one of Colorado Springs loveliest young sopranos, appeared with the Colorado Springs Symphony in a children's concert, and with the Pueblo Symphony last fall.

She has sung the lead in productions at Ft. Carson and the Fountain Valley School. She appeared with the Denver Symphony as "Alice" in Wilder's "Sunday Excursion," and had a leading role in the Theatre Singers' production of the "Marriage Contract," by Mozart.

A student at the University of Kansas last year, Miss Rumsey has studied locally with H. Colin Thorpe for the past six years.

Miss Rumsey and Garriques will sing duets from the operetta "Maytime."

The complete program follows, with "program notes" by Walter Eisenberg, conductor of the Colorado Springs Symphony orchestra.

1. Die Fledermaus ..... Strauss
2. a. Hoe Down ..... Copland
   b. Syncopated Clock ..... Anderson
   c. January, February March ..... Gillis
3. Songs
   a. Rose Marie ..... Friml
   b. Begin the Beguine ... Porter
   George Garriques, tenor
4. Porgy and Bess Suite . .rra..
4. Porgy and Bess Suite ... arr. Hans Spielak .... Gershwin
5. Ngoma ..... Miller
6. Songs
   a. Il Bacio (The Kiss) . Arditi
   b. Two Hearts in Three Quarter Time ..... Stolz
   c. Wanting You ..... Romberg
   Margot Rumsey, soprano
7. Masquerade Suite ..... Khachaturian

1. Overture to Die Fledermaus—Johann Strauss' "Fledermaus" is one of the great operettas of all time. The melodies are rich and intoxicating, and are incorporated in some of the most exquisite waltzes written by the Waltz King.

2. a. Hoe-Down — In keeping with the western setting of the Starlight Pops concert, "hoe-Down" is a dance episode from an orchestral suite by Copland. The music is extracted from the Ballet "Rodeo," in which Copland collaborated with Agnes de Mille. It was first performed in 1952 at the Metropolitan Opera House.

b. Syncopated Clock — Cleverly descriptive, this work by Anderson reveals why no Pops program is complete without some of his delightful novelty numbers.

c. January, February March — Another contemporary American composer, Gillis' work is rousing music, full of fun and with colorful rhythms cleverly orchestrated.

3. Songs — Mr. Garriques' selections are melodic, romantic music of the sort hoped for on all Pops concerts.

4. Porgy and Bess Suite — This is Gershwin's great contribution toward proving jazz could be used with serious purpose in larger musical compositions. The music is as fresh and wonderful today as when first written in the early '30s.

5. Ngoma — This recent composition by Miller was performed last week by the Boston Pops, with the following review by Harold Rogers in the Christian Science Monitor. "It is remarkable how successfully Miller has caught the flavor of the Indian ceremonial ... There is an earthiness in the use of the timpani that suggests the stamp of Indian feet on sunbaked soil."

6. Songs — Miss Rumsey's interpretation of her popular selections adds much to the Pops program.

7. Masquerade Suite — An authority on Oriental music, Khachaturian is so steeped in folklore that his music seems to emerge from the soul of the people. This score includes splashy, ribald dance music including waltz, nocturne, mazurka, romance, and gallop.

CLEVELAND, OHIO
PLAIN DEALER
Circ. D. 302,579 - S. 520,850
JUN 24 1956

OFF THE RECORDS

New Disks Set Beat in Three-Four Time

By Rena C. Holtkamp

The waltz, a dance in three-four time, is perhaps the best-loved rhythm in music. Although it has gone through centuries of evolutionary change the waltz still holds an honored place in evenings of dance music, as well as in concerts, recitals and performances of opera.

RENA C. HOLTKAMP

Originally the waltz came from the old, rather slow-moving German "Landler," peasant dances of which "Ach, du lieber Augustin" was characteristic in tune and rhythm. When first introduced in late 18th century Vienna, the waltz was played and danced slowly. Then it gathered vigor, speed and bounce, until it swept off like a smooth, silken siren through 19th century Europe.

But the waltz was not destined entirely for dancing. Many composers began producing works which idealized the waltz. Then the music made such ingratiating listening that dancers forgot to dance. Waltzes rolled out in almost endless cycles, repeat after repeat, but tied together by sections with a fanciful introduction and dramatic code. Waltz King Johann Strauss' "On the Beautiful Blue Danube," Artist's Life," "Tales of the Vienna Woods," "Voices of Spring," and many others were idealized waltzes, although there were arrangements made for ballroom dancing.

Composed for Piano

In serious music, the waltz first appeared in compositions for piano. Chopin's 14 waltzes, the suave music of the Parisian salon of the early 19th century, are well known. Brahms' 16 waltzes, Op. 39, originally composed for four hands at the piano, later reduced for two hands, are enjoyed today as typically Viennese in the spirit of lightness and life.

In 1911, Maurice Ravel, one of the great French composers, wrote a set of seven waltzes for the piano, "Valses Nobles and Sentimentales," (later orchestrated for a ballet), paying homage to the Viennese waltzes of Schubert and Brahms.

And so the story of waltz goes on. Great composers of operas, orchestral suites and symphonies have befriended waltz rhythms and have woven them into permanent, memorable music. Our great record makers, too, have been taking special notice of this exquisite musical genre lately.

Here are some of the results:

A PORTRAIT OF THE WALTZ—Igor Markevitch, Russian-born composer-conductor who made his American debut in 1955 with the Boston Symphony, conducts the Philharmonic Orchestra on Angel Record 35154, in a selection of music calculated to set your dreams a-waltzing. Contents include Saint-Saens' "Danse Macabre," Sibelius' "Valse Triste," Busoni's "Tanzwalzer," and others by Mozart, Liszt, Berlios, Stravinsky and Chabrier. A unique, skeleton portrait in sophisticated sound.

VALSES NOBLES ET SENTIMENTALES—Angel Record 35173 presents Andre Cluytens conducting Orchestra National de la Radiodiffusion Francaise in Ravel's waltz music, coupled with the composer's graceful orchestral ballet music, "Ma Mere L'Oye" (Mother Goose Tales), and "Menuet Antique," and "Introduction and Allegro" for harp with the accompaniment of string quartet, flute and clarinet. Enjoy, not only for the waltz, but for the composer's subtle researches in timbres.

LE BEAU DANUBE—A collection and arrangement of Strauss melodies orchestrated by Roger Desormiere with choreography by Leonide Massine, first produced at the Theatre de Monte Carlo in 1933. Rossini's ballet music for "William Tell" accompanies the Strauss music, performed by the London Philharmonic Orchestra under Jean Martinon, recorded by London LL-1883.

WEBER'S "INVITATION TO THE DANCE"—Carl Maria von Weber's lilting waltz melodies, orchestrated by Hector Berlioz, and given a modern touch with Andre Kostelanetz conducting the Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra of New York. A Columbia Masterwork disk, ML-4957, which includes Enesco's "Roumanian Rhapsody" No. 1 in A Major, Op. 11, and Prokofiev's "Wedding Suite," Op. 126. Weber's waltzes probably established the form in which the later Viennese waltz-kings, Joseph Lanner and the two Johann Strausses wrote their most famous works.

MOZART'S GERMAN DANCES, K. 509, 571—London's Editions de L'Oiseau-Lyre, OL 50005, offers waltzes of the "Landler" type, 12 in all, music really intended to accompany dancing. Conducted by Joseph Keilberth with the Bamberg Symphony Orchestra with Mozart's Symphony No. 29 (K. 201).

JOHANN STRAUSS, SR. AND JOSEF LANNER: Waltzes, Polkas, Marches, Galops — Made for Vanguard VRS-458 by Anton Paulik and the Vienna State Opera Orchestra, perfectly chosen for the role of portraying authentic reflections and shadings of this music which made the Sperl Restaurant famous (1830-48).

BOSTON POPS PICNIC—Arthur Fiedler conducts the Boston Pops Orchestra on RCA Victor's LM-1[illegible] in gay, picnic music, with a contemporary touch. Leroy Anderson's "Waltzing Cat," Strauss' "Village Swallows Waltzes," and others.

BARRY FITZGERALD is starred in the revival of "Naked City" at Loew's Ohio Theater along with Howard Duff and Dorothy Hart. Sharing billing on the same program is Burt Lancaster, Charles Bickford, Yvonne DeCarlo and Ann Blyth in "Brute Force."

SAN JOSE CALIF.
MERCURY-NEWS
JUN 24 1956

Amara.

Fiedler To Direct 'Pops' Concerts This Summer

For the sixth successive sea-n, San Francisco Art Commis-on's summer Pops Concerts ll return to Civic Auditorium th the San Francisco Sym-ony Orchestra under the ba-t of Arthur Fiedler, famed der of the Boston Pops Or-estra, during the months of ly and August, according to announcement made today by rold L. Zellerbach, Art Com-ssion president.

Under the schedule prepared this year's 10-concert series, Pops Concerts will take place Saturday and Tuesday eve-gs. July concerts are sched-d for July 14, 17, 21, 24, 28 d 31. The August schedule sumes in mid-month with con-rts slated Aug. 14, 18, 21 and

As in past years, during which popularity of the series has cked the huge San Francisco ditorium to capacity, the con-rts will be given in the festive nosphere of a Viennese beer rden, with candle-lit tables vering the entire auditorium or area.

July 14 opening will be a gala occasion with Lucine Amara, young San Francisco soprano who has risen to fame as one of the top ranking prima donnas of the Metropolitan Opera Co., as guest soloist. Conductor Fiedler has arranged to include in the opening night program selections from the current Broadway hit show "My Fair Lady."

Guest soloists for the nine other concerts include the following, chosen by Fiedler and the Music Critic's Circle: July 17, Charles Adams, pianist, who will perform Chopin's F minor concerto; pianist Barbara Hoffma, who will play the Honegger Concertino and baritone Edgar Jones, who will sing a group of operatic arias, July 21.

Pianist Shirley Winther will appear as soloist in Liszt's A major concerto, July 24 and Francis Poulenc's Double Piano Concerto will be performed by Bette and Deno Gianopoulos, July 28.

Schubert's "Wanderer" Fantasy will be performed by pianist Francis Whang July 31 and two young soloists will be featured Aug. 14 — Arpad d'Zurko, violinist, will play Waxman's "Carmen" Fantasy and soprano Jeannine Crader will sing a group of operatic arias.

Eighth concert of the series, Aug. 18, will introduce violinist Ronald Stoffel playing Bach's a Minor concerto and pianist Betty Holman Young will interpret Gershwin's Piano Concerto in F, Aug. 21.

Final performance will feature San Francisco Municipal Chorus, Aug. 25, in Beethoven's Choral Fantasy with Findlay Cockrell as solo pianist, as well as Borodin's "Polovetzian Dances." Municipal Chorus will be directed by Dr. Hans Leschke, regular conductor of the choral organization.

Colorado Springs, Colo.
Gazette-Telegraph
Circ. D. 24,187 - S. 24,587
JUN 22 1956

Two Springs Singers Will Appear at Pops Concert

Sparkling refrains from a Strauss waltz will set the mood of the free Starlight Pops concert this Saturday night in the Garden of the Gods.

The overture to the gay operetta "Die Fledermaus" will be the first selection of the Colorado Springs Symphony orchestra, Walter Eisenberg, conductor.

Preceding the 8:15 p.m. concert will be a Chuck Wagon Bar-B-Q at 6:30 p.m. at the J. C. chuck wagon site in the Garden of the Gods.

Soloists for the concert will be George Garriques, tenor, and Margot Rumsey, soprano.

Garriques, who is equally at home singing Bach's religious work, grand opera, and musical comedy has chosen solos which strike a romantic note.

While this is Garriques' first appearance with the Colorado Springs Symphony, he has sung leading roles in operatic productions of the Theatre Singers, and is soloist with the First Methodist and Grace Episcopal churches. He is well known for his portrayal of King Caspar in the annual Christmas production of "Amahl and the Night Singers" by Menotti.

Miss Rumsey, one of Colorado Springs loveliest young sopranos, appeared with the Colorado Springs Symphony in a children's concert, and with the Pueblo Symphony last fall.

She has sung the lead in productions at Ft. Carson and the Fountain Valley School. She appeared with the Denver Symphony as "Alice" in Wilder's "Sunday Excursion," and had a leading role in the Theatre Singers' production of the "Marriage Contract," by Mozart.

A student at the University of Kansas last year, Miss Rumsey has studied locally with H. Colin Thorpe for the past six years.

Miss Rumsey and Garriques will sing duets from the operetta "Maytime."

The complete program follows, with "program notes" by Walter Eisenberg, conductor of the Colorado Springs Symphony orchestra.

1. Die Fledermaus ..... Strauss
2. a. Hoe Down ..... Copland
   b. Syncopated Clock ..... Anderson
   c. January, February March ..... Gillis
3. Songs
   a. Rose Marie ..... Friml
   b. Begin the Beguine ... Porter
   George Garriques, tenor
4. Porgy and Bess Suite . .rra..
4. Porgy and Bess Suite ... arr. Hans Spielak .... Gershwin
5. Ngoma ..... Miller
6. Songs
   a. Il Bacio (The Kiss) . Arditi
   b. Two Hearts in Three Quarter Time ..... Stolz
   c. Wanting You ..... Romberg
   Margot Rumsey, soprano
7. Masquerade Suite ..... Khachaturian

1. Overture to Die Fledermaus—Johann Strauss' "Fledermaus" is one of the great operettas of all time. The melodies are rich and intoxicating, and are incorporated in some of the most exquisite waltzes written by the Waltz King.

2. a. Hoe-Down — In keeping with the western setting of the Starlight Pops concert, "hoe-Down" is a dance episode from an orchestral suite by Copland. The music is extracted from the Ballet "Rodeo," in which Copland collaborated with Agnes de Mille. It was first performed in 1952 at the Metropolitan Opera House.

b. Syncopated Clock — Cleverly descriptive, this work by Anderson reveals why no Pops program is complete without some of his delightful novelty numbers.

c. January, February March — Another contemporary American composer, Gillis' work is rousing music, full of fun and with colorful rhythms cleverly orchestrated.

3. Songs — Mr. Garriques' selections are melodic, romantic music of the sort hoped for on all Pops concerts.

4. Porgy and Bess Suite — This is Gershwin's great contribution toward proving jazz could be used with serious purpose in larger musical compositions. The music is as fresh and wonderful today as when first written in the early '30s.

5. Ngoma — This recent composition by Miller was performed last week by the Boston Pops, with the following review by Harold Rogers in the Christian Science Monitor. "It is remarkable how successfully Miller has caught the flavor of the Indian ceremonial ... There is an earthiness in the use of the timpani that suggests the stamp of Indian feet on sunbaked soil."

6. Songs — Miss Rumsey's interpretation of her popular selections adds much to the Pops program.

7. Masquerade Suite — An authority on Oriental music, Khachaturian is so steeped in folklore that his music seems to emerge from the soul of the people. This score includes splashy, ribald dance music including waltz, nocturne, mazurka, romance, and gallop.

CLEVELAND, OHIO
PLAIN DEALER
Circ. D. 302,579 - S. 520,850
JUN 24 1956

OFF THE RECORDS

New Disks Set Beat in Three-Four Time

By Rena C. Holtkamp

The waltz, a dance in three-four time, is perhaps the best-loved rhythm in music. Although it has gone through centuries of evolutionary change the waltz still holds an honored place in evenings of dance music, as well as in concerts, recitals and performances of opera.

RENA C. HOLTKAMP

Originally the waltz came from the old, rather slow-moving German "Landler," peasant dances of which "Ach, du lieber Augustin" was characteristic in tune and rhythm. When first introduced in late 18th century Vienna, the waltz was played and danced slowly. Then it gathered vigor, speed and bounce, until it swept off like a smooth, silken siren through 19th century Europe.

BLACK ANGUS
Restaurant-Cocktail Lounge
SUNDAY DINNERS
SERVED 4 P. M. TO 10 P. M.
Full-Course Duck, Chicken and Turkey Dinners
OUR SPECIALTY!
CHARCOAL BROILED STEAKS
Special Children's Menu
1-2281. TED MICLAU, Your Host • Playhouse Sq.—14th-Euclid

Strauss' "On the Beautiful Blue Danube," Artist's Life," "Tales of the Vienna Woods," "Voices of Spring," and many others were idealized waltzes, although there were arrangements made for ballroom dancing.

Composed for Piano

In serious music, the waltz first appeared in compositions for piano. Chopin's 14 waltzes, the suave music of the Parisian salon of the early 19th century, are well known. Brahms' 16 waltzes, Op. 39, originally composed for four hands at the piano, later reduced for two hands, are enjoyed today as typically Viennese in the spirit of lightness and life.

In 1911, Maurice Ravel, one of the great French composers, wrote a set of seven waltzes for the piano, "Valses Nobles and Sentimentales," (later orchestrated for a ballet), paying homage to the Viennese waltzes of Schubert and Brahms.

And so the story of waltz goes on. Great composers of operas, orchestral suites and symphonies have befriended waltz rhythms and have woven them into permanent, memorable music. Our great recor[illegible] been [illegible]

"Valse Triste [illegible] Dans[illegible] walzer," and [illegible] Liszt, Berlios, [illegible] brier. A uniq[illegible] in sophisticat[illegible]

VALSES N[illegible] MENTALES— [illegible] presents Andr[illegible] ing Orchestra [illegible] diodiffusion F[illegible] waltz music, co[illegible] poser's graceful [illegible] music, "Ma Me[illegible] Goose Tales), [illegible] tique," and "In[illegible] legro" for har[illegible] paniment of st[illegible] and clarinet. E[illegible] the waltz, but [illegible] subtle researche[illegible]

LE BEAU DAN[illegible] and arrangement[illegible] dies orchestrated [illegible] miere with chor[illegible] nide Massine, fir[illegible] Theatre de Mon[illegible] Rossini's ballet [illegible] liam Tell" accomp[illegible] music, performed [illegible] Philharmonic Orc[illegible] Martinon, record[illegible] LL-1883.

WEBER'S "INVI[illegible] DANCE"—Carl M[illegible] lilting waltz melo[illegible] by Hector Berlio[illegible] modern touch wi[illegible] lanetz conducting [illegible] Symphony Orchest[illegible] A Columbia Ma[illegible] ML-4957, which i[illegible] "Roumanian Rhap[illegible] A Major, Op. 11, [illegible] "Wedding Suite," [illegible] waltzes probably [illegible] form in which the [illegible] waltz-kings, Joseph [illegible] two Johann Strauss [illegible] most famous works.

MOZART'S GERM[illegible] K. 509, 571—London

BARRY FITZGERALD is starred in the revival of "Naked City" at Loew's Ohio Theater along with Howard Duff and Dorothy Hart. Sharing billing on the same program is Burt Lancaster, Charles Bickford, Yvonne DeCarlo and Ann Blyth in "Brute Force."

SAN JOSE CALIF.
MERCURY NEWS
JUN 24 1956

POPULAR MAESTRO—Arthur Fiedler, famed conductor of Boston Pops Orchestra, will again direct San Francisco Art Commission's sixth annual series of Pops Concerts scheduled between July 14 and Aug. 25 in Civic Auditorium. Opening performance of 10 concert series will feature soprano Lucine Amara.

Fiedler To Direct 'Pops' Concerts This Summer

For the sixth successive season, San Francisco Art Commission's summer Pops Concerts will return to Civic Auditorium with the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Arthur Fiedler, famed leader of the Boston Pops Orchestra, during the months of July and August, according to an announcement made today by Harold L. Zellerbach, Art Commission president.

Under the schedule prepared for this year's 10-concert series, all Pops Concerts will take place on Saturday and Tuesday evenings. July concerts are scheduled for July 14, 17, 21, 24, 28 and 31. The August schedule resumes in mid-month with concerts slated Aug. 14, 18, 21 and 25.

As in past years, during which the popularity of the series has packed the huge San Francisco auditorium to capacity, the concerts will be given in the festive atmosphere of a Viennese beer garden, with candle-lit tables covering the entire auditorium floor area.

July 14 opening will be a gala occasion with Lucine Amara, young San Francisco soprano who has risen to fame as one of the top ranking prima donnas of the Metropolitan Opera Co., as guest soloist. Conductor Fiedler has arranged to include in the opening night program selections from the current Broadway hit show "My Fair Lady."

Guest soloists for the nine other concerts include the following, chosen by Fiedler and the Music Critic's Circle: July 17, Charles Adams, pianist, who will perform Chopin's F minor concerto; pianist Barbara Hoffma, who will play the Honegger Concertino and baritone Edgar Jones, who will sing a group of operatic arias, July 21.

Pianist Shirley Winther will appear as soloist in Liszt's A major concerto, July 24 and Francis Poulenc's Double Piano Concerto will be performed by Bette and Deno Gianopoulos, July 28.

Schubert's "Wanderer" Fantasy will be performed by pianist Francis Whang July 31 and two young soloists will be featured Aug. 14 — Arpad d'Zurko, violinist, will play Waxman's "Carmen" Fantasy and soprano Jeannine Crader will sing a group of operatic arias.

Eighth concert of the series, Aug. 18, will introduce violinist Ronald Stoffel playing Bach's a Minor concerto and pianist Betty Holman Young will interpret Gershwin's Piano Concerto in F, Aug. 21.

Final performance will feature San Francisco Municipal Chorus, Aug. 25, in Beethoven's Choral Fantasy with Findlay Cockrell as solo pianist, as well as Borodin's "Polovetzian Dances." Municipal Chorus will be directed by Dr. Hans Leschke, regular conductor of the choral organization.

RALEIGH, N. C.
TIMES
Circ. D. 15,179
JUN 25 1956

Today's Aircast

By Lucy Daniels

Radio

8:15 p.m.—The Boston Pops Orchestra plays "La Boutique Fantasque" by Rossini-Respighi as its major selection of the evening. Also included in the program will be "Knightsbridge March" by Eric Coates, "1001 Nights" by Johann Strauss, and Vaughan Williams' "Fantasia on "Greensleeves'." (WPTF)

9:00 p.m.—Soprano Eileen Farrell is guest star on TELEPHONE HOUR. She will sing "Liebestod" from Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde" as well as two lighter selections — the traditional "Bendemeer's Stream" and Hugh Martin's "Vocalize" from "Athena." (WPTF)

Television

7:00 p.m.—Betty Field and Barry Nelson star in a PRODUCER'S SHOWCASE production of the Broadway comedy hit, "Happy Birthday." A mousy little librarian learns about life and love in the foreign setting of a neighborhood bar. (WTVD)

7:30 p.m.—VOICE OF FIRESTONE features Jerome Hines as soloist. His selections include Richard Rodgers' "Beautiful Morning," Bob Nolan's "Tumbling Tumbleweed," Malotte's "Open Road," and "Town of Kazan" from "Boris" by Houssorgsky. (WNAO)

8:30 p.m.—ROBERT MONTGOMERY PRESENTS "An Elephant for Peanuts," whimsical story of a young boy whose heart's desire is to own an elephant. (WTVD-WITN)

9:00 p.m.—STUDIO ONE features John Drainie and Nancy Wickwire in "Mr. Arcularis" based on Conrad Aiken's psychological suspense story. (WFMY-WNCT)

10:00 p.m.—Randolph Scott stars with Joan Bennett and May Robson in "The Texan" on TOBACCOLAND THEATER. (WTVD)

ATLANTA, GA.
JOURNAL
Circ. D. 248,115
JUN 30 1956

Fielder Conducts Monday Concert

Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra in "Scherzo" from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream," to feature the concert on Monday at 8:15 p.m. on WSB radio.

Other selections will include "Toccata" by Frescobaldi, "Joyeuse Marche" by Chabrier, and Ibert's "Divertissement."

BARNESBORO, PA.
STAR
Circ. W. 6,347
JUN 28 1956

Platter Chatter

By Sid Dickler

"The Ole Mustache"

June . . . the month of roses . . . pretty June brides . . . golfers diggin' up divots . . . early vacation time for some . . . and in the record circles June is Leroy Anderson month . . . all through this month radio and television stations have been 'saluting' composer (and oft times maestro) Leroy Anderson by playing his musical portraits from his whimsical pen.

Anderson was born in Cambridge, Mass. on June 29, 1908 . . . graduated Harvard in '29 with an A. B. Degree Magna Cum Laude in Music . . . in 1930-34 he turned to the study of languages in preparation for a teacher's career outside of the music field . . . however he was active as director of the Harvard Band and tutored Music at Radcliff College; a church organist and choirmaster also played double bass and conducted orchestras in Boston . . . in spite of these activities Anderson did not decide to make music his career until 1935. In the years that followed he made many appearances as 'Guest Conductor' of the Boston Pops and was associated as arranger and orchestrator . . . Arthur Fielder, present personable and accomplished director of the Boston Pops encouraged Leroy to great music writing aspirations by featuring many of his compositions for the first time with the famous 'Pops' organization. Leroy Anderson is a musical scholar; composer of many famous tunes; and hailed by his fellowmen along Tin Pan Alley as a guy that's 'Here to Stay' until the man upstairs plays a chord in G beckoning Anderson's association in the next world with the music greats that have gone ahead of him.

We all regard these compositions of Anderson as 'GREATS' and have heard them frequently on our home record players, radio and T V: 'A Trumpeter's Lullaby' (Leroy Anderson, Decca; Ralph Martiere, Victor; Ray Anthony, Capitol) . . . Mercury; Fielder and Boston 'Pops,' 'Belle of the Ball' (Leroy Anderson, Decca; Mantovani, London; Boston Pops, Victor) . . . 'Blue Tango' (Anderson's on Decca: Guy Lombardo, Decca; Boston Pops, Victor; Winterhalter, Victor; Dick Hayman, Mercury) . . . 'Fiddle-faddle' (Anderson, Decca; Camarata, London; Boston Pops, Victor; Three Suns, Victor) . . . The First Day of Spring, (Leroy Anderson's, Decca) . . . 'The Girl In Satin' (Anderson via Decca) . . . 'Horse and Buggy' (Leroy's on Decca; Owen Bradley's, Coral) . . . 'Irish Washerwoman' (Boston Pops, Victor; Leroy Anderson, Decca) . . . 'Jazz Legato' (Boston Pops, Victor . . . 'Jazz Pizzicato' (Florian Zabach, Decca; Fiedler Boston Pops, Victor) . . . Also by Freddy Martin on R C A - Victor . . . 'The Penny Whistle Song' (Anderson, Decca; Owen Bradley, Coral) . . . 'The Phantom Regiment' Ala Leroy Anderson, Decca . . . 'Plink, Plank, Plunk' (Three Suns, Victor, Leroy Anderson, Decca; Boston Pops, Victor) . . . 'Promenade' (Leroy Anderson, Decca; Boston Pops, Victor) . . . 'Sandpaper Ballet', Anderson, Decca; . . . 'Saraband' (Sir Thomas Beecham, Victor; Boston Pops, Fiedler; Anderson, Decca) . . . 'Serenata' (Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians, Decca; Freddie Martin, Victor; Anderson, Decco) . . . 'Sleigh Ride' (Anderson, Decca; Percy Faith, Columbia; Freddy Martin, Victor; Bing Crosby, Decca; Boston Pops, Victor; George Cates, Coral; Andrews Sisters, Decca; Three Suns, Victor) . . . 'Summer Skies,' Leroy Anderson . . . Syncopated Clock' (Fred Waring, Decca; Percy Faith, Columbia; George Cates, Coral; Rosemary Clooney, Columbia; Leroy Anderson, Decca) . . . 'The Typewriter' by Leroy Anderson, on Decca; . . . 'The Waltzing Cat' (Boston Pops, Victor; Anderson on Decca) . . . 'The Wearing of the Green' and 'The Last Rose of Summer' recorded by the composer's orchestra . . . Leroy Anderson's LP of Christmas Carols; His 'Irish Suite' and other collective manuscripts from his accomplished pen are available in long playing albums on many of the major labels.

The Anderson compositions are published by Mills Music, Incorporated, with home offices in the famous Brill Building (Tin Pan Alley) 1619 Broadway. The Mills Publishing Firm is one of the world's biggest and from our long-time personal association with the Brothers Mills we've always found them to be a most helpful aid to us in our endeavors.

GATESVILLE, N. C.
GATES COUNTY INDEX
Circ. W. 1,271
JUN 28 1956

One of the outstanding members of the United States Navy Band is Richard Bain. Known as the nation's tyoungest concer harmonicist, he has been featured with many of the country's leading symphonic organizations, including the Boston Symphony, the Buffalo Philharmonic, the New England Philharmonic, and has made guest appearances with Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians.

Sat. Review of Literature
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUN 30 1956

Vox "Pops"

STRAUSS, J.: "Village Swallows Waltz," etc. Boston Pops Orchestra conducted by Arthur Fiedler. RCA Victor LM-1985, $3.98.

THERE COMES a time in every music lover's life when all he wants to hear is Ketelby's "In a Persian Market," complete with the vocal effects in orchestra, and I can recommend, without qualification, the new one on this RCA disc as definitive. In addition to the necessary picaresque quality in the timpani, it has a cashmere smoothness rarely encountered in string playing. If we had badges and knighthoods in this country, this alone would entitle Fiedler to be addressed as Sir Arthur; failing that, we wish him many happy royalties.

The disc (entitled "Pops Picnic," though I haven't yet seen a lunch-basket with a built-in record player) is otherwise devoted largely to those matters which have made vox pops, vox dei in Boston: Gade's "Jalousie," Leroy Anderson's "Waltzing Cat," Ivanovici's "Danube Waves" (known in some circles as "The Anniversary Waltz"), Lecuona's "Malagueña," and for exit purposes von Suppé's "Poet and Peasant" overture. Mixed in are Jack Mason's "Pops Polka" and "Enchanted Sea." If the latter are good enough for Fiedler, they are good enough for me.

RCA has spared no decibels to make this collection of toe tappers as provocative as possible, with a fine overall pickup that makes you part of the Symphony Hall atmosphere. "Poet and Peasant" is outstanding in this respect, but the quality is high throughout.

—IRVING KOLODIN.

RALEIGH, N. C.
TIMES
Circ. D. 15,179
JUN 25 1956

Today's Aircast

By Lucy Daniels

Radio

8:15 p.m.—The Boston Pops Orchestra plays "La Boutique Fantasque" by Rossini-Respighi as its major selection of the evening. Also included in the program will be "Knightsbridge March" by Eric Coates, "1001 Nights" by Johann Strauss, and Vaughan Williams' "Fantasia on "Greensleeves'." (WPTF)

9:00 p.m.—Soprano Eileen Farrell is guest star on TELEPHONE HOUR. She will sing "Liebestod" from Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde" as well as two lighter selections — the traditional "Bendemeer's Stream" and Hugh Martin's "Vocalize" from "Athena." (WPTF)

Television

7:00 p.m.—Betty Field and Barry Nelson star in a PRODUCER'S SHOWCASE production of the Broadway comedy hit, "Happy Birthday." A mousy little librarian learns about life and love in the foreign setting of a neighborhood bar. (WTVD)

7:30 p.m.—VOICE OF FIRESTONE features Jerome Hines as soloist. His selections include Richard Rodgers' "Beautiful Morning," Bob Nolan's "Tumbling Tumbleweed," Malotte's "Open Road," and "Town of Kazan" from "Boris" by Houssorgsky. (WNAO)

8:30 p.m.—ROBERT MONTGOMERY PRESENTS "An Elephant for Peanuts," whimsical story of a young boy whose heart's desire is to own an elephant. (WTVD-WITN)

9:00 p.m.—STUDIO ONE features John Drainie and Nancy Wickwire in "Mr. Arcularis" based on Conrad Aiken's psychological suspense story. (WFMY-WNCT)

10:00 p.m.—Randolph Scott stars with Joan Bennett and May Robson in "The Texan" on TOBACCOLAND THEATER. (WTVD)

ATLANTA, GA.
JOURNAL
Circ. D. 248,115
JUN 30 1956

Fielder Conducts Monday Concert

Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra in "Scherzo" from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream," to feature the concert on Monday at 8:15 p.m. on WSB radio.

Other selections will include "Toccata" by Frescobaldi, "Joyeuse Marche" by Chabrier, and Ibert's "Divertissement."

BARNESBORO, PA.
STAR
Circ. W. 6,347
JUN 28 1956

Platter Chatter

By Sid Dickler

"The Ole Mustache"

June . . . the month of roses . . . pretty June brides . . . golfers diggin' up divots . . . early vacation time for some . . . and in the record circles June is Leroy Anderson month . . . all through this month radio and television stations have been 'saluting' composer (and oft times maestro) Leroy Anderson by playing his musical portraits from his whimsical pen.

Anderson was born in Cambridge, Mass. on June 29, 1908 . . . graduated Harvard in '29 with an A. B. Degree Magna Cum Laude in Music . . . in 1930-34 he turned to the study of languages in preparation for a teacher's career outside of the music field . . . however he was active as director of the Harvard Band and tutored Music at Radcliff College; a church organist and choirmaster also played double bass and conducted orchestras in Boston . . . in spite of these activities Anderson did not decide to make music his career until 1935. In the years that followed he made many appearances as 'Guest Conductor' of the Boston Pops and was associated as arranger and orchestrator . . . Arthur Fielder, present personable and accomplished director of the Boston Pops encouraged Leroy to great music writing aspirations by featuring many of his compositions for the first time with the famous 'Pops' organization. Leroy Anderson is a musical scholar; composer of many famous tunes; and hailed by his fellowmen along Tin Pan Alley as a guy that's 'Here to Stay' until the man upstairs plays a chord in G beckoning Anderson's association in the next world with the music greats that have gone ahead of him.

We all regard these compositions of Anderson as 'GREATS' and have heard them frequently on our home record players, radio and T V: 'A Trumpeter's Lullaby' (Leroy Anderson, Decca; Ralph Martiere, Victor; Ray Anthony, Capitol) . . . Mercury; Fielder and Boston 'Pops,' 'Belle of the Ball' (Leroy Anderson, Decca; Mantovani, London; Boston Pops, Victor) . . . 'Blue Tango' (Anderson's on Decca: Guy Lombardo, Decca; Boston Pops, Victor; Winterhalter, Victor; Dick Hayman, Mercury) . . . 'Fiddle-faddle' (Anderson, Decca; Camarata, London; Boston Pops, Victor; Three Suns, Victor) . . . The First Day of Spring, (Leroy Anderson's, Decca) . . . 'The Girl In Satin' (Anderson via Decca) . . . 'Horse and Buggy' (Leroy's on Decca; Owen Bradley's, Coral) . . . 'Irish Washerwoman' (Boston Pops, Victor; Leroy Anderson, Decca) . . . 'Jazz Legato' (Boston Pops, Victor . . . 'Jazz Pizzicato' (Florian Zabach, Decca; Fiedler Boston Pops, Victor) . . . Also by Freddy Martin on R C A - Victor . . . 'The Penny Whistle Song' (Anderson, Decca; Owen Bradley, Coral) . . . 'The Phantom Regiment' Ala Leroy Anderson, Decca . . . 'Plink, Plank, Plunk' (Three Suns, Victor, Leroy Anderson, Decca; Boston Pops, Victor) . . . 'Promenade' (Leroy Anderson, Decca; Boston Pops, Victor) . . . 'Sandpaper Ballet', Anderson, Decca; . . . 'Saraband' (Sir Thomas Beecham, Victor; Boston Pops, Fiedler; Anderson, Decca) . . . 'Serenata' (Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians, Decca; Freddie Martin, Victor; Anderson, Decco) . . . 'Sleigh Ride' (Anderson, Decca; Percy Faith, Columbia; Freddy Martin, Victor; Bing Crosby, Decca; Boston Pops, Victor; George Cates, Coral; Andrews Sisters, Decca; Three Suns, Victor) . . . 'Summer Skies,' Leroy Anderson . . . Syncopated Clock' (Fred Waring, Decca; Percy Faith, Columbia; George Cates, Coral; Rosemary Clooney, Columbia; Leroy Anderson, Decca) . . . 'The Typewriter' by Leroy Anderson, on Decca; . . . 'The Waltzing Cat' (Boston Pops, Victor; Anderson on Decca) . . . 'The Wearing of the Green' and 'The Last Rose of Summer' recorded by the composer's orchestra . . . Leroy Anderson's LP of Christmas Carols; His Irish Suite' and other collective manuscripts from his accomplished pen are available in long playing albums on many of the major labels.

The Anderson compositions are published by Mills Music, Incorporated, with home offices in the famous Brill Building (Tin Pan Alley) 1619 Broadway. The Mills Publishing Firm is one of the world's biggest and from our long-time personal association with the Brothers Mills we've always found them to be a most helpful aid to us in our endeavors.

GATESVILLE, N. C.
GATES COUNTY INDEX
Circ. W. 1,271
JUN 28 1956

One of the outstanding members of the United States Navy Band is Richard Bain. Known as the nation's tyoungest concer harmonicist, he has been featured with many of the country's leading symphonic organizations, including the Boston Symphony, the Buffalo Philharmonic, the New England Philharmonic, and has made guest appearances with Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians.

Sat Review of Literature
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUN 30 1956

Vox "Pops"

STRAUSS, J.: "Village Swallows Waltz," etc. Boston Pops Orchestra conducted by Arthur Fiedler. RCA Victor LM-1985, $3.98.

THERE COMES a time in every music lover's life when all he wants to hear is Ketelby's "In a Persian Market," complete with the vocal effects in orchestra, and I can recommend, without qualification, the new one on this RCA disc as definitive. In addition to the necessary picaresque quality in the timpani, it has a cashmere smoothness rarely encountered in string playing. If we had badges and knighthoods in this country, this alone would entitle Fiedler to be addressed as Sir Arthur; failing that, we wish him many happy royalties.

The disc (entitled "Pops Picnic," though I haven't yet seen a lunch-basket with a built-in record player) is otherwise devoted largely to those matters which have made vox pops, vox dei in Boston: Gade's "Jalousie," Leroy Anderson's "Waltzing Cat," Ivanovici's "Danube Waves" (known in some circles as "The Anniversary Waltz"), Lecuona's "Malagueña," and for exit purposes von Suppé's "Poet and Peasant" overture. Mixed in are Jack Mason's "Pops Polka" and "Enchanted Sea." If the latter are good enough for Fiedler, they are good enough for me.

RCA has spared no decibels to make this collection of toe tappers as provocative as possible, with a fine overall pickup that makes you part of the Symphony Hall atmosphere. "Poet and Peasant" is outstanding in this respect, but the quality is high throughout.

—IRVING KOLODIN.

CHARLOTTE, N. C. NEWS

JUL 2 1956

FINE ARTS CALENDAR

By EDWIN S. BERGAMINI

Network music: the powerful Frescobaldi Toccata in the well-known Kindler arrangement will be done by the Boston Pops Orchestra under Fiedler (WSOC, Monday, 8:15 p.m.) Also included on the program is Ibert's "Divertissement" and selections by Chambrier and Mendelssohn.

The Telephone Hour salutes Independence Day with American music (WSOC, Monday, 9 p.m.) Baritone Leonard Warren is guest soloist with the Bell Telephone Chorus.

The American Guild of Organists convention, held every other year, set up business in New York's Waldorf-Astoria hotel this week past.

Eight Charlotteans attended: Eugene Craft, minister of music at Myers Park Methodist Church, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Peek, ministers of music at Covenant Presbyterian Church, Mr. and Mrs. William Pilcher (Mr. Pilcher represents the Moller Organ Company), Miss Anna Royer, organist at Myers Park Baptist Church, and Mr. and Mrs. Dan White (Mr. White is organist and choirmaster of Garr Auditorium.)

Charlotteans will remember how its branch of the Guild had delegates going all over town at the regional meeting here a year ago. The national event in New York did the same thing, except one had farther to go, and with 21 programs, spread over only five days, to choose from!

PROGRAMS OFFERED

Organists who offered programs at the convention included Claire Coci, E. Power Biggs, Pierre Cochereau, Virgil Fox, George Thalben-Ball, and George Wright, who gave a "Milkman's Matinee" in the Paramount Theatre Wednesday at 2 a.m.!

We were lucky to catch the Pilchers, the Whites, and Mr. Craft at a breather Wednesday morning. At lunch they discussed some of the good and bad points of music they had heard the day before.

Being just a musical tourist, we had spent the evening at Lewissohn Stadium watching Pierre Monteux conduct an all-Beethoven program.

If all babies supposedly resemble Winston Churchill, all penguins might be said to look like Maitre Monteux, who has conducted about everywhere but in Penguinland during a long career.

But the resemblance ended with the down beat. If all-Beethoven programs were on the agenda of this year's Olympic games, the 81-year-old French conductor would surely be one of the front runners. He did the Leonore Overture No. 3 and the fifth and Eighth Symphonies with a tiger's grace, vitality and supple power. At the finish, a loving audience (attendance was around 8,000) stood and clapped for half a dozen bows from a genial and great musician.

The weather was magnificent, too.

JUL 7 1956

Tech Camp Will Begin On Monday

LA. Times

RUSTON, July 6 (Special)—Louisiana Tech's annual summer camp will open Monday with registration from 7 to 11 a.m. in Adams Cafeteria.

L. V. E. Irvine, camp director, has obtained some outstanding persons to serve on the administrative and instructional staff.

Among those of national reputation are Harry John Brown, assistant conductor of the Boston Pops Touring Orchestra; Sigurd Rascher, celebrated saxophonist who has appeared as soloist with the Boston Symphony, the New York Philharmonic Symphony, and many other major orchestras; Bob Roberts, noted baton twirling teacher of Los Angeles; Juanita Carpenter, head majorette of Purdue University; Hilda Gay Mayberry, Miss America of the Baton in 1952; Naomi Zarbock, Senior National Champion in 1951; and Pee Wee Crumpler, widely recognized teacher of drum majoring and baton twirling.

Well known persons in music education in Louisiana who will teach in the Tech camp are Richard McCluggage, North Caddo High School; Walter Minniear, Fair Park; Phil Kendall, Homer; Solon King, music suprevisor of Ouachita Parish; Homer Brown, Rayville; C. P. Brupbacker, West Monroe High School; Helen Ferrel Bernice; Faye Parker, Minden; Edward Mitcham and John Barnard, Ruston; Carol Venable, Crowville; and Ralph Pierce, Arcadia High School.

Mrs. Gladys Robinson, Winnsboro and Mrs. Lone Bivens of Lillie will have charge of the girls' dormitories.

Among Tech faculty members who will teach one to five classes daily in the camp are John Moore, Mary Moffett, Mary E. Wallace, Joe Sheppard, Marshall Bretz, Alfred Tellinghuisen, Duchien Cazedessus, and Irwin Swack. Mrs. C. G. Ruple will have charge of practice periods.

Tech students who will teach or will serve as counsellors are Jan Johnston (Miss Louisiana 1955)), Gail Pearson, Maxine Milner, Ruth Knotts, Everett Chadrick, Bill Abernethy, Hollis Fulton, Skippy Spencer Quinn, Hilam Rae Ezell, Glenda Matthews, Brooks Owen, Sonny Taylor, Dorothy Costello, Emily Langford, Betty Wall, Joanne Lay, and Betty Anders.

Ten-year-old Karen Rascher, talented daughter of Sigurd Rascher, will fly from New York to join her father in a special concert at the Tech camp, a feature of the second week.

SHREVEPORT LA. TIMES

JUL 6 1956

ON WITH THE SHOW

By PERICLES ALEXANDER

In Am[illegible] guest conducted [illegible] symphony. Maestro [illegible] the Boston "Pops" [illegible] bustling young musician as his assistant when the "Pops" Tour Orchestra came out for the first time three seasons ago.

The Ark-La-Tex artist colony will be delighted to learn that Brown is something of a painter and has had a one-man show of his water-colors exhibited in Davenport art galleries.

Hailed as the "Paganini of the saxophone," Swedish-born Sigurd Rascher will be another member of the staff of Tech's seventh annual music camp in Ruston. Saxophone soloists are a rarity, but here is one of the best who, because of what he has done to popularize the instrument, has had many compositions composed and dedicated to him.

Forgetting the saxophone's place in a modern dance band, there's a rather impressive sax repertoire, thanks to Rascher. Among the composers who have written for the instrument are Claude Debussy, Alexander Glazounov, Darius Milhaud, and Jacques Ibert, to drop a few names which will ring bells if not blow horns with those in the musical know of things in these parts.

Rascher is one of a very select few who has appeared as saxophone soloist with the New York Philharmonic, the Boston Symphony, and the Philadelphia Orchestra. Abroad he has played in Hilversum, Holland, where Shreveport Symphony Maestro John Shenaut is now engrossed in a five-weeks' course in conducting, Liverpool, London, Paris, Warsaw, Copenhagen, and down under in Brisbane and Sydney, Australia.

The 49-year-old musician arrived on these shores two decades ago and in recent years has become an American citizen.

His particular feat on the sax is being able to play four octaves. Rascher maintains that the instrument has the flexibility of string instruments and the strength of wind instruments to make it an excellent bridge between the two basic components of a symphony orchestra.

Anyone for a saxophone session?

[illegible]mp to Open

[illegible]eventh annual summer music [illegible]ill enlist the interest, both [illegible]many young musicians of the [illegible]ty of educational features, not [illegible] will be in session through [illegible]

[illegible]utdoor sketching, rope twirl[illegible] voice lessons, instrumental [illegible]an and glee club and choir [illegible]

TWO "STAFFERS" FOR TECH'S MUSIC CAMP . . . Studiously examining a piece of sheet music is the young conductor and arranger, Harry John Brown, assistant to Arthur Fielder with the Boston "Pops," and in the insert, Siguard Rascher the Swedish-born musician who has raised the saxaphone to a place of dignity and solo importance with symphony orchestras . . . Both are members of Louisiana Tech's seventh annual music camp, July 9-21.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.
SENTINEL
Circ. D. 186,119 - S. 226,236

JUL 8 1956

Miller Brewery Gives 'Pops' $2,000

The Miller Brewing Co. has contributed $2,000 to the Milwaukee Pops Orchestra fund campaign and will sponsor the appearance here of Arthur Fiedler, director of the Boston Pops, it was announced Saturday.

In its third week to raise $100,000 for the orchestra, the campaign is seeking sponsors for the 66 chairs in the orchestra, ranging in price from $1,000 to $5,000, as well as sponsors for artists and guest conductors.

Fiedler, conductor of Boston Pops concerts since 1930, will appear at the Milwaukee Pops concert Dec. 6 in the Auditorium. Concertgoers will be seated at tables on the main floor and in the boxes of the Auditorium and will be served beer, wine and other light refreshments in the traditional pops style.

In announcing the Miller gift, Miss Gertrude Puelicher, chairman for planning adult concerts and orchestra vice president, said:

"Again the Miller Brewing Co. has proved its great interest in Milwaukee progress. We want to personally thank Norman Klug, president of the firm, and the members of the board for their appreciation of Milwaukee's cultural needs."

In addition to sponsors for "chairs" and artists, the campaign also is seeking smaller donations from concert fans. All donors of $10 to $99 will be listed as "friends" of the orchestra society with all membership privileges. All donors of $100 and more will be listed as "donors."

The Auditorium already has been reserved for adult concerts on Oct. 11, Dec. 6, Dec. 31 and Jan. 17. To climax a series of children's programs for which the city granted $25,000 to the orchestra, a youth concert will be held Dec. 28 in the Auditorium during which only soft drinks will be sold.

Describing the orchestra campaign as a "worthy civic enterprise," Klug said it is believed the appearance of Fiedler "will help bring the pops flavor to our orchestra."

The Boston Pops season follows the symphony season, and the pops concerts have been a successful enterprise since 1885. The pops program has long helped to finance the Boston Symphony.

[illegible]ished as conductor and arranger for Helen Traubel for her supper club stint in Vegas. While we still wish to remember La Traubel as an opera diva, we have come to accept her also as movie actress-singer ("Deep in My Heart") and as a gal who charmed us on the TV channels singing "Won't You Come Home, Bill Bailey?"

How we wish Rudolf Bing would change the lyrics and sing out to Helen, "Won't You Come Home, Dear Helen, Back to the Metropolitan?" Traubel's Broadway experience in "Pipe Dream" was not as fortunate as Pinza's in "South Pacific" or "Fanny."

A graduate of the Eastman School of Music and the University of Chicago, the young and talented conductor studied two summers at Tanglewood as a pupil of the late Serge Koussevitzky. For five seasons Brown conducted the Tri-City Symphony in Davenport, Iowa.

As a youth of 16, he won an award for musical composition from the New York Philharmonic. While in service to Uncle Sam, he conducted the GI Symphony as well as appearing as guest conductor on the podium of several European orchestras, including those in Berlin, Vienna, and Munich.

CHARLOTTE, N. C. NEWS

JUL 2 1956

FINE ARTS CALENDAR

By EDWIN S. BERGAMINI

Network music: the powerful Frescobaldi Toccata in the well-known Kindler arrangement will be done by the Boston Pops Orchestra under Fiedler (WSOC, Monday, 8:15 p.m.) Also included on the program is Ibert's "Divertissement" and selections by Chambrier and Mendelssohn.

The Telephone Hour salutes Independence Day with American music (WSOC, Monday, 9 p.m.) Baritone Leonard Warren is guest soloist with the Bell Telephone Chorus.

The American Guild of Organists convention, held every other year, set up business in New York's Waldorf-Astoria hotel this week past.

Eight Charlotteans attended: Eugene Craft, minister of music at Myers Park Methodist Church, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Peek, ministers of music at Covenant Presbyterian Church, Mr. and Mrs. William Pilcher (Mr. Pilcher represents the Moller Organ Company), Miss Anna Royer, organist at Myers Park Baptist Church, and Mr. and Mrs. Dan White (Mr. White is organist and choirmaster of Garr Auditorium.)

Charlotteans will remember how its branch of the Guild had delegates going all over town at the regional meeting here a year ago. The national event in New York did the same thing, except one had farther to go, and with 21 programs, spread over only five days, to choose from!

PROGRAMS OFFERED

Organists who offered programs at the convention included Claire Coci, E. Power Biggs, Pierre Cochereau, Virgil Fox, George Thalben-Ball, and George Wright, who gave a "Milkman's Matinee" in the Paramount Theatre Wednesday at 2 a.m.!

We were lucky to catch the Pilchers, the Whites, and Mr. Craft at a breather Wednesday morning. At lunch they discussed some of the good and bad points of music they had heard the day before.

Being just a musical tourist, we had spent the evening at Lewissohn Stadium watching Pierre Monteux conduct an all-Beethoven program.

If all babies supposedly resemble Winston Churchill, all penguins might be said to look like Maitre Monteux, who has conducted about everywhere but in Penguinland during a long career.

But the resemblance ended with the down beat. If all-Beethoven programs were on the agenda of this year's Olympic games, the 81-year-old French conductor would surely be one of the front runners. He did the Leonore Overture No. 3 and the fifth and Eighth Symphonies with a tiger's grace, vitality and supple power. At the finish, a loving audience (attendance was around 8,000) stood and clapped for half a dozen bows from a genial and great musician.

The weather was magnificent, too.

JUL 7 1956

Tech Camp Will Begin On Monday

RUSTON, July 6 (Special)—Louisiana Tech's annual summer camp will open Monday with registration from 7 to 11 a.m. in Adams Cafeteria.

L. V. E. Irvine, camp director, has obtained some outstanding persons to serve on the administrative and instructional staff.

Among those of national reputation are Harry John Brown, assistant conductor of the Boston Pops Touring Orchestra; Sigurd Rascher, celebrated saxophonist who has appeared as soloist with the Boston Symphony, the New York Philharmonic Symphony, and many other major orchestras; Bob Roberts, noted baton twirling teacher of Los Angeles; Juanita Carpenter, head majorette of Purdue University; Hilda Gay Mayberry, Miss America of the Baton in 1952; Naomi Zarbock, Senior National Champion in 1951; and Pee Wee Crumpler, widely recognized teacher of drum majoring and baton twirling.

Well known persons in music education in Louisiana who will teach in the Tech camp are Richard McCluggage, North Caddo High School; Walter Minniear, Fair Park; Phil Kendall, Homer; Solon King, music suprevisor of Ouachita Parish; Homer Brown, Rayville; C. P. Brupbacker, West Monroe High School; Helen Ferrel Bernice; Faye Parker, Minden; Edward Mitcham and John Barnard, Ruston; Carol Venable, Crowville; and Ralph Pierce, Arcadia High School.

Mrs. Gladys Robinson, Winnsboro and Mrs. Lone Bivens of Lillie will have charge of the girls' dormitories.

Among Tech faculty members who will teach one to five classes daily in the camp are John Moore, Mary Moffett, Mary E. Wallace, Joe Sheppard, Marshall Bretz, Alfred Tellinghuisen, Duchien Cazedessus, and Irwin Swack. Mrs. C. G. Ruple will have charge of practice periods.

Tech students who will teach or will serve as counsellors are Jan Johnston (Miss Louisiana 1955)), Gail Pearson, Maxine Milner, Ruth Knotts, Everett Chadrick, Bill Abernethy, Hollis Fulton, Skippy Spencer Quinn, Hilam Rae Ezell, Glenda Matthews, Brooks Owen, Sonny Taylor, Dorothy Costello, Emily Langford, Betty Wall, Joanne Lay, and Betty Anders.

Ten-year-old Karen Rascher, talented daughter of Sigurd Rascher, will fly from New York to join her father in a special concert at the Tech camp, a feature of the second week.

SHREVEPORT LA. TIMES

JUL 6 1956

ON WITH THE SHOW

By PERICLES ALEXANDER

In America he has guest conducted the Chicago Symphony. Maestro Fiedler of the Boston "Pops" engaged the bustling young musician as his assistant when the "Pops" Tour Orchestra came out for the first time three seasons ago.

The Ark-La-Tex artist colony will be delighted to learn that Brown is something of a painter and has had a one-man show of his water-colors exhibited in Davenport art galleries.

Hailed as the "Paganini of the saxophone," Swedish-born Sigurd Rascher will be another member of the staff of Tech's seventh annual music camp in Ruston. Saxophone soloists are a rarity, but here is one of the best who, because of what he has done to popularize the instrument, has had many compositions composed and dedicated to him.

Forgetting the saxophone's place in a modern dance band, there's a rather impressive sax repertoire, thanks to Rascher. Among the composers who have written for the instrument are Claude Debussy, Alexander Glazounov, Darius Milhaud, and Jacques Ibert, to drop a few names which will ring bells if not blow horns with those in the musical know of things in these parts.

Rascher is one of a very select few who has appeared as saxophone soloist with the New York Philharmonic, the Boston Symphony, and the Philadelphia Orchestra. Abroad he has played in Hilversum, Holland, where Shreveport Symphony Maestro John Shenaut is now engrossed in a five-weeks' course in conducting, Liverpool, London, Paris, Warsaw, Copenhagen, and down under in Brisbane and Sydney, Australia.

The 49-year-old musician arrived on these shores two decades ago and in recent years has become an American citizen.

His particular feat on the sax is being able to play four octaves. Rascher maintains that the instrument has the flexibility of string instruments and the strength of wind instruments to make it an excellent bridge between the two basic components of a symphony orchestra.

Anyone for a saxophone session?

mp to Open

eventh annual summer music ill enlist the interest, both many young musicians of the ty of educational features, not will be in session through outdoor sketching, rope twirl- voice lessons, instrumental an and glee club and choir

TWO "STAFFERS" FOR TECH'S MUSIC CAMP . . . Studiously examining a piece of sheet music is the young conductor and arranger, Harry John Brown, assistant to Arthur Fielder with the Boston "Pops," and, in the insert, Siguard Rascher the Swedish-born musician who has raised the saxaphone to a place of dignity and solo importance with symphony orchestras . . . Both are members of Louisiana Tech's seventh annual music camp, July 9-21.

MILWAUKEE, WIS. SENTINEL

Circ. D. 186,119 - S. 226,236

JUL 8 1956

Miller Brewery Gives 'Pops' $2,000

The Miller Brewing Co. has contributed $2,000 to the Milwaukee Pops Orchestra fund campaign and will sponsor the appearance here of Arthur Fiedler, director of the Boston Pops, it was announced Saturday.

In its third week to raise $100,000 for the orchestra, the campaign is seeking sponsors for the 66 chairs in the orchestra, ranging in price from $1,000 to $5,000, as well as sponsors for artists and guest conductors.

Fiedler, conductor of Boston Pops concerts since 1930, will appear at the Milwaukee Pops concert Dec. 6 in the Auditorium. Concertgoers will be seated at tables on the main floor and in the boxes of the Auditorium and will be served beer, wine and other light refreshments in the traditional pops style.

In announcing the Miller gift, Miss Gertrude Puelicher, chairman for planning adult concerts and orchestra vice president, said:

"Again the Miller Brewing Co. has proved its great interest in Milwaukee progress. We want to personally thank Norman Klug, president of the firm, and the members of the board for their appreciation of Milwaukee's cultural needs."

In addition to sponsors for "chairs" and artists, the campaign also is seeking smaller donations from concert fans. All donors of $10 to $99 will be listed as "friends" of the orchestra society with all membership privileges. All donors of $100 and more will be listed as "donors."

The Auditorium already has been reserved for adult concerts on Oct. 11, Dec. 6, Dec. 31 and Jan. 17. To climax a series of children's programs for which the city granted $25,000 to the orchestra, a youth concert will be held Dec. 28 in the Auditorium during which only soft drinks will be sold.

Describing the orchestra campaign as a "worthy civic enterprise," Klug said it is believed the appearance of Fiedler "will help bring the pops flavor to our orchestra."

The Boston Pops season follows the symphony season, and the pops concerts have been a successful enterprise since 1885. The pops program has long helped to finance the Boston Symphony.

labored as conductor and arranger for Helen Traubel for her supper club stint in Vegas. While we still wish to remember La Traubel as an opera diva, we have come to accept her also as movie actress-singer ("Deep in My Heart") and as a gal who charmed us on the TV channels singing "Won't You Come Home, Bill Bailey?"

How we wish Rudolf Bing would change the lyrics and sing out to Helen, "Won't You Come Home, Dear Helen, Back to the Metropolitan?" Traubel's Broadway experience in "Pipe Dream" was not as fortunate as Pinza's in "South Pacific" or "Fanny."

A graduate of the Eastman School of Music and the University of Chicago, the young and talented conductor studied two summers at Tanglewood as a pupil of the late Serge Koussevitzky. For five seasons Brown conducted the Tri-City Symphony in Davenport, Iowa.

As a youth of 16, he won an award for musical composition from the New York Philharmonic. While in service to Uncle Sam, he conducted the GI Symphony as well as appearing as guest conductor on the podium of several European orchestras, including those in Berlin, Vienna, and Munich.

CHARLOTTE, N. C. NEWS

CALENDAR

RGAMINI

Frescobaldi Toccata in nt will be done by the iedler (WSOC, Monday, program is Ibert's "Dinbrier and Mendelssohn.
ndependence Day with
.m.) Baritone Leonard

Winston Churchill, all might be said to look re Monteux, who has about everywhere enguinland during a r. resemblance ended n beat. If all-Beetho-s were on the s year's Olympic
-year-old French
d surely be one
ers. He did the
No. 3 and the Symphonies race, vitality
At the fince (attend-000) stood a dozen nd great ificent,

W
th ists year
York
this Eigh
Eugene
sic at Church,
Peek, m
Covenant
Mr. and
(Mr. Pilche
ler Organ C na Royer,
Park Baptist and Mrs. Dan is organist an Garr Auditoriu

Charlotteans
how its branch o delegates going at the regional m year ago. The nati
New York did the except one had far and with 21 progran over only five days,
from!

PROGRAMS OFFEREL

Organists who offere grams at the convention in Claire Coci, E. Power
Pierre Cochereau, Virgil
George Thalben-Ball,
George Wright, who gave
"Milkman's Matinee" in th
Paramount Theatre Wednesday at 2 a.m.!

We were lucky to catch the Pilchers, the Whites, and Mr. Craft at a breather Wednesday morning. At lunch they discussed some of the good and bad points of music they had heard the day before.

Being just a musical tourist, we had spent the evening at Lewissohn Stadium watching Pierre Monteux conduct an all-Beethoven program.

If all babies supposedly re-

JUL 7 1956

Tech Camp Will Begin On Monday

RUSTON, July 6 (Special)—Louisiana Tech's annual summer camp will open Monday with registration from 7 to 11 a.m. in Adams Cafeteria.

L. V. E. Irvine, camp director, has obtained some outstanding persons to serve on the administrative and instructional staff.

Among those of national reputation are Harry John Brown, assistant conductor of the Boston Pops Touring Orchestra; Sigurd Rascher, celebrated saxophonist who has appeared as soloist with the Boston Symphony, the New York Philharmonic Symphony, and many other major orchestras; Bob Roberts, noted baton twirling teacher of Los Angeles; Juanita Carpenter, head majorette of Purdue University; Hilda Gay Mayberry, Miss America of the Baton in 1952; Naomi Zarbock, Senior National Champion in 1951; and Pee Wee Crumpler, widely recognized teacher of drum majoring and baton twirling.

Well known persons in music education in Louisiana who will teach in the Tech camp are Richard McCluggage, North Caddo High School; Walter Minniear, Fair Park; Phil Kendall, Homer; Solon King, music suprevisor of Ouachita Parish; Homer Brown, Rayville; C. P. Brupbacker, West Monroe High School; Helen Ferrel Bernice; Faye Parker, Minden; Edward Mitcham and John Barnard, Ruston; Carol Venable, Crowville; and Ralph Pierce, Arcadia High School.

Mrs. Gladys Robinson, Winnsboro and Mrs. Lone Bivens of Lillie will have charge of the girls' dormitories.

Among Tech faculty members who will teach one to five classes daily in the camp are John Moore, Mary Moffett, Mary E. Wallace, Joe Sheppard, Marshall Bretz, Alfred Tellinghuisen, Duchien Cazedessus, and Irwin Swack. Mrs. C. G. Ruple will have charge of practice periods.

Tech students who will teach or will serve as counsellors are Jan Johnston (Miss Louisiana 1955)), Gail Pearson, Maxine Milner, Ruth Knotts, Everett Chadrick, Bill Abernethy, Hollis Fulton, Skippy Spencer Quinn, Hilam Rae Ezell, Glenda Matthews, Brooks Owen, Sonny Taylor, Dorothy Costello, Emily Langford, Betty Wall, Joanne Lay, and Betty Anders.

Ten-year-old Karen Rascher, talented daughter of Sigurd Rascher, will fly from New York to join her father in a special concert at the Tech camp, a feature of the second week.

THE SHOW

ARLES ALEXANDER

Tech Music Camp to Open

Beginning Monday, the seventh annual summer music camp of Louisiana Tech will enlist the interest, both musical and recreational, of many young musicians of the area and afield. With a variety of educational features, not all musical, the Tech camp will be in session through July 21.

Such diverse interests as outdoor sketching, rope twirling, and drama will vie with voice lessons, instrumental instruction in piano and organ and glee club and choir work.

Dr. L. V. E. Irvine, director of the Tech Camp, will agree with us there's nothing musical about rope twirling but this trick led to a career in show business and a warm place in the big heart of America for the late Will Rogers.

Top personnel for the camp, including Harry John Brown, 29-year-old assistant conductor of the Boston "Pops," a familiar musical organization in the Ark-La-Tex, has been engaged for the various activities.

For Brown, it will mark the second consecutive year he has been engaged for duty at the Tech camp in Ruston. When the Boston "Pops" played up a storm for the large membership of the Louisiana Tech Concert Association two seasons ago with Brown sharing the podium with Arthur Fielder, the assistant maestro came to Dr. Irvine's attention as a possibility for his camp roster last summer.

Between concerts at Howard Auditorium, Dr. Irvine broached the matter and followed it up by getting the young conductor's signature on a contract a few weeks later. He came to the Tech music camp last summer directly from an interesting assignment in Las Vegas with a top entertainer.

If you are dying to know, Brown labored as conductor and arranger for Helen Traubel for her supper club stint in Vegas. While we still wish to remember La Traubel as an opera diva, we have come to accept her also as movie actress-singer ("Deep in My Heart") and as a gal who charmed us on the TV channels singing "Won't You Come Home, Bill Bailey?"

How we wish Rudolf Bing would change the lyrics and sing out to Helen, "Won't You Come Home, Dear Helen, Back to the Metropolitan?" Traubel's Broadway experience in "Pipe Dream" was not as fortunate as Pinza's in "South Pacific" or "Fanny."

A graduate of the Eastman School of Music and the University of Chicago, the young and talented conductor studied two summers at Tanglewood as a pupil of the late Serge Koussevitzky. For five seasons Brown conducted the Tri-City Symphony in Davenport, Iowa.

As a youth of 16, he won an award for musical composition from the New York Philharmonic. While in service to Uncle Sam, he conducted the GI Symphony as well as appearing as guest conductor on the podium of several European orchestras, including those in Berlin, Vienna, and Munich.

and in recent years has become an American citizen.

His particular feat on the sax is being able to play four octaves. Rascher maintains that the instrument has the flexibility of string instruments and the strength of wind instruments to make it an excellent bridge between the two basic components of a symphony orchestra.

Anyone for a saxophone session?

MILWAUKEE, WIS.
SENTINEL
Circ. D. 186,119 - S. 226,236

JUL 8 1956

TWO "STAFFERS" FOR TECH'S MUSIC CAMP . . . Studiously examining a piece of sheet music is the young conductor and arranger, Harry John Brown, assistant to Arthur Fielder with the Boston "Pops," and, in the insert, Siguard Rascher the Swedish-born musician who has raised the saxaphone to a place of dignity and solo importance with symphony orchestras . . . Both are members of Louisiana Tech's seventh annual music camp, July 9-21.

Miller Brewery Gives 'Pops' $2,000

The Miller Brewing Co. has contributed $2,000 to the Milwaukee Pops Orchestra fund campaign and will sponsor the appearance here of Arthur Fiedler, director of the Boston Pops, it was announced Saturday.

In its third week to raise $100,000 for the orchestra, the campaign is seeking sponsors for the 66 chairs in the orchestra, ranging in price from $1,000 to $5,000, as well as sponsors for artists and guest conductors.

Fiedler, conductor of Boston Pops concerts since 1930, will appear at the Milwaukee Pops concert Dec. 6 in the Auditorium. Concertgoers will be seated at tables on the main floor and in the boxes of the Auditorium and will be served beer, wine and other light refreshments in the traditional pops style.

In announcing the Miller gift, Miss Gertrude Puelicher, chairman for planning adult concerts and orchestra vice president, said:

"Again the Miller Brewing Co. has proved its great interest in Milwaukee progress. We want to personally thank Norman Klug, president of the firm, and the members of the board for their appreciation of Milwaukee's cultural needs."

In addition to sponsors for "chairs" and artists, the campaign also is seeking smaller donations from concert fans. All donors of $10 to $99 will be listed as "friends" of the orchestra society with all membership privileges. All donors of $100 and more will be listed as "donors."

The Auditorium already has been reserved for adult concerts on Oct. 11, Dec. 6, Dec. 31 and Jan. 17. To climax a series of children's programs for which the city granted $25,000 to the orchestra, a youth concert will be held Dec. 28 in the Auditorium during which only soft drinks will be sold.

Describing the orchestra campaign as a "worthy civic enterprise," Klug said it is believed the appearance of Fiedler "will help bring the pops flavor to our orchestra."

The Boston Pops season follows the symphony season, and the pops concerts have been a successful enterprise since 1885. The pops program has long helped to finance the Boston Symphony.

TIGHT BINDING

114

MIAMI, FLA.
NEWS
Circ. D. 125,316 - S. 110,071
JUL 8 1956

New Concert Records

Reds Now Exporting Top Quality Tapes

The new deal in cultural relations between the Soviet Union and the United States, which has resulted in some of Russia's top artists performing here for the first time, apparently has been extended to include some of the finest tapes yet to emerge from behind the Iron Curtain.

A new batch of LP disks just released by Westminster Records may be regarded as part of the official Russian cultural project, as the tapes were imported by arrangement with the Leeds Music Co., the Soviet government's agent in matters musical in this country.

Outstanding in the new Westminster collection is the first complete recording of Prokofiev's strikingly dramatic "Romeo and Juliet" Ballet, which is taken from the sound track of the recently produced Russian film version (XWN-2206).

PROKOFIEV composed the score in 1940, in which year the ballet had its premiere at the Kirov Opera House, Leningrad. In 1946 a revised version of the ballet was introduced into the repertoire of Moscow's famed Bolshoi Theater, where it is now one of the most popular works.

Except for three orchestral suites arranged by the composer, one of which was recorded several years back by the Boston Symphony, the full music of Prokofiev's "Romeo and Juliet" was virtually unknown to the Western World until the recent film version appeared.

The recorded performance by the Bolshoi Theater Orchestra, under the deft direction of Gennadi Rozhedestvensky, is distinguished for its clarity and intense feeling. It is reproduced with striking some realism.

Also of special interest is a recording in which David Oistrakh, Russia's No. 1 violin virtuoso, is heard with Soviet pianist Lev Oborn and Soviet 'cellist Sviatoslav Knushevitzky in Dvorak's Trio in E Minor, Op. 90, and Smetana's Trio in G Minor, Op. 15 (XWN-18175).

This is ensemble playing of a high order, filled with eloquence and tonal splendor. Oistrakh's playing, as usual has sweep, assurance and tremendous command, and at all times there is a fine degree of musical communication with the other artists.

Both performances are uncommonly well reproduced.

Another importation is a disk devoted to "Popular Russian Songs," which are of strongly nationalistic flavor and stick close to party-line propaganda (WP-6009). The singing by the various Russian choruses is, for the most part, excellent.

OF VASTLY greater musical interest is a three-disk recording of "Anush," an opera by the Armenian Composer Armen Tigranian based on a poem of the same title by Hovhannes Toumanian.

Like Glazunov, Tigranian composed under both the Czarist and Bolshevik regimes. "Amush" was begun in 1908 and had its first performance in 1912. Thereafter, it was revised periodically by the composer until 1938.

The idiom as might be expected is intensely nationalistic, although the composer does not at any time actually employ Armenian folk melodies. The recorded performance is by soloist, chorus and orchestra of the Armenian State Theater, Mikhail Tavrizian conducting.

The voices, however, are not much better than journeyman level — sturdy but not eloquent.

Another fascinating recording in the Westminster series is Kara Karayev's "Seven Beauties" Ballet, which is performed expertly by the Orchestra of the Leningrad Maly Theater, under the direction of Eduard Grikurov (WN-18145).

It is a soundly constructed work along romantic lines.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.
JOURNAL
Circ. D. 345,604 - S. 477,285
JUL 8 1956

Fiedler Slated for Pops Here

Appearance Sponsored by Miller Brewery for Dec. 6 Concert

Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Pops orchestra for 26 years, will be guest conductor at a Milwaukee Pops orchestra concert at the Auditorium on Dec. 6. His appearance will be sponsored by the Miller Brewing Co. through a $2,000 gift to the orchestra. This was announced Saturday by Miss Gertrude Puelicher, orchestra vice-president and chairman of its adult concerts planning committee. The Milwaukee orchestra, recently reorganized, is being modeled after the Boston Pops.

Arthur Fiedler

"The Miller Brewing Co. has again proved its great interest in Milwaukee progress," Miss Puelicher said. "We want to thank Norman Klug, the president, and the members of the Miller board for their appreciation of Milwaukee's cultural needs."

Klug said that the brewery officers had been impressed with the way the Milwaukee Pops concerts were being planned and with the enthusiasm of the volunteer workers on the orchestra board and in its fund campaign organization.

The Dec. 6 concert, the second of the series of adult concerts planned for the coming season, will use the entire Bruce hall of the Auditorium. The auditorium floor and boxes will be set with tables at which beer, wine and other refreshments will be served. About 1,900 seats will be available at these tables at prices ranging from $2.25 to $3.50.

In the parquet section, 1,608 seats will be sold for $1 to $1.75; there will be 1,200 additional seats in the balcony for 50c and 75c. Refreshments also will be available to concertgoers in the parquet and balcony seats.

TOLEDO, OHIO
TIMES
Circ. D. 48,355
JUL 10 1956

Musical Series Using Jazz To Help Pay Way For More Classical Efforts

By FREDERICK J. KOUNTZ

GLOUCESTER, Mass., July 9—My yearly reintroduction to this most amazing of communities was not unaccompanied by music. There had been the journey on turnpikes, my first experience with these racetracks for public consumption; there had been an exposure to the outskirts of New York City at the beginning of a holiday weekend which, to speak very mildly, is extremely discouraging to a driver who wants to get somewhere else; and eventually there was the joyous recognition of the peculiar Gloucester scent which is always a comforting sensation to those who have known it through many years.

As it happened my arrival coincided with the first weekend of concerts at Castle Hill. For the benefit of any who may have come in late during the past several summers, the Castle Hill concerts are the series administered by Mr. S. L. M. Barlow of New York City and this community and presented annually on the former estate of the plumbing Cranes in nearby Ipswich.

Arena Moved To Lawn

For a number of years Mr. Barlow functioned only in a field of rarely observed combinations in the dance, and among vocalists and instrumentalists. And most of the music could be heard only infrequently in the normal concert halls. Then last summer Mr. Barlow, for reasons apparent to all, became acquainted with jazz for public consumption in his arena.

For the purpose of the opening concerts last summer by the Honorable Lou Armstrong the arena was moved from the exquisite little Italian Theater to the enormous lawn which slopes down to the sea from what used to be the mansion house. It is impossible to get an audience beyond 700 into the Italian Theater. The lawn accommodates several thousand comfortably. And in his two concerts Mr. Armstrong persuaded onto the lawn a larger audience than Mr. Barlow had been able to achieve in his entire series during the previous summer.

This year the opening night honor allowed to a certain Count Basie, a gentleman not unknown to the followers of swing and jump. And by any measure it was a good evening. The audience was as large as it had been on the first night which is to say that the 2-night total was larger than the sum of all last summer's concerts with the exception of the Armstrong outings. The band was apparently in fine form. And there was abundant merriment among the onlookers.

Intimacy Non-Existent

Now there is no doubt that all such conditions are to be earnestly sought after. But I note with more pronounced suspicion throughout the past two years that jazz is being used. It does no harm of course since jazz is a very hardy and entirely durable breed of semi-communication. But to allege that a jazz performance in a large hall or in an amphitheater of endless spaces is jazz for the informed is quite likely a serious distortion of facts.

To begin with, the intimacy of personal communication, which is the soul of jazz, is completely non-existent. And in addition the informed, if they are on hand, are aware that they are only observers, never participants. And they regret the existence of such a condition.

The plain fact is that very polite jazz has become in the vogue lately; that perhaps by intent, certainly by the demands of the climatic and geographical circumstances under which it has to function it is a watered down variety; that it is paying part of the way for other aspects of music that are apparently unable to sustain themselves in an arena where vogues and fashions are of such primacy—although always extremely perishable.

Fiedler Opens Concerts

Mr. Arthur Fiedler, who has been in the music business in Boston for a number of years, has made his own vogues and fashions. And the experience of more than three decades has demonstrated that they are not at all perishable.

Mr. Fiedler was presiding at the 28th annual opening of Boston's Esplanade Concerts. Expert estimators in the locality fixed his audience for the opening night at 12,000. These numerous Fiedler followers heard the Berlioz Rakoczy March, Beethoven's Symphony No. 8, the first movement of Tchaikowsky's Piano Concerto No. 1, and the same composer's Marche Slav.

The elements which make for essential durability in Mr. Fiedler's production in the Pop Concerts here in Boston, and of late years throughout the country, and in these Esplanade Concerts are several. He knows his business thoroughly not only because his training was solid but because he has worked at it intensely over so many years. He is an experienced conductor and a sound musician.

And he has learned by constant practice the prevailing nature of the tastes of Pops and outdoor audiences. By and large he has not catered taste but has moulded them on a preeminently high level. And it is apparent that the audiences are grateful to him. The concerts will continue through July 14. At that time such of the regular Boston Orchestra players who are still on hand will depart for Tanglewood to rejoin their fellows for the concerts by the full orchestra on those grounds.

FINAL CHILDREN'S ESPLANADE CONCERT of 1956, with Arthur Fiedler conducting the orchestra. In the background is a part of the audience of 5,000 at yesterday morning's concert. Herald July 12

PIANIST AND CONDUCTOR go over the score for a final checkup before Michele Levin, 11, gave a Mozart performance at the Children's Esplanade Concert. The conductor is Arthur Fiedler, of course. Herald July 12

TIGHT BINDING

115

Jazz To Help Classical Effort

...n able to ...entire series ...us summer. ...pening night ...a certain ...entleman not ...followers of ...And by any ...a good eve- ...nce was as ...been on the ...s to say that ...was larger ...ll last sum- ...h the excep- ...ong outings. ...pparently in ...there was ...nent among

...ent

...doubt that ...are to be ...fter. But ...pronounced ...ut the past ...azz is being ...rm of course ...hardy and ...eed of semi- ...ut to allege

...ent) ..	4	5
.....	15¾	16⅞
.....	9½	10½
.....	9¾	10¾
.....	10	11
.....	10	11
.....	92	95

...OCKS

...mmunication, ...of jazz, is ...istent. And ...med, if they ...aware that ...rvers, never ...they regret ...ch a condi-

...that very ...ome in the ...perhaps by ...by the de- ...tic and geo- ...ances under ...nction it is ...ariety; that ...the way for ...usic that are ...to sustain ...arena where ...s are of such ...always ex- ...e.

...ncerts

...ler, who has ...c business in ...ber of years,

Crawford Ave., girl. S...
Mr. and Mrs. Raymond ...
931 Yates St., boy, Sund...
Mr. and Mrs. William L...
Genoa, boy, Sunday.
Mrs. and Mrs. Robert ...
Palmer St., boy, Sunda...
Mr. and Mrs. James S...

is apparent that the ...are grateful to him.

...OR go over the score for a ...thele Levin, 11, gave a ...Children's Esplanade Con- ...hur Fiedler, of course. ...d July 12

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Free Press
MELROSE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,490

JUL 12 ...

Final Esplanade Concerts Scheduled

Come to Boston the weekend of July 13 and besides being able to take advantage of whatever form of relaxation that suits you to a "T", you'll be able to enjoy the final Esplanade Concerts conducted by the Boston Pops Orchestra at the Hatch Memorial Shell.

According to the Massachusetts Department of Commerce the last two concerts of the season will be held on Friday evening, July 13 and on Sunday evening, July 15.

A visit to Boston's many historical shrines is always enjoyable and informative. Adventures in eating are in store for those who visit the many wonderful dining houses and for the more active, exciting amusement centers and beaches are just a few minutes away.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Enterprise (e)
MARLBORO, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 5,435

JUL 12 1956

CONCERT AT ESPLANADE ON THIS WEEKEND

Final Presentations For Summer By Boston Pops Orchestra

Boston, Mass.—Come to Boston the weekend of July 13th, and besides being able to take advantage of whatever form of relaxation that suits you to a "T," you'll be able to enjoy the final Esplanade Concerts conducted by the Boston Pops Orchestra at the Hatch Memorial Shell.

According to the Massachusetts Department of Commerce, the last two concerts of the season will be held on Friday evening, July 13th, and on Sunday evening, July 15th.

Arrive early and plan to spend the entire weekend taking advantage of the many wonderful things to do in Boston. A visit to Boston's many historical shrines is always enjoyable and informative. Adventures in eating are in store for those who visit the many wonderful dining houses, and for the more active, exciting amusement centers and beaches are just a few minutes away.

All main roads lead to Boston, "Hub of the Universe," and its modern transportation system, the M.T.A., allows easy connection with all the main points of interest.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,628

JUL 12 1956

(Record-American Lee Renehan)

Vice Pres. James H. Fairclough, Jr., of Jordan Marsh accepts a certificate of acknowledgement from Conductor Arthur Fiedler in recognition of the store's sponsorship of last night's Esplanade concert by the Boston Symphony Pops Orchestra. It was another one of the community services for which Jordan Marsh is noted.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 264,020

JUL 13 1956

FILENE'S HONORED—Charles Pinfield, left, representing the trustees of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, presents certificate to Joseph Affanato of William Filene's Sons Co. on stage of Hatch Memorial Shell. Trustees paid tribute to Filene's as a leader in civic enterprises and as a strong supporter of the Boston Symphony.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

JUN 12 1956

Greater Boston Irish News

GB Irish Feis At BC July 1

100 Competitions in Various Fields to Feature Gala Affair

By MARY TIERNEY

The skirl of bag-pipes and patter of dancing feet will once again be heard Sunday, July 1, when the Greater Boston Irish Feis will be presented at Boston College Alumni Field.

Sponsored annually by the Central Council of Irish County Clubs, the Feis, in the past seven years has become a tradition in this section.

Contestants from all parts of New England and as far west as Chicago, as well as Philadelphia and New York will compete for medals and trophies.

More than 100 various competitions in Irish and Scottish singing, dancing, story-telling, Gaelic and English recitations and the harp will be featured on the program.

Special events in the Scottish competitions will include "The Sword Dance" and the "Highland Fling."

James McCarthy of Somerville, well known in Irish circles for his talent and knowledge of Gaelic speaking, dancing and singing, will serve as chairman.

Already, hundreds of entries have been received at Feis headquarters, Hibernian Building, Roxbury. However, all contestants are urged to contact Feis headquarters by June 20 so that final details may be handled efficiently and on time.

A LAWN PARTY to aid the Medical Missionaries of Mary will be held Saturday at One Arlington St., Winchester, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

A day's program for young and old alike will feature games, gifts and goodies. Special tables of food, cakes and prizes will be offered for sale.

Lunch and supper will be served to all in attendance.

EVERY SEASON in a different way, Irish artists are more and more influencing the souvenir market.

This week a new exhibition in Dublin, arranged by Bord Failte Eireann, the Irish Tourist Board, features the newest in Irish souvenirs by leading Irish artists.

In every nook and cranny in Ireland, artists are looking for inspiration in the old traditional crafts of the countryside in an effort to make souvenirs more exciting than ever before.

A Galway woman has designed harvest knot brooches and sprays. From Donegal and Leitrim have come distinctive material for dainty shell dolls.

The famous Irish blackthorn, known the world over, is now being used for brooches.

Ceramics and pottery are being fully exploited with many artists using their talents to present popular Irish scenes and characters.

A 23-YEAR-OLD Irish composer made his debut in Dublin this week.

SEOIRSE BODLEY has been awarded first prize by the Irish Arts Council for a musical composition.

He is a graduate of the National University of Ireland and a licentiate of Trinity College, London. Many of his works have been presented on Radio Eireann.

LONG BEFORE Arthur Fiedler's baton was lifted on the the first number of the Eire Society Pops program, the "sold out" sign was posted at the box office.

The entire program was a huge success as every single person thrilled to the Irish selections and their excellent treatment by the Pops artists.

Early reports from Ireland indicate the Irish appearances of the Symphony Orchestra should be just as successful and enthusiastically received.

ONE HUNDRED and seventy doctors from 14 countries are currently visiting Irish hospitals as guests of the Irish Hospitals Commission.

The group, members of the International Hospital Federation, have held tours in Sweden, Italy and France in recent years.

The doctors presently touring Ireland are from Europe, Asia and the United States.

THE SIXTH ANNUAL Fleadh Ceoil, Music Festival, featuring traditional musicians and ballad singers was held last week in Ennis, the capital of County Clare.

All together, 750 competitors and more than 20 ceili bands took part in the festival.

IRISH HANDICRAFT has made an appearance in South Africa.

A Donegal handmade carpet has been specially woven for a leading South African interior designer, to complete a interior design for a new hotel in Durban.

The oval carpet measuring 27 feet by 17 feet, was woven in three weeks at the factory of Donegal Carpets Ltd., Killybegs, an Irish firm which uses all-Irish wool throughout.

ST. COLUMBAN'S Circle will sponsor a whist party tomorrow evening at Ashmont Hall, Dorchester.

The committee in charge of arrangements includes Mrs. Stephen Wallace, Miss Katherine O'Sullivan, Mrs. Stephen Connolly and Mrs. Thomas Lavin.

AN IRISH DELEGATION, consisting of three Irish consulting engineers, has left for the U. S. to study consulting engineering practices with special emphasis on development in Ireland.

The group is being sponsored by the Organization for European Economic Cooperation. They will visit major consulting engineers' firms and view examples of power development, including nuclear power in construction, mechanical and electrical works.

Final reports by the group will be made available to all engineers in Ireland.

(Mary Tierney's Irish column is published every Tuesday in the Boston Traveler.)

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

JUL 13 1956

Jordan Marsh Cited

ARTHUR FIEDLER (right) conductor of the Esplanade Concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra presents a certificate to Jordan Marsh Co. official. Certificate acknowledged the store's sponsorship of one of the nightly concerts. Receiving certificate is James H. Fairclough Jr., vice-president of Jordan Marsh.

TIGHT BINDING

115

g Jazz To Help Classical Effort en able to entire series us summer. pening night a certain entleman not followers of And by any a good eve- nce was as been on the s to say that was larger all last sum- th the excep- ong outings. parently in there was nent among tent doubt that are to be after. But I pronounced ut the past azz is being rm of course y hardy and eed of semi- ut to allege

ent	5	5
	15⅛	15⅞
	9½	10½
	9¾	10¾
	10	11
	10	11
	92	95

OCKS

munication, of jazz, is istent. And med, if they aware that rvers, never they regret uch a condi-

s that very come in the perhaps by by the de- atic and geo- tances under unction it is variety; that the way for usic that are to sustain arena where ns are of such always ex- e.

ncerts

ller, who has c business in ber of years, has made his own wo fashions. And the expe more than three dec demonstrated that the at all perishable.

Mr. Fiedler was pre the 28th annual openin ton's Esplanade Conc pert estimators in the fixed his audience for ing night at 12,000. merous Fiedler follow the Berlioz Rakoczy Beethoven's Symphon the first movement kowsky's Piano Concer and the same co Marche Slav.

The elements which essential durability in ler's production in the certs here in Boston late years throughout try, and in these Concerts are several. his business thorough because his training but because he has it intensely over so m He is an experienced tor and a sound music And he has learned

Crawford Ave., girl. Sc
Mr. and Mrs. Raymond
931 Yates St., boy. Sund
Mr. and Mrs. William L
Genoa, boy. Sunday.
Mrs. and Mrs. Robert
Palmer St., boy. Sunday
Mr. and Mrs. James S

is apparent that the are grateful to him.

OR go over the score for a hele Levin, 11, gave a Children's Esplanade Con- hur Fiedler, of course. July 12

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078. Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Free Press
MELROSE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,490

JUL 12

Final Esplanade Concerts Scheduled

Come to Boston the weeken of July 13 and besides bein able to take advantage o whatever form of relaxatio that suits you to a "T", you' be able to enjoy the final Es planade Concerts conducted b the Boston Pops Orchestra the Hatch Memorial Shell.

According to the Massachu setts Department of Commerc the last two concerts of th season will be held on Frida evening, July 13 and on Sunda evening, July 15.

A visit to Boston's many his torical shrines is always en joyable and informative. Ad ventures in eating are in stor for those who visit the man wonderful dining houses an for the more active, exciting amusement centers and beache are just a few minutes away.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078. Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Enterprise (e)
MARLBORO, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 5,435

JUL 12 1956

CONCERT AT ESPLANADE ON THIS WEEKEND

Final Presentations For Summer By Boston Pops Orchestra

Boston, Mass.—Come to Boston the weekend of July 13th, and besides being able to take advantage of whatever form of relaxation that suits you to a "T," you'll be able to enjoy the final Esplanade Concerts conducted by the Boston Pops Orchestra at the Hatch Memorial Shell.

According to the Massachusetts Department of Commerce, the last two concerts of the season will be held on Friday evening, July 13th, and on Sunday evening, July 15th.

Arrive early and plan to spend the entire weekend taking advantage of the many wonderful things to do in Boston. A visit to Boston's many historical shrines is always enjoyable and informative. Adventures in eating are in store for those who visit the many wonderful dining houses, and for the more active, exciting amusement centers and beaches are just a few minutes away.

All main roads lead to Boston, "Hub of the Universe," and its modern transportation system, the M.T.A., allows easy connection with all the main points of interest.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078. Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 405,628

JUL 12 1956

(Record-American Leo Renehan)

Vice Pres. James H. Fairclough, Jr., of Jordan Marsh accepts a certificate of acknowledgement from Conductor Arthur Fiedler in recognition of the store's sponsorship of last night's Esplanade concert by the Boston Symphony Pops Orchestra. It was another one of the community services for which Jordan Marsh is noted.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078. Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 264,020

JUL 13 1956

FILENE'S HONORED—Charles Pinfield, left, representing the trustees of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, presents certificate to Joseph Affanato of William Filene's Sons Co. on stage of Hatch Memorial Shell. Trustees paid tribute to Filene' as a leader in civic enterprises and as a strong supporter o the Boston Symphony.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078. Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 198,749

JUN 12 1956

Greater Boston Irish News

GB Irish Feis At BC July 1

100 Competitions in Various Fields to Feature Gala Affair

By MARY TIERNEY

The skirl of bag-pipes and patter of dancing feet will once again be heard Sunday, July 1, when the Greater Boston Irish Feis will be presented at Boston College Alumni Field.

Sponsored annually by the Council of Irish County Clubs, the Feis, in the past seven years has become a tradition in this section.

Contestants from all parts of New England and as far west as Chicago, as well as Philadelphia and New York will compete for medals and trophies.

More than 100 various competitions in Irish and Scottish singing, dancing, story-telling, Gaelic and English recitations and the harp will be featured on the program.

Special events in the Scottish competitions will include "The Sword Dance" and the "Highland Fling."

Jerry McCarthy of Somerville, president of Irish Counties for Music and Knowledge of Singing, dancing and music, will serve as chairman.

A total number of entries have been received at Feis headquarters, Hibernian Building, Roxbury. However, all contestants are urged to contact Feis headquarters by June 20 so that final details may be handled efficiently and on time.

A LAWN PARTY to aid the Medical Missionaries of Mary will be held Saturday at One Arlington St., Winchester, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

A day's program for young and old alike will feature games, gifts and goodies. Special tables of food, cakes and prizes will be offered for sale.

Lunch and supper will be served to all in attendance.

